THE Recorder (tho' not this Year, but divers Years after) gave this Advice for the finding out Felons in LONDON. "I take this Courſe, "as I think, to be the beſt and ſureſt Way to "find out Felons, Thieves, and ſuch like, viz. "That my Lords direct their ſpecial Letters of "Commandment to my Lord Mayor, that he "give Order to every Alderman, and to their "ſeveral Deputies, to cauſe ſeveral Conſtables "and Beadles of each Ward, each Man within "his Precinct, to take every Night an Account "of every Gueſt that lodgeth in their Houſe, "and to enter the ſame into a Book, and to "preſent the ſame unto their Alderman; and ſo "the Aldermen over to my Lord Mayor. The "which Thing is even as eaſy to be done as it "was at Calais, being Engliſh. For the Charge "and Precinct of every Conſtable in Calais, was "as big as the Precinct of any Conſtable in "LONDON. And this being duly executed, "it would be an Example to the whole Realm "to do the like. And by this Means (which is "but the due Execution of the antient Laws of "this Realm) ſhould be avoided great Whoredoms, Murthers, Thefts, unlawful Aſſemblies, "Conſpiracies, Confederacies, and ſuch like; "and, in the End, ſave Numbers from Tyburn.

BUT notwithſtanding the former Order, and the Charges committed to the Beadles of the Hoſpitals to clear the City of Vagabonds and Beggars, it had not its full Effect. For in the Year 1570, or thereabouts, the City ſwarmed again with Beggars; many whereof were valiant and ſturdy Rogues, and Maſterleſs Men and Vagrants, and maimed Soldiers. For the preventing the Miſchief occaſion'd by ſome of theſe, and the great Annoyance they gave the City, the City took a more regular Courſe; and appointed a Committee to treat with ſome fit Perſons to be Marſhals of the City, who ſhould take ſome good Courſe with theſe wandering People, for the clearing of the Streets of them, and appointing them to their ſeveral Places and Puniſhments, if they deſerved it. And theſe were to be armed and well aſſiſted with Servants for the ſafer Execution of their Office. Theſe Committees choſe two able Perſons, viz. William Sympſon and John Read, to take upon them this Office, to be the City Marſhals, for the Conſideration of ſix Shillings and eight Pence a Day, for them and their Horſes, and ſix Perſons a-piece to attend on each Day, at 12 d. a-piece, which is twelve Shillings the Day for either of them. The Appointment of thoſe Men to be left unto the Marſhals themſelves, to make the better Choice of fit Men for their Purpoſe. They required moreover, that one Month's Pay, amounting to 35 l. 9 s. 4 d. at twenty-eight Days to the Month, for them and their Attendance, might be paid them aforehand, the better to furniſh them in their Preparation and Want. And to help forward this Work, tending to ſo notable a Purpoſe, with all Speed to be expedited, the Committees thought convenient that this Month's Pay might, by Way of Loan, be ſupplied among the Aldermen. And in that mean Time, and upon the well proceeding therein, the Commons might be moved to the Eſtabliſhment of a ſettled Supply for the Continuance thereof in ſome convenient Manner; and that then after there might be a Weekly Payment of their Salary by Mr. Chamberlain, and the Aldermens Diſburſements ſatisfied, when that Contribution ſhould be eſtabliſhed. It was alſo thought convenient that twelve fair Partizans ſuitably and conveniently armed, ſhould be preſently provided by the Chamberlain for this Service, at the Charge of the City; and Coats or Mandilions for the Attendants upon the Marſhals.

IT was alſo thought by the Committees, that the Name of MARSHAL, for the diſorderly Perſons in the City of LONDON, would be moſt proper, and might be beſt uſed without Offence And this ſeems to have been the Beginning of the Office of the CITY MARSHAL.

ABOUT the Year 1570, or within ſome few Years of it, the Plague was in the City: Then great Care was taken for preventing the ſpreading of the Infection, and for hindering of idle Perſons going about, that might carry it along with them. There were Orders ſet down by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, for taking away ſuch Enormities, as were Means not only to continue, but encreaſe the Plague and Diſorders in the City, and out of Articles made and decreed for providing for the Poor, and ſetting them to work.

2. That all Maiſterleſſe Men who live idelie in the Cyttye, without any lawfull Calling, frequenting Places of common Aſſemblies, as Interludes, Gaming-Howſes, Cockpitts, Bowling-Allies, and ſuch other Places, maie be baniſhed the Cyttye, according to the Laws in that Caſe provyded.

All which Orders aboveſaid, the Aldermen and there Deputies are every one in their Place to ſee performed, both in themſelves and others, and in Caſes of Doubt, to yield their Opinions, and give Direction.

THE Queen in the Year 1572, being ready to go her Progreſs, took Care of the City, and gave the Lord Mayor ſpecial Charge to look after his Government; and joined with him, to deviſe by all good Means, for the quiet Order to be continued, both in the City and Places adjoining, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Biſhop of LONDON and others; and wrote to him this Letter following in the Month of July.

To the LORD MAYOR of LONDON.

The Queen's Order to the Mayor in the Time of her Progreſs.

RIGHT Truſty and Well-beloved, We greet you well. Altho' we doubt not, but that by the Authority you have as Lord Mayor of our City of LONDON, with the Aſſiſtance and Advices of your Brethren of the ſame, you may and will ſee our ſaid City well governed, and our good and faithful Subjects ordered and continue in Quietneſs, as other your Predeceſſors, and your Self have commonly done: Yet, for the ſpecial Care We have for our ſaid City, and Weal of our good Subjects, thinking it convenient for your own Eaſe, to have you aſſiſted by other Perſons of great Truſt, Wiſdom and Experience, during this Time of our Progreſs and Abſence in remote Parts from thence; and eſpecially that no Diſorder ſhould ariſe in the Suburbs, or other Places adjoining to the City, out of your Juriſdiction: We have for that Purpoſe made Choice of the moſt Reverend Father in God the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Biſhop of LONDON, L. Wentworth, Sir Anthony Cook, Sir Tho. Wroth, Sir Owyn Hopton, Sir Tho. Greſham, Dr. Wylſon, and Tho. Wilbraham: And have appointed that they, or ſome convenient Number of them, ſhall join with you, to deviſe, by all good Means, from Time to Time, as Occaſions may give Cauſe, for quiet Order to be continued in our ſaid City, and among our Subjects, and to prevent and ſtay Diſorders, both there and in other Parts near to the ſame, being out of your Juriſdiction. For which Purpoſe, and for the better Underſtanding of our Deſire and Intention, We have cauſed our Privy Council to confer with ſome of the aforenamed Perſons, as you ſhall underſtand by them. Willing and requiring you (when you ſhall meet together, or ſome of them with you) for the better doing thereof, to agree upon ſome certain Place and Time, once every Week or oftener, as the Caſes may require, and there to meet for the due Execution of our good Meaning and Pleaſure.

ABOUT this Time a great Abuſe prevailed in LONDON, which was, that the worſt Sort of People, and other Evil-Doers in this City, became emboldened in their Wickedneſs by this Means; that when any of them was committed to Priſon by the Mayor, Sheriffs, or Aldermen, for any Diſobedience, Contempt, lewd Living, or other Miſdemeanors, they forthwith obtained Writs of Habeas Corpus, whereby they diſcharged themſelves out of Priſon; ſo as the Magiſtrates could not do Execution of Juſtice upon them, to the great Encouragement of Malefactors, and Contempt of Authority; therefore in the Year 1572, and in the Month of November, Sir Lionel Ducket, Mayor, by a Letter, moved the Lord Treaſurer, to be a Means to the Queen's Juſtices, that the ſame Writs might not be ſo common, unleſs it were in Caſes depending in Suit betwixt Party and Party in the Courts of this City; whereby Juſtice ſhould be better and more ſpeedily executed, to the Terror of the Lewd, and the Comfort of the Queen's good and honeſt Subject, and to the Quietneſs and good Order of the City.

Veniſon forbid by Act of Common-Council.

GREAT Houſe-keeping and Feaſting, as it was antiently uſed in LONDON, ſo the Cuſtom continued down all along Queen Elizabeth's Reign, eſpecially among the Companies, and at the Chief Magiſtrates Tables: There was exceſſive ſpending of Veniſon, as well as other Victuals in the Halls. Nay, and a great Conſumption of Veniſon there was frequently at Taverns and Cooks Shops, inſomuch that the Court was much offended with it; whereupon Anno 1573, that the City might not continue to give the Queen and Nobility Offence, the Lord Mayor, Sir Lionel Ducket, and Aldermen had, by Act of Common-Council, forbidden ſuch Feaſts hereafter to be made, and reſtrained the ſame only to neceſſary Meetings, in which alſo no Veniſon was permitted; and becauſe they found great Expence of Veniſon to have been in Taverns and Cooks Houſes, and withal very many and great Enormities, by Reaſon of Drunkenneſs, ſeditious Rumours, unthrifty Aſſemblies, Incontinence, and other Evil to grow of inordinate reſorting to Taverns and Tippling Houſes, eſpecially for the meaner Sort, they reſtrained drinking and eating in ſuch Houſes; and the Mayor ſending this Act to the Lord Treaſurer, prayed him, that he would likewiſe take the ſame Order in St. Martin's and Weſtminſter, and other exempt and adjoining Places, without which their Proceedings would lack a great Part of the Fruit that was hoped to enſue thereby.

GRANTING Places in Reverſion was contrary to ſome of the antient Laws of the City; for the preventing whereof divers Laws had been made by the Mayor and Aldermen; and in the Year 1574, finding yet the Inconvenience thereof, the Mayor and Aldermen renewed that Order, and took ſpecial Care for putting it in due Execution, that the Offices of the City ſhould not be any more granted in Reverſion; which was a ſpecial Ordinance among them, and which had been made for great Cauſes touching the State of the City, and chiefly to ſatisfy the Commons of the City, who ſhewed great Diſlike of this Practice.

BY the Care of Fleetwood, the Recorder, and the other Magiſtrates, in the Year 1575, there were few or no Rogues and Thieves in the Jail; for the Lord Keeper Bacon, in the Month of Auguſt, ſitting in the Star-Chamber, and according to the Order, calling for the Book of Misbehaviour of maſterleſs Rogues, Fencers, and ſuch like, there was none to preſent for LONDON, though for Surrey there were five or ſix Strumpets that had lately been puniſhed at the Aſſizes at Croyden and Weſtminſter, the Dutchy, (that is, the Places about St. Clement's and the Savoy) St. Giles's, High-Holbourn, St. John's-ſtreet and Iſlington (great Harbours of ſuch miſdemeaned Perſons) were never ſo well and quiet; for Rogues nor maſterleſs Men dared now once to appear in thoſe Parts; into ſuch good Order had the Care of the Magiſtrate at this Time brought the City and Suburbs.

IN this Year 1575, in the Month of Auguſt, at the Star-Chamber before-mentioned, the Lord Bacon ſet down in Writing, certain Orders for reforming ſundry Matters: One was for ſuppreſſing of over great Number of Alehouſes. Soon after, the Lord Mayor, Sir Rowland Haywood, and the Recorder for the Liberties of Southwark, Juſtice Southcote, and the Recorder for Lambeth Town, Lambeth Marſh, the Clink, the Bank, Paris-garden, the Over-ground, Newington, Bermondſey-ſtreet, and Kent-ſtreet, ſetting altogether, they put down 200 Alehouſes, and yet left a ſufficient Number, yea, and more they they feared than the Lord Keeper would like of at his next coming. Then after Dinner, the Dean of Weſtminſter, and the Recorder, went to Weſtminſter: And there in the Court, they had before them all the Officers of the Dutchy, and of Weſtminſter, and put down near 100 Alehouſes there; and the like Reformation was done at St. Giles's, High-Holbourn, St. John-ſtreet and Iſlington: Mr. Lieutenant and Mr. Fiſher dealt for the Eaſt Parts of the City.

It is remarkable, all this good Order for Reformation was taken, when the Court was abſent, as it was now, being fled at a Diſtance, by Reaſon of the Plague this Year (1575,) in LONDON: Then did Fleetwood, the Recorder, uſe theſe Words in a Letter to the Lord Treaſurer, then with the Court at Buxton: "The only Cauſe that this Reformation taketh "ſo good Effect here about LONDON, is, "That when by Order we have either juſtly "executed the Law, or performed the Councils "Commandment, we are wont to have either a "great Man's Letter, a Lady's Ring, or ſome "other Token from ſuch other inferior Perſons "as will deviſe one Untruth or other, to accuſe "us of, if we perform not their unlawful Re-"queſts. The Court is far off; here we are not "troubled with Letters, neither for the Re-"prieve of this Priſoner, nor for ſparing that "Fray-maker. Theſe Secretaries, Chamber-"Keepers and Solicitors in the Court, procure "many Letters from their Lords and Ladies "upon untrue Suggeſtions; the which Let-"ters do great Hurt." Thus the honeſt Re-"corder.

Two Years after, viz. Auguſt 1577, there was a great Seſſions, 18 executed at Tyburn, and one Barlow, Prieſt; all notable Cut-purſes and Horſe-ſtealers, and the chiefeſt Thieves in the Land. The Recorder informing the Lord Treaſurer, according to Cuſtom, of the Tranſactions of the Seſſion, adds, That there was Plain-dealing, and neither Favour nor Partiality; and that it was the quieteſt Seſſions that ever he was at; and no more Juſtices but the Lord Mayor, Sir Will. Damſel, and himſelf, and, the Court being removed from LONDON to Windſor, for fear of the Plague, there was not any reprieved, hinting by the by, that to be the Reaſon of the Peaceableneſs of the Seſſion, and the good Juſtice done ſo impartially.

In the Year 1578, and in the Month of July, (the Queen, as it ſeems, now going her Progreſs) the Lords of the Council ſent their Letters for the good ordering of the City, to the Biſhop of LONDON, the Lord Wentworth, the Lord Mayor, Mr. Lieutenant of the Tower and Recorder Fleetwood. There uſed to be joined to theſe in former Letters from the Court to the ſame Inſtant, Sir Thomas Greſham, Sir William Damſel, the Dean of Weſtminſter, Mr. Juſtice Southcote, and others, but by Omiſſion left out in theſe Letters. Being met, the Recorder ſhewed unto the Aſſiſtants certain Points that the Lord Treaſurer in Time paſt gave them for keeping good Order, viz. Plays, unlawful Games, Fence-Schools Vagabonds and ſuch like, to be ſuppreſſed; to have a vigilant Eye to the Plague, and to the Watches, and to lay Privy Searches. The Benefit of which appeared, that at the laſt Privy Search Mr. Fiſher, and the Recorder, took above 60 Rogues, being all of the Country. They ſent them alway at their Peril, and ſome were well whipped.

The encreaſing of the City by Building and Inmates, was looked upon as very dangerous to the City, and of very ill Conſequence; wherefore the Queen, at the City's Deſire, ſet forth this following Proclamation:

By the QUEENE.

Proclamation againſt new Buildings and Inmates.

THE Queene's Majeſtie, perceiving the State of the Citie of LONDON (being anciently termed her Chambre) and the Suburbes and Confines thereof, to increaſe dayly by Acceſſe of People to inhabite in the ſame, in ſuch ample Sort, as thereby many Inconueniences are ſeene already, but many greater or Neceſſitie like to followe, being ſuch as her Majeſtie cannot neglect to remedie, hauing the principall Care vnder Almightie God to foreſee aforehand, to haue her People in ſuch a Citie and Confines, not onely well gouerned by ordinarie Juſtice, to ſerue God and obey her Majeſtie, which by Reaſon of ſuch Multitudes lately increaſed, can hardly be done without deuiſe of moe newe Juriſdictions and Officers for that Purpoſe, but to be alſo prouided of Suſtentation of Victuall, Foode, and other like Neceſſaries for Man's Life vpon reaſonable Prices, without which no Citie can long continue: And finally, to the Preſeruation of her People in Health, which may ſeeme impoſſible to continue, though preſently by God's Goodnes the ſame is perceiued to be in better Eſtate vniuerſally, then hath bene in Man's Memorie: Yet where there are ſuch great Multitudes of People brought to inhabite in ſmall Roomes, whereof a great Part are ſeene very poore, yea, ſuch as muſt liue of Begging, or worſe Means, and they heaped vp together, and in a Sort ſmothered with many Families of Children and Seruantes in one Houſe or ſmall Tenement, it muſt needes followe (if any Plague or popular Sicknes ſhoulde by God's Permiſſion, enter amongſt thoſe Multitudes) that the ſame would not onely ſpread itſelf and inuade the whole Citie and Confines, as great Mortalitie ſhoulde enſue to the ſame, where her Majeſties perſonall Preſence is many Times required, beſides the great Confluence of People from all Partes of the Realme, by Reaſon of the ordinarie Termes for Juſtice there holden, but woulde be alſo diſperſed through all other Partes of the Realme, to the manifeſt Danger of the whole Body thereof, out of the which neither her Majeſties owne Perſon can be (but by God's ſpeciall Ordinance) exempted, nor any other whatſoeuer they be. For Remedie whereof, as Time may nowe ſerue, untill by ſome further good Order to be had Parliament or otherwiſe, the ſame may be remedied: Her Majeſtie by good and deliberate Aduiſe of her Counſell, and being alſo thereto mooued by the conſiderate Opinions of the Lord Major, Aldermen, and other the graue wiſe men in and about the Citie, doth charge, and ſtraightly command all Maner of Perſons of what Qualitie ſoeuer they be, to deſiſt and forbeare from any newe Buildings of any Houſe or Tenement, within three Miles from any of the Gates of the ſayde Citie of LONDON, to ſerue for Habitation or Lodging for any Perſon, where no former Houſe hath bene known to haue bene, in the Memorie of ſuch as are now liuing, And alſo to forbeare from letting or ſetting, or ſuffring any more Families then one onely to be placed or to inhabite from hencefoorth in any Houſe that heretofore hath bene inhabited.

And to the Intent this her Majeſties Royal Commandment and neceſſary Prouiſion may take Place and be duely obſerued, for ſo univerſall a Benefice to the whole Body of the Realme, for whoſe Reſpects all particular Perſons are bound by Gods Lawe and Mans, to forbeare from their particular and extraordinare Lucre: Her Majeſte ſtraightly chargeth the Lorde Maior of the Citie of LONDON, and all other Officers having Authoritie in the ſame, and alſo all Juſtices of Peace,

Peace, Lordes, and Bailiſes of Liberties, not being within the Juriſdiction of the ſaid Lorde Maior of LONDON, to foreſee that no Perſon do begin to prepare any Foundation for any new Houſe, Tenement, or Building, to ſerue, to receiue, or hold any Inhabitants to dwell or lodge, or to uſe any Victualling therein, where no former Habitation hath been in the Memorie of ſuch as now doe live, but that they be prohibited and reſtrained ſo to do; and both the Perſons that ſhall ſo attempt to the contrary, and all Manner of Workmen that ſhall (after Warning giuen) continue in any ſuch Worke tending to ſuch newe Buildings, to be committed to cloſe Priſon, and to remaine without Bale, untill they find good Sureties with Bondes for reaſonable Summes of Money (to be forfaitable and recouered at her Majeſtie's Suite, for the Uſe of the Hoſpitals in and about the ſaid Citie,) that they ſhall not at any Time attempt the like. And further, the ſaid Officers ſhall ſeaze all Manner of Stuffe ſo (after Warning giuen) brought to the Place where ſuch newe Buildings ſhal be intended, and the ſame Cauſe to be conuerted and employed in any publicke Vſe for the Citie or Pariſhe where the ſame ſhal be attempted. And for the auoiding of the Multitudes of Families heaped up in one Dwelling-Houſe, or for the conuerting of any one Houſe into Multitude of ſuch Tenements for dwelling or victualling Places, the ſaide Lorde Maior and all other Officers in their ſeueral Liberties within the Limites of three Miles, as aboue-mentioned, ſhall commit any Perſon giuing Cauſe of Offence from the Day of Publication of this preſent Proclamation, to cloſe Priſon, as is afore limited; and alſo for the Offences in this Part of Increaſe of many Indwellers, or as they be commonly termed, Inmates, or Vnderſitters, which haue beene ſuffered within theſe ſeuen Yeeres, contrary to the good auncient Lawes or Cuſtomes of the Citie, or of the Boroughes and Pariſhes within the foreſaid Limite of three Miles afore-mentioned, the Lord Maior and other the Officers aboue-mentioned, ſhall ſpeedily cauſe to be redreſſed in their ordinarie Courtes and Lawe Days, betwixt this and the Feaſt of All-Saints next comming. Within which Times ſuch Underſitters, or Inmates, may prouide themſelues other Places abroade in the Realme, where many Houſes reſt vnhabited, to the Decay of diuers auncient good Borroughes and Townes. And becauſe her Majeſtie intendeth to haue this Ordinance duely executed, her Pleaſure is, that the ſaid Lord Maier of LONDON, and other the Officers hauing Juriſdiction within the ſaid Space of three Miles aboue-mentioned, ſhall after the Proclamation hereof, as ſpeedily as they may, meete in ſome conuenient Places neere to the ſaid Citie, and there (after Conference had) accord among themſelues, how to proceede to the Execution hereof. And if Cauſe ſhall ſo require, to impart to her Majeſties Priuie-Counſell any Let or Impediment that may ariſe, to the Intent that Remedy be giuen to any ſuch Impediment, according to her Majeſties Pleaſure heretofore expreſſed.

Giuen at Noneſuch the ſeuenth Day of July, 1580, in the two and twentieth Yeere of her Majeſties Reigne.

GOD ſaue the QUEENE.

Imprinted at LONDON, by Chriſtopher Barker, Printer to the Queenes moſt excellent Majeſtie.

The Lord Treaſurer's DIRECTIONS to the new Lord Mayor.

IN the ſame Year 1580, Sir John Branch entering Lord Mayor, when he came to the Court of Exchequer to take his Oath, the Lord Treaſurer declared himſelf, for the Nearneſs of his Place about the Queen's moſt Excellent Majeſty, to underſtand her Pleaſure; and delivered unto him ſeveral Advertiſements of certain Matters, to be had in Remembrance, and diligently look'd into:

Firſt, For Execution of the Queen's late Proclamation, namely, againſt the Increaſe of new Buildings, and Multiplication of Families within the City of LONDON, and three Miles Compaſs of the ſame. Which Proclamation his Lordſhip ſaid to have proceeded from Information given from the Mayor himſelf: Who had advertiſed the Council, that the Multitude in and about the City did ſo overgrow, that there was ſome Fear and Peril of ruling them. And further, he alledged three Conſiderations as Grounds of that Proclamation, viz. the over-peopling for Governance, eſpecially of the worſt and baſeſt Sort; the Exceſs of Prizes of Victuals and Fewel; and the Danger of Plague and Infection. From which her Majeſty's Perſon could not be inſured to be free.

Secondly, For Proviſions of Hoſpitals, and other good Means to be thought of, in Time of Health againſt Time of Sickneſs.

Thirdly, The Conſervation of the River of Thames: Wherein his Lordſhip firſt made Mention of the City's Juriſdiction from London-bridge to Stanes; and therein did remember, that Hatches, Stops, and Wayres, wherewith her Majeſty was grieved, and found Fault in the Paſſage of her own Barge; beſide the Multitude of Fry of Fiſh deſtroyed thereby, and made Meat for Swine. He alſo made Mention of the Commodity of the River for bringing of Fewel, Victual and Carriages that Way to the City; and concluded, That Order had been given for Redreſs thereof; but he heard not of the executing it. It was anſwer'd, That it was done. And then he further ſaid, That her Majeſty did find Fault with a great Enormity about the Bridge, by certain Things which ſhe called Trunkers. Which her Pleaſure was, that the Lord Mayor ſhould cauſe to be redreſſed.

Fourthly, His Lordſhip did remember certain lewd Perſons, Fugitives come from beyond the Seas, and eſpecially from Rome; Miſlikers of the Religion, State and Government; and Practiſers of Sedition; Perſons dangerous to the Realm, and of whom the City of LONDON, being the greateſt and wealthieſt Place of the Realm, had chief Cauſe to beware; and where the greateſt Number of them lurked. And therefore he willed, that ſuch ſhould be diligently ſought.

THESE Admonitions of ſo grave and wiſe a Counſellor, and delivered as the expreſs Pleaſure of the Queen, had this Succeſs; that at the very firſt Court of this Mayor, which was held November 3, 1580, it was order'd, That the Lord Mayor and Aldermen ſhould both in their own Perſons, and with their earneſt Travail, and by their inferior Officers, ſee and cauſe the ſaid Admonitions to be moſt carefully and vigilantly look'd unto, and the ſaid Diſorders reformed, to the uttermoſt of their Power. And that therefore the Orders following ſhould be forthwith put in Execution:

Firſt, For the Matter of new Building and Multiplication of Families, Precepts ſhall be directed to the ſeveral Aldermen of the Wards of this City, to call their ſeveral Inqueſts of Wardmote, upon their Oaths to enquire and preſent all Offences againſt the ſaid Proclamation; both in Erecting of new Buildings, and in Letting out, or Converting of former Houſes to greater Number of Habitations than heretofore have been: And alſo of the peſtering of the City and Places adjoyning with Inmates, and with Increaſe of Alleys, and with Strangers; ſuch as either come not hither for their Conſcience in true Religion, or be of ſuch Places as they may ſafely return: And alſo to enquire, ſo near as they can by credible Information, all Offences againſt the ſaid Proclamation in Places pretended exempt, and within three Miles without the Walls of the ſaid City.

To the Intent, that for ſuch Things as are in the Juriſdiction of this City, ſpeedy Remedy be given: And for the reſt, Petition be made to the moſt Honourable Council. And that Precepts be ſent to the Wardens of the ſeveral Companies of the Carpenters and Bricklayers, that none of their Companies do work in any ſuch New Buildings, or Severance of former Houſes, on Pain of Impriſonment, during the Council's Pleaſure, or Diſfranchiſement for ever.

Secondly, For the Matter of Plague and Infection, the Miniſters of this Court ſhall be commanded to ſeek out the Orders heretofore ſent by the Lords of the moſt Honourable Council, and alſo thoſe that have been conſider'd by the Common-Council of this City, and allowed by the ſaid Lords in this Behalf. And certain grave Perſons, both Aldermen and Commoners, ſhall be appointed in Commiſſion eſtſoons to conſider thereof, and of all Places convenient; and for further Orders, both in clean keeping of Streets, Lanes and Houſes, and otherwiſe requiſite in that Behalf: And thereof inform this Court, That Order may be taken accordingly with the good Liking of the moſt Honourable Lords.

Thirdly, For the Matter of Conſervation of the River Thames. And firſt for Weyers and Stops about the Bridge, it is order'd that the Water-Bailiff ſhall be called, and commanded to deliver in Writing a true, diſtinct and particular Report of the State of the River, and how her Majeſty's late Commandment hath been executed according to the Laws of this Realm, and Right of the City. And for the Matter of Trinkers, he ſhall likewiſe enquire by all lawful Means; and certify to this Court of the Quality of thoſe Trinkers, their Number, their Places and Manner of Fiſhing; what Harm they do, and how and in what Sort they may and ought to be reformed. And for all other Matters pertaining to this City to redreſs touching the River, and the Navigableneſs and Fiſhing thereof, he ſhall truly inform. That for ſuch Things as lie within the Power of this City to amend, Remedy be given ſpeedily. And for the reſt, Suit be made to her Majeſty and her Council, and Reformation ſought by Order of her Majeſty's Laws.

And this Service, for the more ſpeedy doing thereof, it is order'd that Anthony Hall be requir'd to be Aſſiſtant to the ſaid Water-Bailiff with his Travail and Diligence: And that at ſuch Times yearly as the Water-Bailiff goeth up with Citizens for view of the Thames the ſaid Anthony Hall ſhall always be one of the ſaid Citizens.

Fourthly and laſtly, for the Matter of Popiſh and Seditious Rumour-ſpreaders, it is order'd, That ſpecial Precepts be directed to all the Aldermen by all Means to make diligent Enquiry and Search for ſuch Perſons, and eſpecially for ſuch as come to this City by Water: And that there be ſpecial Perſons, known well affected in Religion, appointed to examine ſuch Suſpects as ſhall be for thoſe Cauſes brought unto them, and thereupon her Majeſty's Council be ſpeedily advertiſed.

NEAR about this Time, divers good Orders were appointed to be executed in the City of LONDON for ſetting Rogues and idle Perſons to work, and for Relief of the Poor, Arts, Occupations, Works and Labours to be ſet up in Bridewell, Stock and Tools to be provided. All Vagrants to be brought to Bridewell, that ſhall be found remaining in this City, after a Proclamation for their Departure to other Places, where by Law they ought to be provided for. The Diſeaſed to be ſent to Hoſpitals to be cured; and being cured, to be ſent to Bridewell again; and there to be examined; and ſo to be diſcharged or ſet on work, in ſuch Work as they ſhall be found fitteſt for, and kept with thin Diet only. Such Vagrants as ſhall be found skilful in any Occupation, the Governors of Bridewell ſhall uſe their Endeavours, that ſome Citizen or other take them into their Service. Such as belong by Law to the Charge of the City, having young Children upon their Hands, and none found by Law to find them, thoſe Children to be ſent to Chriſt's Hoſpital, ſo far as the Houſe ſhall be able to maintain them, the reſt to be maintained at the Charge of the Pariſh: Carriers or others that bring any Children or other into the City, and leave them unplaced or not ſufficiently provided for, to be puniſhed by Impriſonment, or otherwiſe as ſharply as Law will permit; and be bound to convey them back again. Inn-keepers or others that wittingly receive or keep ſuch, either to provide for them, or diſcharge the City of them. Warning of this to be given by Proclamation. Several Charges to Conſtables and other Officers concerning taking up Vagrants, with other effectual Proviſions againſt Idleneſs and Poverty, were now made; and digeſted into a Book printed by John Day, the better to be known by all and obſerved.

RECORDER Fleetwood had ſet up Privy Searches in LONDON for the better finding out of looſe and dangerous Perſons, who about theſe Times exceedingly peſtered the City. In theſe privy Searches he employed truſty Officers to go about ſecretly into the obſcurer Parts, to ſeek for Rogues and Thieves. By which Courſe he at laſt almoſt cleared the Town of them. In the Year 1581, ſoon after Chriſtmas, were brought into Juſtice-Hall above an hundred Perſons taken in one Night's privy Search.

AND as they had theſe Ways to find out and bring to light theſe idle maſterleſs Beggars and Vagabonds; ſo they had divers Sorts of Puniſhments for them, namely, Impriſonment at Bridewell, and Whipping there; and ſuch as were ſtrong, were ſent ſometimes to the Milnes, and ſometimes to the Lighters to work.

UPON Occaſion of a great Parcel of Rogues encompaſſing the Queen's Coach near Iſlington one Evening in the Year aforeſaid, when ſhe was riding abroad to take the Air; (which ſeemed to put her into ſome Diſturbance) Notice was preſently given to the Mayor and Recorder. On that Night and the next Day were taken ſeventy-four Rogues, and ſent to Bridewell

UPON Twelfth-Day the Lords of the Council gave Charge to the Maſter of the Rolls and the Recorder of LONDON, touching Rogues and maſterleſs Men, and to have a Privy Search. That very Day the Recorder met the Governor of Bridewell, and they examined together all the aboveſaid ſeventy-four Rogues, and gave them ſubſtantial Payment. And the ſtrongeſt they beſtowed in the Milne and the Lighters; the reſt were diſmiſs'd, with a Promiſe of double Payment, if they were met with again.

UPON Sunday, the Day after this Twelth-Day, out of the Dutchy, Weſtminſter, Southwark, Lambeth and Newington, were gathered up a Shoal of forty Rogues, Men and Women. All ſent to Bridewell. The ſame Day Afternoon at St. Paul's were taken up twenty cloaked Rogues, that uſed to keep their Standings there.

THE next Day, being Monday, in the Morning, the Maſter of the Rolls, and other Juſtices for the Places about LONDON, took order with the Conſtables, for a privy Search againſt Thurſday at Night. And the Mayor and Recorder did the like in LONDON and Southwark.

THE next Day ſix Fellows were brought out of the Savoy Hoſpital, entertained there as Poor, who were nothing elſe but Draymen to Brewers; they were ſoundly paid, and ſent home to their Maſters.

ALL Tueſday, Wedneſday, and Thurſday, came in Numbers of Rogues that were rewarded according to their Deſerts; the Strong put to Labour, and the Weaker diſmiſſed into their Countries.

Friday, at the Juſtice-Hall were brought in above 100; the Maſter of Bridewell well received them, and immediately gave them Puniſhment.

Saturday after Dinner, the Recorder went to St. Paul's and other Places, as well within the Liberties as elſewhere, and found not one Rogue ſtirring.

THE Obſervations the Recorder made to the Lord Treaſurer concerning the Tranſactions of this Week, were, That of all theſe Companies there were not, of LONDON, Weſtminſter, Southwark, Middleſex nor Surrey, above 12; the Reſidue for the moſt Part were of Wales, Salop, Cheſter, Somerſet, Berks, Oxford, Eſſex; and that few or none of them had been about LONDON above three or four Months; and that they met not again with any in all their Searches that had received Puniſhment. So cautious did good Labour and good whipping make them; and further, he obſerved, That the chief Allurers of theſe evil People were the Savoy, and the Brick-kilns near Iſlington.

April 1582, was executed Margaret Harding, a famous Cut-Purſe in theſe Times; the Week before Chriſtmas ſhe pleaded a Pardon for the like Fault; which Pardon was procured by Monſieur de Alphene; and there was now a Gentleman at the Court that ſhe reported had 100 Marks of her; the Woman had before the Benefit of ſundry other Pardons, as well general as ſpecial; ſuch Prevalency had her Bribes at Court, or ſo dextrous were her Cheats, that they procured many Friends to intercede for her.

CONCERNING the Over-building in the City before-mentioned, it ſhould have been added, That about the Middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign great Care was taken, that the City grew not too populous, to prevent the Increaſe of poor and needy People, and the Danger that might come to the City in Plagues by too great Multitudes: Alſo Care was taken for the preventing of Drinking-Houſes, now uſed to be much in Cellars. And when old Houſes were repaired, that were of good Amplitude, they would make two or three Tenements of them, to increaſe the Rent. And theſe were turned, ſome into Alehouſes, or let to ſuch as were of the poorer Sort. Great Houſes alſo were ſometimes turned into Alleys, conſiſting of divers Houſes. Many Sheds alſo were ſet up to ſerve for ſmall Shops, which did but harbour poor People. There were alſo made Holes under the Shops for the poorer Sort of Artiſans; which were injurious both to the Beauty and Wholeſomeneſs of the City. Stalls alſo were ſet out from the Houſes into the Streets upon London-bridge, and in other Places of the City, to the ſtreightening of the Streets for Paſſage. Moreover, to the further Inconvenience of the City, many were made Free by Redemption, the Lords making Requeſts for certain People of the City for that Purpoſe. And hereby it became much filled by ſuch, their Wives and Children. It was looked upon alſo as no Ways conducing to the wealthy State of the City, for young Men to ſet up their Trades as ſoon as they were out of their Time, without being Journeymen for ſome Time: Nor was it liked by the graver Citizens, that the young Citizens ſhould keep Fairs; which to do was required double Number of Servants, to the Over-peopling of LONDON. And whereas before, there were many large Gardens belonging to the Houſes in the City, eſpecially ſuch Houſes as were of the greater Size of Building: Now in theſe Gardens were Houſes builded, and many of them uſed for lewd and evil Purpoſes, and many privy Contracts were here made for the Sale of Children. Moorfields, which formerly the Citizens uſed for their Health and Pleaſure to walk in, and to take the Air, began now to be incloſed, to the Hinderance of theſe healthful and uſeful Walkings.

FOR the remedying of all theſe Things, a Device (by the Recorder Fleetwood) was prepared Anno 1583, to be offered to the Lords of the Conncil, 1. Againſt ſetting up new Buildings in or near LONDON. 2. Againſt converting great Houſes to Alleys, or Multitude of Habitations. And, 3. Againſt Inmates, in theſe ſeveral Articles following:

To provide for Time to come that her Majeſty's Proclamation be better obſerved.

Some Correction or Blame where Negligence hath been in Execution, and a more ſevere Charge hereafter,

How lawfully to wache in ſome exemplary Manner, for the Houſes already bylded againſt the Proclamation, that the ſame may be ſome Way redreſſed, becauſe Lawe wanteth to pull them downe.

That the Offenders, ſome at leaſt of each Sort, be holden in Impriſonment during her Majeſty's Pleaſure, and under Aſſeſſement of great Fines, 'till they come to Submiſſion to abide the Order of the Lords; upon which Submiſſion and Bonde for obſerving thereof, the Lords may take Order touching the reforming the Houſes already bylded.

That it be ordered and the Parties bound, that where new Houſes have been bylded in Place of old, they be put two or more into one, till they be reduced at the moſt not to excede the Number that they were before.

That they be alſo bounde, that in thoſe Houſes they ſhall place none but ſuch as ſhall not burden the Citie with their Povertie, and that ſhal be of good Behaviour.

That the Mayor and Juſtices of LONDON, &c. be commanded not to allowe any in ſuch Houſe to kepe Alehouſe, or other Victualling.

That no Inne of Court of Chancerie receive more than the Houſe can conveniently lodge, and for Execution thereof, that all ſuch as lodge out of the Houſe be judged Inmates.

That her Majeſty's Order may be executed as well to Sheds as to Dwelling-Houſes, becauſe Men uſe to lye in thoſe Sheds under the Stalls; where if one dye infected, it is more dangerous than in any Houſe, and ſuch People do commonly ſojourne at the Alehouſe.

That the Mayor of LONDON be commanded to execute the Citie's Law againſt Tippling in Cellars, and to put the Bondes in Sute that he hath againſt ſuch as turne Houſes to Alleys, and to Place Poore in their Tenementes burdenous to the Citie.

That making Holes under Stalles for Artiſans be taken awaye, which is to be done very well by an undirect Meane to the Beautie and Wholſomeneſs of the Citie, viz. That the Lord Mayor be commended for the good Reformation made upon upon London-bridge, to take away the Foreſtalling or ſetting out of Stalls into the Streete beyond the Poſtes of their Houſes, and that he be commanded to do the like throughout LONDON.

That ſuch as your Lordſhips doe not chooſe out to be empriſoned and made Examples, may nevertheleſſe not be diſcharged, but remaine in Terror of ſuffering the like, that they may alſo ſubmit and be bound.

That your Lordſhips forbeare to make Requeſtes for Men to be made Free by Redemption; by whome and their Iſſue and Servants the Citie is much filled.

That your Lordſhips will command the Mayor, &c. to conſult of reaſonable Meanes by reſtrayning Exceſs of Apprentiſes, by abridging the eaſie ſetting up of young Men, without ſerving as Journeymen, and the Diſſolution of good Townes by our running to Faires, in which Caſe they muſt have double Number of Servants, that the Over-peopling of LONDON may be remedied.

May it pleaſe to pardon this new Deviſe, to extend to the new Buildinge allready made.

That her Majeſtie will ordaine an Officer in the Citie by her Prerogative, called a Harbinger, for the Plague.

This Harbinger to have Power to take up Lodging in any of theſe new bylded Houſes, to receive the Infected of the Plague, there to be received, lodged and cheriſhed 'till they be Whole.

A Remedie for new Buildinges in Gardens, wherein now are Habitations, and many Times incontinent Actes, and the Sale of Men's Children by privie Contracts, &c. as Bridewell knoweth.

The Citie of LONDON hath ever had, and now moſt meete it ſhould have, their free and open Walks in the Fields about the Citie, and namely in Moorefields, and ſome other Fields, where Groundes have ben encloſed for Gardens and new Dwellings there bylded.

Order may be given (as in like Caſe hath been at Sute of Archers for Shooting) now for Wholeſomneſs of the Citie, by Commiſſion out of the Chancerie, that all thoſe Incloſures made within Memorie, be laid open, as they were before the Encloſure.

In the Year 1583, one Day in the Month of July, there were two great Feaſts at LONDON, one at Grocers Hall, and another at Haberdaſhers Hall, (as perhaps there was in all the reſt upon ſome publick Occaſion) Sir Edward Osborne, Mayor, and divers of his Brethren the Aldermen, with the Recorder, were at Haberdaſhers Hall, where the ſaid Mayor, after the ſecond Courſe was come in, took the great ſtanding Cup, the Gift of Sir William Garret, being full of Hypocraſe, and Silence being commanded through all the Tables, all Men being bare-headed, my Lord openly, with a convenient loud Voice, uſed theſe Words; "Mr. "Recorder of LONDON, and you my good "Brethren the Aldermen, bear Witneſs that I "do drink unto Mr. Alderman Maſſam, as She-"riff of LONDON and Midleſex, from Mi-"chaelmas next coming, for one whole Year; "and I do beſeech God to give him as quiet "and peaceable a Year, with as good and gra-"cious Favour of her Majeſty, as I myſelf and "my Brethren the Sheriffs now being, have hi-"therto had, and as I truſt ſhall have: This "ſpoken, all Men deſired the ſame." The Sword-Bearer in Haſte went to the Grocers Feaſt, where Mr. Alderman Maſſam was at Dinner, and did openly declare the Words that my Lord Mayor had uſed; whereunto Silence made, and all being huſh, the Alderman anſwered very modeſtly in this Sort: "Firſt, I thank God, "who, through his great Goodneſs, hath called "me from a very poor and mean Degree, unto "this worſhipful State. Secondly, I thank her "Majeſty for her gracious Goodneſs in al-"lowing to us theſe great and ample Franchi-"ſes: And Thirdly, I thank my Lord Mayor "for having ſo honourable an Opinion of this "my Company of Grocers, as to make choice "of me, being a poor Member of the ſame." And this ſaid, both he and all the Company pledged my Lord, and gave him Thanks.

At a Seſſions of Jail Delivery, Anno 1584, there were 200 at leaſt, and moſt of them Pilferers, and no Matters of Importance were then brought. Thus did Idleneſs prevail in thoſe Times.

At a Seſſions in July 1585, this may be worthy to be related, as it was written from Fleetwood the Recorder to the Lord Treaſurer, That he and ſome others that were then upon the Bench, ſpent a Day about ſearching out ſundry that were Receivers of Felons; and a great many were found in LONDON, Weſtminſter, Southwark and Places about the ſame. And they got the Names of 45 maſterleſs Men and Cut-Purſes, whoſe Practice was to rob Gentlemens Chambers and Artificers Shops, in and about LONDON; and ſeven Houſes of Entertainment for ſuch in LONDON; ſix more in Weſtminſter; three more in the Suburbs, and two in Southwark. Among the reſt they found out one Wotton, a Gentleman born, and ſome Time a Merchant of good Credit, but falling by Time into Decay. This Man kept an Alehouſe at Smart's-Key, near Billingſgate, and after, for ſome Miſdemeanor, put down, he reared up a new Trade of Life; and in the ſame Houſe he procured all the Cut-Purſes about the City to repair to his Houſe. There was a School-houſe ſet up to learn young Boys to cut Purſes. Two Devices were hung up, one was a Pocket, and another was a Purſe: The Purſe had in it certain Counters, and was hung about with Hawks Bells, and over the Top did hang a little Sacring Bell; the Purſe had Silver in it, and he that could take out a Counter without any Noiſe, was allowed to be a publick Foyſter: And he that could take out a Piece of Silver out of the Purſe without Noiſe of any of the Bells, was adjudged a judicial Nypper, according to their Terms of Art. A Foyſter was a Pick-Pocket, a Nypper was a Pick-Purſe or Cut-Purſe.

It gave great Encouragement to Evil-doers about theſe Times, and good Men complained of it, that Thieves and Malefactors condemned were ſo frequently and commonly ſpared; and this Evil came from the Court, inſomuch that the Recorder aforeſaid, a wiſe and honeſt Man, obſerved to the Lord Treaſurer, that it was grown a Trade in the Court to make Means for Reprieves; 20*l.* was nothing: And then ſome Courtier would ſend his Letter to the Recorder or the Sheriff to ſtay the Execution of ſuch an one. And they, many Times abuſed by wrong Information, and that Information carried to the Queen, and then her Heart was moved to Compaſſion, and a Reprieve forthwith ſent away. He reflected likewiſe upon the City, and the Juſtices themſelves, as well as the Court: And that there was not any in their Commiſſion of LONDON and Middleſex, but were deſirous to ſave, or to ſtay any poor Wretch, if by Colour of any Law or Reaſon they could do it. And then he ſubjoined a Saying of William of Wickham: My Lord William of Wincheſter, ſays he, was wont to ſay, "When the Court is furtheſt "from LONDON, then is there the beſt "Juſtice done in all England.

The

THE Tranſactions with the Mayor and Sheriffs at Michaelmas, in the Year 1584, may appear by this Diary, ſent by Fleetwood the Recorder to the Court.

" Upon Mighelmas Even the Lord Maior, Al" dermen and Commons, admitted the new
" Sheriffs unto their Offices, and ſwore them.
" At which Tyme they appoynted Mr. Bland,
" his Son, the Queen's Skinner, to be their " Under-Sheriff of Middleſex, who was then
" ſworn alſo.

" Upon Myghelmas Day, the foreſaid Aſſem-
" blie met agayne, and did chowſe a new Lord
" Maior, who was Mr. Thomas Puliſon, Alder" man; at which Tyme he ſtood up, and gave
" the Commons great Thanks, diſabling himſelf
" for it, as the Order is; and after hym the " old Lord Maior ſtood up, and gave them his
" Thanks in lyke Maner, &c. At after Diner
" the new Sheriffs received the Charge of the " four Priſon-Howſes from the old, by In" denture.

" In craſtino Michlis' my Lord, the Alder" men, and many of the Liveries went to the " Exchequer, with the new Sheriffs, viz. Slayne
" and Billingſley; where I [the Recorder] did
" preſent theym in the Name of the whole Ci-
" tie, who there were admitted by Maiſter Baron
" Sotherton, (the Court being ful of Officers.)
" There we did ſuch Services as apperteyned,
" viz. in bringing a Number of great Horſe-
" Shoes and Nayles, Chopping Knives and litel
" Roddes. After this is the Maior of Oxford
" ſworn, and is yearly invited to Dinner with the " elder Sheriff; and at the ſame Time we invited
" all the Officers to Dinner.

" Thurſday, the next Day after, we kept the " General Seſſions at Weſtminſter-hall for Mid-
" dleſex: Surely it was very great; we ſat the " whole Day, and the next after alſo at Fynsbury;
" upon Saturday at Bridewel, &c. upon Mon- " day at the Seſſions of Gaole Delivery; we " had there two hundred at the leaſt, moſt of " them were Pilferers, &c.

IN the Year 1586, at one of the Seſſions was but little to do, and very few Criminal Cauſes; and in the Seſſions of May this Year, none were executed; and the Matters in the ſaid Seſſions ſlender, and of no great Importance; the Reaſon whereof was owing to the great Care of the Recorder Fleetwood, by whoſe Means they had in Priſon in Newgate the moſt principal Thieves of the Realm; and they lacked none but one Mannering, who daily gathered into his Society lewd Perſons, that committed in all Parts of the Realm moſt dangerous Robberies. The Thieves being cag'd up, the leſs Harm was done abroad.

FOR the better taking up of all maſterleſs and ſuſpicious Perſons this Year, 1586, it was now reſolved, That ſtrong Watches ſhould be ſet in every Town and Place about LONDON, in the City and Liberties of Weſtminſter, and in the Hundred of Oſulton. Order therefore was ſent from the Rolls in April, to every High Conſtable, requiring and ſtraitly charging them in the Queen's Name, to certify them in Writing, what Number of able Men they ſhould be able to make within every Townſhip, Pariſh, Village and Hamlet, for ſtrong Watches to be made and prepared within their ſeveral Watches: And theſe Men to be well armed, and furniſhed with ſufficient Armour and Weapon, fit and neceſſary for that Purpoſe: And to cauſe thoſe Numbers of Men preſently to be put in Readineſs, that both they (the High Conſtables) and the ſaid Numbers might be ready upon any ſudden Occaſion to be employed. And to this Order was adjoined another Paper, containing Articles to be executed by the High Conſtables within their ſeveral Watches.

THE Queen had put forth a Proclamation touching the Aſſize, and carrying of Weapons, which began now to be worn extraordinary long; that is, that they ſhould be of ſuch a Length, and ſhould not be carried, as they had been before, upwards, in a hectoring Manner. And for the better Obſervation of the Queen's Proclamation in LONDON, the Lord Mayor, in the Month of November, ſet Watches at every Gate, who were to meaſure every Man's Sword, and to take Notice of his Way of carrying it; at Ludgate, eſpecially, (through which thoſe of the Court uſually came) the Lord Mayor ſet William Bernard, John Hall and George Monger, Drapers, and others. While they were upon the Watch, there paſſed a Gentleman through Ludgate into the City, whoſe Name was Palmer, who ſaid, That he ſerved the Lady Marchioneſs of Northampton; Trial being made of the Length of the Weapon, it was found reformed; whereof Bernard told the Gentleman he was glad, and warned him not to carry the Point of his Weapon upward, for that it was contrary to her Majeſty's Will, and Order of the Council. And Hall bid him, and the reſt of the Perſons with him, to depart in Peace, and carry their Swords according to the Queen's Order. But if you will carry them up in Deſpight, at your Peril be it. At parting, the ſaid Gentleman turned his Back, and lifted up his Sword as high as he could carry it. Hereupon he was apprehended, and carried before the Mayor. And when one Sheldon, a young Man in a Green Cloak overtook them, and followed them through Pater-Noſter-Row, reproving the Gentleman for going ſo peaceably, and willing him to reſiſt, and not to go; they ſeized him, and brought him alſo to the Mayor, who committed them till the Council's Pleaſure were known.

IN the ſame Year (viz. 1586,) a Dearth was in LONDON, both of Corn, and Wood for Fuel. The Dearth of Corn occaſioned, as was thought, partly by the Spoil which certain Dunkirkers made, having taken four or five Ships of Corn coming for LONDON from beyond the Seas; and partly by the great Recourſe of People to the City at that Time: And the Corn accuſtomed to come up from the Countries about, was ſtopp'd by the Juſtices of Peace, and not ſuffered to come. For the Redreſs of this Dearth, which was in Danger ſtill to encreaſe, and the Price of Corn likely to be much enhanced, in October the City went to the Lords of the Council, where the Recorder ſet forth to them the Reaſons of this Evil, and the Means to dreſs it; which was, that in the Counties of Kent, Suffolk, Suſſex, Hampſhire, Norfolk, and other Counties about LONDON (which were wont to ſerve the City with Corn) Proviſion of Corn might be made for the ſaid City, and quietly ſuffered by the Juſtices of the Shires without Interruption, to come to LONDON: And for that Purpoſe the Treaſurer was moved for obtaining the Privy-Council's Letters preſently, (for that the Bakers much complained) that Order might be taken that no Corn ſhould be carried out of the Land: That the Merchants that brought Corn from Dantzick, and other Places from beyond the Sea, might have Liberty, the Markets here being furniſhed to carry and convey the reſt out of the Realm, for the better Management of the Merchants trading in Corn, as their Lordſhips had been heretofore moved: And that the Lord Treaſurer would take Order, that at Weſtminſter and St. Katharine's, and other Places about LONDON, Billets might be ſold and Faggots, at the Price taken and ſet down by the Lord Mayor within the City of LONDON; that is, Weſtern and Kentiſh Billets, 13 s. 4 d. the Thouſand, Weſtern Faggots, 5 s. 4 d. the Hundred, Kentiſh Faggots, 6 s. the Hundred.

The Cuſtom of the Citizens and Officers thereof was to go well habited, wearing ſome of their Wealth upon their Backs. About the Middle of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, the City was grown very rich, and now endeavoured to get themſelves eaſed of two Statutes made againſt the Exceſs and inordinate Uſe of Apparel; the one of 24 H. VIII. the other of 1 and 2 of Philip and Mary, whereby the antient Habit of the Magiſtrates would be reſtrained. The Queen perceiving the Rigour of theſe Acts, and how they contained overmuch Strictneſs, by Proclamation dated at Weſtminſter, Feb. 16, in the 19th Year of her Reign, and by other Orders more lately publiſhed, did in ſome Part mitigate the ſame: Yet the Mitigation was not ſuch as the ſame Acts could, with that Mitigation, be obſerved within her Majeſty's City and Chamber of LONDON, without Violation of that decent Order and Conveniency that was by Citizens, Officers, and others thought meet to be uſed and continued; who, though they were not of Subſtance and Value anſwerable by the Rates limited by the Book of Subſidy, yet did hold Place of ſuch worſhipful Calling otherwiſe, as required ſome larger Limitation than was generally preſcribed by the Statutes and Proclamation; wherefore Sir George Bond, Mayor, in the Month of April, 1588, wrote a Letter to the Lords of the Council; "That foraſmuch as they were deſirous that ſome convenient and comely Order, ſuch as might ſtand with the Honour of the Queen, might be in LONDON uſed and continued, which could not without ſome further Toleration, they thought good to preſent to the Lords of the Council a Book, which they cauſed to be drawn, containing a certain Limitation and Order for Apparel of Citizens and Officers of the City in their ſeveral Degrees and Callings, and of their Wives; which they prayed them by their honourable good Means to her Majeſty, by publick Proclamation, or otherwiſe to be allowed unto them; and that obſerving the ſame, they might not be impeached for Breach of either of the ſaid Acts, by Reaſon of wearing any Apparel or Stuff, by the ſame Book deſired to be allowed them." This Requeſt was the more neceſſary, becauſe there were a great Sort of Informers now-a-days running up and down, to ſee who they were that broke thoſe Acts for Apparel; and many of the Citizens were, or were like to be informed againſt for their Appearance, and like to be grievouſly moleſted by ſuch Informations, in divers of the Queen's Courts, for Offences againſt the ſaid Statutes and Proclamations. Therefore the Mayor, and in his Name the City, beſought the Privy-Council to be a Means to the Queen to extend her Favour ſo far as to give Order that they might not be moleſted for any Offences paſt, and that ſome Remedy, as afore is ſaid, might be had in their Behalf for the future.

Measurage of Seacoal, and other Things meaſurable upon the River Thames, was an antient Privilege of the City; but in the Year 1591, it received ſome Interruption, the Lord Admiral pretending ſome Right to it; but at length he was brought to allow to the City their Meaſurage.

And the City, to have this the more firmly confirmed to them for the future, obtained of the Queen the Ratification thereof, by the Aſſiſtance of the Lord Treaſurer, who conferred with the Queen's Attorney and Solicitor, about the drawing up of the Book that was to paſs from the Queen to the City. They both had viewed the Book preſented to them, and reformed it in what Points they thought good, and ſo returned it back to the Treaſurer, who was to give his own Warrant to the Attorney and Solicitor for their Approbation of the ſame under their Hands, which Sir William Webb, Mayor, requeſted of the ſaid Treaſurer, in a Letter dated the Year aboveſaid.

In the Year 1592, which was a Plague Year, there were Articles preſented to the Lords of the Council to be conſidered of, for Proviſion and Order, as well againſt the Increaſe of the Plague, as alſo for Relief of the poor People, whether Lame or Whole, and vagrant People, who daily begged in the Streets; whereof one great Advice was, to remove the Sound from the Sick, ſo that whenſoever any Houſe was infected, then to leave the Sick to the Houſe, and to remove the Sound into Houſes to be appointed on Purpoſe.

In the Month of June 1595, on a Sunday, a Multitude of rebellious Apprentices got together in divers Parts of the City, and near the Tower, to be ſheltered there from the Mayor. Theſe were ſo formidable, and had ſo often uſed theſe Diſorders before, that Sir John Spencer, Mayor, wrote to the Lord Treaſurer thereof, and was of Opinion, that they would not be ſuppreſſed until ſome of them were puniſhed according to Martial Law, and their Maſters alſo fined and puniſhed, whom he had by ſeveral Precepts commanded to keep their Servants within.

Great Care was continually taken in the City for the Poor. In the Mayoralty of Sir Stephen Slany, Decemb. 1, 1595, there was taken the total Number of all poor Houſholders inhabiting within the ſeveral Wards of the City and Liberties thereof, who wanted Relief, which was given up by the ſaid Mayor to the Queen: The whole Number of theſe poor Houſholders in the ſeveral Wards was 4132, that is to ſay, in the Ward of About theſe Times many Ballads were diſperſed in the City, abuſing the Government. The Author of one of them was diſcovered in the Year 1596, when Corn having been dear, a Book of Orders was iſſued out from the Privy Council for remedying the Dearth. But to ridicule theſe Orders, and to diſaffect People to the Government, a Ballad was printed and diſperſed, and ſoon brought to Sir Stephen Slany, Mayor. It contained a Complaint of the great Want and Scarcity of Corn within the Realm; and it brought in the Queen ſpeaking to her People Dialoguewiſe, in very fond and undecent Sort; and preſcribing Orders for the remedying the Dearth, extracted, as it ſeems, out of the aforeſaid Book. The Author was one Delonie, an idle Fellow, and the ſame who before had printed a Book for the Silk-Weavers; wherein was alſo fooliſh and diſordered Matter.

Matter. The Mayor called the Printer before him, and the Party by whom it was put to print; who pretended a Licence: But finding it untrue, he committed him to the Compter, and took Surety of the Printer for his Appearance, and ſent the Ballad to the Lord Treaſurer. This was in July; and in September following two Libels more fell into the Mayor's Hands, diſperſed by ſome ſeditious Perſons in the City; which he ſent alſo to the Treaſurer, together with a Bag, with certain Things encloſed in it, left at one Mr. Kempton's Houſe, Deputy of the Ward, a Citizen of good Reputation. So much were Men now ſet upon affronting the Government by this Way of Libelling. And before any of the former, viz. in April, there was taken up in the Warders Room before the Tower-gate, by the Under Porter there, another abuſive Writing, directed to certain Perſons; but mentioning therein a late Execution of Juſtice againſt ſome diſorderly Apprentices and others; with an Invective againſt the Council of the Land. Whereby he meant probably the learned Council and Judges. The Libel ſeemed to have been deviſed, by the Stile and Manner of Writing, by ſome Apprentice of St. Katharine's, or thereabouts. This the Mayor ſent alſo to the Lord Treaſurer, and deſired to know, whether he ſhould proceed by Examination to find out the Author, with the Advice and Help of the Lieutenant, or rather ſuppreſs it till they heard more, conſidering the Times, and the End and Purpoſe of ſuch as ſcattered ſuch infamous Libels, and ſeditious Writings; who deſired nothing more than to have them blazed and ſcattered abroad.

ABOUT the Year 1593, and before, the City, as well as other Parts of the Kingdom, was grievouſly peſtered with Beggars; and they, many of them poor disbanded Soldiers, become poor and maimed by the Wars in the Low Countries and with Spain; and many more that pretended themſelves to be ſo; who committed many Robberies and Outrages. This cauſed the Queen to ſet forth a Proclamation in the Month of February, for the Suppreſſing of the Multitudes of idle Vagabonds, and avoiding miſchievous, dangerous Perſons from her Majeſty's Court.

It ſets forth, "How idle Perſons and Vaga"bonds were manifeſtly ſeen wandering in the "common High Ways, to the Annoyance of the "common People, both in their Goods and Lives;
"a Multitude of able Men, neither impotent nor
"lame, exacting Money continually upon Pre-
"tence of Service in the Wars, without Relief.
"whereas many of them never did ſo ſerve. And "yet ſuch as had ſerved, if they were maimed
"or lamed by Service, were provided for in the "Countries, by Order of a good Statute made
"the laſt Parliament.

"For Reformation whereof, She commanded
"her Juſtices and Officers to have a better Re"gard thereto, and to appoint upon certain
"Days of the Week, Monthly (for ſome Seaſon)
"Watches and privy Searches in Places needful.
"And thereby to attach and impriſon ſuch idle
"Vagabonds; and to ſend the Lame and Maim-
"ed into their Countries according to the Sta"tute, &c. And the Juſtices of Aſſize now in "Lent Aſſizes, to confer with the Juſtices in "every County, in the Places where the Aſſizes
"ſhall be kept, and there to charge them, and
"to direct them in ſome good Order, how eve"ry of them ſeverally in their ſeveral Quarters,
"might ſee Watches kept, and privy Searches
"to be made.

"It was found in and about the City of "LONDON, and in the Parts near about her
"Majeſty's Court, that there did haunt and re"pair a great Multitude of wandering Perſons:
"Whereof ſome were Men of Ireland, that had
"theſe late Years unnaturally ſerved as Rebels
"againſt her Majeſty's Forces beyond the Seas;
"who could not have any good Meaning towards
"her Majeſty, as of late had been manifeſtly
"proved in ſome already taken, that had ſecret"ly come into the Realm, with full Purpoſe, by "Procurement of the Devil and his Miniſters,
"Enemies and Rebels on the other Side the Sea,
"to endanger her Majeſty's noble Perſon:
"Which Kind of Perſons, having ſo ſerved a-"gainſt her Majeſty, were directly to be taken
"whereſoever they might be found, and pro"ceeded withal, as Traitors.

"And as for the Procurers and Authors hereof
"being known to be of ſundry Conditions; ſome,
"Rebellious Subjects, Fugitives; ſome, by "Order of their Prieſthood, yielding Diſpenſa-
"tion and Abſolution by Shrift to the intended "Miſchieves; and ſome other more able, by
"Reward to hire the Offenders, being Perſons
"of high Degree * in the World. The Re"venge whereof belonged to Almighty GOD: In
"whoſe Hand her Majeſty hath of long Time
"repoſed herſelf; and ſo intended conſtantly
"with Comfort to continue.

"But conſidering the Diſcovery of theſe Iriſh
"Traitors could hardly be made, where there "were alſo many others like vagrant Perſons of "that Nation, that haunted about the Court,
"by Pretence of Suits, where they had no juſt
"Cauſe to make any; therefore her Majeſty
"willed and commanded, that no Manner of "Perſon born in the Realm of Ireland, except
"he were an Houſeholder, known in ſome
"Town, where he lived in Obedience to her
"Majeſty's Laws, or were a menial Servant with
"ſome Nobleman, Gentleman, or other honeſt
"Houſeholder, or did reſide or were in Com"mons in any Houſe of Court or Chancery, or
"a Student in the Laws, or a Student in any of "the Univerſities; or elſe be ſent out of Ire- "land by her Majeſty's Deputy, or ſome Go"vernor of the Provinces there with Commen"dation, or about any Service or Suit recom"mended, ſhould remain in this Realm, but "ſhould without Delay repair into the Realm of "Ireland, to the Places of their natural Habi"tation, &c. upon Pain of Impriſonment and "Puniſhment, as Vagabonds.

"There was a Number of like vagrant Per-
"ſons, both Engliſh and others (beſide Iriſh)
"that haunted about the Court, uſing a Co"lour of Suits to her Majeſty, or to her Coun"cil, and other Attendants on her Majeſty,
"where, in Truth, many of them had no juſt
"Cauſe of Suits. Others, that having Suits, and "had received their Anſwers, did not depart,
"but lived idly about the Court. For Remedy
"of this, her Majeſty forbade all Perſons that "were not Servitors to her Majeſty, in her
"Court; or that were not Attendant Servitors
"upon the Counſellors, or upon other Lords and
"Ladies, or Gentlemen, attending on her Ma-"jeſty, to forbear to come to the Court, or near "to the Court. But if any Perſon had Cauſe
"to prefer any Complaint or Requeſt to her
"Majeſty, or her Council, being in the Court,
"it was lawful for any ſuch Perſon to come to "one of the Maſters of Requeſts, to whom a "Room was appointed near the Court, to re"ceive daily ſuch Requeſts, and to prefer them
"as Cauſe ſhould require, without coming into
"the Court; but to depart within twenty-four "Hours towards their Dwelling-Places.

"And for the executing of this Order, for the "excluding of theſe Vagrants, either Iriſh or

* The King of Spain, and Prince of Parma, hired Perſons to kill the Queen.

"Engliſh,

" Engliſh, or of any other Nation, her Majeſty " charged the Knight-Marſhal, her Porters, her " Maſters of Requeſt, and her Knight-Harbin- " ger, and every other ordinary Officer in her " Majeſty's Court, to take every one in theſe " Caſes, which might belong unto them, and to " commit the Offenders to Priſon; there with- " out Delay to be tryed, and proceeded withal, " according as Rogues and Vagabonds ought to " be.

Given at the Honour of Hampton Court, the 21ſt of February 1593, in the 36th Year of her Majeſty's Reign.

THIS was backed ſoon after with an Order to be publiſhed and executed by the Lord Mayor of the City of LONDON, and other Officers in all Places within three Miles of the ſaid City, for avoiding of all Kind of Beggars, that did wander about contrary to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm: And it was ſigned by ſeveral of the Privy Council. The Order was as follows:

" Whereas it hath been order'd by Act of " Parliament, that all poor, aged and impotent " Perſons, ſhould repair to the Places where they " were born, or where they were moſt conver- " ſant by the Space of three Years, and there to " be maintained: And likewiſe that all Perſons " wandering about as Beggars, and being whole " and ſtrong in Body, and able to work, having " no Lands or other Means to get their Living, " ſhould be taken as Rogues and Vagabonds; " and if any impotent Perſon, being provided " for, were in the Pariſh where he was born, or " had been converſant by the Space aforeſaid, " and ſhould without Licence wander abroad out " of the ſame, he ſhould be whipt, and return- " ed again to his Pariſh; and if he ſhould eft- " ſones offend, then to be puniſhed as a Rogue.

" And for that alſo in this Time of Parliament " Order hath been taken by a Collection of cer- " tain Sums of Money, that all ſuch as were " found in and about the City of LONDON, " having been maimed and ſore hurt in her Ma- " jeſty's Service, ſhould have a convenient Re- " lief in Money paid to the County where they " were born, with Paſſports for that Purpoſe, " (which hath been accordingly performed) and " there to be maintained with weekly Portions " of Money for the Space of twenty Weeks: " Before the End whereof, it was provided by " an Act of Parliament made in this late Seſſion, " that ſuch maimed Soldiers were to have a con- " tinual weekly Payment in Places of the Coun- " tries where they were born:

" For this Purpoſe, all Officers, to whom the " Execution of theſe Statutes do belong, within " the Cities of LONDON and Weſtminſter, " and in all other Places within three Miles of " the City, ſhall forthwith cauſe Inquiſition to " be made of all Kind of Perſons wandering up " and down, as Beggars; and being aged and " impotent, to compel them to depart, and re- " pair to the Places where they were born, or " were more converſant by the Space of three " Years paſt, with convenient Paſſports, there to " be maintained according to the Laws, and to " forbear from their further begging in any other " Place. And ſuch other as wander abroad, as " Beggars, being able to work, and having no " lawful Means whereby to live, to be taken and " puniſhed as Rogues, according to the Laws in " that Behalf provided.

" And further, to ſuffer no Soldier that pre- " tendeth to have been hurt and maimed in her " Majeſty's Service, to whom Relief hath been " given as aforeſaid; or any other pretending " himſelf to have been a Soldier, and not thought " worthy to be Partaker of the Relief lately " given, to continue near, or about the Cities " of LONDON or Weſtminſter, the Borough " of Southwark, or in any other Place within " three Miles of the ſaid Cities or Borough, but " to be compelled likewiſe to depart to the " Counties where they were born, there to re- " ceive convenient Maintenance.

" And theſe Ordinances, conformable to the " Laws of the Realm, the Lord Mayor of the " City of LONDON, and all other Officers " to whom it ſhall belong, within the Limits " aforeſaid, are to ſee duly and ſpeedily execu- " ted, and the Offenders puniſhed, as they will " anſwer to the contrary at their Peril. At the " Court of St. James's, the 17th of April, An. " Dom. 1593.

William Rowe, Mayor.

GREAT Crowds and Routs of the baſer Sort of People, whereof the City Apprentices made a great Part, would ſometimes get together, and make dangerous Diſturbances, and uſe much Violence, ſuch Aſſemblies as we in theſe Days call Mobs. Theſe were to be checked. Which cauſed the Queen in the Year 1595, to iſſue out a Proclamation, For ſtaying of all unlawful Aſſemblies in and about the City of LONDON, and for Orders to puniſh the ſame. The Purport whereof was,

" That the Queen was informed of ſundry " great Diſorders committed in and about her " City of LONDON, by unlawful great Aſ- " ſemblies of Multitudes of a popular Sort of " baſe Condition, whereof ſome were Appren- " tices and Servants to Artificers; and to ſuch " like as are not able, or not diſpoſed to rule " their Servants, as they ought to do. And ſome " attempting to reſcue out of the Hands of pub- " lick Officers, ſuch as have been lawfully ar- " reſted; whereby her Majeſty's Peace hath " been of late notably broken, to the Diſhonour " of her Majeſty's Government; and chiefly for " Lack of due Correction in Time of ſuch mani- " feſt Offenders, by the Officers of her City, and " others in Places round about it:

" For Reformation whereof, ſhe had Confe- " rence with her Council, of the moſt ready " Means for their Puniſhment, and for the Stay " of the like. And for that Purpoſe ſtraightly " charged all her Officers, both in the City and " Places near it, in the Counties of Middleſex, " Kent, Surrey, and Eſſex, that had Authority " to preſerve the Peace, and to puniſh Offenders, " that they ſhould more diligently, to the beſt of " their Powers, ſee to the Suppreſſion of all ſuch " Offenders, and eſpecially of all ſuch unlawful " Aſſemblies.

" And becauſe ſuch Aſſemblies and Routs " were compounded of ſundry Sorts of baſe Peo- " ple, ſome known Apprentices, ſuch as were of " baſe manual Occupations; ſome others, wan- " dring idle Perſons of Condition, Rogues and " Vagabonds: And ſome colouring their wan- " dring by the Name of Soldiers returning from " the Wars, &c. Therefore ſhe had notifyed " her Pleaſure to her Council to preſcribe cer- " tain Orders to be publiſhed in and about the " ſaid City, which ſhe would have ſtraightly " obſerved: And for that Purpoſe, that ſhe " meant to have a Provoſt-Marſhal, with ſuffici-

" ent

" ent Authority to apprehend all ſuch as ſhould " not be readily reformed and corrected by the " ordinary Officers of Juſtice, and them with- " out Delay to execute upon the Gallows, by " Order of Martial Law: At our Manor of " Greenwich, the 4th of July, 1595, in the 37th " Year of our Reign. Here follows

The ORDERS preſcribed by her Majeſty's Command by the Advice of her Council; publiſhed in LONDON, and other Places near the ſame, for the Obſervation of her Majeſty's Proclamation.

THAT no Perſon but ſuch as were Officers for Preſervation of the Peace, or ſuch as ſhall aſſiſt them, or ſuch as were of known honeſt Converſation, do walk up and down in the Streets or Fields after Sunſet, or Nine of the Clock at Night, upon Pain to be apprehended and committed to Priſon.

That no Perſons, except publick Officers, aſſemble themſelves in any Company at any Time, in any Place other than in Churches for Prayers or Sermons, or for Appearance afore Officers of Juſtice, or by their Commandment, or in the common Halls of Companies, upon Pain, &c.

That no Houſhoulder, or any Perſon that keepeth Inns, or Lodging for any Stranger, do ſuffer their Servants or their Gueſts, being not Gentlemen, or others of good Value or Converſation, to go out of their Houſes in the Evening after Nine of the Clock, upon Pain to be impriſoned; or if they cannot reſtrain them, to inform preſently the Conſtable, &c.

That no Perſon do write, or be privy to any ſeditious Bills, to be diſperſed or ſet up, upon Pain to be executed by Martial Law. And if any come to the Knowledge of any ſuch Perſon that hath written, or ſet up, or diſperſed any ſuch ſeditious Bill, and will reveal the ſame, and the Party taken, the Revealer ſhall have 20 l. or a better Reward.

All Perſons that are not known to be Servants to the Queen's Majeſty's Houſe, or not ordinarily pertaining to any Lord or Gentleman, and do wander abroad, either in the Name of Soldiers, or that ſeek Service, or do come as Suitors to her Majeſty, or to any of her Officers for Suits of Law, ſhall preſent themſelves to certain Perſons of Judgment hereafter named, that were appointed by the Council to examine their Condition; according whereto they ſhall be directed how to leave their Wandring. Or, if they be ſuch, to be received or retained in Service, or come as Suitors to any common, or to any publick Officer, they ſhall be ſo provided for as their Caſes ſhall require, and not be ſuffered to wander abroad, to the Offence or Terror of other good quiet People, that have Cauſe to travel by the Highways for their lawful Buſineſs.

That all Perſons that ſhall be arreſted by any Officer lawfully authorized, ſhall obey the ſame Officer; and if any ſhall make Reſiſtance, every other Perſon being preſent, and required by the Officer to aſſiſt him, ſhall ſo do to the beſt of his Power, upon Pain to be committed to the ſame Place where the Party that did diſobey ought be. And if any Perſon ſhall attempt to aid the Party that ſhould be arreſted, to be reſcued, ſuch Perſon, and all that ſhall accompany him, ſhall be apprehended, and ſhall be executed by the Provoſt-Marſhal, by Martial Law.

That all Officers of the City, and all other Places near the City, having Authority to apprehend Rogues, and to puniſh them, ſhall in that Circuit of their Juriſdiction meet together twice every Week, or oftener, and ſhall cauſe Search to be made in all the Common Streets, and in the Highways, by ſome Company of able Men, to apprehend ſuch Rogues and Vagabonds, and ſhall take Order for the diſpoſing of the Poor and Lame, to repair to the Places where they ought to be provided for, by the Names of their Pariſhes, and not to be ſuffered to wander abroad without Proviſion or Relief.

THEN follow the Names of thoſe that were to ſit at Seſſions Hall, to examine the Condition of the Perſons that ſhould be taken wandring: They were of two Sorts, ſome for ſuch as pretended to be Soldiers, others for ſuch as pretended to ſeek Service, or follow Suits. Theſe laſt were, Sir Owen Hopton, Robert Wroth, Rich. Warren, Will. Fleetwood, Recorder of LONDON, Arthur Atie, Rich. Skerrington, George Aſhby of Weſtminſter, Tho. Fowler, the Town Clerk of the Peace of Middleſex.

UPON the Acceſs of King James to the Engliſh Throne, it appeared by his Proclamation ſet forth in September, Ann. Dom. 1603, that Rogues and Vagabonds increaſed, notwithſtanding all the Proviſion the Queen by Laws and Proclamations had made from Time to Time againſt them. The Import of this King's Proclamation, was for baniſhing the moſt dangerous Sort of them out of the Kingdom into foreign Countries, mentioning the Statute of 30 Eliz. " For the Repreſſing " of Rogues, Vagabonds, idle and diſſolute " Perſons, wherewith this Realm was then much " infected, &c. But that now they ſwarmed " again, and abounded every where more fre- " quently than in Times paſt. Therefore that " no Impediment might be to the due and full " Execution of that Law, his Highneſs's Privy- " Council, according to the Power in that Be- " half given by the ſaid Law, had by their Or- " der aſſigned Places and Parts beyond the Seas, " unto which ſuch incorrigible and dangerous " Rogues ſhould be baniſhed and conveyed; " (which Order is hereunder ſet down;) his " Majeſty purpoſing to have the ſame Law duly " and fully executed, required all Juſtices of " Peace, Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. to ſee the ſaid " Law, in all the Parts and Branches of the ſame, " duly and exactly executed. Given at his Ma- " nor at Woodſtock, Sept. 17.

The ORDER.

FORASMUCH as it hath appeared unto us, as well by our own Views in our Travels in this preſent Progreſs of his Majeſty, as alſo by good and credible Information from divers and ſundry Parts of the Realm, that Rogues grow again, and increaſe to be incorrigible and dangerous, not only to his Majeſty's loving Subjects abroad, but alſo to his Majeſty and his Honourable Council in and about the Court; which growing partly through the Remiſſneſs of ſome of the Juſtices of Peace, and other Officers in the Country; and partly for that there hath been no Suit made for aſſigning ſome Place beyond the Seas, to which ſuch incorrigible and dangerous Rogues might be baniſhed, according to the Statute in that Behalf made. We therefore of his Majeſty's Privy-Council, whoſe Names are hereunto ſubſcribed, finding it of Neceſſity to reform theſe great Abuſes, and to have the due Execution of ſo good and neceſſary a Law, do according to the Power limited to us by the ſame Statute, here aſſign and think it fit and expedient, that the Places and Parts beyond the Seas, to which any ſuch incorrigible and dangerous Rogues ſhall be baniſhed and conveyed, according to the ſaid Statute, ſhall be theſe Countries and Places following, viz. the Newfoundland, the Eaſt and Weſt-Indies, France,

Germany, Spain, and the Low-Countries, or any of them, ſigned,

SOME good Citizens, not many Years ago, ſhewed their zealous Affection for promoting the better State of the Chamber, both in their Common-Council, and other their private Conſultations and Devices. And they have taken Notice, how ſome Expences of the City might be retrenched, and what great Advantage might be made by farming out Places and Offices, which now are wont to be ſold for Life. For they have noted in ſome publick Prints, how many of the Liveries, Fees and Offices are now become uſeleſs, by Alterations in the City Affairs, and ſome of them moreover pernicious, vexatious and burthenſome, having little other Pretence for their Continuance, but that the Officers purchaſed their Places with great Sums of Money. To Inſtance, (among many others) in the three Clerks of the Markets, who, (reckoned but 20 Years paſt) have been paid 468 l. per Ann. by 9 l. per Week out of the Chamber; whoſe Offices for ſo long a Time were uſeleſs, the Markets being farmed, and the Farmers obliged to do the Duty of theſe Officers. Hence may appear the City's great Damage by theſe Sales; for it hath been paid for 20 Years laſt paſt, ſo many times 468 l. amounting in the Whole to 9360 l. And the City may have this Payment continued on it for ever, the Officers pretending to Freehold by Virtue of their Purchaſe, and to have a good Right to ſell their Offices, Toties quoties.

AND concerning the buying of Places they further obſerved, That the Mayor hath 2000 l. per Ann. incident to his Mayoralty, beſides his Share of the Sale of Offices, which was about four Fifths; and the Sheriffs had about 1500 l. per Ann. and about one Fifth Share in the Sale of Offices. And that there was a Poſſibility that a Mayor might get 20,000 l. in the Year of his Mayoralty. They obſerved moreover, that tho' ſome Places had been ſold for above 2500 l. yet in the Memory of many Citizens living, no Place or Office in the City was worth above 100 l. So that the Purchaſe of their Offices were many of them 20 Times more than formerly. They ſet forth likewiſe the Evil and Inconvenience of this Practice; as, that the Sellers regarded not ſo much the Ability or Honeſty of the Perſon of the reſpective Office, but he that could give moſt was made the Officer. That many of theſe Places were concerned in the Adminiſtration and Execution of Juſtice; and the Selling of Places having in all Times, by the beſt Governments, been accounted a Corruption, and of dangerous Conſequence to the well-being of a good Commonwealth, it was moſt reaſonable, that in Courts where Juſtice is to be adminiſtred, there the greateſt Care ſhould be taken, that no Corruption be. That the Offices of Clerk and Beadle belonging to the Court of Requeſts, or Court of Conſcience, ſettled by Act of Parliament in 4 Jac. 1. for the Relief of poor Debtors, &c. were ſold for 1000 l. each, at leaſt, to the great Oppreſſion of the Poor, and Obſtruction of the Execution of Juſtice there.

IT was likewiſe obſerved, That the fifteen Coal-Meeters, who paid about 1700 l. each for their Places, and 80 l. per Annum Rent; and the ten Corn-Meeters, who pay about 1400 l. for their Places, and no Rent; if theſe Officers were admitted to their Places without Money, the firſt would pay (inſtead of 80 l.) 350 l. per Ann. each, and the latter about 250 l. per Ann. each, which would bring 7000 l. per Ann. into the Chamber: And the like might be obſerved in many other Offices and Places.

ALL which Things conſidered, it was thought a Device very advantageous to the Wealth of the City, that for the future, as Places fell, they might be farmed out for the Benefit of the City: as may appear by this Propoſal made by one of the Citizens.

A PROPOSAL humbly offered to the Conſideration of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council.

THE Places ſold in LONDON, having coſt the preſent Poſſeſſors above One Hundred and Fifty Thouſand Pounds, as appears by a late Liſt thereof, and ſuppoſing they have been allowed 12 and a half per Cent. for their Purchaſe-Money, which is leſs than was allowed by Parliament to the Purchaſers of Annuities for Life, they do amount to near Twenty Thouſand Pound per Annum.

Now if for the future, as theſe Places fall by the Death of the Poſſeſſors, they were Farmed out, and the Money paid into the Chamber for the Uſe of the Mayor and Commonalty, there would in a very ſhort Time be a plentiful Supply for the Support of the City's Government on all Occaſions; as the Place of the late Bailiff of Southwark was, whom Sir Thomas Lane would not ſuffer to transfer his Place, though he offered Sir Thomas 300 l. The Bailiff dying about a Year after, the City allowed Sir Thomas 300 l. and have ſince leaſed the Place at 300 l. per Annum, and may have more when the Leaſe expires; and if the late Clerk of the Chambers Place, now vacant, were ſo lett, it would yield another 300 l. per Annum, and what the preſent Lord Mayor falls ſhort of 4000 l. by Perquiſites in his Mayoralty, may be made up out of this Rent.

This Way of Admiſſion would be much eaſier to the Officers, and will prevent thoſe Corruptions and Exactions, ſo much of late complained of. But in caſe the Farming out ſome of theſe Places ſhall be thought unlawful or imprudent, viz. ſuch as are more immediately concerned in the Adminiſtration and Execution of Juſtice, Artificers, Workmen, and ſuch as furniſh the City with Commodities and Materials; the other Places will be ſufficient to raiſe Twelve or Fifteen Thouſand Pounds per Annum, and Juſtice in the City will be better adminiſter'd, when all concerned therein are admitted freely.

The City will alſo ſave by good Husbandry, more than 30 per Cent. in Things wherein its Artificers, Workmen, and Furniſhers of Commodities, &c. are concerned. By theſe Methods, this Honourable City may ſoon recover its antient Wealth, Honour and Grandeur.

The principal Objection againſt this Propoſal is, how to ſupport the Government for the preſent, till it can be reduced to Practice. To anſwer which, according to the beſt Account can at preſent be got; the Profits incident to the Mayoralty of LONDON are now above 2000*l. per Annum*, beſides the Share in the Places ſold; which Sum, with good Husbandry, in retrenching unneceſſary Expences, may eaſily be made up 4000 l. per Annum.

TO this may be ſubjoined an Act of Common-Council made Anno 1703, Sir John Parſons, Kt. Mayor, for a Method to get the City out of Debt, and to prevent its further declining State: Which was, That one third Part of Places ſold ſhould be paid into the Chamber, in the Chamberlain's Court.

Commune Concil' tent' in Camera Guihald' Civitat' LONDON' die Jovis viceſimo quarto die Februarij Anno Regni Dominæ noſtr' Annæ nunc Reginæ Angliæ, &c. ſecundo, coram Johanne Parſons, Mil', Majore dict' Civitat', Roberto Clayton, Mil', Thoma Stamp, Mil', Galfrid' Jefferies, Mil', & Roberto Beachcroft, Mil', ac ejuſdem Civitat' Aldermannis, & Gilberto Heathcote, Mil', Aldermanno, ac uno Vicecomit' Civitat' præd' necnon majore parte Communiariorum in eodem Communi Concil' tunc & ibidem aſſemblat'.

An ACT to prevent the further declining STATE of the City of LONDON.

WHEREAS the yearly neceſſary Charge of the Government of the City of LONDON and yearly Payment of Eight Thouſand Pounds out of the Revenue of the ſaid City to the Orphans and other Creditors of the ſame City, do amount unto much more than the preſent Income of the ſaid City, by Reaſon whereof the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of LONDON are become greatly indebted: Now, in order to make ſome Proviſion for Payment of the preſent Debt of the ſaid City, and to prevent the further declining State thereof: Be it Enacted and Ordained by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame, That when, and as often as the reſpective Intereſts of all, any, or either of the ſeveral Officers or Perſons belonging to the ſaid City, or Bridge-Houſe, who at preſent ſtand admitted, or who hereafter ſhall be, into any Office or Offices, Employment or Employments, of or belonging to the ſaid City or Bridge-Houſe, or either of them, ſhall expire or determine, by Death, Alienation, Surrender, or Removal for juſt Cauſe, one full third Part of all the Benefit or Profit which ſhall hereafter ariſe to the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of the ſaid City for the Time being, or any or either of them, by the Sale, Alienation, Surrender, or other Diſpoſition of all or any of the ſaid Offices or Employments, ſhall for the future redound, be and accrue unto, and to the ſole Benefit of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the ſaid City, for the Increaſe of the publick Revenue of the ſame. And in caſe the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of the ſaid City for the Time being, or any or either of them, ſhall give away, permit or allow to be given away by any other Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, any or either of the ſaid Office or Offices, Employment or Employments, to any Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, the ſaid Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, or any or either of them who ſhall ſo give, permit or allow to be given away as aforeſaid, any or either of the ſaid Offices or Employments, ſhall pay and make good to the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of LONDON, for the Increaſe of the publick Revenue of the ſaid City, one full third Part of what ſuch Office or Offices, Employment or Employments, would or might have produced to the Lord Mayor and Sheriff or Sheriffs of the ſaid City for the Time being, or any or either of them, by the Sale, Alienation, Surrender or Removal for juſt Cauſe or Diſpoſition of the ſaid Offices or Employments, or any, or either of them; and that hereafter there ſhall be no new Admiſſion or Admiſſions of any Perſon or Perſons, to any or either of the ſaid Offices or Employments by the Lord Mayor, or by the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, for the Time being, or either of them, unleſs and until one full third Part of the Benefit and Profit which ſhall be made as aforeſaid by the Sale, Alienation, Surrender or other Diſpoſal of any of the ſaid Office or Offices, Employment or Employments, be paid to the Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, for the Time being, to and for the ſole Uſe and Benefit of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of LONDON, for the Increaſe of the publick Revenue of the ſame City, and ſuch Payment teſtified by a Receipt under the Hand of the Chamberlain of the ſaid City for the Time being; and all Admiſſion or Admiſſions of any Perſon or Perſons who ſhall hereafter be admitted to any of the ſaid Offices or or Employments before ſuch Payment made to the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being, to uſe the aforeſaid, and teſtified as aforeſaid, ſhall be, and is hereby Enacted and Declared null, void, and of none Effect, to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever.

And whereas ſeveral Artificers and others of and belonging to the ſaid City and Bridge-houſe, do receive Ten Shillings, more or leſs, by the Week, work or not work; Be it Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That from and after the Death, Alienation or Surrender, Yielding up, or Removal for juſt Cauſe, of all, any or either of the ſaid Artificers or others, the Payment of Ten Shillings by the Week, more or leſs, work or not work, ſhall not hereafter be paid to any Perſon or Perſons who ſhall be admitted to the Place or Places, Employment or Employments, of all, any or either of the ſaid Artificers or others, but that the ſaid Payment or Payments of ſuch Sum or Sums of Money to any ſuch Perſon or Peſons ſo admitted, ſhall utterly ceaſe and determine, any Act of Common-Council, Cuſtom or Uſage to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Provided that nothing contained in this Act ſhall extend, or be conſtrued to extend to any of the Officers or Offices of the Coal-Meeters or Corn-Meeters of this City, or any or either of them, but that the ſame Officers or Offices, and every of them, ſhall remain in the ſame State as they are ſettled by Act of Common-Council, made and paſſed on or about the Twenty Seventh Day of September, One Thouſand Seven Hundred and Three, any Thing herein to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

ASHURST.

To know how the City ſtands in Regard of the Health or Sickneſs of the Inhabitants, the Weekly Bills of Mortality were appointed long ago, carefully and wiſely; that ſo if any infectious Diſeaſe were found to reign, Means might be uſed for the ſtopping it, and preventing the Deaths of innumerable Citizens. Hereby alſo are many other Advantages gained, as to know the Populouſneſs of the City, nay, of the whole Kingdom, as ſome ingenious Men that have made Obſervations on theſe Bills, have diſcovered.

The Beginning of the Weekly Bills.

The keeping of them began (ſaith a Learned Author) Anno 1592, being a great Year of Sickneſs; and, after ſome Diſuſe, was eſtabliſhed by Order Anno 1603, the next Year of Sickneſs; the firſt of the continued Weekly Bills of Mortality, commencing October the 29th the ſaid Year, being the firſt Year of the Reign of King James the Firſt. Diſeaſes began firſt to be diſtinctly taken Notice of, Anno 1629.

These Bills are made and compoſed after this Manner: When any one dieth in a Pariſh, either the Tolling or Ringing of the Bell, or the Beſpeaking of a Grave, intimateth it to the Searchers, who alſo keep a Correſpondence with the Sexton; and thereupon the antient Matrons ſworn to that Office, repair to the Place where the dead Corpſe lieth: and upon their own View and other Examination, make a Judgment by what Diſeaſe or Caſualty the Perſon died: Which Judgment they report to the Pariſh-Clerk, as he doth every Tueſday Night, the Account of every Chriſtning or Burial that Week, to the Clerk of the Hall. Whence on Wedneſday the general Account is made up and printed, and on Thurſday publiſhed, and brought to the reſpective Families in every Pariſh, that pay four Shillings a Year for them, which is the Pariſh-Clerk's Benefit.

In leſs than fourſcore Years, it appears by theſe Bills of Mortality, there have been five great Mortalities; that is, from the Year 1592, to the Year 1665. 1. In the Year 1592, between March and December, died 25,886, whereof of the Plague 11,503. The next Year died of the Plague 10,662. 2. Anno 1603, there died from March to December 37,294, whereof of the Plague 30,561. Note, the Plague that began in 1603, laſted eight Years, viz. to the Year 1611. 3. Anno 1625, the Burials were, reckoning from Thurſday December the 16th, 1624, to Thurſday December the 15th, 1625, 54,265, whereof of the Plague, 35,417. 4. Anno 1636, from April to December were buried, 23,387, (or 23,359, according to another Account) whereof of the Plague 10,400. 5. Anno 1665.

From theſe Bills of Mortality, Obſervations were taken by an ingenious Citizen in the Year 1662, concerning the Increaſe of ſome Diſeaſes, and the Decreaſe of others. Thus Agues and Fevers increaſe, ſuppoſed to be by Surfeits and Exceſſes; and ſo do Abortives, by Reaſon of the ſtreightning of Bodies, Mixtures of Copulations, and the unwholſome Diet. The Scurvy encreaſeth, and ſo the Conſumption with the French Pox, which goeth under that Name. The Stone and Strangury decreaſeth, which the Obſerver makes to proceed from the drinking Ale ſo plentifully. The Gout ſtands at a Stay; there dies but one of a Thouſand of the Gout, tho' more die gouty; the Reaſon is, becauſe thoſe that have the Gout, are ſaid to be long Livers; and when they die, are returned as aged. The Rickets encreaſed from the Year 1634, and the Liver-grown, which is next a-kin to it, thereupon decreaſed. The Riſing of the Stomach ſince it was firſt mention'd, Anno 1636, is improved, it being ſuppoſed the Green-ſickneſs, goes under that Name. Convulſions were fifty-two in the Year 1629, and in the Year 1636, were 700 and odd, and hath increaſed ſince.

Apoplexies and ſudden Obſtructions increaſe; Bloody Flux, Scouring and Flux increaſe; and ſo do Cancers, Gangreen, Fiſtula, Wolf, Cholicks and Winds decreaſe. Dropſies, by exceſſive Drinking, increaſe; and ſo do King's Evil and Impoſtume, and Lethargy, but moderately, ſometimes increaſing, and ſometimes decreaſing. Worms and Teeth increaſe conſiderably; ſo Purples and Spotted Fever.

The Obſerver further took Notice, that many Times other peſtilential Diſeaſes, Purples, Fevers, Small-Pox, the Dyſentery, called by ſome, the Plague in the Guts, forerun Plague-Years; as about 8000 of all Diſeaſes and Caſualties in the Year 1622 improved to 11,000 in the Year 1623, and to 12,000 in the Year 1624; the next Year 1625, (the Year of a great Plague) being 54,000 and upwards only of the Plague. There died about 2000 of the Small-Pox from the latter End of 1634, to the Beginning of 1636, when there died of the Plague 10,400.

It was further obſerved hence, that the City is repeopled after a great Plague in two Years, as is generally aſſerted. For Chriſtenings in the City are (if the Inhabitants are not Anabaptiſts) the moſt certain Standards of the Increaſe and Decreaſe of the Inhabitants. Chriſtenings in the Year 1624, that is, the Year preceding the great Plague, were 8299. And the next Year after the Plague, viz. 1626, they were 6,701. But within two Years after, they amounted to 8,408. Such is the Confluence of all Sorts of People to this great City.

It is obſerved further, concerning the Increaſe of the City by Computation of the Chriſtenings, that the City increaſed half in half in thirty Years Space; that is to ſay, from 1603 to 1633. For the Number of 5,458 chriſtened in the Year 1604, increaſed to the Number of 9997 chriſtened in 1632.

To theſe Obſervations may be joined a few Collections concerning the Plague in the 25th Year of Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1582; in the latter End of which Year, the Plague was in LONDON and Weſtminſter; and great Care was taken, as well preventing the Increaſe of it in both Cities, as againſt the ſpreading of it, by infecting ſuch as came out of the Countries to the Term, or on other Occaſions, when People uſually flocked into the City, and took up Lodgings in publick Houſes, which might have been infected, and ſo carrying it back into the Country. Therefore the Lord Treaſurer, in the Month of January, ſent Order to the Mayor, Sir Thomas Blank, to make diligent Inquiry into all Victualling Houſes, and Houſes for Reception of Strangers; and that whereſoever the Plague was, or had been within two Months before, publick Notice ſhould be given, by fixing up in proper Places of the City, a Liſt of thoſe Houſes, and in what Streets and Parts of the City they were ſituate, that they might be avoided by ſuch as ſhould have Need of Harbour and Habitation, when they came from other Parts.

THE Mayor did as was commanded him, and gave Notice of the ſame to the ſaid Lord in a Letter dated January the 14th, to this Purport: "That he had, according to his Lordſhip's Direction by his Letters, reformed the Catalogue of Victualling Houſes infected within the Liberties of the City, from the 13th of November laſt, being within the two Months appointed, and that as his Lordſhip willed, with the Advice of Mr. Norton; and that he had informed him, That he had Regard to two Things: The one, to give ſuch plain Deſcription and Notes of the Streets and Places as might ſerve for eaſy Notice to ſuch as repaired to the City: The other, that it ſhould be in ſuch Shortneſs as might be brought into leſs than one Side of a Sheet of Paper, to be fixed in Places convenient." The Mayor alſo in a Note incloſed, ſignified the Places, with Reſpect to Weſtminſter (for the better Security of the Court) and the Way thither, and the Entrance alſo into the City, and deſired his Lordſhip to conſider thereof.

AND further, "That he thought good to move his Lordſhip to the ſame Intent, that in Term-Time uſually in Manner, all Houſes, (not only publick Houſes) in Fleet-ſtreet, and the Streets and Lanes adjoining, as alſo without Temple-bar, uſed Lodging, Victualling, or letting out of Chambers; whether it were his Pleaſure, that all ſuch Houſes in thoſe Parts as did ſo lodge and let out Chambers, though they were not otherwiſe uſually Victuallers, ſhould be likewiſe noted, if they had been infected within the Space of two Mouths.

AND then, like a careful Magiſtrate and good Subject, added theſe Words: "I do likewiſe humbly thank your Lorſhip for your honourable and loving Care of this City, in the ſaid Matter of Infection, and the Repair of the Queen's Subjects hitherto: And, for my own Part, I will not fail in Diligence by your Directions according to my Duty.

THUS alſo were Orders taken at Weſtminſter the 21ſt of December, the ſame Year by Mr. Dean of Weſtminſter, Mr. Recorder of LONDON, Mr. Humphrey Smith, and Mr. Owen, by the Direction of the Lord Treaſurer, to be obſerved in Weſtminſter, and the Liberties, and alſo in the Dutchy in Lancaſter without Temple-bar; which were theſe, viz.

Firſt, Diligent Care to be had by Search of every Perſon, and where any ſuch Perſon ſhall be found to die of the Plague, that then that Houſe to be ſhut up by the Space of 21 Days next following: And that no Perſon be ſuffered to go forth out of the ſame Houſe during the Time aforeſaid, unleſs the ſame Perſon do carry in his or her Hand a white Stick, in Length two Foot, upon Pain of open Impriſonment in the Stocks.

Item, If any Houſe being ſo viſited, and the Parties therein not able to live of themſelves, that then Conſideration to be had by Contribution of the Pariſhioners for their Relief and Suſtentation.

Item, Upon every ſuch Houſe that ſhall happen to be infected, as aforeſaid, there ſhall be ſet up and fixed upon the Street-Door in Paper or Parchment, theſe Words, Lord, have Mercy upon us; and there to remain by the Space of 21 Days together. And if the ſame ſhall happen to be taken away, or defaced, within the Time limited, that then the Owner of every ſuch Houſe ſhall ſet up and fix, or cauſe to be ſet up and fixed, upon the ſaid Door, the like Words, and there to remain as aforeſaid.

Item, That no Houſholder whatſoever, ſhall take or receive into his or her Houſe, any ſick or infected Perſon, out or from any other Houſe or Place, upon Pain of Whipping, and open Impriſonment, as aforeſaid.

Item, That the Streets, Alleys, Lanes, Channels, and all other neceſſary Places, ſhall be ſcoured; and ſo from Time to Time kept clean, before every Man's ſeveral Houſe in the Streets; and alſo that no Hogs ſhall be ſuffered to go or wander in the ſaid Streets, nor any vagrant Perſon, upon Pain of Impriſonment.

Item, That no Perſon ſhall take or receive into his or her Houſe or Cellar, any Inmates, upon Pain of Impriſonment.

Item, That no Upholſter, Broker, or other Perſon whatſoever, ſhall buy any old Apparel or Bedding whatſoever, unleſs they make the Bailiff, Headborough, or Conſtable of the ſaid Ward, privy and conſenting thereto, upon Pain of Impriſonment.

Item, That every Headborough and Conſtable within his Ward, ſhall ſee theſe Articles to be performed. And for ſuch Offenders as will not be reformed accordingly, to be puniſhed openly in the Stocks, as aforeſaid.

Item, That if any Officers elected and choſen to ſee theſe Articles and Orders executed, do not execute their Office and Charge herein, he ſhall be puniſhed at the Diſcretion of ſome one of the ſaid Juſtices.

Item, If the Infection happen to be in the Houſe of any Baker or Victualler whatſoever, within any of the Liberties aforeſaid, that then the ſaid Baker or Victualler not to ſell or utter any Bread or other Victuals within 21 Days after Knowledge had of any ſuch Infection, upon Pain of open Impriſonment, as aforeſaid.

Item, If any Ambiguities or Doubts do ariſe concerning the Orders aforeſaid, that then the Officers to repair to Mr. Dean of Weſtminſter for his Directions therein.

CHAP. VIII.

Of the Twelve Principal COMPANIES of the CITY of LONDON.

AS the Government of this City is chiefly maintained by the ſuperior Magiſtrates before ſpoken of, viz. Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen; ſo a neceſſary Part of the Government thereof conſiſts in the Companies of the Freemen; which Freemen ſeemed antiently to be called Barons. This Word Baron was brought by the Normans to anſwer the Word Thane, uſed by the Saxons. Which, we are told, they uſed ſometimes in a large Signification to mean a Freeman, born of Free Parentage. And ſo did the Normans take the Word Baron, calling the Free Citizens of their beſt eſteemed Cities and Boroughs by the Name of Barons; and ſo Bracton means when he writes Per Barones LONDON. i. e. By the Barons of LONDON, that is, by the Free Citizens of that City. There are divers Charters, wherein Mention is made of ſuch like Barons; as, the Barons of Warwick in Doomſday; and in our Time the Burgeſſes of the Five Ports are called the Barons thereof.

Barones auxilium eorum dant Regi. Non trahatur in exemplum.

OF theſe Barons or Free Citizens, conſiſt the Companies; and the City of LONDON, conſiſting of various Tradeſmen, that is, of ſuch as make and ſell Commodities; for the Regulation of them there muſt be Laws and Rules, according to which they ſhould follow their Trades, Arts, and manual Occupations: And for this End, thoſe of each Trade or Myſtery (as it is ſtiled) are diſtinguiſhed into Companies, or Societies, or Fraternities; which have their ſeveral Halls and Places of Meeting (generally magnificent Buildings) to confer together Monthly, or oftner, concerning their proper Buſineſſes, as alſo for Feaſting on ſet Days. They have alſo Maſters, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, Clerks, and other Officers to conſult for, and to direct and order all Things relating to the good Eſtate of their reſpective Societies, and to puniſh and reſtrain all Abuſes incident to their Trades.

THESE are called alſo Corporations, becauſe they are incorporated or embodied together by Charters from the Kings and Queens of England, or by Acts of Parliament, with certain Liberties and Privileges, for the better Government of their reſpective Members: And moſt of theſe Companies have weighty Truſts of Charity repoſed in them, and are richly endowed with Lands and Livings for that Purpoſe.

SUCH Reſpect is given to the Maſters and Wardens of the ſaid Companies, that when they meet at their ſeveral Halls, either ſitting upon Buſineſs or Feaſting, they take the Precedency at their Tables of all the reſt of the Society, though they be Batchelor-Knights, or Baronets.

OF theſe Companies there are as many almoſt as there are Trades and Myſteries practiſed and profeſſed; but the twelve firſt are the Chief, and are by ſome ſtiled Honourable. None is capable of being Lord Mayor, but he muſt be of one of the Twelve Companies; and therefore if any of an inferior Company be choſen to that Honour, he muſt quit his former Company, and make himſelf a Member of one of the Twelve.

THE firſt of theſe, and which has the Precedency of all the Companies of LONDON, is the

MERCERS.

THE Mercers were firſt enabled to be a Company, and to purchaſe Lands to the Value of 20 l. by the Year, in the 17th of King Richard II. Anno Domini 1393.

THEY conſiſt of four Wardens, and about 40 Aſſiſtants, but the laſt Number is uncertain: They have 283 on the Livery, for which a Fine is paid of 2 l. 13 s. 4 d. Their Arms are: Gules, a Demi-Virgin, with her Hair diſhevelled, proper, crowned, Or, Wainſcot Purple, iſſuing out of Clouds proper, within a Bordure Nebulee, Or.

Their Patroneſs is the Bleſſed Virgin.

THIS Company, in former Times, conſiſted chiefly of ſuch as ſold rich Silks brought from Italy, and who lived, for the moſt Part, in Cheapſide, St. Laurence-Jewry, and the Old-Jewry; afterwards the Mercers were generally Merchants. And when, in the Year 1585, a great Muſter was to be made at Greenwich, before Queen Elizabeth, of the Citizens, to conſiſt of 6000 Men, the Mercers ſent out 294 Soldiers, who were out ſeven Days and a Night, at 16 d. per Day each; which, with all other neceſſary Expences of Arms, Proviſions, &c. coſt them 392 l. 10 s.

THIS Company are the Overſeers of the flouriſhing School of St. Paul's, and of that called Mercers Chapel School; of both which ſee more Book I. Chap. XIII.

OF this Company was the famous Sir Thomas Greſham, Knt. that renowned Merchant, who founded the Lectures at Greſham College, and who built the Royal-Exchange; of the firſt of theſe ſee more at large in Book I. Chap. XI. of the other in Cornhill Ward, Book II. Chap. VII.

NONE for many Years ſucceſſively have been Maſters of this Company but Knights, Aldermen, or Sheriffs, or ſuch who have fined for thoſe Places, or other Perſons of Diſtinction. As in the Year 1702, was choſen John Morrice, Eſq; Member of Parliament, and Son of Sir William Morrice, ſome Time Secretary of State, &c.

THEIR Hall ſtands in Cheapſide, near the Poultrey, and has likewiſe a Pair of handſome Gates leading into it, out of Ironmonger-lane: Of which, and their Chapel, formerly known by the Name of St. Thomas of Acre, or Acon: See more in Cheap Ward, Book III. Chap. III.

WHEN any one of this Company is choſen Mayor, to make one of the Triumphs of the Day, whereon he goes to Weſtminſter to be ſworn, a beautiful young Virgin uſed to be carried through the Streets in a Chariot, in all the Magnificence imaginable, with her Hair diſhevelled, and hanging about her Shoulders to repreſent the Maidenhead, which the Company give for their Arms. And the Lady is plentifully gratified for her Pains, beſides the Gift of all the rich Attire ſhe wears. Such a Pageant made Part of the Splendor of the Day, Anno 1701, when Sir William Gore was Mayor.

WHEN the Maſter was choſen, they uſed to have a very ſplendid Feaſt; and Perſons of the Court and of the beſt Quality were preſent. And after the Feaſt was over, the new Maſter was conducted in State by the Company to his own Houſe, where they were treated again. In the Year 1577, in the Month of July, on a Monday, was the Mercers Feaſt, when Sir Lionel Ducket (who had been Lord Mayor in the Year 1572) was choſen Maſter. There was then preſent, among others, the Maſter of the Rolls, Sir Thomas Greſham, Sir William Damſel, Mr. Sackford of the Privy-Chamber, and the Recorder Fleetwood. Dinner being done, as the Order was, they brought the Maſter home to his Houſe, where they had a great and royal Banquet.

FROM this Company proceeds a great Benefit to many Widows of Clergymen and others, out of a Fund ſettled here, having Annuities paid to them at the Rate of 30 l. per Cent. according to the reſpective Sums that are paid in by Husbands, to commence at their Deaths. It may be worth relating how this Fund began. Dr. Aſsheton, Rector of Beckenham in Kent, firſt propoſed it to the Mercers, Novemb. 11, 1698, at a General Court then held; who thereupon appointed a Committee to conſider of the ſame; which Committee, after ſeveral Meetings and Diſcourſes with Dr. Aſsheton, acquainted him what Eſtate they had to ſettle for Security, being in clear Rent 2888 l. 8 s. 10 d. per Annum, (beſides the Payment appointed by the Benefactors to be paid out of the ſame) which by a moderate Calculation would yield them, when the Leaſes came out, 13,500 l. per Annum clear. And the ſaid Dr. Aſsheton conſidering the ſame to be reaſonable Security, the ſaid Committee made their Report to a General Court the 23d of December, the ſame Year. Which Court, having read the ſaid Report, did ſuſpend their Reſolution of the ſame for that Time. And another General Court was appointed to be held the 13th of January following; that ſo all the Members of the Company might have Time to conſider of the ſaid Propoſal, and the Report of the Committee thereupon. At this laſt General Court they did accept the ſaid Propoſal, and did declare, that in caſe 100,000 l. ſhould be ſubſcribed and paid into the Company in ſuch Manner as hereafter ſhould be mentioned, the ſaid Company undertook to pay unto the Widows of the Subſcribers, according to the aforeſaid Propoſitions, 30 l. per Cent. per Annum, free of Taxes and Charges at Lady-day and Michaelmas. That for the better Security of the Payments, as ſoon as the ſaid 100,000 l. ſhould be ſubſcribed, they would ſettle and convey in due Form of Law, the Lands, Houſes, and Eſtate before-mentioned, in Truſtees, for the due Payment of the ſaid Annuities. That all married Clergymen, and other married Perſons, (except as hereafter excepted) that inhabited in the Kingdom of England, and exceeded not the Age of 60 Years at the Time of the Payment of the Money, and receiving the Company's Bond, and were then in good and perfect Health, and had ſubſcribed any Sum, not leſs than 50 l. nor exceeding the Sum of 300 l. in caſe they died in the Kingdom of England, and left their Wives, Widows; the ſaid Widows ſhould receive, as before-mentioned, the Sum of 30 l. yearly, for every 100 l. ſo ſubſcribed; and ſo proportionably for a greater or leſs Sum. Perſons that went to Sea, and Soldiers, not to be admitted to ſubſcribe, in regard of the Caſualties and Accidents they were particularly liable to.

THESE and other Articles were then publiſhed and declared: Purſuant hereupon, the Subſcription-Books were laid open March 1, 1698, and ſeveral Thouſand Pounds were ſubſcribed, but not amounting to the 100,000 l. required. At a General Court, June 16, 1699, it was reſolved, that the ſaid Settlement propoſed before ſhould be forthwith ſettled by able Counſel in the Law, in Truſtees of undoubted Reputation and Ability, for the Aſſurance of the Subſcribers. And as ſoon as the Settlement was made, Publication to be made thereof. Then they enlarged the Sums to be ſubſcribed, viz. That all married Men of the Age of 30 Years, or under, might ſubſcribe any Sum not exceeding 1000 l. That all married Men of the Age of 40 Years might ſubſcribe any Sum not exceeding 500 l. And that all married Men, not exceeding the Age of 60 Years, might ſubſcribe any Sum not exceeding 300 l. And the Widows of all ſuch Perſons ſubſcribing, to receive the Benefit of 30 l. per Cent. per Annum, according to the former Propoſal.

AND they declared further, That any Perſons under the Limitation aforeſaid mentioned, might ſubſcribe for the Uſe and Benefit of any Perſon or Perſons, as ſuch Subſcriber ſhould by his Laſt Will and Teſtament direct, during the natural Life of his Wife, in caſe ſhe ſurvived him; declaring in his Subſcription that it was ſo intended. [This was firſt ſeaſonably propounded by Dr. Blackhal, the late Right Reverend Biſhop of Exon, that ſo his Children alſo might, if he thought good, receive Part of that Benefit with his Widow.]

THE Deed of Settlement was enrolled in her Majeſty's High Court of Chancery; and an authentick Copy of it tranſcribed into a Book, and well atteſted, may be peruſed on Fridays every Week, between the Hours of Nine and One in the Forenoon. Therein is ſhewed what Eſtates are ſettled, and the Value of them; who are the Truſtees, and to whom theſe Eſtates are made over and conveyed, for the Security of the Subſcribers, and the effectual Payment of the Widows.

Dr. Aſsheton did, in the Year 1698, print a little Book, intituled, A full Account of the Riſe, Progreſs, and Advantage of this Propoſal: With Directions for the Widows, how to receive their Annuities without any Delay, Charge, or Deduction. Which Book was given gratis at Mercers Hall. That Reverend Divine did in the Preface to that little Book declare, that he did not for his own private Advantage project this, but but ſincerely deſigned a publick Good: And in like Manner, that the Worſhipful Company undertook to manage this Propoſal, not from any Proſpect of Advantage to their own private Perſons, but only out of a generous Deſign to make the Company more capable to anſwer the End and Reaſon of their Charter: which was, To eſtabliſh and manage Publick Charities, and thereby to enlarge their Capacities of doing Good. And he farther preſumed to declare, that the Company of Mercers, by accepting and managing this Propoſal, would do a greater and more publick Good to the whole Nation, than they could pretend to do by founding an Hoſpital for Widows in every County of the Kingdom, inaſmuch as it is a much nobler Charity to prevent any from being poor, than to relieve him when he actually becomes ſo.

THERE have been near an Hundred Lord Mayors of the Mercers Company.

FOR the principal Charities and Benefactions entruſted to the Care and Management of this Company, ſee the firſt Chapter of this Book, Page 32.

GROCERS.

THE ſecond Company of the City of LONDON, is that of the Grocers, who were firſt incorporated by the Name of the Grocers, in the 20th Year of King Edward III. Anno Domini 1345. The Arms and Supporters were granted by Thomas Bennoit, Clarencieux, in the Time of King Henry VIII. viz. Anno 1531. Helm and Creſt was afterwards granted, and the ſame Arms and Supporters confirmed by William Hervey, Clarencieux, under the Seal of his Office, and the Seal of his Arms, Anno 1562, 4 Reg. Elizabeth; and approved in a Viſitation Anno 1634.

ARMS; Argent, a Chevron Sable between ſix Cloves in Chief, and three in Baſe Sable. Creſt, on a Helmet and Torſe, a Camel Trippant proper, bridled of the ſecond. The Supporters two Griffins per Feſs, Gules and Or.

THE Company is govern'd by a Maſter, four Wardens, and ſeventy Aſſiſtants; there are about 219 on the Livery; the Livery Fine is 20 l. and Steward 10 l.

THE Hall of this Company is ſituated in the Poultrey, in a Lane ſomewhat Weſt of St. Mildred's Church. In Reſpect to the Largeneſs and convenient Situation of it, it hath formerly been made uſe of by ſeveral Lord Mayors; and for many Years laſt paſt has been taken up by the Bank of England; but they having lately built themſelves a new Houſe, it is now again wholly in the Hands of the Company.

THIS Company of Grocers traded in divers Commodities, ſome by Wholeſale, ſome by Retail, but chiefly in Fruits of Foreign Growth, as Figs, Almonds, Raiſins, Corinths, commonly called Currants; alſo in Sugars and Spice: But ſo much in that of Pepper, that they were antiently called Pepperers: Whereof we meet with many Citizens of great Wealth and Subſtance in former Times. And in the later Times of Queen Elizabeth, ſome there were called Pepperers, as dealing only in Pepper, which was commonly laid up in Leadenhall.

IN the Year 1589, or thereabouts, a great Spaniſh Carack, richly laden with Plate and other Commodities, was taken from the Spaniards, and brought into England: Wherein, among other Goods, was a conſiderable Quantity of Pepper; which the Dealers in Pepper had bought of the Queen at a good Rate: Whereof having ſold about eighty Bags, divers Parcels of Pepper were brought in upon them by the Procurement of the Grocers, to furniſh themſelves at cheaper Rates than they had bought of her Majeſty. And a long Time of Sickneſs in the Nation had proved a great Lett to them in the Sale of it. They feared therefore the Hardneſs of the Bargain would greatly impoveriſh their Eſtates. Wherefore they petitioned the Lord Treaſurer, that the Queen might command, that no Pepper might be brought in for three Years into any of her Dominions, the Time of the Pepper-Vend requiring no leſs; and they would be ready to ſatisfy her Majeſty the Cuſtom of ſo much Pepper as by Computation might be brought in during the Time of the Reſtraint, after ſuch Rate as had been brought in, ſince the Time of the buying this Pepper; and thereby they ſhould be able to perform their Payment at the Day appointed; promiſing not to advance the Price of Pepper above three Shillings in the Pound during the Reſtraint.

Stow mentions the following Paſſage he had met with concerning the Merchandize of Corinths, or Currants, as they are commonly called; a Parcel whereof were brought in by divers Strangers; which the Company of Grocers meant to have bought at ſuch a reaſonable Price as the Retailers might well have ſold the ſame at 3 d. or 3 d. Half-penny the Pound. But others, unskilful, and not traded in the Myſtery, hearing thereof, gave 600 l. more for the ſame than they had bid; and ſo enhanced the Price, to the enriching the Stranger, and impoveriſhing our own People. This was made a Matter of Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer.

STARCH was firſt ſold by the Grocers; which, as it ſeems, came in about the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Reign. For about the Year 1594 or 1595, Sir John Packington procured the Queen's Letters Patents for him only to make and ſell Starch. It grew now a Commodity in great Requeſt, and was vended for the moſt Part by the Grocers, ſerving the greateſt Part of the Chapmen through England. But the Grocers, by this Patent, were cut off, and ſo moleſted, that they were fain to make Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer, with the Subſcription of their Names, to the Number of thirty-nine, viz. William Layer, Richard Denman, Will. Brockbank, Peter Heylin, Henry Parkhurſt, John Caſon, &c. For the Aſſigns of the Patentee, minding to enrich themſelves very extraordinarily by the Execution of the ſaid Patent, took Courſes to compel the Grocers to ſell the Patentee's Aſſigns all ſuch Starch, as the Grocers had, before, or ſince the granting of the Patent bought, remaining in their Shops and Warehouſes; and that at ſuch Prices as the ſaid Aſſigns pleaſed to ſet down, being much leſs than the Commodity coſt, or was worth: Or elſe the Aſſigns violently ſeized and took the ſame away unpaid for. In caſe they were withſtood by the poor Men, the Owners thereof, they were forthwith ſent for by Purſevants before Commiſſioners thereunto appointed, where they were required to enter Bonds in great Sums of Money, with Condition to buy all the Starch they ſhould ſell of the ſaid Aſſigns, and of none other; and with Condition further, not to ſell Starch to any but to ſuch as were licenſed to buy by the ſaid Patentee's Aſſigns. To the firſt Part of which Condition, viz. to buy all the Starch they ſhould vend of the Patentee's Aſſigns, moſt of the Company, in Regard of their Loyalty to her Majeſty, conſidering it her good Pleaſure to grant the ſaid Patent, had purpoſed to yield unto: But touching the other Part, that they ſhould ſell or vend no Starch but to thoſe that were by the Aſſigns licenſed to buy, the moſt Part of the Company were perſuaded they could not yield unto without their Overthrow and utter Undoing. For hereby they might not ſell what they bought to their Chapmen.

ABOUT the Year 1580 and odd, the Grocers, as well as many other Companies, ſuffer'd ſeverely in their Gifts and Charities formerly granted them. Which becauſe the Donors had given them, or ſome Part of them, for a Maintenance of Chauntries, to pray for the Souls of them and their Anceſtors, or for other ſuperſtitious Uſes, were all ſwallowed up by the Crown by Virtue of an Act of Parliament in the Beginning of the Reign of King Edward VI. But many of theſe Gifts, being hitherto concealed, and retained in the Hands of the Companies, Queen Elizabeth granted a Patent of theſe concealed Lands and Tenements to certain Perſons, with a Power to ſearch and recover theſe Gifts. Now thoſe that were found came to the Crown, or were purchaſed again by the Poſſeſſors. Now there were theſe Gifts of this Nature found in the Hands of this Company of Grocers, as tranſcribed from a Liſt brought into the Treaſury.

THIS Company of Grocers had the Misfortune to be more in Debt than any of the other twelve, being almoſt ruined by the Fire of LONDON. For being in Debt before by ſeveral great Sums that they were forced to take up, they hoped to repay them by raiſing conſiderable Sums in Fines, and renewing of Leaſes of Houſes in LONDON, almoſt expired; when the Fire came and burnt all down; whereby they were further ſunk into Debt.

ALL which Sums they took upon their Common Seal: Nor were they ſingular therein, but neceſſitated thereunto, in Compliance with all other Companies, and indeed with the whole City.

UPON the taking up this Money, they made a By-Law to levy the ſame on themſelves, if their Stock fell ſhort; and ſo they continued Payment of their Intereſt. And as one Creditor call'd for his Money in, they took up others and paid them off, depending upon getting in their Principal; all which failed them; 'till at laſt their ſole Hope of advancing Money was by renewing of Leaſes, many whereof were nigh expired. But the great Fire, Anno 1666, conſumed their whole Revenue in LONDON, they having paid for Intereſt between 1640 and 1666, 3000 l. This made them uncapable of paying both Debts and Charities.

UPON this they let their Ground to Builders for Fines on long Leaſes; great Part of which they were compelled to pay by the Decree of the Judges at Clifford's-Inn.

UPON this they ſet on Foot voluntary Subſcriptions. Sir John Cutler, at his own proper Coſt, erected the firſt Building in the Garden, being their Parlour, and entertaining Room over it. For the Repair and Beautifying of the great Hall, Sir John Moor advanced 500 l. Sir John Frederic, Sir James Edwards, Sir Henry Tulſe, and ſeveral other Aldermen and Members, contributed largely, for an additional Building, to render it convenient and commodious for Habitation of the chief Magiſtrate of this City, both for Ornament and Uſe.

In the Year 1682, Sir Henry Tulſe, Mr. Box, Mr. Winch, and Mr. Reve, Maſter and Wardens for that Year; and Mr. Beale and Mr. Bourn, two of the late Wardens, (the Court of Aſſiſtants joined with them,) reſolved to finiſh the great Hall; which was done with that Speed as was almoſt incredible, though inlarged and made more convenient with many Accommodations; ſo that it far exceeded any Hall that now is, or probably ever was in LONDON: And the Charge amounted to a far greater Sum than was at firſt propounded, yet it manifeſtly appeared to have been the only Means left to keep the Company of Grocers upon a Foundation; for that the Apprentices and Freemen of Eſtate, or Value, who before declined, now daily increaſed.

But now to look backward to the antient State of this Company. In 3 Edw. III. Anno 1329, John Grantham was choſen and held Mayor, by the Name of Grocer (whereas before they are ſuppoſed to be called Pepperers,) and this was before they were incorporated. The firſt Charter of this Company was in 20 Edw. III. Anno 1345, which ſeems to be long before the Mercers were incorporated. The Charter was renewed ſeveral Times afterwards, particularly in 7 H. VI. by the Name of Cuſtodes & Communitas Maſterij Grocerij LONDINI, i. e. The Wardens and Commonalty of the Myſtery of the Grocery of LONDON. In the Beginning of that King's Reign they purchaſed the Ground where Grocers Hall now ſtands, with the Ground belonging to it, of Walter Fitzwalter, bounding the ſame betwixt the Old-Jewry and Wallbrook.

The Grocers were ſo conſiderable long before that Time, that they were the only Men intruſted with the Management of the King's Beam, peculiar to them, as principally uſing the ſame; and had the naming of the Weigh-Maſter, and alſo the naming, placing, removing, and governing of the four Porters; all to be elected out of their own Company.

Among other Privileges and antient Uſages of this Company, it is recorded as high as Edward the Fourth's Days, that this Company had Power of Inſpection of Abuſes and Irregularities of all Perſons in the City or Suburbs, any Way uſing or exerciſing any Kind of Grocery, and alſo to aſſay the Weights they bought or ſold by; and to take Notice of all Defaults, and to return them to be fined at the Diſcretion of this Fellowſhip, and to take 4 d. of every Perſon for their Labour herein; which Uſage was always continued; and in the Charter renewed to the Company 15 Charles I. this Privilege is confirmed and expreſſed to extend three Miles from the City, as well within the Liberties as without.

This Company formerly never wanted an Alderman of their Members, to ſucceed Maſter Warden of the Company: And ſo faithfully did they acquit themſelves of thoſe Charities they were intruſted with, that it gave them the greateſt Reputation of any Company in LONDON. Inſomuch that many well-diſpoſed Perſons did covet to make this Company the Treaſury of their Charities.

About the Year 1429, the Grocers had Licence to purchaſe 500 Marks Land: Since which Time, near adjoining unto the Grocers Hall, the ſaid Company have built ſeven Alms-Houſes for ſeven aged poor Alms-People. Thomas Knowles, Grocer, Mayor, gave his Tenement in St. Antholine's Church-Yard to the Grocers, towards the Relief of the poor Brethren in that Company. Alſo Henry Keeble, Grocer, Mayor, gave to the ſeven Alms-People 6 d. each, weekly for ever; which Penſion is now increaſed by the Maſters to ſome of them, 2 s. each, weekly, and to ſome of them leſs, &c. Henry Ady, Grocer, 1563, gave 1000 Marks to the Grocers, to purchaſe Lands. And Sir Henry Pechey, Knight and Baronet, free of that Company, gave them 500 l. to certain Uſes; he built Alms-Houſes at Ludingſtone in Kent, and was there buried.

For an Account of the chief Benefactors and Charities left to the Management of the Grocers, ſee the firſt Chapter of this Book, Pages 32 and 33.

Every Chriſtmas ten Clergymens Widows receive 40 s. each, which is paid on the 17th, 18th or 19th of December.

At the ſame Time, ſeveral poor Freemen and their Widows receive Charities, according to their Conditions.

This Company has been dignified by having five Kings, ſeveral Princes, eight Dukes, three Earls, and 20 Lords of it.

DRAPERS.

The Company of Drapers were incorporated in the 17th Year of King Henry VI. Anno Domini 1439. Their Arms firſt granted by Garter King at Arms; Creſt and Supporters by William Harvey, Clarencieux, Anno Domini 1561.

Arms: Three Clouds radiated, Proper, each adorned with a Tripple Crown, Or. The Creſt on a Helmet and Torſe, a Ram lodged as the Second, attired as the Third; Supporters, two Lions as the Laſt, Pelletee.

The Patroneſs, the Bleſſed Virgin.

This Company is governed by a Maſter, four Wardens, 30 Aſſiſtants; There are 178 on the Livery.

The Livery Fine is 25 l. but has been more: They never return the Livery Fine.

Their Court Days are uncertain, and only held as often as Buſineſs requires.

The Allowance to a Liveryman or Freemen of their Company, if he ſhould come to Decay, is diſcretionary, as the Maſter and Wardens think proper, always giving the Liveryman the Preference; they have ſometimes 20 l. and ſometimes 10 l. per Annum.

This is no Trading Company; ſome of the principal Benefactions and Charities intruſted to the Management of the Drapers, may be ſeen in the firſt Chapter of this Book, Page 33.

Their Hall is in Throgmorton-ſtreet.

Stow mentions a new Company ſet up in the Time of Queen Elizabeth, call'd the New Drapers, of whom he gives the following Account:

The Strangers Italians, French, Dutch, and Flemmings, that tranſported themſelves into England in the Days of King Edward, but chiefly in the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth, wove Cloth mixed with Woollen and Linen. And this was called the New Drapery, and the Sellers the New Drapers. For before theſe Times, this new Drapery was made in other Countries beyond Sea, with our Wool that was tranſported; and being wove, and wrought into Mocadoes, Grograms, Bays, and ſuch like Cloths and Yarn, were ſent over again into England, and ſpent here. For which (beſide the Profit of the Merchant) the Queen had a Cuſtom paid. About the Year 1576, it was found that the Queen was a Loſer in her Cuſtoms and Benefits made by Wool, by Reaſon of this new Drapery; which appeared by this that followeth:

THE Sorts of this New Drapery were various: There were Bays of the double, middle, and ſingle Sort.

Raſh or Stannet of the Florens making.
Serche (Serge) of the French Sort.
Says of the Flanders Sort.
Norwich Grograin.
Narrow Woolſteds.
Mocadoes, double, ſingle, and tuſt Sort.
Plomets.
Carells.
Fuſtians of Naples.
Blankets, called Spaniſh Rugs.
Knit Hoſe of Woolſted Yarn.

Now they made the Queen's Loſs by this Manufacture to appear thus: A Sack of Wool weighed 364 lb. and being tranſported by the Merchants of the Staple, yielded to her Majeſty, For Cuſtom 6 s. 8 d.
Subſidy 33 s. 4 d. and Licence 20 s. that is, 3 l.

THE Sack of Wool, being converted into Cloth, would make four broad ſhort Cloths; and every broad ſhort Cloth, by the Statute of King Edward VI. in the 5th and 6th Years of his Reign, having their full Content and Proportion limited, being clean ſcoured, well milled and thicked, and thorough dry, over and beſide all Manner of Waſte, muſt weigh 64 lb. And every broad ſhort Cloth, being tranſported as beforeſaid, yielded to her Majeſty 26 s. 8 d. which is leſs Profit to her than the Sack of Wool being tranſported as beforeſaid yielded, by 33 s. 4 d.

THE ſaid Sum of 3 l. for her Majeſty's Duty on the Sack of Wool being divided into 360 Parts, amounts to 2 d. on every Pound Weight of the Sack, ſaving ſome odd Pounds.

AND her Duty of 6 s. 8 d. the Cloth being divided into 64 Parts, which is for ſo many Pound Weight as the broad Cloth weighs, amounts to one Penny Farthing on every Pound.

IN Conſideration of the Loſs that her Majeſty had by the making of this new Sort of Cloths within the Realm, in the Cuſtom and Duty of the Wool, that otherwiſe would be tranſported, and in the Cuſtom and Subſidy that ſhould be paid at the returning of the ſame in Cloths; it was thought reaſonable, that there ſhould be paid for all ſuch Cloths, and other like new Sort of Cloth and Crewel, Lace and Fringe, that ſhould be made within the Realm, of Wool, by Engliſhmen and Strangers ------- upon every Pound Weight.

IT was thought neceſſary alſo, for the better levying of the ſaid new Duty, and for the underſtanding of the Goodneſs of the ſaid Cloths, and what Quantity of Wools ſhould be yearly made into ſuch Sorts of Cloths and Wares, (to the Intent it might be conſidered what Loſs her Majeſty thereby ſhould have in her Cuſtoms) that all the ſame ſhould be ſealed by ſpecial Officers, with Seals made for that Purpoſe; and that a Book be made thereof, and delivered yearly into the Exchequer; and the ſame Officers to take for the Sealing of the ſame, ſuch Fees as were then paid in any City, Town and County of the Realm in the like Caſe.

THIS City alſo had ſome Complaint to make concerning this Matter before us; for this new Drapery made and woven in the Realm, was brought frequently to the City, there to be ſold. And becauſe theſe Cloths were not of the ſame Names, that the Cloths of Woollen or Linen of antient Time were, altho' they conſiſted of the ſame Subſtance, the Makers and Merchants pretended a Liberty to themſelves to make their Markets thereof, and to buy and ſell the ſame in Inns, Chambers and Warehouſes, and all other Parts of the City and Liberties, at their Pleaſures, to the Deceit of the Queen's Subjects, and the more eaſy Utterance of naughty and deceitful Wares; and for the more eaſy intruding upon the Liberties of the City by foreign buying and ſelling: Whereas by common Uſage and antient Cuſtom uſed in the City, and by old Laws and Ordinances made and executed in the ſaid City, all Manner of Commodities, Cloths and Merchandizes made and wrought within the Kingdom, and brought here to be ſold, ought to be brought unto ſuch common Market-Place, as to that Purpoſe in the ſame City was appointed; and there only ought to be bought and ſold; and the Owners thereof did there pay Hallage and other Duties: Which was ſo done, that good and lawful Wares ſhould be bought and ſold, and corrupt and unlawful Bargains and Contracts, tending to the Deceit of the People, and contrary to the Laws of the Realm, might be avoided; and alſo, that there might be no foreign buying and ſelling, in Fraud of the Liberties, Franchiſes, and Cuſtoms of the City, being confirmed and ratified by Acts of Parliament.

THEREFORE the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council of the City did ordain, that from henceforth no Manner of Cloth of the new Device, Commodities and Merchandizes aforeſaid, made of Wool, or of Woollen and Linen together, not accuſtom'd heretofore to be brought to Blackwell-hall, which hereafter ſhould be brought to the City to be ſold, ſhould be brought to the common Market-Place, named The Waſted Hall, ſituate at the North-End of the Old-Jewry, in the Ward of Baſinghall, within this City, and there from thenceforth ſhould be bought and ſold. And that no Perſon Free of the City, or any other dwelling within the Liberties, or having any Houſe, or Shop, or Room within the ſame City, ſhould from thenceforth, there or elſewhere, take in, harbour, or beſtow, or ſuffer to be taken in, received, &c. any of the ſaid Cloths of the new Device, before the ſame be brought to the Market-Place aforeſaid thereunto appointed, and there harboured, taken in, bought and ſold. The Market-Days for the ſaid Cloth of the new Device to be every Tueſday and Wedneſday, from Eight 'till Eleven in the Forenoon, and from One 'till Four in the Afternoon. And the Officers of the ſaid Hall and Market-Place to be attendant at the ſaid Hall, to receive the Premiſes from Time to Time, who might take for Hallage and other Charges of the ſaid Cloths, ſuch Rates as follow, that is to ſay:

Broad Raſh for Cloaks and other Garments, containing from 20 to 25 Yards the Piece, 2 d.
Borratoſe, wrought with Silk, containing under 20 Yards, ob.
And the double Piece above 25 Yards, 1 d.
Carells, containing 14 Yards a Piece, qu.
Worſted Hoſe, the dozen Pair, 2 d.
Norwich Gartering, the Groſs, ob.
Stowſe Lace, and Penny Broad Lace, the dozen Groſs, 1 d.

Crewel, or Worſted Yarn, the dozen Pound, 1*d.*
Fringe, the dozen Pound Weight, 1 d.

And there being paid, the Officer or his Deputy ſhould ſtrike a Seal of Lead upon every particular Piece of the ſaid Merchandize, as well in Diſcharge of the Owner from a Re-demand thereof, as alſo to charge the ſame Officer with the Money received. This was the Sum of a Proclamation by the Lord Mayor, Octob. 28, in the 18th Year of Queen Elizabeth.

After theſe Rates, the Hallage was worth to the City of LONDON in half a Year after this Proclamation, (that is, from October to the End of March) after 6 l. a Month, 30 l. And if all had been brought into the Hall according to the ſaid Proclamation, it would have been worth, by Computation, 200 l. per Ann. But there ſoon followed a Controverſy between the City of Norwich and the City of LONDON; thoſe of Norwich aſſerting, That they ought to pay no Hallage, but were as free as any Citizen of LONDON for ſuch Exactions; and ſo the Hallage came to little or nothing.

But now, as to the Prejudices accruing by theſe new Drapers to the Queen and the Realm, theſe Murmurs were made; that the Queen loſt her double Cuſtoms of Wool; Cloth and Kerſey making decayed; for that theſe new Sort of Cloths for Garments, and Yarn for Hoſe and otherwiſe, were ſo much uſed within the Realm; and that there was a Decay in the poor Engliſhmen's Work, Strangers being in a Manner wholly employed in the Working of theſe Cloths. But Thomas Smith, the Queen's Cuſtomer, a Man skilful in theſe Matters, being required his Judgment, ſhewed the Lord Treaſurer Burleigh, That though there were ſome Loſs by theſe Manufactures to the Queen in her Cuſtoms inwards, yet it was recompenced by her Cuſtoms outwards; and alſo profitable for the Commonwealth; ſince ſuch Numbers of thoſe Commodities could not be wrought in the Realm by Strangers only, but that they muſt ſet on work many poor People, Natives of this Realm. And whereas it was thought, that the making theſe would prove the Decay of Cloths and Kerſies, there were as many made then as had been in Times paſt, and as much worn within the Realm as had been before Time; and that it appeared by the Cuſtom Books, that there were as many carried out of the Realm as before.

For the making the Queen Satisfaction for the leſſoning of her Cuſtoms, an Impoſition was propounded to be laid upon this Drapery, as was ſaid before. But here aroſe a Queſtion, Whether the Queen could lay an Impoſition of this Nature upon it? Whereupon Sir Gilbert Gerrard, the Queen's Attorney-General, gave this Anſwer, That he thought ſhe might ſet any reaſonable Impoſition upon any Piece of ſuch Drapery as ſhould be made by any Stranger; and that for two Cauſes: The one was, for that all the Strangers that made ſuch Things did work here only by her Majeſty's Sufferance; and therefore they were to obey ſuch Impoſitions as ſhould be laid on them, or elſe not to work at all. And another Cauſe was this, for that her Majeſty did now receive ſome Loſs and Detriment by their great Drapery of Wool; which heretofore was uſed to be vended out of the Realm, and now was not; and thereby her Majeſty did loſe her antient Cuſtoms that were paid her for thoſe Wools when they were tranſported. Another Queſtion put to the ſaid Attorney-General was, Whether theſe new Draperies were not in the Office of the Alnegers, or not? To which he anſwered, That he thought they were not within the Compaſs of any Alneger's Office by Force of any Statutes heretofore made. And the Queen's Solicitor, Sir Thomas Bromely, was conſulted alſo, and was of the ſame Mind.

The Impoſition laid upon theſe Cloths by the Lord Treaſurer, was according to the Weight of them, after the Proportion of 4*d.* for 64 Pounds Weight of Wool, and not otherwiſe. And if any of them were found to be made partly of Thread-Yarn, or any other Stuff than of Wool, the ſaid Subſidy was to be demanded and paid according to the Weight of the Wool only that the ſame Cloth did contain.

William Fitzwilliams and George Delves, Eſqs; Gentlemen-Penſioners to the Queen, about the Year 1578, obtained to be Collectors of this Subſidy, and Viewers and Alnegers of the ſaid Manufacture, and had the Queen's Letters Patents for ſeven Years, paying a certain yearly Rent to the Queen

The firſt Lord Mayor of LONDON, Sir Henry Fitzalwyn, who continued ſo 24 Years, was Free of the Drapers Company, and there is an antient Picture of him hanging up in their great Hall.

There have been above 120 Lord Mayors of this Company.

FISHMONGERS.

THE Fiſhmongers were at firſt two Companies, namely, Stock-Fiſhmongers and Salt-Fiſhmongers, each bearing different Coats of Arms. The Stock-Fiſhmongers bore, Azure, two Lucies in Saltier, Argent, with Coronets over their Mouths, Or. The Salt-Fiſhmongers bore, Azure, three Croſs-Keys, Saltierwiſe, Or. On a Chief, Gules, three Dolphins naiant, Argent:) Which Salt-Fiſhmongers, Ann. 1509, (which was in the Beginning of King Henry VIII.) did bear their Arms as is hereafter ſet down, ſomewhat differently to what they bore them before, viz. Azure, three Dolphins naiant, Argent. On a Chief, Gules, three Croſs-Keys, Saltierwiſe, Or. But laſtly, in the 28th Year of the ſame King, Anno Dom. 1536, the ſaid Companies were united in one; and then their Arms were more fully granted, as appears above, viz.

Azure, three Dolphins naiant in Pale, between two Pair of Lucies, Saltierwiſe, proper, crowned, on a Chief, Gules, ſix Keys in three Saltiers, the Ward Ends upward, as the Crowns. Creſt, on a Helmet and Torſe, two Arms ſupporting an Imperial Crown of the Second.

Patron of the Company, St. Peter.

The Fiſhmongers are governed by ſix Wardens, whereof the firſt is called the Prime Warden, 28 Aſſiſtants; there are about 220 on the Livery;

Livery; their Livery Fine is about 14 l. but not always certain.

Salt-Wharf. A Wharf antiently ſo called, at Queenhith; halt whereof, and the Houſe, belonged to Thomas Weſton, Citizen and Fiſhmonger, Anno 1435, and given by him in his Will to the Company of Fiſhmongers for ever. In uſum ſuſtentationis operum Artis præfat. infra veterem Piſcariam Civitat. LONDON. ſingulis annis expendend'. Under Condition, that the Keepers of the ſaid Art ſhall hold one Obit, as well for him as for Solomon Feſtorp and Margaret his Wife, &c. each Year in the Day of his Obit, in the Church of St. Nicholas Cold-abbey.

Antient STATUTES of the FISHMONGERS of LONDON, as they are taken from a Book in the Chamber of LONDON.

DICUNT homines de Halimoto, &c. The Men of the Halimote ſay, that they ought to have two Laghelmotes in the Year, one on the Feaſt of St. Martin, the other in Lent; and all Fiſhermen and thoſe of the Halimote ought to be there; and he that fails forfeits 20 d.

Moreover, it ought to be forbidden in that Halimote, that no Fiſhmonger buy a freſh Fiſh before Maſs at the Chapel, upon the Bridge, be celebrated, or at the Church of St. Magnus.

They ſay alſo, that the ſaid Fiſhermen muſt ſell freſh Fiſh after Maſs, and Salt-fiſh after Prime.

That no Fiſhmonger ought to go to buy Fiſh beyond the Bounds appointed: And theſe are the Bounds, the Chapel upon the Bridge, Baynard's-Caſtle, and Jordan's Key, unleſs the Fiſh be ſet to ſell, as they are at Berkynes, Norflete, Dartford, and in ſome other Markets.

None to buy Fiſh in any Boat, unleſs brought thence to land.

UPON a Complaint of this Company once to a former King, againſt one of their Trade foreſtalling Fiſh, &c. he iſſued out his Letters to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, to this Tenor:

REX Maiori & Vicecomitib' LONDON. Salutem. Ex gravi Querela Johan. de Brakyng, Piſcenar' LONDON. pro ſe & aliis officium illud in eád' Civitat' exercentib' coram nobis de predict'; accipimus quod Will. de Eere Stock-fiſhmonger, officium illud ibid' exercens, forſtallamenta & abroceamenta, & alias tranſgreſſiones & dampna enormia in obprobrium omnium officium vendendi Stokfiſs, cepas, allia, nuces wallenſes, & alia hujuſmodi victualia exercentium, & dedecus manifeſtum; necnon contra conſuetudinem inter illos, qui officium hujuſmodi ibid' hactenus exercerent, & approbatam, multipliciter fecit; & de die in diem facere, non deſiſtit, in noſtri, & Communitatis noſtræ predict' ac omnium in dict' Civitat' fluentium hujuſmodi victualia ibid. vendentium, dampnum non modicum, & jacturam:

Nos ergo hujuſmodi & malicie obviare volentes, vos precipimus, quod vocatis coram vob' prefato Johan' & predict' Willo. & auditis tam Johis. per ſe & aliis officium in dict' Civitat' exercentib' quam prefat' Will' rationib' in premiſſis, &c. debito more emendari. Ne nos in veſtri defectum clamorem inde audiamus, per quod manum ad hoc aliter apponere debeamus. Teſt' ap' Wyndeſhore xiii die Febr' Anno Regn' noſtri ſexto.

THE Fiſhmongers Hall ſtands in Thames-ſtreet, and reaches South to the Water-ſide; it was new built after the Fire of LONDON, with a ſpacious and graceful Quadrangle. They keep a Memorial of that famous Lord Mayor Sir William Walworth, ſome Time a Brother of their Company; whoſe Effigies, in full Proportion, ſtands in a Niche in their great Hall, holding his bloody Dagger in his Hand, wherewith, it is reported in our Hiſtory, he manfully ſlew the Rebel Wat Tyler. And they have that very Dagger, if Tradition may be credited, hanging up in one of the Rooms, that did that Heroick Execution; tho' ſome Perſon, who keeps a publick Houſe at Iſlington, did very lately, in the Year 1731, pretend to be poſſeſs'd of it, and did lend it to be publickly expoſed in Smithfield, at the Time of Bartholomew Fair, in a Shew or Droll, called, Wat Tyler.

WHEN Sir William Leman, of this Company, was Mayor, which was in the Year 1616, among ſeveral Triumphant Shews that adorned the Day of his Entrance into his Office, there rode ſeveral Men in Armour, one whereof with the Head of Wat Tyler upon a Spear erected. There was then alſo a Pageant repreſenting Walworth lying dead in his Monument, and an Angel, the Genius of LONDON, making him ariſe; who forthwith ſat up, and made a Speech to the Mayor paſſing by.

THE Repreſentation of an armed Man riding with the Head of Wat Tyler upon his Spear in Memory of Sir William Walworth, was again made when Sir Thomas Abney, Fiſhmonger, enter'd upon his Mayoralty.

THE Fiſhmongers, in their Hall, have a handſome Coat of Arms of England, ſet up to the Honour of King William III. with this Inſcription:

Auguſtiſſimo, Potentiſſimo, & Invictiſſimo, Angliæ, Scotiæ, Galliæ, & Hiberniæ Regi, GULIELMO Tertio, Fidei a Papiſmo Defenſori & Conſervatori, Libertatis Reſtauratori, Publicæ felicitatis Auctori, ſeculi Reparatori, SACRUM.

GOLDSMITHS.

THE Goldſmiths were incorporated in the ſixteenth Year of King Richard II. Anno Dom. 1392. The Arms antient; the Creſt and Supporters were added and granted by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, Anno Dom. 1571, 13 Reg. Elizab. approved and enter'd at a Viſitation made by Sir Henry St. George, Anno 1634.

ARMS: Gules, a Leopard's Head, Or, quartered with Azure; a cover'd Cup between two Buckles of the ſecond. Creſt, a Dainty Lady holding in her Right Hand a Balance, with her Arms

SUPPORTERS: Two Unicorns, Or.

THE Patron St. Dunſtan.

THIS Company is govern'd by four Wardens, and about 90 Aſſiſtants. There are 294 on the Livery. The Livery Fine is 11 l. 5 s.

THE antient Mutiny in the City between the Goldſmiths and the Fiſhmongers, for Precedency, would not be appeaſed: The Diſcord remaining, a Proclamation was made by the Mayor and Aldermen, by their own Authority, without any other Warrant, that the Rebels ſhould return to Peace; and that none ſhould receive them under Pain of Forfeiture of Life. And Note, That ſome of them were Banniſiati, i. e. Baniſhed and Expelled the City, and deprived of their Freedom, becauſe they would not render themſelves to Peace.

IN the Year 1574, one William Sutton diſcovered and informed the Lord Treaſurer of ſeveral Frauds uſed by many of the Goldſmiths in thoſe Times; being employed to ſearch their Shops for unduly wrought Silver and Gold Plate; who took away a great deal ſuch, and ſealed it up: And there were ſeveral Men ſworn before Sir Rowland Hayward, Mayor, who were ready to ſhew, by whom, and when theſe Deceits were done. The Abuſes in Gold Wares were ſuch, that many in buying were wronged five Shillings in the Ounce; in ſome Wares eight Shillings; in ſome thirteen Shillings; and in ſome Wares more. The Abuſes in Silver Wares were, when the Loſs to the Buyer ought not to have been ſix Pence, it had been three Shillings in ſome Things; in ſome five Shillings; in ſome ſix Shillings; and in ſome more. And this appeared by the Warden of the Goldſmiths Books, wherein the Faults of the deceitful Workers, Sellers, and Putters to Sale were regiſter'd. And alſo many Biliments, Chains, Tablets, Buttons, and ſuch like, which were commonly worn, or to be ſhewed, made this alſo appear. And the Finers alſo, who proved the ſame true by their Waſte in Fining. And this ſaid Plate, that for its Deficiency was taken and ſealed up, was examined before Secretary Smith, who was well ſtudied in the Quality and Nature of Metals; and he was able to ſatisfy all Perſons, that there was not one Piece but what was againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Ordinance of the Houſe, and their own Oaths.

MANY had deviſed Works, wherein they had beſtowed Copper, Lattin, Sother, and ſuch like Things, whereby the Buyers might be deceived. Theſe Deceits were practiſed from the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign to this Time, when it was thus complained of.

BUT the Goldſmiths, in Vindication of themſelves, againſt this Accuſation, of uſing Deceits in making their Plate, and wronging the Buyers, juſtify'd themſelves, Anno 1577, by an Addreſs to the Lord Treaſurer, ſigned by Langley, Mayor, and other Wardens of the ſaid Company, to this Purport:

" That whereas one William Sutton, of the ſaid " Wardens Company, upon ſundry falſe Sug-" geſtions, as they were credibly informed, had, " of late, exhibited his Bills, as well to the " Queen's Majeſty, as to his Honour, and other " Lords of the Privy Council, craving thereby, " that it might pleaſe her Highneſs to authorize, " by a Commiſſion, by him deviſed, ſome one, " meaning himſelf, to overſee and ſurvey the Do-" ings of their Workmen: Suppoſing to her " Highneſs, that they, the Wardens, (to whom " that Office by Virtue of the Queen's Majeſty's " Letters Patents appertained) did very remiſsly " neglect their Duty therein: They therefore, " leſt peradventure her Majeſty, and his Honour, " and the reſt of the Lords, not knowing how " impudent and lewd a Perſon he was, neither " what Care and Pain they daily did take to exe-" cute their ſaid Office of Search, might to their " great Griefs and intolerable Burthen, upon his " untrue Suggeſtion, without juſt Cauſe, authorize " ſo evil a Member, or any other, to ſearch a-" mong them, to the great Diſturbance of the " whole Company, thought it their bounden " Duty, firſt, to ſignify to his Lordſhip what he, " the ſaid Sutton, was, and in what Diſorder he " had lived, and yet did, among them, as by " Records hereafter cited might appear: But " alſo therewith preſented to their Honours, what " Order they took for ſearching throughout the " whole Realm.

" This William Sutton, Anno 1569, for his " Diſobedience to his Wardens, was ſent to the " Compter. His Caſe was thus: The ſaid Sut-" ton then (as he now did) found many Faults; " and when he was called before the Company, " could not ſet forth one particular Workman " that ſhould commit the ſame; and ſo, for ſlan-" dering the Workmen, he was, by the Alder-" man of the Company, the Wardens, and the " whole Aſſiſtants, ſent to Ward. That another " Time he made Report to ſundry, that he knew " ſeveral great Enormities in the Company, and " he would have it redreſs'd. Whereupon, the " Wardens hearing of it, ſent for him again, and " with as good Words as they could, deſired him " to tell it, and to ſet it forth to them preſently, " that they might puniſh the ſame, and be forth-" with redreſs'd, that the Queen's Subjects, by " Delay, might receive no Loſs: But when he " ſhould have ſet down the Faults, he could " not ſet down one. After this, he then ſecret-" ly (as now he did) informed the Council, what " evil Plate there was in Cheapſide; and prayed " a Commiſſion for the Search of the ſame, and " had it. And when he had taken the ſame " Plate, and upon the Sudden ſealed it up in " Bags, being after brought before the Commiſ-" ſioners, each Party had his own Plate again, as " good Plate, and undefaced.

" That this Sutton alſo procured one John " Burton, Gold-Wire-Drawer, to draw him a " Wire of fine Silver, and to brace it over with " Gold, to make a deceitful Chain thereof; and " ſo the ſaid Chain had fourteen Ounces in Sil-" ver in it, and a thin Plate of Gold on it, weigh-" ing three Ounces. Whereupon, the ſaid Sut-" ton was called and examined, and could not " deny the ſame. At another Time, the ſaid " Sutton, for his evil Demeanour, was committed " to Priſon, in that he not only ſlander'd the " Company, but the Wardens; and would not, " according to his Oath, ſet forth and declare to " the ſaid Wardens, as well the Cauſe as the " Parties Names: Whereupon he, by his Adhe-" rents, complained himſelf to the whole Body " of the Council, ſuggeſting (as he yet daily " doth) what great Enormities were in the ſaid " Company, and that he was committed for evil " Will and Malice. Whereupon, their Honours " directed their Letters to Sir Ambroſe Nicholas, " Knt. then Lord Mayor, and the Maſter of the " Rolls, who deliberately heard both him and " us, with all the Proofs and Circumſtances he " could bring in touching his Aſſertions. And " in the End, by an Order taken likewiſe, ready " to be ſhewed under their Hands, it was order-" ed, that he ſhould eftſones go to Priſon again, " till the Council's Pleaſure, upon their Certifi-" cate, was fully known.

" And after the Lords Pleaſure was known, " Order by the Commiſſioners was taken, that " he ſhould come openly into Goldſmiths-Hall, " and there acknowledge his Fault before all the " whole

" whole Company; there likewiſe to give them " to underſtand, that he was ſorry for his Faults, " and ſhould further promiſe never after to of- " fend ſo again.

" Now our very good Lord, whether this " Sutton (living idly, and not uſing the Trade " of the Goldſmiths, but rather ſeeketh to de- " face the ſame) be ſuch a one to whom any " Credit ſhould be given, or a Man meet to " ſerve in a Commonweal, we refer it to your " grave Judgment and Underſtanding; humbly " beſeeching your Honour, and the reſt of the " Honourable Council, to ſtand our good Lords, " and to ayde us in our Service, no otherwiſe " than we ſhall deſerve; and we ſhall be bound " daily to pray to God for your proſperous E- " ſtates long to endure.

THIS was wrote upon Parchment, and ſigned by John Langley, Mayor, and at leaſt ten more of that Company, the Wardens and others.

AND with this Addreſs they ſent the Ordinances of the Company, fair written alſo in Parchment, viz.

A NOTE of ſundry ORDINANCES made for the GOLDSMITHS, ratified and confirmed by the Lords of the Privy-Council, and the two Chief Juſtices of England.

FIRST, There is every Year four Wardens choſen, and ſolemnly ſworne to do their bounden Duties unto the Queen's Majeſty; and juſtly and truly to deal in the Company, and to perform the Laws, Statutes and Ordinances of the Houſe.

Item, They or three of them ſit twice every Week, viz. Monday and Friday, to hear all Cauſes of Offence in the ſaid Company, and to end the ſame. And if the Cauſe be of Weight, then they call to them ten, at the leaſt, of the Aſſiſtants: All which Aſſiſtants to have been before ſworne Wardens; and theſe together to hear, end, and determine the ſame.

We ſearch every Year twice or thrice, or four Times, as Occaſion ſerveth; and if we find any Things unlawfully made, be it of Gold or Silver, we break it, though it be worth 100 l. or two. We alſo impriſon the Partie, and fyne him. All which, and more, is turned to the Relief of the Poor, which cometh yearly, with other Things given by our auncient Fathers heretofore, to a large Sum.

We four Times a Year call the whole Company together, and then openly in the Hall we read the Ordinances of the Houſe unto them, and eſpecially for good and true Workmanſhip; and put them in Remembrance what Laws be made therefore; how they are bound in 40 l. a-piece to work truly; how they be ſworn ſo to do: And all this we do to urge them to work truly and honeſtly.

We then earneſtly deſire them, yea, and charge them, by th'Othe they have taken to the Queen's Majeſty, that they conſider of this one ſpecial Admonition, that as they ſhall not work untruly, ſo ſhall they not keep cloſe or ſecret any Man of the Company, or any other that ſhall work for them untruly; but ſhall forthwith reveal it to the Wardens.

OUT of this Company of Goldſmiths once a Year a Jury is taken, conſiſting of 24 Perſons, who go up to the Court; and then, in the Preſence of the Lords of the Council, ſome Pieces of every Sort of Money coined the foregoing Year, and that had been taken out of the Mint, is exactly aſſayed and weighed; which Pieces were taken at Adventures out of the ſaid Mint, and kept under ſeveral Locks by ſeveral Perſons till this Time. And hereby ſpecial Care is taken that the Engliſh Coin want neither Purity nor Weight,

THE Hall of this Company eſcaped, in Part, the great Fire, being a fair Structure of ſmoothed Brick, with a ſpacious Quadrangle paved with Free-Stone, ſituate in Foſter-lane, near St. John Zachary's. Here remain the Pictures of Sir Martin Bowes and Sir Hugh Willoughbie, both of this Company, great Benefactors to it, and ſometimes Lord Mayor of LONDON. The latter a Man never to be forgotten, for bringing in the New River Water into the City; for the Rents whereof he gave then 30 l. a Year to this Company, which are now worth to them near 300 l. a Year.

THIS Company obtained Charters from divers Kings and Queens of this Realm. Firſt, Edward III. upon the Suit of the Goldſmiths of LONDON, ſuggeſting to him how that many Perſons of that Trade, by Fire, and the Smoak of Quickſilver, had loſt their Sight; and that others of them, by their working in that Trade, became ſo crazy and infirm, that they were diſabled, but by Relief from others; and that divers of the ſaid City, compaſſionating the Condition of ſuch, were diſpoſed to give and grant divers Tenements and Rents in the City, to the Value of 20 l. per Ann. to the Company of the ſaid Craft, towards the Maintenance of the ſaid Blind, Weak and Infirm, and alſo of a Chapel to celebrate Maſs among them every Day, for the Souls of all the Faithful departed, according to an Ordinance in that Behalf to be made; did by his Letters Patents, for the Conſideration of a Fine of ten Marks, for himſelf and his Heirs, grant and give Licence to the Men of the Community aforeſaid, that they might purchaſe Tenements and Rents in the ſame City of the ſaid Value, for the Statutes aforeſaid, the Statute of Mortmain, or any other Statute to the contrariwiſe notwithſtanding.

BUT for want of naming Perſons capable in this Grant of King Edward III. the Company again petitioned King Richard II. importing as much; and the King yielded to their Petition, as follows:

The ſaid King Richard II. granted the ſame Company, in Conſideration of 20 Marks by them paid, Licence, " That from henceforth they " might be a perpetual Community or Society of " themſelves; and that they might for ever yearly " elect out of themſelves four Wardens to overſee, " croſs, rule, and daily govern the ſaid Craft and " Community, and every Member. And further, " That they might purchaſe, and have to them- " ſelves and their Succeſſors, Tenements and " Rents with their Appurtenances within the " ſaid City and Suburbs, to the Value of 20 l. " per Ann. for the Maintenance of the Blind, " Weak, and Infirm Men of the Company, and " to celebrate Maſs. This bore Date at Win- " cheſter, February 6, the 17th Year of his " Reign (A. M. writes the 16th amiſs.)

Edward IV. by his Letters Patents, bearing Date at Leiceſter, the 30th of May, in the 2d of his Reign, allowed all the former Letters Patents, and approved and confirmed the ſame; and further granted to the ſaid Wardens and Company of the Craft aforeſaid, that they and their Heirs ſhould be a Corporation, or Body Corporate, conſiſting, and called by the Name of Wardens and Company, &c. and be Perſons able and capable in Law to purchaſe and take Lands and Tenements, Rents, and other Poſſeſſions whatſoever, for ever in Fee-Simple; and to have a perpetual Succeſſion and Common Seal for the Affairs of the ſaid Myſtery.

AND

And moreover, in theſe Letters were added, That for the Credit of the Men of this Art, dwelling and reſiding in the ſaid City; and for preventing and avoiding the Damage and Loſs that did or might daily happen, as well to the King as to his Liege People, for want of a due and provident Care of regulating certain of the King's Subjects, and others, uſing and exerciſing the ſaid Trade, without any Regard to the Credit of the ſaid Company, &c. He granted to the Wardens and Company, that they ſhould and might for ever have the Search, Inſpection, Trial and Regulation of all Sorts of Gold and Silver, wrought or to be wrought, and expoſed to Sale within the City or Suburbs, and in all Fairs and Markets, in Cities, Towns and Boroughs, and throughout the Kingdom of England; and alſo ſhould and might have Power to puniſh and correct all Defects that ſhould be found in the working of Gold and Silver; and that they might call to their Aſſiſtance the Mayor and Sheriffs of the ſaid City, and the Mayors and Bailiffs and other Officers whatſoever, in any Fairs, Markets, Cities, Boroughs, Towns, and other Places, where any Search or Trial ſhould happen; and that the Wardens of the ſaid Myſtery ſhould and might have full Power and Authority for ever, by themſelves, or any of them, duly to ſearch or try all and all Manner of Works touching and concerning the ſaid Craft, found or being in the Hands of the Goldſmiths, or any other whomſoever, ſelling, making or working any Wares or Works, pertaining to the ſaid Myſtery as well within the City and Suburbs, as elſewhere out of the ſaid City, in all Fairs, Markets, &c. And alſo, according to their Diſcretion, to puniſh and correct the Makers, Sellers and Workers of the ſame.

Also Henry VII. granted this Company his Letters Patents, dated at Weſtminſter the 3d of February, the 20th of his Reign. And King Henry VIII. his Letters, dated at Weſtminſter, March the 16th, the firſt of his Reign. And King Edward VI. his, dated at Weſtminſter the 6th of June, the firſt of his Reign. And Queen Mary hers, dated at Weſtminſter the 5th of December, the firſt of her Reign. And Queen Elizabeth hers, dated at Weſtminſter the 3d of February, the 3d of her Reign. And K. James I. his, dated the 30th of March, in the 2d of his Reign.

The Goldſmiths made and ſet forth this good Order following, for Prevention and Redreſs of great Abuſes, committed in ſeveral Wares, viz.

Goldſmiths-Hall, Feb. 23, 1675.

WHEREAS Complaint hath been made to the Wardens of the Company of Goldſmiths, LONDON, that divers Small Works, as Buckles for Belts, Silver Hilts, and the Pieces thereto belonging, with divers other Small Wares both of Gold and Silver, are frequently wrought and put to Sale by divers Goldſmiths and others, worſe than Standard, to the Abuſe of his Majeſty's good Subjects, and great Diſcredit of that Manufacture; and that there are alſo divers Pieces of Silver Plate ſold, not being aſſayed at Goldſmiths-Hall, and ſo not marked with the Leopard's Head Crowned, as by Law the ſame ought to be. And whereas the Wardens of the ſaid Company, to prevent the ſaid Frauds, have formerly required all Perſons to forbear putting to Sale any adulterate Wares, either of Gold or Silver, but that they cauſe the ſame forthwith to be defaced: And that as well Plate-Workers or Small-Workers, ſhould cauſe their reſpective Marks to be brought to Goldſmiths-Hall, and there write the ſame in a Table kept in the Aſſay-Office; and likewiſe either their Names and Places of Habitation in a Book there kept for that Purpoſe, whereby the Perſons and their Marks might be known unto the Wardens of the ſaid Company: Which having not hitherto been duly obſerved, Theſe are therefore to give Notice to, and to require again all thoſe who exerciſe the Art or Myſtery of Goldſmiths in and about the City of LONDON and Weſtminſter, and the Suburbs of the ſame, that they forthwith repair to Goldſmiths-Hall, and there ſtrike their Marks in a Table appointed for that Purpoſe; and likewiſe either their Names, with the Places of their reſpective Dwellings, in a Book remaining in the Aſſay-Office there: And that as well the Workers as Shop-keepers, and all others working and trading in Gold and Silver Wares of what Kind or Quality ſoever they be, forbear putting to Sale any of the ſaid Works, not being agreeable to Standard, that is to ſay, Gold not leſs in Fineneſs than 22 Carrats; and Silver not leſs in Fineneſs than 11 Ounces two Penny Weight: And that no Perſon or Perſons do from henceforth put to Sale any of the ſaid Wares, either ſmall or great, before the Workman's Mark be ſtruck thereon, and the ſame aſſayed at Goldſmiths-Hall, and there approved for Standard, by ſtriking thereon the Lion and Leopard's Head Crowned, or one of them, if the ſaid Works will conveniently bear the ſame. Hereof all Perſons concerned are deſired to take Notice, and demean themſelves accordingly, otherwiſe the Wardens will make it their Care to procure them to be provided againſt according to Law.

One of this Company deſerves here to be remember'd and ſtand upon Record for his Prudence in ſecuring the Eſtate he ſhould leave behind him, from the Danger of ever being ſold away or alienated from his Name and Family by any that ſhould enjoy it: Which he did by making certain of this Company Truſtees of it. This Citizen was one Philip Strelley of LONDON, who, in the Year 1603, left the Manor or Lordſhip of Ulkerthorpe, alias Ogarthorpe, alias Hogarthorpe, in the County of Derby, to Sir James Pemberton, and others his Truſtees and Members of the Goldſmiths Company for ever, in Truſt, that they ſhall leaſe the ſame Premiſes (after ſeveral Limitations therein mention'd) to the Heirs of the Body of Henry Strelley; and for Default of ſuch Heirs, then to ſuch Perſon or Perſons ſucceſſively one after another, as for the Time being ſhall be next of the Blood, Name and Kindred of the Strelleys: To hold for ninety nine Years, with a Proviſo, that the ſame ſhall determine at ſuch of the Feaſts of All-Saints, and May-Day, as ſhall next happen after the End of one Year, next after the Deceaſe of the Leſſee, at 55 l. Rent per Annum, with ſuch Covenants as are mention'd in a Precedent annexed to his Will. The ſaid 55 l. to be diſpoſed of by the Company in Manner following, viz.

To put out two Apprentices born on the Premiſes, or in the Counties of Derby and Nottingham	20	00	00
To two poor Scholars at Cambridge and Oxford, for their Exhibition and Maintenance	10	00	00
To poor maimed Soldiers	10	00	00
To the Poor of St. John Zachary's, LONDON	02	00	00
To poor Goldſmiths	08	00	00
To the Truſtees and Wardens of the ſaid Company	05	00	00

THESE Goldſmiths have commonly (beſides Plate) dealt in Jewels and precious Stones; and in former Times, there being no great Store of them, nor of Gold and Silver, nor Artiſts in the Company, in making Veſſels in Gold and Silver, or in ſetting of Stones artificially into Jewels, they were fain to ſend for them upon Occaſion from France, and other Places beyond Sea; as appears by theſe Letters Patents granted to Sir Edmund Shaw, Kt. and ſome Time Mayor, Goldſmith to King Richard III. "To al Maiors, &c. "That for great Conſiderations us ſpecially move- "ing, we wol and charge you, that you ſuffer "our truſty and wel beloved Edmund Shaw, Kt. "Alderman of our City of LONDON, and "Rauf Latham, or any other his menial Ser- "vants or Apprentices, to bring out of the Obei- "ſance of France, and out of the Parts beyond "the Sea, to this our Realm of England, al Ma- "ner of Metal of Gold, and al Maner Mettal "of Silver; and alſo al gilt, as wel as Party gilt, "as otherwiſe, be they the ſaid Mettals in "Weight, or in any Maner of Faſhion, what it "be; and al Maner of Pearls and precious Stones, "ſet or unſet, poliſhed or unpoliſhed; without "any Cuſtom or other Devoir for Us, or for our "Right or Duty to be demanded of the ſaid "Edmund or Rauf. Dated the 25 Fevrier.

AN Act was made in the 8th and 9th Years of the Reign of his late Majeſty King William, which enacted, That no Silver Veſſel, Plate or Manufacture ſhould be wrought or made leſs in Fineneſs than 11 Ounces, 10 Penny-weight of fine Silver, in every Pound Weight Troy; nor ſold or exchanged, until the ſame had been marked with the two firſt Letters of the Surname of the Worker, and with the Marks of the Company of Goldſmiths, LONDON, being a Lion's Head eraſed, the Figure of a Woman, commonly called Britannia; and a Mark denoting the Year, under the Penalty of Forfeiture thereof.

ACCORDINGLY, in September, Anno 1717, the Wardens of the ſaid Company did iſſue forth a Declaration, that they were reſolved to proſecute with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law all ſuch as ſhould work, or expoſe to Sale any Veſſel or Manufacture contrary to the ſaid Act.

THERE have been about forty Lord Mayors of this Company.

SKINNERS.

THE Company of Skinners were incorporated in the firſt Year of King Edward III. Anno Dom. 1327, and made a Brotherhood in the 18th Year of King Richard II. The Creſt and Supporters were granted by William Harvey, who was free of the ſame Company, An. Dom. 1561.

THE Arms at this Time are: Ermin, on a Chief Gules, three Crowns with Caps of the Firſt. Creſt; a Leopard proper, gorged with a Chaplet of Bays, Or. Supporters; a Lucern and a Wolf, both proper.

IN a Viſitation Book of LONDON, there is no Helmet, and the Leopard in the Creſt is Paſſant upon a Wreath, and not ſeiant; and the Ermins in the Coat are only three two and three; and the Arms, Creſt and Supporters, are ſaid to be granted by Thomas Halley [Hawley] Clarencieux, 4 Edward VI. Which Arms were enter'd and approved in the Viſitation Anno 1634; at which Time Mr. John Bennet was Maſter.

In thoſe Times, Coney-Skins and other Furs, of the Breed of this Realm were, by ſuch as had them of their own Breed, and ſuch as gathered them, as Pedlers, and the like, ordinarily brought and offered to be ſold to the Skinners: And the Skinners bought the ſame at reaſonable Rates: And then out of ſuch Skins and Furs, choſe out and cull'd thoſe that were fit for Wear within the Realm, and cauſed them to be dreſs'd, and ſet the Poor on work: And ſo had, by Choice and Plenty, wherewith to ſerve the Nobles, Gentlemen, and other Subjects of England. The Reſidue of the Furs and Skins ſo come to their Hands, they vended to every Man as fitted his Trade, and to the Merchants ſuch as were fit to be ſent beyond Sea. But afterwards, about the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Time, the Skinners were much diſabled, it being become common for the wealthy Merchants, Engliſh and Strangers, to ſend abroad into the Shires and Counties of the Realm, and draw unto them the Pedlers, Petty Chapmen, and other like Gatherers of Skins, and thereby procured Skins, which they ſent beyond Sea; and ſo ingroſſing them into their Hands, the Skinners were exceedingly hindered in their Trade.

were greatly increaſed; and hence Men were driven to leave off the wearing of ſuch Furs, and betake themſelves to Foreign Commodities, ſoaking away the Wealth of the Nation.

And hence a Controverſy aroſe between the Skinners and the Eaſtland Merchants. The Skinners about the Year 1592, petitioned the Queen, That whereas they were fallen into great Poverty by Reaſon of the ingroſſing and inordinate tranſporting of Coney-Skins; and that thereby they could not have Choice of the beſt Sort for her Majeſty's Service, and her Subjects; no Pedlers or Petty Chapmen might gather or ingroſs any Skins or Furs of the Bread of England, but under Licence of two Juſtices of the Peace of the County where, &c. And that ſuch Licenſed ſhould not make Sale of any ſuch Skins or Furs ſo gathered by them, but to ſome Perſons known to be of the Trade of the Skinners; and that all others might be reſtrained to buy and tranſport them. The Company of Eaſtland Merchants required, on the other Hand, to have free Licence to buy, provide and engroſs, in any Place whatſoever, and of all Perſons, all Manner of Coney-Skins, raw or tawed, and at their Pleaſure to tranſport them, in any Bottom whatſoever, unto any Place, yielding the ordinary Cuſtom.

The Mayor and Aldermen wrote a Letter to the Lord Treaſurer againſt the Skinners Petition; urging, That this Practice of the Skinners, that all the Skins of the Breed of England muſt firſt paſs through the Hands and Property of ſome Freeman of that Company, before they ſhould be tranſported, would be to the exceeding great Prejudice, not only of the Liberty of the City, but of all other Traders into Foreign Parts, within this whole Realm. And the Patent being ready drawn by the Advice of the learned Council, and in great Forwardneſs to be ſigned by the Queen, they pray'd the Lord Treaſurer to be a Means to ſtay the ſame, 'till ſuch Time as he ſhould be better informed, touching the great Inconveniencies which would grow thereby; for which Purpoſe they had appointed certain of the Aldermen, and others, to attend upon him.

This Company are Patrons and Governors of an eminent Free-School at Tunbridge, in the County of Kent, founded by Sir Andrew Judd, a Skinner, ſome Time Mayor of LONDON; which, upon ſome Trouble and Doubt, was afterwards confirmed by Parliament. The brief Account whereof was as follows, taken from an authentick Paper.

The Reasons and Occasions whereupon the Acte preferred for the Companye of Skynners is grounded.

SIR Andrew Judd, carrying a Minde to erecte a Schole at Tunbridge, and to endowe the ſame with ſome competent Maintenance, did to ſuche Purpoſe withe his owne proper Money, purchaſe divers Lands, in the Name of himſelf and one Henrye Fiſher, whome he put in Truſt to ſee the Worke perfected, yf himſelf ſholde fortune to be prevented by Deathe.

Kinge Edwarde the Sixte gave Licence by his Letters Patents for the Founding of the ſaid Schole; and that the Maſter, Wardens and Comminaltie of the Myſterye of Skinners of LONDON ſhal be the Governoures of the Poſſeſſion, Revenues, and Goods of the Free Grammar Schole of Sir Andrew Judd, Knight, in the Towne of Tunbridge, in the Countye of Kent.

For the Endowmente of this Schole Sir Andrew Judd afterwards did, by his laſt Will, to ſuche expreſſe Uſe, bequeathe to the Companye of Skynners, the Lands ſo as aforeſaid purchaſed. And in that Bequeſt uſed the ſaide Companye, by the Name of Maſter and Wardens of the Fraternitye of Corpus Chriſti, of the Crafte or Myſtery of Skynners of LONDON.

The ſaid Henrye Fiſher, to accompliſh the ſaid Will, did graunte and aſſigne the ſaid Lands to the ſaid Companye, to the ſaid Uſes; as alſo certen other Lands of his owne to other godlie Uſes. And in this Conveyance uſed the ſaid Companye, by the Name of Maſter, Wardens and Comminaltie of the Myſterye of Skinners of LONDON, Governours of the Poſſeſſions, Revenews and Goods of the Free Grammar Schole of Sir Andrew Judd, Knight, in the Towne of Tunbridge.

Henrye Fiſher deceaſing, one Andrew Fiſher, his Sonn, endevored to impeache the ſaid Conveyances, under Pretence of a former Conveyance from his ſaid Father: But the ſame being ſifted and examined in Parliament, in the 14th Year of her Majeſtie's Reigne, was, togeather with the Enrollement and Exemplifications thereof, ordeyned to be voide of all Lands aſſured for the Maintenance of the ſaid Schole, and in that Acte the Companye is uſed by the Name of Maſter, Wardens and Comminaltie of the Skynners of LONDON.

Sithence whiche Acte, and in Contempt therof, the ſaid Andrew Fiſher hathe endeavored nowe verie latelye to ſtripp the ſaid Schole and Companye of the ſaid Lands, under Pretence that the ſaid Companye was not rightlie mentioned by the ſtricte Name of theire verie Incorporation, neither towching themſelves nor the ſaid Schole.

For the Relief wherof the ſaid Companye exhibiting theire Bill by the Conſent of the ſaid Andrew Fiſher, to the Lower Houſe of this Honourable Seſſion of Parliament, yt pleaſed the Committies therof (wherof diuers weare learned in the Lawes) to take greate Paynes in peruſing and conſidering the Premiſſes, and of the Original and Mayne Charter: And thereuppon theye, as ſeemed beſt to theire Wiſdomes and Gravities, did conforme the ſame Statute in the Manner as nowe it is.

Whearein theye do efirſte publiſhe and declare, that the trewe Name of the Incorporation of the Skynners to purchaſe or to graunte, hathe been, is and ſhal be, Maiſter and Wardens and Brothers and Siſters of the Guilde or Fraternitie of the Skynners of LONDON, to the Honor of God and the pretious Boddye of our Lorde Iheſus Chriſt (whiche indeede is the verie trewe, mayne and original Incorporation.)

And that the trewe Name of the Incorporation (towching the ſaid Schole) made and created by the foreſaid Letters Patents of King Edwarde the Sixte, hathe beene, is and ſhal be Gouernoures of the Poſſeſſions, Revenewes and Goods of the Free Grammar Schole of Sir Andrew Judd, Knight, in the Town of Tunbridge, in the Countye of Kent.

And thereuppon doe enacte, That all the Letters Patents, Deedes, Wrightings, Aſſuraunces and Conveyances and Acte of Parliament aforementioned, ſhal be good and effectual. And the ſaid Corporation of Skynners ſhall by that theire trewe Name, haue and enjoye all Lands, Tenements, &c. aſſured, mentioned or intended to bee aſſured or conveyed unto them by any Name or Names whatſoeuer other then concerning the ſaid Schole: And ſhall by the ſaid proper Title of Incorporation, concerning the ſaid Schole, haue and enioye all the Lands, Tenements, &c. convayed, or mentioned or intended to be aſſured or convayed unto them by any the Letters Patents, Wrightings, Conveyances or Act of Parliament before-mentioned, by any Name or Names whatſoeuer.

And that theire ſholde none be uniuſtlye preiudiced by this Acte, there is conteyned a ſaving to the Queen's Maieſtie and euerye Perſon and Boddye Corporate of all Eſtate, Right, Title and Intereſt, other then for or by Reaſon of any miſtaking or miſnaming, or not trowe naming of either of the ſaid Names of Incorporation (whiche is the Thing ment and intended to be holpen and relieued by this Acte.)

The Acte contayneth alſo a ſpecial Proviſo, That as it iuſtifiethe all Graunts made to the ſaid Companys of Skynners, ſo all Leaſes, Tearmes, Aſſurances, Acte or Thing, made or graunted by them in Reſpecte of either of the ſaid Incorporations by any Name or Names whatſoever, ſhal be good, according to the trowe Meaning of the ſame, notwithſtanding any miſtaking, miſnaming or not trewe naming of either of the ſaid Incorporations.

Stow inſerts the following, which, he ſays, was an authentick Catalogue of the Benefactors to this Company, with their reſpective Gifts for the Uſes of Godlineſs and Charity, being made about the Year 1588; and was very probably drawn up for the Satisfaction of Queen Elizabeth, in order to ſtop the Purpoſe of ſuch, as had gotten Commiſſions from her for concealed Lands, that had been given to ſuperſtitious Uſes.

THE Hall of this Company is situated on Dowgate-hill, handsomely built since the Fire of LONDON; wherein, for the Convenience of it, the Lord Mayors sometimes keep their Mayoralties; and, of late Years, the East-India Company have occupied a Part of it, for which they pay 300 l. per Ann.

THE Skinners is a rich Company; they take no Quarteridge; it is the sixth of the twelve chief Companies; there have been above 30 Lord Mayors of this Company; they have been likewise honoured by having of their Fraternity six Kings, five Queens, one Prince, nine Dukes, two Earls and a Baron.

FOR a farther Account of the Benefactions entrusted to the Skinners, see the first Chapter of this Book, Page 34.

MERCHANT-TAYLORS.

THE first Patent of these Arms were granted by Sir Thomas Holme, Knt. Clarencieux King of Arms, to the Company of Taylors and Linen-Armourers, in the 21st Year of King Edward IV. Anno Dom. 1480; and since then incorporated by King Henry VII. by the Name of the Men of the Art and Mystery of Merchant-Taylors, of the Fraternity of St. John Baptist in LONDON, &c. by Letters Patents bearing Date the 18th Year of his Reign. And after, the same Arms and Crest were confirmed by Thomas Wriothesly, Knt. Ann. 22 Hen. VIII. under their Hands and Seals of Arms. Then being somewhat altered, with a new Crest and Supporters granted by Robert Cook, Clarencieux, confirmed under his Hand, and the Seal of his Office, dated Dec. 23, 1586, and 29 Regin. Eliz.

THE Arms are: Argent, a Tent Royal, between two Parliament Robes Gules, lined Ermin, on a Chief Azure a Lion of England. Crest; a Holy Lamb in Glory proper. Supporters; two Camels, Or.

THE Merchant-Taylors are a numerous and very rich Company, compoſed of Merchants, Drapers, Taylors, and ſome other Trades, and are governed by a Maſter, four Wardens, and about forty Aſſiſtants; there are 485 on the Livery; the Livery Fine is 15 l.

Thomas Sutton, Citizen and Taylor of LONDON, by his Will dated May 25, 1432, gave to the Company of Taylors, Omnia illa tenta. terr. ſolar. una cum Wharva juxta aquam Thamiſiæ, in the Pariſh of St. James Garlickhith, in a certain Lane called Greſſyngham-lane, as they lie in Length from Thames-ſtreet to the Water of Thames: To have to the Maſter of the Fraternity and Cuſtodes of the ſame, and to their Succeſſors for ever: To relieve and maintain the poor Brothers and Siſters of the ſame Fraternity, to pray devoutly for his Soul in perpetuum.

HE gave alſo to the ſaid Company all his Lands and Tenements in the Pariſh of Trinity the Leſs, ſituate between a Tenement, formerly belonging to John Coſyn, on the Weſt, and a Lane called Trinity-lane on the Eaſt, and extend to Knightrider-ſtreet on the North. To have to the Increaſe of the Alms of the ſaid Fraternity.

THE Hall of this Company is ſituate in Threadneedle-ſtreet, conſumed in the great Fire, magnificently rebuilt.

July 16, 1607, (the Day of Election of Maſter and Wardens of the Merchant-Taylors Company, that uſed to be kept with great Solemnity and Feaſting) King James I. with Prince Henry and divers Honourable Perſonages, dined at Merchant-Taylors Hall, and were entertained with great Variety of Muſick, Vocal and Inſtrumental, and Speeches. The King dined in the Chamber here, called the King's Chamber. Then the Maſter of the Company, John Swinnerton, attended with the four Wardens, and other eminent Aldermen and Citizens, after a Speech congratulatory made to him by Sir Henry Montague, Recorder, preſented him with a Purſe of Gold: And Richard Langley, Clerk of the Company, deliver'd unto his Majeſty a Roll, wherein were enter'd the Names of ſuch Kings and Nobles, and other great Perſons that had been Free of their Company, viz. Seven Kings, one Queen, ſeventeen Princes and Dukes, two Dutcheſſes, one Archbiſhop, thirty-one Earls, five Counteſſes, one Viſcount, twenty-four Biſhops, ſixty-ſix Barons and Lords, two Ladies, ſeven Abbots, ſeven Priors, and one Sub-prior, omitting a Number of Knights, Eſquires, &c. The King then ſaid, that he was Free of another Company, yet he would ſo much grace the Company of Merchant-Taylors, that his eldeſt Son the Prince ſhould be Free thereof; and that he would ſee and be a Witneſs, when the Garland ſhould be put upon his Head. And then they reſorted unto the Prince, who dined in the Great Hall; and the Company preſented him with another Purſe full of Gold; and the Clerk deliver'd his Roll. And his Highneſs ſaid, That not only himſelf would be Free of the Company, but many other of his Lords, and commanded one of his Gentlemen and the Clerk of the Company, to go to all the Lords preſent, and to require them that loved him, and were not Free of other Companies, to be Free of his Company: And ſo were accordingly made Free twenty-two Earls and Lords, and a great many other Knights and Eſquires; and of the Clergy, Dr. Montague, Dean of the Chapel, and Adam Newton, Dean of Durham, and the Prince's Tutor, and three Noblemen of the Low-Countries, Ambaſſadors to the King; viz. John Berke, Lord in Godſchalk Coort, Counſellor of Dort; Sir John de Maldere, Knt. Lord of Heyes, &c. and Chancellor of Zealand: Sir Noel de Caron, Knt. Lord of Schoonwel, &c. Ambaſſador Ledger from the States. The Names of ſome of the Engliſh Nobles, that had their Freedoms of this Company granted them at this Time, were, the Duke of Lenox, the Earl of Nottingham, Lord Admiral; the Earl of Suffolk, Lord Chamberlain; the Earl of Salisbury, Principal Secretary to the King; and ſeveral other Knights and Gentlemen, Scotch and Engliſh.

THERE have been about 18 Lord Mayors of this Company. For the principal Benefactions and Charities entruſted to them, ſee the firſt Chapter of this Book, Pages 34, 35.

HABERDASHERS.

THE Haberdaſhers, or Hurrers, (as called of old Time) were incorporated a Brotherhood of St. Catharine, in the twenty-ſixth Year of King Henry VI. Anno 1447. [There was alſo Fraternitas S. Nicolai de Haberdaſher.] They were confirmed in the ſeventeenth Year of King Henry VII. Anno 1501, and named Merchant-Haberdaſhers. Their Arms were antient; Creſt and Supporters granted to them by Robert Cook, Clarencieux, King at Arms, by Patent under his Hand and Seal, dated November 8, 1570, and 12 Eliz. and confirmed at the Viſitation in 1634. Henry Andrews, one of the Aldermen, Maſter. In the Book of which Viſitation, the Creſt is without an Helmet.

THE Arms are: Barry Nebule of Six, Argent and Azure, on a Bend Gules, a Lion paſſant guardant, Or. Creſt; on a Helmet and Torſe, two Arms ſupporting a Laurel proper, and iſſuing out of a Cloud Argent. Supporters; two Indian Goats Argent, attired and hoofed, Or.

THE Haberdaſhers are governed by a Maſter, four Wardens, and 90 on the Court of Aſſiſtants. There are about 330 on the Livery. Their Livery Fine is 25 l. They may each take two Apprentices.

THE Haberdaſhers have alſo been called Milliners, ſo named from Milan in Italy, whence the Commodities they dealt in chiefly came; ſuch were Owches, Brooches, Agglets, Spurs, Caps, Glaſſes, &c.

AMONG other Small Wares ſold by them, were Pins; which Strangers alſo brought in formerly to the Value of 60,000 l. a Year. But about the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, Pins began to be made at Home; and in K. James the Firſt's Time, the Engliſh excelled all Nations in making all Sorts of them.

THEIR Shops made a very gay Shew, by the various Foreign Commodities they were furniſhed with. And by the purchaſing them, the People of LONDON, and of other Parts of England, began to ſpend extravagantly; whereof great Complaints were made among the graver Sort. There were but a few of theſe Milliners Shops in the Reign of King Edward VI. not above a Dozen Dozen in all LONDON. But within forty Years after, about the Year 1580, from the City of Weſtminſter along to LONDON, every Street became full of them. Some of the Wares ſold by theſe Shop-keepers were, Gloves made in France or Spain, Kerſies of Flanders Dye, French Cloth, or Frizado, Owches, Brooches, Agglets made in Venice or Milan, Daggers, Swords, Knives, Girdles of the Spaniſh Make, Spurs made at Milan, French or Milan Caps, Glaſſes, painted Cruſes, Dials, Tables, Cards, Balls, Puppets, Penners, Inkhorns, Toothpicks, Silk Bottoms and Silver Bottoms, fine Earthen Pots, Pins and Points, Hawks Bells, Saltſellers, Spoons, and Diſhes of Tin: Which made a Shew in the Paſſengers Eyes, that they could not but gaze on them, and buy ſome of theſe Knicknacks, tho' to no Purpoſe neceſſary. Of which Trade and Trifles, a Writer, in the Middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, makes this Complaint: "I "mervail no Man taketh Heed to it, what "Number of Trifles cometh hither from beyond "the Seas, that we might either clean ſpare, or "elſe make them within our Realm: For which "we either pay ineſtimable Treaſure every Year, "or elſe exchange ſubſtantial Wares and Neceſ-"ſary for them: For the which we might receive "great Treaſure.

THE Hall belonging to this Company is ſituated in Maiden-lane near Wood-ſtreet. It is a good Brick Building, particularly that Room called the Hall, is very neat and lofty, paved with Marble and Purbeck, wainſcotted about twelve Feet high; and the Screen at the Weſt End, where are two arched Apertures, is adorned with Pilaſters of the Corinthian Order, with Enrichments; and round the Hall are ſeveral Coats of Arms: There were likewiſe the Pictures of theſe Perſons in full Proportion, ſet up in grateful Memory of their great Benefactions, and theſe Inſcriptions underneath, viz.

WILLIAM ADAMS, Eſquire.

A worthy Member of this Company, Founder of the Free Grammar-School and Alms-houſes at Newport, in the County of Salop. The Government whereof he committed to the Care of this Company.

THOMAS ALDERSEY, Merchant.

A worthy Member of this Company, born at Bunbury in Cheſhire; who in the eighteenth Year of Queen Elizabeth, purchaſed from the Crown the great and ſmall Tithes of that Pariſh; which, with other Houſes and Lands there purchaſed, he ſettled on this Company, Anno Dom. 1594, to theſe Uſes, viz.

To the School-maſter	20	00	00
To the Uſher	10	00	00
To the Poor	10	00	00

And made Statutes for the better Government of the Benefaction: Which he committed to the Care of the Company.

WILLIAM JONES, Merchant-Adventurer,

And free of the Company of Haberdaſhers, gave 18000 l. for Charitable Uſes: Moſt of which he committed to the Care of this Company.

ROBERT ASKE, Eſquire,

A worthy Member of the Company of Haberdaſhers, Founder of the Hoſpital of Hoxton, in the Pariſh of St. Leonard Shoreditch, for twenty poor ſingle Freemen, and twenty poor Freemens Sons of the Company, to be taught here gratis. The Government whereof he appointed to the Company. Ætat. ſuæ 74.

THERE have been twenty-four Lord Mayors of this Company. For a farther Account of the Benefactions entruſted to the Haberdaſhers, ſee Chap. I. of this Book, Page 36.

SALTERS.

THE Company of Salters was incorporated, and had their Arms granted in the twenty-ſecond Year of King Henry VIII. Anno Domini 1530; the latter by Thomas Benoit, Clarencieux. The Creſt and Supporters by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, in the 29th of Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1587. Approved at the Viſitation, Anno 1634, Richard Denham, then Maſter.

THEIR Arms are: Per Chevron Azure and Gules, three covered Salts, Or, ſpringling Salt proper. Creſt; on a Helmet and Torſe iſſuing out of a Cloud Argent; a ſiniſter Arm proper holding a Salt as the former. Supporters; two Otters Argent plattee, gorged with Ducal Coronets, thereto a Chain affixed and reflected over their Loins, Or.

THIS Company conſiſts of a Maſter, two Wardens, 28 Aſſiſtants, and 140 on the Livery, beſides Yeomanry. The Livery Fine is 20 l.

THEIR Hall ſtands in Swithin's-lane, near St. Swithin's Church. There have been ten Lord Mayors of this Company. For the Benefactions and Charities under their Care, ſee Chapter I. of this Book, Page 37.

IRONMONGERS.

THE Ironmongers were incorporated in the third Year of King Edward IV. An. Dom. 1462, and their Arms firſt granted by Lancaſter, King at Arms, Marſhal to Clarencieux, King at Arms, Anno Dom. 1455; and the 34th Year of

of the Reign of King Henry VI, unto the Honourable Craft and Myſtery of Ironmongers. Thomas Benoit confirmed the ſame Arms by ſubſcribing his own Name to the former Patent, 22 Henry VIII. William Harvey, Clarencieux, reciting, That the Arms granted by Lancaſter were not granted by good Authority, did ratify and confirm the ſame again, Anno 1560, 2 Eliz. and were again ratified 1634; at which Time Mr. Thomas Thorold was Maſter.

THE Arms are: Argent, on a Chevron Gules between three Gads of Steel Azure; as many Pair of Shackles, Or. Creſt; on a Helmet and Torſe, two Lizards Combatant proper, chained and collar'd, Or. No Supporters.

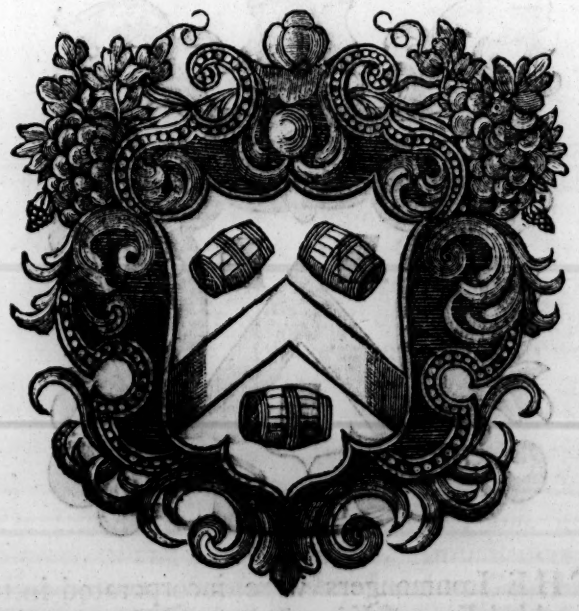
THIS Company conſiſts of a Maſter, two Wardens, and 100 Aſſiſtants, being all that are upon the Livery, beſides Yeomanry. The Livery Fine is 15 l. 12 s. and that for Steward 16 l.

THERE was a Complaint about the Year 1300 of the Ferones, (that is, of ſuch as dealt in Iron) made to Elias Ruſſell, Mayor, and the Aldermen, for that the Smiths of the Wealds, and other Merchants, bringing down Irons of Wheels for Carts, to the City of LONDON, they were much ſhorter than antiently was accuſtomed, to the great Loſs and Scandal of the whole Trade of Ironmongers; and requiring Remedy upon this. Whereupon an Inquiſition was taken of lawful and honeſt Men; who preſented three Iron Rods of the juſt and antiently uſed Length of the Strytes, and alſo of the Length and Breadth of the Gropes belonging to the Wheels of the Carts. Which Rods were ſealed with the Seal of the Chamber of Guildhall, LONDON; whereof one remains in the ſaid Chamber; and another Rod was delivered on the Monday before the Purification of the Virgin Mary, Anno 29 Ed. I. to John Dode, and Robert de Padington, Ironmongers of the Market: And the third was delivered the ſame Monday to John de Wymondeham, Ironmonger of the Bridge. All which, from Day to Day, warned the Merchants bringing theſe Iron-works to the City of LONDON, as well from the Wealds, as elſewhere, that they ſhould not henceforward bring ſuch Irons, unleſs of the Length and Breadth aforeſaid, upon Forfeiture of the ſaid Iron-works, that ſhould be found againſt the Aſſize aforeſaid.

THE Hall of this Company is in Fenchurch-ſtreet, and had the good Fortune to eſcape the great Fire.

THERE have been about 15 Lord Mayors of this Company. For the Benefactions entruſted to the Ironmongers, ſee the firſt Chapter of this Book, Pages 37, 38.

VINTNERS.



THE Vintonners were incorporated in the Reign of King Ed. III. Anno Dom. 1340, by the Name of the Wine-Tonners, and confirmed in the 15th Year of Henry VI. Anno Dom. 1436. Their Arms were firſt granted by Clarencieux, in the 6th Year of King Henry VI. Anno Domini 1427.

THE Account above is given by Anthony Monday; but Strype ſays this is falſe in many Particulars; for that Grant of King Edward III. was not for the incorporating them, but only for the Regulation of the Trade, and for the Hinderance of any other to deal in Gaſcoigne Wines, but ſuch alone as were enfranchiſed in the Craft of Vintry. Nor were they called any where in that King's Letters by the Name of Wine-Tonners, but Vinteners, and Merchants-Vintners, and Merchants of Vintrie. Nor was their ſuppoſed Corporation confirmed by King Henry VI. but he only confirmed and ratified the Contents of the Letters of King Edward III. as will be ſeen by and by. Nor did this pretended Confirmation bear Date in the 15th of that King but the 8th of November, in the 6th of his Reign. Nor, laſtly, were the Vintners Arms granted in the 6th of Henry VI. but, as appears by a Viſitation Book of the Heralds, were granted them by Clarencieux, under the Hand and Seal of his Arms and Office, the 17th of September 1447, and in the 20th of Henry VI. which were afterwards confirmed by Thomas Benoit, Clarencieux, October 22, in his Viſitation in the 22d of Henry VIII. and again in the Viſitation of LONDON 1634, approved and confirmed by Sir Henry St. George, Knt. Richmond Herald; at which Time Richard Davis was Maſter, Robert Shaw, Robert Child, and Philip Travers, Wardens.

THE Vintners are govern'd by a Maſter, three Wardens, and 62 Aſſiſtants; there are 253 on the Livery; their Livery Fine is about 25 l.

Richard Mervail, Citizen and Vintner of LONDON, by his laſt Will and Teſtament, gave this Company certain Lands and Tenements in the Pariſh of St. Edmund's, Lombard-ſtreet, on Condition that they were incorporated within two Years after. The Will of the ſaid Mervail bore Date the 17th of King Henry VI. ſo that it is preſumed they were incorporated the 19th or 20th of Henry VI. to preſerve to themſelves the ſaid Legacy.

KING Edward VI. granted to Gunter and Hobſon, four Tenements in St. Michael the Querne; three in Foſter-lane; three in Garlickhith, and one in Soper's-lane; which Gunter and Hobſon conveyed the ſame to the Company of Vintners, Anno 2 Edwardi VI.

Botolph Wharf belonged to this Company, by Virtue of a Grant of King Edward I. in the 10th of his Reign, and in the Mayoralty of Henry de Waleys; whereby he gave his ſaid Wharf to Henry de Kingſton, and confirmed it to him for the Uſe of the Company, paying a Silver Penny yearly to the King, at the Feaſt of the Nativity of St. John Baptiſt, for all Services, Cuſtoms, Demands Secular, and all other Things. This Wharf was ſtiled in the ſame Grant, Our Common Key in the Pariſh of St. Botulph next Billingſgate.

Sir John Stody, Knt. ſome Time Mayor, in the Reign of Edward III. gave his Manor in the Vintry to the Company; on Part whereof the Hall now ſtands. This was confirmed to the Company by King Richard III. who in his Grant mentions, that there was an Inquiſition taken at the Guildhall of the City of LONDON, Auguſt 26, 17 Edward IV. before Ralph Joſſelyn, Mayor, Eſcheator in the ſame City, and Suburbs of the ſame, by Virtue of his Office; where it appeared, that John Stody, late of LONDON, Knt. among others, was ſeized of a Manor in the the Ward of Vintry, LONDON, in his Demeſne as of Fee, and held that Manor of King Edward III. in free Burgage.

THIS Company antiently conſiſted of two Sorts of Traders, viz. The Vinetarii, and the Tabernarii; that is, the Vintners, who were the Merchants that imported Wine from France and other Places, and the Taverners, who kept the Taverns for them, and ſold it out by Retail to ſuch as came thither to drink, or fetched it to their own Houſes. Of both theſe Sellers of Wine it was a Complaint as long ago as the Reign of King Edward III. that they mixed and corrupted their Wine, and ſelling that ſo mixed at the ſame Price with the good; which cauſed that King, in the ſecond of his Reign, to ſend his Letters to the Mayor and Sheriffs, to ſee this Abuſe corrected; which was, as the Expreſſion in the ſaid Letter is, to the Scandal of the City, and the Danger of the Lives of the Citizens; and that they ſhould cauſe it to be proclaimed, that no Wine ſhould be ſold but pure and good. The Patent ran to this Tenor:

" —— Rex, &c. i. e. The King to the Maior " and Sheriffs of LONDON, Greeting. Whereas " it is given to us to underſtand, That the Vinte- " ners of the ſame City, and their Taverne-keep- " ers ſelling Wine at Retayl in the ſame City " and Suburbs, do mingle and corrupt Wines with " other Wines, and are not afraid to ſell the " Wines ſo mixt and corrupted at the ſame Price " as they ſell the good and pure; not permitting " Men, drinking in their Taverns, or otherwiſe " buying Wine of them, to look whether the " Wines are drawn out of the Hogſheads into the " Meaſures, or taken elſewhere; to the Scandal " of you and of the Commonalty of the City " aforeſaid, and to the corrupting of the bodily " Health of thoſe that buy Wine by Retail in " the ſame City, and drink in the Taverns, and " the Danger of their Lives: Whereat we are " not without juſt Cauſe offended. We, willing " to prevent theſe Dangers, command you, that " in the ſaid City and Suburbs, in Places where " ye ſhall ſee it expedient, ye do on our Be- " half cauſe it to be publickly proclaimed and " prohibited, that none preſume in any Manner " to mingle ſuch Wines, nor to ſell any mixt, " but good and pure: And that all and ſingular, " drinking Wine in Taverns, or otherwiſe buy- " ing Wine thence, may look as they will, whe- " ther the Wines ſo ſold, as aforeſaid, in Ta- " verns, be drawn out of the Hogſheads, or " taken elſewhere. And if after the foreſaid " Proclamation and Prohibition, ye ſhall find " any doing the contrary, ye ſo puniſh them, " by levying a Forfeit upon them for our Uſe, " that that Puniſhment may terrify others from " offending in the like Caſe; and that we, for " your Default, may have no Need to lay on " heavier Hands for the regulating of this " Matter.

Witneſs the King at Weſtminſter, the 28th Day of November.

THESE Vintners were antiently Wine-Merchants, that traded chiefly in importing Wine, brought from Gaſcoigne, and ſelling it here to the Court and Nobility, or to the Retailers that kept Taverns in LONDON and elſewhere.

GREAT Numbers of Perſons then and ſtill depending upon theſe Vintners, as Shipwrights and Mariners, and others that live by the Navy; Retailers, Lightermen, Porters, Coopers, (for great Numbers of Casks are uſed in this Calling) Wharfingers, Carmen, together with thoſe that were concerned in letting of Warehouſes, Cellars and Vaults: All which, with their Wives, Families and Servants, amounted to a vaſt Number of Souls.

THIS Company had an antient Charter from King Edward III. dated June 15, in the 38th of his Reign, to prevent and forbid any Merchants to trade for Wine to Gaſcoigne, but only ſuch as were free of this Craft of Vintners; whereas before many others did, carrying over their Wares and Commodities, as Cloth and other Things of the Growth of England, into that Country, and bringing home their Wines: Whereby Injury redounded to this Company, and alſo the Gaſcoigners held up their Wines at dearer Rates, ſince there came ſuch Numbers to buy. And whereas before the Gaſcoigners were at the Charge of bringing in their Wines hither, now the Merchants of England brought them in at their own Expences; which was look'd upon as Harm to the King and the Realm. The King therefore henceforth allowed only thoſe that were enfranchiſed in the Craft of the Vintners to buy Wine beyond Sea, and trade in it: And commanded that the Gaſcoigners, when they brought in their Wines, ſhould not ſell them in ſmall Parcels, but in great by the Ton or Pipe: Moreover, this Company was to appoint four able skilful Perſons, of their own Myſtery, to be ſworn before the Mayor, to overſee all Manner of Wines ſold by Retail at Taverns, and that their Prices were reaſonable. This Charter of King Edward III. Anno 1363, was inſpected and confirmed by King Henry VI. in the 6th of his Reign, that is, Anno 1427, being intended that the Merchants Vintners ſhould trade to Bourdeaux, to reſtrain the Multitude, that was thought to be the Occaſion why the Prices of Wines were then enhanced. And this being a Piece of Antiquity, and tending to the antient Privileges of this Company, it will be worthy to be here exemplified.

WINE CRAFT of VINTRY.

The Vintners CHARTER from King Edward III. that none Trade to Gaſcoine for Wines but the Merchants of the Vintrie, confirmed by King Henry.

HENRY, by the Grace of God King of England, and of Fraunce, and Lorde of Irlond. To all hem that theis preſentz Lettres ſhall come. Greting. We have byholdin thes Lettres Patentz of Sir Edwarde, ſum Tyme Kyng of Englond, our Progenitor, made in this Wordis; Edward by the Grace of God King of Engloind, Lord of Irlohd, and of Guyen, to all that ſhall ſeen theis Lettres. Greeting. Wit ye ymonge othir Thinges ordeigned at the laſt Parlement, ther in the ſame Parlement by certeins Cauſes was ordeigned, that no Merchant Engleis ne uſe Mercery, nether Merchandiſes by him nor by non othir by no Manere of Compaignie bot oone alloon, the which he wil choſe by fore the Feſt of Candlemas laſt paſſed. And thos that have in Hondes other Mercery and Merchandiſes than this that they have choſen ther, thei ſhall mowe put to Sale by fore the Feſt of Natiuite of Seint Jonn of Baptiſt next to come, as in the ſaied Ordinances it is conteignid more plainly. And ther was ſhewid to vs and to oure Counſeill, howe ther was noght in Gaſcoigne noon othir Merchandiſes to Profit till oure Kingdomm of Englond bot alloonly Wyns. And the Merchantz and othir in the Contre underſtanding well that Merchantz Engleis comme noght in thes Parties, bot to by Wyns, and for the great Multitude of Folke of diverſes Crafts that commen thedir ther been the Wyns holding and put to ovir by and ovir dere Pris, and alſo by Cauſe that Folke of diverſes Crafts Crafts ſend to Gaſcoigne grete and diverſes Sommes of Money, and of Penyworths, and will noght abyde to ware reſonably their Penyworths, ther they put Pris upon the Wyns by Truk or by Eſchaunges, that amountis till greate exceſſive Somme by Tonne ovir that that the Tonne awght reaſonably to be ſolde. Thurowe whiche Pris therefolyly put the Gaſcoignes ther holde hem on the Yere following. And alſo the Folke that uſen othir Merchandiſes and entremet hem of bying and ſellinge of Wynes noght needful to ſell their Wyns bot at their awne Wil, and maye not be rewlyd of the ſame Merchandiſes, and of thois that lyven alloon of Merchandiſes of Wyns. And for as michil that the Wyns commyn to diverſes Handys, in ſo michil they bene more dere. And alſo when that Vintners of Englond, in old Tyme paſſid into Gaſcoigne to ſeke Wyn, than was the Naveie well maintenyd. And than wer Wyns boght at good Adviſement, and reaſonable Pris. And ther wher the Engleis myght noght ſuffire to bringe into Englond, the Gaſcoignes led him. So that the Lond than was well ſervid of Wyns, and of Peniworths uppon the bying of the ſame Wynes ther by the Multitude of diverſes Folke that have paſſid by longe Tyme to ſeek Wyns in Gaſcoigne, the Folke of the Crafte of the Vintry be and have been diſtourbed, that they may noght by Wynes at reaſonable Pris, and therefore the Gaſcoignes may ſell their Wynes at ſo greate Pris in ther Countrie, that they have no Charge to com nor travaille of this half the See with ther Wynes unto grete Harme to us and to al oure Roialme. We underſtandyng the ſaide Thinges by aſſent of the grete and othir of oure Counceille to mayntene and ſave the ſaide Ordinance, have ordeynyd and graunt that no Merchant nor no nothir of our ſaid Roialme uſe not in Gaſcoigne, nor els wher by yonde the See to by Wynes, nor to lede until Englond, nor uſe noghte, nor haunte Merchandiſes of Wynes nor entermete noght the ſame, That is to ſay, in LONDON, but alloonly thei that been enfrancheſid in the Crafte of Vynetrie ther and in other Citees, Burghs and Townes that been willing and conyng of the ſame Craft. To whom be it leefful to ſeke Wyns by yonde the See, and lede un to Englond, and to ſee their owen Wynes in grete or at Reateille to Lordis, and till other aſſiem beſt lyſt for ther Profit for reaſonable Pris and Wynnyng. And alſo we will, that Merchantz of Gaſcoigne, and othir Eſtraunges and Foreyns of ther owne Wyne which they bring to Englond ſel in grete by, Tonnes and Pipes and noght of Reateille nor by littill Parcelles, to Lordis and till othir Folke of Commons for their Store and Diſpenſes in ther owene Houſeoldes, and to the ſaid Merchantz Vintners that wil by hem. And that none Privie nor Eſtraunge aftir that he have brought Wyns in til oure ſaide Roialme of Englond, lede non owt of the ſaid Roialme by any Color, with owting ſpeciale leue of us. And at the ſaied Merchantz of the Crafte of Merchandiſe of Wyns choſe iche Yere four Perſons of the moſt ſufficient, moſt trewe, and moſt coning of the ſame Craft, that holden no Taverne, and him preſent to the Mair of the Citee of LONDON, or other Citees, Burghs and Townes wher ſicke Crafte of Vintrie is uſed, or to Baillif or Preſident ther wher is no Mair, and by theis four Perſons ſworne in the Preſence of Mair, Baillif or Preſident, to ovir ſe, that al Maner of Wyns, what ſe ever they be, be ſolde at Retaille in Taverne, at reaſonable Pris, for ſhicke Wyn, and of ſiche Condition als they been knawyng and namyd; and that Taverners be rulyd by the ſaid foure Perſons, and that the ſame foure Perſons maye correct and amend the Defauters that ſhall be founden in the Exerciſe of the ſame Craft, and duly Puniſhment thereof to make, by their good Advis and Conſideration, and if miſt be with the Help of Mair or Preſident, and to that Eend that leſſe of Money pas out of our Roialme; and that the Money be more kepid and holdyn in the ſame, We wil and geve Leve to this ſaid Merchantz-Vintners of Englond that thei may by Cloth; and to the Merchantz of Gaſcoigne, ledyng Wyns in to Englond, that they mowe by dry Fiſhe of the Shires of Cornewalle and Devenſhire, Haring and Cloth by all our Kingdom, wher it lykys hem, and to lede out of oure Roialme un to the Parties of Gaſcoigne and els wher un to the ſame Parties to ſel thereto their Proffits and thos Penyes that commys thereof, to by Wyns ther, and to lede until oure ſayd Roialme to ſel ther of to hir Profit with out yn Deſturbance; ſo that thei ſel ne make to be ſold by them ne by no nothir Cloth, Fiſhe, ne Haryng in our Roialme of Englond nor ells wher, bot in thos Parties of Gaſcoigne and in othir Parties by yonde the See, nor that Gaſcoignes nor non othir Foreins nor Eſtraungers ſel no Wyns in Englond at Reteille ne by Parcels, bon en grete by Tonnes and Pipes, als it is byfore ſaid. And we will alſo that al Manere of Wyns commyng to LONDON be diſcharged and put to Londe above London-bridge ageins the Weſt and ageins the Vinetre, ſo that oure Botiller, oure Gaugers, and Searcheors mowe have Sight and Knawlage of thos Places wher they ſhall been harbard and take Cuſtumes and Prizes, and do that the which appendez to ther Offices, and that no Merchant ne no nothir Denſein nor Forein of what Condition that he be, nothir ſell nor by Wyns, Cloths, Fiſhe, nor Haryng, in non othir Manere than byfore is ſaid upon Paine of Impriſonment and to leſe his Wyns, Cloths, Fiſh and Haryng ther boght and ſolde. And we will that this ſaid Ordenances of Wyns, Cloths, Fiſhe and Haryng in all Citees, Burghs and Tounes, Franchiſeſez, with in our ſaid Roialme, be ſavely holdyn and kepid in all Pointz to thos ſaid Vintners and to ther Succeſſors for evermore in the Forme beforeſaid. In witneſſing of which Thing, we have made to be made this oure Lettres Patentz. Yeuyn at Weſtm' the xv Daye of Juil, the Yere of oure Reigne xxxviii.

We alſo the ſaid Lettres of the ſaid Liberties and Fredoms being yet unrevoked, by Aſſent and Advis of the Lords Spirituall and Temporall and the Commons of oure Roialme of Englond in our Parlement, being holdin at Weſtm' the firſt Yere of oure Reigne, do approve, ratifie, and confirme, according as is reaſonably witneſſed in the ſaid Lettres, and as the ſaied Merchantz of Vinetrie of oure Citie of LONDON, the Liberties, Fredoms, ought to have uſed, or that thei and theyr Predeceſſors theyr lieke Liberties and Fredoms from the Tyme of the making of the ſaid Lettres alweyes hitherto have uſed and enjoyed. In witneſſing whereof we have made to be made this oure Lettres Patents. Witneſſe ourſelf at Weſtm' the viii Dai of Novembre the vije Yere of our Reigne.

By the King and Counceill in the Parliament.

IN the Seventh of Edward VI. there was an Act made concerning the Price of Wines, and for ſtinting the Number of Taverns in each great Town in the Kingdom. By which fourty Taverns or Wine-Cellars only are allowed in LONDON, and three in Weſtminſter. Gaſcoign, Guien, and French Wines to be ſold not above 8 d. the Gallon within any of the King's Dominions; Rochel Wines at 4 d. the Gallon; any other Wines, of no higher Valuation than 12 d. the Gallon.

In the Year 1569, ſeveral Vintners, free of other Companies, and not incorporated of the Vintners, were diſturbed in their ſelling Wine, by Virtue of the aforeſaid Act, the Trade of the Vintners being thereby abridged and ſtraitned to a certain Form, (as they complained) abridging the Liberties and Franchiſes of the great Charter, wherein it is ſaid, Civitas LONDON. habeat omnes Libertates ſuas antiquas, & Conſuetudines ſuas, quas habere conſuevit. And King Edward III. a wiſe and politick Prince, having ever a ſpecial Care, amongſt other Things, unto the due Obſervation of the Liberties of the great Charter of England, did not only by Parliament confirm all the Points of the ſaid Charter, but alſo did enact, that if any Statute were to the contrary, that it ſhould be holden for none. Now one of theſe antient Liberties and Franchiſes was, that every Citizen and Freeman might uſe and occupy what Trade ſoever beſt liked him for his Profit. Notwithſtanding the Trade of Vintners and Wine-ſellers was of late abridged by that Act of Edward VI.

In Conſideration whereof, Queen Mary, that next ſucceeded the ſaid King, by her Charter granted to the Maſter, Wardens and Company of Vintners, a ſpecial Diſpenſation to buy, ſell and utter for a certain Time, in ſuch Sort as they were accuſtomed, according to the antient Liberties, Franchiſes and Cuſtoms of the ſaid City, notwithſtanding the ſame Statute. Yet notwithſtanding the ſaid Charter of Diſpenſation, there were certain Citizens, who being free of other Companies than of the Myſtery of Vintners, and being not remember'd at the obtaining and granting of the ſaid Charter, did, after, upon their humble Suit to the ſaid Queen Mary, obtain and get at her Majeſty's Hands, an eſpecial Grant of Diſpenſation of the ſaid Statute. The which Grant was to endure but for their own Times and no longer.

But ſince which Charter of Diſpenſation, theſe Inconveniencies aroſe, that ſuch as had been Apprentices, and ſpent the beſt Part of their Youth in the Service of ſuch as had occupied the Trade of Wines, coming out of their Years, and being free of ſuch Companies as their Maſters were free of before them, might not by Reaſon of the ſaid Statute uſe the ſame Trade as their Maſters did uſe, while they ſerved them. The which was their utter Undoing; and gave Occaſion of Hindrance unto their Maſters, as that it was now come to paſs, that none would be their Apprentices, by Reaſon that after they were made Freemen, they could not uſe their Maſters Trade. Hereupon a Petition was preferred to Queen Elizabeth, out of her honourable Inclination of Piety, to provide for the Relief of theſe her Subjects, according as their learned Counſel in the Laws of this Realm ſhould deviſe.

Some Perſons in the Year 1594, ſue to the Lord Treaſurer for a new Office of Survey to be erect-for the Gauging of Wines and Oils within the City of LONDON and Liberties; upon Pretence of doing it more faithfully and exactly than the common Gaugers did, to the Wrong of the Subjects, and to have 16 d. a Ton Reward. Concerning this the Lord Treaſurer ſent to the Company of Vintners for their Judgment herein. To which the Maſter, John Pindar, and Ralph Fitche, and Andrew Goodyere, Wardens, gave Anſwer, that they did not find any Neceſſity for ſuch an Office or Officer, eſpecially in or about LONDON, conſidering the good Ordinances were provided for the ſame, in moſt full and ample and ſufficient Manner, as well by her Majeſty's Laws, as by ſolemn Oaths and good Bonds taken of the Gauger, for the due and diligent Execution of his Office: So that they did not know that any Man had or could have juſt Cauſe to complain of any Want of Duty in that Behalf. And in Caſe any Error or Default ſhould be committed by any Gauger, or Seller of Wine or Oil, there was ſo good Remedy already provided by the ſaid Laws, as well for the Gauger, if he gauge not truly, as for the Seller, if he make not Allowance for the Lacks, that the Buyer, if he will, may be ſatisfied to his full Content. And if the Buyer will not take the Remedy by Law, yet he were better to bear ſome Loſs, than to pay after the Rate of 16 d. a Ton, or to attend the Surveyor in his View and Survey thereof to be had, and Entrance made into the Surveyors Books. The Trouble whereof would be ſuch to the Surveyor, as he could in no wiſe be able to perform. For at one Inſtant thirty or forty Bargains are made: So that they thought by this Suit their Charge and Trouble would be encreaſed, and their Loſs no Way redreſs'd.

And if Corruption might be in the Gaugers now in Poſſeſſion, being ſolemnly ſworn, and bound in great Bonds for the due Execution thereof, beſides the Penalty of the Laws, what better Aſſurance might they look for, that the like Corruption be not in the new Surveyor or his Deputies? So they prayed his Lordſhip's favourable Acceptance of their Anſwer from his accuſtomed Goodneſs in maintaining the Charters and Liberties of the City, and reſtraining of this and ſuch like Impoſitions and Innovations; which turned in the End, but to the Burden of her Majeſty's Subjects.

And in another Paper, in Anſwer to the Suitors Objections againſt the preſent Gaugers, they ſhewed that the Laws contained two principal Grounds, as Matter ſufficient for Redreſs of all ſuch Diſorders as might fall out againſt the Proviſion made by them. The one was the Forfeiture of four Double by the Gauger in Default of his Care, Diligence and Truſt: The other, the full Satisfaction the Seller muſt yield to the Buyer in Caſe there be found Want of Number of Meaſures full. If the Buyer ſhould not take the Benefit of the Law for his Remedy, which hath been of Purpoſe provided for him, he is to impute his Loſs to his own Folly, and not to be relieved by Invention of new Offices; for that were an endleſs Work in making of Laws, if every private Head ſhould, upon his Conceit, have new Means of Remedy ſet out for him, whereas there is ſufficient provided before.

In this Matter of Gauging, as in many Caſes of the like Nature in the City, the Survey reſteth in the Lord Mayor, and Guardians of the Charters and Privileges of the City: Whoſe Office is to ſee, that all ſuch Ordinances as are eſtabliſhed for the good Government of the City be duly kept and obſerved for the Good of her Majeſty's Subjects, and the ſupplanting of all Infringers of the ſame. So that in this Caſe to require a Surveyor, is in effect to require a Surveyor of the Lord Mayor's Actions and Carriage of himſelf, and of the Council of the City in their whole Adminiſtration. And by the Statute of 16 Rich. II. Cap. 5. no Searcher or Gauger of Wine, &c. ſhall have Eſtate in his Office for Term of Life, or of Years, but that the ſaid Offices ſhall remain in the King's Hand, under the Governance of the Treaſurer for the Time being, with the Aſſent of the Council, when Need is. And if any Letters Patents be made to the contrary, they ſhall be clearly void, and of none effect.

By the Petition to her Majeſty, all Forfeitures due to her Majeſty by any Statute provided for the true Gauging, and holding of the lawful Aſſizes of Wines, Oils, and other Liquors gaugeable, are ſued for, to be granted by Patent for Years, together with the Office of Surveying the Gauges at the Rent of 50 l. per Ann. and with a Fee of 16 d. upon every Ton. The Penalty of which which Laws, if they were put in Execution, it is moſt certain would be of more Profit to her Majeſty, than were fit to paſs at that Rent; beſides the Fee of the Surveyor would exceed the Gaugers 12 d. upon every Ton.

THE Company of Vintners endeavoured about the Year 1580 and odd, to obtain of the Queen a Licence to ſell Wine for certain Years, and not Durante bene placito, (for then ſuch a Licence might not be revoked;) for which probably they would have given the Queen a large Sum. This the Retailing Vintners were againſt, becauſe it would be the Occaſion of heightening the Price of Wines, which would bring on a Decay of the Trade, and ſo the Subverſion of the Company: Becauſe in Time, none would Care to buy them at ſuch dear Prices; as it was in other Profeſſions through the exceſſive enhauncing of the Prices of Commodities, whereby none were able to purchaſe them; and in the Iſſue, the Queen would loſe her Cuſtoms, and other Duties, the Navy would be weakened, and thoſe that might have lived reaſonably well, be driven to Beggarry, viz. all that Multitude of Callings that had Dependence upon this Trade.

ON the other Side the Company ſaid themſelves, That the Vintners, in former Times, were continual Suitors, 'till the latter End of King Henry VII. his Time, to the Lord Mayor of LONDON, for Reformation of Abuſes in ſelling Wine, in Regard of the Goodneſs of it, and the Reſtitution of the Gauge and Meaſure, who neither could nor would remedy the ſame; whereupon were made Acts of the 28th and 33d of Henry VIII. and the 7th of Edward VI. touching Prices of Wines by Retail and Engroſs, without any Cauſe given therefore by the ſaid mere Vintners: But what good ever ſince by them had enſued, the Heightening the Prices of Wines, and the ſaid Companies utter Undoing taught: As of old Time ſince before King Edward I. until the foreſaid 28th of Henry VIII. his Reign, like Things upon like Occaſions came to paſs, and never were, nor could be redreſs'd, but only through the Policy practiſed by the ſaid Vintners good Ordinance; as by the ſundry Grants made in that Behalf unto them by King Edward III. and alſo by King Henry VI. might appear.

IN theſe Times, about the Middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, ſome Perſons had Licences to ſell and retail Wine, independently upon the Company. And they were commonly ſeen to have kept the moſt diſorderly Houſes; a Remonſtrance was laid before the Lord Treaſurer, by one Lane of the Company, that theſe licenſed Perſons ſhould be brought to Order, being no Innovation or new Invention, as was urged by ſome, which appeared in that they themſelves had ſought by their own Bonds to ſtand bound to the Company to obſerve a certain Order of leſs Importance, which otherwiſe they knew they had no Way to reform. The reducing theſe licenſed Men would be great Cauſe, as he urged, of avoiding Whoredom, Dancing, Dicing, and Banqueting of Apprentices, Serving-Men, and ſuch like, daily uſed in Taverns, with the better Obſervation of Days preſcribed to be faſted on. And touching the ſaid Company, it would avoid exceſſive Income and Rents, whereby many had been under, and all unjuſt Quarrelling at the Law, and all Foreſtalling and Regrating; and that the Order for decent Apparel might be obſerved and uſed; and the over heightening the Prices of any Commodities, whereby Men became Bankrupts, ſhould be remedied.

THERE were certain antient Ordinances for the Government both of the Merchant Vinteners and Vinteners Retailers, viz.

For the MERCHANTS.

THAT ſix Perſons, being Vintners, ſholn be Governors and Counſillors to al Vintners, and to al Vintners Attorneys that ſhullun paſs the Seas to Bourdeaux. That after they have landyd and ben there two Days, and partely underſtoode of the Likelehode of the Prices, that or (i. e. ere) eny buy, they al meet and take Ordere what every Man ſholn gyve, and none to excede, upon Payne to forf to the King xx l. and xx l. to the Felowſhip; and who that can eſpie eny doing the contrarie, be it Maſter or Servant, ſhal have to tell (i. e. pay) twenty Nobles for his Travell. That none make no Servant, no Broker, no Man, Woman, or Child, to buy Wine above that Pryce, upon the Payne aforeſaid. And in Caſe any happen to come upon other, when they have byn taking, that leſt they ſhould thereby highen the Market, they do a avoid. And if after the firſt Seer be gon, and culde not agree, the ſecond happen afterward to buy; yet if it were the Wines of the firſt Seer's Cuſtomer, he ſhall have half the Wyne notwithſtonding of the Buyer, &c.

For the RETEYLOURS.

TH' Othe of the four Wardens of the Vintners Reteylours is, wel and truly to rule the Company, and to keep th' Ordinaunces that for the Commonwele are or ſhullen be made, and duely to put them in Execution, doing alweye Evynhode as well to the Poore as to the Riche,

Th' Othe of the Freeman is, To be true to the King and his Laws, obedient to the Wardeins and Ordenaunces, to keep good Rule, to obey al Summons, and to pay al Duties after their Power.

Th' Ordinaunce to be rede every Yere twice, viz. at the going to Bourdeaux, and at the Beginning of Lent.

The Companie when new Wyne is, ſhal from the Ryding of the Mayor unto Eaſter Day, aſſemble every Fortnight, to let al Diſorder, in gredy running and buying of Wines; which if any ſhullen do contrary ther Orders therin, he ſhal pay for every Fault ten Mark.

None ſhal colour Straungers Goods to t' Hurt of the King's Cuſtomes, or highening of the Pryce of Wynes.

None ſhal ſel Wynes tyl the Wardeins have given them the Pryce, upon Payne to forfeit 6 s. 8 d. for every Gallon ſo ſold.

None ſhal utter one Wyne inſted of another, upon Paine for every Offence to pay xx s.

None of any other Companie ſhal uſe Wynes, except he firſt be ſworn t' obey al the Vintners Ordinaunces, whileſt he ſhal occupie.

None ſhal diſcover any Talk, that, concerning the highening of Wynes to be abatyd, ſhal by eny Perſon be gyven or counſilled, upon Payne of xx l.

Item, That eight Perſons onely of the ſaid Company, being of beſt Experience, were alweys of old Tyme appointed to taſt and buy al Maner of Wynes, after they were brought over, and had byn cellared three Days: So that none after did excede the Pryces by them made, upon grete Penalties to be payed, which cauſed good cheap.

ABOUT 170 Years ago, the whole Number of mere Vintners, and ſuch as ſold Wine by Retail in LONDON, amounted to 128, as appeared by a Paper given in, in the Year 1564, by the Company.

CLOTHWORKERS.

THE Clothworkers had their Arms firſt granted by Thomas Benoit, Clarencieux, in the 22d Year of Henry VIII. Anno Domini 1530. The Creſt and Supporters were granted by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, King at Arms, Anno Domini 1587. Theſe their Arms were confirmed at a Viſitation of LONDON, by Sir Henry St. George, Knt. Richmond Herald, Anno Dom. 1645, Edward Carleton, Eſq; being then Maſter.

THE Arms are: Sable, a Chevron, Ermin between two Habicks in Chief, Argent, and a Teſſel in Baſe, Or. Creſt, a Ram paſſant, Or. Supporters, two Griffins, Or, Pellettee.

THIS rich and eminent Company were governed by a Maſter, four Wardens, about 60 Aſſiſtants, and 166 on the Livery, beſides the Commonalty; the Livery Fine is about 20 l.

THEY date their firſt Charter April 28, 20 Edward IV. in whoſe Grant they were incorporated under the Name of The Fraternity of the Aſſumption of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, of the Sheermen of the City of LONDON. They were again confirmed by King Henry VIII. the Letters Patents bearing Date Jan. 18, in the 19th Year of his Reign. Queen Elizabeth yielded to them another Charter, by the Name of The Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of Freemen of the Art and Myſtery of Clothworkers in the City of LONDON. This was confirmed April the 24th, by King Charles I. in the 9th Year of his Reign.

KING James I. June 12, 1607, dined with the Lord Mayor, Sir John Watts, Clothworker; and after went into Clothworkers Hall, and there was made Free of that Company with Sir Patrick Murrey, Gentleman of his Bedchamber, Sir Arthur Arſton, and Sir Hugh Carmichael, Knts, and James Medow, D. D. the King's Chaplain.

THE Lord Mayor at this Dinner preſented the King with a Purſe of Gold; and when he was ready to depart, the ſaid Mayor beſought him out of the great Favour which he had before profeſſed to the Clothworkers Society in particular, that his Majeſty would vouchſafe to be Free of the Clothworkers; which the King readily accepted, and deſcending from the Dining-Room went into the Hall, the Mayor bearing the Sword before him; and there he was received by the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants, unto whom the King ſpake kindly, and with Reſpect; and asking, Who was Maſter of the Company? The Lord Mayor anſwered, Sir William Stone: To whom the King then ſaid, Wilt thou make me Free of the Clothworkers? Yes, ſaid the Maſter, and do think myſelf a happy Man, that I live to ſee this Day. Then ſaid the King, Stone, give me thy Hand; and now I am a Clothworker. And after that, he walked into the Garden, and then into the great Parlour, the Lord Mayor bearing the Sword before him. And while he ſat there, the Earls of Shrewsbury and Cumberland, being both Free of that Company, preſented his Majeſty with Bread and Wine. Then riſing up, he ſaid, Now I drink unto all my good Brethren the Clothworkers. And I pray God to bleſs them all, and all good Clothworkers. And for Proof of our ſpecial Favour to the Fraternity, I do here give unto this Company two Brace of Bucks yearly, for ever, againſt the Time of the Election of the Maſter and Wardens. Then the Maſter, the Wardens and Aſſiſtants humbly thanked his Majeſty; and having kiſſed his Hand, the King departed.

THERE were other Companies incorporated in former Times, which are now ſunk and gone, whoſe Buſineſs was chiefly about Cloths, as Fullers, Telars, and Burilers.

FULLERS.

OF theſe and the Dyers a Complaint was made by ſome of the Company to King Edward I. that certain of them, namely, John de Oxon, Henry at Watergate, and Elias le Shereman, concerning Cloths ſent to them to be fulled; and which ought to be fulled only within the City; that they ſent them to the Mill at Stratford, and elſewhere without the ſaid City, and cauſed them there to be fulled; in Deceit and great Damage of the Men who owned thoſe Cloths, and alſo of the Men uſing the Trade in the aforeſaid City, and to the Depreſſion of the ſaid Trade. Whereupon the King, in the 26th of his Reign, ſent his Letter to the Cuſtos and Sheriffs of LONDON, to call the Parties before them: Who accordingly did ſo, and the aboveſaid, John, Henry, and Elias, in all the ſaid Matters acknowledged themſelves to be faulty. And the ſaid Cuſtos and Sheriffs cauſed to appear before them the Dyers, Telars, Burilers, Weavers, and Fullers, to appoint and provide for the ſaid Trade of Fullers; how for the Time to come they ought to do, and govern themſelves, to amend the ſaid Trade of Fullers.

AND this Ordinance was made for the common Profit of the City, that no Fuller, Dyers or Theſſarans, ſhould for the Time to come carry Cloths out of the City, to be fulled or dyed, upon certain Penalties.

TELLARS or TELARS.

WERE Webbers or Weavers of Cloth: Theſe were very antient, and were a Guild or Fraternity, confirmed by King John. And whereas it was a Cuſtom to receive from them, for the King, 18 Marks of Silver yearly, by this Charter of Confirmation the ſaid King required 20 Marks to be from thence yearly paid at the Exchequer, on the Feaſt of St. Michael.

King Henry III. gave them another Charter, and refers to an Inſpeximus of a Charter which his Grandfather King Henry granted the Telars of LONDON. This King Henry III. in his ſaid Charter required of them two Marks in Gold, payable every Michaelmas.

THESE choſe two Bailiffs from among themſelves to hold Courts of the ſame Trade; and preſented preſented the ſaid Bailiffs ſo choſen to the Mayor Elis Ruſſel; who were by the ſaid Mayor accepted and ſworn. And if any Matters could not be determined by them, they were to be brought to the Mayor, to be ended by him.

BURILERS

WERE a Myſtery for the inſpecting of Cloths woven, as to the well making of them, and meaſuring of the Breadth of them. For Cloth ought to have been two Ells wide from Liſt to Liſt, (which was called Burrells) according to an old Conſtitution.

THERE uſed to be great Contentions between the Telars and theſe Burilers: Whereupon King Henry III. once interpoſed his Pardon and Indulgence againſt the Burilers. Rex conceſſit hominibus LONDON. quod non vexentur propter Burellos, vel pannos Burellatos; quamvis non ſint in latitudine duarum ulnarum infra Liſtas, ſecundum Conſtitutionem prius factam de pannorum latitudine.

There is this Record remaining in the Chamber of LONDON. "Be it remember'd, that "on Thurſday next after St. Hilary, the 20th "[it ſhould be 28th] of Edward I. John de "Caunefeld, and Wauter Payne, Bailiffs of the "ſaid Guild of Telers of LONDON, and "the whole Commonalty of the ſame, were "ſummoned before Elis Ruſſel, then Mayor of "the ſame City, to anſwer to Fouk de St. Ed-"mund, and to Henry le Joſue, and other good "Men of the Myſtery of Burilers, upon certain "Articles and Points, and Eſtabliſhments, in "Time whereof there is no Memory: Which the "ſaid Wauter and John, and others of the ſaid "Guild have infringed; and other new Ordi-"nances, &c. to the Damage and Prejudice of "them and their Myſtery of Burilers. They ac-"knowledged they were faulty, and in ſome "Points did contrary to their Cuſtoms and Uſa-"ges: Whereof they prayed Grace.

"AND it was aſſented to by both Parties, that "ſome of the Burilers, and ſome Telers ſhould "be choſen; viz. William de Leyre, Wauter de "Finchingfeld, Thomas Romayne, and Richard "de Gloceſter, Aldermen; Fouk de St. Edmund, "Henry de Joſue, John de Hatfend, and three "more, Burilers; and William de Gillingham, "John de Cannefend, Robert Moris, Simon de "Purtepole, and three more, Telers. And "theſe ordained that the Telers ſhould uſe and "hold certain Ordinances." Which are there ſet down.

As, That none make Cloth mingled with a Thread of England and of Spain. That no Cloth be made of Flocks and Thrums, &c.

THIS Company of Clothworkers alſo is a very flouriſhing and wealthy Company. The Hall is ſituated in Mincing-lane, as is before mention'd, Book II. Chap. II.

OF this Company have been fourteen Lord Mayors. For the Charities and Benefactions under their Management, ſee the firſt Chapter of this Book. Pages 38, 39.

Mr.

Mr. John Stock gave 6 l. per Annum to ſix poor Journeymen Dyers, or their Widows; 5 s. to each quarterly.

BREWERS.

THIS Company was incorporated in February 1427, the 6th Year of King Henry VI. and their Charter confirmed in July 1559, being the ſecond of Queen Elizabeth.

THEIR Arms were granted by Wm. Hawkſlow, Clarencieux, by Patent dated July 23, 1468, under the Seal of his Arms. Afterwards Thomas Hawley, Clarencieux, granted to the ſaid Corporation, Arms and a Creſt, bearing Date ult. Feb. 35 Hen. VIII. Antiently they bore this Coat, impaled with the Arms of Thomas a Becket, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, that is, firſt the Arms of the See of Canterbury, then three Choughs, Becket's Arms: And laſtly, theſe Arms for the Brewers, viz. A Chevron charged with theee Barrels, between as many Garbs; afterwards they bore the Garbs Saltierwiſe, as at preſent.

THIS Company is govern'd by a Maſter, three Wardens, and 24 Aſſiſtants: There are 90 on the Livery, beſides Yeomanry. Their Livery Fine is 6 l. 13 s. 4 d.

THE following Matters relating to this Company of Brewers, as they happen'd in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, were collected by Stow, out of ſome authentick Papers.

IN the Year 1580, or thereabouts, Sir Thomas Gorges ſued to have the Office of Gauger of Beer; namely, to ſurvey the Gauging and Filling every Barrel; and for the defraying of the Charges and of Officers to be employed, to have a Penny for gauging every Barrel of Beer and Ale; an Halfpenny for every half Barrel; and ſo for every Veſſel after that Rate. And for inclining the Queen to grant this, he ſhewed in his Petition to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, that there was a Deceit to the Buyer of Beer and Ale, both in the Aſſize of the Veſſels, and in the not filling them up. And that the Buyers, taken altogether, were deceived hereby 30000 l. a Year: Which by this Expedient propounded, would be ſaved. And beſides, it was promiſed that the Queen ſhould have 200 l. a Year for a Rent. And that a great Number of prohibited Wares were daily tranſported out of the Realm by Stealth, and ſo eaſily paſt, as they had done. And hereby her Majeſty's Cuſtoms would be encreaſed. Beſides, he would engage to gain her 7 or 800 l. yearly in the Aſſize of the Veſſels, and filling of Beer and Ale, which was yearly ſerved only to her Majeſty's Houſe.

To which the Brewers made this Anſwer: "That though Veſſels were well filled in the "Brewhouſe, yet ſuch as were carried in Drayes, "by that Time they ſhould be laid in the Buy-"ers Cellars, would, by Reaſon of ſpurging and "working in the Carriage, want near a Gallon "in every Barrel: So that the ſurveying of the "filling of them in the Brewhouſe would bring "ſmall Profit to the Buyer. And Ale in LON-"DON, and many other Places, being put in "Veſſels that be open, as the Buyers may eaſily "ſee whether they be filled or not, the filling "of them needs no ſuch Survey of any other Per-"ſon. That the Sizes of Veſſels were limited "by Statute, and well known to the moſt Part "of Buyers; and were continually look'd unto "by the Clerk of the Market, and by Mayors "and other Head Officers of Cities and Cor-"porate Towns, and within Liberties; who "were authorized thereunto by Statutes, Char-"ters and Grants; and the Defects might be "eaſily perceived by the Buyer: So as there "was no great Need of a Surveyor in that Be-"half. And the Correction of the Aſſize of "Beer and Ale, touching the Veſſels and Mea-"ſures, belonging to Head Officers in moſt Ci-"ties, Towns Corporate and Leets, was like "to beget many ſudden Complaints. That a "Penny for gauging every Barrel of Beer and "Ale would grow to a great yearly Revenue. "It was computed, there would be due for Beer "Veſſels in LONDON only, 5000 l. yearly. "And it might be thought, that throughout the "Realm it would make the Sum up 10,000 l. "a Year at leaſt." But this Buſineſs of having a Surveyor for Beer ſtuck ſtill, and we ſhall hear more of it by and by.

IN the Year 1585, a Dutchman deſired to have Licence to tranſport Beer. And it was allowed him by the Lord Treaſurer, upon Agreement, to import ſo much Clap-board, according to the Tons of Beer he carried out.

THE Quantity of Beer brewed in LONDON, about this Time, viz. 1585, in a Year, by the Calculation that one made for the Uſe of the Lord Treaſurer, was thus computed: There were at leaſt twenty-ſix Brewers in the City, Suburbs, and Weſtminſter, whereof the one Half of them, Strangers, the other Engliſh. The moſt of every of them brewed ſix Times a Week; and ordinarily they brewed twenty Quarters at every Time; which yielded in Small Beer 100 Barrels at the leaſt, and in Strong Beer ſixty Barrels at the leaſt. Every one with another of them did brew 420 Barrels weekly a-piece; which amounted to 2496 Barrels yearly. So the whole Number of the Brewers being 26, they did brew yearly 648960 Barrels. And by this Computation the Gentleman that uſed to be General Surveyor for Gauging, at a Penny the Barrel, and ſo for every half Barrel proportionably, ſhould receive in LONDON and the Suburbs, 2028 l. a Year.

VESSELS of Beer and Ale were not gauged by any Statute before 23 Hen. VIII. but the Defects thereof were puniſhable upon the Preſentment of Juries and Aleconners, before the Juſtices Itinerants, Juſtices of Peace, the Clerks of the Market, Stewards of Leets out of Cities; and in Cities, by Force of Charters. And in that Year (i. e. 23 H. VIII.) by an Act, Authority was given to the Wardens of the Coopers of LONDON, to ſearch, view and gauge all Veſſels of Beer, Ale and Soap in LONDON, and the Suburbs, within two Miles of LONDON, and to take a Fee for the ſame; and the like Authority was given to the Mayors, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Conſtables or other Head Officers out of LONDON, for Veſſels there. This was urged to the Treaſurer of England, Anno 1586, againſt any Common Gauger ever having any Authority of gauging Veſſels, or uſed before.

BUT the Coopers were complained of, for that they by the Statute aboveſaid, being to gauge Veſſels for the full Contents by that Statute limited, and that thoſe that held due Meaſure ſhould be ſealed with a St. Andrew's Croſs; they being in Bargain with the Brewers, would ſet the Croſs upon the Veſſels as full Gauge, though they wanted one, two or three Gallons. And the Law had inflicted no Puniſhment on the Coopers, for not gauging, or for untrue gauging, the Coopers being Judges of their own Work; and having Liberty at their Pleaſure to ſearch and gauge, but not commanded ſo to do.

BESIDES this Want of Meaſure, there were about this Time divers other Things charged upon the Brewers, which are here ſet down, together with their Apology and Vindication of themſelves. They were charged for their Malt and Hops which they uſed; as that they brewed with ill Malt; and in the End of the Year they commonly brewed with Wyvel Malt, being the Bottom and Sweepings of their Garners, to make room to bring in new Corn. It was alſo bruited, that they put in Darnel, Roſin, Lime and Chalk, and ſuch like; which making the Drinkers thirſty, they might drink the more. And that for Cheapneſs, when Hops were dear, they put into their Drink, Broom, Bay-Berries, Ivy-Berries, and ſuch like Things; but their Surveyors never found this upon Examination to be true.

Item, It was charged upon them, that with one Maſh they uſed to make two Brewings; but that alſo was hardly true, by reaſon it would taint their Beer, and loſe that which would be good enough to utter to moſt Cuſtomers.

Item, That they boiled not their Liquor, as was done in private Houſes, to ſave Fuel, and to make the more Beer with the leſs Malt; and ſuch Beer was ſoon ſtale. But they anſwered, Such Beer pleaſed LONDON beſt, to drink new ſmall Beer about 14 Days old.

Item, That they brewed foiſted Beer and corrupt Beer again, ſent home by their Cuſtomers, and never would loſe any.

Item, That the Beer-Brewers were very unclean in their Brewing, and about all their Veſſels; but if it were ſo, their Maſters had the Loſs by it, when their Beer was returned home, and fain to be brewed twice at their Charges.

Item, That they ſet in the Heads of their Barrels to make them leſs; but that wanted Proof.

Item. There was this Deceit in Veſſels of Beer that were tranſported; that under the Name of theſe, paſſed many Barrels ſtuffed with prohibited Goods, as Pike-heads, Halberd-heads, Piſtols and Match, Candles and Soles of Shoes, of new Leather, cut out in Pairs of all Sizes, and the like; the Bungs of the ſaid Barrels being beſmeared with a little Yeſt; to the Hindrance of the Commonwealth, and to the Profit of Enemies. Another Deceit that the Strangers, Foreigners, and others practiſed with the Brewers and their Servants was, packing up Caſes and Pieces of Silk, and delivering them as empty Barrels on the Brewers Wharf. The Brewers ſtraight beſmeared them with Yeſt, and ſo ſent them to the Merchants Houſes, as Barrels of Beer for the Houſhold, to the Hinderance of the Queen's Cuſtoms.

THE Brewers themſelves appointed their Surveyor; and there being now in theſe Days of Queen Elizabeth, many Strangers and Denizen Brewers, as well as Engliſh, the Company ſet a Penny upon every Barrel of Beer brewed by a Stranger, and an Half-penny upon every Barrel brewed by an Engliſhman, for the ſaid Surveyor's Salary; though ſome ſaid this was done indeed to drive away the Strangers.

BUT when the Suit was ſo ſtrongly urged for a General Surveyor to be made by the Queen, ſome about the Year 1586, made theſe conſiderable Objections to it; That if the Queen granted this Survey of the Veſſels, then according to Statute the Brewers would withſtand the ſame, and pray they might be ſurveyed according to Law. That the Mayor and Bench of LONDON could never bring it to paſs, that the Veſſels ſhould be of the right Sizes, and ſerved out full from their Brewhouſes; nor durſt they ever force the Brewers to it, for fear of leaving the City unvictualled. That the Ale-Brewers, by their Charter, had Authority to ſearch and ſurvey themſelves; and all Beer-Brewers likewiſe, both for Veſſels, for filling them, and for Wholeſomeneſs of Drink; and if the new Survey were granted, it would intrude upon their Charter and Authority, to the Offence of the City; and that if the Queen of her Prerogative ſhould command (which was doubted whether ſhe might) never ſo little a Fee upon a Barrel to be paid to the Chief Surveyor, the People would ſay ſtraight, Their Drink was exciſed, as it was in Flanders, and would be more hereafter; and ſo the People and Brewers both would repine at it; and that if the People had their Meaſure, the Brewers would exact it again. And, Laſtly, that as for the clayed and beſmeared Barrels with Yeſt, the Searchers and Officers of the Cuſtom-houſe would provide well enough againſt that.

THE Lord Mayor and Bench of Aldermen did often attempt to make a Reformation among the Brewers, eſpecially in two or three Reſpects. Firſt, the Beer being brought in while it was purging, many Gallons were loſt; which they endeavour'd to reform by requiring Beer and Ale Carts to carry filling Beer, to make good that which was ſpilt or purged by the Way, or to give Allowance for the ſame. Secondly, for the mending of Beer, it being ſo ſmall, the Mayor and Common-Council would have had two Sorts of Beer, of 4 s. and 6 s. the Barrel; and to diſallow the brewing of Strong Beer, of 8 s. the Barrel, March Beer only excepted. There was a notable Act of Common-Council made the 6th of the Queen, Oct. 25. concerning theſe Matters; but neither the Mayor nor Bench could ever bring this Reformation to paſs, the Brewers being ſo headſtrong, and ready to leave the City without Proviſion, by leaving off Brewing ſuddenly.

IN the Year 1591, Sir John Allot, Mayor, publiſhed by Proclamation, that the Brewers ſhould not make any more Sorts or Kinds of Beer or Ale than two, viz. the Strong and the Double; and that the ſame ſhould be ſold after the Rate of 6 s. 8 d. the Barrel of the beſt, and 3 s. and 4 d. the Barrel of the Double Beer or Ale, and not above: But all Commodities belonging to the Brewers being now advanced conſiderably in their Prices, the Brewers made great Complaints againſt this Order: For Malt was ſold at 13 s. the Quarter, Hops at 4 l. 6 s. 8 d. and 4 l. 10 s. the Hundred; which heretofore was ſold at 6 s. 8 d. the Hundred; and yet one Hundred of Hops then was worth three Hundred of Hops at that preſent ſold: The Price of Barrels being 20 s. or 22 s. the Laſt, heretofore ſold for 9 s. the Laſt: The Price of Coals, then ſold at 24 s. or 26 s. the Chaldron, not long before ſold at 12 s. or 13 s. the Chaldron. To which they added the great and exceſſive Price of all Manner of Victuals, and Charge of Houſe-keeping, and other Neceſſaries belonging to the Brewers Trade, the large Rent of their Houſes, far exceeding the Rents given for the ſame in any former Age. Theſe Things conſidered, the Brewers were not able, at the Prices ſet, to ſell ſuch good and wholeſome Beer as was fit the City ſhould be ſerved with; whereupon they were Suitors to the next Lord Mayor, Sir William Webbe, and the Aldermen, to have good Conſideration of this Cauſe; and to ſet ſuch reaſonable Prices and Rates on Beer and Ale, as they might make and ſell good and wholeſome Liquor, and live by their ſaid Trades. As they had at ſundry Times deſired the Lord Mayor and Aldermen to conſider two Statutes, viz. 51 H. III. and 31 Edw. I. and the Prices of Malt, Hops, Coals, Barrels, and Kilderkins, Veſſels, and other Neceſſaries belonging to their Trade; and to make an indifferent Proof and Trial, what and how much good and wholeſome Beer and Ale of the beſt, and how much of the Double, might be made of a Quarter of Malt; and to conſider of all Charges belonging to the ſaid Trade. Alſo, they offered to ſhew to them their Books, whereby they might plainly ſee what

and how much Ale and Beer they had or did make of a Quarter of Malt, and the juſt Charge expended in and about the ſame, notwithſtanding the Lord Mayor and Aldermen refuſed and denied; which, as they urged, tended to the great Hinderance of the City, ſince they were not able to ſell and utter ſuch good and wholeſome Ale and Beer as was fit; and to the utter undoing of the Brewers, if they continued their ſaid Trades: For many of them ſhould be forced to leave and give over the Trades in which they had been brought up, to the Hinderance, if not Undoing of the Company of Brewers.

THIS made them appeal to the Lord Treaſurer of England, by whoſe Means only they acknowledged they had obtained their Incorporation from the Queen, with divers Liberties and Privileges to and for the ſaid Company, praying to procure ſuch ſpeedy Trial and Examination of the ſaid Cauſe, and thereupon ſuch reaſonable Prices to be aſſeſſed for Beer and Ale, as thereby the Commonwealth of the City and Suburbs might be well ſerved, and his Orators have a convenient Living by their Trade; and withal they preſented a Paper to the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, being the true Aſſize of Ale and Beer, according to the Prices of Corn, riſing and falling, by the Equity of the Statute Anno 51 Hen. III. afterwards confirmed and allowed by Statute An. 31 Ed. I. viz.

THEN by the ſame Rate a Quarter of Malt being at the Price of 4 s. a Barrel of Ale being thirty-two Gallons, at 1 d. the Gallon, amounts to 2 s. 8 d.

Item, The Kilderkin being ſixteen Gallons, after that Rate is 16 d.

Item, The Firkin being eight Gallons, is 8 d.

Item, A Barrel of Beer after that Rate, being thirty-ſix Gallons, at 1 d. the Gallon, is 3 s.

Item, The Kilderkin, being eighteen Gallons, is 18 d.

Item, The Firkin being nine Gallons, is 9 d.

Item, Then a Quarter of Malt being at 8 s. the Barrel of Ale being thirty-two Gallons at 2 d. the Gallon, is 5 s. 4 d.

Item, The half Barrel or Kilderkin, and Firkin, according to the ſame Rates.

Item, The Barrel of Beer, being thirty-ſix Gallons, at 2 d. the Gallon, after the ſame Rate comes to 6 s.

Item, The half Barrel or Kilderkin, and Firkin, according to the ſame Rates.

Item, The Quarter of Malt being at 12 s. the Barrel of Ale being thirty-two Gallons, at 3 d. the Gallon, is 8 s.

Item, The half Barrel or Kilderkin, and Firkin, after the ſame Rates.

Item, The Barrel of Beer, being thirty-ſix Gallons, at 3 d. the Gallon, amounts to 9 s.

Item, The half Barrel or Kilderkin, and Firkin, according to the ſame Rates.

The Price of CORN, and other Things, at the making of the Statute Anno 23 Hen. VIII.

A Quarter of Wheat at 6 s. 8 d.
A Quarter of Malt at 4 s. or 5 s.
A Quarter of Oats at 2 s. 8 d.
The C. wt. of the beſt Hops at 6 s. or 6 s. 8 d.
The Laſt of Barrels at 9 s.
The Laſt of Kilderkins at 5 s.

The Price of ALE and BEER then.

And then the Barrel of the beſt Ale and Beer was ſold for 3 s. 8 d. or 4 s.

The Three-half-penny Beer was then ſold the Barrel for 3 s.

The Barrel of ſingle Ale and Beer 2 s.

The Price of CORN, and other Things, at the late Proclamation in London, Anno 34 Eliz.

A Quarter of Wheat at 18 s.
A Quarter of Malt at 12 or 13 s.
A Quarter of Oats at 8 s.
The C. wt. of Hops at 4 l. 10 s.
The Laſt of Barrels 20 s.
The Laſt of Kilderkins 12 s.

And now by the ſame Proclamation the Price of the beſt Ale and Beer is but at the Barrel 6 s. 8 d.

And the Price of the ſmaller Ale and Beer the Barrel 3 s. 4 d.

IT is to be noted, that the Charge of Houſe-Rent, Houſe-keeping, Servants Wages, Victuals, and other Neceſſaries, do treble and fourfold exceed the Price thereof in thoſe former Times.

ABOUT theſe middle Times of Queen Elizabeth another Controverſy aroſe concerning Beer, namely, concerning the tranſporting Beer beyond Sea, which they called Portage Beer. It was obſerved now a-days, that the Tranſportation of Corn and of Beer was the Cauſe of the Dearth of Corn. For the preventing and remedying of which, ſometimes Proclamations were iſſued forth, for the Reſtraint of Tranſportation; and ſometimes the Brewers were reſtrained from brewing any Sweet or Strong Beer to be tranſported by Cocket, as Merchandize. By this Means Corn did once riſe and fall ſundry Times within two Months. Some Time before Michaelmas Corn was bought and provided to have been tranſported. Whereupon the Price of Corn was enhanced 6 or 7 s. in a Quarter, which happened within the Space of fourteen Days. Then a Proclamation was publiſhed for the Reſtraint of Corn and Beer, the eighth Day of October; and the Price of Corn within five Days did fall 5 or 6 s. in a Quarter; which cauſed many joyful Hearts among the poor Commons, and many Thouſand Bleſſings and Prayers for the Author thereof. After this Proclamation, by reaſon of ſome Quantities of Beer brewed and tranſported, the Corn-men then, thinking the Reſtraint would not continue, began again the ſecond Time to increaſe their Prices. The Brewer, to thwart the evil Minds of the Corn-men, and bad Dealing of the Merchants, reſtrained themſelves from brewing Strong Beer to be tranſported as Merchandizes; whereby the Price of Corn did fall the ſecond Time. November 4, one procured from the Lord Treaſurer, Licence to brew and tranſport 500 Tons of Beer, notwithſtanding the Reſtraint and Orders taken againſt the Brewers. Which Warrant was for Service of her Majeſty; whereby the Price of Corn increaſed the third Time.

THERE was an Eſtimate made at this Time, [about the Year 1591] what Beer was carried yearly for the Low Countries and other Places, after this Manner: There were twenty great Brewhouſes or more, ſituate on the Thames Side, from Milford-ſtairs in Fleet-ſtreet, till below St. Catharine's, which brewed yearly the Quantity of ſeven or eight Brewings of ſweet Beer or ſtrong Beer, that paſſed to Stoad, Embden, the Low Countries, Calais, Diep, and thereabouts. And account but 600 Brewings at 44 Barrels the Brewing, it makes 26400 Barrels, which at ſeven to a Ton, make 3771 Ton.

THE Hall of this Company is ſituated on the North Side of Addle-ſtreet, near the Eaſt End. It is a handſome Building, with a graceful Appearance at the Entrance of Columns and Arches of the Tuſcan Order, and Enrichments of Fruit-Leaves, &c. The Walls are Brick, the Window-Caſes Stone.

THERE are ten Alms-houſes for ten poor Widows of Iſlington, left by the Lady Owen, to the Care of this Company.

LEATHER-

LEATHERSELLERS.

THE Leatherſellers are the 15th Company of LONDON, and were incorporated in the 6th Year of Richard the IId, when Whittington was Lord Mayor.

THEIR Arms and Creſt were firſt granted by John Moor, Norroy King at Arms, May 20, 19 Edward IV.

AFTERWARDS Roger Machado, Clarencieux, confirmed the ſame, adding Supporters thereto by Patent under his Hand and Seal, in the 21ſt of King Henry VII. Anno 1505. They were afterwards confirmed by Thomas Benoit, Clarencieux, October 11, 22 Hen. VIII. viewed, enter'd and approved in the Viſitation 1634.

THE Arms are: Argent, three Bucks reguardant Gules. Creſt; a Buck, Or, attired Sable. Supporters; a Buck as the laſt, and a Ram of the firſt.

THE Leatherſellers are govern'd by a Maſter, three Wardens, 26 Aſſiſtants, and 167 on the Livery. Their Livery Fine is twenty Pounds, and Stewards twelve Pounds.

THIS Company, by Patent from King Henry the VIIth, had the Search of Calves-skins, Sheeps-skins, and Lamb-skins, Goats and Kid-skins, deceitfully wrought; and of all other like deceitful Works and Workmen touching that Myſtery, in any Part of the Realm; and were to make ſuch Search by the Survey of the Mayor and other Head Officers of the City and Town where ſuch Search ſhall be made: And had farther Power to puniſh the ſaid Offenders, and to ſeize, as Forfeit, the ſame deceitful Ware: Whereof the one Moiety to the Uſe of the King and his Succeſſors, or to the Uſe of thoſe Cities and Places where the Offence happens, and the other Moiety to the Company; and the Searchers were to be ſworn to make due Search. And ſuch a Power alſo had the Company of Skinners by Patent.

THE Leatherſellers became great Engroſſers of Leather in all Places of England, and did tranſport it abroad, to the raiſing of the Price of it: For which the Glovers, within forty Miles Compaſs about LONDON, feeling the Inconveniency of it, made Complaint about the Years 1593, and 1594, to the Lords of the Privy Council. They complained, that the Leatherſellers did engroſs continually into their Hands all Sorts of Leather within the ſeveral Shires of England, and alſo Ireland and Scotland, which had raiſed the Price of White Leather from 20 s. the Hundred, to 50 s. and 3 l. the Hundred. Secondly, that when they had ſo engroſſed it by the Thouſand, whereof they bought three or four Sorts at ſeveral Prices, they then packed it into Dozens, and put four Skins at the leaſt into every Dozen, ſcarce worth an Half-penny a-piece; and yet nevertheleſs did ſell their mixed Dozens far dearer than they paid for the very beſt; whereby they, the Glovers, were deceived at the leaſt 16 d. in every Dozen, by four ſmall Skins, in ordinary called Linings, packed in every ſuch Dozen. Thirdly, they further complained, that by Means of this Engroſſing, they were conſtrained to come thirty or forty Miles Compaſs, round about LONDON, to buy their Leather at LONDON: Whereas were it not for them, they might have had their Leather at home in the Country, and at a far more reaſonable Rate, and better. Laſtly, that where by their intolerable engroſſing (being but four Perſons that did it) they were become great Tranſporters of Leather out of the Land, and under Colour of Licence for one Thouſand, ſhipped away ten Thouſand, they prayed their Lordſhips, that ſome might be appointed to ſee, that no more were ſhipped away than were licenſed; and that a Market might be appointed for all White Leather, and that the Countrymen might be commanded to bring in their Leather to a ſettled Place; as at Leadenhall, or ſuch like, before they made Sale thereof to any Leatherſeller or other, whereby to engroſs it. That they, the poor Glovers about LONDON, might buy the beſt for their Money, as ſoon and as well as they; and then Leather, in ſhort Space, ſhould be ſold for 30 s. which was then 50 s. and upwards. And for the Reformation of theſe apparent Injuries, they thought it convenient that Leather ſhould be ſealed, ſo as the Price exceeded not 2 d. the Dozen. And laſtly, that if this were not look'd to, the Leatherſellers would ſoon become richer than common Subjects, and Thouſands of the Glovers forced to beg about the Streets.

BY Reaſon of the Trades of the Merchants in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, to Barbary and Ruſſia, and other Places, there was a great Quantity of Skins of divers Sorts then yearly brought into the Realm, more than in Times paſt. And towards the latter Times of that Queen, the People had better Experience in dreſſing, working and making of Leather; ſome with Oil, ſome with Allum, ſome with Shomack and other Things. By Reaſon whereof, a greater Number of the Queen's Subjects, with their Families, were ſet on work and maintained, than in former Times. And by Reaſon of the good and well dreſſing thereof, the ſame was more uſed than formerly, to the Benefit of the Realm, and the great Store tranſported by Way of Merchandize: Whereby the Queen had the more Cuſtom, and Subſidy both outwards and inwards.

UPON Pretence of an Act of Parliament, Edward Darcy, Eſq; ſued to the Queen for her Letters Patents, during his Life, or for twenty Years, for the Searching and Sealing of all Leather throughout England, as was provided in the Statute for Shoe-Leather: For the Leatherſellers had been found guilty of great Abuſes practiſed, in deceitful Dreſſing, Sale and Uttering of all Leather for the moſt Part, except Shoe-Leather: The Skin of a Bull, Horſe, &c. was ſold for right Buff, Rams-skins and Sheep-skins, ſold for right Shamways: And ſo many other Kinds, to the Wrong and Hinderance of the Buyer.

Darcy ſucceeded in his Suit, and had his Patent from the Queen, but ſtill with a Clauſe in it for Revocation by ſix of the Council. This was a very gainful Buſineſs to him; as, for the ſealing of a Dozen of the beſt Stag's-skins dreſt, worth 4 l. was paid 8 s. For ſealing a Dozen of the ſecond Sort, worth 33 s. 4 d. the ſame was paid; and ſo proportionably for other Skins: So that he received ſometimes the tenth Part, the ninth Part, the ſeventh, the ſixth, the fourth, and ſometimes, and often, the third Part of the Value of the Commodity.

THEREFORE, ſoon after this Patent was begun to be executed, which was about the End of the Year 1592, the Leatherſellers, and all that dealt in Leather-cutting, made moſt grievous Complaints, eſpecially the poorer Sort, viz. that it was like to overthrow them and their Trades, and were minded to repair in a Multitude to the Court to the Lords of the Council. But firſt they went to Sir William Row, Lord Mayor, with a Petition to him. The Mayor hereupon ſent his Letters to the Lords, to pſevent the Tumult, together with their Petition. In which Petition joined all theſe Tradeſmen following, viz. Leatherſellers, therſellers, Fellmongers, Glovers, Point-makers, Purſe-makers, Sadlers, Girdlers, Coffer-makers, Budget-Makers, Stationers, White Tawyers, Jerkin-makers, Leather-dyers, and all other Dreſſers, Workers and Converters of Leather, inhabiting within the City. They ſet forth, That whereas he, the Lord Mayor, had received a ſtrait Charge from the Lords and others of her Majeſty's Privy Council, about the Aſſiſtance to be given to Mr. Darcy, touching the Execution of his Patent, for the View, Search and Sealing of Leather of what Kind ſoever: Wherein a new Office was allowed, with Allowance of Fees, to ſo exceſſive and enormous a Rate, as the like whereof was never heard of within the Realm, to be impoſed upon the Subjects, upon any Occaſion of publick Service or Duty whatſoever, to be performed to her Highneſs and the State of her Realm: Hereby the poor Suppliants were like utterly to be undone, and their Trades overthrown, in Caſe the ſaid Patent ſhould ſo take Effect. Wherefore they prayed the Mayor, being the chief Governor of the City under her Highneſs, and the chief and principal Warden of the ſaid Companies, and of all other Trades within the City, to be a Means to the Queen or the Lords, that the Execution of the ſaid Patent might be ſuſpended, and the Grievances of the ſaid Companies be farther conſider'd of, either by their Lordſhips, or ſome other grave indifferent Perſons, to be appointed by them, who by their Wiſdoms might judge and diſcern of the untrue Suggeſtion made to the Queen by Mr. Darcy, for the obtaining of this Patent; and alſo of the manifold Inconveniencies, and intolerable Oppreſſions, which would fall upon the ſaid Companies, in Caſe the ſaid Patent ſhould be put in Execution.

So this Buſineſs came before the Lords: And Darcy expoſed as much as ever he could, all the Deceits of the Leatherſellers, and their monſtrous Gains, by ſelling counterfeited Wares for the beſt: And in Concluſion, his Solicitor aſſerted, that the Workmen that dreſs'd the true Leather were deſirous to have all Leather ſealed, that thereby the Good might be known from the bad, and that all People might perceive by the Seal what they had for their Money: So ſhould not the Leatherſeller deceive the whole Commonwealth.

The Leatherſellers, and the Workers in Leather, put in their Paper to the Lord Buckhurſt, Sir John Forteſcue, and Sir John Woolley, of the Queen's Council, appointed to hear this Buſineſs. Wherein they utterly denied any unlawful, counterfeit, or deceitful Dreſſing of the Sorts of Leather, or that any of it was requiſite to have any Search or Seal in ſuch Manner and Form as Mr. Darcy untruly ſuggeſted to her Majeſty. And they marvelled that he, being a Man of great Experience and Calling, would attempt, or preſume to ſue unto her Majeſty to ſearch any Sorts of Leather which were not appointed to be ſearched by Parliament (Tanned Leather being only ſo appointed) and required to ſearch thoſe Sorts of Leather, for which there is no Act of Parliament, nor Law. And her Majeſty ruled her Subjects only by the Laws of the Realm, and would not deal with any contrary to Juſtice. They urged the Bondage the Patentee would bring the Queen's Subjects into, to cauſe every Leather-cutter, Dreſſer and Occupier of Leather, to bring his Goods to ſuch Towns and Places, and at ſuch Times as he and his Deputy ſhould appoint, and there and then attend their Leiſure; and what an infinite Toil and Loſs of Time would be conſumed therein in carrying to and fro. They ſhewed what an intolerable Tax, and what heavy Sums of Money this would amount unto, if it were to be paid by the Law of the Realm. That it would be conſider'd, whether it were meet that ſuch Tax ſhould be laid upon the People, not being granted by Parliament, nor warranted by Law. And whether, if it were in her Majeſty's Pleaſure to grant it, it were meet or requiſite to raiſe a Revenue of fourſcore or an hundred thouſand Pounds to one Man, to the utter undoing of many Thouſands, her Majeſty's poor and dutiful Subjects. It was alſo put to their Conſiderations, that a Multitude of the Queen's Subjects ſhould be bound in 40 l. yearly, not to ſell, or put to Sale, any ſuch lawful Leather, without the Search and Seal of Mr. Darcy, or his Aſſigns; and that thoſe that refuſed, ſhould be impriſoned and reſtrained from their Trades and Occupations, until it pleaſed Mr. Darcy and his Aſſigns or Deputies, to remit their ſuppoſed Offence; and to compel every Man to pay for the ſame Bond 4 d. Since that it appeared through the whole Courſe of the Grant, there was no Law to warrant the ſame. Laſtly, whether it were a meet and convenient Thing, that Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. who were ſworn to execute Juſtice, ſhould be bound, contrary to the Rules of Law, to give Aid or Aſſiſtance to the Patentee, or his Deputies.

This put ſome Stop to Darcy's Patent, inſomuch that he earneſtly applied himſelf to the Lord Treaſurer, that he might have his Patent, or at leaſt a new one, for the Fees for Sealing abated; and profeſſing himſelf to be ſatisfied with 200 l. or 150 l. a Year. The ſaid Treaſurer (to whom this Matter was left) that he might the better judge of the Leatherſellers Buſineſs, made theſe Queries. Firſt, How many Kinds of Leather were ſubject to the Sealing? Secondly, Who were the People in Quality that did firſt work upon them? Thirdly, How many Workmens Hands they paſſed before they came to the Leatherſellers? Fourthly, How many Kinds there were of this Leather, and what was the Difference of the Prices of them? Theſe Queries he ſent to certain knowing Men in Matters of Trade for their Judgment herein, who gave him in a Schedule of all the Prices of Leather, with the Rates they judged fitting for the Sealing.

The Lord Treaſurer at length made ſome other Propoſitions to the Leatherſellers; to which nevertheleſs they would not comply; wherefore he did impriſon ſome of them. Sir Richard Martin, and Sir John Hart, Aldermen, and the Recorder, did adviſe them to yield to Darcy: But they (whoſe Names were John Ward, Arthur Parkinſon, Anthony Quaplade, and Richard Ironſide) did urge to the ſaid Aldermen, that at their firſt incorporating into this noble City, they were charged with a preciſe Oath: To be obeiſant and obedient unto the Mayor and Miniſters of the City, the Franchiſes and Cuſtoms thereof to maintain, and this City to keep harmleſs in that that in them was: And then they bade them judge, if to admit Mr. Darcy's Miniſters to ſearch and ſeal, were not to run headlong into the horrible Sin of Perjury; which the Queen could never abide, nor ever yet left unpuniſhed: And becauſe they might err, they prayed, that the Expoſition of their Oath might be referred to the general Cenſure of a Common-Council of the City. And they prayed God to ſtrengthen them with all Conſtancy and Patience to endure any Thing rather than by their own Act to diſpoſſeſs themſelves of that which had been enjoyed by them and their Predeceſſors, Citizens of LONDON, three hundred Years and more; or rather than to yield Mr. Darcy a Jot more than they were bound to to do, in 100 l. a-piece, by a Decree made with the moſt deep Deliberation the 13th of February laſt, in the Star-Chamber, by the Lords of her Honourable Privy Council, aſſiſted with the Preſence of the moſt Reverend Judges of the Land.

ON the Back-ſide of this Paper, they in theſe Words petition the Lord Treaſurer.

WE moſt humbly beſeech your good Lordſhip, that even as you have been hitherto moſt worthily accounted the very CATO of the Common Weal; and even as your Lordſhip will not, that her Majeſty be inferior in Honour and Princely Integrity to her moſt noble Father: Who in the ſeventeenth Year of his Reign uttered theſe Words, as is reported by Mr. Hall, to his eternal Praiſe, viz. That his Mind was never to ask any Thing of his Commons that might ſound to his Diſhonour, or the Breach of his Laws; ſo we beſeech your good Lordſhip, even for the Love that you bear to God, her Majeſty, and your Country, whoſe Cauſe this is to read theſe Reaſons; and then to judge, whether we be worthy of Impriſonment, or no: Having no other Choice but to endure Impriſonment, or to damn our own Souls, and to yield to that which is more heavy to us, than eight Subſidies yearly paying during our Lives, without Coertion of the Laws.

THUS ſtout and hardy were theſe Leatherſellers, in aſſerting their Privileges and Rights as Citizens and Free-born Subjects.

To all this may be added, that this Buſineſs having Difficulty as to the Matter of Law, ſo much inſiſted on by the Leatherſellers, the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, a juſt and wary man, ſent to Popham and Egerton, the one the Queen's Attorney-General, and the other her Solicitor, to examine the State of the Caſe, who found it to ſtand thus, as they ſignified to him in Writing: That King Henry VII. did confirm certain Ordinances formerly made by the Mayor of LONDON, touching the Leatherſellers of LONDON, in the Time of King Richard II. concerning how the Defects in the ſaid Myſtery in that Time ſhould be ſurveyed and reformed in ſome Points: Which Ordinances concerned only Sheeps, Calves, and Lambs Leather. And King Henry VII. by that Charter did farther grant, that the Wardens of the Leatherſellers of LONDON ſhould by themſelves, or their ſufficient Deputies, have the Search of all counterfeited Calves, Sheeps, and Lambs Leather, and all Workmanſhip concerning the ſame Myſtery, as well in the City, as in all Places of the Realm, and of all miſuſing of the ſame Faculty or Myſtery; which by the Confeſſion before them was neglected, and not exerciſed according to the ſaid Grant. Therefore the ſaid Attorney and Solicitor thought, in Law the Grant was voidable by Non uſans. Yet ſo long as that Grant ſtood unrepealed, Darcy could not well have the Effect of his Grant from her Majeſty (being, as they took it, the more reaſonable for Reformation of Abuſes then practiſed) unleſs he ſued a Scire facias, for to repeal that Patent of King Henry VII. for Non-uſer thereof: Wherein being negligent in the City of LONDON, it was to be thought they had been much more negligent in all other Places.

THE Hall belonging to the Leatherſellers Company, is ſituated at the Eaſt End of Little St. Helen's.

ON the North Side of Hart-Street, between Monkwell-Street and Cripplegate, ſtand Six Almshouſes, erected by Mr. Robert Rogers of this Company, and good Maintenance allowed the Inhabiters for ever. The Overſight whereof is committed to the Leatherſellers.

ALSO in Little St. Helen's are ſeven Alms-Houſes, for ſeven poor Widows of thoſe of that Company, who have 5 l. 4 s. per Ann. paid every Fortnight, and 15 s. each for Coals.

PEWTERERS.

THE Pewterers were a Company, or Meeting of friendly and neighbouring Men, in the Time of K. Edward IV. and in the 13th Year of this King became incorporated, and from him have ben confirmed by ſeveral Princes ſince.

THEIR Enſigns Armorial are, Azure, on a Chevron, Or, between three Croſs-barrs, Argent, as many Roſes Gules. Creſt, Two Arms holding a Pewter Diſh proper. Supporters, Two Sea Horſes per Feſs, Or and Argent.

THIS Company is governed by a Maſter, 2 Wardens, 28 Aſſiſtants, and 103 on the Livery.

THIS Company uſed to caſt into Bars ſuch Tin as was to be tranſported out of the Realm; whereby the Poor of the Company were wont to have Part of their Living: But after thoſe Bars were made by Strangers beyond the Seas; whereby the Poor were greatly hindered, which occaſioned the Company in the Year 1594, to petition Queen Elizabeth, that they might have ſome lawful Intereſt in the Trade thereof towards their Living and Maintenance, being two thouſand People at the leaſt. This Petition the Queen committed to the Lord Treaſurer, and the Lord Buckhurſt: Who moving ſo many Doubts and Difficulties, and inforcing them to give the ſaid Lords Satisfaction therein, three Years and more were ſpent in hearing and determining the ſame. As firſt they examined,

I. How the ſame might ſtand with the Good and Benefit of the Tinners of Cornwall and Devonſhire: For which Purpoſe they called before them the Lord Warden of the Stanneries, requiring him to confer with ſome principal Tinners of theſe Countries, and to certify their Lordſhips of their Aſſent or Diſſent thereto. Which was done accordingly with good Allowance of their ſaid Petition, as a Thing very beneficial to them: Provided only, that it might be taken at their Hands at a Price certain; which was accordingly inſerted in the Grant of the Queen to them.

II. Afterwards the Lords were deſirous to be further advertiſed, what Benefit or Prejudice might hereby accrue to the Merchant Tranſporters of the Commodity, or to any other uſing the Trade thereof. And ſo they wrote to the Lord Mayor of LONDON, to confer with ſuch Merchants, or other Traders therein, as he ſhould think fit. The Mayor gave Anſwer to theſe Lords, certifying that the Pewterers Petition was no Ways prejudicial to any one of the ſaid Tranſporters or Traders for Tin.

III. Then the aboveſaid Lords were deſirous to know, whether the ſame might be hurtful to the Queen's Coinage or Cuſtom, and conferred with ſome Officers of the Cuſtom-houſe, and were by them fully reſolved, that it would cauſe not only a Certainty, but an Increaſe of her Cuſtoms, as well for Coinage as for Tranſportation.

IV. Then their Lordſhips objected, that this Grant to them, the Corporation of the Pewterers, might be injurious to the Generality of the Pewterers throughout the whole Realm. Of this they were fully ſatisfied by good Proof and Teſtimony made before them, that the caſting of Bars had not heretofore been uſed or practiſed by any Pewterers of England, but only by the Corporation of LONDON.

V. Then

V. Then their Lordſhips required farther Satisfaction, whether the Wages or Allowance of one Half-penny in the Pound, demanded for the Melting and Caſting of the ſame Bars, were not too great a Sum: And they heard divers Proofs and Teſtimonies made touching the ſame, that the Charge of the Melting and Caſting of the ſame into Bars deducted, the Remain thereof was not found ſo great, but that their Lordſhips thought it a fit Relief towards the Help of the ſaid Company: And that in former Times more than an Half-penny was uſed to be allowed by the Merchants.

THEN their Lordſhips finding a general Exclamation and Diſcontentment againſt Patents of Privilege, thought fit to be adviſed by the Attorney-General, whether this Statute might ſtand with the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, or not. Of which being reſolved, they committed to the ſaid Attorney the Drawing of the Patent; and yet fearing leaſt ſome Inconvenience might eſcape them, which Time and Experience might bring forth, they would not let it paſs without a ſpecial Proviſo for her Majeſty to revoke, or annihilate it at her Will and Pleaſure.

AND ſo the Patent was engroſſed by the Attorney-General, by Order from the Queen: And was reviewed by their Lordſhips, and ſigned by them; and by them thought fit to paſs the Queen's Signature at her good Pleaſure. But ſhe, when it was offered her, thought fit to defer the Signing thereof, till ſhe might receive ſome farther Information therein, as well from the Lord Warden of the Stannaries, as from Mr. Carmarthen, and Mr. Middleton, who were very knowing Merchants in thoſe Times. From whom the Queen receiving Satisfaction, ſigned the ſame. And ſo it paſſed both the Signet and Privy Seal.

AFTER all this Trouble, Coſt and Charges, ſuſtained in Proſecuting this Suit four Years, the Earl of Oxford wrote to the Queen, to have the Benefit of the ſaid Patent granted to himſelf. And ſo would have undone the Pewterers, their Wives and Children. Whereupon the Company petitioned Sir Tho. Egerton in the Year 1598, and in the Month of April, then Lord Keeper, to be a Means to her Majeſty, that they might have their Patent to paſs the Great Seal according to her Majeſty's gracious Grant thereof unto them. All this Fatigue did theſe Pewterers go through for the Good of their Company.

THE Fellowſhip of the Craft and Myſtery of Pewterers of LONDON, and elſewhere, was before Henry the Eighth's Reign, one of the beſt Handicrafts within this Realm; and grew and continued by Means of ſundry good Acts and Statutes made for the Execiſe of the ſame; as in the 19th of Hen. VII. and 4 Hen. VIII. And the Engliſh Pewter was had in much Eſtimation in ſtrange Regions and Countries, by a good mixing of Pewter, and forging of Pewter Veſſels.

THE Hall of the Pewterers Company is ſituated on the Weſt Side of Lyme Street, of which ſee more Book II. Chap. IV.

BARBER-SURGEONS.

THE Arms of the Barber-Surgeons, their Creſt and Supporters were granted by Sir Gilbert Dethick Garter, Robert Cooke Eſq; Clarencieux, and William Flower Eſq; Norroy, by Patent under their Hands and Seals, June the 2d, 1569. And are:

The Croſs of St. George charged with a Lion of England, the 1ſt and 4th Quarters Sable, a Chevron between three Fleams Argent; the 2d and 3d Party per pale Argent and Vert, a Roſe Gules, crowned with an Imperial Crown, Or, Creſt, an Apinacus; Supporters, two Linxes proper, each gorged with a Coronet, and thence a Chain reflected over their Backs, Argent.

THIS Company is governed by a Maſter, 3 Wardens, 26 more of the Court of Aſſiſtants, and 196 Livery Men, beſides the Commonalty: The Livery-Fine is 11 l. A Liveryman may take 3 Apprentices, others 2, and none can practiſe the Trades of Barbers or Surgeons in the City of LONDON, unleſs free of this Company.

THE Barber-Surgeons, being a Company of no mean Credit and Eſtate, became a Brotherhood and Fellowſhip, incorporated by the Charter of King Edward IV. afterwards by the Henrys, the Seventh and Eighth, Philip and Mary, and Queen Elizabeth. Laſt of all, they were again confirmed by King James, with other Additions alſo to their Charters. And all thoſe former Charters have been re-confirmed, with large Additions, by King Charles I.

To rectify and explain what is ſaid of theſe Barber-Surgeons, let this that follows be added.

BARBERS.

THE Barbers, long before they were united with the Surgeons, were an antient Company of themſelves; being incorporated in the firſt Year of the Reign of King Edward IV. Feb. 24. at Weſtminſter. And their Company confirmed by King Henry VII. and King Henry VIII. by ſundry Letters Patents. Theſe Barbers antiently practiſed Surgery alſo.

Thomas Colard, Citizen and Barber, by his Will dated Anno 1467, gave his Book of Phyſick and Surgery, called Roſſe and Conſtantine, to the Hall of Barbers, to be laid into the Library.

Robert Scot, Citizen and Barber of LONDON, by his Will dated Decemb. 1490, gave to the Fellowſhip of the Craft of Barbers, his Tenements in the Pariſh of St. Bartholomew the Leſs; and to their Succeſſors for ever.

SURGEONS.

THE Surgeons were not incorporated till the Reign of Henry VIII. yet they were a Society long before. And there was an Act of Parliament for them 3 Hen. VIII. viz. That none ſhould practiſe Surgery, no more than Phyſick, but firſt to be examined and approved upon Pain of 5 l. for every Month. In the Beginning of the ſaid King Henry, there were but twelve Perſons that were Surgeons in the City of LONDON (though in former Times many more) and yet they conſiſted of a Warden and a Fellowſhip, called Of the Craft and Myſtery of Surgeons, infranchiſed in the City of LONDON. In the 5th of Henry VIII. they had an Act made in their Favour, to be diſcharged of Queſts, Watch, or other Office; whereby they ſhould uſe or occupy any defenſible Armour, or Geer of War. And the Cauſe aſſigned of this was, becauſe Time out of Mind, as well in LONDON, as in other Cities and Boroughs of the Realm, they had been exempt and diſcharged from all ſuch Offices and Buſineſs; for their continual Service and Attendance, that they daily and nightly, at all Hours and Times, gave to the King's Liege People. But they were not as yet incorporated.

BARBERS and SURGEONS.

IN the 32d of Henry VIII. there was an Act paſſed for the Barbers and Surgeons; importing, That whereas there were two diſtinct Companies of Surgeons, occupying the Science of Surgeons, the one Company commonly called The Barbers

of LONDON; it being judged neceſſary that both Companies ſhould be united, and made one Body Corporate, by the ſaid Act they were both united, and made one intire and whole Body Corporate, and one Commonalty perpetual, to be called by the Name of Maſters or Governors of the Myſtery and Commonalty of Barbers and Surgeons of LONDON for evermore. By this Act thoſe of the Company that occupied Surgery were to be exempt from bearing of Armour, or from being put in any Watches or Inqueſts. And that they might take every Year four Perſons condemned and put to Death for Felony, for Anatomies, at their Diſcretions and Pleaſures: And that none of the Company that uſed Barbery and Shaving, ſhould occupy Surgery, Letting of Blood, or any other Thing belonging to Surgery, except only Drawing of Teeth. Nor he that uſed the Myſtery of Surgery, ſhould exerciſe the Feat or Craft of Barbery or Shaving.

THE Surgeons afterwards were complained of, as well for their Ignorance in their Craft, oftentimes hurting their Patients inſtead of doing them Good; as alſo for taking great Sums of Money, and doing little therefore: And that it was well known, that the Surgeons admitted, would do no Cure to any Perſon, but where they knew to be rewarded with a greater Sum than the Cure extended to. For many rotted and periſhed to Death for Lack of Help of Surgery, and daily died; and that they troubled others well diſpoſed, that miniſter'd Help for God's Sake to poor People that had ſore Breaſts, Pin and Web in the Eye, Scalding, Burning, Sore Mouth, the Stone and Strangury, Saucelim and Morphew. In Conſideration whereof, and for the Comfort and Relief of the King's poor Subjects, it was ordained, in the 34th and 35th of Hen. VIII. That it ſhould be lawful to every Perſon, having Knowledge and Experience in the Nature of Herbs, Roots and Waters, or of the Operation of the ſame, to practiſe and miniſter to any outward Sore, uncome Wound, Apoſtemations, outward Swelling, or Diſeaſe, any Herbs, Ointments, Bath, Pultes and Emplaiſters, according to their Cunning and Experience.

THIS Company (beſides divers Privileges of ſeveral Kinds by their Charter granted unto them) have Power at any Time to command the Body of any Malefactor executed at Tyburn, (except a Traitor's) to anatomize the ſame; which they commonly do, and exerciſe their Skill thereupon in private at their Hall: Such Body being brought from the Place of Execution to their Hall, is cleanſed, and laid out upon a Table, in their publick Theatre built for that Purpoſe; where, the next Day, a learned Doctor of Phyſick meets the chief Members of the Company; and the Doctor ſitting in a Chair againſt the Body, and the reſt ſitting on a Bench about it, reads a Lecture about ſome Part or Member; and two of the Company (called at that Time Maſters of the Body) ſtanding by the Table upon which the Body lies, having all neceſſary Inſtruments to put in Practice what the Doctor reads and dictates, the Galleries above being filled with young Students in Phyſick and Surgery, to hear, and ſee the Method and Manner thereof, for the Increaſe of their Knowledge. Theſe Lectures do commonly laſt three Days, and then they bury the mangled Body in a Place in the Pariſh Church-yard: But ſometimes they make a Skeleton of the Body, or otherwiſe; and many Pieces of Art of that Kind are preſerved, and ſtand erected about their Theatre.

THE Hall of this Company ſtands in Monkwell-ſtreet, in Cripplegate Ward; of which ſee more Book III. Chap. VI.

ARMOURERS.

THE Society or Company of the Armourers have been a Brotherhood of antient Continuance, and became incorporated about the Year 1423, in the Beginning of the Reign of K. Henry VI. who was pleaſed to ſtile himſelf a Brother of the Society.

THE Arms and Creſt of the Brothers and Siſters of the Fraternity or Guild of St. George, of the Myſtery of the Armourers of the City of LONDON, as they were termed in their Charter, were antiently borne by the ſaid Corporation; but afterwards declared and confirmed to them by Thomas Hawley, Clarencieux, by Patent under the Seal of his Arms and Office, 3 & 4 Phil. & Mary, 1556, and confirmed in a Viſitation 1634.

THE Armourers are a Maſter, two Wardens, 21 Aſſiſtants, and 58 on the Livery, beſides Yeomen. In which Company are many Braſiers. Their Livery Fine is uncertain.

Mrs. Joan Doxie, Widow, gave to this Company of Armourers, for the Relief of four poor Widows, for ever yearly, 5 l. to each, and deſired to have it called the poor Widow's Mite.

WHITE-BAKERS.

THE Company of White-Bakers are of great Antiquity, as appears by their Records, and divers other Things yet extant in their Common Hall. They were a Company of this City in the firſt Year of Edw. II. and had a new Charter granted them in the firſt Year of Henry VII. Which Charter was confirmed to them by Henry VIII. Edward VI. Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, and K. James I.

THEIR Arms were antiently borne; the Creſt and Supporters were granted to them by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, the Letters Patent bearing Date Nov. 8, 32 Eliz. 1590.

THE Arms are: Gules, a Balance between three Garbs, Or, on a Chief Barry wavy of ſix Argent and Azure; the Hand of Juſtice glorified and iſſuing out of a Cloud proper, holding the ſaid Balance, between two Anchors of the ſecond. Creſt; the Arms of Plenty holding a Chaplet of Wheat-Ears proper. Supporters; two Bucks as the laſt attired, Or. and gorged with Wheat as that above.

THIS Company is govern'd by a Maſter, four Wardens, 30 Aſſiſtants, and 149 on the Livery, beſides the Commonalty. The Livery Fine is 10 l. Steward 10 l. Thoſe under Livery can take but one Apprentice, a Liveryman two, Aſſiſtants, &c. 3. They have alſo a Jury or Inqueſt of 13, who ſit to hear and redreſs Grievances, &c.

THE following, taken out of the old Book of Cuſtoms, D. lib. 4. is,

THE antient Appointment of the juſt Weight and Quantity of each Loaf of Bread, was confirmed in the latter part of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, by the Lords of her Privy Council, with their Names ſubſcribed thereunto. And was to this Tenor, (according to a Book made by J. Powel, ſome Time Clerk of the Market in King James the Firſt's Time, called The Book of Aſſize.)

Antient LAWS, CUSTOMS, and good ORDINANCES, ſet down for Bakers, in making, fizing, and ſelling all ſorts of lawful Bread, which by the Laws are vendible unto the Queen's Subjects in the Commonwealth, retailing the ſame.

Firſt, THAT no manner of Perſon or Perſons ſhall keep a common Bakehouſe in Cities and Corporate Towns, but ſuch Perſons as have been apprenticed unto the ſame Myſtery, and brought up therein for the more Space of ſeven Years, or elſe otherwiſe skilful in the good Making and true Sizing of all Sorts of Bread; and ſhall put his own Mark or Seal upon all Sorts of his Man's Bread, which he or they ſhall make and ſell, as before is mentioned.

Item, That no Baker, or any other Perſons, do make, bake, utter and ſell any Kinds or Sorts of Bread in the Commonwealth, but ſuch which the Statutes and antient Ordinances of this Realm do allow them to bake and ſell; that is to ſay, they may bake and ſell Symnel Bread, and Waſtel, White, Wheaten, Houſhold, and Horſe Bread; and none other Kinds of Bread, to put to Sale unto her Majeſty's Subjects.

Item, They muſt make and bake Farthing White Bread, Halfpenny White, Penny White, Halfpenny Wheaten, Penny Wheaten Bread, Penny Houſhold, and Two-penny Houſhold Loaves; and none of greater Size, upon Pain of Forfeiture, unto poor People all ſuch great Bread which they, or any of them ſhall make, to ſell, of greater Size, (the Time of Chriſtmas always excepted.)

Item, They ſhall not utter and ſell to any Innholder, or Victualler, either in Man's Bread or Horſe Bread, (which ſhall retail the ſame) but only 13 d. worth for 12 d. without any Poundage, or other Advantage.

Item, They ſhall ſell and deliver unto Innholders and Victuallers in Horſe Bread, but three Loaves for a Penny, and 13 Pennyworth for 12 d. (as aforeſaid) every one of the ſame three Horſe Loaves weighing the full Weight of a Penny White Loaf, whether Wheat be good, cheap, or dear.

Item, That no Bakers, or other Perſon or Perſons, ſhall at any Time, or Times hereafter, make, utter, or ſell by Retail, within or without their Houſes, unto any the Queen's Subjects, any Spice Cakes, Buns, Bisket, or other Spice Bread, (being Bread out of Size, and not by Law allowed) except it be at Burials, or upon the Friday before Eaſter, or at Chriſtmas; upon Pain of Forfeiture of all ſuch Spice Bread to the Poor.

Item. Whereas there are in Cities and Corporate Towns, common Bakers, uſing the Myſtery of Baking there, and within the ſame Towns common Bakers, which come into the Market with their Bread to be ſold, they ſhall not only bring with them ſuch Kinds or Sorts of ſized Bread as the Law and Ordinances do allow to be made and ſold as aforeſaid; but alſo ſhall keep and obſerve this Order in the Weight of their Bread, as hereafter followeth: Becauſe the ſaid Foreigners do not bear and pay within the ſame Cities and Towns, ſuch Scot and Lot as the Bakers of the ſame Towns do.

Firſt, The Foreigners Halfpenny White Loaves ſhall weigh half an Ounce more in every Loaf than the Bakers of the ſame Towns Halfpenny White Loaves do.

Item, Their Penny White Loaves ſhall weigh one Ounce more in every Loaf than the Bakers of the ſame Towns Penny White Loaves do.

Item, Their Half-penny Wheaten Loaves ſhall weigh one Ounce more in every Loaf than the Bakers of the ſame Towns Half-penny Wheaten Loaves do.

Item, Their Penny Wheaten Loaves ſhall weigh two Ounces more in every Loaf than the Bakers of the ſame Towns Penny Wheaten Loaves do.

Item, Their Penny Houſhold Loaves ſhall weigh two Ounces more in every Loaf, than the Bakers of the ſame Towns Penny Houſhold Loaves do.

Item, Their Two-penny Houſhold Loaves ſhall weigh four Ounces more in every Loaf, than the Bakers of the ſame Towns Two-penny Houſhold Loaves do.

Provided always, That the Clerk of the Market of her Majeſty's Houſhold, his Deputy or Deputies, Mayors, Bailiffs, and other Officers of Cities, Corporate Towns and Liberties, ſhall look unto, have diligent Care and Reſpect unto the due Performance and Execution of theſe Articles; and they ſhall and may, from Time to Time, freely give and diſtribute all ſuch unlawful Bread as ſhall be hereafter made and put to Sale, being contrary to theſe Articles before-mention'd, unto poor Priſoners, or any other poor People: Willing and requiring all Juſtices of Peace, Conſtables, Bailiffs, and other Officers, to be aiding, aſſiſting, and helping all the aforeſaid Officers in the due Execution thereof, as they will anſwer the contrary at their Perils. AND in the Beginning of the next Reign, viz. that of King James I. the ſame Care was again taken for the due and exact Aſſize of Bread, and for the Regulation of the Bakers, upon an Information brought by J. Powel, Clerk of the Market, unto the Lords of his Highneſs's moſt Honourable nourable Houſhold: That divers Bakers and other Perſons, taking upon them the Myſtery of Baking, and Uttering of Bread unto the King's Majeſty's Subjects, in the Commonwealth, for their own private Lucre and Commodity, did not only make and ſell to the Subjects, Breads of odd Sizes, made by their own Inventions, but alſo divers Kinds and Sorts of Bread; which were both repugnant to the Laws and good Ordinances of the Realm, and likewiſe hurtful to the Commonwealth. Wherefore Orders and Articles were made and agreed upon by the Lords and others of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy Council, appointing what Kinds and Sorts of Bread were to be made and ſold. Which Orders were to the ſame Purport with thoſe above made under Queen Elizabeth, requiring the Clerk of the Market, &c. and all other Officers of Cities, Towns Corporate, and Liberties, eſpecially the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of BAKERS in the City of LONDON, their Officers and Miniſters, to look unto, and have diligent Care and Reſpect unto the due Performance of theſe Articles. Memorandum, The Bakers are allowed 12 s. Advantage upon every Quarter of Wheat, for baking and other Charges; as if Wheat be at 20 s. the Quarter, then the Aſſize is to be at 32 s. the Quarter.

TO this may be added what was enacted concerning the Aſſize of Bread, and the Care and Proviſion made to prevent all Abuſes therein, Anno 8 Regni Annæ, cap. 18. That after May 1, 1710, the Lord Mayor of London, the Mayor, Bailiffs, Aldermen, and other Chief Magiſtrate of any other Place, or two or more Juſtices of the Peace, where there ſhall be no ſuch Magiſtrate, may ſet the Aſſize and Weight of all Sorts of Bread, to be ſold by any Baker. Having Reſpect to the Price of the Grain, Meal or Flower, of which it ſhall be made, ſhall bear in the Market near the Place; and making a reaſonable Allowance to the Baker for his Livelyhood.

THE Aſſize to be ſet in Averdupois Weight.

NO Perſon to ſell or expoſe to Sale, any other Bread, than the ſeveral Sorts of White, Wheaten, or Houſhold, and ſuch other Sorts as ſhall be publickly lickly allowed by the Lord Mayor, Magiſtrates, &c. All which Sorts of Bread to be made according to the Goodneſs of the ſeveral Sorts of Grain.

And the Aſſize and Weight of the White, Wheaten and Houſhold Bread, to be aſcertained according to a Table fixed to the ſaid Act of Parliament. Which conſiſteth of ſeveral Columns: The firſt and laſt Columns ſhew the Price of the Buſhel of Wheat, from 2 s. to 15 s. the Buſhel, the Allowance of the Magiſtrates to the Baker for Baking being included. And in the other Columns is the Weight of the ſeveral Loaves, ſo that for Example, when the Price of Wheat is 5 s. the Buſhel, and the Magiſtrates allow 1 s. 6 d the Buſhel to the Baker for Baking, then even with 6 s 6 d in the firſt or laſt Column, will be found the Weight of the ſeveral Loaves. But if the Price is 3 s the Buſhel, and the Allowance 1 s. then the Weight of the ſaid Loaves will be found even with 4 s.

Note, That the White Loaves are one half, and the Wheaten three quarters of the Weight of Houſhold Loaves.

Every Baker to mark on every Loaf the Price and Weight of that Loaf; or any other Mark the Lord Mayor, or other Magiſtrate, ſhall appoint; who ſhall have Power to appoint what Mark ſhall be uſed. The Penalty to the Baker is Forfeiture of 40 s.

The Lord Mayor, &c. may in the Day time enter into Bakers Houſes, &c. and ſearch for, try, and weigh the Bread; and if wanting in Weight or Goodneſs, or not well baken, or not truly marked, &c. in ſuch Caſe the Mayor ſhall cauſe it to be diſtributed to the Poor of the Place. The Baker or other Perſon not permitting the Search, or reſiſting, to forfeit 40 s. This Act to continue for three Years, and to the End of the next Seſſion of Parliament.

There be alſo theſe antient Laws and Orders for Bakers and their Bread; as they are in a Manuſcript Book of Robert Brook and Thomas Weſt, Eſquires, Clerks of the Market in King Edward the Fourth's Time, about the Year 1468.

Memorandum, The Baker ſhall be allowed in every Quarter of Whete bakyng, as it is provyd by the Kyngis Bakers, as it ſhal appere hereafter.

Firſt, he ſhal have 4 d. and all his Branne to avauntage; and two Loſis for Fornage; and three half-pence for three Servauntes; and for Coles, ob. and for Yeſte, ob. and for Salt, ob. and for Wood, 3 d. and for the bultelle, ob. and for ſealing, ob. and for Candel, q. Summ 11 d. q. beſide his Branne, and the two Loves.

This is proved by Statutis: And alſo by an Acte maad in William Conquerours tyme; and the tyme of Henry the Third; and in the tyme of King Edward the Third; and never reverſid ſithen.

Memorandum, It is ordayned bi Statute, that alle maner of Bakers dwelling out of Cities and Burgh Townes, as Bakers dwelling in Villagis, and upon Londe, their Peny Lof, what Corne ſoever it be, be it white Brede or browne, it ſhall wey more than the Peny Lof in the Town or City by x s. and the Halfpeny Lof by v s. becauſe they bere nat ſiche chargis as Bakers in the Citiees doon and Townes. And yet they ſhal kepe the Aſſize truly according unto the Statute upon peyne of 6 s. 8 d. for his Offence, as often as he doth the contrary, beſide his Merſement for brekyng of the Size, if his Lof wey nat as they do in Cities and Burgh Towns. And in likewiſe ſhal the Ferthing Lof wey after the Statute.

The Aſſize of Bread.

This is the Aſſize of al Maner of Brede of Whete, and of what eting Corne ſoever it be. It ſhal be weied aftyr the Ferthing Waſtell; for the Symonell ſhal weye leſs then the Waſtell by 2 s. becauſe of the Sething.

The Ferthing White Loſe, called the Cocket, ſhal wey more then the Waſtel, by 2 s. becauſe of the Bakyng.

The Half-peny Wheten Loſe, that is to ſay the Half-peny Cribel Loſe, ſhal wey three Ferthing White Loſys.

The Lof of al Maner of Corn, that is to ſay, the Horſe Lof, ſhal wey two Half-peny White Loſis.

It is found alſo, in the Book Horn, at this Title, Incipiunt Statuta & Proviſiones Civium LONDON. de Aſſiza Panis, that the ſame Care was taken for the Aſſize of Bread about Edward II's Reign.

Secundum Conſuetudinem Civitatis LONDON. &c. According to the Cuſtom of the City of LONDON. an Aſſay ought to be made of Bread every Year after the Feaſt of St. Michael, by four diſcreet and ſworn Men, choſen for this Purpoſe: And according to the Proportion of the common Weight of that Aſſay, the Bakers ought to bake their Loaves throughout the whole Year; namely, ſo, that if afterwards Bread-Corn be ſold dearer than it was ſold at the making the Aſſay, then the Bread ought to be of leſs Weight than it weighed in the Aſſay: And if it were of leſs Price, then the Bread ought to weigh more; only we ought cautiouſly to provide, that according to the Quantity whereby the Corn increaſeth in Price, or decreaſeth, the Bread increaſe or decreaſe in Weight.

The exact Manner of making the Aſſay was thus: That the ſaid four ſworn Men ſhould buy three Quarters of Bread-Corn (or Meal) in the Sack upon the Pavement in the three Markets, one at Graſſechurch, another at St. Botolph Billingſgate, and the third at Queenhith; of which they were to make a Waſtell, and another Loaf leſs fine (which they called Coket); and after they had baked theſe Loaves with the greateſt Diligence, then they went and preſented them hot before the Mayor and Aldermen in Guildhall; and thus hot they were weighed. And then (ſaith the Statute) the Buying of the Bread-Corn ſhall be conſider'd; and eight Pence for every Quarter ſhall be allowed to the Baker for his Charges. The Selling alſo of the Bran ſhall be conſider'd, and ſhall be withdrawn out of the Sum that the Meal was bought for: And if (after divers exact Rules for the weighing of the Bread) there be more Loaves in Number than there ſhall remain Half-pence in the Sum of the Meal bought, when the Charge is allowed, then let there be a Partition of the Weight of thoſe Loaves, remaining over and above. And ſo every Loaf ſhall be made of juſt Weight. And if there be fewer Loaves than the Number of Half-pence in the Sum the Meal was bought for, when the Charge is allowed, then let it be withdrawn from the Weight of each Loaf equally, ſo far until there reſult ſo many Loaves of equal Weight, as there are Half-pence in the Number of the Sum the Meal was bought at, when the Charge is allowed.

If there ſhall be more Loaves than the Number of Half-pence, let the Part exceeding be taken from the Number of Loaves, and ſee the how manieth Part it will be of the Number of Half-pence; and according to that Proportion, let the Weight of each Loaf be augmented. For Example Sake, if there be 20 Half-pence, and 24 Loaves, every Loaf of the Weight of forty Shillings, then the Number of Loaves increaſeth above the Number of Half-pence, which are but 20; and it is the fifth Part, ſince five Times four make twenty. Therefore the Weight of every Loaf increaſeth by the fifth Parth of its Weight; and the Weight of the Loaf was forty Shillings, whoſe fifth Part is eight Shillings. Therefore 20 Loaves ſhall be each Loaf of the Weight of 48 Shillings. And ſo each Loaf ſhall be of juſt Weight.

IF there were more Half-pence than the Number of Loaves, we muſt ſee the how manieth Part was the Number increaſing, of the Number of Loaves; and if it were a third Part, a fourth Part is to be leſſen'd from every Loaf; and if it were a fourth Part, a fifth Part is to be leſſen'd; and if it were a fifth Parth, a ſixth Part is to be leſſen'd. For Example, if the Number of Half-pence were 24, and the Number of Loaves 20, then is the Number increaſing 4, as before, which is the fifth Part of 20: Therefore each Loaf decreaſeth of the ſixth Part of its Weight. If the Weight therefore ſhall be 40 Shillings, it ſhall be 33 Shillings and 4 Pence. And ſo the Number of Loaves is equalled to the Number of Half-pence, and the Weight is the ſame.

THUS there was formerly extraordinary Care taken in the City about Bread, and for ordering the Bakers in the making and ſelling of their Bread. For that Purpoſe there were four principal Halimotes in the Year, when all the City Bakers were bound to meet together: Whereof the firſt was to be kept after the Feaſt of St. Michael, for the Profit of the City and the Kingdom. That the Bakers being aſſembled together, take and know their new Sheriffs, and retain in their Memories the Statutes of the City belonging to the Bakers, and receive the Aſſay of Bread.

THE ſecond Halimote was held after the Nativity of our Lord; that if there be any Tranſgreſſion made in the firſt Term of the Year, it may be there without Difficulty more fully amended.

THE third Halimote was accuſtomed to be called together after the Cloſe of Eaſter; as well for the Coming of the King as of the Nobles of his Kingdom; leſt there might ſeem to fall out a Want of this Kind of Service; that is, in a convenient Supply of the City and Inhabitants with good Bread.

THE fourth Halimote was after the Nativity of St. John Baptiſt; that what ſhould be ſolemnly appointed by the Common-Council and Providence of the City in the firſt three Terms, in this fourth Term might be profitably confirmed: So that the Goodneſs of ſo great a Work might not turn to Diſprofit by Ignorance, or by Negligence.

TO theſe four Halimotes all the Bakers muſt come; and if they come not, nor excuſe and eſſoin themſelves reaſonably, they forfeited to the Sheriff 21 d.

NOW further as to the Aſſay of Bread (whereof ſomewhat was ſaid before) according to which the Price of Bread was to be ſet: At the Feaſt of St. Michael, in the 12th of Edward II. were bought three Quarters of Bread Corn, to make an Aſſay of White Bread according to Cuſtom, for 17*s.* 4*d. ob.* and 3*s.* 4*d.* was allowed for all Expences about making the ſame Bread; whence the whole Sum ariſeth to 20*s.* 8*d.* ſubſtracting thence 12*d.* for eight Ounces of Bran, there remains 19*s.* 8*d. ob.* the third Part is 6*s.* 8*d. ob.* which makes 157 Halfpence. And ſo many Loaves ſhall be made of Waſtell, of an Halfpenny; and ſo many Loaves of Levat Bread, of an Halfpenny; and ſo many Loaves of Biſſe, of an Halfpenny, of the whole Weight of the Bread forth coming of the ſaid three Quarters of Bread Corn. The Weight of the whole Bread weighing together and at once 165 l. 4*s.* 6*d.*

The Aſſay according to the Regale of England.

When the Quarter of Bread Corn is ſold for	2*s*	The Waſtell ſhall weigh	68*s*

AND we muſt know, that the Baker may gain in every Quarter 3*d.* with the Bran, and two Loaves of the Furnage, of the Price of 2*d.* and to his Servants three Halfpence; and for his two Boys three Farthings; and for the Seal an Halfpenny; and for Yeſt an Halfpenny; and for Candle a Farthing; and for Bruſhes Three Pence; and for Bolting an Halfpenny.

Note, That Coket Bread of the ſame Corn, and of the ſame Bultel, or Bolting, ſhall weigh more than Waſtels by 2*s.* and of Corn of leſs Price, more by 5*s.*

Alſo Bread of Artocope ſhall weigh leſs than Waſtel by 2*s.*

Alſo whole Bread, or Loaf of a Farthing, ſhall weigh Coket and half, &c.

IN the Bakers Halimote were theſe particular Laws and Charges given to all the City Bakers.

LET two or four Loaves be made for a Penny, and let the Baker make no Kind of Bread of greater Price to ſell, but only two or four Loaves to a Penny; and that according to the Aſſize ſet for the preſent Year.

LET no Bran Loaf be made; nor being made of Bran, which is worſe in breaking than it appears without.

LET every Baker have his Seal appearing in his Bread; ſo that it may be the better and more openly known, whoſe it is: And let this Manner of Sealing be as well in Biſſe (Brown) Bread as in White.

LET no Baker ſell Bread in his own Houſe, nor before his own Oven; but let him have a Basket with his Bread in the King's Market: So that if his Bread ſhall not be competent according to the Market of Corn, the Baker's Body be at the Mercy of the Juſtice.

LET no Baker go into St. Michael Cornhill Church-yard, (where Bread Corn was ſold) nor the Market of Weſt-chepe, of Garſecherk, of Billynſgate, nor to Botolves Wharph, nor Queenhithe, nor go aboard any Ship to buy Corn, before the firſt Ringing. There ſeemed of old to be Bells rung in ſeveral Church Steeples of the City, as Bow for one, at certain Hours of the Day, and that both for Devotion and Buſineſs; and before the firſt Ringing in the Morning none might go out to buy Proviſion.

LET no Baker make Meal of Felger, of Sticks, of Straw, nor of Ruſhes.

LET no Baker entertain any one beyond one Night, unleſs he have him ſuſpected of ſome Tranſgreſſion.

BAKERS

Bakers keeping Hogs may ſafely nouriſh them for themſelves in their own Houſes, or elſewhere, without the Streets and Lanes of the City.

Let no Regratereſs paſs London-Bridge towards Suthwerk, or elſewhere, to buy Bread, to carry it into the City of LONDON, to ſell; becauſe the Bakers of Suthwerk, nor of any other Place, are not ſubject to the Juſtice of the City.

Let no Baker draw away his Neighbour's Servant from his Service, as long as he ought to tarry in his Service, whether by Hire, or by Obligation of Truſt; and this under Pain of 40 s. for the Uſe of the Sheriff.

If any Baker's Servant make a Tranſgreſſion againſt his Maſter, ſo that he hath preſumed to depart unlicenſed from his Service, we decree under Forfeiture to the Sheriff, that none of the Bakers receive him, and retain him, until he have fully ſatisfied his Maſter.

Whereas it is common for Merchants to give Credit, and eſpecially for Bakers commonly to do the ſame with Regratereſſes; under the Pain before taxed we forbid, that no Baker make the Benefit of any Credit to a Regratereſs, as long as he ſhall know her to be involved in her Neighbour's Debt.

For the avoiding the innumerable and intolerable Dangers and Scandals which are often wont to ariſe between Fellow-Bakers; we firmly forbid, that none preſume to enter into this Trade, unleſs of his own, or the Help of his Friends, he can ſufficiently fulfil the ſaid Trade to our Lord the King, and the City of LONDON with 43 s. moveable Chattels, and find Pledge to perform it.

Let no Loaf be made to ſell, of three Farthings, or five Farthings, nor of an Halfpenny, nor of a greater Price. But in Caſe ſuch a Loaf ſhall be found to be carried in one's Arms, or under any Towels, let it be taken to the Uſe of the Sheriff, without any Recovery.

Bread made out of LONDON, and brought into the City to be ſold, we decree to be adulterate; and therefore we firmly enjoin, that no Baker nor Regratereſs preſume to buy any ſuch Bread to ſell, unleſs it be of competent Weight according to the Bread made in the City of LONDON, according to that which the Year requireth.

Let no Bread be taken cold, but warm, as it is delivered to the Baker by Aſſay.

Let no Turtary ſell Bread to a Regratereſs, neither in their Shops, but only in their Cheſts [or Baskets] and in the King's Market; and not in their Houſe, under Pain of 40 s.

Let no Turtary make White Bread to ſell, nor on the contrary,

Let no Bread be ſold in the King's Market but on Wedneſday and Saturday. And if any Bread ſhall be found to be ſold at the foreſaid Place but on thoſe ſaid Days, it ſhall be called a Forfeiture without Recovery.

Six or eight of the Trade of Bakers ſhall ſwear before the Sheriff to keep the foreſaid Statutes, and to accuſe thoſe that go againſt them.

The true Standard for Weights was once not to be found. Which occaſioned great Wrongs for want of right and juſt weighing of Goods, bought and ſold. Sir James Harvey, Mayor, informed the Lord Treaſurer thereof, (before whom this Buſineſs ſeemed more eſpecially to be brought) by his Letter, dated Decemb. 12, 1581, importing, "That where there was a great Abuſe and Fraud "daily uſed to the Queen's Majeſty's loving Sub-"jects, by reaſon of falſe Weights, as well with-"in this City as in other Cities and Places elſe-"where in the Realm; and whereof, as he was "informed, his Lordſhip had heretofore been made "privy, and had taken Care for the Reformation "thereof. And that notwithſtanding, the Abuſe "did yet continue; for that the true Standard "made according to the Statute, for the ſizing of "all Weights, could not be found. And he [the "Mayor] being this Year charged in Conſcience, "by reaſon of his Office, and Oath taken, to ſee "that Falſhood and Deceit puniſhed, he thought "it his Duty not only to remember his Lordſhip "thereof, but alſo humbly to beſeech him, that "it would pleaſe him, to give him [the Mayor] his "favourable Help and Advice, what Order or "Courſe he ſhould take with the City for the Re-"formation thereof. And ſo he committed his "Lordſhip to the merciful keeping of the Al-"mighty, &c.

Your Lordſhip's humble

As this Addreſs had been made to the Lord Treaſurer by the former Mayor, concerning the Deceits practiſed by means of falſe Weights, for want of the true Standard, and a Verdict touching the regulating the ſame, delivered into the Exchequer: So it ſticking there, Application was made again by the next Mayor, Blank, for an effectual Diſpatch of his neceſſary Affair; and that an Order might be ſent to him and his Brethren, the Aldermen, to ſize Weights; whoſe Letter to the Lord Treaſurer ran in theſe Words:

"My Duty moſt humbly done to your Lord-"ſhip. Having lately entered with my Brethren, "and the Common-Council of this City into eſta-"bliſhing of Orders for true and upright Uſe of "her Majeſties Beam, with the Weights thereto "belonging; which upon Continuance do daily "wear, and need to be renewed and ſized from "Time to Time; we have found it neceſſary to "be humble Suitors to your Lordſhip, that your "Lordſhip will have in your honourable Remem-"brance the great Want that this City and the "whole Realm findeth, for lack of Order to ſize "Weights. Whereby the Commonweal taketh "Detriment; and private Men preſume with-"out Order to ſell, and uſe unlawful Weights, "both in the City and in the Country, that are "accuſtomed to take their aſſizing from hence.

"We have thought the Time more convenient "now to move your Lordſhip, becauſe we hear, "that the later Verdict touching Weights is long "ſince delivered before your Lordſhip, and the "reſt, in the honourable Court of Exchequer. It "may pleaſe your Lordſhip to take Order with "ſuch Speed as your Lordſhip ſhall think meet, "for Certainty in this Behalf. And that your "Reſtraint be ſo releaſed, as our Officers may "be at Liberty to ſize accordingly. And ſo I "leave to trouble your Lordſhip. At London, "the laſt Day of July, 1583.

Your moſt humble,

Tho. Blank, Mayor.

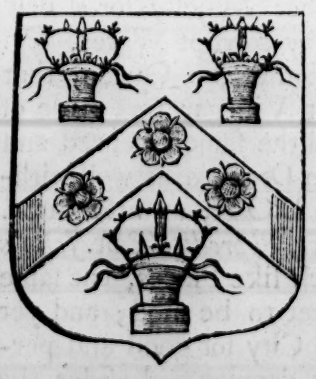
WAX-CHANDLERS.



THE Company of Wax-chandlers having been a Brotherhood of very antient ſtanding, and much uſed in the Times of Superſtition, became incorporated Anno Dom. 1484, the ſecond Year of King Richard III.

THEIR Arms, which were granted by Thomas Holland, Clarencieux, are, Azure, on a Chevron Argent

Argent between three Lamps, Or, as many Roſes Gules.

THIS Company are a Maſter, two Wardens, 23 Aſſiſtants, 71 Liverymen, and are, in the Whole, about 150. They may take but two Apprentices. The late Philip, Duke of Wharton, was a Liveryman of this Company.

THE Wax-chandlers Hall is in Maiden-lane, almoſt over-againſt Haberdaſhers-Hall.

TALLOW-CHANDLERS.

THE Company of the Tallow-chandlers, were a Society of great Antiquity, living, ſaith Stow, in good Formality among Men, and loving Agreement with themſelves. They became incorporated in the ſecond Year of King Edward IV. Anno Dom. 1461.

THE Arms and Creſt given to John Prior, John Thirloe, William Blakeman, and Richard Greencroft, Wardens, and to other notable Men of the Fellowſhip and Occupation of Tallow-chandlers of LONDON, Freemen, and to their Succeſſors for ever (having no Arms before) by John Smart, alias Garter, under his Hand and Seal of his Office, bearing Date Sept. 24. Anno Dom. 1456, 35 Hen. VI. the Motto, Delight in God, and he ſhall give thee thy Heart's Deſire. The Creſt is an Angel holding John Baptiſt's Head in a Charger, with a Glory about it. The Arms, Creſt, and Supporters were allowed and granted by William Camden, Clarencieux, with this Motto, Quæ arguuntur, a Lumine manifeſtantur; and confirmed in the Viſitation 1634, when this Company produced an antient Patent for theſe Arms, but another Creſt granted them by John Smart aforeſaid.

THE Arms are: Party per Feſs Azure and Argent, a Pale counterchanged; on every Piece of the firſt a Turtle Dove of the ſecond, with each an Olive Branch in its Mouth, Or.

THE Tallow-chandlers are govern'd by a Maſter, four Wardens, about 40 Aſſiſtants, and 147 Liverymen, &c. The Livery Fine is 15 l. 8 s.

THIS Company of Tallow-chandlers, in former Times, dealt not only in Candles, but in Oil, Vinegar, Butter, Hops, Soap, &c. They were in the 3d of Henry VIII. appointed to ſearch Oils, and had a Power to deſtroy ſuch as were mingled and corrupt: Which was by them executed for a Time, and much Oil thereby deſtroyed, that might have been employed to good Uſe: But for that no Fee was granted for the Execution, it was neglected.

IN Queen Elizabeth's Reign, about the Year 1576, and before, Abuſes and Deceits were daily uſed and increaſed in this Trade. Concerning which, the Chief of the Company had divers Conferences in their Common Hall: And about the ſaid Year 1576, they agreed that Roger Tyler, one of the Wardens, and in good Credit among them, as well for his honeſt Dealing, as for his Skill in this his Trade, ſhould ſue in Name of the whole Company, to her Majeſty for a new Grant, to ſearch and deſtroy corrupt Wares, &c. And hereupon they petition'd the Queen, that whereas much counterfeit Vinegar was made of corrupt Beer and Ale, and the ſame coloured and mingled with unwholeſome Dredges, as well within the Liberty of LONDON, as alſo in St. Katharine's, White-chapel, Shoreditch, St. John's Clerkenwell, and other ſuch like Places, the ſame being corrupt were unmeet to be uſed; and yet the ſame was ſold into the City for good and perfect; the People thereby deceived, beſides the Fear of great Infection to be bred therewith: And alſo Firkins of Salt Butter, mingled and packed up with old muſty Butter in divers Parts of the Firkins: And the like Abuſe uſed in Oil and Hops. For Reformation whereof, the Maſter and Wardens of Tallow-chandlers of LONDON, who did retail theſe Things, and finding daily theſe Deceits, were moved in Conſcience to procure Redreſs: Did moſt humbly beſeech the Queen's Majeſty to grant them Authority to have the peruſing of theſe Things, with the Aſſiſtance of the Lord Mayor and the Head Officers, for the reforming of theſe Deceits, and for the ſeeing of theſe Things to be good and perfect from henceforth.

THE Dredges uſed for colouring Vinegar were Elder-berries, Privet-berries, Torne-ſole, and ſuch other like Dredges. The muſty and mouldy Butter was packed in the Heart of the Veſſels of Butter: The Sallad-Oils were mingled with Lisbon Oil: The old and muſty Hops were packed in the Heart of the Sacks of Hops, and great Quantity of Red Sand mingled with the ſame, to make them weigh more: Which Mingling was done in Flander.

THE Queen's Letters Patents to this Company bore Date at Weſtminſter the 15th of April, in the 19th Year of her Reign; naming, appointing and authorizing the Maſter, Wardens and Commonalty of the Art and Myſtery of Tallow-chandlers of LONDON, and their Succeſſors and Deputies, to be Searchers, Examiners, Viewers and Triers of all Sope, Vinegar, Butter, Hops and Oils; and this Office of ſearching the Premiſſes was granted within London, Southwark, St. Katharine's, White-chapel, Shoreditch, Weſtminſter, St. John's, Clerkenwel, and St. Giles's in the Fields. And Prohibition was given that no Man ſhould put to Sale any of the Premiſſes before they were ſearched, upon Pain of Forfeiture: The one Moiety of the Forfeitures to the Queen, and the other to the Searchers. And for the Payment of the Searchers there was an Impoſition upon every Barrel of good Soap, 2 d. and ſo proportionably; upon a Tun of Vinegar, 8 d. upon a Barrel of Butter, 2 d. upon a Tun of Sevil Oil, 8 d. upon a Sack of Hops, 8 d. and ſo upon leſs Quantities proportionably; with a Clauſe of Revocation of theſe Letters Patents for Miſuſer.

BUT the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, October --- 1583, reſiſted the Execution of this Patent, and made a Declaration, why it ought to be ſtayed, and utterly void; and that by common Law, and alſo by Act of Parliament, viz. the Statute of 12 Edw. IV. cap, 8. "Item, whereas "the Governours, that is, the Maiors, Bailiffs, "and other like Governours of every City, Burgh, "and Town of Subſtance within this Realm, &c." By Virtue of which Law the Lord Mayor's learned Council urged, that of common Right, and by the Laws of the Realm, the ſurveying of all Victuals, and the Correction aud Puniſhment of the Offenders and Breakers of the Aſſize of the ſame, are to be preſented, and amerced in the Law-Days, Leets, and Views of Frank-Pledge. And that the Lords of the ſaid Courts are inheritable to the ſame Amerciaments. But by this Charter made to the Tallow-chandlers, they are to be diſinherited for ever. And in all the Places mentioned in the Patent, where the Tallow-chandlers have their Power of Searching, the Lords of the Liberty have Leets or Law-Days. To whom, by Reaſon of the ſame Liberty, the Scrutiny and Search of the Premiſſes do juſtly and of Right pertain. In Southwark, the Lord Mayor and Commons have a Leet, or Law-Day. In Weſtminſter, the Dean and Chapter. In St. Catharine's, the Maſter and Confreres. In White-chapel, the Lord Wentworth. In Shoreditch, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's. In Clerkenwell, the Queen. In St. Giles's in the Fields, and in High High Holborn, the Lord Mountjoy. So that there was no Place left where the Tallow-chandlers might exerciſe the ſaid Office of Search, but where other Men were juſtly inheritable in the ſame.

ANOTHER Argument againſt this Patent was, That the Mayor and Aldermen of the City, and all other the Governors thereof, and their Predeceſſors always, Time out of Mind, had, and uſed to have the View, Search and Correction of all Myſteries and Crafts within the City, for and concerning all Manner of Deceits and Defaults in all Things touching their Myſteries: Which was to be proved as well by the daily Uſage, as alſo by a great Number of Records and Precedents of the ſaid City. And beſides the general Uſage and Cuſtom, there were ſpecial Grants and Charters made to the City touching theſe Things in Queſtion; as, Butter, Hops, Vinegar, &c. Theſe were the Arguments and Pleadings of Fleetwood, Recorder, Thomas Wykes, and William Daniel, all learned Lawyers.

THEY urged alſo, that the Impoſition contained in the ſaid Letters Patents was againſt the Common Law, and the Liberty of every Subject in his Goods, and againſt the free Traffick of the City of LONDON, granted by Charter, in the 50th of Hen. III. That there was no Need of this Patent; for the Tallow-chandlers ſearching theſe Commodities, becauſe the Lord Mayor was bound by his Oath, taken in the Exchequer, to perform the ſaid Search. The Words of the Oath are theſe: "Good Aſſize yee ſhall ſet upon "Bread, Wine, Ale, Fiſh, Fleſh, Corn, and "all other Victuals. Weights and Meaſures "in the ſaid City yee ſhall do to be kept; and "due Execution do upon the Defaults that "thereof ſhall be found, according to all the "Statutes thereof made, not repealed.

THIS may likewiſe be added concerning the Tallow-chandlers, which happen'd in the Reign of King Edward VI. Anno 1551. The Tallow-chandlers of LONDON, upon ſome Diſguſt, perhaps upon the City's ſetting too low a Price upon their Commodities, refuſed to ſell any, by an univerſal Conſent: Which came ſo far, that Orders were taken by the King and Council, commanding them to ſell their Candles; and ſome of them were ſent to Priſon.

THE Tallow-chandlers Hall is a handſome Building, ſituated on the Weſt of Dowgate-Hill.

CUTLERS.

THE Company of Cutlers are of great Antiquity, and were incorporated in the Beginning of the Reign of King Henry V. and afterwards confirmed by K. Henry VI. King Henry VIII. King Philip and Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth. And King James I. in his 5th Year, the 8th Day of February, confirmed all.

THE Arms of the Cutlers of LONDON were granted by Thomas Holme, Clarencieux, King at Arms, the 16th of King Edward IV. the Creſt by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux.

THE Arms are: Gules, ſix Daggers in three Saltier Croſſes, Argent, handled and hilted, Or, pointing towards the Chief. Supporters; Two Elephants, Argent. Creſt; an Elephant with a Caſtle on his Back, Or.

THIS Company are a Maſter, two Wardens, 23 Aſſiſtants, and 96 on the Livery, &c. The Livery Fine is 10 l. and the Stewards 5 l.

THEY are the 22d Company.

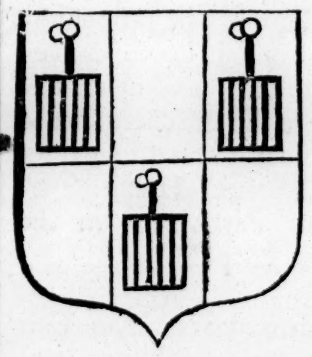
KNIVES for Hundreds of Years (paſt all Memory) were made in this Kingdom, but coarſe and uncomely, till King James I's Time, when the beſt Knives in the World were made in LONDON. Richard Matthew, at Fleet-bridge, was the firſt Engliſhman who attained to the Skill of making fine Knives and Knive-Hafts; and the 5th of Queen Elizabeth he obtained a Prohibition againſt all Strangers and others, from bringing any Knives into England from beyond Seas; which until that Time were brought in by Ship-Loads from Flanders and other Places.

THE ſame Richard Matthew, about the Middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, got a Privilege from her Majeſty under her Great Seal, for the making of Knives and Daggers with a new Kind of Hafts: But this was complained to have been, and further would be, the Decay and Overthrow of the whole Company of Cutlers, within this City, beſides their Wives, Children, and Apprentices; and the Prices of Knives and Daggers exceſſively enhaunced, prejudicial to the Queen's Subjects.

IN the Hall of this Company, ſituate in Cloak-lane, is an antient Picture of one Mrs. Crawthorne, who gave the Bell Savage on Ludgate-hill to the Cutlers, with Truſt, out of the Rents thereof to perform ſeveral charitable Acts yearly, as two Exhibitions for Scholars in Cambridge, Coals for the Poor of the Pariſhes of St. Bride's and St. Sepulchre's, and certain Payments to the Priſons, and to St. Thomas's Hoſpital.

THESE Cutlers formerly were three Companies, according to three different Arts or Trades, viz. Bladers, who were Smiths that forged Blades; Haftmakers, ſuch as made the Hafts for the Blades; Sheathmakers, that made Sheaths for Swords, Daggers, and Knives. Afterwards all, 4 Hen. VI. incorporated into one Fraternity, by the Name of Cutlers. Of theſe ſee more in Vintry Ward, Book III. Page 504.

GIRDLERS.



THE Company of Girdlers are not much behind-hand (with others) for Eminency and Antiquity, becauſe they have held good Correſpondency with the World, and with themſelves: They became to be incorporated the 6th Day of Auguſt, in the 27th Year of the Reign of King Henry VI. Anno Dom. 1448.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Per feſs Azure, and Or, a Pale counterchanged, each Piece of the firſt charged with a Gridiron of the ſecond. Creſt; a demy Effigies of St. Laurence, holding in his Right Hand a Gridiron, the firſt of the Colour, the latter of the Metal aforeſaid.

THEY are a Maſter, three Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, and 84 on the Livery. Livery Fine 10 l.

THE Girdlers Hall, is a handſome Brick Building ſituated on the Eaſt Side of and toward the North End of Baſing-hall Street, built Anno 1681.

BUTCHERS.

THE Butchers were incorporated by K. James I. under his Letters Patents, bearing date the Sixteenth Day of September, in the third Year of his Reign, in England, and in Scotland the Nine and Twentieth; Anno Domini 1604. They were incorporated by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Myſtery of Butchers of the City of LONDON; the Fraternity being very Antient.

THEY are a Maſter, 4 Wardens, 16 Aſſiſtants, and 193 on the Livery; the Livery Fine is 2 l. and for Steward 18 l.

THEIR Arms are, Azure, two Axes Saltier-ways Or, headed proper, between Three Bulls-heads couped Argent Armed Or, on a Chief of the 4th. a Boars Head eraſed Gules, between Two Garbs of the 5th. Supporters; Two winged Bulls. and a third for the Creſt, all as in Chief. Motto, Omnia ſubjeciſti ſub Pedibus, Oves & Boves.

Thomas le Bedel, Robert le Bedel, Alan Underwode, Edmund May, Butchers, came before John le Blund, Mayor of LONDON, John de Wengrave, William de Leyre, Richer de Refham, Adam de Fulham, &c. Aldermen. And it was found by their Recognizance, that they held Land de Villinagio of the Biſhop of LONDON, in Stebenhethe, and they remain out of the Freedom of the City of LONDON. Therefore it follows, that they loſe the Freedom of the City. Yet Bracton ſaith, Villenagium vel Servitium nihil detrahit Libertatis, habita tamen diſtinctione, utrum tales ſint Villani. And the Law Interpreter writes, that Tenure in Villenage could make no Man Villain, until it were continued Time out of Mind.

UPON Occaſion of the Plague in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, continuing in the City for a long Time (either in the Year 1563, or ſome Plague afterwards) an Ingenious Italian Gentleman, and Phyſician, as it ſeems, aſſigned one great Cauſe of it to be, the Killing of Cattle within the City. Blood and Garbage lying ſo long in the Shops, and in ſome other Corners before it was removed, gave a moſt unſavory Smell. And this chiefly in Eaſt-cheap, and St. Nicholas Fleſh Shambles, Places of great Thoroughfare. And carried away by Night thorow the Streets unto the River, ſpread as it paſſed a very offenſive Scent, leaving it behind. Therefore he propounded, that the Queen ſhould build in ſome convenient Place in the Suburbs of this, and other Cities, Slaughter-Houſes, where the Butchers ſhould kill their Beaſt; and the Queen to be allowed for every Beaſt, killed in her Slaughter-Houſe. Specially there being an Act of Parliament in the Reign of Henry VII. for this Purpoſe.

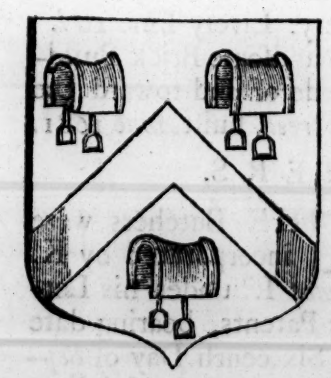
THE Butchers Hall is ſituated on the Eaſt Side of Pudding-lane, it is a good Building; and in the Stair-Caſe of this Hall hangs the Coat Armour of Mr. James Leverett, of Great-Chelſea, who left 500 l. to the Uſe of the Poor of this Company: He died the 17th Day of September, 1662.

SADLERS.



THE Sadlers are a Company of great Antiquity, being incorporated in the Reign of Edward I. and confirmed by moſt ſucceeding Kings.

THEY conſiſt of a Maſter, three Wardens, 22 Aſſiſtants, 65 Liverymen, &c. Their Livery Fine is 10 l.

THEIR Arms are: Azure, a Chevron between three Saddles, Or. Supporters; two Horſes Argent, bridled, Gules, bitted of the ſecond. Motto, Our Truſt is in God.

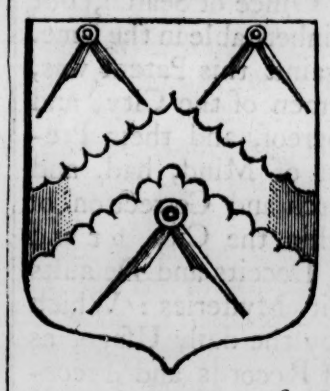
THE Hall of this Company is ſituated on the North Side, and near the Weſt End of Cheapſide.

CARPENTERS.



THE Company of Carpenters, being a Society of antient Standing, were incorporated by Letters Patents, bearing Date the 7th Day of July, in the 17th Year of the Reign of King Edward IV. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Myſtery of Freemen of the Carpentry of the City of LONDON.

THEIR Arms are: Argent, a Chevron engrailed between three Pair of Compaſſes, pointing toward the Baſe, and a little extended, Sable.

THIS Company are a Maſter, three Wardens, Aſſiſtants uncertain, 99 on the Livery, beſides Yeomanry. The Livery Fine is 8 l.

THE Carpenters Hall is ſituated on the South Side of LONDON Wall, almoſt againſt the Eaſt End of Bethlehem.

IN this Hall, in Memory of two eminent Members of this Company, hang up two Pictures repreſenting them. The one is an aged Perſon, in a Ruff, well drawn; with one Hand putting a Compaſs upon a Rule, held in the other; and underwrit,

WILLIAM PORTINGTON, Eſq;

Maſter Carpenter in the Office of his Majeſty's Buildings. Who ſerved that Place 40 Years, and departed this Life the 28th of March 1628, aged 84 Years. Who was a Well-wiſher of this Society. This being the Gift of Matthew Banks, who ſerved him 14 Years, and is, at this preſent, Maſter of the ſaid Company, Auguſt 19, 1637.

THE other Picture is more modern, and under-written:

This Picture of John Scot, Eſq; Carpenter and Carriage-Maker to the Office of Ordnance, in the Reign of King Charles II. was placed here by his Apprentice Matthew Banks, Eſq; Maſter Carpenter to his Majeſty, and Maſter of this Company this preſent Year 1698.

A Table alſo hangs up for Richard Wiat of LONDON, Eſq; thrice Maſter of this Company of Carpenters, Anno Dom. 1604, 1605, 1616, and a good Benefactor thereunto. Among other Gifts he gave 500 l. to build an Almshouſe near Godalmin in Surrey, for ten poor Men, and 70 l. a Year to maintain them. And his Wife added ſomething, for the Company to go down and viſit it.

CORDWAINERS.

THE Company of Shoe-makers or Cordwainers, as they ſtile themſelves, have been of long Continuance, and were firſt incorporated in the 17th Year of King Henry VI. being afterward confirmed by King Philip and Queen Mary, in the 4th and 5th Years of their Reign: Then again re-confirmed by Queen Elizabeth, in the 4th Year of her Reign: And laſtly, by King James I.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Azure, a Chevron, Or, between three Goats Heads eraſed Argent, attired of the ſecond.

THEY

They conſiſt of a Maſter, four Wardens, 16 on the Court of Aſſiſtants, and 104 Liverymen. The Livery Fine is 10 l. They may take three Apprentices.

Concerning theſe Cordwainers there was an Act made in the 4th Year of King Edward IV. (which anſwereth to the Year of our Lord 1464.) to this Tenour: "That no Cordwainer or Cobler, be he within Franchiſe or without, make "any Shoes, Galoſhes, or Huſeaus, with any "Pyke or Poleyn, that ſhould paſs the Length "of two Inches, to be judged by the Wardens "or Governors of the ſame Myſtery in the City: "Nor ſell any upon Sundays or Feaſts of the "Nativity and Aſcenſion, and Corpus Chriſti; "nor ſet or put them upon the Feet or Legs of "any Perſon on thoſe Days, upon Pain of For-"feiture of 20 s.

Whence we may obſerve certain Antiqnities concerning theſe Tradeſmen and their Ware, about 240 Years ago. Firſt, That the Name of Shoemaker was not yet known for thoſe of this Calling, but Cordwainer or Cobler, and that the Name of Cobler was not then a Name of Contempt, for a Man of leſs Skill in that Myſtery, or only a Mender, but for a Maker and Seller of that Commodity. Secondly, That there were in thoſe Times three Sorts of Shoes worn, Shoes, Galoſhes, and Huſeaus; of whatſoever Faſhion they were, 'tis uncertain; but that one of theſe three Sorts covered the Legs, or at leaſt ſome Part of the Leg, as others were for the Feet. And thoſe perhaps for the Legs were the Huſeaus; ſomewhat like it may be to the Buskin, or perhaps rather to the high Shoes, which Countrymen wear in ſome dirty miry Countries. Thirdly, That the Shoes, Galoſhes, &c. were with Toes of an extraordinary Length, and ſharp, called therefore Pykes, or Poleyns: And that the People, eſpecially the better Sort, ſo affected the wearing them, that an Act was fain to be made to reſtrain the Length of thoſe Pykes to a certain Meaſure; that is to ſay, not to above two Inches. Fourthly, That theſe Cordwainers had a Privilege, or at leaſt a Cuſtom, beyond other Tradeſmen, to ſit and ſell their Shoes on Sundays, and the greateſt Holidays; which was therefore now prohibited upon a Penalty.

This antient Corporation in the Year 1577, built a fair and new Hall for themſelves. And on Tueſday, July 23, the ſame Year, they made a magnificent Feaſt for their Friends; which they called, their Houſe-warming. Here was preſent, among the reſt of the honorary Gueſt, the Recorder Fleetwood.

Of the Foreigners born, that flocked over into England, not far off from the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, many were of this Occupation of Shoe-makers. Whereupon Anno 1576, this Company procured a Commiſſion to enquire of certain Aliens born, being of the ſaid Trade; Firſt, Whether they were Denizens, or not. And if they where, then to enquire by whom they were ſo made. Secondly, Whether thoſe Denizens, being Strangers, had refuſed to pay to the ſaid Shoe-makers of LONDON every Quarter, in the Name of Quarteridge, 6 d. according to a certain Decree thereof, made in the Star Chamber, and confirmed, as they ſaid, by Act of Parliament. Thirdly, Whether there were any Proviſo in the ſaid Denizens Letters Patents, binding them thereby to do and pay, as the Citizens ought to do: And alſo, what Penalty and Loſs the ſaid Strangers ought to ſuſtain thereby, not doing and paying as is aforeſaid.

For the better underſtanding of the aboveſaid, it muſt be known, that in the fifth Year of the Queen there was an Act made concerning Tanners, Curriers, and other Artificers occupying the cutting of Leather, That every Stranger born, or other, uſing to convert Tanned Leather into made Wares, might thenceforth buy all kind of Tanned Leather to the Intent aforeſaid, upon every Monday in the Market at Leadenhall in LONDON. Sithence the making whereof, the Shoe-makers and Curriers, being Free of the City of LONDON, exacted 2 s. Yearly, as well of every Engliſh, as Stranger Foreign Houſholder, and 12 d. upon every like Foreign Journeyman, within three Miles compaſs of LONDON, in the Name of Quarteridge; contrary to the Meaning of the ſaid Statute, or any other Grant, And for the better confirming of this Exaction, they practiſed with certain Foreigners, to conſcend in the Name of all the reſt, although in Truth without their Conſent, to ſet down the ſame by an Order in the Exchequer. And thereupon, as was ſuppoſed, they made the Foreigners Free of the City: And other Foreigners they perſuaded in their Hall to become bound in Obligation of 4 l. for the true Payment thereof.

And in a Parliament Anno 1575, they exhibited an odious Bill againſt the ſaid Foreigners, as well Engliſh as Strangers; requiring thereby, that the Foreigners might be ſecluded and avoided from buying of Tanned Leather on the ſaid Monday at Leadenhall-Market, or in any other open Market in the City: To the Intent that all ſuch Leather ſhould be bought at their Hands, and not elſewhere: And the Foreigners ſhould be reſtrained from bringing or ſelling any their made Wares unto any Honourable, Worſhipful, or Common Perſon within the City of LONDON, upon Pain of Forfeiture of the ſaid Wares, contrary to former Statutes, and againſt all antient Uſage and Cuſtom.

Whereupon the whole Company of Shoemakers, inhabiting within the Liberty of the City of Weſtminſter, as well Engliſh as Strangers, petitioned the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, (who was High Steward of Weſtminſter) ſhewing, how they, all her Majeſty's loving Subjects, charged with many Children, Houſholds and Families, ſhould utterly be impoveriſhed, if the ſaid Bill ſhould take Effect; and many Honourable, Worſhipful and other People might be diſappointed of ſuch Wares, to their great Diſcommodities, and Enhancement of Prices for the ſame againſt the Common Weal. And for that they could not any wiſe obtain a Sight or Copy of the Bill, whereby to propoſe any Allegations or probable Matter, to ſubvert or reject the ſame. And for that they were poor, and a Number of unskilful Perſons, having no other Refuge under her Majeſty, but only his Lordſhip, to defend them; therefore they prayed him to give his Furtherance and Aid in that High Court of Parliament, and that he might continue and enjoy the Benefit of the ſaid Market, and Buying of Leather, as in the late Statute was expreſs'd, without any Repeal of the ſame; and to occupy and retail their ſaid Wares with Reſtraint, Exactions, Forfeitures, or Servility.

This Controverſy between the Shoe-makers of Weſtminſter, and the Company of Shoe-makers of LONDON, continued the next Year. For the Company ſet forth Articles againſt thoſe of Weſtminſter; and they, on the other hand, gave in their Anſwers to thoſe Articles.

Another particular Conteſt between them was, That the Shoe-makers of Weſtminſter made great Endeavours, that the Company of Cordwainers of LONDON, ſhould not have the Searching of their Wares, tho' the Queen, by Letters Patent, had granted to the Maſter and Wardens of the ſame Myſtery, the Search and Correction of all Men occupying the ſame Art within the City of LONDON, and three Miles Compaſs; and this confirmed by an Act. To evade this Patent and Act, divers Strangers that made Boots and Shoes, did ſue to Edward Dyer, Eſq; to have a Licence to be diſpenſed with, from all Contempts, Penalties, and Forfeitures, whatſoever, committed or incurred by Reaſon of Force or any Article contained in that Statute: Which made the Company of Cordwainers in September, 1577, petition the Lord Treaſurer, that no ſuch Licence might be granted: That they might not be at Liberty to make and work their Wares contrary to good Laws and Statutes, and hurtful to the Profit of the common People, and dangerous to the Wardens of the Company, by Reaſon of a Penalty of 5 l. to be laid upon them, for every Default made by any Shoemakers in their Wares.

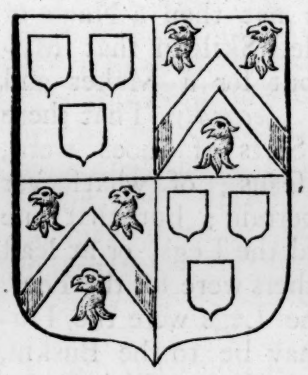
THE Heats ſtill grew between them. For the next thing you hear of them was, That the Free Shoe-makers ſued the Shoe-makers in Weſtminſter in the Exchequer: And theſe Shoe-makers on the other hand exhibited a Bill againſt the Free Shoemakers in the High Court of Star-Chamber, upon divers Extortions by them ſuppoſed to be committed. For which, to be quit with them again, the Free Shoe-makers indicted them at a Seſſions of a Peace held in the County of Middleſex, alledging, That the Repair that the Shoe-makers of Weſtminſter had made unto their Solicitor, one Francis Sparry, was an unlawful Rout and Aſſembly, unlawfully to gather Money to the Maintenance of their Suits, thinking to enforce one to bear the Suit againſt them. And ſithence that Time, they arreſted one Edward Tyſe, one of the Shoe-makers dwelling at the Savoy, binding him unto the Peace without a Cauſe of his Breach of the Peace, and without any Oath-taking, only to put him, being a poor Man, to extreme Charge and Trouble. And when the Shoe-makers Solicitor was ſerving a Subpœna upon one John Lenche, to come to the Star-Chamber, there came running upon him the ſaid Solicitor with a Dagger down to the Ground, and had ſlain him, had not others preſent ſaved him. And not therewith contented, they reported, they would not only undo theſe Shoe-makers, but all thoſe that would be Aiders. and take Part with them. All this theſe Men in a Petition laid open before the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, praying him to grant, that they might have their Cauſes as well in the Court of Exchequer, as in their Court of Star-Chamber depending, to be heard and determined with Expedition; and that Juſtice Southcote, and ſome other Juſtice of Peace within the County of Middleſex, might conſider upon the ſaid Indictment, and take Order therein, according to Law and Juſtice.

THE Free Shoemakers, in the Month of October, 1578, put up another Petition to the Lord Treaſurer, ſetting forth their Caſe, viz. That there was an Order in the Star-Chamber in King Henry the VIIIth's Time, that all Srrangers Artificers ſhould be Contributors as the King's natural Subjects were; and ſhould come to the Halls, and take the Oaths to be true to the King and his Heirs. Of which ſundry Exemplifications were made and ſent to the ſeveral Companies in LONDON; and among the reſt, one to the Cordwainers: But that certain Srrangers of that Art, as namely, Francis Gerers, Daniel Swarts, John Yong, Edward Tyſon, Leonard Harman, and many other by their Examples, did not regard the ſaid Decree, nor the Acts and Laws of the Realm. And not contented with the Queen's charitable Protection, did refuſe to come to the Aſſembly, and obey and be governed as her Majeſty's natural Subjects. Whereas in their Country the Engliſh could not be ſuffered to get their Living by any Art. And whereas the Queen by her Charter made to the ſaid Myſtery, expreſly granted and commanded, that all the ſaid Perſons ſhould be obedient to the lawful Ordinances of the ſaid Company (which Ordinances were, by the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, and the Lords Chief Juſtices perus'd, ratify'd and confirm'd, according to an Act of Parliament in that Caſe provided) the Strangers, for juſtifying their Contempt, did arrogantly and untruly pretend the Lord Treaſurer's Letters in their Favour, written to the Lord Mayor and Recorder of LONDON, before whom the ſaid Company had no Cauſe depending. Therefore they prayed his Lordſhip to examine, or cauſe the Premiſſes to be examined; and to give Order, that her Majeſty's Laws, Commiſſions, Charters, and Commandments, and the lawful Ordinances of the Company, might be duly obeyed.

THE Cordwainers Hall is ſituated at the Meeting of Great and Little Diſtaff-lane; it is a Brick Building, with handſome Rooms in it; the Hall is adorned with the Pictures of King William and Queen Mary, given by one of the Members.

PAINTERS.



THE Company of the Painters, having the Addition of Painters-Stainers, for their Skill and Cunning in divers myſterious Works, have been a Society of great Antiquity from Time to Time, and were incorporated Anno Dom. 1580, it being the 23d Year of Queen Elizabeth.

THE Armorial Enſigns of this Company are: Azure, three Eſcutcheons Argent, quarter'd with Azure; a Chevron between three Phœnix Heads eraſed, Or. Creſt; is a Phœnix in Flames, proper. Supporters; are two Panthers crowned.

THIS Company is compoſed of Face-Painters, Hiſtory-Painters, Arms-Painters, and Houſe-Painters. They are a Maſter, two Wardens, about 24 Aſſiſtants, and 136 Liverymen; the Livery Fine is 14 l.

THE Painters-Stainers were a Brotherhood ſince the Times of Edward III. and a Company, and ſo continued till the Year 1575, and 17th of Queen Elizabeth, but no Corporation; paying Scot, Lot, and all Kinds of Charges in the Queen's Affairs, and otherwiſe; as, in Time of War, charged with the ſetting forth of twelve Soldiers and all their Furniture; they having neither Lands, Revenues, nor any Riches to diſcharge the ſame; but only levied among the Brethren of the Company, every Man according to his Ability. Which Brethren were maintained by their good Workmanſhip in their Trades. But now, about the Time beforeſaid, their Trade began to go to Decay, by Reaſon of other Perſons that had not been Apprentices to it, who undertook Painting; as Plaiſterers and others, intermeddling in the ſame Science: And the Painters having no Power to reſtrain them by Virtue of any Corporation, to the great Slander of the Art and Science, and the utter Decay and Ruin of all ſuch as would endeavour to be good Workmen in the ſame, much ſlight Work went off, as Pictures of the Queen Noblemen, and others; and all other Manner of Works, which ſhewed fair to the Sight: And the People bought the ſame, being much deceived; for that ſuch Pictures and Works were not ſubſtantially wrought: A Slander to the whole Company of Painters, and a great Decay of all Workmanſhip in the ſaid Science; and alſo a great Diſcouragement to divers forward young Men, very deſirous to travel for Knowledge in the ſame.

OF this the Painters made Complaint from Time to Time, to the Lord Mayor for the Time being being; and yet could never get any Redreſs for the ſame. The Reaſon whereof, they ſaid, was, that they had no Judgment or Skill in that Science, to diſcern ſuch fraudulent Workmanſhip from that was ſubſtantial and good. Therefore Anno 1575 and 1576, they addreſſed to the Queen, that ſhe would conſider their Cauſe, and give Aid and Aſſiſtance to them; and deſired of her to be incorporated by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of Painter-Stainers within the City, Liberties and Suburbs of the City of LONDON, being Freemen and Citizens of the ſame; and to be enabled to purchaſe Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments to the Uſe and Behalf of that Company, in Fee; to have a Common Seal; to chooſe a Maſter, Wardens and Aſſiſtants, according to Ordinances to be made by them; to execute all Cauſes pertaining to that Company; to reſtrain, that none be ſuffered to uſe that Trade, but ſuch as have been, or ſhall be Apprentices to ſome of that Myſtery ſeven Years; to have Authority to enter into any Shops, Warehouſes or Workhouſes of Men exerciſing that Myſtery, and to ſearch, examine and ſurvey their Works, Painting, Colours, or other Stuff, &c. This was granted.

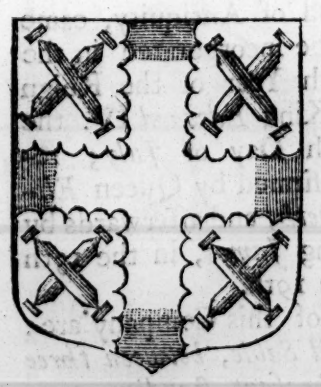
One George Gower was Queen Elizabeth's Serjeant Painter. Who had a Warrant from her for him, or his ſufficient Deputy or Deputies, for the better Execution of his Office, to take up and provide for the Queen, and in her Name, for the only Proviſion of her Service, all Colour, Oil, Varniſh, Workmen and Labourers as well Free as Foreign, and all manner of Neceſſaries and Stuff whatſoever, meet to be employed for that Service: And alſo to take up all manner of Carriages, as Barges, Boats, Carts, Wayns, Horſes, with their Furnitures, neceſſary for the Conveyances of the Premiſſes, as well by Water as Land, at reaſonable Payments and Prices to be made in that behalf.

The Art of Painting is now again much decayed, on Account of ſeveral Perſons making a Property of Part of the Profits the Painters ought to enjoy, as Coach-makers, and Undertakers of Funerals, taking upon them to paint Coats of Arms and other Things, as well as what belongs to their own Trade; and Bricklayers, Plaiſterers, &c. undertaking the Houſe-Painting, beſides their own Buſineſs; for they, to get their Work done at cheap Rates, employ unskilful Men who have never ſerved Apprenticeſhips to the Trade, and by theſe Means many thouſand Yards of good Wainſcot is ſpoiled every Year.

Painter-Stainers-Hall is ſituated on the Weſt Side of Little Trinity-lane, of which ſee an Account in Queen-hithe Ward, Book III. Chap. X.

CURRIERS.



The Curriers were a Company of long Continuance among themſelves, and became incorporated in the third Year of King James I. Anno Domini 1605.

They are a Maſter, 2 Wardens, 15 Aſſiſtants, and 100 on the Livery; the Livery-Fine is 7 l. and for Steward 3 l. more.

Their Armorial Enſigns are, Sable, a Croſs engrailed Or, between Four pair of Shaves in Saltier, Argent, Creſt, Two Arms, the Hands holding a Shave; Supporters, a Buck Or, and a Goat Argent. The Motto, Spes Noſtra Deus.

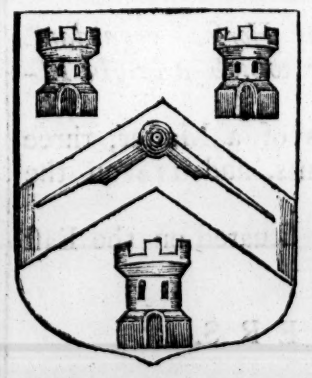
The Trade of theſe Curriers, or Coriers, is chiefly to prepare and dreſs Leather for the Uſe of the Cordwainers or Shoe-makers. In the Times of Queen Elizabeth their happened Contention between them and the Shoe-makers, about the ill Dreſſing of their Leather, and about the Prices to be paid them for their Work; about ſelling and buying of Leather in their own Houſes, and about coming to the Markets to buy Leather, which would not be allowed them. But at laſt, about the Year 1590, both Parties came to Articles of Agreement indented. As, That the Curriers ſhould have the Dreſſing of all the Leather bought in Leadenhall and Southwark Markets, and three Miles compaſs of LONDON. That the Shoemakers ſhould find Tallow for the tallowing of their Backs; and that the Curriers ſhould not refuſe to accept thereof, unleſs it were inſufficient and not good. That the Shoe-makers ſhould give hereafter, for the Dreſſing of all Upper-Leather Hides, 2 s. a piece, the Curriers finding good and ſufficient Stuff. That the Shoe-makes ſhould give to the Curriers from Lady-Day to Michaelmas, for Currying and Tallowing of Backs, 6 d. and the Shoe-makers to find Tallow; and from Michaelmas to Lady-Day, 8 d. ſo that they ſhall be well ſliked. The Shoe-makers to give for the Dreſſing of all Kind of Skins, 3 s. 4 d. a Dozen. But all this upon theſe Conditions on the Cordwainers Side, viz. That if any Hide, Back, or Skin, ſhall be found by the Maſter and Wardens of the Cordwainers for Time being, to be inſufficiently Dreſſed and Wrought by any Currier, then the ſaid Currier ſhall forfeit to the Party grieved the Sum of 10 s. And that whenſoever any Currier ſhould come into their Markets at Leadenhall, Southwark, Bartholomew Fair, or three Miles Compaſs, the Maſter and Warden, of the Cordwainers ſhould commit him that ſhall be found there to Priſon, there to remain 24 Hours without Bail or Mainprize; and forfeit ſuch a Fine to the Chamber of LONDON, as the Lord Mayor and Aldermen ſhould think convenient. And that if any Free Currier ſhould buy or ſell any Kind of Leather in their Houſes, or elſewhere; then the ſaid Maſter and Wardens ſhould have the like Authority to commit him to Priſon, there to remain during the Time aforeſaid, and pay ſuch Fine as the Lord Mayor and Aldermen ſhould think convenient. Otherwiſe the Free Cordwainers could not agree to the Articles aforeſaid.

The Curriers Hall is ſituated near the Weſt End of London-Wall, on the South Side of a Street ſo called.

MASONS.



This Company were incorporated about the Year 1410, having been called the FREE MASONS, a Fraternity of great Account, who have been honour'd by ſeveral Kings and very many of the Nobility and Gentry, being of their Society. They are govern'd by a Maſter, two Wardens, 25 Aſſiſtants, and there are 65 on the Livery; the Fine for which is 5 l. and that for Steward 10 l. They may take one Apprentice, and after choſen Warden, 2.

Their Arms (granted by William Hauckeſlow, Clarencieux, King at Arms, 13 Edw. IV.) are, Azure, on a Chevron between three Caſtles Argent, a Pair of Compaſſes ſomewhat extended of the firſt. Creſt; a Caſtle of the ſecond.

PLUMBERS.

THE Company of Plumbers, of large and very memorable Antiquity, remaining a Fellowſhip, or Brotherhood, by the Name of Plumbers, at length attained to be incorporated by Letters Patents, the 11th or 12th Day of April, in the 9th Year of K. James I. of England, and of Scotland the four and fortieth, &c.

THEY are a Maſter, two Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, and 53 on the Livery; the Fine for which is 10 l. They are one entire Company of that Trade, admitting none to be free that are of others; nor are any of their Trade free of other Companies.

THEIR Arms are: Or, on a Chevron between a Mallet Sable, and two Plummets Azure in Chief, and a Level of the ſecond in Baſe; two Sodering-Irons in Saltier, entre a Cutting-Knife and a Shave-Hook Argent. The Creſt; Juſtice with a Sword in his Right Hand, and a Balance in his Left, ſtanding on a Fountain of the fourth, where are the Words, Juſtitia Pax. The Motto is, In God is all our Hope.

The Plumbers Hall is a handſome, though not very large one, in Chequer-yard, on the Eaſt Side of Dowgate-hill.

INNHOLDERS.

THE Company of Innholders, having been a Community or Society of honeſt friendly Men, by their often meeting and converſing together, as in thoſe Days it was a Matter much obſerved, became to be incorporated in the 6th Year of King Henry VIII. and ſo renewed from Time to Time.

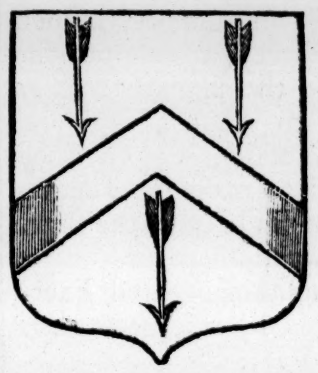
FLETCHERS.



THE Company of Fletchers were incorporated much more antient than any Corporation now of LONDON, as by their Tradition; and that they have, to this Day, preſerved in their Hall a Banner, given them by K. John, which upon ſolemn Occaſions, is carried amongſt the other Trophies of their Company. And they have other Matters relating to their good Government, writ in the Saxon Tongue; which they preſerve with a great deal of Care and Reverence. The Arms of their Company were granted them by William Hawkeſlowe, otherwiſe called Clarencieux King of Arms, the 12th Day of October, in the 7th Year of Edward IV. In which Patent he ſays, he hath deviſed a Coniſaunce of Arms, For the Maiſteeres and Wardeyns, and their Succeſſoures.

THEY are governed by two Wardens, 10 Aſſiſtants, and 18 on the Livery; the Livery Fine is 5 l.

ALTHO' there is ſmall Reaſon of ſundring Bows from Arrows, or Arrows from Bows; yet they divided themſelves into two ſeveral Companies.

BESIDES theſe two Trades belonging to Archers, there were alſo two more, namely Stringers and Arrow-Head-makers. All theſe about the Year 1570 and odd, petitioned the Lord Treaſurer: Wherein they ſtile themſelves, the Decayed Company of Bowyers, Fletchers, Stringers and Arrow-Head-makers, as well in the City of LONDON, as elſewhere through the Realm. They had made a Petition to the Queen before, concerning their own decayed Condition, by reaſon of the Diſcontinuance of the Uſe of Archery, and Toleration of unlawful Games and Exerciſes. Concerning which, Aubrey, Maſter of Requeſts, told them what the Lord Treaſurer had ſaid upon View of their ſaid Petition, viz. That he thought it meet and requiſite a Commiſſion ſhould be granted, to ſome of the Chief of the Companies of Bowyers and Fletchers, Freemen of the City; as well for ſuppreſſing unlawful Games, as alſo for the Enforcement of the Exerciſes of the Long Bow, according to the Law and Statute of this Realm, in thoſe Caſes provided. Upon this they preferred a Petition to him, to have due and favourable Conſideration of the Cauſe of their Complaint, with their decayed Eſtates; and to vouchſafe, that the ſaid Commiſſion might be granted to them, according to his Lordſhip's former Model, and as certain Notes ready to be ſhewed him did import.

IN the Year 1576 one Raſe Lane, a great Projector in thoſe Times, would have monopolized to himſelf this Commiſſion for the Reſtoration of Archery. He ſhewed in his Paper put in for that Purpoſe, that Archery depended upon three ſpecial Points, provided for in the Statute, for the Maintenance of Archery. Firſt, A ſtrait Prohibition of unlawful Games. Second, An Order for making up and repairing of Butts and Marks, and the Exerciſe of Shooting at Times convenient. Third, For a Proviſion of Bow-ſtaves and Arrows at low Prices, rated in the ſame. He noted alſo, that the Pains of the Premiſſes reſted not, by the ſaid Laws, in the Queen's Majeſty, to take Advantage of, or to Pardon, but in the Lords Leets and Franchiſes. This Man's Suit was to have the Survey of the Premiſſes for 21 Years, with Authority ſufficient to enjoyn Men lacking the ſame, to take the Supply of their Lacks of Bows and Arrows at his Hand, at the Prices of the ſaid Laws, and not above: And alſo like Authority, as far as in her Majeſty lay, by taking the Penalties, and the Puniſhments of unlawful Games, in ſuch as he ſhould find, upon the Survey, to continne the Uſe of them, or to releaſe the ſame to ſuch as ſhould conform themſelves to the contrary; and would take Bows, as was aforeſaid; whereby they might be forced and allured to exerciſe Shooting at Times convenient; and alſo to keep up the Butts and Marks, as the ſaid Laws did appoint.

THE Statute for the Maintainance and Exerciſe of Shooting in the Long Bow, was made Anno 1541, in the 33d of Henry VIII.

The Queen's Commiſſion for Archery.

IT was upon the Ground of this Statute, that the abovementioned Petitions were built; as was alſo a Commiſſion in the 13th of Queen Elizabeth, Anno 1570; wherein ſhe appointed Commiſſioners in each County for the Reformation of the Uſe of unlawful Games, and for the Maintainance and Exerciſe of Shooting. Which Commiſſioners were to take due and lawful Search in every Place within each County, as well for ſuch who uſed unlawful Games, as alſo whether every Perſon for himſelf, his Servants, and other Youth in his, or their ſeveral Houſes, had ſufficient Furniture and Proviſion of Bows and Arrows, and had not occupied the ſame according to the Meaning of the ſaid Statute of Henry VIII. But notwithſtanding this Commiſſion to ſee the Abuſes reformed and corrected, in many Parts the Uſe of Shooting was never the more frequented or uſed; and the Faults, as many as they were wont. Upon this the Queen iſſued another Commiſſion in the 14th of her Reign, Anno 1571, viz. That theſe Commiſſioners ſhould within 40 Days after the Receipt of thoſe Preſents, certify unto the Lord Keeper or Lord Chancellor for the Time being, in how many Towns and Pariſhes in the ſaid County they had executed and performed the Effect of the ſaid Commiſſion, and in how many not; and alſo the Names of ſuch Perſons, whom they had or ſhould find offending in the Premiſes, together with their reſpective Offences in that Behalf, in writing under their Hands and Seals, to the Intent that further Order might be taken therein: But this Commiſſion, tho' it was fair tranſcribed in Parchment, yet was not ſigned by the Queen; but only examined by Sir Gilbert Gerard, her Attorney-General; whoſe Hand is ſet at the Bottom.

FOR the Supply of this Nation antiently with Bow-ſtaves made of Yew, the Italian Merchants by an old Statute, provided in Edw. the IVth's Time, were bound to bring in Bow-ſtaves into England. One Middlemore had a Commiſſion from the Queen, to ſee to the Performance of this Statute. The Penalty whereof by his Officer, one Wanton, was required now of the Italian Merchants, and particularly of one Diogenes Franciſchini, and other Merchants of Venice, who were fain to make a Complaint by Way of Petition to the Lord Treaſurer; ſhewing, That this bringing in of Bow-ſtaves was a Matter of long Time not uſed, and ſo not provided for by them, the Merchants; and alſo became impoſſible; for that the Country from whence Bow-ſtaves were had in King Edward the IVth's Days, had been in the Turks Poſſeſſion, and none were within any of their Trades; ſo that they could not perform that which then might have been, nor did know any ſuch Courſe of Traffick, how to come by them; but was a Matter wholly diſcontinued, as impoſſible.

YET in former Times, to ſupply this Defect in our Country, the Italian Merchants touched at Spain, where they took in Bow-ſtaves: The People of Caſtile on purpoſe deſtroyed their Woods; and provided by Law, that no ſuch Wood as Yew, ſhould be preſerved: But notwithſtanding it was urged by Wanton aforeſaid, that theſe Italians ſhould be compelled to bring in Bow-ſtaves from the Parts adjoining to Venice, and thereabouts, becauſe the fineſt and beſt Yew came from thence; and becauſe their trading for Bow-ſtaves with that People would encourage them to plant and cheriſh that Wood, as they did Vines and Corinths; that is, for Traffick Sake.

THE Fletchers Hall is ſituated in St. Mary-Axe.

BLACKSMITHS.

THE Company of Blackſmiths had a Charter, granted Anno 1577, from Queen Elibeth, confirmed by King James I. and K. Charles, but there are ſome Records found relating to this Company ſo antient as Edward the Third's Time.

THEY are governed by four Keepers or Wardens, 21 Aſſiſtants, and are 180 on the Livery. Their Fine for Steward is 4 l. and the Livery Fine is 4 l. more.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Sable, a Chevron between three Hammers, Argent, handled and crowned, Or, on a Helmet and Torſe, a Phœnix firing herſelf by the Sun-beams, all proper. Motto; By Hammer and Hand all Arts do ſtand.

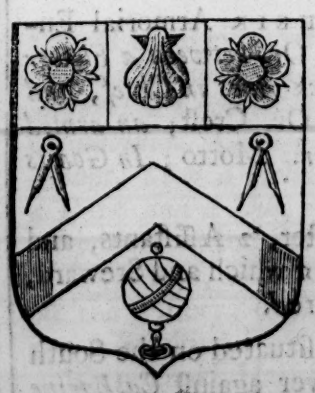
THE Blackſmiths Hall is ſituated on the Weſt Side of Lambeth-hill.

JOYNERS.



THE Joyners, called alſo Joyners and Ceelers, (and Carvers) were incorporated in the 13th Year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, Anno Domini 1570.

THEY are a Maſter, two Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, and about 260 on the Livery. The Livery Fine is 5 l. The Steward's Fine is alſo 5 l.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Gules, a Chevron Argent, between two Pair of Compaſſes, above, and a Sphere in Baſe, Or, on a Chief of the Third, two Roſes of the Firſt, and between them a Pale, Sable, charged with an Eſcallop-ſhell of the Second. Creſt; a Demy Savage, proper, holding a Spear, Or. Supporters; two Cupids of the Laſt, the Dexter holding a Woman, crowned with a Caſtle, the Sinifter a Square, both proper.

THE Joyners Hall, which is ſituated in Thames-ſtreet, almoſt againſt Dowgate-hill, was given them by a Widow, enjoyning them, in Conſideration of that Gift, to procure a certain Number of Maſſes, to be ſaid for her Soul. The Great Hall is all wainſcotted, and King William and Queen Mary's Arms at the upper End, with excellent Carving. Their Skreen at the lower End coſt, as they ſay, 130 l.

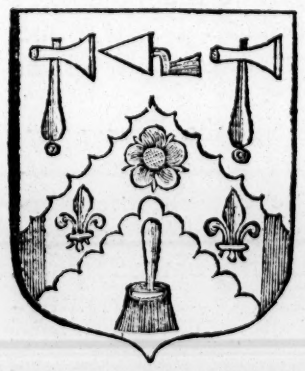
THEIR Parlour is likewiſe wainſcotted with more curious Artifice and Embelliſhments; and ſo is the Cieling fretted with Wainſcot Work in which are three Circles, wherein are excellent Paintings of Angles, &c. The Middle Circle, which is the largeſt, hath a Draught of St. James, the Patron of their Company, with a Square in his Hand, as it were giving his Orders to ſeveral Perſons ſtanding about, and directing their Work.

ON the Chimney-Piece is a very curious Picture, repreſenting ſeveral Perſons of the Company ſitting at a long Table in their Livery Gowns; and Mr. Whiting, (ſome Time of this Company) and his Man, laying a Model before them, of the Work of their Hall, or ſome Rooms in it, with ſome of the Aſſiſtants viewing and conſidering it. This Parlour, they ſay, coſt 300 l. Wainſcotting and Painting.

THIS Houſe was burnt down in the great Fire, and the Hall of it burnt down again Anno 1694. but the Parlour ſaved, (ſuffering ſome little Damage) by the Diligence of Mr. Burroughs, the Clerk, employing Engines, and good Engineers, to throw great Quantities of Water in at a Window in a Parlour, that fronted the Door entering into the Hall.

Charles Hobſon, Eſq; ſoon after Knighted, was of this Company, who was employed by the late Queen Anne, about her Works in Whitehall, Chelſea College, and other Places, Anno 1708. He was drank to by the Lord Mayor for Sheriff of LONDON the enſuing Year: He told her Majeſty of it; and ſhe ſeemed pleaſed, and enjoined him to hold: Which he did.

PLAISTERERS.



THE Company of Plaiſterers were incorporated about the Year 1500, in the Reign of King Henry VII.

THEY conſiſt of a Maſter, two Wardens, Aſſiſtants uncertain, 86 on the Livery. Their Livery Fine is 8 l.

THEIR Arms are: Azure, on a Chevron ingrailed Or, between a Trouel and two Hatchets Handled of the Second, Heads Argent in Chief, and a treble Bruſh in Baſe proper, a Roſe Gules ſeeded Or, entre two Flowers de Lis of the Firſt. Creſt; a Dexter Arm and Hand holding a Hatchet proper. Supporters; two Epinacus's, the Necks purfled, and the Slip of their Bellies Or, beaked Sable, and Wings extending upwards Gules.

THE Plaiſterers Hall is ſituated on the North Side of Addle-ſtreet, near Philip-lane.

WEAVERS.

THE Company of Weavers (not meaning them which are now called Silk-Weavers) were of very antient Note indeed, as having ſeveral Societies of themſelves, the Woollen Cloth Weavers, the Arras Weavers, and the Linen Weavers; but the Woollen-Cloth-Weavers ſeem the moſt antient and honourable of this Nation, whoſe principal ſtaple Commodity is Wool, and its Manufacture Cloth. The Weavers were incorporated in the Reign of Henry II. and confirmed in the 31ſt of the ſaid King, Anno Dom. 1184. However, the ſaid Company thought it proper to have the Privileges they pretended to, renewed, and confirmed by Charter of Incorporation, the 17th of September 1706, in the 6th Year of the Reign of Queen Anne, by the Name of Bailiffs, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of the Trade, Art and Myſtery of Weavers of LONDON.

THEY are, two Bailiffs, two Wardens, 16 more Aſſiſtants, and 186 on the Livery. The Livery Fine is 6 l. 8 s. 4 d.

THE Armorial Enſigns of this Company are: Azure, on a Chevron Argent, between three Leopards Heads, having each a Shuttle in his Mouth, Or; as many Roſes Gules ſeeded proper. Creſt; a Leopard's Head crowned with a Ducal Coronet and a Shuttle as before. Supporters; two Weeverns Ermin, winged, Or; member'd Gules. Motto; Weave Truth with Truſt.

DIVERS Freemen of the City of ſundry Sorts, under the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and ſince the Flight of Strangers into theſe Parts, had, by their Induſtry, learned of theſe Strangers, and otherwiſe, the Art of Silk-weaving; namely, making of Silk-lace, and ſuch like Things in the Loom; and ſo did lawfully uſe the ſame. But the Company of Weavers, who would not allow any Kind of Weaving to any but ſuch as were Members of their Myſtery, about the Year 1583, impeached theſe Weavers, and exhibited a Bill to the Lord Treaſurer, Mr. Chancellor of the Dutchy, and Barons of the Exchequer, againſt the ſaid Freemen, as uſing the Art of Silk-weaving, being free of other Myſteries. Upon this a great Number of theſe Freemen ſo complained of, brought to the Mayor, Sir Edward Osborn, and the Aldermen his Brethren, their Complaint, that the Bailiff and Company of the Guild of the Weavers, had diſturbed their Liberty. Hereupon the Lord Mayor wrote a Letter to the Lord Treaſurer, relating the Cauſe in Favour of thoſe Silk-weavers, againſt the Company: "Shewing him, that the antient Liberties "of the City had ever been, that a Freeman of "any Company might lawfully uſe any lawful "Art within the ſame City, and being free of "one, was free of all. And that without which "general Freedom, both the Commonweal might "receive great Prejudice, and the Order and "Governance of the Companies, and of the "whole City, ſhould receive ſuch a Confuſion, "as the State thereof could no Way bear. And "that the Weavers themſelves did for the moſt "Part live by the Uſe of other Arts, and took "the Fruit of that general Freedom which they "denied to others.

THE ſame Weavers alſo (and a Note was produced to the Lord Treaſurer for that Purpoſe) took upon them for Money, to admit a Number of Strangers, as well not Denizens as others, to uſe their Art, to the great Hinderance of the Queen's natural Subjects. Which Matters the ſaid Treaſurer by his Letters willed to be enquired upon, by Occaſion of a Libel ſpread, and ſent to him. Sir Thomas Blank, the former Mayor, and his Brethren, called the ſaid Weavers, and required them to hold them content with the general Liberty, for others to uſe their Art, as they might others: And did offer to them, if any Lack were to them in Search, Correction, or good Order, they ſhould be reaſonably aſſiſted. This they refuſed, and, in great Contempt, and to the Peril of the Diſſolution of the whole State of the Company, they purſued their Bill before-mention'd.

Osborn, then Mayor, prayed the Lord Treaſurer, that by his Order the ſaid general Liberty might be maintained, and the Weavers remitted to the Mayor and Aldermens Conſideration, according to the Laws of the City. Wherein he promiſed, they ſhould, as Citizens, have reaſonable Favour, as the State of the Commonweal, and this City, ſhould require.

THE Weavers Hall is ſituated on the Eaſt Side, and near the Middle of Baſinghall-ſtreet.

IN the Pariſh of Shoreditch, near Hoxton-ſquare, are Six Alms-houſes, containing 12 Rooms for 12 Weavers Widows, who have each 20 s. per Ann. paid quarterly, and each 24 Buſhel of Coals. On the Gate is this Inſcription:

This Building was erected by the Company of Weavers, LONDON, for the Uſe and Benefit of poor Members of that Company, towards the Charge whereof Mr. William Watſon, a Member of the ſame Company, was a good Benefactor, 1670.

FRUITERERS.

THE Company of the Fruiterers, being a very antient Brotherhood, and of long Continuance, became to be firſt incorporated in the third Year of the Reign of King James I. Anno Dom. 1604.

THEY conſiſt of a Maſter, two Wardens, about 17 Aſſiſtants, and 39 on the Livery.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Azure, the Tree of Paradiſe between Adam and Eve, all proper.

THE Fruiterers have no Hall at preſent, but meet ſometimes at Pariſh Clerks in Wood-ſtreet.

SCRIVENERS.

THE Company of the Scriveners, an antient and long continued Society, were incorporated the 28th of January, in the 14th Year of the Reign of K. James I. Anno Dom. 1616.

THEY are a Maſter, two Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, and 38 on the Livery.

THEIR Arms are: Azure, an Eagle with Wings expanded, holding in his Mouth a Penner and Inkhorn, ſtanding on a Book, all Or.

THEIR Hall is in Noble-ſtreet; they parted with it ſome Years ago to the Coach-makers.

BOTTLE-MAKERS and HORNERS.

AS for the Bottle-makers and Horners, ſaith Stow, the precedent Times have remembered them to be of Antiquity, and two diſtinct Companies combined in one; but finds no Record that they were ever incorporated.

THEIR Arms are: Argent, on a Chevron Sable, three Bugle-Horns of the firſt, between three Leather Bottles of the ſecond.

CONSIDERABLE Quantities of Horns were wont to be tranſported by theſe Horners. In the Year 1576, were ſhipped that Year 140000 Horns, to the Value of 210 l.

QUEEN Elizabeth granted a Patent to Simon Furner, and John Craford, for tranſporting of Horns, whereby the Horners were hindered from tranſporting them: Yet by an Act they were allowed to tranſport refuſe Horns, and theſe were now ſtopt by the Patentees, which cauſed a Petition of Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer.

FOR in the Year 1592, the Horners made a Petition, complaining, That whereas they and their Predeceſſors had all heretofore bought all manner of Horns, and wrought the beſt of them, to ſerve in the Realm, and ſold the Refuſe, and ſome of their wrought Wares, as Blowing Horns, Shoe-horns, and Lanthorns, both to Engliſh and ſtrange Merchants: Now one Simon Furner a Merchant, and John Craford a Scrivener, got a Licence from her Majeſty for tranſporting of Horns; and thereby had not only reſtrained the Petitioners from their former Traffick, to their Undoing in general, but alſo thereby greatly endamaged the Queen in her Cuſtoms, almoſt ſubverting the ſame. For whereas heretofore ſhe had 18 d. Cuſtom for a Thouſand of Horns, they would ſuffer none to paſs, unleſs they had 10 s. more to themſelves for every Thouſand: Which intolerable Impoſition took away Traffick, and ſo conſequently her Cuſtom. There was a Proviſo in their Licence, That if any Abuſe or Inconvenience grew thereby, then the Lord Treaſurer of England for the Time, ſhould reform and order the ſame: So the Petitioners prayed the ſaid Lord, to order the Matter as the Equity and Neceſſity of the Cauſe required. Alſo there was a Proviſo in her Majeſty's Grant, That the Horners ſhould have their antient Liberties, that had been Time out of Mind, and the Statute allowed them the like; therefore they prayed his Lordſhip's Letter to the Cuſtomers, that they might enjoy their former Liberties.

THIS Matter depended till the Year 1597, when the Treaſurer ſent to Sir Richard Carmarthen, to call before him theſe two Patentees beforeſaid, and underſtand what could be alledged on both Parts, touching the Liberty of the Horners by their Charter, and to End the Queſtion between both, if he could; or elſe to let him underſtand his Opinion, what he conceived fit to be done therein. He endeavoured accordingly to end the Controverſy between them, but could not; the Queſtion roſe upon one Word chiefly, viz. That they had deſired of the King (that gave them their Charter) that they might have the Liberty within the City of LONDON, and four and twenty Miles about, to chooſe and buy the principaleſt Horns, before the Strangers ſhould buy and tranſport away: And then after the Company were ſo furniſhed, it ſhould be lawful for Them, and all other Perſons, to buy and tranſport the reſt. Now the Horners conſtrued the Word Them to pertain to their Company; Furner and Craford Craford conſtrued the Word Them to pertain to the Strangers, and other Perſons upon their Suit; Carmarthen ſaid, that being no Lawyer, he dared not to judge of the Word, but left it to his Lordſhip's better Judgment.

STATIONERS.

THE Company of Stationers were of great Antiquity, even before the ART of PRINTING was invented. Their Charter of Incorporation was granted the 4th Day of May in the third and fourth Years of K. Philip and Queen Mary I.

THEIR Enſigns Armorial are: Sable, on a Chevron between three Bibles, Or, a Falcon riſing between two Roſes Gules, ſeeded of the ſecond; in Chief a Glory in the Shape of a Dove expanded proper.

THIS Company are govern'd by a Maſter, two Wardens, 30 Aſſiſtants, and 211 on the Livery. Their Fine for Livery is 20 l. and there are two Renter-Wardens, whoſe Buſineſs it is to collect the Quarteridge, and treat the Company on the Lord Mayor's Day, for which the Fine is 25 l. each. By their Charter they may take Apprentices, one for the Yeomanry, two for the Livery, and when they are admitted into the Court of Aſſiſtants, they may take three.

THIS Company has a Capital Stock of near 15000 l. called the Engliſh Stock, employed in Printing Almanacks, ABC's, Primmers, Pſalters, and moſt School-Books, and privileged Ware, as they term it, the ſole Printing whereof is granted to them by Patent, and confirmed by ſeveral Kings of this Realm. This Capital Stock conſiſts of fifteen whole Shares, each 320 l. which generally belong to thoſe who have paſſed Maſter, or have fined for it. The next are half Shares, whereof there are thirty, each of which are 160 l. theſe are generally belonging to the Aſſiſtants. The third are quarter Shares, in Number ſixty, each of which is 80 l. and theſe commonly belong to thoſe of the Livery that have fined for Renter-Warden. This was the original Eſtabliſhment; but when the Company grew more numerous, they, to oblige their Members, divided ſome of theſe of 80 l. into two Parts. The Profits of this Stock are paid to the Widow of him who paid it in, till her Death or ſecond Marriage, then another is choſen in, and that Perſon ſo choſen pays the Money over to the Executors of the Deceaſed; or if ſhe marry again, tho' to one of the ſame Trade, ſhe is obliged to take the Money, which they that are admitted repay her as before. They make Dividends at Chriſtmas, which is more or leſs, according to the Expence the Company has been at that Year; but is often about 40 l. per whole Share; beſides which Dividend, they give in Penſions to the Poor of the Company, about 200 l. per Annum, 4 l. or under, paid to each quarterly. This Stock is managed by ſix Stock-Keepers, who are choſen annually, and the Maſter and the Wardens for the Time being. Theſe Stock-Keepers make up all Accounts with Stationers, Printers, &c. and give Account about Chriſtmas of the State and Condition of the Stock and Profits to the Board, who order the Dividends accordingly; and perhaps there is hardly a Stock of antienter Date belonging to any Company in LONDON.

OF this Corporation are Printers, Bookſellers, and ſuch as ſell Paper and Parchment, and Blank Books bound up for the Uſe of Tradeſmen and Merchants, and theſe laſt are now peculiary called Stationers. The firſt of this Corporation who practiſed the Art of Printing Books, were Wynkyn de Worde (a Dutchman, as it ſeems) who dwelt at the Sun in Fleet-ſtreet, and one Pynſon; who both flouriſhed in the Reign of King Henry VII. and in the Beginning of the Reign of King Henry VIII. And Thomas Godfrey, who printed a Treatiſe, wrote by St. Germain, in the Time of King Henry VIII. concerning Conſtitutions Provincial and Legatine: And next to them in the ſaid King Henry the VIIIth's Reign, were Richard Graſton and Edward Whitchurch, who had the Honour to print the Tranſlation of the Bible into Engliſh, in the Years 1538 and 1540, or thereabouts. Theſe continued in the Reign of King Edward VI. Now alſo Reginald Wolf, a Switzer, and learned John Day, and William Seres, were noted Printers; whereof Wolf was Archbiſhop Cranmer's Printer, and printed his Books, and other Books appointed for publick Uſe in the Church. He was alſo a great Collector of Engliſh Hiſtory; afterwards digeſted and printed by Holingſhead. Cawood and Jugg printed Proclamations and State Books, in the Times of King Edward VI. and Queen Mary. Richard Totil, in the Time of Queen Mary, was the great Printer of Law Books, of whom more by and by. Seres kept his Shop in Peter-College, a Place ſo called, ſituate on the Weſt of St. Paul's Church. Sir Sir William Cecyl, Principal Secretary to King Edward, procured for him, being his Servant, a Licence to print all Manner of Private Prayers, called Primers (containing the Pſalter or Pſalms, Devotions, &c.) as ſhould be agreeable to the Book of Common-Prayer, eſtabliſhed in the Court of Parliament. And that none elſe ſhould print the ſame, upon Pain of forfeiting the ſame: Provided, that before the ſaid Seres, or his Aſſigns, did begin to print the ſame, he or they ſhould preſent a Copy thereof, to be allowed by the Lords of the Privy Council, or by the Lord Chancellor for the Time being, or by the King's four Ordinary Chaplains, or two of them. And when the ſame was, or ſhould be from Time to Time printed, that by the ſaid Lords, and others of the ſaid Privy Council, or by the Lord Chancellor, or with the Advice of the Wardens of the ſaid Occupation, the reaſonable Price thereof be ſet, as well in the Leaves, as being bound in Paſte or Board, in like Manner as was expreſſed in the End of the Book of Common-Prayer. This Licence bore Date, 4 March, 7 Edw. VI.

Day, the Printer, was not inferior in Reputation for Printing to any in thoſe Times. He had his Printing-Houſe in Alderſgate, and his Shop or Shed, near the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, in St. Paul's Church-yard, by Permiſſion of the Church. He printed the voluminous Books of Fox's Acts and Monuments, of Thomas Beacon's Works, and a great many other good Books, written in Favour of Religion againſt Popery. His Motto, with Reſpect to the Night of Ignorance and Superſtition newly diſperſed, was, Ariſe, for it is Day. He alſo 7 Edw. VI. March 25. obtained a Licence for the Printing a Catechiſm in Engliſh, with the Brief of an ABC, thereunto annexed: And alſo for the Printing and Re-printing of all Works and Books deviſed and compleid by the Reverend Father in God, John Biſhop of Winton, or by Thomas Beacon, Profeſſor of Divinity: So that no ſuch Books, or any Part of them, were any Ways repugnant to the Holy Scriptures, or Proceedings in Religion, or the Laws of the Realm, as the Licence ran.

THERE was a Patent ready drawn for Queen Elizabeth's Signing for ſeven Years, privileging Richard Totil, Stationer, to imprint all Manner of Books or Tables whatſoever, which touched or concerned Coſmography, or any Part thereof; as, Geography, Chorography, or Topography, writ in the Engliſh Tongue, or tranſlated out of any other Language into Engliſh, of whatſoever Countries they treated, and whoſoever was the Author: But whether this were ever actually ſigned, or not, is uncertain.

IN the Year 1566, a Sheet was printed, intitled, Ordinances decreed for Reformation of divers Diſorders in printing and uttering of Books. At the End were ſubſcribed the Names of ſome of the Privy Council hereunto, being an Order in the Star-Chamber, viz. the Lord Keeper Bacon, Marquis of Winckeſter, Lord Treaſurer, Earl of Leiceſter, Lord Clynton, Lord Admiral, Secretary Cecil, and others. Which was occaſion'd by a Motion of thoſe of the Commiſſion Eccleſiaſtical under their Hands. Theſe Ordinances were deſigned for the preventing the bringing in, or printing Books againſt the Religion eſtabliſhed, and were as follow:

ORDINANCES decreed for Reformation of divers Diſorders in printing and uttering of BOOKS.

THAT no Perſon ſhall print, or cauſe to be imprinted, nor ſhall bring, or cauſe or procure to be brought into this Realme imprinted, any Booke or Copie, againſt the Forme and Meaning of any Ordinance, Prohibition, or Commandement conteyned, or to be conteyned, in any the Statutes or Lawes of this Realme, or in any Injunction, Letters Patents, or Ordinances, paſſed or ſet forth, or to be paſſed or ſet forth, by the Queenes moſt Excellent Majeſties Graunt, Commiſſion or Authoritie.

THAT whoſoeuer ſhall offend againſt the ſaid Ordinances, ſhall not onely forfeite all ſuch Bookes and Copies as ſhal be ſo printed or brought in, but alſo ſhall from thenceforth neuer vſe or exerciſe, nor take Benefite by any vſing or exerciſing of the Feate of Printing, and ſhall ſuſteine three Moneths Impriſonment, without Baile or Mainepriſe. And if he be not before ſuch Offence bound with Suerties in Forme hereafter expreſſed, then he ſhall alſo forfaite for euery Offence.

THAT no Perſon ſhall ſell, vtter, put to Sale, binde, ſtitche, or ſowe any ſuch Bookes or Copies ſo printed or brought in, contrarie to the ſaid Ordinance, vpon paine to forfaite all ſuch Bookes and Copies, and for euery Booke xx s.

THAT all Bookes to be ſo forfaited, ſhalbe brought into the Stationers Hall in LONDON, and there the one Moitie of all ſuch Forfaitures of Money ſhalbe reſerued to the Queens Majeſties Vſe, and the other Moitie ſhall be deliuered to him or them that ſhall firſt ſeiſe the ſame Bookes or Copies, or make Complaint thereof to the Wardens of the ſaid Companie: And all the Bookes ſo to be forfaited, ſhalbe deſtroyed or made waſte Paper, by the Diſcretion of the ſaid Wardens.

THAT it ſhalbe lawful for the Wardens of the ſaid Companie for the Time being, or any two of the ſaid Companie, thereto deputed by the ſaid Wardens, as well in any Portes, as other ſuſpected Places within this Realme, to open and viewe all Packes, Drifattes, Maunds, and other Thinges, wherein Bookes or Paper ſhall be conteyned, brought into this Realme, and alſo to make Search in all Workehouſes, Shoppes, Warehouſes, and other Places of Printers, Bookeſellers, or ſuch as bring Bookes into this Realm to be ſolde, or where they ſhall have reaſonable Cauſe of Suſpition. And all Bookes to be found againſt the ſaid Ordinances, to ſeiſe and carrie to the ſaid Hall to the Vſes abouеſaid, and the Parties therein offending, to leade and preſente before the Queenes Majeſties Commiſſioners in Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical.

THAT euery Stationer, Printer, Bookſeller, Merchant, and other Perſon, vſing any Trade of Bookes Printing, Binding, Selling, or bringing into this Realme, ſhall before the ſaid Commiſſioners, or before any other Perſons, thereunto to be aſſigned by the Queenes Majeſties moſt honourable Priuie Counſel, enter into ſeveral Recogniſaunces of reaſonable Summes of Money to her Majeſties Vſe, with Suerties or without, as to the ſaid Commiſſioners ſhall be thought expedient: That he ſhall truely obſerue all the ſaid Ordinances, well and truely yeelde and pay all ſuch Forfaitures, and in no Point be reſiſting, but in all Things ayding to the ſaid Wardens and their Deputies, for the true Execution of the Premiſes.

Vpon the Conſideration before expreſſed, and vpon the Motion of the Commiſſioners: We of the Priuie Counſell haue agreed this to be obſerued and kept, vpon the Paines therein conteyned. At the Starre-Chamber the xxix Day of Iune, Anno 1566. and the eight Yeere of the Queenes Majeſties Reigne.

IN the Year 1575, ſome certain Perſons endeavour'd to obtain from the Queen a Privilege for the ſole Printing of all Ballads, Damask Paper, and Books in Proſe or Meeter, from the Quantity of one Sheet of Paper to four and twenty. The Company of Stationers made a Petition to the Lord Treaſurer, for Stay of this; ſetting forth, how it would be the Overthrow of a Multitude of Families: And that by the imprinting of theſe the Company was chiefly maintained. So as if the ſame were taken from them by way of Priviledge, they ſhould be utterly undone. Whereof if the Queen were advertiſed, they were ſure ſhe would not paſs ſuch a Grant. Wherefore they prayed the Treaſurer, who had aforetime always been favourable to them in all their Cauſes, that he would acquaint the Queen with the Premiſes, and be a Means that the ſaid Privilege might not be granted.

OTHER Privileges there were, which the Queen ſometimes had granted to ſome Stationers for their Propriety in certain Copies; whereby all others were abridged from printing the ſame: And ſome of theſe Copies, ſuch as before were indifferently printed by any of that Calling, to the great Suſtentation of them and their Families. Which Advantage was by theſe Privileges taken from them. Thus,

John Fugge, beſides the being her Majeſty's Printer, had the Privilege for printing of Bibles and Teſtaments. The which had been common to all the Printers.

Richard Tothil, the printing of all Kind of Law Books, (common before to all Printers) who ſold the ſame Books at exceſſive Prices, to the Hinderance of a great Number of poor Students.

John

John Day, the printing of ABC, and the Catechiſm, with the ſole ſelling of them, by the Colour of a Commiſſion. Theſe Books were the only Relief of the pooreſt Sort of that Company.

James Roberts and Richard Watkins, the printing of all Almanacks and Prognoſtications. The which was alſo the chief Relief of the pooreſt of the Printers.

Thomas Marſh had a great Licence for Latin Books, uſed in the Grammar-Schools of England. The which was the general Living of the whole Company of Stationers.

Thomas Vautroller, a Stranger, had the ſole printing of other Latin Books, as the New Teſtament and others.

One Byrde, a Singing-man, had a Licence for printing all Muſick-Books; and by that Means claimed the printing of Ruled Paper.

William Seres had a Privilege for the printing of all Pſalters, all Manner of Primers, Engliſh or Latin, and all Manner of Prayer-Books; with the Reverſion of the ſame to his Son.

Francis Flower, a Gentleman, being none of the Company, had Privilege of printing the Grammar, and other Things; and had farmed it out to ſome of the Company for 100 l. by the Year. Which 100 l. was raiſed in the enhancing of the Prices above the accuſtomed Order.

This, as a Grievance, many of the Company complained of, being now in Number in the City 175; and of theſe 140 came to their Freedoms ſince Queen Elizabeth's Acceſs to the Crown. ſo much did Printing and Learning come in Requeſt under the Reformation.

It was ſhewn before, that William Seres had a Licence from King Edward VI. to print all Manner of Primers. This was taken away from him in Queen Mary's Days, but obtained again for him under Queen Elizabeth by Cecil's Means. And the Grant now was to him and to his Son William Seres, during the Life of the longeſt Liver of them, with an Addition to print all Books of private Prayers: For which they had a Patent. This gave Occaſion to a great Caſe: For Seres, the Father, in his latter Years, and being not ſo well able to attend and follow his Buſineſs, aſſigned the Privilege, with all his Preſſes, Letters, Stocks and Copies, (which in his whole Life he got) to one Henry Denham, for a yearly Rent. Denham took ſeven young Men of the Company of Stationers to join him in the ſame. But certain inferior Perſons of the Company, ſetting up Preſſes more than England might bear, did print other Mens Copies forbidden to them, and privileged to others by the Queen's Letters Patents. Theſe endeavour'd, for their own Gain, to have the ſaid Privilege taken away; preferring a Petition to the Privy Council, wherein they pretended, that in Juſtice it ſtood with the beſt Policy of this Realm, that the Printing of all good and uſeful Books ſhould be at Liberty for every Man to do, without granting or allowing of any Privilege by the Prince to the contrary. And they ſaid it was againſt the Law; and that the Queen ought not to grant any ſuch. Seres, upon this, in a Petition to the Lord Treaſurer, urged againſt theſe Men, that Privilege for ſpecial Books was ever granted by the Prince. For that for the moſt Part in all antient Books we read theſe Words: Cum Privilegio ad imprimendum ſolum: And that many Records might be found of the ſame. Whereby it appeared, that the Prince or Magiſtrate had ever Care to commit the printing of all good Books, eſpecially of the beſt Sort, to ſome ſpecial Men well known, and tried for their Fidelity, Skill and Ability. Examples whereof might be ſhewed as well in England, as in other Chriſtian Countries. And that the Reaſon hereof was, that Printing of itſelf was moſt dangerous and pernicious, if it were not ſtraited and reſtrained by politick Order of the Prince or Magiſtrate.

This grew into a more general Conteſt between the Stationers, who had from the Queen Licences of Privilege to print certain Books; and the other Stationers, who thought this a great Hinderance to them, that they might not print them; pretending, that by their Freedom they ought to print any lawful Books: Nay, even thoſe Books, the Copies whereof had been bought of the Authors for their Money, or elſe given to thoſe that had the Propriety in them, to make their Benefit of. They would not allow the Queen to have a Power of granting theſe Privileges: And would and did take upon them to print what they pleaſed. The Matter was heard before the Lord Mayor, and afterwards before the Privy Council, who committed the Hearing of this Cauſe to Dr. Hammond, a Civilian, and Thomas Norton, a Divine, and ſome others. Theſe, after Examination, found the Complainants Intent to be derogatory to the Queen's Prerogative, not only as touching the granting of Privileges for Printing, but alſo for ſundry other Licences; and wiſhed the Complainants no further to attempt that Courſe, ſhewing unto them the Inconvenience that would enſue. Whereupon the Stationers ſeemed to renounce their Suits; affirming, that they meant not to overthrow Privileges, but craved that there might be ſomething appointed for them to print. Wherein they were alſo ſatisfied by friendly Agreement, through the Mediation of the ſaid Committees.

The Expedient was this, that thoſe that had Privileges were to grant ſome Allowances unto the Company, for the Maintenance of their Charge and their Poor. Thus Seres for his Part, who had the Privilege of Printing Primers and Pſalters and all Books of Private Prayer, he and his Aſſigns yielded the beſt Part of the ſaid Privilege for the Relief of the whole Company: And out of that Privilege only reſerved to themſelves the Little Primer and uſual Pſalter. And divers other eminent Stationers in like manner granted many of their Copies for the ſame Intent. This was about the Year 1583.

But ſhortly after, one John Wolf, a Fiſhmonger uſing Printing, taking upon him as a Captain in this Cauſe, was content with no Agreement, but generally affirmed that he might and would Print any Lawful Book, notwithſtanding any Commandment of the Queen. And to that End had incenſed the Popularity of LONDON, as in a common Cauſe, ſomewhat dangerouſly: And with him ſeveral of the reſt changing their Minds, were aſſociated, and laboured to overthrow thoſe Privilges the Queen had granted, or could grant. Whereupon the aboveſaid Committees finding them ſo diſordered, would have bound them to appear before the Queen's Council, which they promiſed to do, but after Conference with their Abettors refuſed: And ſtill proſecuted their Complaints to her Majeſty, garniſhing the ſame with Pretences of the Liberties of LONDON, and the Commonwealth of the ſaid Company; and ſaying, the Queen was deceived by thoſe that were Means for obtaining ſuch Privileges.

Seres after all this, prayed the Lord Treaſurer, that ſince the ſaid Complaints did ſtill intrude upon his Privilege, and did more obſtinately print his Books than afore, ſome Redreſs might be had therein.

As Wolf was one of theſe unruly Printers, ſo one Roger Ward was another, who would Print any Book however forbidden by the Queen's Privilege, and made it his Practice to print all Kind of Books at his Pleaſure. The Maſter and Wardens of the Company going to ſearch his Printing-Houſe, according to the Power they had, were reſiſted by his Wife and Servants: Of which a Complaint was made by the ſaid Maſter and Wardens to the Court. And again in the Year 1583, the Maſter and Wardens preferred a Petition againſt this Man, to the Lord Treaſurer; ſhewing his contemptuous Demeanour, doing contrary to all Order and Authority; and withal his Inſufficiency to uſe the Art of Printing. The Commiſſioners appointed by the Council could bring him to nothing: But ſtill he continued to print what he pleaſed without Allowance, by his own Authority; and ſuch Books as were warranted by her Highneſs's Letters Patents to other Men: And ſold and uttered the ſame in City and Country, to Men of other Arts. Whereby the Company ſuſtained great Loſs, in taking the Sale of them; and particularly to the Decay of Seven poor young Men, who executed a Privilege granted to William Seres for a yearly Rent. This Man notwithſtanding had given two ſeveral Bonds to the Queen, the one, not to print any more diſorderly, the other, to bring in ſuch Books as he had ſo printed; but none performed. All this was laid open in the ſaid Petition, the Signers of it were, John Harriſon, Maſter; and Richard Watkins and Raſe Newbery, Wardens; and beſides them, Chriſtopher Barker, John Day, William Norton, George Biſhop, John Judſon, and Francis Caldock; all Bookſellers in theſe Times of the chiefeſt Reputation.

THIS Practice of ſome Printers printing of Books, which others had Grants from the Queen only to do, was not yet laid aſide; which cauſed the Queen's Patentees Anno 1586, to petition the Lords of her Majeſty's Council in behalf of themſelves, who ſeemed now to be in ſome Danger of having their Patents revoked: And withal preſented a Paper for maintaining of Privileges for Printing, to this Import, "That all Princes in "Chriſtendom, where Printing was Uſed, granted "Privilege, ſometimes for Years, ſometimes for "Life, and ſometimes in Fee. That in this "Realm the Queen's noble Progenitors had from "Time to Time granted Privileges, ever ſince "the ſaid Myſtery was firſt uſed in the Land; "which were always held good. And that her "Majeſty's Prerogative being no leſs than the "Prerogative of her Predeceſſors, it ſeemed great "Boldneſs in thoſe who now impugned her here-"in: And that without Petition to her Highneſs, "with Declaration of the Inconveniences, if any "were. Seeing alſo that heretofore her Majeſty's "Patents for Printing had not only been allowed "of, but fortified alſo by a Decree made in the "Star-Chamber in the ſixth Year of her Majeſty's "Reign, by inflicting Puniſhments to the In-"fringers of them. But that for the Conveniency "of Privileges, it were very neceſſary for the "Commonwealth, that none ſhould print at all, "but ſuch as were authorized from her Majeſty, "being known Men. For, that if every Man "might print that were ſo diſpoſed, it might be "a Means that Hereſies, Treaſons, and ſeditious "Libels ſhould often be diſperſed. Alſo, that "Privileges were Occaſion that many Books were "printed which were more beneficial to the Com-"monwealth, than profitable to the Printer. For "the Patentee being benefited otherwiſe by "Books of profitable Sale, was content to be-"ſtow Part of his Gains in other Books, which "were within the Compaſs of his Patent, very "beneficial for the Commonwealth; and yet ſuch "whereby the Printer ſhould ſcarce reap the tenth "Part of his Charge: Which Books would never "be printed, if Privilege were revoked. That fur-"ther, if Privilege were revoked, no Books at all "ſhould be printed within ſhort Time. For com-"monly the firſt Printer was at Charge for the "Author's Pains, and ſome other ſuch like extra-"ordinary Coſt; whereas any other that would "print it after him, come to the Copy Gratis, and "ſo might he ſell better cheap than the firſt Prin-"ter: And the firſt Printer ſhould never utter "his Books. Beſides, the ſecond Printer might "better the firſt Impreſſion by Notes, Tables, "Difference in Paper or Volume (as it is eaſier "to amend than firſt invent) which would alſo "hinder the Sale of the firſt Printer's Books to "his utter Undoing. Theſe Inconveniences ſeen, "every Man would ſtrain Courteſie who ſhould "begin; ſo far, that in the End all Printing "would decay within the Realm, to the undoing "of the whole Company of Stationers. Then for "the Price, if the Patentee ſhould exact out of "Reaſon, becauſe no Man might print the Book "but himſelf, that would be remedied by the "Statute of 25 Hen. VIII. If the Workmanſhip "of the Patentee were worſe than it ought to be, "it ſeemed to be a Condition in Law annexed "to the Office, whereby he ſhould forfeit the "ſame: And as well for theſe Reaſons as many "others, which their Honours could beſt conceive "of, they hoped their Honours were perſuaded "that theſe Privileges were to be upholden.

ABOUT theſe Times the Company of Stationers put up a Petition to the Lord Treaſurer, (who was their great Patron) that, towards the Maintaining of their poor Company, he would be a Means to the Queen to grant them, for their Relief, the Privilege of Printing thoſe two little Books of Introduction into the Latin Tongue, uſed in Schools by her Authority, viz. the Accidence and Grammar: For which they offered to yield ſomewhat yearly into the Receipt of her Majeſty's Exchequer. They ſet forth in this Petition, what a very poor Company they were, and not able to bear the Charge that lay on them: That they paid exceſſive yearly Rents, for Farming of ſuch Books, pertaining to their Art, as had been obtained from them by Means of Privileges: Their good Deſerts from the Commonwealth, in ſearching for, and ſuppreſſing of Popiſh and Seditious Books, and executing ſeveral Warrants directed to them for ſuch Purpoſe by the Queen's Commiſſioners in Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical. And finally, that they ſhould be driven to diſſolve their Company, unleſs the Treaſurer ſtood their good Lord, as on former Occaſions he had done, as the ſpecial Patron of their Company, and Favourer of the Art of Printing.

THE Printing-Preſſes now-a-days took too much Liberty, and the Printers being many, made bold to print ſundry Books that created great Diſturbances, as well to the Church as the Civil Government; whereof Complaint was made to the Qneen. At length certain Decrees were made in the Star-Chamber concerning Printers, Stationers, &c. in the 28th Year of the Queen, and in the Year of our Lord 1585.

IN the Act againſt Merchant Strangers, in the Reign of King Richard III. Cap. 19. there was a Proviſo for the Encouragement of bringing Books into the Realm by Strangers; and for the Encouragement of ſuch as ſhould print, it was provided, "That an Act, or any Parcel thereof, "ſhould not extend to the Prejudice, Diſtur-"bance, Damage or Impediment of any Arti-"ficer, or Merchant Stranger, of what Nation "or Country he be, for bringing into this "Realm, or ſelling by Retail or otherwiſe, any "Book written or printed, or for inhabiting "within this Realm for the ſame Intent: Or "any Scrivener, Alluminer, Reader or Printer "of ſuch Book, which he hath or ſhall have, to "ſell by Way of Merchandize; or for their "dwelling within this Realm, for the Exerciſe "of the ſaid Occupation.

YET this Proviſo was repealed Anno 25. Henry VIII. It appears by the ſaid Act of Henry VIII. that upon the Act made of Richard III. for bringing in Books and Printers, there came into into the Realm ſince the making of the ſame, a marvellous Number of printed Books, and daily did. And that the Cauſe of making the ſame Proviſo under King Richard was, for that there were but few Books, and few Printers within the Realm at that Time, which could not well exerciſe and occupy the ſaid Science and Craft of Printing: But ſince, many of the King's natural Subjects had diligently learned and exerciſed the ſame Art, that at that Day there were within the Realm, (as that Statute of 25 Henry VIII. ſet forth) a great Number, cunning and expert in the ſaid Science and Craft of Printing, as able to exerciſe the Craft in all Points, as any Stranger. Whence we ſee how long Printing hath been uſed in England, even from the time of King Richard, who reigned in the Year 1485. And how well ſtocked the Nation was with them about the Middle of the Reign of King Henry VIII. which was little more than 40 Years after.

The Stationers, Anno 8 Regin. Annæ, 1709-10, preſented a Bill to the Parliament, to have a Right to their Copies confirmed to them, and the ſole Power of Printing their reſpective Books. For it was now become common for others to be Interlopers, as they called them, and to print upon them, that is, to print again the Copies that they had bought, and that uſually of a worſe Paper and leſs Letter, that it might be afforded cheaper. By which Means, the firſt Printers (who were at great Charge in purchaſing of Copies and Printing the ſame) received great Damages.

They ſet forth to the Parliament, that when the Author had conveyed over his Copy to any of them, they had a juſt and legal Property thereunto: And that they had given Sums of Money for Copies, and had ſettled thoſe Copies on their Wives at Marriage, or on their Children at their Deaths: And that at this Time many Widows and Orphans had none other Subſiſtance; and that the Copies then in Uſe, had coſt the preſent Poſſeſſors (excluſively of all other Charges of Print and Paper) at leaſt 50000 l. urging further, that this Property was the ſame with Houſes and other Eſtates, being agreeable to common Law and good Reaſon. To which might be added, that unleſs this Liberty of Printing upon the Owners Copies were ſtopped, it would prove a great Diſcouragement to the Printing of many good Books, offered by Authors to the Bookſellers, who would not care to meddle in ſuch uncertain Gain, and thereby might enſue great Prejudice to Knowledge and Learning.

This produced an Act of Parliament Ann. 8 Regin. Annæ, to this Import: It was enacted, That after the 10th of April, 1710, the Author of any Book already printed (who had not transferred the Copy thereof) or the Bookſeller, or other Perſon, who hath purchaſed any Copy to print or reprint, ſhall have the ſole Right of Printing it for 21 Years. And the Author of any Book not yet printed, or of any Book hereafter to be compoſed, ſhall have the ſole Liberty of Printing it for 14 Years, to commence from the Day of publiſhing thereof: The Offender againſt this, who ſhall publiſh any ſuch Book without the Conſent of the Proprietor under his Hand, with Witneſſes, to forfeit the Book to the Proprietor; who ſhall forthwith damask them, and make them waſte Paper, and forfeit 1 d. beſide for every Sheet found in his Cuſtody.

The Title to the Copy of the Book to be publiſhed, to be entred in the Regiſter-Book of the Company at the Hall of the ſaid Company, and the Conſent of the Proprietor entred.

If any Proprietor after the 25th of March, 1710, ſhall ſet an unreaſonable Price upon any Book, any Perſon may complain to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, to the Lord Chancellor, the Biſhop of LONDON, the Lords Chief Juſtices, or Chief Baron, &c. who may call the Bookſeller before him, and enquire into the Cauſe of the Dearneſs; and upon Examination may reform and redreſs, and ſettle the Price. And if after ſuch Price ſet, the Bookſeller ſhall expoſe to Sale, or ſell any Book at any higher Rate, he forfeiteth 5 l. for every Book ſo ſold.

Nine Copies of each Book printed on the beſt Paper, after the 10th of April, 1710, are to be delivered to the Ware-houſe-keeper of the Company of Stationers at their Hall, before the Books ſhall be publiſhed, for the Uſe of the Royal Library, the Libraries of the Univerſities of Cambridge and Oxford, for the Libraries of the four Univerſities of Scotland, of Sion College in LONDON, and the Library of the Advocates in Scotland. And the Warehouſe-Keepers ſhall deliver the ſaid Copies within ten Days after Demand, upon Forfeiture of the Value of the Book, and 5 l.

At the End of 14 Years, the ſole Right of printing or diſpoſing Copies ſhall return to the Author for another 14 Years.

Mr. Buckley, who has lately printed a new Edition of Thuanus's Hiſtory in Latin, obtained an Act of Parliament the laſt Seſſion, 1733, to prohibit the Importation of the ſaid Work from Foreign Parts, where it might have been printed at much leſs Expence than he was at, and if not prevented by the ſaid Act, have been ſold even in his own Country, at a leſs Price than it coſt him, who was at 2350 l. Charge in collecting Materials, and barely paying the Duty on Paper imported for his Work; for as the Duty now ſtands, the Blank Paper to be uſed by our own Printers at Home, pays a great deal more than what is already printed by Workmen abroad, the firſt paying by the Ream, the latter by the Hundred Weight. This is a Matter, which, for the Encouragement of the Natives of Great Britain, who, in the Advantages of Trade, ought always to have the Preference to Foreigners, it is to be hoped the Legiſlature will ſoon look into.

The Stationers Hall is ſituated near the North End of Cock-Alley in Ludgate-Street, where antiently ſtood the Houſe of the Duke of Britanny, afterwards the Earl of Pembroke's Inn, then Abergavenny Houſe, and laſtly the Ground was purchaſed by this Company. The Hall is a handſome Brick Building, and at the Entrance is a fine Pair of Iron Gates, ſet up in the Year 1732.

Within the Room called the Hall are the four following Tables of the Names of the Benefactors to this Company. On the Weſt Side at the upper End:

Mr. Henry Herringman. Mr. Richard Mount.
Mr. William Rawlins. Mr. John Osborne.
Thomas Guy, Eſq;

NO mention is made of the Sums. or to what Uſes they were given; but the two firſt gave their Legacies as follows:

Mr. William Lamb, 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for perpetual Relief of the Poor of St. Faith's under St. Paul's, viz. To 12 Poor People 12*d.* in Money, and 12*d.* in Bread every Friday thro' the Year.

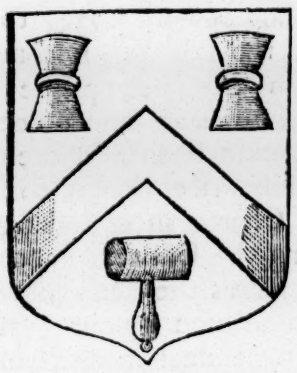
Mr. William Norton, Stationer, Treaſurer of Chriſt's-Hoſpital, gave to this Company 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly, to be lent to young Men, free of the ſame Society.

MARBLERS.



THE Company called by the Name of Marblers, for their excellent Knowledge and Skill in the Art of inſculping Figures on Grave-ſtones, Monuments, and the like, were an antient Fellowſhip, but no incorporated Company of themſelves, tho' now joined with the Company of Maſons.

THEIR Arms are: Sable, a Chevron between two Chiſſels in Chief, and a Mallet in Baſe, Argent, WOOL-PACKERS.

WHEN the Wool-Staple flouriſhed, in the Time of the Hans, there was a Company called the Wool-packers; but little is now remembered concerning them.

THEIR Arms were: Azure, a Wool-pack Argent.

FARRIERS.

THE Company of Farriers, it is ſaid, were incorporated very early, but the preciſe Time unknown; they are a Maſter, three Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, and 39 on the Livery: The Livery, Steward's, and Aſſiſtants Fines are 5*l.* each.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Gule, three Horſe-ſhoes Argent.

THESE Farriers, Stow ſaith, pretended to have their Riſe from Henry de Ferraris, a Norman, who was Maſter of the Horſe, or Farrier, to William the Conqueror, which Prince gave him the Honour of Tutbury in the County of Stafford, which was the firſt Honour given to the Farriers in England.

THIS Company have no Hall, but meet at a Tavern; their Meeting uſed to be at the George in Ironmonger-lane.

PAVIORS.

THE Company of Paviors are an antient Fellowſhip; but no Incorporation to this Day.

THEIR Arms are: Argent, a Chevron between three Stones Sable.

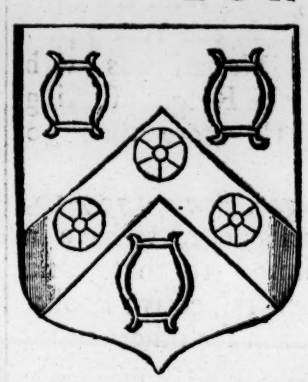
LORINORS.



THE Company of Lorinors, or Lorimers, were incorporated about the Year 1488.

THE 2d Day of October, in the 4th Year of Henry the VIIth, Will. Browne, Knt. being then Mayor of LONDON, certain Ordinances, made by the Guardians of the Myſtery of the Lorimers of LONDON, were confirmed by the Mayor and Aldermen of the City at Guildhall. Wherein it is mention'd, that the Fraternity had then been of long Continuance. And the 3d Day of December, in the 10th Year of Queen Anne, the ſaid Company were incorporated by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of Lorimers of LONDON. In procuring of which, Sir James Bateman, Knt. afterwards Lord Mayor of LONDON, a loving Member of the ſaid Company, was very aſſiſtant.

THEY are a Maſter, two Wardens, about 50 Aſſiſtants, but no Livery.

THEIR Arms are: Azure, on a Chevron Argent, between three Curb-bits, Or; as many Boſſes Sable.

THIS Company's Hall is a neat, tho' ſmall one; it is ſituated on London-Wall, almoſt over-againſt the North End of Baſinghall-ſtreet. It is now let out to the Glaſiers, and for a Meeting-Houſe.

BROWN-BAKERS.

THE Company of the Brown-Bakers, a Society of long Standing and Continuance, prevailed to have their Incorporating granted the ninth Day of June, in the 19th Year of the Reign of K. James I.

[Fraternitas Sancti Clementis Piſtorum LONDON, Anno 1380.

WOODMONGERS or FULLERS.

THE Company of the Woodmongers being a very antient Fellowſhip, and of good and amicable Agreement together for long Time, came to be incorporated the 29th Day of Auguſt, in the third Year of the Reign of K. James I. Anno 1604.

THEIR Arms are: Argent, a Sword crowned with a Ducal Coronet Or, on a between two Faggots Sable. Supporters;

St. Katharine holding a Wheel, and St. John Baptiſt, with a Coat of Camels Hair: Creſt; a Lyon Or, iſſuing out of a Thicket, proper. Motto; Now is the Ax laid to the Root of the Tree.

WHETHER ſome of theſe Woodmongers were called Billeters, from dealing in Billets, is not certain; but in the LONDON Regiſter of Wills, mention is made of one William Burford's Will, Citizen and Belleytere of LONDON.

THE Woodmongers in former Times had intruſted to them by the City, the Government of the Cars and Carts to be employed in the City, and Liberties; becauſe, as may be ſuppoſed, they made uſe of ſo many in a continual Carriage of Fire-Wood and Coals, of Timber, Boards, &c. to the Inhabitants for their neceſſary Supplies. Sir Richard Brown, Knight, who was the Loyal Lord Mayor, when King Charles II. came in, was of this Company: And in their Behalf procured an Act of Common-Council, Anno 1661, for them to order and diſpoſe of the Carts; that Truſt having been before in the Preſident and Governors of Chriſt's Hoſpital. But in the Year 1665, Laurence, Mayor, this Power was by another Act taken from the Company, and committed again to the ſaid Hoſpital, where it ſtill abideth: A further Account of theſe Carmen will follow by and by. In that Act were ſeveral Rules and Orders made for this Company, viz.

FOR the Prevention of the Deceit of Woodmongers, in the Sale and Meaſure of their Coals, it was ordered, "That all Sea-Coals ſhall be filled and brought home to the Buyers in the Sea-Coal Meeters Sacks, or ſuch other Sacks as contain the full Meaſure of the Sea-coal Meeters Sacks; and ſhall be marked by the Keeper of Guild-Hall, for the Time being, according to an Order of the Court of Aldermen, made the 25th of October, in the Mayoralty of Sir Tho. Cambel, Knight.

"ALL Perſons vending and uttering Sea-coal by Retail, ſhall, when they carry or ſend any Coals within LONDON or Liberties, carry along with their Coals a good lawful Buſhel, ſealed according to the Buſhel of the Guild-Hall, allowed for meaſuring of Sea-coal; which agreeth with the Fat antiently uſed for meaſuring Sea-coals: Which Buſhel ſhall be and contain in Breadth from Out to Out, (the Ring not exceeding half an Inch) 19 Inches and an half, and in Depth with the Buſhel ſeven Inches and an half. If they bring Coals without ſuch Buſhel, to forfeit 10*s.* for the firſt and ſecond Offence; and for the third, the Car or Carrs of the Offender ſo to be ſeized, and carried to the next Store-Yard.

"AND whereas the Woodmongers and others, uſing to ſell and utter Coals by Retail, have commonly gone or ſent down the River Thames, or otherways travelled, or employed their Agents, to meet the Ships or Veſſels coming from Newcaſtle, and other Parts; and at diſtant Places from the City, or by their Contract with the ſaid City and Liberties, have bought up and foreſtalled, and engroſſed great Quantity of Coals, which ſhould have been brought to the City by the Owners and Sellers thereof, to be there ſold at reaſonable Prices; and the ſame have conveyed and brought to the City, to ſell again at high and exceſſive Prices, againſt the Cuſtom and Privileges of the City, to the Publick Detriment and Oppreſſion of the Poor: It was enacted, That no Perſon inhabiting within the City, or Liberties, provide by Barge, or Conttact, for any Sea-coals, Scotch-coals, Pit-coals, or any other Coals, coming towards the City to be ſold, other than ſuch as ſhall be provided to be ſpent within their own private Houſes; nor ſhall ſell or utter the ſame by Retail or in Groſs; but that the Owners and Sellers thereof ſhall and may bring the ſame Coals to the City themſelves, here by them to be ſold, upon Pain of forfeiting 5*s.* for every Chaldron, and the like Sum for every Ton of Scotch-coals or Pit-coals.

"THAT the Yeomen of the Wood-Wharfs of this City diligently overſee, that all Perſons, coming or repairing to this City with any Coals aforementiond to be ſold, do obſerve the Orders and Rules before going; and do uſe Diligence for the Diſcovery and Puniſhment of all Offenders in and about any Particulars thereof.

"AND that all Pains, Penalties, and Forfeitures in and by this Act limited, may be recovered by Action of Debt, Bill, or Information, in the Name of the Chamberlain of the City, and in his Majeſty's Court holden before the Mayor and Aldermen in the ſaid City, in the Chamber of the Guild-Hall: And after Recovery thereof, one Moiety to the Informer, after Charges deducted, and the orher Moiety to the Poor of Chriſt's Hoſpital.

THE Carmen would make themſelves an antient Fellowſhip, and joined in the ſame Corporation with the Woodmongers. And of later Times fell out with the Woodmongers, who kept their own Carts for carrying out their Wood and Coals, to the great Prejudice of the Free Carmen of LONDON. Whereupon they brought their Caſe before the Court of Common-Council againſt the Woodmongers, for working unlicenced Carts; and for procuring 140 Carts by an Act of Common-Council, to 420 old licenſed Carts, to the Impoveriſhing of them. The Caſe by them ſtated was as followeth:

The CASE of the Antient FREE CARMEN of LONDON, humbly offered to the Conſideration of the Honourable Court of COMMON-COUNCIL.

THE Carmen of LONDON were made a Fellowſhip by the City in the Reign of Henry VIII. and in the third Year of K. James I. were incorporated with the People called Fuellers, by the Name of Woodmongers, and ſo continued till the Year 1668; about which Time ſeveral Complaints being made to K. Charles II. by divers great Perſonages, of the Woodmongers Frauds in buying and ſelling of Sea-Coal and other Fuel, his Majeſty recommended the Redreſs thereof to the City of LONDON: Upon which a Committee of Common-Council was choſen, who reported their Frauds and Abuſes in the Meaſure of their Fuel; and amongſt divers other Matters, That no effectual Courſe could be taken for redreſſing thereof, but by prohibiting the Woodmongers from keeping and working Carts of their own for carrying abroad their Fuel. Upon which Report, the Court of Common-Council paſſed an Act to effect the ſame.

THAT the Woodmongers ſtill continuiug their evil Practices, particularly their grand Abuſes done to the Carmen, Application was made to the King in Council for the Carmens Relief; upon which the Woodmongers appealed to the Parliament, where their Abuſes were ſo apparent, that, for Fear of Proſecution and Puniſhment, they ſurrendered their Charter: And hereupon the Carmen were made a Fellowſhip by the City, by Name of The Free Carmen of the City of LONDON, Anno 1668.

THAT the Woodmongers contemning the aforemention'd Act of Common-Council, ſeveral Suits were brought againſt them for working unlicenſed Carts; and the Act being found to be deficient in Matter of Form, upon Argument in the Courts at Weſtminſter, the Judges gave particular Directions how it ſhould be amended; which the Common-Council having done, it was by them paſſed into an Act in the Year 1681. And the Woodmongers ſtill refuſing to conform, Actions were brought againſt them in LONDON; which they removed into the Court of Common-Pleas, and Exchequer; where the Validity of the Act was argued by Council learned, and the Honourable the Judges of both Courts pronounced the ſaid Act to be a good By-Law, and granted Procedendo's thereupon.

THAT the Woodmongers, after having put the City, Chriſt's Hoſpital, and the poor Carmen, to the Expence of thirty Years Time and Treaſure, finding the ſaid By-Law to be binding, did apply themſelves to the City, and by their crafty Inſinuations, have obtained an Act of Common-Council for allowing them 120 Carts, over and above the 420 old licenſed Carts, which they now work; ſo that near 200 old licenſed Carts ſtand idle daily for Want of their rightful Labour, to the Impoveriſhing and Undoing ſeveral Hundreds of the antient free Carmen.

" And now, may it farther be offered to your " Conſiderations, That we the ſaid poor Carmen " of LONDON, have paid, Time out of " Mind, 400 l. a Year, for the Relief of the poor " Children of Chriſt's Hoſpital. And tho' we " are now oppreſs'd by the new Addition of 120, " over and above the antient Number of 420, " yet we continue to pay it ſtill.

" And, That the ſaid antient Carmen do not " deſire to leſſen the Authority of the City of " LONDON, and the Hoſpital, ought of " Right to have over them, but to eſtabliſh the " Number of 420, thoſe being more than a ſuf- " ficient Number to perform all the Services of " the City.

" And farther, Are willing to pay 400 l. per " Annum into the Chamber of LONDON, " for the City's Uſe, over and above the 400 l. " a Year paid to Chriſt's Hoſpital; and are like- " wiſe willing to pay 20 l. a Year towards ma- " king and maintaining a Cartway up and down " Tower Dock, if the Honourable Common- " Council ſhall pleaſe to reduce the Carts to the " antient Number of 420, uſed by the Free " Carmen: And are content with the Rates or " Prices the City has already ſet and appointed " for the Cartage of all Sorts of Goods.

AN Act of Common-Council was made for the licenſing of Carts for theſe Woodmongers, in the Mayoralty of Sir William Aſhurſt; which may not be amiſs here alſo to inſert.

An ACT for Licenſing CARTS, to be uſed by the Freemen Woodmongers, or Traders in Fuel, that inhabit within the City and Liberties thereof.

WHEREAS there was formerly aſſigned, allowed and appropriated, by the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON, unto the Woodmongers or Traders in Fuel, inhabiting within the ſaid City and the Liberties thereof, a certain Number of Carts, for carrying of Sea-Coals and other Fuel, which have been Part of the Number of four hundred and twenty Cars or Carts allowed, marked and appointed for the general Service of this City: But of late Years the Number of Inhabitants being greatly increaſed, and by Reaſon thereof the neceſſary Uſe of Street-Cars or Carts is much increaſed alſo; and therefore all the ſaid four hundred and twenty Cars have been uſed only for Street-Cars and Carts, whereby the Woodmongers and Traders in Fuel, within this City and the Liberties thereof, are in a great Meaſure diſabled to manage and carry on their ſaid Trade and Employments: The which they have humbly repreſented unto this Court of Common-Council, and prayed Relief therein.

AND this Court having taken the ſame into ſerious Conſideration, do find it neceſſary to increaſe the ſaid Number of four hundred and twenty Cars and Carts, ſo allowed and appointed as aforeſaid, ſo far forth as may be neceſſary for the ſaid Woodmongers or Dealers in Fuel, only for the Management and carrying on their ſaid Trades and Employments; and alſo for enabling them to furniſh the Citizens and other Inhabitants of this City and Liberties, with Coals and other Fuel, at as cheap and eaſy Rates and Prices as they or any others may or can.

BE it enacted therefore by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons in Common-Council aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame, That there ſhall be allowed, marked, and appointed to and for the ſole Uſe and Employment of the Woodmongers, or Traders in Fuel, (being Freemen, and inhabiting within the City of LONDON and the Liberties thereof, and no other) a fitting and convenient Number of Cars and Carts, not exceeding one hundred and twenty, other than and beſides the aforeſaid Number of four hundred and twenty Cars and Carts, now uſed as Street-Cars and Carts, as aforeſaid:

THE which Cars and Carts ſo to be allowed, marked and appointed, ſhall be appropriated unto them the ſaid Woodmongers, or Traders in Fuel, for the ſole Uſe, Management and Carrying on the Trade or Employment of Woodmongers, or Dealers in Fuel only; and ſhall be divided and diſtributed to and amongſt them from Time to Time, as may be moſt convenient for them, and leaſt to the Annoyance and Deſtruction of the publick Streets and Paſſages of this City, and the Liberties thereof; any Act of Common-Council, or other Law, Uſage, or Cuſtom of this City, now in Being and in Force, to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

AND be it farther enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid Cars and Carts ſo to be allowed, marked and appointed by Virtue of this Act, ſhall not be, nor taken or eſteemed to be, appurtenant to the ſeveral and reſpective Wharf or Wharfs, to which the ſame or any of them are or ſhall be ſo allowed or appointed, nor ſhall be, ſold or diſpoſed of by ſuch or any other the Woodmongers or Traders in Fuel, in any Manner howſoever.

AND that the Cars and Carts ſo to be allowed and appointed to the ſaid Woodmongers or Traders in Fuel, ſhall be burnt with a Faggot-Mark on both the Outſides thereof, and ſhall have alſo thereupon a Piece of Braſs, with the true Number of ſuch Cars or Carts; and the Raves thereof ſhall be higher than the Raves of the Street-Cars or Carts, to keep the Fuel the ſafer from falling off and hurting the People in the Streets, and alſo the better to diſtinguiſh them from the ſaid other Cars or Carts.

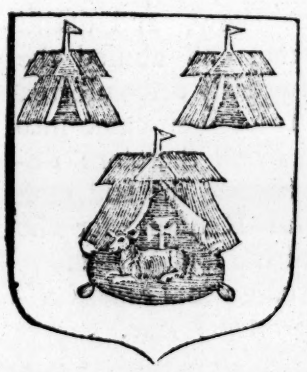
AND

And that the ſaid Wharf-Carts, nor Cars, nor any of them, ſhall work in the Streets in any other Work than only in carrying of Coals and other Fuel, to and from the reſpective Wharfs, belonging to ſuch Perſons to whom the ſaid Cars or Carts ſhall be allowed; upon Pain, That for every Time ſuch Wharf-Car, or Cart, ſhall work, or be otherwiſe employed for Wages, Hire, or Reward, the ſaid Car or Cart ſhall forfeit and pay for every ſuch Offence the Sum of Five Pounds.

And all and every the Licences that ſhall be given to any ſuch Woodmonger or Trader in Fuel, whoſe Carts or Cars ſhall be ſo hired and employed, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of this preſent Act, ſhall from thence be ſuſpended, 'till ſuch repſective Penalty or Penalties ſhall be paid and ſatisfied: And every Perſon ſo offending, ſhall ('till the ſaid reſpective Sums be paid) be diſabled to work any of his ſaid Cars or Carts; notwithſtanding any Licence or Licences, to ſuch Perſon or Perſons, granted by Virtue of this Act.

And for the better putting this Act in Execution, and for the more equal and impartial Diſtribution of the ſaid Wharf-Cars, or Carts, to and amongſt the ſaid Woodmongers or Traders in Fuel, with due Reſpect to their ſeveral and reſpective Wants and Occaſions in the ſaid reſpective Trades: Be it further enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That the Right Honourable Sir Thomas Lane, Knight, Lord Mayor Elect, Sir Thomas Stamp, Knight, Sir James Houblon, and Sir Francis Child, Knights and Aldermen of this City; and Mr. Caddon, Mr. Deputy Eyre, &c.

UPHOLSTERS.



The Company of Upholſters, or Upholders, were of elder Times a Brotherhood and Fellowſhip among themſelves of good Eſteem; but there is no Record of the Time of their Incorporation: They are a Maſter, three Wardens, about 31 Aſſiſtants, and 121 on the Livery. The Livery Fine is 4 l. 10 s. and for Steward 11 l.

Their Arms are: Sable, three Tents Gules.

In the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, and perhaps before, great was the Deceit by theſe Tradeſmen, uſed in their Feathers, in their Quilts and Coverlids, in their Cuſhions for Chairs and Stools: And from 1578, and forwards, moſt Feathers that were in Sacks came out of the Low-Countries, ſo packed up, out of the Spoil of Houſes, with Lime, Dirt, Duſt, Stones, and all heavy Rubbiſh, to make them Weight; that when they did drive a Sack, to make Beds of them, they did garboil out of every Hundred, the Half of ſuch Baggage and refuſe Stuff; and yet the Feathers ſtill remained unmade clean, for the Purpoſe, the Lime would cleave ſo faſt on them. A better Sort of Sacks of Feathers came out of Eaſtland; but near Hand as faulty, which in Driving fell out a little better, but not much.

All made Stuff that came out of France, for Quilts and Coverlids, for Inns, and Husbandmen of the Country, came all ſtuffed with Cow-Hair, taken from the Head by the Tanners. And ſuch Stuff made as came from thence or Flanders, in Cuſhions, or for Chairs and Stools, were filled with Thiſtle-Down, naughty Flocks, and all Baggage in them that would breed Worms, and eat the Stuff, and ſtink. And ſo did they fill all their Mattraſſes.

One Cordel, about the Year 1585, ſued to the Queen, That conſidering theſe Abuſes in the Trade of Upholſters, he might be appointed to ſearch and ſeal their Commodities, and to have the Place of a Searcher, and accordingly to ſeize ſuch as were thus abuſed, as Forfeit by Law. The Lord Treaſurer Burghley privately ſent Peter Osborn, his Remembrancer, a diſcreet and honeſt Man, into the City, to get Information, the beſt he could, in this Matter; who, without mentioning Cordel's Suit, asking an Upholſter, Whether a Search would not help? He ſaid, All Retailers were then undone; for all their Stuff of that Kind was ſuch, and forfeited by the Statute; but if it began with the Merchants that brought it in, they would bring no more ſuch, as he thought, 'till they might have better.

Then the Upholſter, complaining how the Upholſters were no Corporation, Osborn moved, whether Incorporating them would help, putting the Search thereof into their Hands; he thought it would, if they had Authority: And tho' there were but ſix of their Company of any Subſtance, they would beſtow 100 l. to have it; that this Suit of the Search, which then they heard of, might ſtay. The Iſſue was, That Osborn ſent the Warden of the Company of Upholſters to the Lord Treaſurer; and his Advice was, That Cordel ſhould have ſome good Sum to procure their Corporation, and ſome Part of the Forfeitures upon Searches; and the Queen adding ſome little Portion on her Part, would advance well Cordel's Suit, and bring a Reformation of a great Inconvenience to the Commonweal.

Again, in the Year 1594, publick Complaints were made to the Lord Treaſurer, of divers Frauds and Miſchiefs in Upholſters Commodities; as of the Badneſs of the Feathers, of their Smelling, of Fen-Down, of Squib and Strick Hair, of Stuffing French Quilts with Cows Hair, of Wares made up of Flocks, and Part of Wooll: And for the Redreſs of theſe Things, Petitions were put up by ſeveral of the Upholſters; and they (as it ſeems) the honeſteſt of them. The Lord Treaſurer upon this ſent his Letters (together with the Petition offered him) to certain of the eminenteſt, and of them to know, if thoſe Informations were true; and if they were willing a Searcher ſhould be appointed to look into them.

These, in their Anſwer (excepting two or three of them, who diſſented) acknowledged the Abuſes committed in the ſaid Trade were very great, and rather greater than was expreſs'd in the Petition. And that altho' ſeveral Laws had been made before the Times of King Henry VII. and King Edward VI. for Reformation of the ſaid Abuſes; yet for Want of good Execution, the ſaid Deceits were much more encreaſed; that in Reſpect whereof, becauſe they that were Traders in the ſaid Occupation, conſiſting of divers Companies, namely, Upholſters, Drapers, Merchant-Taylors, Skinners, and Clothworkers, could not conveniently reform the ſame among themſelves, their Deſire was, If her Majeſty paſſed any Grant for the Overſight and Correction of the ſame Abuſes, that then the Perſon to whom the ſaid Grant ſhould be made, ſhould call to his Aid and Aſſiſtance, as oft as he ſhould overſee any of theſe Abuſes, two or three honeſt Subſidy Men, of ſome of the aforſaid five Companies, whereby no Wrong might be done to any Man, but that the Commonwealth might receive thereby ſuch Benefit as was deſired. In the which Courſe, they aſſured his Honour, there would be a Reformation of intolerable Abuſes, and a general Good done.

But whatever Anſwer they gave, this was oppoſed by a great many others: Who, in another Petition to the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, alledged

theſe things; that of Feathers were divers Sorts, and that they did much vary in their own Nature; and that it was not poſſible to make thoſe good, that of themſelves were bad. That thoſe that ſmelled could not be made ſweet, but by ſome Continuance of Wearing. That the Duſt that was in them, was by reaſon of the Dryneſs and Sandineſs of the Soil wherein they were bred. That as for the Rubbiſh and Quills, they might be put into them by the Parties who had the uſing of them, and the other by the Negligence of them that had the Making of them. Which they humbly beſeeched his Honour might be looked into by Men experienced in ſuch Caſes, of the Company of Upholſters, and not by ſuch as only ſought for private Gain. For unleſs they underhand agreed with the Merchant (which would breed great Inconveniences) it was to be feared that the Merchant, ſeeing his Wares toſſed, garbled and ript up, at length they ſhould have neither good nor bad. That there were none to be found, but Exceptions might be taken againſt them in ſome Caſe; and that the Prices at that Day were ſo exceſſive, that where they had been in their Remembrance at Five Pence, now they were at Eight Pence the Pound, and not ſo good. That if they ſpake of good, there was but one Country, which was France, from whence they came; where they did once a Year pluck their Geeſe alive, and let them go again. And this was the Cauſe that no other Feathers would be ſweet. Which French Feathers would be but few, if they had no others.

Secondly, For the Down, in ſome Caſes they found it to be tolerable: that is, for Stuffing of Cuſhions, and Making of Bedding for the Poor, whoſe Ability might not reach higher. And as for the Stuff it ſelf, they knew it would breed nothing that was hurtful to the Body's Health: Only in the firſt Year that it was gathered, it would breed a Worm, while it was green: but being a Year old, the Stuff was as ſweet and clean as any Feathers. And for this, Order was taken by them, that none ſhould be uſed, until it were a Year old; as alſo by the Parties that gathered them, which were the poor People in the Iſle of Ely: For, the mingling of this Stuff with Feathers, or any other Stuff to deceive any, was a Thing which they never heard of or knew.

Thirdly, As touching Squib and Strick Hair, they were of Opinion it was not to be uſed (Cow Hair excepted) and they thought was not uſed of any: For Down was come in the Place of it. Neither could they ſee, that it could altogether be taken away, Flocks being of ſo high Price, that the Poor could not reach them: Neither could the Quantity of Flocks be gotten in all England to ſerve for this Purpoſe: Whereby many poor People ſhould lye in the Straw, or full hard. And it was uſed for Mattreſſes to lye under Featherbeds, to keep them from the Cords.

Fourthly, For French Quilts which were ſtuffed with Cow-Hair, there had not any Quantity come over in four Years: Neither did they look for any Quantity, although they were much deſired of many; and eſpecially of Inn-keepers, who knew that they were ſtuffed with Cow-Hair; nor could find any Thing for that Price ſo convenient ro ſerve their Purpoſe.

Fifthly, That whereas ſome ſued, that all Wares, wherein there was any Cow-Hair, might be forfeited, it was a Thing unreaſonable. For ſo ſhould the moſt part of our Coverings, that come out of Flanders, called Varder, and a hundred a Week that came out of Gloceſterſhire, be forfeited. And it being reported, that Buckrams which came out of France, and Ticks which came out of Flanders (whereof they then had but few, and thoſe dear) were intended to be ſealed: The Rumour of which Sealing and Garbling their Commodities was ſo noiſed among the Merchants, that they ſhould want that which otherwiſe would have been brought over in ſome reaſonable Sort, to the great Prejudice of the Commonwealth.

Sixthly, Wares made Part of Flocks and Part of Wool, as Dornix and certain Coverings made at Sudbury, whether mixed with Flocks or not, they were not able truly to ſay; but for theſe, Sealers were appointed; and yet never were they ſo bad, nor ſo dear.

AND theſe were their Anſwers to the pre-ſuppoſed Abuſes in their Trade: And in Concluſion they beſeeched his Lordſhip, That by his Authority there might not any ſuch Thing or Grant paſs againſt them as was required: Which if he ſhould permit, it would be to the utter Overthrow and Impoveriſhing of the Trade, and the great Hinderance of her Majeſty's Subjects.

NOTWITHSTANDING this Petition of the Company of Upholſters, the other Party (who called themſelves alſo the Company) preſented their Petition againſt the former, with their Anſwers to each Article above-mentioned; which they called Falſe Suggeſtions; and craved Leave to unfold to the Lord Treaſurer the true Reaſons, why they withſtood the Reformation of the ſame Abuſes, viz. That they ordinarily bought Fen-Downe and Thiſtle-Downe for an Half-penny a Pound, and ſold the ſame among Feathers for 6 d. the Pound, and amongſt Feather-Downe for 16 d. the Pound. That they took coarſe Canvas Cloth, being worth about 2 s. and 6 d. for a Tick of a Bed, and ſtuff'd the ſame with Fen-Downe mingled with Squib, Cow-Hair and Strike, which coſt them about 6 d. and ſold the ſame for a Bed to the Poor, for 10 or 12 s. and ſometimes more, which in very ſhort Time turned all to Worms. And it was moſt filthy and corrupt. That by theſe deceitful and wicked Means, they did only enrich themſelves, being not many, and undid almoſt all the whole Company, and abuſed the whole Realm. And, which greatly diſcomforted all honeſt Men, the greateſt Cuſtom came into the Hands of theſe Abuſers; and therefore deſired the Lord Treaſurer to further the ſaid moſt honeſt, reaſonable and lawful Requeſt, for the Overſeeing and Correction of the ſaid Wares.

THE Upholders Hall is ſituated in Leadenhall-Street, almoſt over-againſt St. Mary Axe.

TURNERS.

THE Company of Turners had long continued a loving Fellowſhip or Brotherhood among themſelves, to the good Example of others, and became incorporated in the ſecond Year of King James I. Anno Domini 1603. They are a Maſter, two Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, and 118 on the Livery: Their Livery Fine is 8 l. the Steward 12 l. Thoſe under the Livery may take one Apprentice, the reſt two.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Sable, a Catharine-Wheel, Or, between two Pillars, with an Imperial Crown in Chief, and an Axe in Baſe.

THESE Turners antiently were Meaſure-makers: And there is this Record in the Chamber of LONDON, concerning an Oath ſome of them took before the Mayor about making Meaſures. Henry le Tournour, dwelling in Wood-Street, Richard le Tournour, John le Tournour, in Swithin's-lane of Candlewike-ſtreet; Rob. le Tournour, living at Flete; William le Tournour, without Biſhopſgate; Richard le Corveiſer, Tournour, living in Wodeſtrete: All theſe were ſworn on Saturday next before the Feaſt of St. Thomas the Apoſtle, An. 4 Edw. II. before the Mayor and Aldermen, that for the future they make not any Meaſures but Gallons, Pottles and Quarts: And that they make no falſe Meaſures; as Meaſures called Chopines and Gylles; nor to make them after the Manner of Boxes, or Glaſſes, or after any other Manner. And that all ſuch falſe Meaſures, of what Sort ſoever they be, and whereſoever it ſhall happen they find them, they ſhall attach in the Hands of the Turners, or in any other Place, as well in the Hands of Strangers as of Freemen; and ſhall cauſe them to come to Guildhall before the Mayor; and ſhall preſent them, under Pain of heavy Forfeiture.

The Turners Hall is ſituated on the Eaſt-Side of Philpot Lane, near Eaſt-Cheap.

GLASIERS.

THE Company of Glaſiers have been a Society of antient Memory, and maintained a League and Brotherly Affection together: They were incorporated in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and are a Maſter, two Wardens, 21 Aſſiſtants, and 75 on the Livery; their Livery-Fine is 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

Their Arms and Creſt were confirmed to them by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, King at Arms, Anno Domini 1588. And in the Viſitation of LONDON, made by Sir Henry St. George, Richmond, Deputy to Sir Richard St. George, Knt. Clarencieux King at Arms; the Demy Lion in Chief, at that Time, was altered to a Lion paſſant, Or, 1634. The Maſter being Mr. John Addiſon; William Hide and Euſebius Palmer, Wardens.

Their Arms are: Argent two groſſing Irons ſaltierways between Four cloſing Nails Sable, on a Chief Gules, a Lion of England. Creſt; a Lion's Head eraſed Or, between two Wings Azure. Supporters; Two Finals, or Boys, each holding a Torch proper. Motto; Lucem tuam da Nobis, O Deus!

This Company have had no Hall ſince the Fire of LONDON, but meet at Lorimers.

CLERKS.

THE Company of Clerks, commonly termed Pariſh-Clerks, are of very long Continuance; they were incorporated in the 17th Year of the Reign of King Henry III. Anno Domini 1232, and confirmed by ſeveral Kings ſince.

They are a Maſter, two Wardens, 17 Aſſiſtants, as Governors, beſides one of every Pariſh.

Their Arms are: Azure a Flower de Lis Or, on a Chief Gules; a Leopard's Head between two Books cloſed of the Second.

A Compoſition was antiently made between the Chamberlain of the City, and the Pariſh-Clerks, for having the Liberty of the City.

They were a Guild or Fraternity for 400 Years and upwards, known then by the Name of the Brotherhood of St. Nicholas; whoſe Hall was near Little St. Helen's by Biſhopſgate-ſtreet, within the Gate, at the then Sign of the Angel, where the Pariſh-Clerks had ſeven Alms-houſes for poor Clerks Widows, as Stow ſhews. Unto this Fraternity Men and Women of the firſt Quality, Eccleſiaſtical and Others, joined themſelves: Who, as they were great Lovers of the Church-Muſick in general, ſo their Beneficence unto Pariſh-Clerks in particular, is abundantly evident by ſome antient Manuſcripts at their Common-Hall in Great Wood-ſtreet, wherein Footſteps of this great Bounty appear, by the large Gifts and Revenues given for the Maintenance and Encouragement of ſuch as ſhould devote themſelves to the Study and Practice of this Noble and Divine Science; and in which the Pariſh-Clerks did then excel, Singing being their peculiar Province.

King Charles I. renewed their Charter, and conferred upon them very ample Privileges and Immunities, and incorporated them by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Fellowſhip of Pariſh-Church Clerks of the City and Suburbs of LONDON, and the Liberties thereof; the City of Weſtminſter, the Borough of Southwark, and the fifteen Out-Pariſhes adjacent. And of which Privileges this is not the leaſt, viz. That in Reſpect of their great and continual Service, and the Charge which they undergo, they ſhould be free from all Offices, unleſs they deſired or yielded themſelves thereunto. Which Privilege was confirmed to them by the Order of the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, in the Mayoralty of Sir Robert Viner, in the - - - - - Year of King Charles II. in theſe Words, viz. "All Pariſh-"Clerks to be exempt from all Pariſh-Offices, "as by their Charter, and by an Order of the "Mayoralty of the City of LONDON." But if any Pariſh-Clerk within the Bills of Mortality ſhall happen to live in any other Pariſh than that of which he is Clerk, he may not expect that Privilege, but muſt take his Lot, and bear his Office as well as other Pariſhioners. Another Privilege is, that they are allowed to have a Printing-Preſs in their CommonHall, for the Printing of their Weekly and General Bills of Mortality. And a Printer for that Purpoſe is appointed them by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury for the Time being.

By their Charter alſo they are enjoined to make Report of all the Chriſtenings and Burials, which do happen in their ſeveral reſpective Pariſhes, on every Tueſday Weekly by Six o'Clock in the Afternoon at the fartheſt, (but according to the By-Laws, by Two) that the King or Queen may have a true Account thereof upon Wedneſday following. For whom, a Book is drawn up by the Clerk of the Company, and ſent to his Majeſty, and another Book prepared for his Lordſhip's own Uſe.

They are by their Charter empowered to adminiſter an Oath to the Members of their Corporation, upon their firſt Admiſſion: "To be "obſervant of, and obedient unto all ſuch whol-"ſome Rules and Orders made or to be made, "which may conduce to the common Profit and "Benefit of the ſaid Company or Fellowſhip." And before the Oath be adminiſter'd to one newly choſen a Pariſh-Clerk, he muſt procure a Licence under the Seal of the Office of the Biſhop of LONDON. Upon producing which, the next Court-Day he may be ſworn, and received as a Brother of the Society of Pariſh-Clerks. Notwithſtanding, if the Perſon have not obtained his Licence as aforeſaid, he may not be refuſed his Admittance, provided he produce a Certificate under the Hand of the Miniſter and Church-Warden of ſuch his Election into the Place of Pariſh-Clerk.

Rules and Orders are printed and given to every Pariſh-Clerk, when he is ſworn; the ſame with thoſe that are appointed to be hung up in a Frame in the Common-Hall, where all that are concerned may take Notice of them: They chiefly relate to direct the Clerk in his Care concernconcerning the Bills of Mortality, and to take a careful Account of all that die in his Pariſh, or are chriſten'd; with their Names, Diſeaſes, Places of Dwelling, &c. and to bring all in duly to the Hall, in order to the printing the ſaid Bills: But again, to look a little upon them in Times foregoing.

FORMERLY this Society of Pariſh-Clerks uſed to attend great Funerals, going before the Hearſe, and ſinging, with their Surplices hanging on their Arms, till they came to the Church.

SOME certain Days in the Year they had their publick Feaſts, which they celebrated with Singing and Muſick, and then received into their Society ſuch Perſons as delighted in Singing, or were ſtudious of it. Theſe their Meetings and Performances were in Guildhall College, or Chapel. Thus the 27th of September 1560, on the Eve thereof, they had Even-Song, and on the Morrow there was a Communion; and after, they retired to Carpenters-Hall to Dinner. And May the 11th, 1562, they kept their Communion at the ſaid Guildhall Chapel, and received ſeven Perſons into their Brotherhood, and then repaired to their own Hall to Dinner: and after Dinner, a goodly Play of the Children of Weſtminſter, with Waits, and Regals, and Singing.

THE Pariſh-Clerks Hall is ſituated on the Weſt Side of Wood-ſtreet.

ANTIENTLY there were divers other Myſteries which are now aboliſhed and gone, or ſwallowed up in other Societies, as,

WHITAWERS, FUSTARERS, or FUSTERS.

FUSTERS, or Seelers of LONDON. They ſeem to be Saddle-tree-makers. Theſe came before John le Blund, Mayor, (in the Reign of Edward II. about the Year 1307) and the Aldermen, and prayed, that the Points or Articles of the Myſtery de Fuſte [of Fuſters] which were uſed in the Times of their Anceſtors, might yet be held and uſed, and by ſix honeſt Men of the Myſtery might be ſearched and tried; that is, that no Fuſtier make Arzſons de Seels, i. e. Bows or Trees of Saddles, but of Quarter; and that le Fuſt, i. e. The Staff, be dry before it be painted; and that each Fuſter have one certain Mark to mark all his Arzſons, i. e. Saddle Bows, that he makes; and that no Painter put Paint or Colour upon an Arzſon made out of the City.

MEGUSERS.

THESE were a Company who dealt in the Skins of dead Horſes and other Creatures, and flawed them; which they ſometimes did within the City; which was ſuch an Annoyance, that it ſeems it was complained of to the Mayor and Aldermen. And in the Mayoralty of Richard de Refham, Ann. 4. Regni Regis Edw. ſil. Regis Edw. Walter le Whitawyer, Richard de Hundeſdich, John le Megucer, Richard le Megucer, were ſworn, that they ſhall never hereafter flaw, or cauſe to be flawed, dead Horſes within the City or Suburbs, by themſelves or others, under Pain of Danger to fall upon them. And if any of the aforeſaid ſworn Perſons ſhould hereafter ſee any flawing any Horſe within the City or Suburbs, preſently to inform the Mayor for the Time being.

CAPPERS.

Capellarii, Cappers. Hugh Fitz-Otonis being Cuſtos of the City, 54 Hen. III. were made certain Ordinances for the Trade of the Cappers, in the Preſence of the Aldermen, and by their unanimous Conſent, viz. That none ſhould make a Cap but of good white or grey Wool, or black. That none dye a Cap made of white or grey Wool, into Black; becauſe there is very great Deceit therein; for coming into the Rain, they fall, or loſe Colour, &c.

THERE was an Act 13 Eliz. in Favour of theſe Cappers, which Trade began then to grow into Decay. In this Act was declared, what Abundance of poor People, with Women and Children, were employed; as alſo Halt, Decrepit, Lame, in ſundry Exerciſes belonging to that Trade; as, Carders, Spinners, Knitters, Parters of Wool, Forcers, Thickers, Dreſſers, Walkers, Dyers, Battelers, Shearers, Preſſers, Edgers, Liners, Band-makers, and other Exerciſes; who have thereby maintained themſelves and their Families. And the ſaid Act mentioneth, how the wearing of theſe Caps were very decent and comely for all Eſtates and Degrees, eſpecially for ſuch as inhabit Cities, Boroughs, Towns, Villages and Hamlets within the Realm. The Act alſo ſpecified what Sort of Perſons muſt wear theſe Caps, and when, viz. All above the Age of ſix Years, except Maidens, Ladies and Gentlewomen inhabiting within Cities, Boroughs, Towns, &c. and except Noble Perſons, Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen of the Poſſeſſion of twenty Marks by the Year; and except all that have borne Office of Worſhip in any City, &c. Theſe ſhall wear upon the Sabbath and Holidays (unleſs they travel out of the City, Towns, &c.) upon their Heads one Cap of Wool, knit, thicked, and dreſſed in England, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 3 s. 4 d.

WATERMEN.

THE Company of Watermen on the River of Thames, LONDON, were made a Company by Act of Parliament, the 2d and 3d of Philip and Mary: Wherein it is expreſſed, that there ſhall be Yearly appointed, choſen, and elected, by the Mayor and Aldermen for the City of LONDON, for the Time being, the Number of eight Perſons of the moſt Wiſe, Diſcreet, and beſt Sort of Watermen, being Honſholders, and occupying as Watermen upon the ſaid River between Graveſend and Windſor: Which Election ſhall be Yearly at the firſt Court of Aldermen, to be holden within the ſaid City, next after the firſt Day of March. And the ſame eight Perſons ſo elected, ſhall be named and called The Overſeers and Rulers of all the Wherrymen and Watermen, that from and after the firſt Day of March ſhall Uſe, Occupy, or Exerciſe, any Rowing upon the ſaid River of Thames, between Graveſend and Windſor aforeſaid. Which ſaid Overſeers and Rulers ſhall keep and maintain good Order and Obedience amongſt the ſaid Watermen, according to the true Meaning of this preſent Act.

AND the 11th and 12th Year of King William III. an Act of Parliament paſt for uniting the Lightermen upon the ſaid River to the Watermen, viz. That all and every Perſon and Perſons, who ſhall be employed in rowing, or any ways navigating any Lighter or Lighters, or other great Craft on the River of Thames, (Trinitymen, Fiſhermen, Ballaſtmen, Weſtern Barges, and Mill Boats, Chalk Hoys, Faggot and Wood Lighters, and other Craft carrying the ſame excepted) ſhall be duly and truly regiſtered in a Book or Books for that Purpoſe, to be kept by the Company of Watermen and Lightermen; and ſhall likewiſe be liable to ſuch Orders, Rules, and Conſtitutions made, or to be made, for the better Rule and Government of the ſaid Society, or Company of Watermen and Lightermen; and the Pains and Penalties, to enforce due Obedience thereto.

THIS

THIS Company are more particularly under the Dominion of the Lord Mayor; they have beſides the Rulers, three Auditors of Accounts, and 60 Aſſiſtants, but are no Livery, not having any Freedom of the City.

THEIR Arms are: Barry Wavy of ſix Argent and Azure, a Boat Or, on a Chief of the ſeocnd, a pair of Oars Saltierways of the third, between two Cuſhions of the firſt. Creſt, a Hand proper holding an Oar as the former. Supporters; two Dolphins proper. Motto; At Command of our Superiors.

MR. Strype ſaith, he was told by a Member of the Company, that there were 40,000 Watermen upon the Rolls of the Company; and that upon Occaſion, they could furniſh 20,000 Men for the Fleet, and that there were then 8000 in the Service.

THERE is a Book (the Original whereof is in the Town-Clerk's Office) intitled, The Conſtitution of the Company of Watermen and Lightermen, as amended by the Right Hon. the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen: And afterwards confirmed and approved by the Right Hon. the Lord Chief Juſtice Holt, whoſe Approbation ran in theſe Words: I have ſeen and peruſed theſe By-Laws, and do approve, allow, and confirm the ſame. Dated the 16th Day of April, Anno Dom. 1708.

TO which is prefixed a Table of the Contents of thoſe By-Laws. And thereunto annexed an Abſtract of the reſpective Duties of Rulers, &c. This Book was printed Anno 1708, by Laurence Braddon, from the Original in the Records of the City.

THE Watermens-Hall is ſituated in Cold-Harbour in Thames-ſtreet, near the Thames.

APOTHECARIES.

THE Company of the Apothecaries, that divided themſelves from the antient Society of Grocers, grew ſo highly favoured by K. James I. that he called them his Company; and granted them Order for Incorporation the ſixth Day of December, in the fifteenth Year of his Reign, Anno Domini 1617.

THEY are a Maſter, two Wardens, about 32 Aſſiſtants,, 143 on the Livery, and the whole Company are about 420.

THE Fines for Livery-Men are 15 l. for Steward 15 l. and for Herbalizing 5 l. The may take two Apprentices, and if they take the ſecond before the firſt has ſerved ſeven Years, they muſt at that Time pay their Livery-Fine; but it may happen to be ſeveral Years before they have the Privilege of Livery-Men, becauſe they take it by Turn. Thoſe bound Apprentices to this Trade are always to ſerve 8 Years.

THE Office of the Men of this Myſtery is to make up and prepare Phyſick for the Sick or Diſeaſed, according to the Preſcriptions and Directions of the Phyſician; and ſo are to be Men skilled in Plants and Herbs, in Roots and Drugs, and to underſtand and exerciſe Chymiſtry. And hereby they become Aſſiſtants to the Phyſician in helping Men in Pain and Miſery, and in the Recovery of Life and Health, "Which being, (as "a learned Phyſician writes) the moſt valuable "Thing in the World, that Art whereby the firſt "may be prolonged, and the other preſerved "or reſtored, muſt needs challenge the Eſteem "and Regard of all. Theſe are the proper and "genuine Ends of the Art of Phyſick; an Art "to which, under God, ſome owe their Con-"ception, others their Birth; and which is "helpful to Mankind in all Periods of Life. It "eaſeth the Pained, and comforteth the Sick "and Languiſhing; it giveth Sight to the Blind, "Hearing to the Deaf, and Feet to the Lame; "it cheareth the Melancholick, reſtoreth the "Uſe of Reaſon to the Diſtracted, and procureth "Sleep and Quiet to the Reſtleſs. It extin-"guiſheth the Flame of Fevers, draineth and "drieth up the Deluge of Dropſies, and putteth "Life and Beauty into the Faces of the Fair Sex. "In Short, it cureth Diſeaſes almoſt innume-"rable; and if not all and always, 'tis becauſe "Sin, that hath made Death certain, muſt needs "alſo make ſome Diſeaſes incurable: But tho' this Commendation primarily belongeth to the Phyſician's Learning, yet the Apothecary's Art, which is ſo ſubſervient, and ſuch an Handmaid thereunto, muſt not be deprived of its Share in it.

A Controverſy happened of late between theſe Apothecaries and the Phyſicians; the Phyſicians complaining, That the Apothecaries did exceed their Office and Trade, in taking upon them to adminiſter Phyſick; and ſo intruded into the Phyſicians Province: and alſo that they wanted ſome Skill, and ſome Care, in making and preparing their Phyſick: Wherefore they not long ago ſued one Roſe, an Apothecary, for ſeveral Months Practice: In which Time he had by his own Advice, miniſtred Medicines to one Man, to a conſiderable Value. This was proved in Court: But yet the Jury heſitated, as to the finding for the Plaintiff; whereat the Court wondering, the Lord Chief Juſtice asked them, Whether they did not believe the Evidence? To which the Foreman replied, That the Defendant had done only what other Apothecaries did: Whereupon my Lord ſet the Jury right; and then they brought in a Verdict for the Plaintiff.

IT is thought by ſome, that LONDON, and the Suburbs, are overſtocked with Apothecaries; reputing the Number of them to be near 1000; whereas in Paris there were but 51; in Stockholm and Copenhagen, but four or five apiece; and in Hamburg, but one Apothecary's Shop: For it is ſaid, that one Apothecary is ſufficient to make up the Preſcriptions of at leaſt three Phyſicians, and thoſe too of good Buſineſs.

IN the fourth Year of James I. the King incorporated the Apothecaries with the Grocers, to be one Body Corporate and Politick. They were again divided from the Grocers, and made a Body Corporate of their own by a Charter of the ſame King: In which Charter are all the Apothecaries Names inſerted, beginning with William Beſſe, amounting to 104. Which we may conclude to be all of that Calling in LONDON and the Suburbs at that Time.

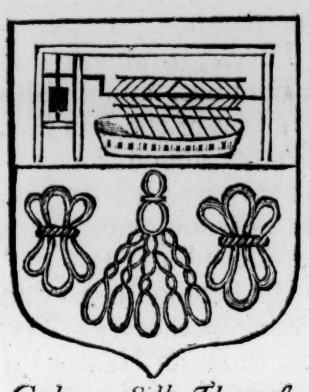
THIS Company have a Phyſick Garden in Chelſea, repleniſhed with various Plants. Thoſe who have the Privilege of going into it, have a Ticket given them, which hath the Impreſſion of a Phœbus on it, and round it is this ſuitable Motto, Herbarum eſt ſubjecta potentia nobis; taken out of Ovid, and follows immediately after the Words the Company choſe for the Motto to their Arms.

Anno 10 Regin. Annæ, 1712, An Act paſſed for reviving and continuing ſeveral Acts therein mentioned. One whereof was, for exempting Apothecaries from ſerving the Offices of Conſtable and Scavenger, and other Pariſh and Ward Offices, and ſerving upon Juries, This Act referred to, was that made 6 and 7 Reg. Guliel. 3. which was to continue for the Space of ſeven Years:

Years: Which Act was continued by an Act made 1 Regin. Annæ, for a further Time of ſeven Years; and to be in Force, after the Expiration thereof, for the Space of 11 Years.

THE Apothecaries Hall is ſituated on the Eaſt Side of Black-Fryars,; for a further Account of which ſee Vol. I. Page 701.

SILK-THROWERS.



THE Company of Silk-Throwers were incorporated Anno 1629, and are a Maſter, two Wardens, 19 Aſſiſtants, no Livery. The Aſſiſtants Fine is 8*l.* and Stewards 20*l.*

THEIR Arms are: Argent, three Bundles of Silk Sable, on a Chief Gules a Silk-Throwſter's Mill.

THE Supporters and Creſt of this Company are as follow: The Supporters are two Turks in Habit, with Turbants upon their Heads. On the Right Side a Turk ſupporting the Arms, habited in Silk, Gules, decked, Gold, holding in his Right Hand a Battle-Ax, Or. On his Left Arm a Skean of Silk, hanging down, proper: His Robe turned down about his Neck, Azure; eſcalop'd, his Face with Whiskers, proper; upon his Head a Turbant, Argent, charged in the Middle with a Lozenge, Gold, with a Taſſel upon the Top, Gules. The Turk on the Siniſter Side alſo ſupports the Arms with his Right Hand; robed Blue, and decked Gold, holding in his Left Hand proper, a Scimiter ſheathed, all Gold, a Skean of Silk hanging down his Left Arm, proper; his Robe about his Neck as before, turned down, eſcaloped, Gules. His Face, Hair and Whiskers, proper; the Turbant on his Head, Argent, charged with a Lozenge, Or.

FOR the Creſt; Upon a Hill, Vert, a Mulberry-Tree, proper; Silk-Worms hanging about the Tree, and on the Leaves of the Tree, crawling.

THIS Company of Silk-Throwers, or Silk-Throwſters, having gained their Trade and Skill of Silk-Throwing from the Strangers, ſince Anno quinto of Queen Elizabeth, and being for the moſt Part Freemen of this City, were made a Fellowſhip of this City, 4 die Junii, Anno 19 of King James I. Sir Francis Jones, Knight, being then Lord Mayor. And 23 die Aprilis, Anno 5 Charles Regis, they were incorporated by the Name of The Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of the Trade, Art, and Myſtery of Silk-Throwers of the City of LONDON.

THERE were ſeveral Tradeſmen, called Silk-Twiſters, Foreigners, towards the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, living in St. Martin's Liberty; who ſeemed to be of the ſame Art and Calling. Among the trading Strangers that came over into England from Flanders and thoſe Parts for their Religion, in the ſaid Queen Elizabeth's Reign, there were divers of this Sort that dealt in dreſſing and preparing Silk for other Trades.

THO' this Craft of Throwing Raw Silk is generally thought and ſaid to have been but of late Standing in England, viz. in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; yet it is plain, that Thrown Silk was known in England long before. For in the 12th of Edward IV. it was enacted, that no Silk nor Colein Silk, thrown or wrought, ſhould be brought in upon Pain of Forfeiture thereof. Which Act was renewed and confirmed in the Firſt of King Henry VII. Which Acts ſuppoſe it had been brought in before: But the Throwing of it in England was not known nor practiſed 'till many Years after.

AN Order was entered and regiſter'd in the Archives at Guildhall, LONDON, concerning the Silk-Throwers, petitioning to be made a Corporation, which was as follows: " Anno " 1621, April 17, Anno Regis Jacobi 19. Johnes " Maior, Benet, Low, Leman, Cockain, Bark- " ham, Preſcot, Proby, Gore, Cotton, Hacket, " Johnſon, Hearne, Hamerſley, Dean, Cambel, " &c. Aldermen, Allen and Ducy, Sheriffs.

" This Day Mr. Alderman Barkham, Mr. " Alderman John Gore, Mr. Alderman Haliday, " Mr. Alderman Hearne, and Mr. Alderman " Cambel, Committees, among others formerly " appointed to take Hearing and Conſideration " of the Petition of the Silk-Throwers, did de- " liver to this Court a Report in Writing under " their Hands, of their Doings and Opinions " therein. The Tenor whereof is as follow- " eth, viz.

To the Right Hon. Sir Francis Johnes, Kt. Lord Mayor of the City of LONDON, and to the Right Worſhipful his Brethren, the Aldermen of the ſaid City.

MAY it pleaſe your Lordſhip and Worſhips to be advertiſed, That according to an Order of this Honourable Court, We whoſe Names are hereunder ſubſcribed, Committees, among others in the ſame Order named, have met about the Petition of the Silk-Throwſters, recommended by the ſame Order to our Conſideration: And upon the full Hearing and Debate of the Cauſe, and Conference had ſundry Times with the Petitioners themſelves, and with ſundry Strangers that uſe the Trade of Silk-throwing, it appeared unto us, that it is very neceſſary, that this Company ſhould be made a Fellowſhip, as well for the Governing themſelves and their Servants in the Matter of their Trade, as for the Reforming many Abuſes, now uſed among them. And it will be a Means, as we conceive, that Silk may be throwed, as heretofore Silk was that came from Bruges, and other Places beyond the Seas: The doing whereof doth and will tend unto the Benefit of the Commonwealth. Thoſe that now uſe the Trade of Silk-throwing in and about this City, are increaſed within forty Years paſt from three or four to above fifty in Number: Of which Number above three Parts are Engliſhmen; and of them the moſt Freemen, and the reſt Strangers. By which Silk-Throwſters, about 7000 or 8000 poor People in and about this City are employed and ſet to work, in winding and throwing of Silk (as we are informed). For the bettering therefore of this Workmanſhip, and reforming Abuſes, and to have a ſettled Government among themſelves touching their Trade, by Order of this Court; and, as much as may be, to prevent the ſetting up of Intruders, ſuch as have not duly and orderly ſerved at the Trade, as Apprentices, according to the Laws of this Land, and Cuſtoms of this Honourable City, the Silk-Throwſters humbly deſire to be made a Fellowſhip, and to have Orders and Ordinances made and confirmed to them by this Court, for the free Uſe and Exerciſe of their Trade, and for the better Government of them and their Servants. Which Fellowſhip they deſire may be termed and called, The Fellowſhip of Silk-Throwſters of the City of LONDON; and that out of the ſame there may be yearly choſen two Rulers and ſix Aſſiſtants, for the more orderly and better Government, as well of thoſe that now do, or hereafter ſhall uſe the ſame Trade; whereby good Work may be made, for the general Benefit of his Majeſty's People.

THIS being the Sum and Subſtance of the Silk-Throwſters Petition, we have taken the ſame into our Conſideration, and have alſo adviſed with Mr.

Mr. Stone and Mr. Pheſant about the Premiſes: And both we and they do conceive, that their Requeſts are moderate and reaſonable, and no wiſe in Prejudice of the City-Government; and we hold, that the Petitioners are fit to be aided and relieved in this Court in this which they deſire, being in Point of Government of their Trade; conſidering that this Manufacture is grown of very great Uſe; by which many Thouſands of poor People are employed and ſet on work.

HOWBEIT we hold it meet, that ſuch as are already Freemen, ſhall continue of the Companies whereof they are now free; and that they bind their Apprentices at their Halls, as they have accuſtomed: And that the Ordinances by which they are to rule and govern be firſt read, ratified and confirmed by this Honourable Court: And the ſame Fellowſhip to have Continuance during the Pleaſure of this Court only, and no longer; to the Intent the ſame may be again diſſolved by this Court, if any Inconvenience ſhall hereafter be found to ariſe thereby; which yet appears not. All which we nevertheleſs ſubmit and leave to the Judgment and Conſideration of your Lordſhip and Worſhips, this 23d Day of March, 1620. And then the Aldermens Names are ſubſcribed, Edward Barkham, &c.

THE which Report being openly read, was allowed of, and order'd to be enter'd into the Repertory, and to be performed accordingly.

THE Orders of the Company were alſo entered in the Book and Regiſter of the Court at Guildhall, dated May the 15th, 1621, Jones Mayor, in theſe Words: "This Day certain Orders "made and deviſed to be obſerved by the Fel- "lowſhip of Silk-Throwſters, within the City "of LONDON and Liberties thereof, were "here openly read, and ordered to be entered "into the Repertory, and to be performed." The Tenour whereof is as follow. [And then follow the Orders at Length.]

THIS Fellowſhip the Court of Aldermen granted and confirmed under their Seal, the 4th Day of June, Anno Regis Angliæ Jac. I. 19. & Scotiæ 54.

AFTER this, they obtained King Charles I's Patent under his Broad Seal, in the Fifth of his Reign, to eſtabliſh them a Fellowſhip. It ſet forth, "That whereas ſundry Perſons, his well- "beloved Subjects, uſing the Trade, Art or "Myſtery of Silk-throwing within the City of "LONDON, had by their Petition ſhewed "unto him, that above fifty Years paſt, the "Trade began in the ſame City by ſome few "Perſons skillful therein; who having entertain- "ed divers Perſons, trained them up in the Uſe "and Exerciſe thereof; inſomuch, as they be- "ing for the moſt Part Freemen of the City of "LONDON, and Natives born, were now "become a great Company: And that about ten "Years paſt they were Suitors to the Lord Mayor "and Court of Aldermen, that in Regard the "Trade was grown into great Uſe and Conſe- "quence, they might be made a Brotherhood as "other Companies in like Caſes had been: "Which upon mature Deliberation was accord- "ingly granted —— And that now the ſaid "Silk-Throwers finding themſelves too weak by "the Power they yet have, to rectify ſuch Enor- "mities, as daily happen among them, or to eſ- "tabliſh ſuch Ordinances for the true working "in the Trade as were requiſite, without which "they could not well ſubſiſt: And that the "Number of 6 or 7000 Poor were daily relieved "and ſet on Work in the ſaid Trade. For Re- "dreſs of theſe Enormities, they humbly be- "ſought his Majeſty, that he would be graci- "ouſly pleaſed to make them a Corporation or "Body Politick; for that the ſame might tend "not only to the particular Benefit of the Com- "pany, but alſo to the general Good of the "Commonwealth —— KNOW yee, that of "Our ſpecial Grace —— We have Granted, "Conſtituted or Ordained, and by theſe Pre- "ſents for Us, Our Heirs and Succeſſors, do "Grant, that Our well beloved Subjects, Ro- "bert Bolling, Thomas Lord, Hugh Lobley, "Chriſtopher Dover, George Garret, &c. now "uſing the Trade, Art and Myſtery of Silk- "Throwing, and all and every other the Freemen "uſing the Trade, which now uſe, or hereafter "ſhall uſe the ſame, in the City or Liberties, "or within any Place or Places within four "Miles of our ſaid City; Be, and ſhall be from "henceforth for ever one Body Politick and "Corporate in Deed and Name, by the Name "of Maſter, Wardens and Aſſiſtants, and Com- "monalty of the Trade, Art and Myſtery of Silk- "Throwers, &c. And we do grant, that from "henceforth for ever there ſhall be one Maſter, "two Wardens, and eighteen Aſſiſtants, &c. "Robert Bolling to be the firſt and preſent Maſ- "ter; and ſo to continue till the firſt Thurſday, "which ſhall fall to be in the Month of May "in the Year 1630, &c. And Tho. Lord and "Will. Hart the two Wardens till the ſaid Year, "&c. That no Foreigner or other Perſon, not "being free of the ſaid Trade, other than En- "gliſhmen born, which have already been trained "up, taught and experienced in the ſaid Art "and Myſtery, do at any Time hereafter at- "tempt, &c. to uſe or exerciſe the ſaid Trade, "or any Thing thereunto belonging, within the "ſaid City of LONDON or Liberties, or "within any Place within four Miles, unleſs it "be the Widows of Freemen that have uſed in "the ſaid Trade —— Yielding and praying to "Us, Our Heirs, &c. for the Premiſes a Fee "Farm Rent of 20 s. yearly at the Feaſt of St. "Michael, &c. Witneſs Our Self at Weſtmin- "ſter the 23d of April, in the fifth Year of Our "Reign.

THE Company alſo obtained an Inſtrument from the Lord Keeper Coventre, and the two Lords Chief Juſtices, Sir Nicholas Hyde, and Sir Thomas Richardſon, to confirm a Book of Conſtitutions and Orders made by the Company, and offered unto them by Petition, by Virtue of a Statute made 19 H. VII. That no Maſters, Wardens, or Fellowſhip, of Crafts or Myſteries, ſhould take upon them to make any Acts or Ordinances, or to execute them, in Diſinheritance or Diminution of the King's Prerogative, nor of any other, againſt the common Profit of the People: But unleſs the ſaid Acts or Ordinances be examined by the Chancellor and Treaſurer of England, or Chief Juſtices of either Bench, or three of them, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 40 l. for every Time they ſhould do the contrary.

AND laſtly, This Company obtained an Act of Parliament in 14 Car. II. intitled, An Act for regulating the Trade of Silk-throwing: Which ſeems to be the firſt Act of Parliament made in their Behalf. Which Act ſetteth forth, That the Company of Silk-Throwers were incorporated 5 Car. I. and made a Body Politick. That the Trade was of ſingular Uſe, and very advantageous to this Commonwealth, there being employed by the ſaid Company in and about the City of LONDON, (as was expreſs'd in their Petition) above 40,000 Men, Women and Children. That they prayed an Enlargement of their Charter, whereby they might be better enabled to avoid the many Deceits and Inconveniencies they daily met withal by Intruders, who had not been brought up Apprentices to the ſaid Trade; and others who ſettled themſelves beyond the Limits of the ſaid Charter (which was within four Miles of LONDON) on Purpoſe to avoid the Searches and Superviſion of the ſaid Governors. It was enacted, that from the 25th of December 1662, none ſhould exerciſe the Trade of a Silk-Thrower within the Realm of England, unleſs ſuch as were Apprentices to the ſaid Trade, upon Pain of 40 s. for every Month.

ALL now uſing or exerciſing the Trade in LONDON, or within twenty Miles of it, to enter themſelves into the ſaid Society or Corporation: And to be ſubject to the Statutes, Orders, and Ordinances thereof.

THE Maſter, Wardens, &c. to have and enjoy all ſuch Grants, Privileges, &c. as by this preſent Act, or by the Letters Patents of Corporation were given and granted them.

WINDERS and Doublers, that pawn, ſell or detain Silk delivered to them, and the Buyers and Receivers of ſuch Silk, to make the Parties grieved, Recompence and Satisfaction for their Damage, Loſs and Charges, as by the Juſtices and Officers ſhould be ordered and appointed.

IF not able to make Recompence and Satisfaction, then to be Whipt and ſet in the Stocks, where the Offence is committed, or in ſome Market Town in the County, for the firſt Offence; and for the ſecond, to make the like, or further Puniſhment, as the Juſtice ſhall think fit,

THE Receivers and Buyers alſo to make Satisfaction, or ſuch as take to pawn any Silk embezelled.

IT is lawful for any Freeman of the Company to ſet on Work any Perſon, being a native Subject to his Majeſty, and no other, whether Men, Women or Children, to turn the Mill, tie Threads, double Silk, wind Silk, as formerly they uſed to do; altho' ſuch Perſons have not ſerved as Apprentices to the Trade, by the Space of ſeven Years.

THE Corporation ſhall not make any Orders or Ordinances, to ſet any Rates, or Prices whatſoever, upon the Throwing of Silk, to bind and enforce their Members to work at; but therein the Members ſhall be left at Liberty to contract with their reſpective Employers.

THE Silk-Throwers having no Hall, do ſometimes meet at the Bricklayers.

GLOVERS.

THE Company of Glovers were incorporated the 10th Day of September, 1639, in the 14th Year of K. Charles I. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Fellowſhip of the Company of Glovers of the City of LONDON; and by their Charter empowered to have one Maſter, four Wardens, 16 Aſſiſtants, or more, at the Diſcretion of the Maſter and Wardens for the Time being; and they are to be choſen Annually the 8th of September, the Nativity of the Virgin Mary. They may take two Apprentices.

THEIR Arms are: Party per feſs, Sable and Argent, a Pale counterchanged, on every Piece of the firſt a Ram Springant of the ſecond.

THE Glovers-Hall, is ſituated in Beech-lane.

TINNERS.

THE Company of Tin-Plate-workers were incorporated by Charter the 29th of December, in the 22d Year of the Reign of King Charles II. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants and Commonalty of the Art and Myſtery of Tyn Plate-workers, of the City of LONDON. They have no Hall, and are no Livery.

DISTILLERS.

THE Diſtillers Company are governed by a Maſter, 3 Wardens, 19 Aſſiſtants, and 116 on the Livery, the Fine for which is 15 l. Thoſe under the Livery can take but one Apprentice.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Azure a Feſs wavy Argent, between a Sun drawing up a Cloud diſtilling Drops of Rain proper, and a Diſtillatory double Armed Or, with two Worms and bolt Receivers Argent. Creſt; on a Helmet and Forſe, a Barley Garb wreathed about with a Vine Branch fructed all proper. Supporters; a Ruſs and an Indian in their reſpective Habits. Motto; Drop as Rain, Diſtill as Dew. Deuteronom. 32. v. 2

THESE were ſuch as Diſtilled Aqua Vitæ, Aqua Compoſita, Vinegar, and the like. In the Year 1593, one endeavoured to get a Grant from the Queen, for the taking care that theſe Liquors ſhould be well made, againſt the pretended great and dangerous Abuſes commonly practiſed in the making thereof: He ſhewed (taking the Opportunity of this before-named Year, wherein was a Plague) that the ordinary Makers of theſe Liquors made them of Hog-waſh, and Dregs, and the Waſhing of Coolbacks; which might occaſion many infectious Diſeaſes. The Lord Treaſurer, the better to inform himſelf, ſent to Alderman Anthony Radclyff, a Perſon knowing in ſuch Matters, for his Opinion: Who informed him, that it was a thing long ſince moved to be reformed by Parliament, as a Matter the abuſing whereof cauſed great Inconvenience. That he had Conference with the beſt and ſubſtantialeſt Men of that Calling, who made their Strong Waters for the moſt Part of good Ale and Beer; and that they wiſh'd all other Makers were debarred by ſome good Means, for the more exact Making thereof. But that they that were Poor, and found more Sweet by making it of weak Beer and Ale, or of worſe Stuff, no doubt would repine at any new Grant to reſtrain them. He added, that when he enquired and ſought to underſtand how ſo many bought this Hog-waſh and Dregs of the Coolback, he was told it was only the Felt-makers and Weavers, till at laſt he found it indeed, that even the Diſtillers of Aqua Vitæ, and Vinegar-makers, did engroſs it up, and with it work ſecretly in their Houſes, or ſo littered it, or happly mixed it with weaker Beer, where the beſt and ſtrongeſt was fitteſt to be uſed for the Queen's Subjects. That he found, that in making of Vinegar, the Brewer ought to brew good Malt, as they did brew the beſt Sort for the Subject. The Prices of which Sort of Beer was from five to eight Shillings and the Barrel would continue and hold out, when the ſmaller would putrify and decay. That touching Aqua Vitæ and Aqua Compoſita, it was wont to be made only of Wine and Wine Lees, and of Ale made on Purpoſe; but of later Years ſince Wines grew dearer, certain Strangers practiſed to Still the Dregs and Waſhings of Coolbacks of Beer; And now uſually bought by the greateſt Numbers of Diſtillers, from whence to his Underſtanding were very corrupt Stuff. That the aforeſaid Vinegar did not hold his Strength as it ought to do in the Service of long Voyages in Navigation. That in the Beginning of the Wars in the Low Countries, the Flemings bought great Quantities of this Kind of Beeregre for the cooling of their Ordinance, and was ſold at good Prices to the Spaniards, and to the contrary Part; but afterwards it was not in that Requeſt. That he himſelf coming by chance into into the Yard of one of the Vinegar-makers, found a Brewer's Draymam bringing unto him a Barrel of Dreggs, gathered out of divers Men's Houſes; and confeſs'd that he ſold the ſame to the Vinegar-makers ſometime for 20*d.* and 2*s.* the Barrel. And laſtly, the ſame Alderman Radclyff adviſed, that if the Parties who ſhould have the brewing of this Beeregre and Alegre ſhould not be put in good Bonds, to amend the Fault, and be tyed to ſell their Beer at ſuch reaſonable Prices as now, or heretofore the beſt hath been ſold, the Abuſe would remain all one or rather worſe.

HOWEVER, ſoon after, Richard Drake obtained a Patent from the Queen, for the brewing and providing of all wholeſome Liquor or Stuff for the making of Beeregre, Alegre, Aqua Vitæ and Aqua Compoſita.

BUT in the Event it proved, that this Patent remedied not this Evil: So that in the Year 1596, thoſe that were concerned in the Trade, petitioned againſt this Drake to the Lord Treaſurer, That he under a Colour and ſubtil Suggeſtion, that the Liquors whereof Aqua Vitæ, Vinegar, &c. were made before this Grant, were of Draggs, Laggs, and ſuch like unmeet and unwholeſome Stuff; which the Patentee pretended to reform, had notwithſtanding, ſince the obtaining of the ſaid Patent, wrought no Reformation; but every Liquor before occupyed was ſtill uſed, only the Benefit of the poor Artiſt was wholly turn'd to the peculiar Profit of the ſaid Drake, and of his Aſſigns; who bound every one of theſe Makers in great Bonds to buy the Stuff of themſelves only, and they of the Brewers exacting to themſelves great Commodities from the Hands and Labours of others in ſuch grievous Manner and extream Sort, as appeared by certain Articles which they annexed to their Petition. They prayed therefore that theſe Extremities might be redreſs'd, and the Grant recalled, which tended only to the private Gain of the ſaid Drake, and the Subverſion of the Suppliants and their Wives and Families.

THE Sum of which Articles were, That the ſame pretended unmeet and unwholeſome Stuff, as Draggs, Laggs, &c. were made Uſe of after this Grant, and allowed by the Patentee or his Aſſigns, as were before; nay far worſe than heretofore. That the poor Traders that bought and ſold Vinegar, and thoſe other Commodities, were compelled by Threats and Impriſonment, to enter into Bonds, to buy of none, but of the Patentee only, or his Aſſigns, and to pay for making of their own Bonds, 3*s.* a-piece. That they forced the Brewers to ſell unto them their Grounds, which themſelves before, in the Suggeſtions to her Majeſty, had in very foul and odious Terms named Draggs, &c. That they compelled the Tradeſmen to compound with them for 2*d.* the Barrel, and would not permit them to buy where they would for their beſt Eaſe and Profit, as where they had beſt Credit, and might be aſſured of good and wholeſome Stuff; except they would pay 3*d* a Barrel, which would amount to a great Sum by the Year; Which Payments being made, the ſaid Tradeſmen might do what they liſted. That the Patentees, under Pretence of their Letters Patents, had ſtayed divers Hogſheads of Vinegar, after they were Cuſtomed and Shipped: Whereby the Ship-maſters loſt their Voyage, and the Merchants greatly hindered for the Sale of their Lading. And that they had entered into divers Merchants Houſes, and took away Hogſheads of Aqua Vitæ, ready to be ſent over Sea, and Cuſtom paid; until one had paid 3*l.* and another 30*s.* according to the Quantity they had.

TWENTY Years before this, one Dr. Baily ſought to have the Survey of corrupt Vinegar, Beeregre, and Alegre, among other corrupt Things; as Oil, Soap, and Butter: But it was anſwered, that this was granted by the Queen's Letters Patents about the 7th or 8th Year of her Reign, to the Company of Tallow-Chandlers in LONDON; and therefore could not be granted to him. And the making of Aqua Vitæ, Aqua Compoſita, and Uſquebaugh; and the Survey of the corrupt Sorts thereof, was granted to one Mr. Candiſhe of the Court, by Letters Patents under the Great Seal; and ſo ungrantable by her Majeſty during Candiſhe's Life. Beſides, it was thought, and much objected by divers Laws, that the Queen by her Licence under her Great Seal, could not grant the ſole Trade of any one Occupation or Myſtery to any one Man alone, that had been of Uſe in the Commonweal before her Majeſty's Grant; nor yet impoſe a Fine or Impriſonment upon them that ſhould withſtand her ſaid Licence. Finally, That the Trade concerned ſo many poor Mens Livings, that it was impoſſible to bring it into one Man's Hand by Licence. Theſe Things were argued in Point of Law againſt Drake, who by his Patent aſſumed a Power over the whole Diſtillers Trade.

THE Diſtillers have no Hall.

CLOCK-MAKERS.

THE Company of Clock-makers were incorporated by Charter the 22d of Auguſt, in the 7th Year of K. Charles I. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Fellowſhip of the Art of Clock-makers of the City of LONDON.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Argent, a Clock, Creſt; on a Helmet and Torſe, a Sphere Or. Supporters; Time, and a High Prieſt in his Veſtments. Motto; Tempus Rerum Imperator.

THEY have no Hall, and are no Livery.

MUSICIANS.

THE Muſicians are an incorporated Company, but the Time of their Incorporation was refuſed by the Clerk of their Company to be given; but ſuppoſed by King James I. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and the reſt of the Commonalty of the ſaid Corporation. Their Arms were granted them by Patent from William Camden, Clarencieux, Anno 1614, and are, Azure, a Swan with her Wings expanded, chanting within a double Treaſure counterflorry Argent; on a Chief Gules two Lions of England, and between them a Pale Or, charged with a Roſe of York.

THIS Company conſiſts of a Maſter, two Wardens, about 20 Aſſiſtants, and they are likewiſe on the Livery; the Fine for which is 8 l.

THIS is compoſed of Maſters of Muſick, Dancing-Maſters, &c. They have no Hall, but meet ſometimes at Embroiderers in Gutter-lane.

FELT-

FELT-MAKERS.

THE Company of Felt-makers were incorporated by Charter the 2d Day of Auguſt, in the 2d Year of K. James I. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art and Myſtery of Felt-makers of LONDON; and again by Charter of Incorporation and Confirmation by the ſame Name, bearing Date the 27th of June, in the 19th Year of King Charles II.

THEY are a Maſter, four Wardens, 21 Aſſiſtants, but no Livery. Their Arms are: A dexter Hand and Hat.

THE Faſhion of wearing Hats or Felts (as they formerly called them) began to take great Place in Queen Elizabeth's Reign: And they were of two Sorts, viz. Fine Felts and Coarſe: The former were made of Wool brought from Spain, called Spaniſh Wool, and the latter made of Eſtridge Wool, brought from the Eaſt Countries. Theſe were for the Wearing of Country-People, and of the meaner Sort: And ſometimes they were covered with Velvet, Taffata, or ſuch like.

IN the Year 1576, the Felt-makers ſued to the Lord Treaſurer to befriend them in their Supplication to the Queen, to be incorporated; being, as they ſet forth in their Petition, the antient and diſcreeteſt Sort of them. That thoſe of this Trade were 400 Houſholders, diſperſed and reſident in ſundry Parts of the City and Suburbs, as Southwark, St. Katharine's, and other Places. That they had no Government of themſelves, as other Companies; and that they made their Felts for the moſt Part very deceitfully, and of corrupt and unlawful Stuff, brought out of Spain, and other Places; bought up by ſuch as had no Skill or Knowledge, whether they were good or bad, and by them retailed to ſuch Felt-makers as for Lucre were content to make deceitful Wares, to the Deceiving the Wearers thereof; to the Breach of the Queen's Laws, and the Slander and utter Reproach of the whole Company; Which, if it were not in Time foreſeen and reformed, would be the Overthrow of the whole Company, and the utter Impoveriſhment of their poor Wives, Children and Families. Therefore they ſued that they might be made a Body Corporate by her Majeſty's Letters.

BUT it ſeems the Haberdaſhers (of which Company theſe Feltmakers were) proved too hard for them. So that the Lords of the Council would not then allow their Petition: But after much Conteſt between them, they came to an Agreement; and the Felt-makers were to ſubmit themſelves to the Haberdaſhers, to be ſearched, ruled, and governed by the Maſter and Wardens, and that there ſhould be certain Rules drawn between them, for the better Government of the ſaid Trade of Felt-making, and of their Servants. At length Orders and Rules were by their own Conſents made and deviſed, and on both their Parts promiſed and agreed to be performed and kept; and which were required to be ſet down in the Star Chamber between them.

THE Hat-makers or Felt-makers, in the Year 1583, endeavoured to get a Patent from the Queen to put that Statute in the 8th of her Reign in Execution, which was made about their Trade, that none ſhould occupy the ſame, but ſuch as had been Apprentices to it ſeven Years. For afterwards, divers that had not ſerved that Time, and others that had never been Apprentices to it at all, enticed divers young Apprentices and hired Servants from LONDON from their Maſters, and maintained and kept them at work at the ſame Trade; and would keep, ſome three, four or five Apprentices, and for leſs Years than the Statute limited: Whereby they were grown to ſo great a Number of Felt-makers in the Country, that the Felt-makers in LONDON living within the Compaſs of the Statute, and keeping all other Duties and Obſervances within the City of LONDON, were not able to live upon the ſaid Trade, and to maintain themſelves and their great Families, without ſome preſent Remedy. Richard Seckford, one of the Queen's Maſters of Requeſts, July 3, 1583, moved the Queen, then at Greenwich, in this Suit: Who then referred the ſame to the Lord Treaſurer. Thomas Blank, Lord Mayor, and Maſter of the Haberdaſhers Company, wrote to the ſaid Seckford, March 27, the Year aboveſaid, that a Motion having been made by the Felt-makers to them, for the Furtherance of their Suit, they thought the Suit very reaſonable, and needful to be granted for all Offenders againſt the ſaid Statute: But foraſmuch as the Felt-makers and all within three Miles of LONDON, were under the Government and Correction of the Company of Haberdaſhers, the Company prayed him, that there might be a Proviſo in their Book, that they ſhould not, by Force of their Grant, intermeddle with any Hat-makers, inhabiting within the City, or three Miles Compaſs, than, to the Maſter and Wardens of the ſaid Company for the Time being, ſhould be thought meet and expedient. And that when any Occaſion ſhould be, to uſe their Grant for the Puniſhment of any Offender within the Limits of the ſaid Company, the Patentees to have the one Half of all Forfeitures coming in that Behalf, and the Company to have the other Half, towards the Relief of the poor Felt-makers.

THE Felt-makers bought their Wools, Flocks, and other Stuff for their Hats, of the Merchants, both Strangers and Engliſh, which Wools were brought from Spain, France, the Eaſt Country, and other Foreign Countries: But theſe Commodities were often very bad, being fallen May Wool, rotten and other ill Wool, not apt, meet, nor capable to be wrought or uſed in making of any Hats or Felts; and partly unwaſhed, and full of Sand, Filth, Droſs, corrupt and unlawful Stuff, moſt deceitfully packed up in Sacks, and other cloſe Things, and wound up in Fleeces, being neither ſuch merchantable nor ſtaple Wares, as it had been, nor in Truth, Conſcience, Juſtice and Equity it ought to be: By which deceitful Wools and other Stuffs, the Felt-makers ſuſtained great Loſs and Damage, and many Times a Number of them, their poor Wives and Families, utterly undone. Whereupon in January, 1579, they made a Petition to the Queen, under the Names of Thomas Caunton, Thomas Bradford, and others, who had ſubſcribed their Names in their own Behalf, and in the Behalf of more than 3000 of her Majeſty's Subjects in the City of LONDON, Bermondſey-ſtreet, and St. Catharine's, and elſewhere, to authorize one of her Majeſty's Subjects, or his Aſſigns, for Indifferency's Sake, to ſearch, ſort, and cleanſe the ſaid Wools, Flocks, and other Stuff.

THEY likewiſe petitioned the Lord Treaſurer to the ſame Purport; and in their Addreſſes to him, they ſhewed, that in their Wool, it was ſo bad, that they commonly loſt one Half, or a third Part; and in the beſt of it brought into the Realm, they uſually loſt a fourth Part. And that the Making of Felts, then much increaſing in England, and thereby great Numbers of the Queen's poor Subjects ſet on Work, they were conſtrained to buy great Quantities of the

ſaid evil and deceitful Wools, becauſe they could get none other; the ſame being brought into the Realm, moſt by Engliſh Merchants, Aldermen, and the beſt Commoners of LONDON, and other Cities and Towns in the Weſt Parts. Which Foreign Wools, 'till within theſe few Years, were brought in only by Strangers, and then the ſame was waſhed, and void of May Wool, and other rotten and ill Wool, Droſs, Duſt, Sand, &c. And if any were found contrary, the Buyer did uſually return it to the Merchant, or elſe had Allowance for the ſame. And then the Merchant by Certificate made Return thereof into the foreign Countries, and to the Perſons by whom it had been bought, and had like Allowance for the ſame.

THE ſaid Felt-makers drew up their Deſire in ſeveral Articles, preſented to the Queen. The Chief whereof was, That ſhe would grant them one of her Servants, and his Aſſigns, to ſearch, ſort, and cleanſe theſe Wools and Stuffs; and a good Fee to be allowed him: And tho' it were a large Fee, yet it would be well deſerved; for that two Men could hardly diſcharge and diſpatch a Hundred Weight in a Day, to do it well; adding, that the Merchants would not loſe hereby, but only would hereafter take Care to import better and cleaner Wools; for which they might have a better Price.

TO theſe Petitions and Deſires of the Felt-makers, the Merchants, in February following, gave their Anſwer, firſt in ſome Heat and Anger, accuſing the chief Agitators in this Buſineſs, viz. Caunton and Bradford, as if they were of ſlender Credit, and of the worſt Sort of Felters, and Haunters of Taverns, where they entered into Devices not to do any Good to the Commonwealth, but to maintain their idle Lives with other Men's Goods. That many whoſe Hands were ſet to the Petition, did diſallow the Matters contain'd in it. They added, that the Merchants brought thoſe Wools from Spain, without any falſifying, corrupting, or mingling by the Way; and therefore were not to be puniſhed with new Charges of needleſs Officers: Which Charges muſt not be raiſed upon the poor Workmen and Buyers: That it was true, the Wools of England were waſhed and picked, but the Uſage of Spain was not ſo. That touching the Tare of groſs and weighty Bags of Spaniſh Wool, whereof the Felt-makers ſaid they had no Allowance, they abuſed the Lords of the Council: For thoſe Wools were not brought in groſs and weighty Bags, but commonly ſuch as were carried two Sacks upon an Horſe, and ſeldom exceeding one Hundred and half, or an Hundred and three quarters: And yet how ſmall ſoever they were, the Felters were allowed eight Pound for the Tare of every Bag; that where they ſpake of May Wool, they ſpake ignorantly, or on Purpoſe untruly. For thoſe Spaniſh Wools for Felters, were not Fleece Wools wherein May Wool could be, but altogether Lamb Wool, or ſuch as could have no May Wool, unleſs it were by great Hap; very rarely a Lock of an old Lamb, or ſuch like long Wool. That it was Reaſon, that Wools in England, ſerving for Cloth, ſhould be waſhed and cleanſed and wound, or elſe they would not ſerve the Clothiers, but contrariwiſe, the Spaniſh Wools for Felting could not be wound, but lye looſe in Locks, becauſe it is Lamb Wool, or very ſhort. Neither ought they to be waſhed or cleanſed; for they muſt be kept in their Fatneſs, as they come from the Sheep, or elſe they would not felt, or meet together, or ſerve for the Uſe of Felting. And ſo thoſe new Offers ſhould do more Hurt than Good. Beſides, that the ſorting was a vain Work; for no Felt-maker could diſcern the Wool good for Felters, however it were ſorted, till they had try'd it. And therefore the beſt Workmen of them did uſe to take Samples for Tryal, afore they bargained for it: That where they ſaid, Spaniſh Wools, by the Merchants Deceitfulneſs and Corruption, have often been returned by Certificate, it was wholly untrue: Their Honours were deſired alſo to conſider that the Means which her Majeſty's Subjects had to bring Oyls and thoſe Wools, being the natural Commodities of thoſe Countries, made that People favourable to the Engliſh: And if that the ſaid Device of the Felt-makers ſhould take Effect, it might not only be a great Hindrance to the Merchants, but alſo to the Navy of the Realm, daily employed in bringing Home thoſe Wools, and a great Hindrance to her Majeſty's Cuſtoms. To this three Aldermen ſubſcribed their Hands, Thomas Pulliſon (afterwards Mayor) Francis Bower, and George Bond, and ſeveral other Merchants, as Hewyt, Haidon, Whitmore, Folkys, and thirteen more.

BY Bradford's and Caunton's ſtirring ſo much in this Buſineſs, it was ſeen, that they endeavoured to get themſelves to be Garblers of the Spaniſh Wools

THESE Conteſts made the Lord Treaſurer enquire into the Quantities of Wool imported, and Smith the Queen's Cuſtomer ſent in this Account from March 1578, to March 1579. Spaniſh Wool brought into the Port of LONDON, by George Bond, William Bond, William Hewyt, and others, to the Quantity of 729 Bags, which did contain an Hundred, or an Hundred and a Quarter a Bag. The Eaſtridge Wools, that is, the Wools imported from the Eaſt Countries, a coarſer Sort, amounted not to two Hundred Weight:

BUT to prevent this Office of Garbling Wools, the Haberdaſhers interpoſed; alledging this as an Infringement of an Argument formerly made between the Company and the Felt-makers: Whereof Woodroff, Mayor, and Maſter of the ſaid Company, wrote an Account to the Lord Treaſurer to put a Stop to it, if he could. "That whereas Suit was made by ſome light "Perſons, for an Office of Garblerſhip of Fo-"reign Wools to be erected, with ſeveral great "Allowances for the Garbling of every Bag of "Wool, to the great Charge and Trouble of "the Owners, and to the enhauncing of the "Prices of Wool: By the Ordinances lately "confirmed to the Company of Haberdaſhers of "LONDON, (according to a Decree ſet down "by him, the Lord Treaſurer, and others of "the Privy Council for the Government of the "Felt-makers) there was Authority expreſsly "given to the Maſter and Wardens of the ſaid "Company, with five, four, three, or two of "the Felt-makers, to ſearch all Foreign Wools "put to Sale by any Perſons within this City, "or three Miles Compaſs of the ſame; and to "puniſh by Fines, any Perſon that ſhould offend "in Utterance of corrupt Stuff, with ſundry "other like Authorities, for the better Govern-"ment of the ſaid Hat-makers. In the Execu-"tion of all which Ordinances, there were join-"ed yearly to the ſaid Wardens five Felt-"makers, who had hitherto dealt as effectually "as they could, in reforming all Abuſes; and "had not ſpared to do any Thing (to the great "Charges of the Company) which was required "of them to do by the ſaid five Felt-makers. In "all which Time they never required the Maſter "and Wardens to ſearch Foreign Wools, or "complained of any Neceſſity of Search therein "to be made; which the Wardens and others, "if Need had been, either known to themſelves, "or informed by others, would not have failed "to have done what had been requiſite. And "he moved his Lordſhip, that if by any Reaſon "he thought it needful that this Garbling ſhould

" be put in Execntion, then that he would be " a Means, for Indifferency ſake between the " Merchant and the Hatmaker, that the Maſter " and Wardens for the ſaid Company, with " ſome other ſuch skilful Perſons as they ſhould " thereunto appoint, might, upon Information, " deal in the ſame in ſuch Manner and Sort, " as ſhould be thought needful and expedient." And in this State were theſe Hatmakers before they were a Corporation.

IT was not before the Year 1604, An. 2 Reg. Jac. I. that theſe Felt-makers were incorporated, by Letters Patents from King James I. by the Name of Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Myſtery of Felt-makers of LONDON: Granting unto them divers Privileges and Liberties for the good Government of the ſame Corporation; being the firſt Company incorporated by this King; and was obtained by the humble and earneſt Suit of Richard Baniſter, John Sandes, Hugh Philips, Robert Brown and others, Feltmakers of LONDON.

THE Hat-makers have had no Hall ſince the Fire of LONDON.

SOAP-MAKERS.

TOwards the Middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign three Sorts of Soap were made. Firſt, Coarſe Soap made of Train Oil, and Danske Soap-Aſhes. Secondly, Sweet Soap, made of Seville Oil, and Danske Soap-Aſhes. And Thirdly, Speckle Soap, made of Tallow and the ſaid Aſhes: This was commonly called Gray Soap. This laſt was forbid by the Common-Council of LONDON; and that by Order from the Board. The Reaſon was, it would ſo waſte, in ſhort Time, the Tallow of the Realm, that the Poverty would have no Candles, but muſt pay 6 d. or 7 d. yea and more, for a Pound of Candles. And beſides, it ſmelt worſe than the Soap made with the Train Oil.

THIS Speckle Soap, if allowed, would have endanger'd the making Soap with Oil, becauſe they made their Soap cheaper with Tallow: And the Common People more deſired this made with Tallow, than that made with Oil; becauſe the Specks in this Soap ſhewed fair and white in Winter by the congealing of the Cold. And the Makers of Soap with Oil would be fain to corrupt their Soap, to make it as good, cheap as the Speckle Soap, to be able to ſell with them in Cheapneſs of Price. And then the Realm ſhould have neither good Soap nor ſweet Soap any more.

THERE were now about eight or ten Soap-makers in LONDON, and they able to ſerve the whole Realm, yea, and ſend beyond Sea alſo, if they might have Vent. They had four, five, or ſix Men a-piece, and ſome more, beſides their Houſhold, that tended their Fats, and the beating of their Aſhes. And beſides, ſet many Men at Work in the Realm, as Coopers, Labourers, Carters, &c. and made uſe of all Manner of Carriages both by Land and Sea, being a Trade that ſent weekly out of LONDON great Quantities of this Commodity over the Realm, and moſt Northward: Yet there was Soap-making alſo already at York, at Hull, and at Briſtol. Theſe Things were urged before they were a Corporation, to recommend them to the Countenance of the State.

THE Arms of the Soap-makers are: Argent, a Dolphin naiant between three Broad Arrows Heads, two in Chief, and one in Baſe.

THEY are no Livery, and have no Hall.

GLASS-SELLERS.

THESE are no Livery, have no Hall, nor do I find when they were, or if ever, incorporated; yet I thought it not improper to preſerve the ſmall Matter that Strype notes concerning them.

ONE James Verſelyn, a Stranger, a Venetian, about the Year 1580, or perhaps ſomewhat before, was the firſt that ſet up a Glaſs-houſe in LONDON, for making Venice Glaſſes. For which, the Queen granted him a Privilege under her Great Seal. But the Glaſs-Sellers in LONDON were much aggrieved at this, and ſhewed the Lords of the Privy Council, That it was the Overthrow of fifty Houſholders, uſing only the Trade of Selling of Glaſſes, beſides the Hinderance of the Merchant-Adventurers, bringing Glaſſes into this Realm beyond the Seas, the Loſs of her Majeſty's Cuſtom, and the conſuming of 400,000 Billets every Year in burning the ſame in one Glaſs-houſe, and the enhancing of the Prices of Glaſſes, prejudicial to all the Queen's Subjects; there being a Prohibition in the ſame Patent, that none ſhould ſell ſuch Glaſſes, but the ſaid Verſelyn only.

POTTERS.

THE ſame may be ſaid of this Company as the laſt.

ABOUT the Year 1567, Jaſper Andries and Jacob Janſan, Potters, came away from Antwerp, to avoid the Perſecution there, and ſettled themſelves in Norwich, where they followed their Trade, making Gally paving Tiles, and Veſſels for Apothecaries and others, very artificially. Anno 1570 they removed to LONDON, with the Teſtimonial of Isbrand Balckius, the Miniſter, and the reſt of the Elders and Deacons of that Church; and deſired, by Petition to Queen Elizabeth, that they might have Liberty to follow their Trade in that City without Interruption, and preſented her with a Cheſt of their Handy-work. They ſet forth in their Petition, that they were the firſt which brought in and exerciſed the ſaid Science in this Realm, and were at great Charges before they could find the Materials in this Realm: And that the ſame Science was ſo acceptable to King Henry VIII. that he offered to the ſame Jaſper's Father good Wages and Houſe-room to come and exerciſe the ſame here; which then came to none Effect. They beſeeched her, in Recompence of their great Coſt and Charges, that ſhe would grant them Houſe-room in, or without, the Liberties of LONDON, by the Water-ſide, and Privilege for the Time of twenty Years, that none but they, their Wives and Children, and Aſſigns, might exerciſe the ſame Science in this Realm; and to ſell and tranſport the ſame, as well outward as inward, to all Men, free of all Cuſtom.

COACH, and COACH-HARNESS-MAKERS.

THE Company of Coach-makers and Coach-harneſs-makers, were incorporated by Charter the 31ſt Day of May, in the 29th Year of the Reign of K. Charles II. by the Name of the Maſter, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and Commonalty of the Company of Coach-makers and Coach-harneſs-makers of LONDON.

DON. Their Privileges to extend to the Cities and Suburbs of LONDON, and Weſtminſter, and twenty Miles round.

THIS was confirmed by King James II. by Charter dated the 12th Day of May, in the 3d Year of his Reign.

THE Coach-makers are a Maſter, three Wardens, 27 Aſſiſtants, and 40 on the Livery. Their Livery Fine is uncertain.

THEIR Armorial Enſigns are: Azure, a Chevron between three Coaches Or. Creſt; Phœbus drawn in a Chariot all of the Second. Supporters; two Horſes Argent, harneſſed Or. Motto; Surgit poſt nubila Phœbus.

THEIR Hall is the ſame with the Scriveners, on the Eaſt Side of Noble-ſtreet; it is a Brick Building, where the Entrance into the Hall is by a ſpacious arched Aperture, in a ſtately Screen, adorned with Columns and Pilaſters of the Corinthian Order.

PINNERS and NEEDLERS.

THERE was antiently a Company of this Name, whoſe Hall ſtood in Auguſtin Friars; but little more is to be remember'd of them.

FOREIGN Pins and Needles being brought in about the Year 1597, did much Prejudice theſe Callings; which employed abundance of poor People, who were put off their Working, becauſe theſe Foreign Pins and Needles could be afforded cheaper than by thoſe who made them here at Home: Therefore in the aforeſaid Year, in the Month of December, they petition'd the Lord Treaſurer, for Reſtraint of theſe Pins and Needles, the bringing in whereof was the Cauſe that ſo many idle Perſons periſhed and miſcarried for Want of Work: For that in foreign Lands theſe Commodities were wrought in Hoſpitals, which found the Workers of them in Meat, Drink, and Cloathing; and the Artiſts had the Work only for inſtructing them. But in this Land (for that there was not ſuch Proviſion for the poor Suppliants uſing this Trade) they could not live to ſell their Wares at ſo low a Rate, as thoſe foreign Wares were ſold: But if they were reſtrained, many Thouſands would be ſet on Work, and made Commonwealth's Men, that now died in the Streets. The Premiſes conſider'd, and for that there were above 40000 l. Worth of Pins and Needles yearly brought into the Realm, and which were nothing ſo good and well wrought as thoſe were, which were made and wrought within the Land, and that the Reſtraint of bringing them in, would be the Means of ſetting many Thouſands of our Poor on Work; and that lame Soldiers, tho' they had no Legs, and Children, might work at this Trade. They prayed his Lordſhip therefore to give his Furtherance for reviving a Statute for Reſtraint of Foreign Wares, of 3 Edw. IV. 4. 1 Rich. III. 12. 5 Eliz. 7. 14 Eliz. 11.

PATTEN-MAKERS.

THE Patten-makers Company were incorporated by Charter the 22d Day of Auguſt, in the 22d Year of K. Charles II. by the Name of Maſter, Warden, Aſſiſtants, and Fellowſhip of Patten-makers of the Cities of LONDON and Weſtminſter, and the Liberties and Suburbs thereof: And alſo the Patten-makers of all Towns, Villages, Hamlets, and Places whatſoever, within the Compaſs of ten Miles, every Way diſtant from the ſaid Cities.

THEY are a Maſter, two Wardens, 24 Aſſiſtants, no Livery: The Stewards Fine is 6 l.

PATTENS and Clogs were antiently worn by Perſons of Quality, as well as others; and the Makers of them were an antient Company; and there is a Pariſh-Church in LONDON, denominated from them, viz. St. Margaret Pattens, thoſe of that Trade probably having their Shops chiefly there. In an Act of Edw. IV. cap. 9. they are called the Myſtery of Patten-makers of LONDON. Theſe had an Act of Parliament made in their Behalf, upon a Complaint which they made of the grievous Hurt and Damage which they and other Perſons in Time paſt of the ſame Occupation, had ſuffered by an Act of Parliament of Henry V. that abridged them the uſing of Timber of Aſp in making Pattens and Clogs, upon a Penalty; for the Benefit of the Fletchers, who uſed that Wood, that they might ſell their Shafts at eaſier Prices. But they ſhewed, how that this Wood was the beſt and lighteſt Timber for Pattens and Clogs, and moſt eaſy for the Wearing of all Eſtates, Gentlemen and other People: And that Perſons of other Crafts and Occupations, as Turners, Carpenters, Woodmongers, and Cole-makers uſed this Wood, and had no Reſtraint put upon them; and that there was much Aſp-Timber, and fit for the Fletchers Uſe to make Shafts, which they ſhould not uſe. Hereupon the Parliament enacted, That it ſhould be lawful from thenceforth, that the Patten-makers might make Pattens of ſuch Timber of Aſp, as was not apt nor convenient to be made into Shafts.

NOTARIES.

THESE are a Branch of the Scriveners, but their Buſineſs being diſtinct, and different from them, they may deſerve to be conſidered by themſelves.

THERE were ſixteen Notaries in the Mayoralty of Sir James Haws, who was Mayor 1574, viz. Humfrey Brook, George Keval, &c. Theſe made a Complaint to the ſaid Lord Mayor againſt one Richard Chandler, who had got a Patent under the Broad Seal, that none but he and his Deputies ſhould make and regiſter Inſurances, and Policies, and other Inſtruments relating to Merchants; which would be the Impoveriſhing, Overthrow, and utter Decay of all theſe Notaries Publick of the City, with their Children, Servants, Apprentices and Families, to the Number of 120 Perſons, and above; who lived upon making of Policies, Intimations, Renunciations, and other Writings granted unto the ſaid Candler. They ſhewed the Lord Mayor, that they were Freemen of the City, and examined and admitted, and allowed to their Function by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and his Anteceſſors, by Force of an Act of Parliament An. 25 Hen. and confirm'd by Act of Parliament 1 Eliz. That they were brought up from their Infancies, all or the moſt Part, as Apprentices; and ſithence poor Houſholders, having none other Trade to live by, but only by making of ſuch Writings. They alſo added, that they were lawfully admitted to their Function: That it was a Function that Time out of Mind was lawfully uſed, and reputed as expedient and neceſſary within this Realm, like as in all other Regions in Chriſtendom, into which Regions the Suppliants had made divers and ſundry Inſtruments of great Weight, whereunto good Credit was, and had been granted. That if this Grant ſhould take Place, it would alſo be a great Prejudice to the Notaries Servants ſucceeding them, and in the End of their Terms be forced to ſeek new Trades of Living. In fine they prayed the Lord

Lord Mayor and Aldermen to be a Means to the Queen and her Privy-Council, that this Patent might be called in, that the Faculty of Notaries might ſtill be exerciſed.

THEY moreover ſhewed their Reaſons againſt this Patent in ſeven Articles: One was, touching the Office of a Notary, that it had been frequented Time out of Mind. And the Prerogative of Admiſſion of Perſons meet to the ſame Function (after the Exoneration of their Predeceſſors from Exactions and other Things from the See of Rome) was granted by Act of Parliament to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury. And ſince that Time ratified aud confirmed by Act of Parliament alſo, in the fifth Year of the Queen's Majeſty: From whom they, the Suppliants, had their Authority. The which according to the expreſs Words of the former Statute of King Henry VIII. ought to be accepted, approved and allowed, and admitted, good and effectual in the Law, in all Places, Courts and Juriſdictions, as well Spiritual and Temporal within this Realm, as elſewhere within her Majeſty's Dominions, without any Revocation or Repeal to be had thereof: And all Acts to be done, had or executed according to the Tenour of that King's Grant, made by Authority of the ſaid Act of Parliament, ought to be firm, permament, and remain in Force, as by the ſame Statute appeared. Which Premiſſes would be abridg'd and taken from them, if the Queen's Letters Patents granted to Candler, ſhould not be revoked.

BROGGERS or BROKERS.

THEY were called Broggers in a Statute 10 Ric. II. and in Latin they are ſtiled Abrocarii or Brocarii, an Office of Antiquity and Credit. Formerly they were to be recepti ac jurati. Again, none to be Brokers in any Myſtery, unleſs choſen by the ſame Myſtery. Further, none of them to make Contracts of Uſury or Bargain, unleſs he bring the Seller and Buyer together, &c. Now Brokers are ſuch as are Aſſiſtants to the Merchants in buying and ſelling, and in their Contracts; concerned alſo in the Writing of Inſurances and Policies, and ſuch like. And therefore formerly they had their Dwellings near the Exchange, and were Freemen of the City. And ſo much depending upon their Truth and Honeſty, they were ſworn and bound with Sureties and divers Sums of Money, for their honeſt and true Dealings in their Faculty. About the Year 1574, there were thirty of them in Number, and no more.

THE Practiſers of this Calling were, about the ſaid Year, like utterly to be undone, as the Notaries before were, and upon the ſame Cauſe, viz. by a Patent obtained by Candler, that none but he, or his Deputies, ſhould make and regiſter Policies and Inſtruments of Aſſurance. Which Time out of Mind were done by Notaries Publick, and by the ſworn Brokers of the City. Theſe Brokers therefore petitioned the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, to be a means to the Queen, that the Premiſſes might be revoked, otherwiſe it would be their utter Undoing. That it would alſo be an Infringement upon the Liberty of every good Citizen, who before might make his Writing and Aſſurances himſelf, and uſe neither Broker nor Notary, except he pleas'd himſelf. Nor was it good, that one Man ſhould have an Office of divers Men's Livings. They urged moreover, that the old Freedoms, Liberties, and Cuſtoms of this City might be maintained, kept and continned; and that every Freeman ought to be free, and occupy his Trade in all ſuch Things, as for the Maintenance of his Living he might by good Order.

THEY ſhewed likewiſe the Diſcommodities and Dangers of this Patent to the Merchants. That the Merchants had good Choice of Notaries and Brokers: Who upon a ſudden might be ready, and diligent to ſerve their Turns, as well in making their Policies, as in procuring Subſcriptions of the ſame, as alſo in making Intimations and other Writings incident thereunto. By which ſpeedy Diſpatch divers Loſſes and Inconveniencies, which otherwiſe might happen, were prevented. That if all this ſerving Merchants Occaſions ſhould be committed to one peculiar Perſon, it were not poſſible but great Diſcommodities and Loſſes would happen to many for Lack of Diſpatch. That the Merchants found great Commodity and Surety by dealing with Notaries and Brokers, known, to be ſecret, careful and diligent, in uſing and doing their Offices with Expedition: That it would be a great Bondage to Merchants to be tied to one particular Perſon, who might either for Favour or Reward diſpatch one Man, and for Diſpleaſure or ill Will delay another. That Merchants who intended ſome Secret, and yet lawful Voyage, would be glad to paſs their Writings privately by ſuch Notaries and Brokers, as they knew would be ſecret to them in that Behalf: Of which Convenience they muſt utterly be deprived, if they ſhould be forced to come to a publick Officer to paſs the ſame. That the Credit and Fidelity of the Broker is Occaſion of divers Aſſurances, which otherwiſe would not be made, &c.

OF late many Jews follow the Calling: Inſomuch that Endeavours have been made to reſtrain their Number, as appears by this Paper following.

REASONS humbly offered to the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, and Court of Aldermen, againſt a Jew (who is a known Enemy to the Chriſtian Religion) his being admitted a Broker.

I. THAT the Act of Parliament to reſtrain the Number and ill Practice of Brokers and Stock-jobbers, only limits the Number of Brokers to be one Hundred, and makes no Mention of Jews, or any other Foreigners whatſoever.

II. That of the Jews, who are already ſworn Brokers, not above one Half are of Advantage to the Merchants in any Branch of Trade whatſoever.

III. That for the drawing and remitting of Money by Exchange to and from Foreign Parts, in which the Jews might be ſerviceable, if Need required, there are already more than ſufficient, which has occaſioned almoſt one Half of the Jew Brokers to run into Stock-jobbing: Which, with the great Number of other Jews employed to act under them as Brokers, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of the aforeſaid Act of Parliament, has been the Occaſion of great Irregularities committed in dealing in Stocks.

IV. That there is no one Branch of Trade, which will receive any Detriment by not admitting a Jew to be a Broker at this Time.

V. That the Jew Brokers are, for the moſt part, neither free of this Honourable City of LONDON, nor any Livery Company, and pay very little towards the Support of the Publick: Whereas the other Petitioners are moſt of them Houſekeepers, Freemen, and Liverymen, who pay Scott and Lott, and are otherwiſe Contributors to the Publick Charge, and have a native Right to the Immunities and Privileges of Engliſhmen and Citizens, which the Jews have not.

VI. That the Jews have not any Right to the Immunities and Privileges of this City, nor deſerve any Incouragement from this Honourable Court, Court, will evidently appear by the many Statute Laws now in Force againſt them, contain'd in a Book, printed Anno 1703, dedicated, To the Reverend the Clergy, and particularly to the Members of the Convocation : Which Book is ready to be produced. And if duly conſider'd, 'tis humbly hoped, this Honourable Court will find no Reaſon to admit any more Jews to be ſworn Brokers.

THERE was another Sort of theſe, which they called Retailing Brokers, or Huckſters; and they were ſuch as uſed to buy old Apparel, Houſehold-ſtuff, Bedding, Books, Ends and Remnants of Silks and Velvets, Linnen and Woollen Cloth, &c.

OF this Trade there were many Abuſes diſcovered in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, as well as of the latter Times. As the receiving and concealing of ſtolen Goods, and buying them at under Rates; much of the Queen's own Plate and Jewels, Chains, Bracelets, &c. and of the Nobility's alſo, were ſtolen away from them, and brought to theſe Men to pawn or ſell; of which Complaint ſeems to be made to the City. This cauſed an Act of Common Council, Anno 1525, and 30 Eliz. Wherein a Regiſter was appointed to be of their Names that followed this Calling, written and kept by four honeſt and ſufficient Perſons, Freemen of the City, to be appointed and ſworn by the Mayor and Aldermen. And theſe to enter the Names of every ſuch Retailing Brogger, or Broker, with the Place of their Dwelling, who ſhould receive, buy, or take to Pawn any ſuch Plate or Goods: And likewiſe their Names, with the Place of Abode, that ſhould deliver, ſell, or empawn the ſame: Alſo a particular Note of the Things ſo delivered, ſold or laid to Pawn; with the Prices or Sums of Money, for which the ſame was ſo delivered. To the Intent that any Perſon from whom any ſuch Things have been unlawfully taken or conveyed, might make Search in the ſaid Regiſter Books for the ſame. Alſo, no Broker to buy, receive, or take to Pawn theſe Things, before he had preſented to the Regiſters the Parties who ſhould offer them to Sale, keep or pawn; and ſhewed to the ſaid Regiſters all ſuch Things ſo offered to Pawn or Sale: A true Note alſo firſt to be regiſtered of the Names of thoſe that ſhould buy the ſame; and another Note deſcribing the Nature, Colour, and Quality of the Things, and of the Prices and Sums of Money, for which the ſame were to be ſold, or empawned. If they were empawned or left to be kept, then for what Time of Redemption: And if abſolutely ſold, yet it ſhould not be lawful for any Brogger to make Sale, or put away thoſe Things within the Space of ſeven Days next after. To the Intent, that if they had been ſtolen, the right Proprietors might freely view and ſee the ſame: The Broker to pay the Keeper of the Regiſter one Halfpenny, when the Thing ſo entered to be kept or empawned, be for 5 s. or under; but if it be above, then one Penny, and no more.

No Broker or Huckſter, after Notice given to him by any of the Regiſters of any Plate, Goods, &c. affirmed to be ſtolen, ſhould buy or receive the ſame, but make Stay of ſuch Things ſo offered to Sale or Pawn; and cauſe the Party ſo offering, the ſame to be apprehended and brought before ſome Juſtice of Peace, to be examined concerning the ſame Felony ſuppoſed. And at every ſuch Apprehenſion, to give Knowledge to the ſaid Regiſter, who left the ſaid Warning, as well of the Party ſo taken, as of the Goods by him ſo offer'd. To the Intent that the right Owner might be advertiſed by the ſaid Regiſter. No Broker to receive, buy, or take to Pawn any Plate, Jewels, Goods, &c. on Sabbath-Days, Feſtivals, or any Holidays, being not open Market-Days. Every Broker offending in any Article, Clauſe, or Point aforeſaid, to forfeit for every ſuch Offence 5 l. the one Half to the City, the other to the Keepers of the Regiſter; and to pay to the Party grieved the full Value of the Thing ſo bought, received, or taken in Pawn, and concealed or untruly entered.

THE Modern Pawn-Brokers are ſuch as take Plate, or any other Goods, and lend Money upon them at unreaſonable Conſideration; and to be returned back upon a Day, or otherwiſe the Commodities left in Pawn to be forfeited. Which hard Condition poor People are fain to comply with, to ſupply themſelves with ready Money upon ſome Extremity: Theſe, 'tis pity, the State hath not thought fit to take Notice of, to redreſs their evil and unconſcionable Practices.

REFINERS of SUGARS.

ABOUT the Year 1544, refining of Sugar was firſt uſed in England. And the firſt Dealers therein were Cornelius Baſſine, Ferdinando Points —— Mounſie or Mounſtow, John Gardiner, and Sir William Cheſter. Then there were but two Sugar-Houſes, and their Profit was but very little, by Reaſon there were ſo many Sugar-Bakers in Antwerp; and Sugar came thence better cheap than it could be afforded at London: And for the ſpace of Twenty Years together, thoſe two Sugar-Houſes ſerved the whole Realm, both to the Commendation and Profit of them that undertook the ſame. Whoſe Benefit was occaſioned by ſtopping of the Intercourſe between England and Antwerp.

AFTERWARDS many entered into that Trade, namely, John Alden, Henry Topsfield, Nic. Barneſly, Thomas Cordal, Richard Oldfield, Francis Fleming, Richard Paſton, Will. Holmen, Ric. Bateman, and others, who made ſmall Profit by it, and ſome proved Bankrupts. In the Year 1596, Sir Tho. Mildmay, a Courtier, (and before him one Henry Nowel, who died in the Suit) petitioned the Queen that he might have a Licence granted to him for Years, to refine Sugars, for which he would pay a Rent to the Queen. And to prevail in his Petition, he endeavoured to ſhew, that it was no Hinderance to her Majeſty's Cuſtoms, no Prejudice to any Merchant Adventurer, no Damage to the Grocers of London, no Inconvenience to the Commonwealth, altho' it might be called a Monopoly. But the Lord Treaſurer (who would never conſent to any ſuch Things without hearing what could be ſaid by others againſt it) received Reaſons why the refining of Sugars ſhould not be granted to one, two, or three private Perſons only, but be uſed generally, as had been accuſtomed, viz. That the refining of Sugars was an antient Faculty, and had been uſed in divers Countries for a general Commodity of the Commonweals, by all ſuch as had Skill by true Workmanſhip to exerciſe the ſame, without Rejection. And whereas theſe Petitioners objected, that the former Refiners of Sugar added thereunto corrupt Mixtures, to their own private Gain, and to the deceiving of the Subject; a great Number of honeſt Men would depoſe the ſame to be falſe and untrue. And this being privately in a few Hands, would be a principal Cauſe of the Decay of true Workmanſhip, and would alſo be the advancing of the Prices of all Sorts of Sugar, to the enriching of a few covetous and ill-minded Perſons, and to the great Hinderance of the Commonwealth in general. That if the refining of Sugars ſhould be forbidden, then her Majeſty would loſe her Cuſtoms; which were no ſmall Sums: And that whereas whereas England had been accuſtomed to be ſerved with fine Sugars from Antwerp, now England was ſufficient to ſerve itſelf, and did daily tranſport great Quantities into other Countries.

Mr. Strype, in his SURVEY, after the Company of the Refiners of Sugars, has placed the PLAYERS.

THESE, we think, cannot properly be called a Comany in Trade, however we ſhall give our Readers what he has ſaid of them.

ACTING of Plays for the Diverſion and Entertainment of the Court, the Gentry, or any others, is become a Calling, whereby many get their Livings. How lawfully, is another Queſtion. Players in former Times were Retainers to ſome Noblemen, and none had the Privilege to Act Plays, but ſuch. So in Queen Elizabeth's Time, many of the great Nobility had Servants and Retainers, who were Players, and went about getting their Livelihood thatway. The Lord Admiral had Players, and ſo had the Lord Strange, that played within the City of LONDON. It was not unuſual then, upon any Gentleman's Complaint of them, for Abuſes or undecent Reflections practiſed in their Plays, to have them put down. Thus once the Lord Treaſurer ſignified to the Lord Mayor Hart, to have theſe Players of the Lord Admiral and Lord Strange, prohibited, at leaſt for ſome Time; becauſe one Mr. Tilney had utterly, for ſome Reaſons, diſliked them: Whereupon the Mayor ſent for both Companies, and gave them a ſtrict Charge, and required them in the Queen's Name, to forbear Playing for ſome Time, till further Order might be given for their Allowance. The Lord Admiral's Players obeyed, but the Lord Strange's in a contentious Manner went away to the Croſs-Keys, and played that Afternoon, to the great Offence of the better Sort, that knew they were prohibited by Order from the Lord Treaſurer; ſo the Mayor committed two of them to the Compter, and prohibited all Playing for the future, till the Treaſurer's Pleaſure was known; this was in the Year 1589. Of theſe ſee more, Vol. 1. Pages, 228, 229, 230.

THERE were two Acts of Common-Council made about the Middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, concerning theſe Actors of Plays: The firſt was in the Mayoralty of Sir James Hawes, Anno 1574. Great Complaints were made by ſober Citizens againſt them, as, for their corrupting of Youth, Frays and Quarrels, increaſing the Infection by great Companies meeting together, this being alſo a Time of Sickneſs; Acting on Sundays and Holidays in the Afternoon, hindering the People going to the Prayers, and divers other Inconveniencies and Sins, which the Citizens would not bear; and therefore made a very good Act for the Regulation of theſe Players, which is tranſcibed from the authentick Act in Writing; made the 6th of December, 17 Regin. Hawes Mayor, Preſent the ſaid Mayor, Fleetwood Recorder; Offley, Ducket, Alleyn, Knights; Nicolas Bond, Barneham, Box, Pipe, Woodroff, Osborn, Aldermen; Barnes, Gamage, Sheriffs; & immenſ. multitudin. Commun.

WHEREAS heretofore ſundry great Diſorders and Inconveniences have been found to enſue in this City, by the inordinate haunting of great Numbers of People, eſpecially Youth, to Plays, Interludes and Shews; namely, Occaſion of Frays and Quarrels, evil Practices of Incontinency, in great Inns, having Chambers and ſecret Places adjoining to their open Stages and Galleries; inveigling the Maids, eſpecially Orphans, and good Citizens Children under Age, to privy and unmeet Contracts; the publiſhing of unchaſte, uncomely, and unſhamefaced Speeches and Doings; withdrawing the Queen's Majeſty's Subjects from Divine Service on Sundays and Holidays (at which Time ſuch Plays were chiefly uſed;) unthrifty Waſte of Money of poor and fond Perſons; ſundry Robberies by picking and cutting of Purſes; uttering of popular, buſy and ſeditious Matters; and many other Corruptions of Youth, and other Enormities: Beſides, that alſo ſundry Slaughters and Maynehemings of the Queen's Subjects have happened by Ruines of Scaffolds, Frames and Stages; and by Engines, Weapons and Powder, uſed in Plays.

AND where in Times of God's Viſitation by the Plague, ſuch Aſſemblies of People in Throngs and Preſs, have been very dangerous for ſpreading of Infection: For the ſame and other great Cauſes, by the Authority of the Hon. Lord Mayor of this City, and the Aldermen their Brethren; and eſpecially upon the ſevere and earneſt Admonition of the Lords of the Moſt Hon. Privy-Council, with ſignifying her Majeſty's expreſs Pleaſure and Commandment in that Behalf, ſuch Uſe of Plays, Interludes and Shews hath been, during the Time of this Sickneſs, forbidden and reſtrain'd: And for that the Lord Mayor, and his Brethren the Aldermen, together with the grave and diſcreet Citizens in the Common-Council Aſſembled, do doubt and fear, leſt upon God's merciful withdrawing of his Hand of Sickneſs from us (which God grant) the People, eſpecially the meaner and moſt unruly Sort, ſhould, with ſudden forgetting of his Viſitation, without Fear of God's Wrath, and without due Reſpect of this good and politick Means, that he hath afforded for the Preſervation of Commonweals and People in Health and good Order, return unto the undue Uſe of ſuch Enormities, to the great Offence of God, the Queen's Commandment and good Governance.

NOW therefore, to the Intent that ſuch Perils may be avoided, and the lawful, honeſt and comely Uſe of Plays, Paſtimes and Recreations in good Sort only permitted, and good Proviſion had for the ſafety and well ordering of the People there Aſſembled: Be it enacted by the Authority of this Common-Council, that from henceforth no Play, Comedy, Tragedy, Interlude, nor Publick Shew, ſhall be openly play'd or ſhewed within the Liberties of the City; wherein ſhall be uttered any Words, Examples, or any Doings of any Unchaſtity, Sedition, nor ſuch like unfit or uncomely Matter, upon Pain of Impriſonment, by the Space of fourteen Days, of all Perſons offending in any ſuch open Playing or Shewing; and 5 l. for every ſuch Offender. And that no Inn-keeper, Tavern-keeper, nor other Perſon whatſoever, within the Liberties of this City, ſhall openly ſhew or play, nor cauſe or ſuffer to be openly ſhewed or played, within his Houſe, Yard, or any other Place within the Liberties of this City, any Play, Interlude, Comedy, Tragedy, Matter, or Shew that ſhall not be firſt peruſed and allowed in ſuch Order and Form, and by ſuch Perſons, as by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen for the Time being, ſhall be appointed: Nor ſhall ſuffer to be enterlaced, added, mingled, or uttered in any ſuch Play, Interlude, Comedy, Tragedy, Shew, or any other Matter, than ſuch as ſhall be firſt peruſed and allowed, as is aboveſaid.

AND that no Perſon ſhall ſuffer any Plays, Interludes, Tragedies, or Shews to be played or ſhewed in his Houſe, Yard, or other Place, whereof he then ſhall have Rule or Power; but only ſuch Perſon, and in ſuch Places, as upon good and reaſonable Conſiderations ſhewed, ſhall be thereunto permitted and allowed by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being: Neither ſhall take or uſe any Benefit or Advantage of ſuch Permiſſion, before, or until ſuch Perſon be bound to the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being being, with ſuch Sureties; and in ſuch Sum, and ſuch Form of the keeping of good Order, for avoiding the Diſcords and Inconveniencies above-ſaid; as by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen for the Time being, ſhall ſeem convenient. Neither ſhall uſe or exerciſe any ſuch Licence or Permiſſion at or in any Matters, in which the ſame, for any reaſonable Conſideration of Sickneſs or otherwiſe ſhall, by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, by publick Proclamation, or by Precept to ſuch Perſons, be reſtrain'd, or commanded to ſtay and ceaſe: Nor in any uſual Time of Divine Service in the Sunday or Holiday, nor receive any to that purpoſe in the Time of Divine Service to ſee the ſame, upon Pain to forfeit for every Offence 5 l.

And be it Enacted, That every Perſon ſo to be licenſed or permitted, ſhall, during the Time of ſuch Continuance of ſuch Licence or Permiſſion, pay, or cauſe to be paid, to the Uſe of the Poor in Hoſpitals in the City, or of the Poor of the City viſited with the Sickneſs, by the Diſcretion of the ſaid Lord Mayor and Aldermen, ſuch Sums and Payments, and in ſuch Form, as betwixt the Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, on the one Part, and ſuch Perſon ſo licenſed or permitted on the other Part, ſhall be agreed: Upon Pain, that in want of every ſuch Payment; or if ſuch Perſon ſhall not firſt be bound with good Sureties to the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being, for the true Payment of ſuch Sums to the Poor; that then every ſuch Licence or Permiſſion, ſhall be utterly void: And every Doing, by Force of Colour of ſuch Licence or Permiſſion, ſhall be adjudged an Offence againſt this Act, in ſuch Manner, as if no Licence or Permiſſion had been had or made; any ſuch Licence or Permiſſion to the contrary notwithſtanding.

And be it likewiſe Enacted, That all Sums and Forfeitures to be incurred for any Offence againſt this Act; and all Forfeitures of Bonds to be taken by Force, Mean, or Occaſion of this Act, be employ'd to the Relief of the Poor in the Hoſpitals of this City, or the Poor infected or diſeaſed in this City of LONDON; as the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen for the Time being, adjudge meet to be diſtributed. And that the Chamberlain of LONDON ſhall have and recover the ſame for theſe Purpoſes aforeſaid, by Bill, Plaint, Action of Debt, or Information, to be commenced and purſued in his own Name, in the Court of the utter Chamber of the Guild-hall of LONDON, called, The Mayor's-Court. In which Suit no Eſſoign, or Wager of Law for the Defendant, ſhall be admitted or allowed.

Provided always that this Act (otherwiſe than touching the publiſhing of unchaſt, ſeditious and unmeet Matters) ſhall not extend to any Plays, Interludes, Comedies, Tragedies, or Shews, to be played or ſhewed, in the private Houſe, Dwelling or Lodging of any Nobleman, Citizen or Gentleman, which ſhall or will then have the ſame there played, or ſhewed in his Preſence, for the Feſtivity of any Marriage, Aſſembly of Friends, or other like Caſe, without publick or common Collection of Money of the Auditory, or Beholders thereof; referring always to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, the Judgment and Conſtruction, according to the Equity, what ſhall be counted ſuch a Playing or Shewing in private Place; any Thing in this Act to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Upon this Act the Queen's Players made Petition to the Lords of her Majeſty's Privy Council, to this Purport: "That whereas the Queen's "Poor Players (as they ſtiled themſelves) their "Time of Service drew near, ſo of Neceſſity "they muſt exerciſe, to enable them the better "for the ſame, and alſo for their better Help "and Relief in their poor Livings the Seaſon of "the Year being paſt, to play at any of the Houſes "without the City of LONDON (as in their "Articles annexed to their Supplication might "more at large appear.) Their Petition there-"fore was, That it might pleaſe their Lordſhips "to vouchſafe the Reading of their Articles ſent "herewith, and in tender Conſideration of the "Matter therein mention'd, containing the very "Stay and good Eſtate of their Living, to grant "unto them the Confirmation of the ſame, or "of as many, or as much of them, as ſhould be to "their Honours good Liking: And therewithal "their Lordſhips favourable Letters unto the "Lord Mayor of LONDON, to permit them "to exerciſe within the City, according to the "Articles: And alſo that the ſaid Letters might "contain ſome Orders to the Juſtices of Mid-"dleſex, as in the ſame Articles are mention'd, "whereby they ſhould ceaſe their continual "troubling of their Lordſhips. Subſcribing,

Your moſt bounden and daily Orators,

Her Majeſty's Poor Players.

This Petition, and the Articles annexed, were anſwered by the City; and the Anſwer delivered, as it ſeems, to the Lord Treaſurer againſt them. And, in fine, the Remedies (as they are ſtiled) for theſe Players, and for the more orderly Performance of them (ſent alſo to that Lord) were as follows:

"That they hold themſelves content with "playing in private Houſes, at Weddings, &c. "without publick Aſſemblies.

"If more be thought good to be tolerated, "that then they be reſtrained to the Orders of "the Act of Common-Council, Tempore Hawes.

"That they play not openly, till the whole "Death in LONDON have been come by "twenty Days unto fifty a Week; nor longer "than it ſhall ſo continue.

"That no Plays be on the Sabbath-Day.

"That no Playing be on Holidays, but after "Evening Prayer; nor any received into the "Auditory, till after Evening Prayer.

"That no Playing be in the Dark, nor con-"tinue any ſuch Time, but as any of the Au-"ditory may return to their Dwellings in LON-"DON before Sun-ſet, or at leaſt before it be "dark.

"That the Queen's Players only be tolera-"ted, and of them their Number and certain "Names to be notified in your Lordſhips Let-"ters to the Lord Mayor, and to the Juſtices "of Middleſex and Surrey: And thoſe her "Players not to divide themſelves into ſeveral "Companies.

"That for breaking any of theſe Orders, "their Toleration ceaſe.

But notwithſtanding, theſe Orders were not duly obſerved, and the lewd Matters of Plays increaſed; and in the Haunt unto them were found many Dangers, both for Religion, State, Honeſty of Manners, Unthriftineſs of the Poor, Danger of Infection, &c. And the Preachers daily crying againſt them, Suit was made, that they might be baniſhed not only in the Liberties of the City, but in Places adjoining. And ſince that, namely, upon the Ruin at Paris Garden, Suit was made to the Lords to baniſh Plays wholly in the Places near LONDON. And Letters were obtained from the Lords to baniſh them on the Sabbath-Days.

THERE are alſo Perſons of divers other Trades and Sciences, more lately combined into Societies; ſeveral whereof were formerly Branches of other Corporations. Some of theſe have Charters, and others none; whoſe Charters and Arms have not come to Hand, or been refuſed to be ſhewn, viz Gun-makers, Card-makers, and Fan-makers.

THESE that follow were antiently Members of other Companies, viz. Needle-makers, of the Company of Pinners and Needlers; Gold and Silver Wire-drawers, of the Company of Goldſmiths; Long Bow-ſtring-makers, of the Bow-ſtringers, under the Bowyers and Fletchers; Carmen, of the Company of Woodmongers.

THERE have been divers Liſts of theſe Companies, in which their Order of Precedence do vary. The moſt anthentick ſeems to be that printed by Alderman Barber, when he was City Printer, at the End of a little Book, ſhewing the Order of the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen and Sheriffs, for their Meeting, and wearing their Apparel, &c. Which Liſt is entituled,

The NAMES of the ſeveral COMPANIES, in their Order; and is as followeth: After the firſt Twelve Companies.

THESE Corporations had ſometimes ſuch Members, as by Succeſs in their Trades and Callings, had come to great Wealth, and Chief Magiſtracy, and had raiſed Families. In Acknowledgement of which Goodneſs of God; and partly out of a ſuperſtitious Care of their Souls departed, according to the Religion of thoſe Times, they gave Part of their Eſtates to their reſpective Companies, in Truſt for the Building and Maintaining of Hoſpitals, for annual Relief of the Poor; to which was commonly added certain Rents upon thoſe Lands or Tenements ſo given, given, for the Celebration of their yearly Obits, and for Prieſts, called Chauntry Prieſts, to ſing Maſs at ſet Days in the Churches where they were buried, for their Souls Deliverance out of Purgatory, and for the Souls of ſome of their particular Friends and Relations deceaſed. Now this being ſuch a Nurſery of Superſtition, and a Maintainance for idle Prieſts, by an Act made in the Beginning of King Edward the VIth's Reign, all ſuch Gifts were granted to the Crown. And accordingly all ſuch Lands and Poſſeſſions were ſeized into the King's Hands; and ſo ſuch Portions of the Rents of them as were appropriated for ſuperſtitious Uſes, were as Rent Charges paid by the Companies to the King. This was a great Blow to the Corporations of LONDON, which were extreamly weakened in their Incomes and Revenues, by the taking ſo much from them, and brought their charitable Donations almoſt to an End: Nor was there any other Way for them but to purchaſe, and buy off theſe Rent Charges, and get as good Pennyworths as they could of the King. And this they did, 3 Edward VI. by ſelling other of their Lands, to enable them to make theſe Purchaſes. This coſt them 18,700 l. Which Poſſeſſions, when they had thus cleared again, they employed them to good Uſes, according to the firſt Intent of them, abating the Superſtitions. A very exact Account of which appears in this Table following: Which was drawn up long after, viz. in the Year 1587, and preſented to Queen Elizabeth and her Council, upon a new Vexation of them by certain Perſons who had got a Patent from her to look and ſearch into all ſuch Collegiate and Chauntry Foundations concealed hitherto: For which the Companies were again called to Account, of which we ſhall hear more by and by. Here are ſpecified the Lands purchaſed by each Company of King Edward VI. and what Lands they ſold to purchaſe the ſame, and how the Profits thereof were beſtowed; which is tranſcribed from an Original.

A particular Note of ſuche charitable good Uſes, as are performed by divers of the Companies of LONDON, out of ſuche Rents as they purchaſed of King Edward VI.

MERCERS.

The Mercers Rents firſt compounded for, amounts to 196 l. 15 s. 3 d.
The Rents in Adam's and Woodſhaw's [Concealers] Patents, compounded for amount to 207 l. 16 s. 10 d.	434	12 01
Which being deducted out of 934 l. 18 s. 5 d. there will reſt of the Value uncompounded for, the Sum of	510	06 04

But the Company's humble Petition is, to have Aſſurance from her Majeſty of all the whole Value, ſaving the Mercers Rents. For that they are advyſed, ther is ſome Doubte of the Validity of Adam's and Woodſhaw's Patent, by Reaſon of the Proviſo, or Condition, which is conteyned in the ſame.

A Propoſal for every Company to ſend a Ship to Sea with their own Manufacture.

One Thomas Barnaby, a Merchant in Edward VI. his Days, urged to ſome great Lord of the Court the vaſt Uſefulneſs of Shipping to this Iſland, of which, at that Time, there was a great Deficiency. And, for the promoting of Shipping, he adviſed this Way: That every Company of the City ſhould provide, and ſend out one Ship at leaſt, laden with the Commodities proper to their own Trade or Manufacture; which might conſiderably advance Navigation in this Realm, and the Riches alſo of each Society. "There "be (ſaid he) ſo many rich Halls, that may "ſpend 800 l. ſome 600 l. ſome leſs and ſome "more, yearly. And great Revenues come to "them yearly for Quarteridges and Forfeits; "which riſe to no ſmall Sum, and nothing done "withal, but making great Feaſts every Month "or ſix Weeks at their Halls, and cauſing Vic-"tuals to be dear. But it might be turned to a "more honourable Uſe; alſo, it would be a "great maintaining to the King's Subjects, for "every Craft to have a Ship to carry their Mer-"chandizes to and fro, to the great Advance-"ment of the King's Honour, and to their "own Commodities: And if Chance ſhould fall "(which God forbid) that a Ship ſhould be "loſt, the Halls might eaſily bear the Smarts "thereof.

A Bill that none ſhould exerciſe any Trade but he that had ſerved an Apprenticeſhip to it.

There was an Endeavour made in March 1575, to obtain an Act of Parliament that no Perſon ſhould exerciſe any other Trade than what he was Apprentice to. The Bill was drawn up and intitled, A Bill prohibiting the Exerciſe of any Art or Myſtery, ſaving to ſuch as have been Apprentice to the ſame; or, to prohibit, that no Perſon of one Art or Myſtery ſhall intermeddle with the Art or Myſtery of others. It ſet forth, How in the 37th Year of King Edward III. it was enacted, That Artificers and Men of Myſteries ſhould hold themſelves to one Myſtery, and that none ſhould uſe the Myſtery or Trade of others, but that which he had choſen. And in the fifth Year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, it was enacted, That after the firſt of May then next enſuing, it ſhould not be lawful for any other than ſuch as did then lawfully uſe or exerciſe any Art, Myſtery, or manual Occupation, to ſet up, occupy or uſe any Craft, Trade, Myſtery, or Occupation, except he was brought up therein Seven Years; nor to ſet any Perſon at work in ſuch Myſtery, except he ſhould have been an Apprentice as aforeſaid.

Records ſhewed the Lord Treaſurer relating thereto.

The City offered to the Lord Treaſurer a Paper, ſhewing, that it appeared by antient Records, that ſeveral Companies in LONDON were incorporated, as well for the good Government of their Companies, and to ſee that true and perfect Wares were made and ſold in the Realm, as to puniſh the diſordered Perſons, and baniſh the deceitful and corrupt Wares. At which Time every ſeveral Company might occupy no other Trade but that whereunto the Perſon was Apprentice. Which Order kept the foreign Commodities at far lower Prices than at that preſent they were; and yet the Stuff and Wares better made than now they were. That Ignorance was a great Occaſion of making and maintaining evil and corrupt Wares, and alſo of enhancing and raiſing up the Prices of Foreign Commodities. That if every Man occupied his own Trade, that theſe Abuſes might eaſily be eſpied, and ordered either by the Governor of the Corporations, or by ſome other Device made by her Majeſty and the Honourable Council. That there were in LONDON, of ſeveral Companies, far greater Numbers that retailed Silks, than were free of the Mercers; and therefore no good Order could be kept.

In the Times of King Richard II. Sir Nicholas Brambre, Mayor, divers were diſfranchiſed and loſt their Freedom; for that they occupied other Trades than they were Apprentices unto, viz. John Lynne and Nicholas Merchant, free of the Haberdaſhers, for that they occupied Merceries: Geffrey Preſtbery, for that he knew the ſaid Nicholas Merchant to occupy Mercery, and procured him to be free of the Haberdaſhers. William Southbrook, free of the Weavers, for that he occupied Drapery. Richard Croſs, for that he procured the ſaid Southbrook, occupying Drapery, to be free of the Weavers. Richard Skinner, being a Taylor, loſt his Freedom, for that he uſed Drapery. Six ſeveral Taylors, at that Time, loſt their Freedom, for that they knew the ſaid Skinner occupied Drapery; and yet procured him to be free of the Taylors.

From the Year 1582, and ſome Years after, the Companies were again put to great Trouble, a great Part of their Lands and Tenements being in Danger to be forfeited and taken from them, by Reaſon of Sir Edward Stafford, and others, who had obtained Patents from the Queen for finding out Obit and Chantry, and Collegiate Lands concealed. Many of theſe Lands, given by Act of Parliament to the King and his Heirs, 1 Edw. VI. the Companies were fain to purchaſe again of King Edward VI. according to the Rent Charges upon them, as was ſhewn before. But ſome other Chantry Lands there were, which they held concealed hitherto, till certain prying Fellows (hoping thereby to make ſome Gains to themſelves) had made Diſcoveries of them to theſe Patentees, commonly called Concealers; who examined narrowly into all theſe Concealments. And what was diſcovered became the Patentees, the Queen having ſome ſmall Part in Fee Farm.

Thus, Anno 1582, two of theſe Concealers, named Adams and Woodſhaw, diſcovered, That whereas divers of the Companies had, upon the Act for Chantries, bought of King Edward VI. the Lands belonging to the Chantries, and given to the reſpective Companies, and ſo enjoyed the ſaid Lands as they had done before, they had concealed ſome of the Chantry Lands, and retained them in their Hands, paying nothing for them. As for Example, the Grocers bought of King Edward VI. 67 l. 1 s. 8 d. per Annum; for which they gave 1341 l. 13 s. 4 d. and built the Weigh-houſe, which coſt them 1100 l. But theſe Men found, that the Lands belonging to Chantries, in their Poſſeſſion, amounted to 147 l. 4 s. 8 d. What therefore remained of the Sum beſides 67 l. 1 s. 8 d. was by Right the Queen's. Which ſhe gave to the Patentees: Out of which the Queen had 4 l. 10 s. per Annum as a Fee Farm.

AND ſo the Skinners bought of the ſaid King, Rents of their Chantries to the Value of 30 l. 16 s. 6 d. per Annum; for which they paid 615 l. 10 s. whereas there was now diſcovered to be Lands of that Nature in their Poſſeſſion of 101 l. 8 s. 8 d. per Annum.

Their Lands now diſcovered to be per Annum	110	07	00

And ſo of divers other of the Twelve Companies. All theſe Lands and Tenements of the Companies of LONDON ſo concealed, the Queen paſſed by her Letters Patents to the aboveſaid Adams and Woodſhaw.

	l.	s.	d.
So that the Total Sum of the Lands ſo paſſed was per Ann.	838	04	06
Rents out of the ſame bought of the King by the Companies per Annum	312	16	03
Monies therefore paid to the King by them	5640	00	08
To the Queen for all the ſame Lands by the Patentees in Fee Farm per Annum	22	12	04

Note, That the Value of the ſaid Lands were here ſet as they were charitably lett by the Companies, (which was one great Portion of their good Deeds) but would be much more by Improvement. Alſo the whole yearly Value aforeſaid, and the whole yearly Value of all the reſt of their Lands, the Companies ſhewed that they did beſtow upon the Poor, and upon Scholars, and other publick good Uſes; without employing any one Penny thereof in their Dinners, or other like Charges. But the ſame were wholly borne of their Quarteridge, and the Wardens Charge out of their own Purſes; as appears by this one Example of the Grocers here following:

	l.	s.	d.
The whole Rents of the Grocers per Annum	216	14	04
Whereof:
To the Poor weekly, by divers Wills and otherwiſe in Alms
To the School-maſter, Uſher, and Almſmen at Owndel	165	16	00
To poor Schloars in the Univerſities

Reparations of the School Almshouſes, and other the Premiſes	40	00	00
Sum	251	16	00

Beſide ſetting forth, entertaining and training of Soldiers, Proviſion of Armour always in Store, and 444 Quarters of Wheat ever aforehand; wherein the poorer Sort bear no Burden.

And ſo in like Sort and Proportion is to be ſaid of all the reſt of the ſaid Companies.

Note alſo, That the ſaid Companies are ſet by their Lands in Subſidy, 638 l. and ſo do pay at every whole Subſidy 128 l. 10 s. which, accounting every fourth Year to pay a Subſidy, amounteth yearly, communibus annis, to 31 l. 7 s. And ſo if the Companies loſe their Lands, the Queen ſhall loſe more in Subſidy than the Whole that the Patentees do give her for the Lands.

Item, If the Land be taken away, and ſo the Purchaſe of the Rents void, if her Majeſty in Equity repay the Sums that the King received for the Rents, it amounts to 5640 l. 8 d.

In fine, There was no Way for theſe Companies to enjoy theſe concealed, but now diſcovered Lands, unleſs they would lay down Money and buy them of the Patentees: Nor would the Patentees be contented to have them valued according to the old Rents they went at formerly, and as lett by the Companies, but according to what they might be rented for at that preſent; and ſo ſet the Value upon them at twenty Years Purchaſe. But ſeveral Companies contended with theſe Concealers,; for many of theſe Lands were dubious whether they came under the Statute for Chantries. At length ſome Matters of Law in this Cauſe were put to the Lords Chief Juſtices, Sir Chriſtopher Wray, and Sir Edmund Anderſon.

Wherein they gave their Judgments under their Hands, That albeit Meſſuages were demiſed to Corporations of Myſteries in LONDON, yet being appointed to Chantries, Obits, &c. they were given to the King by the Statute Anno 1 Edw. VI. And then they gave their Judgments, that the Queen was intitled to certain Meſſuages in Controverſy; and others they left doubtful, and cleared ſome others.

	l.	s.	d.
I. William Calleys's Lands, being of the old yearly Rent of	26	06	08
The Patentees reckon'd them worth yearly	80	00	00
So as worth to be ſold at twenty Years Purchaſe	1600	00	00
II. Dolphin's Lands, old Rent yearly	04	06	08
Now worth to be let by Year	13	06	08
Worth to be ſold as before	266	13	04
III. William Brother's Lands, old yearly Rents	06	01	08
Now worth yearly	20	00	00
Worth to be ſold at that Rate	400	00	00
IV. Again, William Brother's Lands, of old yearly Rent	20	00	00
Now worth yearly	70	00	00
Worth to be ſold as before	1400	00	00
The Sum of the old yearly Rent of all the ſaid Lands and Tenements	56	15	00
The Sum of the Rents they would at that preſent lett for,	183	06	08
The Sum that the ſaid Tenements will be ſold for, after twenty Years Purchaſe, according to the ſaid new Valuation	3244	13	04

Deducting the annual Rents of 21 l. 2 s. purchaſed out of the ſaid Tenements by the ſaid Drapers Company.

BUT to make this Matter clearer, and to ſhew what the City pleaded for itſelf againſt theſe Concealers, this Plea, which they put in to the Lord Treaſurer, may deſerve to be conſidered.

1. IN the firſte Yeare of Kinge Edward the vjth, Chauntries, Colledges and divers Lands, Tenements, Rents, &c. employed in ſuperſtitious perſtitious Uſes, were geven to the Kinge, his Heires and Succeſſors.

2. In the ſame Statute are divers Clauſes, limitinge in what Caſes the Kinge ſhould have all or Parte, or Rente, or the Land it ſelfe.

3. Among other, there is a Clauſe to this Effecte; That all Profites emploied by Corporat ons of Miſteries, to ſuch ſuperſtitious Uſes, ſhould bee to the Kinge as Rentes-charge, whereunto all thoſe and other the Landes of ſuch Corporations ſhould be liable.

4. Hereupon the Lawe was then taken and put in uſe, that in ſuch Caſes where Landes were geven to ſuche Corporations, with lymitinge of Proffites to bee ſo ſuperſtitiouſly emploied, the Kinge ſhould not have the Landes, but the Proffites ſo employed, as Rentes-charge.

5. Upon this Statute, Commiſſions were directed for LONDON, to certen Perſons of the Kinge's Counſell learned, and other greate learned Men in Lawe, and ſuche as were of Parliament, and prevye to the makinge of the Lawe, and ſo beſte underſtanding the true Meaninge of the Statute.

6. Theſe Commiſſioners came to the Halles of LONDON, and there had all the Evidencies of the Companies laide before them, that they mighte accordinge to their Underſtandinge, ſett downe the Rightes of the Kinge.

7. They, accordinge to the ſaid Expoſition, did ſett downe and certifie thoſe Proffites to bee the Kinges, as Rents-charge, and did not entitle the Kinge to the Landes themſelves.

8. The Certificates were ſo accepted and allowed in the Kinges Courts, no doubte with the Adviſe of the Kinges Officers and Judges, and Counſel learned.

9. Theſe Rents were accordingly paied to the Kinge by the Space of certen Yeres, without Queſtion.

10. Afterward the Kinge in the thirde Yere of his Raigne, having Occaſion to levie a great Maſſe of Money, did require the Companies to purchaſe thoſe Rents, which they were lothe to doe; but beinge urged by their Dutie of Love and Service to the Kinge.

11. The Companies accordingly purchaſed thoſe Rents, for which they paied to the Kinge allmoſt xix thouſand Pounds.

12. For the raiſinge of this Somme of 18700 l. they were enforced to ſell divers of the ſaide Landes and Tenements, to paye for the reſte.

13. The Kinge moſt gratiouſlye meaninge that both the Companies and the ſaid Purchaſers ſhould reteyne bothe the ſaide Landes, and enjoye their ſaide Rentes accordinge to their Bargaynes, did in the fifth Yere of his Raigne, in a Seſſion of the ſame Parliament, paſſe an Acte of Parliament for their Aſſurance againſte Reverſions, Remainders and other Incombrances.

14. In the Preamble of the ſaid Acte is recited, howe the Kinge was by the ſaid Statute in the firſte Yere of his Raign, intituled to the ſaid Proffites, as Rents-charge, and not to the Landes in the Handes of thoſe Laye Corporations.

15. So by the Judgment of the Kinge, his Nobles, Judges, Counſaile learned, and whole Court of Parliamente, in the ſaid late Seſſion, who had bene alſo of the former Seſſion, and beſte underſtandinge their owne Meaninge, it was confeſſed and recited, that the Kinge in this Caſe, had the Rents, and not the Landes.

16. In the Bodie of the ſaid Acte is expreſſely ſett downe, that the ſaid Companies and Corporations ſhall quietly enjoye and holde both the ſaid Rents, Manors, Landes, Tenements and Hereditaments.

17. Accordinge to this Expoſition, they have ever ſince quietly enjoyed the ſame.

18. They have made ſondrye Sales, Grauntes, and Leaſes of their ſaid Landes and their Grauntees, have likewiſe done. Upon which Grauntes are ſundrye Warrantiſes, Bondes and Covenants.

19. Many of the ſaid Leaſes are become Portions of Widowes and Orphanes.

20. Many have beſtowed great Buildings upon the ſame, to the beautifying of her Majeſties Citie.

21. Many, but eſpecially poore Men, have their Habitations and onely Settlings of their livinge in the Premiſſes.

22. The Arrerages of the Profits are very greate Sommes.

23. The Companies having purchaſed the ſaid Rents, thoughe they mighte have turned them wholly to their owne profite, have emploied the ſame to publike uſes, viz. reliefe of poore Perſons, of Almes, Exhibitions, of Schollers in the Univerſities, Proviſions of Grayne and Armour, ſetting forth and Entertainments of Soldiers, and other Service of their Soveraignes from time to time.

24. Nowe of late there hath bene founde out a newe Opynion upon the ſaid Statute, contrary to the forſaid Expoſition and Underſtanding thereof. And it is ſuggeſted, that the Kinge is entitled to the ſaid Landes, and not to the Proffites; and ſo the ſaid Companies have neither Lande nor Rente, notwithſtanding their Purchaſes bona fide, and by the Judgment of the Kinge, his Councils learned and Parliaments.

25. Upon this Suggeſtion, Informations of Intruſions are brought againſt the ſaid Companies, all for concealed Landes.

26. Yf the ſaid Informations ſhould prevaile, and the ſaid newe Opynion holden for Lawe, infinite Inconveniences would enſue: Viz.

27. The Companys beinge bonæ fidei Poſſeſſores, and having truly purchaſed for greate Summes at the Kinges Requeſte, ſhould be defrawded of their lawful Bargains.

28. The Arrerages ſhould be to them a greater Burden then they are able to ſuſteyne.

29. The Warrantizes, Covenants, Bondes and Forfeitures, are an infinite Somme, and a moſte unſpeakable Confuſion.

30. The Charge of their Buildinge ſhould be wholely loſte.

31. Multitudes of Widowes and poore Orphanes ſhould be thruſte out of their Portions, and utterly undone.

32. The Teſtaments and Laſte Willes of many Perſons ſhould be utterly defeated.

33. Infinite Nombers of poore Inhabitants ſhould at an Inſtant be expelled from their Dwellings.

34. Marvellous Nombers of Poore ſuſteined by thoſe Revenues of Companies, ſhould be put from their Reliefe, and caſte to Miſerie, and burden of the State more than LONDON ſhall be able to ſuſteyne.

35. Many poore Schollers muſt loſe their Exhibitions.

36. The Companies ſhall not bee able to furniſhe hir Majeſties Service from Time to Time as they have done, and deſire to do; much leſſe to mainteyne the good contynuance of her Citie to her Majeſties Honour.

37. Finally, the Confuſion and Tumbling up of the whole State and Order of this Citie would be uncredible.

38. Her Majeſtie ſhould hereof, by the ſaid Suggeſters, receive little or nothinge, and in no waye comparable to the loſſe that her Highneſs may ſuſteyne in her Cities Diſabilitie.

It may therefore pleaſe your honourable Lordſhip of your Goodneſs,

To

To be favourable to the ſaid Citie and Companies in their moſt humble Petitions to her Majeſtie, and Council for their Relif, and to bemeane,

That her Majeſtie will allowe the ſaid true Interpretations of the Statutes, whereby they have hetherto enjoyed the ſaid Landes.

That her Majeſtie will commaunde ſuch Sutes, Informations, and Moleſtations, to ceaſe.

And that her Highneſs, if need ſhould be, will by her moſte gracious Graunts, or Royal Aſſente to an Acte of Parliament hereafter for that Cauſe, ratafie the Poſſeſſions of the ſaid Companies in playne and expreſse Forme.

FOR the Final compounding and adjuſting theſe Controverſies ariſing between the Patentees and Companies, certain Lords of the Council were made Arbitrators between them; whereof one of them was the Lord Treaſurer of England.

THE Offers of the Patentees before the Lords Arbitrators, April 4 1585, to the Companies, were as follow:

"THEY require the Inheritance and Fee-ſimple "of ſo much of the Lands in Queſtion, as they "ſhall be found to have Right unto by the Opi-"nions of the Judges: In conſideration whereof, "they will grant unto the ſaid Companies and "their Succeſſors for ever, out of the ſame Tene-"ments, ſo much Annual Rent, in Nature of a "Rent-Charge, as the ſame Tenements are now "demiſed for, and remit unto them beſides all "the Arrearages, without offering Diſturbance to "the Tenant for the Leaſe or Term of Years "granted them bona fide, before the Date of "the Patent.

"THEY demand 5000 l. and Leaſes in Rever-"ſion for an hundred Years, of all the Lands that "they ſhall have Right unto by the Opinions of "the Judges, remitting to the Companies abſo-"lutely the Inheritance of the Lands, the whole "Arrearages, and ſuffering the Tenants quietly "to enjoy their Eſtates

"THEY are contented to depart with a third "Part of ſo much Land as ſhall be thought to be "their Right by the Opinions of the Judges, re-"ſerving only to themſelves two Parts of the ſame "Land, being rated and caſt up according to the "Yearly Value in Rent, or as it is worth to be "Sold.

"WHERE it is alledged by the Companies, "that they paid for the Rent-Charges out of theſe "and other Lands 19000 l. or thereabouts; the "Patentees, to ſave the Companies from Loſs and "Prejudice, are contented to repay unto them ſo "much Money ratably for the Rents out of the "Lands to be adjudged for the Patentees, as it "ſhall appear they diſburſed for the ſame, re-"mitting unto them the Arrearages and mean "Profits: The ſaid Companies to reſign over to "the Patentees all their Intereſt, both in the ſaid "Lands and Rents ſo by them purchaſed; and "the Tenants to continue out their Leaſes made "bona fide before the Date of the Patent."

IN ſhort, the Rents in Adams's and Woodſhaw's Patent were compounded for in the Year 1587, which amounted to 227 l. 16 s. 10 d. The Mercers Companies Rents, which they had before compounded for the Queen, amounted to 196 l. 15 s. 3 d. and there remained much more to be compounded for.

KING James I. in the Seventh Year of his Reign, Anno 1609, for the Eaſe of theſe long complained of Grievances, ſet forth a gracious Proclamation, intituled, A Proclamation ſignifying his Majeſty's Pleaſure to confirm by all means the Eſtates of his Subjects againſt all Defects in their Aſſaurances, and all concealed Titles; importing, "That it had pleaſed him, as a Pledge "of greater Favour intended towards his Sub-"jects, than ever they received from his Prede-"ceſſors (ſetting apart all Conſiderations of Pro-"fit to himſelf, or Power over his good Sub-"jects in this kind) by this Proclamation to "declare, that he was fully reſolved, that all "his Subjects ſhould partake of this Grace, to "have all the Eſtates of their Lands confirmed "and made perfect, and to be diſcharged of all "mean Profits and Iſſues whatſoever heretofore "due, or acknowledged, notwithſtanding any "Defects, or Imperfections, &c.

BUT it was not before the 21ſt of K. James I. that this great Vexation of the Subject, by Reaſon of Concealments, was put a full and ſatisfactory End to; when an Act of Parliament was made againſt theſe Concealers, and all Pretences of Concealments whatſoever. The Contents of the ſaid Act was, "That the King, his Heirs, "and Succeſſors, ſhall not at any Time hereafter "ſue, impeach, queſtion, or implead any Per-"ſon or Perſons, Bodies Politick or Corporate, "for, or in anywiſe concerning any Manors, &c. "Secondly, or for or concerning the Revenues, "Iſſues or Profits thereof. Thirdly, or make "any Title, Claim, Challenge, or Demand, &c. "And that every Perſon or Perſons, Bodies Po-"litick or Corporate, their Heirs and Succeſ-"ſors, and all claiming from, by, or under them, "or any of them, for and according to the ſeve-"ral Eſtates and Intereſts, which they have or "claim to have in the ſame reſpectively, ſhall "hereafter quietly and freely have, hold, and "enjoy againſt his Majeſty, his Heirs and Suc-"ceſſors, &c. And furthermore, that every Per-"ſon or Perſons, Bodies Politick and Corporate. "their Heirs and Succeſſors, &c. ſhall quietly "and freely have, hold and enjoy all ſuch Ma-"nors, &c. as they now have, claim and enjoy, "&c. againſt all and every Perſon and Perſons, "their Heirs and Aſſigns, having, claiming, or "pretending to have any Eſtate, Right, Title, "Intereſt, Claim or Demand whatſoever, &c. "by Reaſon or Colour of any Letters Patents, "or Grants, upon Suggeſtion of Concealment, or "wrongful detaining, or not being in Charge, "or defective Titles, or by, from, or under any "Patentees, &c. of, or for which Manors, &c. "no Verdict, &c.

CHAP. X.

Of MERCHANTS and FOREIGN TRADE.

WE have not yet told all the Myſteries and Trades in LONDON, as diſtinguiſhed into their ſeveral Companies. There is yet another Rank of conſiderable Traders, whoſe Traffick and Commerce lieth chiefly abroad, and who employ Shipping; exporting the Products and Manufactures of England into foreign Parts, and importing the Commodities of foreign Growth hither. Theſe we call Merchants, in great Credit and Reputation among us, as well as of Wealth and Opulency. Of theſe there be divers Companies alſo, according to the Regions and Countries of the World to which they trade, being incorporated by divers of our Kings and Queens. But notwithſtanding they are of theſe Companies of Merchants, yet moſt of them are Freemen of the City, and belong to ſome one, either of the Twelve, or the other Companies of the Myſteries of LONDON. But firſt to ſpeak ſomething of the Trade in general:

WHICH is that which makes LONDON to be LONDON, that is, makes her flow with Wealth and Honour, and able to deſerve the Name of The Chamber of the Kings of England; and, finally, which influenceth the Proſperity and good Eſtate of the whole Nation: For ſhe is the Spring of Wealth, whence, as in ſo many Channels, it is derived throughout all the Parts of the Kingdom.

AND the Trade and Commerce of this City cannot but be great, if we conſider the vaſt Sum paid into the King's Treaſury, ariſing from the Cuſtoms, which amounts to about 2,000000 l. per Annum.

MOREOVER, its great Trade may be gueſs'd at by the Shipping lying at Anchor in the River Thames, inſomuch that paſſing down the ſaid River, the Maſts reſemble a Wood, or Foreſt, beſides thoſe conſtantly going out, or coming from foreign Parts of the known World. Its great Trade may alſo be computed by great Numbers of well furniſhed Shops and Warehouſes, and by the great Port and Splendor the Merchants and Tradeſmen live in; their Houſes richly furniſhed; their Apparel coſtly; their Equipage noble, and their Tables plentiful; and many of them honour'd by the Prince with Knighthood: Inſomuch, that LONDON may not improperly be reckon'd a Grand Magazine of Money, and Commodities of all Sorts, neceſſary for the Uſe and Pleaſure of Mankind. And for Horſes, Ammunition and all Sorts of Arms, it may be ſtiled a Storehouſe for War. And laſtly, for Men of all Ranks and Qualities, as Nobility, Gentry, Courtiers, Divines, Lawyers, Phyſicians, Merchants, Tradeſmen, Artificers, Seamen and Foreigners, is a vaſt Rendezvous of People.

FOR Exportation, this City (as the Storehouſe of the Kingdom) ſupplies other Nations with Lead, Tin, Copper, Iron, Pewter, (both wrought and unwrought) Shot, Guns, Allum, Seacoal, Saffron, Tallow, Hides, Leather, Calves-skins, Lamb-skins, Coney-skins, Hops, Corn, (when under ſuch a Price per Buſhel, as ſet by Act of Parliament) Pilchards, Herrings, Barrel-Cod, Poor Jack, Ling, Shoes, Stockings, Hats, Caps, Ruggs, Honey, Soap, Madder, Butter, Cheeſe, all Sorts of Haberdaſhery Wares; as, Gloves, Ribbands, Needles, Pins, Tape, &c. But, above all, with Cloth and Woollen Manufactures made into Serges, Norwich Stuffs, Says, Bayes, Perpetuanoes, Druggets, Kerſies, Raſhes, Cottons, Fuſtians, Flannels, Worſteds, Frizes, Peniſtons, &c. and that in vaſt Quantities. All which ſaid Commodities, with divers others, not here named, find great Vent beyond Seas.

THE Importations are alſo as conſiderable, the Merchants bringing in from all Parts of the Earth their Wares and Riches; which, after we have ſufficiently ſupplied ourſelves with, in great Quantities, to the Enrichment of the Importers, and others that deal in them, are again tranſported to other Countries. And as our American Plantations take off prodigious Quantities of all Sorts of the aforeſaid Commodities; that is, as well thoſe of our own Growth and Manufacture, as thoſe imported; ſo likewiſe by the Plantations, as Barbados, Jamaica, Virginia, New-England, Maryland, New-York, Carolina, Penſilvania, Bermudas, St. Chriſtopher's, Nevis, &c. no leſs Advantage is made by their Sugars, Tobacco, Indico, Ginger, Piamento, Cotton, Cocoa, Furrs, Fuſticks, and other Woods, which is enough, not only for our Nation, but to ſupply moſt Countries with.

THE Commodoties imported, are, Oils, Wines, Brandy, Spices, Fruits, as Raiſins, Currants, Figs, Prunes, and Prunelloes, Callicoes, Pintadoes of ſeveral Sorts, Saunders, Tamerines, Spicknard, Alloes, Myrrhe, Rhubarb, Opium, Druggs of ſundry Sorts, Precious Stones, Gold, Silver, Pearl, Amber, Frankincenſe, Caſſia, Camphire, Borax, Mirabolans, Benjamin, Rice, Chryſtal, Porcelane, Cabinets, Coffee, Tea, China-wares, Cornelian Rings, Musk, Civet, Ambergreaſe, Saltpetre, Grograins, Turkey Carpets, Silks, Raw and Wrought into ſeveral Fabricks, as, Taffaties, Sarſnets, Tabbies, Velvets and Pluſh, Diaper, Damask, Cambricks, Hollands, Ghentings, Muſlins, &c. alſo Caviare, Catchope, Potaſhes, Firs, Pipe-ſtaves, Oars, Deals, Clapboards, Cordage, Cable-yarn, Cotton, Cotton-yarn, Redwood, Log-wood, Fuſtick, Cedar, Pitch, Tar, Roſin, Iron, Steel, Wire, Laten, Elephants Teeth, Cochineal, Flax, Hemp, Wax, Tallow, Furrs, Goat-skins, Cordovants, Hides, Sturgeon, Camels-hair, Mohair, Camblets, Grograms, Yarn, Galls, Glaſs, Slood, Allum, Iſinglaſs, Hogsbriſtles, Beaver-wool, Woombs, Colours for Painters, Pictures, Paper, Rice, Anniſeeds, &c. And, indeed, all Commodities whatſoever find good Vent here.

FOR the Management of Trade in Shipping off and Landing Goods, and for the Entering of them, in order to the Payment of the King's Duties, there is a Cuſtom-Houſe in Thames-Street, below the Bridge, commodiouſly ſeated and ſupplied with Wharfs and Cranes for the Landing and Unlading of Goods; and as convenient within, by ſeveral Apartments for Offices belonging thereunto, beſides a very large and ſpacious Room, where the Clerks and others ſit for the Diſpatch of Buſineſs.

IN this Office of the Cuſtom-Houſe is a great Number of Officers employed, in their ſeveral Stations; many whereof have very large and noble Stipends, beſides other Advantages. The principal Officers are the King's Commiſſioners, who have the whole Charge and Management of all his Majeſty's Cuſtoms in all the Ports of England, as well as LONDON; and the Overſight and Ordering of the numerous Officers and Servants belonging to them. Theſe Commiſſioners, as ſeveral other Officers do, hold their Places by Patent from the King. Many others there are that are appointed by Warrant from the Lord Treaſurer, or the Lords Commiſſioners of the Treaſury for the Time being. The Officers alſo for the Out-Ports, ſome are Patent-Officers, and others Warrant-Officers, to a great Number. Of all which, ſee more Vol. I. Pages 303, 304, 305, 306.

OTHER great and neceſſary Appendages of Trade, are Weights and Meaſures, which by the Magna Charta, ought to be one and the ſame throughout the whole Kingdom; and thoſe muſt be according to the King's Standard, of Weights and Meaſures kept in the Exchequer, by a ſpecial Officer of the Houſe, called, The Clerk, or, Comptroller of the Market. And for the preventing of Deceits in ſo important a Matter, there are Officers appointed to inſpect the ſame; as the Jury of Inqueſts in the ſeveral Wards and Pariſhes of LONDON, and the like for the Parts without the City-Liberty. And in the County there is a Clerk of the Market, for the Verge of the King's Palace, (which ſome ſay is twelve Miles Circuit round the Court) whoſe Care is to look after the ſame: And to that End he keeps his Courts half-yearly, at convenient Places for the Inhabitants, who bring or ſend their Weights and Meaſures to be tryed, by the Standard kept by him. And what Weights and Meaſures are by the Jury found to be faulty, the Owners thereof are preſented, and fined by the ſaid Clerk, more or leſs, according to the Offence, or returned into the Exchequer; and accordingly to be eſtreated for the King.

BUT, within the City-Liberties, the Lord Mayor hath the looking after the ſame: And the like hath the Steward, or Head Bailiff, for the Liberty of Weſtminſter: And ſo for other Liberties, which by ſome old Privileges claim ſuch a Power, as St. Katharine's, &c.

CONCERNING the Weights and Meaſures uſed in LONDON, and all over England, and the particular Practice of weighing and meaſuring Commodities, Recourſe may be had to Books of Commerce, and Merchandize; and for a brief and ſuccinct Relation thereof, to The Preſent State of Great Britain.

AFTER the Union of England and Scotland, it was enacted, That the ſame Weights and Meaſures be uſed throughout Great Britain, as were before uſed in England: And the Standard of thoſe Weights and Meaſures (antiently kept in the Exchequer at Weſtminſter) to be kept alſo in thoſe Burghs in Scotland, to which the keeping of Weights and Meaſures are now in Uſe; and all the Standards to be ſent down to the reſpective Burghs from the Standard kept in the Exchequer.

THERE antiently was, and ſtill is a publick Ballance, or Beam, belonging to the City, for weighing of Commodities between Buyer and Seller, and a Maſter-Weigher appointed; and there was all poſſible Care uſed for the juſt keeping of this Beam: For which Purpoſe, theſe Orders of old Time may be taken Notice of.

Quia ſepius, &c. In Engliſh, "Becauſe often before theſe Times, many and ſundry Contentions have ariſen betwixt the Merchant-Strangers ſelling, and the private Merchants buying different Commodities of Averdupois, and Spices; which were weighed as well by the great Ballance as the ſmall; ſo that it was uncertain upon the Tract of Weighing; for the Weigher gave to ſome more, and to ſome leſs, as was reported.

"FOR the avoiding of ſuch Contentions, and for the removing them for the Time to come, it was agreed by Thomas Romayn, Mayor, and the Aldermen, and by the Aſſent of Luke de Haveryng, William de Byderik, Raſe le Balauncer, Peter Adrian, William Furneys, Roger de Arcubus, William le Botcler, William le Barber, John Godelinyng, Richard de Dorſete, Richard de Iſpania, Citizens and Merchants of LONDON; and John le Lang, Hildebrand de Nova Curia, Jacob Fiſh, John Pope, Richard Sware, Bertram de Coloign, John de Sterneberwe, &c. Merchants of Lombardy and Provence: THAT all the Merchandizes of Averdupois, as of Wax, Almonds, Rice, Copper, &c. and ſuch like, which are to be weighed by the Beam, for the Time to come be weighed equally: That the Weigher remove his Hands thence; ſo that he ſeem neither to the Seller, nor to the Buyer, to yield any Thing, or to take away more than what is juſt, after any Manner whatſoever. And that every Hundred of ſuch Groſſes of Averdupois, contain five ſcore and twelve Pounds; and every Hundred of ſmall Spices, viz. Ginger, Saffron, Sugar, Maces, and other of ſuch Sort, which are ſold by the Pound, contain fiveſcore and four Pounds. And it is enjoyned the Weigher, that he weigh no otherwiſe, under Pain of Impriſonment.

"AND moreover it is forbidden, that no Merchant, Stranger, or private Merchant, ſell or buy, but by the Ballance; and not by Detail, under Pain, &c. Yet always ſaving the State of the Lord the King, and of his Wardrobe, when they will weigh. That they weigh as before hath been uſed, if they pleaſe; until ſomething elſe be appointed by him and his Council. And this Ordinance was made on Monday in the Eve of St. Martin, Anno Regn. Reg. Edwardi fil. Reg. Edw. tertio.

"AND the Weigher ſhall receive, for the Uſe of the Sheriff, of every thouſand Weight weighed, 1 d. and the Weigher ſhall have for his own Labour of every hundred Weight a Farthing.

WHAT the antient Manner of appointing a Weigher of the great Beam was, may be ſeen by this Extract out of the Records of the Chamber; when one Andrew Goddard, 6 Edw. II. was put and ſworn in that Office.

"Memorandum, &c. Be it remembered, that on Wedneſday next after the Feaſt of St. Michael, Ann. Regni Regis Edw. fil. Edw. ſexto, came honeſt Men of the Commonalty, viz. of the Trade of the Pepperers, Corders, or Ropers, Farriers, or Ironmongers, Apothecaries, and of divers other Trades, who uſed to weigh their Commodities by Averdupois; and in the Preſence of Nicholas de Farndon, holding the Place of Mayor that Day (becauſe the Mayor [John de Giſors] was before the King's Council at Weſtminſter for the Buſineſs of the City) and of Richard de Gloceſter, &c. Aldermen, and of Richard de Welleford, one of the Sheriffs; they preſented one Andrew Goddard to the Office of Weigher of the great Ballance, whom they choſe for a good and faithful Man to do the ſaid Office, and prayed that the Sheriffs would admit him to the ſaid Office; and that they would let it to Farm, becauſe that it would

" would be to the great Detriment of the afore-
" ſaid Office.

" And the foreſaid Richard the Sheriff admit" ted the foreſaid Andrew: And the ſaid Andrew
" was ſworn, well and faithfully to weigh, as " well for the Seller as the Buyer, as well for the
" Poore as for the Rich, and all other who ſhall
" come to the Ballance; and at the End of every " Week ſhall render up to the Sheriff all the Pro" fit coming of the ſaid Office, &c. And the ſaid
" Weigher ſhall take of every Thouſand weighed
" 1 d. for the Sheriff, for the Farm of the City;
" and for his Labour for every Hundred, a " Farthing.

The antient Aſſize of Weights and Meaſures, were as follows:

Per Ordinationem totius Angliæ Regni fuit Menſura Dni. Regis compoſita. &c. " By the " Ordinance and Diſcretion of the whole King" dom of England, was the Meaſure of the Lord
" the King ſettled, viz. That the Engliſh Pen" ny, which is called Sterling, round, without
" Tonſure or Clipping, ſhall weigh 32 Grains of " Bread Corn, in the Middle of the Ear; and
" twelve Ounces make the Pound of LON-" DON, to wit, Twenty Shillings: And eight " Pounds of Sterlings make one Gallon, and
" eight Gallons make one Buſhel of LONDON:
" And eight Buſhels make a Quarter of LON-

Concerning the Abuſe of Weights in England, and the Complaint and Regulation thereof in Queen Elizabeth's Time, it may not be unworthy to be Noted: That in the 16th Year of that Queen, Information was given unto the Lord Treaſurer, Under-Treaſurer and Barons of the Exchequer, that the Weights uſed throughout the Realm were uncertain, and varying one from another; which tended to the Slander of the ſame, and Deceiving of many, both Buyers and Sellers: So that no true and juſt Standards were then extant for the Sizing of true Weights as in former Times had been uſed: Whereupon they cauſed nine Merchants, and twelve Goldſmiths of the City to come before them, and charged them to enquire upon their Oaths on certain Articles, containing in Effect, how many ſeveral Sorts of Weights were then lawfully in uſe within the Realm; and to try and conſider upon certain Weights delivered to them by the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, Under-Treaſurer and Barons: And out of thoſe Weights, and otherwiſe, with all their Diligence and Underſtanding, to ſize one certain of all Sort of Weights, lawfully to be uſed from thenceforth. And this Jury accordingly cauſed one certain Standard, as well of Troy-weight, as of Averdupois, and preſented it to the ſaid Treaſurer and the reſt, together with their Verdict in Writing under their Hands and Seals; declaring the ſeveral Poizes of the ſaid Standard, and their Proceedings touching the Charge that was given to them.

In the 25th of the ſaid Queen, ſome Perſons of good Underſtanding objected, and alledged unto the ſaid Treaſurer, that the ſaid Standards, ſo by the ſaid Jury ſized, were not agreeable with the antient Standards, allowed and appointed by the Laws of the Realm, nor were ſo profitable to the Commonwealth, as were convenient: Whereupon the Treaſurer cauſed another Jury of 18 Merchants, and 11 Goldſmiths, Citizens of the ſaid City, to appear before him in the Court of the Exchequer; and they were charged upon their Oaths to enquire and try, by all lawful Ways and Means that they could, whether the ſaid Standards ſo newly ſized, were agreeable unto the antient Standards, allowed and appointed by the Laws of this Realm; or whether they might be allowed and appointed to be the Standards, for the Sizing of all other the Weights of the Realm by, without Hurt to the Commonwealth. And for their better inſtructing and underſtanding of the Truth herein, the Lord Treaſurer and the reſt charged them to hear and conſider all ſuch Objections, as ſhould be made againſt the Sizing of the ſaid Weights, or the ſaid Verdict, by any Perſon or Perſons; and to hear and conſider the Anſwer of the former Jury, to the ſame, and their Reaſons for their ſaid Doings in that Matter: And if they ſhould find their Doings good and allowable, then to certify the ſame by Verdict in Writing under their Hands and Seals, and if not, then to cauſe other better and more true Standards of Weights to be ſized, according to the true Meaning of certain Articles to them delivered by the Treaſurer.

THESE Men at length did, upon Deliberation and Conferences had with the former Jury of the Matters given to them in Charge, ſay and preſent unto the Treaſurer, and the reſt upon their Oaths, as follows, viz. That the ſaid Standards or Weights ſo lately ſized by the former Jury were not agreeable to the antient Standard, according to their Judgment and Underſtanding; and that the ſame might not be allowed and appointed to be the Standard for the ſizing of all the Weights of the Realm, without Hurt to the Commonwealth of the ſame. And furthermore, they cauſed to be new ſized, according to the true Meaning of their Charge, ſo near as they could by their Diligence, Wit, Skill, and Underſtanding, two certain ſeveral Standards; that is to ſay, one which did agree with the true Proportion of the Pile, or Standard, remaining in Goldſmiths Hall, to ſize all other Troy Weights by, which had been of antient Uſe; and the other of Averdupois, which did agree with the true Proportion of the Queen's antient Standard of lvi lb. remaining in the Exchequer, as it ſeems, ſince the Time of King Edward III. to ſize all other like Weights by, and was in preſent Uſe. And that the ſame two Sorts of Weights might be uſed and continued for Standards to ſize all Weights by, throughout the Realm, without Hurt to the Commonwealth of the ſame, to their beſt Knowledge and Underſtanding. This laſt Verdict, and the ſeveral Standards, were preſented, and remained in the Court of Exchequer.

THESE ſame Standards ſized, and preſented by the laſt Jury, were found by the Lord Treaſurer and Barons, to be more agreeable with the Weights of long Continuance and Uſe in the Realm, and with the Standard allowed, appointed, and uſed, both for our Monies and Plate, of Silver and Gold, and ſuch like Things ſold by Weight, and agreeable alſo to the Laws of the Realm, for any material Thing that had been found or objected to the contrary.

HEREUPON the Queen, by the Advice of the Privy Council, and others of Knowledge and Experience, determined and ordained, that the ſaid firſt Verdict and Preſentment, and the Standards ſized and preſented with the ſame, ſhould be, and remain utterly fruſtrate, and of no Force. And that the laſt Preſentments, and ſaid Standards, ſized and preſented by the Jury of the ſame, ſhould be, and remain and continue and ſhould be holden, uſed, allowed, and accepted as lawful, good, true and profitable for the Commonwealth, to all Intents and Purpoſes: And ſhe commanded the Treaſurer to cancel and make void the firſt Preſentment, and the Standards offered by that Jury, to be broken; and that the latter Preſentment ſhould be entred upon Record in the Court of Exchequer; and the Standard, ſized and preſented by the Jury of the ſame, to be laid up and ſafely kept in that Court, and to be accounted, uſed, and followed as the Standard of the ſame Court, for the Sizing of all Weights of the Realm by; and to cauſe other like Weights and Standards to be made and ſized by the ſame; and to be ſent to the Cities and Towns, mentioned in the Statute touching Weights, made in the 11th Year of her Grandfather Henry VII. there to remain, and be uſed as true Standards and Weights, according to the Meaning of that Statute. And it was the Queen's further Will and Pleaſure, that the ſame Treaſurer, and the reſt, by the Queen's Proceſs and Proclamation, or otherwiſe by their Diſcretion, ſhould cauſe like Weights and Standards to be provided in every other Corporate and Market-Town, within the Realm of England and Wales; and to cauſe all other Weights, varying from theſe, to be forthwith deſtroyed, or made agreeable with theſe by the Clerks of the Market, or any other to be by them thereunto aſſigned: So that from henceforth there ſhould be but one Weight throughout all the Realm, according to the Laws and Statutes. This was one of the moſt worthy and uſeful Acts of that excellent Queen, for the Good of her Subjects.

Merchants of the Staple.

NOW follow the Companies of Merchants. The Merchants of the Staple, were the firſt and moſt antient Company of Engliſh Merchants, trading in Wools. They were incorporated by Edward III. in whoſe Time they had their Staple of Wools at Calais.

THEIR Arms were: Nebule of ſix Pieces, on a Chief a Lyon Paſſant. Supporters; two Rams. Their Motto; God be our Friend.

MERCHANTS ADVENTURERS.

THIS is the antienteſt Company of Merchants in England, who were incorporatad in the Reign of King Edward I. Anno 1296. They obtained Privileges of John Duke of Brabant, to eſtabliſh themſelves and their Trade, under Government in the City of Antwerp for thoſe Countries. Then King Edward III. finding them ſo ſettled, and obſerving the great Trade in Flanders, by the Clothings there made, did (when he joined League with the Flemings, againſt the King of France) encourage the Engliſh Merchants in theſe Parts, to deal with Clothiers of that Nation, to come over into England to erect their Looms and Manufactures: Which accordingly was performed; and took ſuch Effect, that the ſaid King, by the Advice of his Parliament, firſt prohibited the Exportation of Engliſh Wool; next by Privileges, and Acts of Parliament, invited Clothmakers and Workers, over into England; and at laſt ſo prevailed, that he prohibited all Foreign Cloth to be imported into the Realm.

AFTERWARDS King Henry IV. Anno 1406, taking Notice of the Service of this Company, in the Riſe and Increaſe of the Manufactures of Clothing, and the Benefit of the Government of the ſaid Company, did eſtabliſh the ſame by Grant under the Great Seal: Which ſaid Grant hath been confirmed, and enlarged by his Succeſſors (except Edw. V.) And Queen Elizabeth, in the ſixth Year of her Reign, being fallen in Breach with Philip the Second of Spain, Lord of the Netherlands, did, for the Iſſuing and Vent of the Clothing of this Land, (which daily increaſed) add, under the Great Seal, all the Parts of Germany, unto thoſe of the Netherlands, and authorized the ſaid Fellowſhip to treat with the Princes, Potentates, States and Cities of Germany, for a Staple, or Reſidence, and Privileges, as enjoyned in the Netherlands. Which ſo happily ſucceeded, as that the Clothing found ample Vent; firſt in England, then in Hamburgh; afterwards in Stade; and then again in Hamburgh; where it continues, being commonly called, The Hamburgh Company.

AND now the ſaid Fellowſhip have two Marts, the one in Dordrecht, or Dort, for the Netherlands; the other in Hamburgh, for all Germany; and is the chief Court of all the Fellowſhip, reſiding both in England, and beyond the Seas; and through their Integrity, fair Dealings, and excellent Laws and Cuſtoms obſerved amongſt them, they are of no ſmall Splendor in the Eyes of Men. Which ſaid Company is now much enlarged, all new Draperies being therein compriſed.

THIS Company is governed according to their Charter, by the major Part of the ſaid Fellowſhip reſiding beyond the Seas; where annually, in the Month of June, they elect out of the Fellowſhip, a Governor, and Deputy-Governors, for all their other other Reſidencies and Courts, both in thoſe Foreign Parts, and within England; as, at LONDON, York, Hull, Newcaſtle, &c. together with Aſſiſtants, Treaſurers, Chaplains, and other convenient Officers, for the Management of their Affairs, and preſerving the Government thereof, who keep Courts as often as their Occaſions ſerve.

THIS Company have by their Charter, ſeveral Privileges and Immunities granted unto them; as, Power of making Acts and Ordinances, for the good Government of the Trade, ſo as not repugnant to the Law of the Land. They have Power to implead, fine and puniſh Offenders; Power to hear and decide Cauſes; to uſe a Common Seal, and to bear a Coat of Arms.

THE Blazon of the Arms of this Fellowſhip is: Nebule of ſix Pieces, Argent and Azure. On a Chief quarterly, Or and Gules. In the firſt and fourth, two Roſes, Gules; and in the ſecond and third, a Lion of England. For their Creſt, on a Helmet and Wreath, a Pegaſus, Argent, charged on either Wing with two Roſes, proper. And for Supporters; two Pegaſus's, as the Creſt. Their Motto: Dieu nous donne bonne Adventure.

THE Commodities that this Company exports, are Clothes, dreſſed and dyed, of Gloceſterſhire, Somerſetſhire, Kent, &c. in great Quantities; alſo Lead, Tin, Oils, Worſted and Woollen Stockings, Silks, Fruits, Spaniſh Wines, &c. And for theſe and the like, they import Linens; as, Cambricks, Hollands, Lawnes, Diaper, &c. in great Abundance. Alſo Tapeſtries, Rheniſh Wines, Mather, Hoops, Laten, Sword and Knife Blades, Soap, Wire, Copper-Plates, Braſs, Steel, Iron, Quickſilver, Arms, Gun-powder, Hemp, Allum, Wax, Minerals, Salt, &c.

MERCHANTS of Ruſſia, call'd, Muſcovy MERCHANTS.

THE Company of Merchants of Ruſſia were firſt incorporated by the Letters Patents under the Great Seal of England, in the firſt and ſecond Year of the Reign of King Philip and Queen Mary, granted to the Right Honourable William Marquis of Winton, then Lord High Treaſurer of England; Henry Earl of Arundel, John Earl of Bedford, William Earl of Pembroke, and divers others of the Nobility, and to divers Merchants. And, amongſt other Privileges, the ſaid King and Queen granted to the ſaid Company and their Succeſſors, That the ſaid Company ſhould have and enjoy the ſole Trade to all the Lands, Ports and Rivers of the Emperor of Ruſſia; and to all other Lands, Ports, Creeks and Arms of the Sea, before the Adventure in the ſaid Letters Patents mentioned, not known, or by Engliſh Merchants and Subjects, by the Seas, not commonly frequented, lying Northward, North-Eaſtward, and North-Weſtward; with Prohibition to all others, not free of the ſaid Fellowſhip, unleſs by their Agreement, to trade to the Places aforeſaid, on Pain of forfeiting Ship and Goods, ſo trading, or traded with.

AND after twelve Years Trial, and upwards, of the good Services they did the Nation, the ſaid Company, and all the Franchiſes and Privileges, granted them by the ſaid Letters Patents, were confirmed by Act of Parliament, in the 8th Year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth.

AND upon further Trial of the Diligence of the ſaid Company, their Privileges were enlarged by King James I. by his Letters Patents, bearing Date the 30 Day of March, in the 11th Year of his Reign.

THE Company, ſince the Grant of the firſt Charter and Act of Parliament, have been at vaſt Charges in fitting out great Numbers of Ships, for the Diſcovery of New Countries and Iſles; and, in Fact, have diſcovered ſeveral Countries, the Trade whereof is of very great Advantage to this Nation, viz. Cherry Iſlands, Greenland, Nova Zembla, Davyes's Streights, Groneland, Hudſon's Bay, Newfoundland, the North of America; as will at large appear by the Journals kept by their Commanders in the ſaid Voyages, and regiſter'd in the High Court of Admiralty.

THE ſaid Company have always permitted all Perſons freely to trade to all the ſaid Lands and Places diſcovered, and to all other Places whatſoever, except to Narve and Archangel in Ruſſia. And permitted all Perſons, freely to export from England to the ſaid Port of Narve, all Goods whatſoever, and have taken but One per Cent. (according to the Value in the Book of Rates) for their Licence, on what Goods of the Growth of Ruſſia have been imported by others to England, from the ſaid Port of Narve; and the Company themſelves pay Half per Cent.

THE Company admitted into their Freedom the Sons of Freemen, and ſuch as had ſerved Apprenticeſhips to the Freemen of the ſaid Company, and any other Merchants whatſoever, paying the uſual Fine of 50 l. for their Admittance.

THESE Merchants have by their Charter many Privileges and Immunities granted them; as to raiſe Arms for the ſeducing of Countries, in the Limits aforeſaid, and to enter thereon, and ſet up Engliſh Standards; to make Acts and Ordinances for the Good of the ſaid Trade, provided they be not againſt the Law of the Nation: To puniſh Offenders by Fine or Impriſonment; to uſe a Seal, and to bear a Coat Armour, which is thus blazoned:

Barry wavy of ſix Pieces, Argent and Azure; over all a Ship under Sail, proper, having on each Sail a Croſs of England between three Beazants. For their Creſt, on a Helmet and Wreath, a Lizard's Head erazed proper, gorged with a Crown, Gules, And for their Supporters, on the Dexter Side, a Lizard; and on the Siniſter Side, an Apres, both proper, and gorged with Crowns, Gules. Their Motto; God be our Guide.

THE Commodities by them exported, are Cloths of all Sorts, both dreſſed and dyed, Kerſies, Bays, Cottons, Fuſtians, Perpetuanoes, Norwich Stuffs, Lace, Thread, Lead, Tin, Pewter, Allum, Copper, much defective Wines and Fruits, not fit to be ſpent in this Kingdom; together with moſt Sorts of Engliſh Commodities. And for theſe and the like they import Pot-aſhes, Cordage, Tar, Tallow, Cable-yarn, Coarſe and Fine Linen Cloth, Bees-wax, Iſinglaſs, Hides of ſeveral Sorts, both tanned and raw; Hogs-briſtles, Linſeed, Slood, Beaver-wool, and Combs; ſeveral Sorts of rich Furs, Seal-skins, Rhubarb, Train-oil, Caſtorum, Agarick, Flax, Hemp, Caviare, Stock-fiſh, Cod-fiſh, Salmon, &c.

THIS Company is governed by a Governor, four Conſuls, and twenty-four Aſſiſtants, who are annually choſen out of the ſaid Fellowſhip, on the firſt of March, and keep their Courts for the Negotiation of their Affairs, monthly, or as Occaſion requires. The uſual Place of Meeting was in a large Room, in the old Eaſt-India-Houſe in Leadenhall-ſtreet.

THIS Company was ſettled and eſtabliſhed by Queen Mary, Anno 1555; and the Patent bore Date February 6. The firſt Governor was Sebaſtian Gabota, an antient Gentleman, ſprung from Genoa in Italy, but had lived long in England, and skill'd very well in Maritime Affairs.

BUT King Edward VI. firſt opened the Way of a Trade, by his Letters to the Emperor of Moſco, in May 1553, which that Emperor anſwered, granting the Engliſh a free Trade into his Dominions.

A few Years ago, an Act was made for enlarging the Ruſſia Trade, Tobacco being allowed by the Czar Peter of Muſcovy, (who was perſonally in England) to be imported into his Country, which was never allowed before. This Company had aſſumed a Power to ſet what Fine they pleaſed, upon thoſe that ſhould deſire the Freedom of their Trade, which uſually was 50 l. a Thing complained of, as injurious both to the Company itſelf, and to the Trade into thoſe Parts; the Company being obſerved very much to decay, and the Trade becoming inconſiderable; which otherwiſe was of very great Conſequence to the Engliſh Nation, in reſpect of Shipping, and Naval Stores. This Matter coming before the Parliament, Nathaniel Tench, Eſq; Governor of the Eaſtland Company, a Merchant of great Knowledge and Experience, ſhewed this at large before the Parliament in the Houſe of Lords, in order to gain a Liberty of Trade into Ruſſia, to the ſaid Eaſtland Merchants and others. And whereas it was pretended, by thoſe of the Ruſſia Company, that this would be to infringe the Privileges granted to them by Act of Parliament; he anſwered, that no ſuch Thing was intended, but that the ſaid Ruſſia Company might ſtill remain as they were before; only that the Trade might be enlarged, by abating the exceſſive Fines for Licence to Trade, from 50 l. or what they pleaſed to impoſe, to 5 l. And with this the Parliament was ſatisfied, and enacted the Fine at 5 l. and no more; by which Means that Trade to Ruſſia is very conſiderably advanced already: For whereas before there were not above four, five, or ſix Ships at the moſt, ſent into thoſe Parts in one Year; now there go ſixty or ſeventy Sail yearly.

IT was obſerved, that the Ruſſia Merchants, when the Cauſe came before the Parliament, had the learnedeſt Lawyers in the Land to manage it on their Side; the Engliſh Company had none but Mr. Tench, their Maſter; who notwithſtanding anſwered diſtinctly all the Lawyers Arguments, ſo fully and ſatisfactorily, and ſpoke to the Matter with ſo much Evidence and Conviction, that he carried the Cauſe, and that with much Applauſe to himſelf, and Admiration of all that heard him.

ABOUT the Year 1698, the Emperor of Ruſſia, (ſince ſtiled rhe Czar) being in England, there were ſome Merchants in LONDON, who entered into a Treaty with him, for a free Importation of Tobacco into his Dominions; and they paid him 12,000 l. immediately upon ſigning the Contract; and it coſt them above 1000 l. more in other Charges to obtain it. And this they did before one Half of the Sum was ſubſcribed that was intended for a Stock ſufficient to carry on the Trade.

TO this ſo gainful a Traffick for England, this Ruſſia Company put an Impediment, by requiring ſuch large Sums for Licences to trade thither, having Power otherwiſe to ſeize their Ships and Goods: Therefore they laboured for an eaſy Admiſſion into the Freedom of this Company, by Means of a Bill, then depending in the Houſe of Commons, for enlarging the Trade to Ruſſia: But this being not for ſome Time obtained, ſeveral fell off; and the whole Burthen of this Undertaking, fell upon the Shoulders of 70 or 80 Perſons, who were the firſt Subſcribers. Theſe thought it needful to ſend ſome Tobacco; thereby to ſhew their Willingneſs to comply with that Part of the Contract, leſt the Czar ſhould take an Advantage by their Neglect; and ſo they might loſe the 12,000 l. paid him, and all their other Charges, and the Nation the Advantage of that Liberty, which had been ſo deſired. Therefore they ordered about 11,000 Pounds of Virginia Leaf, to be ſent from Holland thither; and more of Roll and Cut Tobacco.

IN fine, there being afterwards another Seſſions of Parliament, they ſhewed, that if they could not obtain their Freedom of the Ruſſia Company upon moderate Terms, they ſhould not be able to comply with their Contract with the Czar, but muſt be forced to throw up their Patent, or diſpoſe of it to the Dutch, on the beſt Terms they could.

AT this Time they ſet forth ſome of the Advantages this Nation might enjoy, by encouraging the Tobacco Trade to Ruſſia; as, that Firſt, We might probably in a ſhort Time vend in Ruſſia 5000 Hogſheads a Year; which might yield there 120,000 l. over and above the Czar's Cuſtoms; and would be ſo much new Addition to the Nation's Stock. Secondly, The Spinning and Manufacturing that Tobacco here in England, would give new Employment to above 1500 People, beſides thoſe that would be employed in Planting, Packing, &c. of it in Virginia; and Ships and Seamen to bring it thence. Thirdly, the Manufacturing of it here, and other petty Charges, upon 5000 Hogſheads, will amount to upwards of 26,000 l. which will be diſtributed amongſt our labouring People. Fourthly, the carrying off ſo much Tobacco to Ruſſia, and bringing Returns from thence for it, will give a new Employment to a great Number of our Ships and Seamen. Fifthly, his Majeſty's Revenues will be encreaſed between 5 and 6000 l. per Ann. by one Half of the Subſidy that will not be drawn back; beſides, 'tis certain the greater Vent we have for Tobacco here, the better Price it will yield; and conſequently encourage the Planting of more in Virginia; where there is Land enough to produce more Tobacco than all Europe can conſume. And Sixthly, if this Trade be encouraged, we ſhall bring the greateſt Part of our Naval Stores from Ruſſia in our own Shipping; whereas now we have almoſt all thoſe Stores brought us from Sweden, and in Swediſh Ships; by which this Nation ſuffers ſeveral Ways. As we give the Swedes a greater Price for Naval Stores, than they can be bought for in Ruſſia, the Nation loſeth all the Freight we pay the Swedes. The Swedes take little of our Manufactures, &c.

Mr. Strype adds this Paſſage, that when the late Sir Gilbert Heathcote, then Mr. Heathcote, Maſter of the Eaſtland Company, was at a Meeting of that Company with the Czar in LONDON, and knowing how averſe the Prieſts in Ruſſia were to the Taking of Tobacco, he mentioned it as like to prove an Impediment to the Trade in his Dominions; but the Czar reply'd, He would do well enough with them when he went home.

The Eaſtland Company: ſometime called Merchants of ELBING.

THE Company of Merchants trading to the Engliſh Country, called commonly in Queen Elizabeth's Time, the Merchants of Elbing, becauſe there they firſt ſeated themſelves, became incorporated by the ſaid Queen Elizabeth. Elbing oweth a great Ptrt of its Beauty and Splendour, and the great Reſort of People to it, to the Commerce and Trade of the Engliſh. In the ſaid Town is yet to be ſeen, in a publick Hall, the Coat of Arms of an Engliſh Agent, as a grateful Remembrance of the Trade brought thither by this Nation: But the Place having but a ſmall River coming up to it, and being found not ſo commodious as other Places in thoſe Parts, the Merchants have long ſince left it, and removed themſelves to Dantzick, Koningsburg, Riga, and other Towns.

THIS

THIS Company (by the Name of Governor, Aſſiſtants and Fellowſhip of the Merchants of England) were firſt incorporated by Queen Elizabeth's Charter, dated Auguſt the 17th, Anno Regni 21, with Liberty to Trade from any of her Majeſty's Dominions through the Sounds, into the Realms, Dominions. Dukedoms, Countries, Cities and Towns of Norway, Sweden, Poland, Littaw, Lieſland, and Pruſſen, with the Territories of the ſame; alſo Pomerland from the River of Odera Eaſtwards, with Ryga, Revel, Konningsburgh, Elbing, Brownsborough, Dantzick, Copenhagen, and Elſenore, Finland, Gotland, Ewland, and Burntholme, or any of them; the Narve excepted, that Port being within the Charter of the Ruſſia Company.

AND by the Charter, the ſaid Eaſtland Company, and the Hamburgh Company, may ſeverally Trade with all Denmark: The Trade to Copenhagen and Elſenore, and with Mackleburgh, Jutland, Sleſia, Moravia, Lubeck, Wiſmer, Roſtock, Stetin, Strael-ſound, and the whole River of Odera.

THIS Company was confirmed by the Charter of King Charles II. dated the 20th of February, Anno Regni 13.

BUT by a late Act of Parliament, Norway and Sweden were left free for any to Trade to, though not of this Company.

THIS Company is found very advantageous to the Publick, by their great Trade, in tranſporting of our own Commodities, and importing great Quantities of rich Merchandizes. Our Commodities exported are Woolen Cloths, Kerſies, Sergies, Perpatuanes, Norwich Stuffs, Cotton, Lead, Tinn, Pewter, Hats, Stockings, together with ſeveral other of the Southern and Eaſtern Commodities: And for theſe they import Deals, Maſts, Timber, Oars, Clapboards, Balks, Bomſpars, Cantſpars, Pipeſtaves, Wainſcot and Quarters; alſo Flax, Hemp, Linnen-Cloth, Cordage, Cable-Yarn, rich Furs, Bees-Wax, Sturgeon, Stockfiſh, with ſeveral other Commodities.

THE Atchievement belonging to this Company is thus blazoned: Or, on a Point wavy, a Ship under Sail proper: On a Chief Gules, a Lyon, Paſſant Gardant. And for their Creſt; on a Helmet and Wreath of their Colours an Ark, on which ſtands a Raven with diſplayed Wings, or as ſome vary it, an Elke proper. The Supporters are; two Bears Sable. Their Motto; Deſpair not.

FOR the Management of the Affairs of this Company, they have a Governor, Deputy Governor, and Court of Aſſiſtants, conſiſting of 24, annually choſen out of the ſaid Fellowſhip in the Month of October, viz. the firſt Wedneſday after Michaelmas-Day; and have their Meetings to keep Courts Monthly, or as Occaſion requires, at Founders Hall in Lothbury.

Nathaniel Tenche, Eſq; a very grave, intelligent and worthy Citizen and Merchant, who had fined for Alderman; was for many Years their Governor, and ſo remained to his Death.

WHILE he was Governor, there benig an Endeavour to lay open the Trade of the Woolen Manufacture to every one that would, ſo injurious to this as well as other incorporated Societies of Merchants; he wrote and publiſhed in the Year 1689, a very rational Tract againſt it, tho' modeſtly without his Name ſet to it; it was Entitled, Reaſons, humbly offered by the Governor and Aſſiſtants, and Fellowſhip of Eaſtward Merchants, againſt the giving ageneral Liberty to all Perſons whatſoever, to export Engliſh Woolen Munufacture, whither they pleaſe: It was occaſioned by a dangerous Miſapprehenſion, that a general Liberty to all Perſons to export the ſaid Manufactures where they pleaſed, would conduce much to the Intereſt of the Nation, under a Suppoſition that it would encreaſe the Vent thereof. The Error whereof this learned Merchant ſhewed, by undertaking to prove theſe Aſſertions, or Affirmations:

I. That a general Permiſſion of Exportation, as before mention'd, would be a Means to debaſe the Reputation of our Engliſh Manufacture, and conſequently render it leſs deſirable and fought after abroad.

II. It would overthrow all the incorporated Companies of Merchants in England, as the Hamburgh and Ruſſia, (tho eſtabliſh'd by Parliament) the Eaſtland, the Turky, the Eaſt-Indian, and the African; the Miſchief conſequential upon which would be as followeth: Firſt, The Trade of England would thereby be loſt, and come to be all, or at leaſt the greater Part, in the Hands of Foreigners; as it formerly was before the ſaid Companies were erected. Secondly, All the Privileges obtained by the ſaid Companies from the Princes, States and Governors of the Places of their reſpective Reſidences, (which are of great Advantage to the vending of our Engliſh Manufactures) would be utterly loſt. Thirdly, The Navigation of England by degrees would be very much impaired and diſcouraged.

III. And laſtly, A general Permiſſion would be ſo far from anſwering the End propoſed by it, of vending a greater Quantity of our Woolen Manufacture than was before; that in all Probability it would in the End prove the Cauſe, and be the Occaſion of vending a great deal leſs,

IN this Treatiſe againſt a general Permiſſion of Traders, the Writer ſet down what he found recorded under Queen Elizabeth, viz. That the Engliſh in her Reign, had for a good while together a profitable Trade, and good Sale for their Engliſh Manufactures, at Narve in the Baltick-Sea, until at length in the Year 1565, a Number of ſtraggling Merchants, and unskilful Traders, reſorted thither out of this Realm, with their Commodities; by which Means in a little while the Trade, which before was good, was utterly ſpoiled: Inſomuch that many of them went about the Town with Cloths upon their Arms, and a Meaſure in their Hand; and ſo Sold the ſame by the Arſine (a Meaſure of that Country) to the great Embaſing of that excellent Commodity, the Diſcredit of our Nation, and the final Impoveriſhment and utter Undoing of the ſame ſtraggling Merchants. All which being made known to her Majeſty, and her Privy-Council, Order was taken at the next Patliament, that the Town of Narve, (then under the Juriſdiction of the Moſcovite) ſhould be compriſed within the Charter of the Ruſſia Company; to prevent the like ill Kind of Dealings for the future, and making vile the principal Commodity of the Nation: And it was ſo done accordingly by Act of Parliament.

THIS Gentleman was very inſtrumental in procuring the Act for the Enlargement of the Trade of the Ruſſia Company, the Bill for which ſtuck a great while, the ſaid Company oppoſing it vigorouſly, as infringing their Charters and Privileges: And who, after a full Hearing of their learned Lawyers in the Houſe of Lords, made a Speech himſelf in Perſon, in Anſwer to all their Objections; and that with ſuch an Evidence and Conviction of the Publick Benefit of this Bill that lay before them, that he carried the Cauſe, and the Bill paſſed. Which Speech, communicated by Sir Fiſher Tenche, Bart. his Son, to Mr. Strype, was to this Tenor:

I Shall not trouble your Lordſhips with a Repetition of what was argued by the earned Council at the laſt Hearing before your Lordſhips, no further than is neceſſary to lead your Lordſhips to a better Underſtanding of what we ſhall further alledge on the Behalf of the Bill.

THE

THE Intent of the Bill is for the enlarging of Trade to Ruſſia, a Trade moſt certainly as capable of an Enlargement, as any Trade that is driven out of England: Whether we reſpect the Greatneſs of the Czar's Dominions, or the preſent Management of that Trade, in the Hands of thoſe few Perſons (being not at moſt above ten or twelve) who are at preſent the Managers of it.

THE Largeneſs of the Czar's Dominions is known to all, as alſo that the Coldneſs of the Climate, is proper for the Vent of our Woollen Manufactures, and the Commodities of our Plantations.

THAT thoſe few Perſons that have now the Trade, by Virtue of their Charter, neither do, nor can carry it on, by many Degrees, to the Extent it will admit, it is evident; for their Stock (tho' ſome of them are able Men) is no Way adequate to the carrying that Trade to its full Extent. And that they do not, appeareth by the great Difference of the Shipping that is employed thither by us and our Neighbours: For in the Year 1697 there were at Archangel only 50 Sail of Ships; of which there were but 6 or 7 Engliſh at the moſt. And whereas they alledge, that the Trade at preſent is carry'd on to its full Extent, and bring for Proof, that they have more Goods there than they can vend, it is no more than what all Merchants have where-ever they Trade: And doth from hence ariſe, not that the Country will not take off more Goods, but that they being few in Number, can agree together to ſet what Price they pleaſe upon them.

BUT I ſhall not further inſiſt upon this, but confine myſelf to two Arguments which the Council either wholly omitted, or ſlightly inſiſted upon, and then endeavour to remove that great Objection they ſeem to inſiſt ſo much upon; as, that the preſſing of this Bill is an Invaſion of their Property, veſted in them by Act of Parliament; which we doubt not to prove to your Lordſhips is no ſuch Thing.

THE firſt Argument we do inſiſt upon, is the Matter of the Petition, as to the late Contract made with the Czar, to import Tobacco into his Dominions.

THERE being a Bill depending in the Honourable Houſe of Commons, to open and enlarge the Ruſſia Trade, upon an eaſy Admiſſion, divers Merchants and others took the Opportunity of the Czar's being in England, to attain, if poſſible, what had been long deſired; but could as yet, by no Endeavours, be obtained, viz. the ſole Trade of carrying Tobacco to Ruſſia, and ſelling it there. A Privilege it is of that vaſt Advantage to this Nation, that it would take up too much of your Lordſhips Time to ſet it forth in its ſeveral Branches. For, beſides the venting of ſo great a Quantity of our own Growth and Manufactures (for I look upon the Growth of our Plantations to be equally ſuch as what grows here in England) it will contribute to the enlarging of our Navigation, both as to the importing from one Plantation ſo great a Quantity over and above what is now imported for England, as the large Extent of Ruſſia will take off; ſo likewiſe by Conſequence, the bringing of a much greater Quantity of Goods from Ruſſia, as the Produce of it; which being, as we call them, Gruff Goods, will take up a very great Quantity of Shipping to bring them hither; and thereby very much enlarge our Navigation; which renders it in every Reſpect very advantageous to this Nation.

To which may be added, the Manner how this great Advantage to the Nation was obtained. In which may be obſerved, that what in all Probabiſity could not have been obtained by an induſtrious Application, in a ſplendid Embaſſy to a great Expence, was flung into our Laps by a Capricio of Fortune. For, may we not well ſtile it ſuch, to ſee an Emperor of Ruſſia here in England? and that what was endeavoured by our Neighbours with great Application, while he was with them, and was denied them, was by the Means of his Perſonal Eſtimation and Reſpect to one preſent, graciouſly conceded to us.

MY Lords, when our late King Charles II. ſent the Earl of Carliſle thither in a ſplendid Embaſſy, but to regain the Privileges the Engliſh Nation formerly had there; notwithſtanding all the Expence and the wiſe Conduct of that noble Lord, he was forced to come away Re infecta. By which it appears, that the Ruſſes are not ſo eaſy in their Conceſſions, as ſome may think. So that it may be truly ſaid in this as in another Caſe, What Art could not, Chance hath obtained. And if by the flinging out of this Bill, this Opportunity ſhould be now loſt, in all Probability the greateſt Induſtry and Application would never re-obtain it.

To which may be added, the Danger thereby of loſing our whole Trade for Ruſſia. For the Czar, by his Actions, ſeems to be a Perſon of Humour, (if we may have Leave to ſpeak ſo of ſo great an Emperor) and we all know his Power is Deſpotick: His Will is his Law. So that ſhould he be diſappointed in what he believes is ſo fully agreed upon, he would look upon it as a Breach of Faith. And he who values himſelf ſo much upon his Word, would thereby be ſo far diſtaſted, as to forbid the whole Commerce of England with Ruſſia: Which would not only be a great Advantage to our Neighbours, but an irreparable Loſs to England in general; but in a more particular Manner to thoſe Gentlemen, who now labour ſo much to have the Bill flung out; but, as we humbly conceive, do not ſufficiently apprehend the Conſequence thereof.

Then he proceeded to Arguments, drawn from the Advantages ariſing to our Navigation by the Opening and Enlargement of this Trade.

THAT the Wealth and Strength of this Kingdom is ſupported by our Navigation, no Man will deny, and conſequently that whatſoever doth contribute to the rendring that moſt ſecure and eaſy, is our national Intereſt. That the opening and enlarging this Trade (which is the Purport of the Bill) doth contribute to the ſecuring our Navigation, and rendring it moſt ſecure and eaſy, will appear in what followeth.

THAT we have not thoſe Commodities, of Hemp, Pitch, Tarr, Maſts and Plank (which are abſolutely neceſſary to the carrying on of our Navigation) of our own Growth, no Man will deny. That we are at preſent ſupply'd with them from Sweden and Denmark, is evident: And that the ſame Commodities may be had, both in greater Quantities, and at eaſier Rates from the Empire of Ruſſia, if there were Need, we are ready to make out by Proofs.

THAT the preſent Ruſſia Company, doth not bring home theſe Commodities (ſome little Quantity of Hemp excepted) is likewiſe clear by their Entries at the Cuſtom-Houſe: Whereas the Hollanders and Hamburghers bring home every Year great Quantities, both of Maſts, Pitch and Tarr.

THE laſt Year the Dutch had in their firſt Shipping, two Ships laden of Tarr, and their ſecond Shipping, Maſts; but we none at all.

WHEREAS our Merchants, being but ten or twelve, having other Commodities, which yield them more certain Profit, and are of themſelves ſufficient to employ all their Stock, do wholly neglect the bringing home of theſe neceſſary Commodities for the Support of our Navigation. And by ſuch their Neglect, have given our Neighbours Opportunity to engroſs them; and to make Contracts with the Ruſſes for the ſole Trade in them. Which, as it is at preſent, very detrimental to this Nation, ſo in Time may become fatal to it.

For theſe neceſſary Commodities of Pitch, Tarr, Hemp, Maſts and Plank, being to be had only from Denmark, Sweden, and Ruſſia, if there ſhould at any Time happen to be a War between the two Northern Crowns and this Kingdom, that, by Conſequence, muſt neceſſarily obſtruct our being ſupplied with them from thence. And then we have no Place left us, to be ſupplied with thoſe Commodities, but Ruſſia. In which Exigency, if this Bill doth not paſs, we are clearly in the Hands of ten or twelve Perſons for the ſaid Supplies; who have already by the Neglect of Trade in thoſe neceſſary Commodities, given our Neighbours Opportunities of engroſſing them; and if they would then bring them home, could not. But were that Obſtacle removed, if ſuch an Exigence ſhould happen, as a Difference with the Northern Crowns, Could it be expected, that ſo few Perſons, as are at preſent in that Trade, with their ſmall Stocks, ſhould ſupply this Kingdom with naval Stores, ſufficient to ſupport our Navigation? So that it appears, it is abſolutely neceſſary for our Self-Preſervation, that the Bill paſs, and the ſaid Trade be opened and enlarged, thereby to ſecure us of thoſe neceſſary Proviſions for the Supply of our Navy, in Caſe of any War with the Northern Crowns.

To which Neceſſity I ſhall add one Word more of Conveniency, as to this Part of the Argument, and then conclude it.

We at preſent labour under ſeveral Difficulties in our Commerce with Sweden. [Here the Paper of Grievances was read.] And we are now upon a Commercial Treaty with the Crown. If they come to underſtand, that by the Paſſing of this Bill, and Opening the Ruſſia Trade, we are not under the ſame Dependencies upon them for our Naval Stores, as we hitherto have been, but that we can fetch them from Ruſſia, and upon eaſier Terms than we do from them, they will then court our Friendſhip, and give us much eaſier Terms of Trade in our Commercial Treaty now on foot, than otherwiſe they will. But if they find that by the Rejecting of this Bill we are ſtill under the ſame Dependencies upon them for thoſe neceſſary Commodities, as we hitherto have been, they will then continue thoſe Hardſhips upon us, if not lay greater.

Then he came to anſwer to the Objections of Property. This Bill doth not invade their Property, ſince it leaves them their Incorporation intirely. They are ſtill, notwithſtanding this Bill, an incorporated Company; their Laws, Rules, and Regulations, as to Trade, are intirely preſerved to them; no Man can come into that Company, notwithſtanding the Bill, but muſt come to them for their Admiſſion, muſt take the Oath of the Corporation, muſt ſubject themſelves to their Laws and Rules of Trade, muſt pay what Impoſitions they ſhall think fit to lay upon the whole Community, and thereby bear all Burthens relating to the Company, equal with themſelves. True it is, that if this Bill did give Liberty to a free Trade thither, it might be conſtrued an Invaſion of their Property: But that is not the Caſe here; and ſo far it cannot be denied, their Property is preſerved to them, notwithſtanding the Bill paſſes.

But then it is objected, That this Bill is to compel them to admit Perſons into their Freedom at the Fine of Forty Shillings; whereas they have by their Charter a Liberty, if they pleaſe, to exclude all Admiſſion into their Freedom, ſave by Service and Patrimony, (as they not long ſince did by a By-Law of their own) or to ſet the Price of Admiſſion at Sixty Pounds, (which they alledge they do at preſent); and this, they ſay, is an Invaſion upon their Property. To which we anſwer,

That their being oblig'd by the Bill to admit Perſons into their Freedom barely in itſelf, can by no Reaſon be ſaid to be a Violation of their Property, ſince their Act of Parliament doth direct them (if not enjoyn them) to that.

So that as before, a bare Obligation to an Admiſſion cannot be ſaid to be a Violation of their Property.

But then they object further, That the ſetting of their Fine of Admiſſion at Forty Shillings, as the Bill doth, is a Violation of their Property. To which we anſwer,

That ſince there is no Sum ſpecified, as the Fine for Admiſſion, ſetting it at 40 s. is no more a Violation of their Property, than the ſetting it at 60 l. Becauſe the Difference of the Sums can no way alter the Matter, as to their Property. For if the ſetting of the Fine be the Violation, whether it be 40, 50, or 60 l. the Violation is equal. But foraſmuch as the Terms of Admiſſion are not in the leaſt expreſſed either in their Charter or Act of Parliament, the adjuſting of the Fine of Admiſſion, as is done in this Bill, can by no Means be ſaid to be a Violation of their Property.

True it is, That if their Fine of 50 or 60 l. had been expreſſed in their Act of Parliament, we muſt have admitted, that the leſſening of it ſo little might have been interpreted a Violation of their Property. But this is not the Caſe here, the Act of Parliament hath veſted them in a Property of no particular Sum, but a bare Power of Admiſſion; which this Bill doth no way violate.

If they can pretend to any Thing of a Property in this Buſineſs of Admiſſion, they muſt alledge that they have a Property to an arbitrary deſpotick Power; to admit, or not to admit, when they pleaſe; either to exclude all Purchaſers, as they have confeſſed they did lately by a By-Law of their own; or to ſet what Sums they will upon them, either 50 or 60 l. or, if they pleaſe, 500 l. For being not reſtrained by a Law, they may ſet it at what they pleaſe. But we hope your Lordſhips are of Opinion, they have no arbitrary deſpotick Power veſted in them, as a Property, by Act of Parliament; or if there was any ſuch Thing, your Lordſhips would think it not only convenient, but neceſſary to regulate it. For, we humbly conceive it cannot well be allowed, that the Parliament would ever veſt an arbitrary Power in any Company of Men whatſoever by Way of Property: But the Conſtruction ariſing from the not expreſſing the Fine in the Act of Parliament, doth certainly lie much fairer on the contrary Side. For we appeal to your Lordſhips, which is the moſt rational Conſequence from the not expreſſing the Fine, either that (as they would interpret it) they may lay what Fine they pleaſe, or (as it is moſt rational to believe) they ſhould lay none at all, but admit gratis. For, by their having it in their Power to lay what they pleaſe, they may elude the Act by laying it ſo high as none will come to them. By the other, of admitting gratis, the Intention of the Act is ſecured. And which of theſe two Conſtructions are moſt rational, we ſubmit to your Lordſhips.

But this, without Controverſy, is clear and evident, that no Fine being preſcribed, either in their Charter, or their Act, it is in the Power of this preſent Parliament, without Violation of Property, to adjuſt the Fine (if any be to be taken) to what Sum they in their great Wiſdom ſhall think fit: Which is the only Thing deſired.

THIS was the Subſtance of what was ſpoken by the aforeſaid Gentleman, before the Lords, June the 7th, 1698. He ſpoke alſo effectually to the ſame Arguments before the Lords at another Seſſion, February 1, 1698-9, when the Bill paſſed.

MERCHANTS of Levant; or, Turkey MERCHANTS.

THE Company of Merchants of Levant, or more commonly termed Turkey Merchants, being firſt incorporated by Queen Elizabeth, were afterwards confirmed and enlarged by Kimg James I.

THESE Merchants, by their Diſcoveries, made the firſt Trade into the Seigniory of Venice, and then into the Territories of the Grand Seignior, including the Trade of the Eaſt-Indies, which then was unknown to us by Sea; their Goods being brought by Caravans of Camels to Aleppo and other Parts of Turkey. But ſince the Diſcovery of the Indies by Sea, there is another rich and potent Company of Merchants incorporated, trading thither; which is to be ſpoken of by and by. And this Company doth in a great Meaſure deprive this Turkey Company of all Eaſt-India Goods. Notwithſtanding the Traffick of theſe Merchants is great and very conſiderable, exporting yearly about 30,000 Cloths, both dyed and dreſſed; alſo Kerſies, Lead, Tin, Pewter, Iron, Steel, Wire, Starch, Sugars, Hides, Elephants Teeth, Brazil, ſeveral Eaſt-India Commodities, as Spices, Callicoes, Logwood, Indico, Red and White Lead, and Pieces of Eight. And for theſe and the like are imported Raw Silk of ſeveral Sorts, Camblets, Grograins, Yarn, Mohairs of Angor, Wools, Cottons, Cotton-Yarn of Smyrna and Cyprus, Galls of Moſolo and Toccat, the Currants and Oils of Zant, Zephalonia, Morea, &c. the Druggs of Egypt and Arabia; alſo Turkey Carpets, Cordovants, Boxwood, Rhubarb, Wormſeed, Sena, Cominſeed, together with ſeveral other rich Commodities.

THIS Company was firſt incorporated in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and confirmed by her Succeſſors. They have ſeveral Privileges and Immunities granted them, as the making of By-Laws and Orders for the well-governing of the Society. They have Power to determine Controverſies that may ariſe in the ſaid Company, concerning their Trade, giving of Oaths, impoſing of Fines, or Impriſonment of Offenders, the uſing of a Seal, and the bearing of a Coat of Arms. Which is thus blazoned: Azure, a Ship in full Sail, all proper, each Sail garniſhed with a Croſs, Gules, in a Sea betwixt two Rocks, and a Chief ingrailed, Argent. Creſt and Supporters they have none, neither a Motto.

THE Government is committed to a Governor, Deputy-Governor, and a Court of Aſſiſtants of Eighteen; who are Annually choſen by a general Conſent, in the Month of February. They keep Court Monthly, or as Occaſion requires, for the Management of the Companies Affairs; as to appoint Conſuls, Vice-Conſuls, Factors, &c. to ſuch Places where their Factories are kept; as at Smyrna, Aleppo, Conſtantinople, Cyprus, &c. who are anſwerable to the ſaid Company for what they do or act under them.

OUT of this Company, ſeven diſcreet and able Perſons are to be ſucceſſively Truſtees of an ample Eſtate, for the Maintenance of the College at Blackheath, founded by Sir John Morden, Bart. ſome Time a Member of this Company, for the Reception of poor decayed Merchants: And to be Viſitors of the ſaid College Yearly, according to the ſaid Morden's laſt Will and Teſtament, who died Anno 1708.

MERCHANTS of Spain.

THERE was a Company called, The Merchants of Spain; or, Spaniſh Merchants, incorporated by Queen Elizabeth; but theſe are now extinct.

MERCHANTS of EAST-INDIA.

THE Company of Merchants, called Merchants of Eaſt-India, were incorporated by Queen Elizabeth, in the 42d Year of her Reign, Anno Dom. 1600.

SINCE confirmed by her Succeſſors, with ſeveral other Privileges added to their Charter, ſo that now they have ample Privileges and Immunities as any incorporated Company of Merchants whatſoever.

THIS Company is managed by Joint Stock, which makes them Potent, Rich, and Eminent; and is found ſeveral Ways beneficial to the Nation, as in their Building of Ships, in the Employing and Maintaining of many Hundreds, not only in their Shipping but in their Factories; to whom they allow good Salaries, and according as they are found Induſtrious and Ingenious, they are raiſed to a higher Degree, with larger Salaries: The like may be ſaid of their Servants here at Home. Again, they are found very beneficial to the Nation, by their great Trade into the ſeveral Parts of India, China, Arabia, and Japan; Exporting, and Importing ſo many, and ſo great Quantities of rich Commodities.

COMMODITIES Exported; Broad-Cloths in a good Quantity, Perpetuanoes, Pieces of Eight, Dollars, Powder, Lead, Elephants Teeth, Amber, Looking-Glaſſes, Beads, Bracelets, Feathers, Coral, Quick-ſilver, Vermillion, Allum, Brimſtone, Knives, Sciſſars, &c. And for theſe they import, Cotton, Cotton-Yarn, Spices, as Nutmegs, Cloves, Mace, Pepper, Cinnamon, &c. Muſlin, Collicoes, Pintadoes of ſeveral Sorts, amongſt which were ſome of excellent Workmanſhip; Sanders, Tamarins, Spikenard, Bezar-ſtone, Alloes, Myrrhe, Rhubarb, Opium, Frankincence, Caſſia, Borax, Calamus, Green-Ginger, Sugars, Sugar-Candy, Camphire, Sandal-Wood, Benjamin, Rice, Indigo, Musk, Civet, Ambergreace, Silk both raw and wrought in divers Fabricks; many of which are exceeding curious and rich, with Sprigs and Flowers of Gold: Several Sorts of precious Stones, Pearl, Mother of Pearl, Chriſtal, Cornelian Rings, Agats, Lacque, Furs, and Skins of Wild Beaſts, Porcelane, Sealing-Wax, Copper, Coffee, Tea, curious Cabinets, Sanguis Draconis, China Roots, and China Wares of ſeveral Sorts, Salt-Petre, with divers Drugs and other Commodities too tedious to Name.

THE Arms belonging to this Company of Merchants is thus blazoned: Azure, three Ships under Sail, Or, each Sail garniſhed with a Croſs of England, on a Chief, Or, between two Roſes proper, an Additament out of the Arms of England, Quarterly; Azure and Gules, in the firſt and laſt a Flower de lis, Or, and in the ſecond and third, a Lyon Paſſant and Gardant, of the ſame. And for their Creſt; on a Wreath of their Colours, a Sphere, or Celeſtial Globe, between two Standards of St. George: And for their Supporters; two Sea Horſes, or rather Lyons, Or an Azure. And for their Motto, above the Creſt; Deus indicat: And below, Deo Ducente, nil nocet.

THIS Company, for the better Negotiation of their great Affairs, is governed by a Governor, Deputy,

Deputy, and Court of Aſſiſtants, conſiſting of 24, who about the Middle of April are Annually elected by Adventurers of the ſaid Company, amongſt which there muſt be eight New ones choſen; the reſt may be again elected as alſo the Governor, and Deputy-Governor. And theſe accordingly meet at their Houſe in Leadenhall-ſtreet, now called the Eaſt-India-Houſe; generally Weekly, and keep Courts for the Management of their Affairs, as the Vending their Goods, Making of Dividends, raiſing of Money, Viewing their Accounts from their Preſidents, Factors, &c. Buying in of Goods, Setting forth Shipping, Sending over Factors and Servants; and for Ordering of Factories kept at Camboya, Bombay, Surat, Curwar, Baticale, Calicut, Fort St. George, Pentapoli, Maſolipotan, Ougeley, Gonru, Ormus, with ſeveral other Factories in the Iſles of Aſia, in China, and Japan.

In the Year 1690, there came forth a little Piece, called, A modeſt and juſt Apology for, or Defence of the Preſent Eaſt-India-Company, againſt the Accuſations of their Adverſaries. Wherein the Crimes alledged againſt them are fairly examined, the Calumnies confuted, and all ſubmitted to the Judgment of impartial and unprejudiced Perſons. This Tract was written (tho' no Name be ſet to it) by that diſcreet and knowing Merchant, Nathaniel Tenche, Eſq; mention'd before; and was occaſioned (as the Writer expreſſeth in the Beginning) by Calumnies daily inculcated in all noted Coffee-Houſes, wherein this Company was not only ſet forth as Bankrupts, as to their preſent Condition, but repreſented as vile and odious as Malice itſelf could invent Aſperſions thrown on them: Whereby the Enemies endeavour'd, not only to impoſe upon the unthinking Vulgar, but upon the Members of the Honourable Houſe of Commons; and by putting Papers into their Hands, wherein were many things notoriouſly untrue. This was in order to the Compaſſing of an Endeavour now made for a New Eaſt-India Company; and new Subſcriptions with a Preamble were printed; and the very Terms of an Act of Parliament for that Purpoſe, propounded to the Legiſlative Power of the Nation, King, Lords, and Commons.

This was chiefly ſet on Foot and managed againſt the Company, by thoſe they called Interlopers; who Traded into the Places of their Privileges, and were not Free of the ſaid Company; whoſe Ships and Goods the Company ſtopped, and uſed other Ways and Means to hinder their Trade.

There was afterwards a New Eaſt-Indian Company ſet up by Act of Parliament, whereby the Old was to be diſſolved after ſome Years; which might ſuffice to bring forth their Effects: But after much Endeavour and Meetings of Perſons appointed out of both Companies, to confer and concert Matters, they were both amicably United into one. This new Company held at firſt their Meetings at Skinners-Hall, but now, and for ſome Years paſt, they have been held at their Houſe in Leadenhall-ſtreet. They have a Governor, Deputy-Governor, and 24 Directors, to manage the Companies Affairs; elected Annually in the Month of April.

In ſhort, the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies lay open from the Year 1653 to 1657; then this Method of private Trade, proved ſo very Deſtructive to the ſeveral private Traders thither, that the governing Power at that Time, found it neceſſary to unite them all into one joint Company, with a joint Stock. But in the Year 1698, an Act of Parliament was obtained, for laying the Trade open in a Method of a regulated Company: But upon Trial, the ſeparate Traders, who procured that Act, found it neceſſary to unite themſelves, ſo as to trade only with one Joint Stock. And tho' there was ſeemingly an irreconcileable Conteſt between the New and Old Company, yet both of them became ſo ſenſible of the deſtructive Conſequences of Trading by a divided Intereſt, that they are now happily joined into one Company again, having the ſame Joint Stock, Intereſt and Deſign.

The Eaſt-India Company export great Quantities of Bulloin, Lead, Engliſh Cloth, and ſome other Goods, the Product or Manufacture of this Kingdom; and import from China and India, Tea, China-Ware, Cabinets, raw and wrought Silks, Coffee, Muſlins, Callicoes, and other Cotton-Cloths; of which Joſhua Gee, in his Book of Trade, ſuppoſes they ſell as much to Foreigners as repays all the Bulloin Shipped for India, and leaves us beſides a conſiderable Ballance upon that Trade.

Bengal raw Silk, he obſerves, is bought at very low Prices there, and is very uſeful in carrying on the Manufactures of this Kingdom.

China Silk is of excellent Staple, and comes at little above one Third of the Price of Italian Piedmont Silk: The Duty of Bengal raw Silk being one Third more, and China near three Times as much as that of Italy, hinders our being ſupply'd ſo fully as we ought, and is of great Damage to the Nation; for we pay the Savoyards all ready Money for what we have from them, which as effectually drains us of our Bulloin as the India or China Trade does, with this Aggravation, that almoſt three Pounds of China Silk may be purchas'd for the Money that one Pound of Piedmont Silk coſt us.

Altho' Silver is not ſent out directly to Piedmont as it is to India, yet, in Fact, it is the ſame Thing; for the Ballance of ſome other Trade is carried thither, which otherwiſe would be remitted to us.

The Silk of China will anſwer in moſt Reſpects the Uſe of Italian Silk, provided we could be ſupply'd with the fine raw Silk of which they make their Damasks, Sattins, and other fine Manufactures, which by the Curioſity of thoſe Silks, muſt come up to the Goodneſs of Italian Silk.

The China Silk that we commonly receive is purchas'd at Canton, the neareſt Port we trade to in China; but their fine Silk is made in the Provinces of Nankin and Chekiam, where their fine Manufactures are carried on, and where prodigious Quantities of raw Silk are made, and the beſt in all China: We have never imported any of the Superfine here, but two or three Ships have brought extraordinary good, the beſt of which, we are inform'd, was brought from Amoy; and doubtleſs if Encouragement was given for the Importation of that fine Silk, it might be thrown here, and our Manufactures carried on at a ſmall Expence to the Nation.

It may not be improper to inſert in this Place the following Abſtracts of the ſeveral Charters granted to the Eaſt-India Companies.

An ABSTRACT of the Charter granted by his Majeſty King CHARLES II. to the East-India Company, under the Great Seal of England, the third Day of April, in the Year 1661, and the 30*th of that Prince's Reign.*

CHARLES II. by the Grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To all to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come greeting: Whereas our well-beloved Subjects, the Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies have been a long Time a Corporation, to the Honour and Profit of this Nation, and have enjoy'd, and do ſtill enjoy divers Liberties, Privileges and Immunities, by Virtue of Letters Patents and Charters, heretofore granted them, by our our late Royal Progenitors, Queen Elizabeth, and King James of Bleſſed Memory. But of late, divers Diſorders have been committed, as well by our own Subjects as by Foreigners, to the great Detriment and Interruption of the Trade of the ſaid Company, they having humbly beſought us to confirm their Charters, and to grant and allow ſome Alterations and Additions, tending to the Benefit and Advancement of their Traffick:

KNOW ye, That we taking the Premiſes into our Royal Conſideration, and well conſidering how much it imports this our Realm, the Grievances of the ſaid Corporation be redreſſed, the better to remove all Incumbrances and Inconveniencies that may have hitherto obſtructed their Trade; have granted and confirmed unto the ſaid Governor and Company, for Us, our Heirs and Succeſſors, that they from henceforth be, and for ever ſhall be, one Body Corporate and Politick, in Deed and in Name, by the Name of the Governor and Company of Merchants of LONDON trading to the Eaſt-Indies. And we do ordain, That by the Name aforeſaid, they ſhall have perpetual Succeſſion, and that they and their Succeſſors by the ſaid Name, be now and at all Times hereafter, Perſons able and capable in Law, and a Body Corporate and Politick, capable in Law, to have, purchaſe, receive, poſſeſs, enjoy and retain Lands, Rents, Privileges, Liberties, Juriſdictions, Franchiſes and Hereditaments, of what Kind, Nature and Quality ſoever they be, to them and their Succeſſors; and alſo to give, grant, deviſe, alien, aſſign, and diſpoſe of Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, and to do and execute all and ſingular other Things, by the ſame Name that to them ſhall or may appertain to do: And that they and their Succeſſors, by the ſaid Name, may plead and be impleaded, anſwer and be anſwered, defend and be defended, in whatſoever Courts and Places, and before whatſoever Judges and Juſtices, and other Perſons and Officers, in all and ſingular Action, Pleas, Suits, Quarrels, Cauſes, and Demands whatſoever, of whatſoever Kind, Nature or Sort, in ſuch Manner and Form, as any other of our Liege People of this our Realm of England, being Perſons able and capable in Law, may or can have, purchaſe, receive, poſſeſs, enjoy, retain, give, grant, deviſe, alien, aſſign, diſpoſe, plead, defend and be defended, releaſe and be releaſed, do permit and execute. And we alſo grant and allow, that the ſaid Company and their Succeſſors, under the Name aforeſaid, may have a Common Seal, and may likewiſe break and alter the ſame at their Pleaſure.

AND further we ordain, That the ſaid Company ſhall elect one of the Members thereof to be their Governor, and twenty-four of the ſaid Members to be Committees, who ſhall have the Direction of the Voyages of and for the ſaid Company, and the Proviſion of the Shipping, and Merchandizes thereunto belonging; and alſo the Sale of all Merchandizes, Goods, and other Things returned, in all or any of the Voyages and Ships, of or for the ſaid Company, and the managing and handling of all other Buſineſs, Affairs and Things belonging to the ſaid Company. And we ordain, that the ſaid Governor and Company ſhall be ruled and ordered as is hereafter expreſſed, and not otherwiſe; and that they ſhall likewiſe enjoy the Liberties, Privileges and Immunities herein ſpecified, and no other. And for the better Execution of our ſaid Will and Grant in this Behalf, we nominate, conſtitute and appoint, Sir Andrew Riccard to be the firſt and preſent Governor, and George Lord Berkley, Sir John Lewes, Sir William Thomſon, Sir Richard Ford, Sir James Drax, Sir John Frederick, Sir Theophilus Biddulph, Sir William Vincent, Sir Thomas Bludworth, Sir William Ryder, Sir Stephen White, and Sir George Smith, Knts. William Love, Eſq; William Williams, John Jollife, Peter Middleton, Thomas Kendal, Maurice Thomſon, Samuel Moyer, Chriſtopher Boone, Francis Clerk, John Maſcal, Thomas Pearle, and Chriſtopher Willoughby, Gentlemen, to be the twenty-four firſt and preſent Committees for the ſaid Company, from the Date of theſe Preſents, until the 10th Day of April, then alſo next following; and ſo until new Committees ſhall be choſen in Form hereafter expreſſed. And further we will and ordain, that the ſaid Governor and Company, at any General Court, may elect a Deputy Governor, who ſhall take an Oath before the Governor, and five or more of the Committees for the Time being, well, faithfully and truly to execute his ſaid Office of Deputy to the Governor of the ſaid Company. And the ſaid Governor and Company ſhall have Power Yearly, between the 10th and the laſt Day of April, to meet and to elect a Governor for one whole Year, who ſhall take an Oath before the laſt Governor, or his Deputy, and ſix or more of the Committees, that he ſhall well and truly execute the Office of Governor of the ſaid Company; and in like Manner, every Member of the ſaid Company, before their Admiſſion into it, ſhall take an Oath before the Governor of the ſaid Company, or his Deputy, to ſuch Effect, as by the ſaid Governor and Company, or the greater Part of them in any Court, to be held for the ſaid Company, ſhall be in a reaſonable Manner deviſed.

AND further we will and grant, That the ſaid Governor or Deputy Governor, and the Company or their Succeſſors, for the Time being, may meet Yearly, between the 10th and the laſt of April, and elect twenty-four Committees for the Year enſuing, who ſhall, before their Admiſſion into their ſaid Stations, take an Oath before the Governor or his Deputy, and five more of the laſt Committees, their immediate Predeceſſors, that they ſhall truly and faithfully execute their ſaid Office of Committees.

AND further we will and grant, That upon the Death or Removal of the Governor of the ſaid Company (which Governor not demeaning himſelf well in his Office, we will to be removeable at the Pleaſure of the ſaid Company, or the greater Part of them, at any of their General Courts) the Reſidue of the ſaid Company, or the greater Part of them, may elect another Governor, who ſhall exerciſe the ſaid Office during the Reſidue of the Year, having firſt taken an Oath, as aboveſaid, for the due Execution thereof. And in like Manner, any of the Committees dying or being removed (which Committees not demeaning themſelves well, may be removed at the Pleaſure of the Governor and Company at any of their General Meetings) the Governor, or his Deputy, and Company for the Time being, may elect and nominate one or more of the ſaid Company, to be Committee or Committees of the ſaid Company, in the Place and Stead, or Places and Steads of him or them of the former Committees ſo dying or removed; which Perſon or Perſons ſo elected ſhall take an Oath (as aboveſaid) for the Right and due Execution of their aforeſaid Office or Offices.

AND further we will and grant, That the Sons, Factors and Servants of the Members of the ſaid Company, that are of one and twenty Years of Age and above, may freely trade in any Part of Aſia, Africa, and America, beyond the Cape of Good Hope, to the Streights of Magellan, in ſuch Manner as ſhall be agreed to at any General Court, and not otherwiſe.

AND

And we further will and grant, That the ſaid Governor, or his Deputy, and the ſaid Company may aſſemble in any Place to hold Court, and there make Laws for the Government and Management of their Trade, and may impoſe Penalties on Offenders, and may levy the ſame without any Account, ſo as the ſaid Penalties be reaſonable, and not contrary to Law.

And alſo we will and grant, That the ſaid Governor and Company of Merchants, and their Agents, Factors and Aſſigns ſhall have ſix Months Time for the Payment of one Half, and ſix Months Time longer for the Payment of the other Half of all Duties, Poundage, Cuſtoms, and Subſidies, for all Manner of Goods; they, the ſaid Governor and Company of Merchants, always giving ſufficient Bond, with Surety, for the Payment thereof at the Terms aforeſaid. And when any Goods exported from England, for which the ſaid Governor and Company have paid the Cuſtom here, or given Bond for the Payment thereof, ſhall happen to miſcarry, or be loſt, before their ſafe Arrival at the Ports for which they were deſigned; due Proof being made thereof before the Treaſurer of England, the Duties paid for ſuch Goods ſhall be deducted out of the Duties of the firſt Goods ſhipp'd off afterwards for the ſaid Company's Account.

And further we grant unto the ſaid Governor and Company, That it ſhall be lawful for them and their Succeſſors, or any the natural Subjects of this our Realm which may or ſhall buy any Eaſt-India Goods by them imported, to tranſport the ſame in Engliſh Bottoms freely out of this Realm, without paying any further Duties than thoſe that were paid at the Entry, provided the ſaid Goods be exported within the Space and Term of thirteen Months.

And moreover, We grant to the ſaid Governor and Company, That it ſhall be lawful for them to tranſport in their Voyages all ſuch foreign Coin of Silver, Spaniſh or other foreign Silver or Bulloin of Silver, as they ſhall bring or cauſe to be brought into this Realm of England from the Parts beyond the Seas, either in the ſame Kind, Sort, Stamp or Faſhion which it ſhall have when they bring it in, or in any other Form, Stamp or Faſhion to be coined in our Mint within our Tower of LONDON, at their Pleaſure, ſo as the whole Quantity tranſported exceed not Fifty Thouſand Pound in one Voyage.

And we further will and grant, That the Company and their Succeſſors ſhall have and enjoy the whole and entire Trade to the Eaſt-Indies; and in any Time of Reſtraint they may ſend ſix good Ships and ſix good Pinnaces well furniſhed with Ordnance and other Munition for their Defence, and 500 Mariners, Engliſhmen, to guide and ſail in the ſaid ſix Ships and ſix Pinnaces; except when we having juſt cauſe to arm our Navy in warlike Manner, in Defence of our Realm, or for Offence of our Enemies, or that it ſhould be found needful to join to our Navy the Ships of our Subjects to be alſo armed for the Wars, to ſuch a Number as cannot be ſupplied if the ſaid ſix Ships and ſix Pinnaces ſhould be permitted to depart; then, upon Knowledge given by us or our Admiral to the ſaid Governor and Company, about the 20th Day of July, or three Months before the ſaid Governor and Company ſhall begin to make ready the ſaid ſix Ships and Pinnaces; then they forbear to ſend the ſame, till we ſhall recal or withdraw our Navy from the Service againſt our Enemies.

And further, we prohibit and forbid all our other Subjects to viſit or trade into the Eaſt-Indies, unleſs by Licence from the ſaid Governor and Company, upon Pain of Forfeiture of Ship and Goods, one Half to us, and the other Half to the Company, and the Offenders to ſuffer Impriſonment during our Pleaſure, and ſuch other Puniſhment as we ſhall think fit to inflict on them.

And further, We have granted and condeſcended, That the ſaid Governor and Company may give Licence, under their Common Seal, to any Perſon or Perſons to ſail, trade or traffick into or from the Eaſt-Indies, upon ſome Conſideration or Benefit by them to be given. And we, our Heirs or Succeſſors ſhall not give nor grant any ſuch Licence to any Perſon or Perſons without their Conſent.

And we further grant, That if it ſhall happen that any Perſon or Perſons that are or ſhall be free of the ſaid Company, ſhall, before the going forth of any Ship or Fleet, ſubſcribe for any Sum or Sums of Money towards the furniſhing Proviſion or Maintenance for any Voyage or Voyages, ſet forth or to be ſet forth by the ſaid Governor and Company, and ſhall not, within the Space of twenty Days next after Warning given to him or them, by the ſaid Governor and Company, or their known Officer or Miniſter, bring in and deliver to the Treaſurer or Treaſurers appointed for the Company, the Sum or Sums ſubſcribed for, it ſhall be lawful for the ſaid Governor and Company, at any General Court, to diſfranchiſe the ſaid Perſon or Perſons. And alſo the ſaid Governor and Company, at any General Court (as aboveſaid) may admit into their Freedom all ſuch Perſons as they ſhall think fit.

And further, The ſaid Governor and Company do, by theſe Preſents, for themſelves and their Succeſſors, promiſe and covenant to and with us, that within ſix Months after every Return from every Voyage (the firſt Voyage only excepted) they ſhall bring into this Realm from the Eaſt-Indies, or from other Parts beyond the Seas, as great or greater Quantity of Bullion, Gold or Silver, reſpectively for every Voyage, as that which by Virtue of our Letters Patents they exported. And that all the Silver which ſhall be by them or their Succeſſors tranſported out of our Dominions, ſhall be ſhipp'd off at the Port of LONDON, being firſt duly enter'd without Cuſtom or Subſidy, as likewiſe what ſhall be imported.

And to prevent clandeſtine trading, no Entry of Eaſt-India Goods ſhall be permitted to be made but what is allowed of by the Company; and all Adventurers in the Company ſhall have Votes according to their Stocks.

And we do further grant, That all the Company's Plantations, Forts, Fortifications, Factories and Colonies ſhall be immediately under their own Command; and that they may appoint Governors and Officers who may judge all Perſons living under them, in all Cauſes, whether Civil or Criminal, or elſe may tranſmit them to England; and may ſend Ships of War, Men, and Ammunition, for Defence of their Factories; as alſo to make Peace or War with any, not Chriſtians, and right and recompence themſelves for any Injuries or Wrongs received or ſuſtained by them.

And we further grant, That they may build, plant and fortify at St. Helen's, and ſend out Supplies of Cloathing without Cuſtom.

And alſo we grant the ſaid Governor and Company the Power of inflicting Puniſhments for Miſdemeanors; and likewiſe to ſeize upon the Perſons of all ſuch of our Subjects as they find in the Indies, without their Licence, and ſend them into England; and that the Company may puniſh all Perſons in their own Service there, or in Caſe of Appeal, ſend them Priſoners into England.

And further we will and grant, That for Diſcovery of Injuries, the Officers of the ſaid Company there may examine upon Oath all Perſons whom they ſhall think it meet and convenient ſo to examine, ſo that the ſaid Oath and the Matter therein contained be not repugnant to the Laws of England.

PROVIDED always, and our Will and Pleaſure is, That theſe our Letters Patents and Charters ſhall not give the ſaid Company Leave to trade to any Place already in the Poſſeſſion of any Chriſtian Prince in League and Amity with us, who ſhall overtly declare againſt it.

PROVIDED alſo, That if we find this Grant unprofitable for us or our Realm, then after three Years Warning the ſame is to ceaſe, charging all our Admirals and other Officers to be aiding thereunto, &c.

IN witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs ourſelf at Weſtminſter the third Day of April, in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

An ABSTRACT of the CHARTER granted by his Majeſty King JAMES II. to the EAST-INDIA Company, under the Great Seal of England, the 12*th Day of* April, in the Year 1686, and the Second of that Prince's Reign.

JAMES II. by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. To all to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, Greeting. Whereas our well beloved Subjects, the Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies, have been of long Time a Corporation, to the Honour and Profit of this Nation, and have enjoyed, and do ſtill enjoy divers Liberties, Privileges and Immunities, by Virtue of Letters Patents and Charters heretofore granted them by our late Royal Progenitors and Predeceſſors, Queen Elizabeth and King James. And whereas the late King Charles II. our dearly beloved Brother, of ever bleſſed Memory, did by his Royal Charter, dated at Weſtminſter the third Day of April, in the thirteenth Year of his Reign, confirm the ſaid precedent Charters and Patents, and grant, That the ſaid Governor and Company ſhould be for ever a Body Corporate and Politick, in Name and in Deed; and that their Sons, Apprentices and Servants might for ever freely trade and merchandize to and from India, by the Ways then and thereafter to be diſcovered, in ſuch Manner as ſhould at any General Court (the Governor or his Deputy being always one) be limited and agreed to, any Statute, &c. to the contrary notwithſtanding; ſo as they trade not to any Place in the lawful Poſſeſſion of any Chriſtian Prince or State in League or Amity with this Nation, that would not accept of ſuch Trade, but openly declare againſt it.

AND further the ſaid King did thereby for himſelf, his Heirs and Succeſſors, grant unto the ſaid Governor and Company for themſelves and their Succeſſors, that they ſhould for ever enjoy the whole and entire Trade of the Indies; and that no Part of the ſaid Indies ſhould be frequented and viſited by any of his Majeſty's Subjects. And his ſaid Majeſty did alſo by his Prerogative Royal, ſtreightly prohibit all his Subjects from Trading into the ſaid Indies, other than the ſaid Governor and Company, their Factors and Servants, &c. except by Licence obtained of them, under their Common Seal, under the Penalties, Pains, and Forfeitures, in the ſaid Letters Patents, at large expreſſed.

AND whereas the ſaid late King Charles II. by his Royal Charter, or Letters Patents dated at Weſtminſter the 27th Day of March, in rhe 20th Year of his Reign, by the Advice of his Privy-Council, in all the Grants and Matters therein; did grant, transfer, and confirm for himſelf, his Heirs, and Succeſſors, unto the ſaid Governor and Company, all the Port and Iſland of Bombay, by the Eaſt-Indies, with all the Rights, Profits, Territories, and Appurtenances, thereof whatſoever, and all the ſingular Royalties, Revenues, Rents, Cuſtoms, Caſtles, Forts, Buildings and Fortifications, Privileges, Franchiſes, Preheminences, and Hereditaments whatſoever, within the Premiſes, or to them or any of them belonging, or any ways appertaining in as large and ample Manner, to all Intents, Conſtructions and Purpoſes, as the ſaid late King then had enjoy'd the ſame, or might or ought to have had and enjoy'd the ſame, by Virtue and Force of the Grant of the then King of Portugal, and not further or otherwiſe. And them the ſaid Governor and Company, did make and conſtitute the abſolute Proprietors thereof, always reſerving unto himſelf, his Heirs and Succeſſors, the Faith and Allegiance to him due and belonging, and his Royal Power and Sovereignty of and over his Subjects there: To have, hold, poſſeſs, and enjoy, the ſaid Port and Iſland, and all, and ſingular the Premiſes therein before granted, or mentioned to be granted unto the ſaid Governor and Company, their Succeſſors and Aſſigns, and to the only Uſe of them for evermore; to be holden of him the ſaid late King, his Heirs, and Succeſſors, as of his Manor of Eaſt-Greenwich, in the County of Kent, in Free and Common Soccage, and not in Capite, or by the Knights Service; yielding and paying therefore to him the ſaid late King, his Heirs and Succeſſors, at the Cuſtom-Houſe, LONDON, the Rent and Sum of 10*l.* of good and lawful Money of England in Gold, on the 30th Day of September Yearly, for ever. And the ſaid late King did, by his ſaid Charter, alſo grant them, and order, that they ſhould enjoy in the ſaid Iſland, all the Privileges and Advantages that they might enjoy in the other Parts of India, by Virtue of his ſaid Majeſty's former Patent, dated the 3d Day of April, in the 13th Year of his Reign, in as large and ample Manner, as if particularly expreſſed in the ſecond recited Charter or Letters Patents. And whereas the ſaid late King, by his Charter dated the 5th of October, in the 28th Year of his Reign, did confirm all Rights formerly granted the ſaid Company, notwithſtanding any former Miſ-uſer, Non-uſer, or Abuſer thereof whatſoever. And whereas the ſaid late King, by his Royal Charter dated the 16th Day of December, in the 25th Year of his Reign, did grant unto the ſaid Company, the Iſland of St. Helena, with all and ſingular the Rights, Profits, Territories, and Appurtenances whatever; and all the Soil, Lands, Fields, Woods, Mountains, Farms, Lakes, Pools, Harbours, Rivers, Bays, Iſles, Iſlets, ſituate or being within the Bounds or Limits thereof; with the Fiſhing of all Sorts of Fiſh, Whales, Sturgeons, and all other Royal Fiſhes in the Bays, Iſlets, or Rivers, within the ſame Premiſes, and the Fiſh therein taken, and all the Veins, Mines, and Quarries, as well Royal Mines, as other Mines, whether the ſame were then diſcovered, or not diſcovered; and alſo all Gold, Silver, Jems, and precious Stones, and and all other whatſoever, be it of Stones, Metals, or any thing whatſoever then found, or to be found, within the Veins, Mines, and Quarries, of the ſame Iſland and Premiſes; with all and ſingular Royalties, Revenues, Rents, Cuſtoms, Caſtles, Forts and Buildings, then erected, or to be erected. And whereas the ſaid late King did create and conſtitute the ſaid Company, abſolute Lords and Proprietors of the ſaid Iſland (always reſerving the Faith and Allegiance of the Inhabitants) to the only Uſe of the ſaid Company, to be holden of the ſaid late King, his Heirs and Succeſſors, as of the Manor of Eaſt-Greenwich, in Free and Common Soccage, not in Capite, nor by Knight's Service, as in and by the ſaid Letters Patents, may fully appear.

AND

And whereas the ſame late King, by his Royal Charter, dated the 9th of Auguſt, in the 35th Year of his Reign, did erect a Court of Judicature to be holden as the Company ſhould direct, to determine all Caſes of Forfeitures and Seizures of Ships, as alſo all Cauſes Mercantile and Maritime, and all Treſpaſſes upon the High-Sea, or any of the Region and Territories, Countries or Places, therein for that Purpoſe mentioned, concerning any Perſon or Perſons reſiding, being or coming into the Parts of Aſia, Africa, and America, within the Bounds and Limits therein mentioned; all which Caſes ſhall be Judged and Determined by that Court, upon due Examination and Proof, according to the Cuſtoms of Merchants, and the Rules of Equity and good Conſcience; and by ſuch Methods, as the ſaid late King ſhould direct, under his Great or Privy-Seal, and for Want thereof, as the Judges of the ſaid Court ſhould think meet; and all Judgments, Determinations and Decrees of that Court, were to be put in Writing, and ſignified to the Perſons that were preſent at the making of them, and ſhould contain a ſhort State of the Matter of Fact, as it appeared to them, and their Sentence and Adjudication thereupon; as in and by the aforeſaid Charter and Letters Patents, doth and may more fully appear.

And whereas ſeveral Perſons, in Contempt of the firſt recited Letters Patents, have preſumed (without Licence) to ſend out Ships, and to trade within the Limits comprized in the ſaid Charter, to the great Damage of the ſaid Company, and the manifeſt Hazard of ruining of that Trade; whereupon the ſaid Governor and Company have humbly beſought us to grant and confirm the ſaid Charters, with ſome Additions. Now well weighing how highly it imports the Honour and Welfare of this Realm, that thoſe Diſorders ſhould be redreſſed, and that Trade improved to the utmoſt; that the ſaid Company may be encouraged by all lawful Aſſiſtance, in that difficult and hazardous Trade: Know ye, that we taking the Premiſſes into our Royal Conſideration, have of our ſpecial Grace, &c. ratified and confirmed, and by theſe Preſents, for Us, our Heirs and Succeſſors, do ratify and confirm unto the ſaid Governor and Company, and their Succeſſors for ever, all the ſaid Charters and Letters Patents, and all and ſingular the Rights, Grants, Liberties, Covenants, Franchiſes, Preheminences and Authorities, in all the ſaid Charters, or any of them comprized, as fully to all Intents and Purpoſes, as if every diſtinct Right, Grant, Power, Liberty, Covenant, Franchiſe, Preheminence and Authority, comprized in the ſaid Letters Patents, were herein recited, and hereby confirmed ſeparately and apart by itſelf. And further we eſtabliſh to them, all ſuch and the like Liberties and Privileges, as ever they had; with Power to the ſaid Company, their Preſidents, &c. to adminiſter the Freeman's Oath, and ſuch other lawful Oath, as the Court ſhall direct. And we do further erect and eſtabliſh a Court of Judicature, at ſuch Places as they ſhall appoint; which Court ſhall conſiſt of one Perſon learned in Civil Law, and two Merchants, who (or the Major Part of them, the Civilian being always one) ſhall have Power to determine of all Forfeitures, Seizures, &c. and all Cauſes Mercantile or Maritime, and all Treſpaſſes on the High-Seas, or any of the Regions, aforeſaid, according to the Cuſtoms of Merchants, and the Rules of Equity and Good Conſcience, and according to ſuch Methods of Proceeding as we ſhall appoint; and in Default thereof, by ſuch ways as they ſhall think fit, all which Judgments and Determinations, &c. ſhall be put in Writing, according to the Manner preſcribed in the Letters Patents of the ſaid late King Charles II. as aboveſaid.

And whereas the ſaid late King did grant the ſaid Company Power to appoint Governors of Forts, Caſtles, Factories, &c. to raiſe Arms, train and muſter what military Forces to them ſhould ſeem requiſite, We do hereby confirm the ſame. And further, underſtanding that many of the native Princes, taking Advantage of the late licentious Trading, and the evil Conſequences thereof, have violated many of the Company's Privileges and Liberties, for which they intend to demand Satisfaction in a peaceable Way; and if not that Way attainable, to uſe Force of Arms for recovering of their Loſs: We do therefore grant them full Power to appoint Admirals, Vice-Admirals, Rear-Admirals, Captains, and other Sea-Officers, from Time to Time, in all or any Ship or Ships, ſerving the ſaid Company in the Eaſt-Indies, within the Limits of any of the above recited Charters; who have hereby Power to raiſe, train and muſter Seamen or others, and to execute Martial Law, beyond the Cape of Good Hope, reſerving to ourſelves Power to revoke this Grant touching Martial Law.

And further by theſe Preſents, we give the ſaid Company Power to coin any Species of Money uſually coined by the Princes of thoſe Countries, ſo as it be agreeable to their Standards in Weight and Fineneſs, and that they coin not any European Money.

And laſtly, we ſtrictly charge and command all our Admirals, and all other our Officers whatſoever, to be aiding and aſſiſting to the ſaid Governor and Company, in executing and enjoying the Premiſſes; and, finally, our Will and Pleaſure is, that theſe our Letters Patents ſhall be conſtrued in the moſt favourable Manner on Behalf of the Company that can be, any Statute, Act, Proclamation or Reſtriction, or any other Thing to the contrary, in any wiſe notwithſtanding. In Witneſs whereof, We have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs Our ſelves at Weſtminſter the 12th Day of April, in the ſecond Year of Our Reign.

By Writ of Privy Seal,

PIGOTT.

An Abstract of a Charter of Regulations granted to the East-India Company, by their Majeſties King William and Queen Mary, under the Great Seal of England, on November 11, 1693, in the fifth Year of their Majeſties Reign.

William and Mary, by the Grace of God King and Queen of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defenders of the Faith, &c. To all to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come greeting. Whereas the Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies have been long a Corporation, to the Honour and Profit of this Nation, and have enjoyed divers Liberties, Privileges and Immunities by Virtue of Letters Patents and Charters, granted them by our late Royal Progenitors and Predeceſſors, Queen Elizabeth, King James I. King Charles II. and King James II. And whereas ſome Doubt hath ariſen touching the Validity of the Charters heretofore granted to the ſaid Company, by the not actual Payment of the firſt Quarterly Payment of the Tax of Five Pounds per Cent. charged on the general Joint-Stock of the ſaid Company, according to the late Act of Parliament, intitled, An Act for continuing certain Acts therein mentioned, and for charging ſeveral Joint-Stocks.

We having taken the ſame into our Royal Conſideration, and well weighing the Diſorders and Inconveniencies that would befal the ſaid Company, Company, and the Perſons employed in their Trade every where, and eſpecially in the more remote Places of the World, if Advantage were taken of that Forfeiture, did, by our Letters Patents, dated the 7th of October laſt, conſtitute Sir Thomas Cook, Kt. and one of the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, Francis Tyſſen, Eſq; George Earl of Berkley, Sir John Fleet, Kt. then Lord Mayor of the City of LONDON, Sir Joſiah Child, Bart. Sir William Langhorn, Bart. Sir Benjamin Bathurſt, Kt. Sir John Moore, Kt. one of the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, Sir Samuel Daſhwood, Kt. and one of the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, Sir Edward de Bouvery, Kt. Sir Thomas Rawlinſon, Knt. Sir William Gore, Kt. and one of the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, Sir Joſeph Herne, Kt. Sir Rowland Ainſworth, Kt. John Pery, Eſq; George Bohun, Eſq; Richard Hutchinſon, jun. Eſq; Frederick Herne, Eſq; Ralph Marſhall, Eſq; Richard Acton, John Cook of Hackney, Francis Gosfright, John du Bois, Iſaac Houblon, Samuel Ongley, and Nathaniel Mounteney, Gentlemen, and all and other Perſon or Perſons who were Members of the ſaid Company, on the 24th Day of March laſt paſt, who had not before the ſaid laſt recited Letters Patents parted with their Stocks in the ſaid Company, and all and every other Perſon or Perſons, who after the ſaid 24th Day of March laſt paſt, and before the Date of the ſaid recited Letters Patents, by buying Stocks or otherwiſe, had come into, and then remained in a Capacity of being Members of the ſaid Company, ſhould be a Body Politick and Corporate in Deed and in Name, by the Name of The Governor and Company of Merchants of LONDON trading to the Eaſt-Indies: And them by that Name one Body Corporate and Politick in Deed and in Name, really and fully for ever, for Us, our Heirs and Succeſſors, We did make, declare, eſtabliſh and confirm; and alſo granted and reſtored unto them all the Ports, Iſlands, Plantations, Territories, Forts, Caſtles, Ordnance, Armour, Artillery, Munition, Arms, Guns, Powder, Shot, Victuals, Magazines, Stores, Ammunition and Proviſions of War, Ships, Junks, Veſſels, Boats, Joint-Stocks, Manors, Lordſhips, Meſſuages, Houſes, Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods, Wares, Merchandizes, Cattel, Chattels real and perſonal, Debts, Dues, Duties, Right of Actions, and Demands in Law or Equity, Powers, Privileges, Liberties, Franchiſes, Juriſdictions, Cuſtoms, Rights, Royalties, Immunities and Advantages whatſoever, and all and ſundry other Things, which were or might be lawfully enjoy'd by them on or before the 24th of March laſt, or at any Time before the Date of the ſaid laſt recited Letters Patents, by Virtue of any Charters formerly granted or confirmed to them, to enjoy the Premiſes in the ſame Manner they might have done on the 24th of March laſt paſt, as if the Powers and Privileges by the ſaid Charters granted, had been particularly recited, but under the Limitations therein contained.

AND whereas in the ſaid Charter of the 7th of October, is contained the Proviſo following, viz. "If the Company do not except of and effectually execute ſuch Orders, Directions, Additions, Alterations, Reſtrictions and Qualifications, relating to the Conſtitution, Continuance, Determination, Rights, Powers or Privileges of the ſaid Company, or of the Government thereof, or of the ſaid Governor and Company, or of the Encouragement, Management, Regularion or Advancement of Trade, or of the preſent or future Joint Stock of the ſaid Company; or concerning any future Subſcriptions, to be made by way of Increaſe or Addition to the Joint Stock, or for aſcertaining the true Values of the ſaid Joint Stock, at and during the Time of any ſuch future Subſcriptions, which we, our Heirs and Succeſſors, with the Advice of our or their Privy-Council, ſhall at any Time before the 29th Day of September 1694, think fit to make, inſert, limit, direct, appoint or expreſs, in or by any further or other Charters, or Letters Patents, under our Great Seal of England; then theſe Preſents may be determined, made void, and revoked, and all the Powers therein contained ſhall ceaſe.

Now know ye, That we conſidering how highly it imports this Kingdom, that the Eaſt-India Trade ſhould be continued, and being deſirous to make the ſame more National (which is beſt to be done in a Joint Stock) have, for the Purpoſes aforeſaid, by the Advice of our Privy-Council, ordained and conſtituted; and the ſaid Company does agree, and all our natural Subjects and Perſons naturalized and endenized, who ſhall hereafter ſubſcribe and pay down the Sums of Money by them ſubſcribed, in ſuch Manner as is herein after directed, ſhall be Members of the ſaid Company, as is hereafter expreſſed.

AND our Will and Pleaſure is, that 744,000 l. be ſubſcribed in a Book of Vellum (within ſix Days to be provided) to lie open daily from Eight to Twelve in the Morning, and from Two to Six in the Afternoon till the 10th of January next, none being to ſubſcribe above 10,000 l. And if the Subſcriptions exceed the aforeſaid Sum of 744,000 l. they ſhall be reduced to that Sum by the Court of Committees; the Subſcribers being to make Oath, that the Money ſubſcribed is their own, and in Truſt; which Oath the Governor or his Deputy, and three more of the Committees are to take Care to adminiſter to them, and one third Part of all Sums ſubſcribed for, ſhall be paid down to the Committee of the Treaſury of the Company, or their Caſhier, at the Time of the Subſcription, and the reſt before or upon the 10th of January next.

AND further our Will and Pleaſure is, That in all General Courts every qualified Member ſhall have a Vote for every 1000 l. he has in the Fund, but no Perſon ſhall have above ten Votes, and no Perſon ſhall vote under 1000 l.

AND we further order and appoint, That all Perſons who were before free of the ſaid Company, or capable to be ſo by former Charters, and all new Subſcribers, who ſhall pay into the Joint Stock the Sums by them ſubſcribed for, in Manner above directed, ſhall have their Freedom gratis; but ſuch as ſhall come in by Purchaſe of any of the ſaid Company's Joint Stock ſhall pay for their Freedom 5 l. and they, with the Subſcribers, ſhall take the Oaths appointed to be taken by a late Act of Parliament, entitled, An Act for the abrogating the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths; and alſo the Oath uſually taken by all Perſons made free of the ſaid Company, before the Governor or Deputy-Governor for the Time being, to whom we hereby give Power to adminiſter the ſame accordingly.

AND further, It ſhall be lawful for the Governor or Deputy-Governor of the ſaid Company to call General Courts, and Courts of Committees, to conſiſt only of ſuch as have 1000 l. in the Joint Stock, each in their own Right, and have taken the Oaths aboveſaid; and the Governor, or (in his Abſence) his Deputy ſhall have a caſting Voice in the ſaid Courts. The ſaid Governor, Deputy, and twenty four Committees ſhall be choſen yearly in April; the Governor to have 4000 l. in the Joint Stock in his own own Right, the Deputy as much, and each Committee 1000 l. And if the Governor, Deputy, or any of the Committees die within the Year, others duly qualified, ſhall be elected in their Stead. The Governor, Deputy and Committees, before they enter upon the Exerciſe of their Offices, being to take the ſeveral Oaths as aboveſaid.

And further we grant, That the Governor and other qualified Members of the Company may aſſemble and hold General Courts where they pleaſe, and (the Governor or Deputy being preſent) may make By-Laws for the Company's better Government, and revoke or alter them, and may impoſe lawful Penalties, Fines, &c. upon Delinquents, and levy the ſame to their own Uſe; all which By-Laws, &c. ſhall be kept and obſerved, if approved by a General Court, and not repugnant to the Laws of the Land. Provided always, and our further Will and Pleaſure is, That no Permiſſion be granted to any Perſon to trade, or Ships to paſs into or from the Eaſt-Indies on any private Account, on Penalty of forfeiting this and the laſt Charter. And further, no private Contract for the Sale of any Goods or Merchandizes ſhall be made, (excepting only ſuch Salt Petre as ſhall be ſold for the Uſe of us, our Heirs and Succeſſors) but all the Company's Goods ſhall be openly and publickly ſold by Inch of Candle at their publick Sales, and the Money ariſing thereby applied to the Company's Uſe; no Lot (except Jewels) being to exceed 500 l.

And for the better Increaſe of Trade, and Encouraging the Manufactures of this Kingdom, our Will and Pleaſure is, That the ſaid Company do yearly export to India, of the Growth and Product of England, the Value of 100,000 l. And the ſaid Governor and Company do hereby covenant, promiſe and agree to furniſh the Crown yearly with 500 Ton of good, clear and merchantable Salt Petre, conſiſting of 112 l. to the Hundred Weight, at 38 l. 10 s. per Ton in the Time of Peace, and 45 l. in the Time of War.

And our further Will and Pleaſure is, That all Dividends of Profits ariſing to the Company by the Joint Stock, be made in Time to come in Money only, and not otherwiſe. And further, we do order and appoint, That the Company and their Succeſſors do cauſe an Accomptant to enter in a Book or Books, to be provided and kept in their publick Office for that Purpoſe, the Value of the Joint Stock of the ſaid Company to be atteſted upon Oath, which Book ſhall from Time to Time lie open to be viewed and peruſed by all Perſons concerned. And our Will and Pleaſure further is, That all Mortgages, Alienations, Transfers and Aſſignments be from Time to Time entered and regiſtered, either in the Ordinary or in other Books, likewiſe to lie open to the View of all concerned.

And our further Will and Pleaſure is, and we do hereby, for us, our Heirs and Succeſſors, order, direct, limit, and appoint, That the Joint Stock of the ſaid Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies, ſhall continue for twenty-one Years, to be computed from the Date of theſe Preſents; a Year before which Time Books for new Subſcriptions ſhall be provided by the Governor and Company, and lie open at their publick Office for a new Joint Stock.

Provided always, and our expreſs Meaning is, That if the ſaid Governor and Company do not accept of, and act and conform themſelves in every Thing to all the Orders, Directions, Additions, Qualifications, Reſtrictions, &c. which we, our Heirs and Succeſſors, by the Advice of our or their Privy-Council, ſhall from Time to Time, at any Time before the 29th of September 1694, think fit to make and appoint, then not only theſe Preſents, but likewiſe our former Charter or Letters Patents of the 7th of October laſt paſt, herein before-metioned, ſhall be by us, our Heirs and Succeſſors, by Letters Patents under the Great Seal of England, revoked and made null and void. And from and immediately after the Paſſing ſuch Letters of Revocation, all the Powers and Privileges, &c. contained in our ſaid former Charter or Letters Patents of the 7th of October laſt, ſhall ceaſe, determine, and be abſolutely void to all Intents and Purpoſes, any Thing to the contrary notwithſtanding. In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs ourſelves at Weſtminſter the 11th Day of November, in the fifth Year of our Reign.

An Abstract of the Charter of Regulations granted to the East-India Company by their Majeſties King William and Queen Mary, under the Great Seal of England, Sept. 28, 1694, in the 6th Year of their Majeſties Reign.

William and Mary by the Grace of God of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, King and Queen, Defenders of the Faith, &c. To the Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies, and to all others to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come greeting. Whereas by our Charter dated the 7th of October 1693, we did appoint Sir Thomas Cook, Kt. Francis Tyſſen, Eſq; and others, to be a Body Corporate and Politick in Deed and in Name, by the Name of The Governors and Company of Merchants of LONDON trading to the Eaſt-Indies, under the Proviſo's therein mention'd; and did grant them and their Succeſſors divers Liberties, Privileges and Powers, &c. with a Clauſe, "That if the ſaid Governor and Company ſhould "not comply with and accept of ſuch farther "Regulations and Reſtrictions as by Us, our "Heirs and Succeſſors, with the Advice of our "Privy Council, be made and propoſed at any "Time between the 29th of September 1694, "and put under the Great Seal of England, then "the ſaid Charter ſhould be revokable, and "immediately after paſſing of Letters of Revo-"vocation under the Great Seal of England, "the Powers, Privileges and Grants therein "contained ſhould be void and ceaſe." And whereas by our Charter, dated the 11th of November laſt, ſeveral Regulations and Reſtrictions, &c. have been propoſed purſuant to the ſaid Proviſo, and that the ſaid Proviſo has been renewed and repeated, viz. "That the Company not "conforming themſelves, and acting in every "Thing according to the Regulations and Re-"ſtrictions, &c. which by Us, our Heirs and "Succeſſors, with the Advice of our or their "Privy Council, ſhould be made before the ſaid "29th of September, 1694, then the ſaid Char-"ter and the Precedent ſhould be void and "ceaſe, and the Powers and Privileges therein "granted ſhould abſolutely end and determine "to all Intents and Purpoſes.

Now know ye, That in Purſuance of the ſaid two Proviſo's, and by Virtue of what otherwiſe we may lawfully put in Execution, We do by this Writing under our Great Seal, by the Advice of our Privy Council, order and direct that every Perſon qualified to vote by our laſt Charter or otherwiſe, in a General or other Court, to be hereafter holden by the Company, ſhall, before Admittance to ſuch Votes, take an Oath before the Governor, or Deputy, or any of the Committees (if required by any Member of the Committee having 1000 l. in his own Right in the Joint-Stock) that he or ſhe deſiring to vote, is then really intitled to ſo much Stock for his or their own Uſe and Right (and not in Truſt) as qualifies him or her to give in ſuch Votes as he or ſhe deſires. Which Oath the Governor, Deputy, or any of the Committees are required to adminiſter; and no Perſon, not taking ſuch Oath, ſhall be admitted to give any Vote, nor their Votes to be of any Effect or Avail, if given.

AND our further Will and Pleaſure is, That no Perſon, not being born our natural Subject, or endenized, ſhall be admitted a Freeman of the ſaid Company. And further, Every Perſon fairly elected by the Plurality of Voices to be a Governor, Deputy, or Committee, ſhall, before his being or acting as ſuch, take an Oath in the General Court before the Governor or Deputy, or one or more of the twenty-four Committees, that at the Time of his Election and taking his Oath, he is intitled in his own Right, and not in Truſt, to ſo much Stock as qualifies him for ſuch Election: Which Oath the ſaid Governor or Deputy are required to adminiſter, and ſuch Perſon elected not taking the ſame, his Election ſhall be null and void; and the Court ſhall proceed to a new Election, according to this and the laſt Charter.

AND our further Will and Pleaſure is, That no Perſon that is or ſhall be choſen Governor or Deputy of the Company, ſhall continue in their Places more than two Years together; and no Perſon, that hath ſerved therein two Years together, ſhall be capable of being re-elected till two Years after. And further, if above ſixteen of the precedent Years Committeeſmen be new choſen at the next annual Election, the Supernumeraries, who have the feweſt Votes, their Election ſhall be void, and others choſen in their Places; ſo that at leaſt eight new ones ſhall be elected.

AND whereas by our Charter of Nov. 11, 1693, we did order that the ſaid Governor and Company ſhould not give Licence to any Perſon or Ships to trade or ſail into or from the Eaſt-Indies, upon any private Account, on Pain of making void the two laſt Charters: Now we do hereby direct, That the ſaid Governor and Company may licenſe the Commanders and Mariners of their own Ships, (and no other) to trade in ſuch Commodities and to ſuch a Value as ſhall be allowed of by any General Court, and no otherwiſe, provided always that due Entries be made thereof, and the Duties paid at the Cuſtom-Houſe before the Landing; any former Charter to the contrary notwithſtanding.

AND whereas by the aforeſaid Charter we ordered the ſaid Governor and Company Yearly to export the Value of 100,000 l. of Engliſh Manufacture. To the End the Truth thereof may appear, we do hereby order them to give in unto us, our Privy Council, in the Month of Auguſt Yearly, a true Account fairly written, under the Governor or Deputy's Hand, of the Nature, Quantity, Value, and Coſt of ſuch Goods by them exported Yearly, and from what Place, and that upon the Oath of the proper Officers and Servants of the Company. And we do hereby order, That none of the Goods ſo exported ſhall be again landed in England, or carried elſewhere, than within the Limits of the Company's Charter.

AND our further Will and Pleaſure is, That if any ſix or more of the Adventurers having 1000 l. each, or more in his own Right in the Joint-Stock, and qualified to vote by the laſt Charter, ſhall, at any Time hereafter, by Writing under their Hands, delivered to, or left for the Governor or Deputy at the Eaſt-India-Houſe, requeſt that a General Court may be called; the Governor, or his Deputy, ſhall within eight Days ſummons a General Court accordingly, which (or any other) ſhall not be broken up without the Conſent of the Majority of the preſent Members capable to vote. And our further Will and Pleaſure is, That all private Committees ſhall be choſen by the General Court; and no Governor, Deputy or Committees, ſhall lend any of the Company's Money, unleſs they be previouſly authorized by the General Court; nor ſhall any Goods ſold be delivered to the Buyer, till the Money is paid down for the ſame, or Security given to the Company's Satisfaction; and no Court of Committees, nor any Members of the ſaid Company, ſhall, by an Agreement, bind the General Stock of the Company for receiving or delivering Stock without Leave of a General Court.

AND further our Will and Pleaſure is, That the Company's Caſh be kept in effective Money within their own Houſe, and always be in Cuſtody of three (at leaſt) of the Committees of the Treaſury, and by them iſſued out to the Caſhier, as the Company's Occaſions require. And no Sum of Money ſhall be allowed on the Company's Account, but when it ſhall appear when and to whom, and for what it has been paid, excepting only when the General Court has previouſly authorized any to diſpoſe thereof without Account.

AND whereas by the late King Charles's Patent of April 3, 1661, the Company was allowed two ſix Months for the Payment of the Duties and Cuſtoms of Goods. Notwithſtanding that Clauſe in the aboveſaid Charter, they ſhall, after two Years hence, (in Caſe we ſhall require the ſame Thing in Writing) make preſent Payment of the Cuſtoms due by them on Goods imported, and ſhall be allowed for ſuch Payment, a Diſcount of 4 l. 10 s. per Cent. per Annum, in lieu of the ſaid two ſix Months; and 6 l. 5 s. per Cent. per Annum on additional Duties, in lieu of the four three Months allowed by Act of Parliament.

PROVIDED always, and our poſitive and expreſs Meaning is, That if the Charters of October 7, or November 11, or theſe Preſents, or the Continuation thereof in Whole or in Part, ſhall not appear to be profitable to us or our Realm; then, after three Years Warning, all the ſaid Charters ſhall be determined and void, and the ſaid Governor and Company ſhall no longer continue a Corporation.

AND further, The ſaid Governor and Company ſhall, by Writing under their Common Seal, to be approved of by our Attorney or Solicitor-General, declare their Acceptance and Submiſſion to the Conditions and Regulations of the two laſt and this preſent Charter. Which if they either refuſe or neglect to do, they ſhall no longer act as a Corporation. In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs ourſelves at Weſtminſter, the 28th of September, in the ſixth Year of our Reign.

An ABSTRACT of the CHARTER granted to the NEW EAST-INDIA COMPANY, by his Majeſty King WILLIAM, under the Great Seal of England, Sept. 5, 1698. and the tenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign.

WILLIAM the Third, by the Grace of God King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, Greeting. Whereas by a late late Act of Parliament, entitled, An Act for raiſing a Sum not exceeding two Millions, upon a Fund for Payment of Annuities, after the Rate of eight per Cent. per Annum, and for ſettling a Trade to the Eaſt-Indies; it is, amongſt other Things enacted, That all the Monies ariſing by the ſeveral Duties, upon ſeveral Commodities therein mentioned, ſhall be brought and paid in the Receipt of our Exchequer, as is there preſcribed, under the Penalties therein mentioned; and that yearly, (reckoning the firſt Year to begin the 29th of September 1698.) the full Sum of 160,000 l. of the ſaid Monies ſhall be the whole and entire Fund; and if the ſaid Monies do not extend to that Sum, then they ſhall be Part of the Fund towards the paying of the ſeveral Annuities there expreſſed.

And it is further enacted, That it might be lawful for us to appoint Perſons to take in voluntary Subſcriptions of all Natives and Foreigners, for themſelves or in Truſt, and Bodies Politick and Corporate (the Governor and Company of the Bank of England only excepted) no Perſon ſubſcribing for leſs than 100 l. all the Subſcriptions not to exceed 2,000,000 l. to be paid into our Exchequer, ſubject to ſuch Allowances and Defalcations as are therein expreſſed, and the Subſcriptions to be made on or before the ſaid 29th Day of September 1698. And that all Bodies Corporate and Politick, and all other Perſons whatſoever, ſo ſubſcribing and paying in their Subſcriptions and their Succeſſors, &c. ſhould have, for ever, one certain yearly Sum or Annuity, at the Rate of eight per Cent. per Annum, in the Manner thereby preſcribed.

And it is further enacted, That it might be lawful for us to incorporate all ſuch Perſons ſo ſubſcribing and paying, as in the ſaid Act expreſſed into one Body Politick and Corporate, by the Name of the General Society entitled to the Advantages given by an Act of Parliament for advancing a Sum not exceeding 2,000,000, for the Service of the Crown of England. And that the ſaid Sum of 2,000,000, one Moiety or any greater Part thereof being ſo ſubſcribed, on or before the ſaid 29th of September 1698, all ſuch Subſcribers and their Succeſſors, for ever, ſhould have Liberty freely to traffick, and uſe the Trade of Merchandize into and from the Eaſt-Indies, and Parts and Limits in the ſaid Act mentioned, and ſubject to ſuch Reſtrictions as are there expreſſed. And that it ſhall be lawful for us by our Charters, or Letters Patents, to direct how the Shares of all Perſons concerned in the Fund of the General Society ſhould be transferred.

And it is likewiſe enacted, That in Caſe the Duties appropriated for the Payment of the Annuities of the ſaid Fund, ſhould be at any Time deficient, the ſaid Annuities ſhould be made up out of the next Aids raiſed by Act of Parliament, in the Manner therein mentioned.

And whereas by our Letters Patents under the Great Seal of England of the 14th of July laſt paſt, we did nominate and appoint Commiſſioners for taking and receiving ſuch Subſcriptions as aboveſaid: And did declare, That if that Sum, or one Moiety thereof at leaſt were ſubſcribed for, by that Time we would make out our Royal Charter for the Incorporation of the Subſcribers into a General Society; and that we would alſo make out another Charter, conſtituting them to be one Company, by the Name of the Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, with ſuch Powers and Privileges as are therein expreſſed.

And whereas we have, by our ſaid Letters Patents, declared, That the Share and Shares of all, or any of the ſaid Subſcribers, may be tranſferrable and aſſignable to any other Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, willing to purchaſe the ſame, ſo as the ſaid Tranſferrences and Aſſignments be made in Writing, and in ſuch Manner and Form as has already been in the ſaid Charter, or is or ſhall be in this or in any other, by us, our Heirs or Succeſſors appointed.

And whereas it appears to us, that the Sum of two Millions of Pounds Sterling, have been already ſubſcribed, and the firſt Tenth Part thereof hath been paid or anſwered to our Uſe, purſuant to the ſaid Act, on or before the 16th Day of July laſt paſt, by us, and by, &c. And by ſeveral other Perſons in the ſaid Book of Subſcriptions, and in the Duplicate thereof particularly named.

And whereas by our Royal Charter, or Letters Patents of the third Day of this preſent Month of September, we created and eſtabliſhed the ſaid Corporation, or Body Politick, called The General Society entitled to the Advantages, &c. And they being deſirous to be incorporated as a Company, with a Joint Stock, the better to manage their Trade. Now know ye, That we, in Purſuance of the Powers and Clauſes in the ſaid Act of Parliament, and of our gracious Promiſe and Declaration, and by Virtue of our Royal Prerogative, &c. have made, ordained, conſtituted, declared, appointed and eſtabliſhed the ſaid Subſcribers and their Succeſſors for ever, and all Perſons and Bodies Politick or Corporate deriving a Title from them or any of them, to any Share in the Fund or Annuities of the ſaid Subſcribers, to be one Body Politick and Corporate, under the Name of The Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, and them and their Succeſſors for ever, under the ſaid Name, one Body Corporate and Politick in Deed and in Name, we make, conſtitute and appoint for us, our Heirs and Succeſſors for ever, granting, allowing and ordaining, that they ſhall have a perpetual Succeſſion, and may uſe a Common Seal for the Affairs and Buſineſs of the Company, with Power to break, alter and renew their Seal, as often as to them ſhall ſeem meet, and they ſhall for ever be capable in Law to have, purchaſe, receive, hold, poſſeſs and retain for the Uſe of themſelves and Succeſſors, any Manors, Meſſuages, Lands, Rents, Tenements, Liberties, Privileges, Franchiſes, Hereditaments, Poſſeſſions, Goods and Chattles, of what Kind, Nature or Quality ſoever; and moreover, to purchaſe and acquire all Goods and Things whatſoever, from which they are not reſtrained by the ſaid Act; and alſo to ſell, grant, demiſe, alien or diſpoſe of all the aboveſaid Things, or any of them; and alſo to ſue and implead, and be ſued and impleaded, anſwer and defend, and be anſwered and defended in all Courts whatſoever, and before all Judges, Juſtices, Offices and Miniſters of us, our Heirs and Succeſſors, and in all Clauſes, Suits and Pleas whatſoever. And all Corporations or Perſons who ſhall derive any Right or Title from any of the ſaid Subſcribers or their Succeſſors, ſhall be eſteemed Members of the ſaid Company, and received and admitted as ſuch gratis.

And our Royal Will and Pleaſure further is, That if any Perſon, being a Member of the General Society, and not of the Company, ſhall hereafter deſire to be received as a Member of the ſaid Company, and to join his Share in the Capital Stock of the General Society, to and with the Engliſh Company trading to the Indies, the General Court of the Company (if they think fit) may admit him, and after ſuch Admittance, his Share of the Capital Fund of the Society ſhall be transferr'd to the Company, and become Part of their Capital Stock. Provided always, That within ſix Days after ſuch Admittance an Entry thereof be made in the Books of the Company, pany, and Notice thereof given to the Auditor of our Exchequer, that he may pay the Annuity to the Company. And we do hereby direct our High Treaſurer, Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, and Under-Treaſurer, to pay the ſaid Annuities without any Warrant from us, as far as the Monies ariſing from the Deputies appropriated to that Uſe, come in.

AND it ſhall further be lawful for the ſaid Company to augment their Capital Stock (if the Trade require it) but with ſuch Limitations always, as in the ſaid Act of Parliament are expreſſed. But the ſaid Company ſhall not ſend out of England, or any other Country, Goods, Wares, Corn, Bullion, or Merchandize, above what is expreſſed in the ſaid Act of Parliament, but ſhall be ſubject in every Thing, to the Reſtrictions therein contained, but ſhall trade according to the true Meaning of the ſaid Act, to the Parts of Aſia, Africa and America, beyond the Cape of Good Hope, and to the Steeights of Magellan. And all Perſons, before their Admiſſion into the ſaid Company, ſhall take an Oath before two or more of the Directors or Managers to be faithful to the ſaid Company, and always to aſſiſt with their beſt Advice and Council, for the good Management and Government thereof; and that they ſhall not in any Manner or Way whatſoever trade within the Limits of the Company's Charter, for their own private Account. And Quakers, inſtead of ſuch Oaths, ſhall make a ſolemn Declaration in Writing to the ſame Effect.

AND our further Will and Pleaſure is, That the ſaid Company ſhall cauſe Books to be kept in their Office, in which Entry ſhall be made before two or more of the Directors of the ſaid Company, (upon the Oath of the proper Officers) of all Goods and Coins, &c. Shipt off, &c. And in Caſe more to be Shipt off then Enter'd, they ſhall be Seized, and together with the Penalties, to be levied upon the Offenders, according to the Act of Parliament, ſhall be applied to the Uſes mentioned in the ſaid Act.

AND our further Will and Pleaſure is, That the ſaid Company ſhall give Security, as the Act directs, for bringing their Goods to England or Wales, (except in ſuch Caſes as the Act excepts.) And alſo all Goods ſo imported by them into England or Wales, ſhall be ſold publickly by Inch of Candle, and not otherwiſe, and no Lot of Goods ſo ſold (except Jewels) ſhall exceed 1000 l. And further, the ſaid Company promiſe and covenant by theſe Preſents, that they ſhall export Yearly, in Goods of the Growth and Product, and Manufacture of England, the Value of one tenth Part of the Fund, with which they trade to the ſaid Eaſt-Indies; of which they ſhall give us in Yearly to our Privy-Council, in the Month of October, a true Account, fairly written, and ſigned by two or more of the Directors, that the Truth thereof may the better appear, and that upon the Oath of the proper Officers; nor ſhall any of the ſaid Goods be landed again in England, or carried into any Place or Country, without the Limits of the Company's Charter.

AND the ſaid Company does hereby propoſe and covenant to furniſh to the Crown Yearly (the Crown allowing the Prime Coſt, Charges and Duties) ſuch a Quantity of Salt-Petre, as is under, viz. As the Sum of two Millions reckoned in Money, is to five Hundred Tons of Salt-Petre, in the whole; ſo the Sum which the ſaid Company may by Virtue of the Act, trade for in one Year, ſhall be to the Quantity of Salt-Petre, the ſaid Company ſhall furniſh to the Crown. Which Quantity the ſaid Company (as Members of the General-Society) was to furniſh according to the Act of Parliament.

AND for the Encouragement of the ſaid Company, we further promiſe, That they and their Succeſſors ſhall be allowed the ſame Diſcount in the Payment of their Duties and Cuſtoms, that was granted to the preſent Governor and Company, trading to the Indies by a Clauſe in our Charter of Regulations of the 28th of September 1694.

AND we do hereby Will and Appoint, That the ſaid Company maintain a Miniſter and a School-Maſter in the Iſland of St. Helena, as ſoon as the ſaid Iſland ſhall be in their Poſſeſſion. And alſo a Miniſter in every Garriſon and ſuperior Factory, and a Chaplain in every Ship of 500 Tons or upwards, all which Miniſters and Chaplains ſhall be firſt approved by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or Biſhop of LONDON; and at their Arrival there, ſhall give themſelves to the Learning of the Portugueſe Language, and the Language of Countries where they reſide, the better to inſtruct the People; and when any ſuch Miniſter dies, his Place ſhall be ſupplied by the Chaplain of the next Ship: And the Company ſhall alſo provide School-Maſters in the ſaid Factories and Garriſons.

AND for the better managing their Affairs, the Company ſhall chooſe twenty-four Directors, who (or any thirteen, or more of them) ſhall be called, A Court of the Directors, for the ordering, managing and directing the Affairs of the ſaid Company and Corporation. And we do further appoint, That Edward Allen, Abraham Beake, James Bateman, John Cary, Sir Henry Furneſe, Peter Godfrey, Peter Gott, Gilbert Heathcott, Edmund Harriſon, Sir Theodore Janſen, Samuel Lock, Edward Littleton, Joſeph Martin, Streynſham Maſters, Ephraim Montague, Peter Paggen, Robert Raworth, Benjamin Rokeby, Samuel Shepherd, Sir William Scawen, William Steward, Thomas Vernon, William Withers, and George White, (who are choſen for this Purpoſe by a Majority of the Subſcibers) ſhall be the firſt and preſent Directors, and ſhall continue in that Station till the 25th of March 1700, at which Time others ſhall be choſen; and if any of the ſaid Directors die, or be removed before that Time, another ſhall be choſen in his Stead.

AND we do further grant, that the ſaid Company may meet about their Affairs in a general Court, when and where they pleaſe. Their Directors ſhall be choſen Yearly, between the 25th of March and the 25th of April; each Perſon having 500 l. Share, and being perſonally preſent, ſhall have a Vote; and each Corporation having that Sum, ſhall depute ſuch Perſon as they pleaſe to vote; and none ſhall have Power to vote as an Elector, nor at the General Courts for making of By-Laws, who does not (he being required to do it by any Member of the Company there preſent having 500 l. in the Stock) take the following Oath, viz. I A. B. do ſwear, that 500 l. or more, of the Capital Stock of the Body Politick, called by the Name of The Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, doth at this Time belong to me in my own Right, and not in truſt for any Perſon or Perſons whatſoever. And no Members ſhall give more than one Vote, whatſoever Intereſt they may have in the Stock. And Quakers ſhall take a Solemn Declaration in lieu of the Oath. And the Deputies of Corporations ſhall Swear or Declare, That, to the beſt of their Knowledge, their reſpective Corporations have 500 l. or more in the Stock, in their Right: Nor ſhall any Perſon be capable of being choſen a Director, but natural or naturalized Subjects of England, and ſuch as have in their own Right 2000 l. at leaſt in the Stock, which all Perſons already, or hereafter choſen Directors, ſhall be obliged to take their Corporal Oath upon, as alſo to take this other Oath, viz. I A. B. do faithfully promiſe, that in the Office of Director, &c. I will be indifferent and equal to all Manner of Perſons, and give my beſt Advice and Aſſiſtance for the Support and good Government of the Company; and in the Execution of my ſaid Office, I will faithfully and honeſtly demean myſelf, according to the beſt of my Skill and Underſtanding: Such as are Quakers ſhall take a Declaration to this Effect. And the ſaid Oaths and Declaration, may be adminiſtered by our Chancellor of England, Chancellors of the Exchequer, or two or more of the Directors, they having themſelves taken the ſaid Oaths firſt: And the ſaid Court of Directors ſhall have Power to adminiſter Oaths of Fidelity to all inferior Officers, Agents, Factors, Servants, &c.

And Our Will and Pleaſure further is, That the ſaid Directors ſummon four General Courts every Year, in the Months of December, March, June, and September, and any of them failing to meet in the Month appointed, ſhall meet the Month after. And the ſaid Directors ſhall (being thereto required by nine or more Members qualified to Vote) be obliged to call General Courts within ten Days after ſuch Requeſt made to them, failing of which it ſhall be lawful for the nine or more Members aforeſaid, upon ten Days Notice in Writing, to be fixed upon the Royal Exchange of LONDON, to ſummon and hold a General Court, to diſpatch any Buſineſs and cognoſce of any Complaint againſt any Director, of which if he cannot vindicate himſelf to the Court's Satisfaction, he may, in another General Court, to be holden ten Days after that be depoſed, and another qualified Member choſen in his Place. And we do further grant, that the ſaid Directors may meet about the Buſineſs of their Company, and act in every thing according to the By-Laws given them by any General Court, and where they have no By-Laws, as they think meet. And the General Courts of the ſaid Company may puniſh Delinquents amongſt themſelves as they pleaſe, and levy Mulcts, and Fines impoſed upon ſuch without being accountable to any. And the firſt General Court of the ſaid Company We appoint to meet within forty Days after the Day of the Date of theſe Preſents. And the ſaid Company ſhall cauſe a Book or Books to be kept by an Accomptant in their Office, in which ſhall be enter'd, from Time to Time, the Accompt as well as the Principal Joint Stock of the ſaid Company, as of the Additional Stock, (if any be) which the ſaid Accomptant ſhall atteſt upon Oath, if required ſo to do.

And we do appoint the Method of Aſſigning to be as follows: I A. B. this Day of in the Year of our Lord do aſſign and transfer of my Intereſt or Share, or being my Intereſt or Share, in the principal Stock and in the Additional Stock, &c. Fund of the Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, and all Benefit ariſing thereby, unto his Executors, Adminiſtrators, and Aſſigns. Witneſs my Hand

Or if the Perſon be not preſent, it muſt be done by another, by Virtue of a Letter of Attorney, of which mention muſt be made in the Aſſignment: And by dying Perſons it may be done in their Wills, atteſted by three creditable Witneſſes.

And our further Will and Pleaſure is, that when there ſhall happen an Equality of Voices in a General Court, the Matters in Queſtion ſhall be determined by Lots.

And whereas by the ſaid Act of Parliament all Goods imported are charged with a Duty of 5 per Cent. for the Uſes therein mentioned, We hereby charge all our reſpective Officers to pay back the ſaid Duty to the Company, deducting only neceſſary Charges for Collecting it, to be applied as in the ſaid Act is expreſſed.

And further our Royal Will and Pleaſure is, That they, the ſaid Company, enjoy the whole and entire Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, and none other of our Subjects preſume to viſit or haunt the ſame; ſo as the Governor and Company of Merchants of LONDON, formerly conſtituted and trading to the Indies, be not hereby reſtrained from continuing to trade thither till September 29, 1701, and ſo ſuch Ships, not in the Service of the ſaid Governor and Company, as were cleared outward from England, or elſewhere, for the Eaſt-Indies or Limits aforeſaid, before July 1, 1698, or the Lading thereof, ſo as they return into ſome Port of this Kingdom, without breaking Bulk in any other Part of Europe, ſhall not be liable to the Penalties aforeſaid.

And we further grant Power to the ſaid Company to ſeize all Goods in the Indies or in England, that are ſeizable, by Virtue of the ſaid Act of Parliament; allowing the ſaid Company Power to licenſe their own Officers and Servants to trade and import what precious Commodities they think fit, due Entries being firſt made on the ſame. And we alſo grant to the ſaid Company the Power of appointing Governors and Officers for their Forts and Factories, who may raiſe, train and muſter ſuch Military Forces as ſhall be neceſſary for their Defence, reſerving always the Sovereign Right, Power and Dominion over all the ſaid Forts, Plantations, to us, our Heirs and Succeſſors.

And further, We grant the ſaid Company Power to eſtabliſh one or more ſuch Courts of Judicature as the other Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies was allowed to eſtabliſh, by the Charter granted them by the late King James, in the ſecond Year of his Reign.

And further we grant, That the ſaid Company ſhall enjoy, to all Intents and Purpoſes, all Privileges in the City of LONDON as fully as any Company of Merchants whatſoever. And we hereby charge and command all our Admirals, &c. and other Officers by Sea and Land, to be aiding to them in the Enjoyment of the Premiſes.

And we further declare, That theſe our Letters Patents, or the Inrollment thereof, ſhall be in and by all Things valid and effectual in Law, according to the true Intent and Meaning of the ſame, and ſhall be taken, conſtrued, and adjudged in the moſt favourable and beneficial Senſe, for the beſt Advantage of the ſaid Company, as well in our Courts of Record as elſewhere, notwithſtanding any Non-recital, Miſ-recital, Defect, Incertainty or Imperfection in theſe our Letters Patents.

And we further promiſe and declare, That We, our Heirs, Succeſſors in all Times coming, will from Time to Time give and grant to the ſaid Company all the Liberties, Privileges and Immunities, that may or can be reaſonably deſired by them, or granted by us. In Witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs, Thomas Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the reſt of the Keepers and Juſtices of the Kingdom, at Weſtminſter, the fifth Day of September, in the tenth Year of our Reign.

By Writ of Privy Seal,

PIGOTT.

HEADS of Agreement between the two East-India Companies.

1. That the Effects of each Company be brought home with all convenient Speed for their ſeparate Accounts, and that all Proviſions be made for enabling both Companies to bring home their Effects with Security, and that neither the Crown nor the New Company take any Advantage, under Pretence of Forfeiture from the old Company, in Reſpect thereof.

2. That mutual Releaſes be given to each Company from the other, and to their reſpective Factors and Servants.

3. That the Old Company pay 31,500 l. and the Fund be immediately, upon Execution of their Agreement, united to the Capital Stock of the New Company.

4. That the Old Company do purchaſe, and the New Company do procure three Members to transfer to the Old Company, in their Politick Capacity, 673,500 l. in the Capital Stock and Fund of 1,662,000 l. with the Benefits, after the Execution of the Agreement, to riſe thereby; ſo that the Old Company may have 988,500 l. in the ſaid Fund, which will make the Old Company equal with the New in Fund, and Title to the Trade. Which Stock of 673,500 l. ſhall be transferred as follows, viz. one fourth Part at the Execution of the Agreement; one fourth Part at Michaelmas next; one fourth Part at Lady-Day after; and the remaining fourth Part at Michaelmas 1703; and each fourth Part ſhall be paid for at the Time of ſuch Transfer, at 100 l. for 100 l.

5. That the Old Company's Dead Stock at home and abroad be valued at 330,000 l. and the New Company's Dead Stock at home and abroad at 70,000 l. and that the Old Company, at Time of transferring the firſt fourth Part of the ſaid 673,500 l. do transfer all their Dead Stock abroad and at home to the New Company; the New Company paying for one Moiety thereof at the ſame Time 16,500 l. and that the Old Company do alſo pay to the New Company 35,000 l. for the Moiety of their Dead Stock; and thereupon the Old Company ſhall have and be intitled to a Moiety of both the ſaid Dead Stocks, as Members of the New Company.

6. That the Old Company have the ſole Benefit of their Dead Stock at home for ſeven Years.

7. That the Members of the New Company transferring ſhall be intitled to the Arrears of the Annuity, until the Time of the ſeveral Transfers, and by the Old Company's 315,000 l. ſhall be paid to ſuch Perſons as ſhall be appointed for that Purpoſe, by the Old Company, for their Uſe.

8. That the New Company ſhall have the Benefit of all the Monies ariſing by ſuch Licences granted before their Agreement, and alſo the 5 per Cent. on all Ships entered or cleared out before this Agreement, except the Ships of the Old Company now abroad, or that ſhall go out before the Executing their Agreement, and the 5 per Cent. that ſhall ariſe upon the Effects loaden on the ſaid Old Company's Ships, ſhall be wholly for Benefit of the Old Company.

9. That each Company do deſiſt from any ſeparate Exportation, from and after the Executing the Agreement.

10. That during ſeven Years, each Company ſhall have an equal Power in the Adminiſtration and Management of the Fund and Trade, and that for that Purpoſe twelve Perſons ſhall be Yearly appointed by the General Court of each Company reſpectively, out of the Court of Committees and Directors of the ſaid Companies, who ſhall be called in the Charter, The Managers of the United Trade to India.

11. That the Additional Stock ſhall be raiſed for carrying on the future Trade, and advanced in ſuch Proportions, as the ſaid 24 Managers, or the major Part of them, ſhall from Time to Time appoint; the General Courts of each Company agreeing thereunto.

12. That, during the Space of ſeven Years, the Old Company ſhall preſerve their Stock in their Politick Capacity, and, for that Time, remain a ſeparate Corporation, and transfer and aſſign in their own Books, as now they do; and at the End of the ſaid ſeven Years, the Old Company ſhall transfer and aſſign in the Books of the New Company, their Share in the Fund to their ſeveral Members, who ſhall be then intitled to the ſame; and thereupon the ſaid Members of the Old Company ſhall become and be admitted Members of the New Company, gratis.

13. That each Company do indemnify the other from their reſpective Debts and Demands, and that a proper Proviſion be made for that Purpoſe.

14. That the New Company ſhall not, after the executing their Agreement, take up any Money upon their Common Seal, or do any other Act, except what relates to their ſeparate Effects as aforeſaid, without the Concurrence of the Old Company.

15. That the Old Company, within three Months before the End of the Space of ſeven Years, ſhall grant and aſſign to his Majeſty the Effects and Produce of their preſent Stock, as ſhall be then ſtanding out, to the Intent his Majeſty may regrant the ſame to ſuch Truſtees as ſhall then be nominated by the Old Company in Truſt, in the firſt Place to indemnify them from all Expences and Damages they ſhall ſuſtain in the Execution of their Truſts; and, in the next Place, for the Payment of the Creditors of the Old Company, if any ſuch there ſhall then be; and afterwards in Truſt for the Members of the Old Company, or for ſuch other Purpoſes as the Old Company ſhall appoint.

16. His Majeſty covenants to make ſuch a Regrant within 10 Days after the making ſuch Grant and Aſſignment as aforeſaid.

17. A Covenant from the Old Company within one Month after the ſaid ſeven Years, to ſurrender their Charters and Corporation, and a Covenant to the King to accept the ſame.

18. A Covenant from the King within 10 Days after ſuch Surrender, to make a new Grant to the ſame Truſtees, and ſubject to the ſame Truſt of all ſuch Eſtates and Effects of the Old Company as ſhall come to or devolve upon the Crown, by Reaſon of ſuch Surrender.

19. That immediately from and after the ſaid Surrender, the New Company does change its Name, and be called the United Company of Merchants of England trading to the Eaſt-Indies; nevertheleſs, the future Management of the ſaid Stock and Trading, after the ſaid Term of ſeven Years, is to be according to the New Company's Charter of the 5th of September 1698.

20. That for the better attaining of the Purpoſes aforeſaid, there be a Tripartite Indenture to be executed by his Majeſty, if he ſo pleaſe; and both the ſaid Companies, wherein ſuch proper Covenants and Proviſions may be made as ſhall be thought reaſonable, with proper Releaſes from his Majeſty to each Company.

The CHARTER of SETTLEMENT for the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, granted upon the Agreement of the two Companies, by Way of ABSTRACT: Being an Indenture Tripartite, dated July 22, 1702, between the Queen, the Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies, and the Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies.

RECITING, That the Governor and Company being poſſeſſed of 315,000 l. in the General Society, and in Right thereof intitled to 25,200 l. per Annum in the Fund; and the Engliſh

Engliſh Company intitled to 1,662,000 l. Capital Stock, and 132,960 l. per Annum in the Fund. To obviate all future Diſputes, &c. both Companies do agree,

That the Governor and Company ſhall purchaſe of the Engliſh Company ſo much as will make each Company's Share equal to the other. And the whole Trade to be carried on for the ſaid two United Stocks for ſeven Years, for the Benefit of all the Members of the Engliſh Company. And that the ſaid Governor and Company ſhall have a Right and Power equal to the reſt of the Members of the Engliſh Company, in the Management of the ſaid Trade for ſeven Years. And at the End of ſeven Years the Trade to be carried on by the Engliſh Company, by whatſoever Name it ſhall then be called (ſubject to the Redemption by Parliament) according to the Charter of September 5, 1698.

The Engliſh Company covenant to ſell and transfer to the Governor and Company 673,500 l. Capital Stock, the Governor and Company paying for the ſame 100 l. for 100 l. the firſt Payment to begin on July 25, 1702; the ſecond on September 29 following, the reſt at two half yearly Payments following. The Engliſh Company to receive the Arrears of the Annuity till the Stock is transferred; and the Governor and Company to accept the Stock, and pay for the ſame accordingly. The Charge of the Transfers to be born by both Companies equally; and both Companies covenant to do any further Act that may be neceſſary for more effectually uniting them.

The Governor and Company to keep their Stock in their Politick Capacities for ſeven Years, without transferring to their particular Members.

It being agreed that the Dead Stock of the Governor and Company ſhall be valued at 330,000 l. and that of the Engliſh Company at 70,000 l. 'tis covenanted that it ſhall be veſted in the Engliſh Company for the Benefit of the United Trade, and to be accepted as 400,000 l. towards the new Additional Stock agreed to be advanced: In Purſuance of which, the Governor and Company are to convey theirs to the Engliſh Company; and the Engliſh Company to pay them 130,000 l. to make up their Proportion, and to ſtand ſeized of the ſaid Stock, and of their own Dead Stock, for the Benefit of the United Trade.

The Governor and Company to receive the Arrears of Rents and Profits, &c. of their Dead Stock, and pay all Charges to the Date hereof, and to have the Uſe of their Dead Stock at home for ſeven Years.

Her Majeſty confirms the Engliſh Company's Charter of September 5, 1698, and each Company be as a Corporation for ſeven Years, and ſeparately hold General Courts, &c. raiſe Money to be furniſhed two Ways for carrying on the United Trade, and do their own ſeparate Buſineſs; and each Company are made liable to pay their own Debts, and the particular Members of both Companies to be liable thereunto, ſo far forth as they are made ſo by the Act of Parliament, and the two Companies to bear each other harmleſs from either Company's Debts reſpectively; but the Debts contracted on Account of the United Trade, to be for and paid by the Stock of the United Trade.

The Governor and Company to bring home their ſeparate Eſtate with all convenient Speed, and divide it amongſt their Members, and the Engliſh Company to aſſiſt them in getting in their Effects.

The Engliſh Company are to pay the Governor and Company ſo much of the five per Cent. as ſhall after the Date of theſe Preſents be due and paid by the ſaid Governor and Company, their Officers, &c. in Purſuance of the Act of Parliament; but the Governor and Company are not to ſend any Goods, Bullion, &c. on their ſeparate Account after the Date hereof; as alſo the Engliſh Company are to ſend no more on theirs.

The Engliſh Company to bring home their ſeparate Eſtate with all convenient Speed, and divide the ſame amongſt their Members: The Governor and Company obliging themſelves to aſſiſt them in getting their Effects: Both Companies for their ſeparate Effects, ſhall have ſuch Uſe of the Warehouſes in India, as the Managers direct; and the Governor and Company further covenant to do any other Act that ſhall be thought neceſſary to enable the Engliſh Company to collect the reſerved Annuities, with the Arrears and Deficiencies of them, and the Debts, Goods, Merchandizes, Eſtate and Stock in Trade belonging to the Engliſh Company, and the Duty of five per Cent. for Goods ſent before the final Execution of this Agreement (excepting the Goods of the Governor and Company, their Factors, &c.) alſo the Profits and Money ariſing by Licences, &c. to that Time; and to diſtribute the ſame amongſt the aforeſaid preſent Additional Stock, excluſive of the aforeſaid Governor and Company, and without laying any Claim to the ſame, in reſpect of their Stock of 315,000 l. of 673,500 l. to be by them purchaſed.

The carrying on the United Trade to be (for ſeven Years) by ſuch Orders as ſhall be made by the General Courts of both Companies, in the Name of the Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, but by Direction of 24 Managers, whereof 12 are to be choſen out of each Company, who are to act according to ſuch Rules as ſhall be given them by both General Courts, or for want of ſuch Orders at their Diſcretion, and may appoint a Treaſurer, a Caſhire, Governors abroad, Factors, &c. as they think fit.

Both Companies are to chuſe their twelve Managers on the 10th of April, and each ſend the Names to the other in three Days after. And the ſaid General Courts have Power, without aſſigning any Cauſe, to remove any Manager they have choſen at Pleaſure; and every Year each Company obliges them to chuſe four new ones of the twelve they are to elect. All the Managers are to take an Oath, to be indifferent and equal to all Manner of Perſons, and to give their beſt Advice and Aſſiſtance for the Management of the Trade, &c. and, upon Neglect of taking the Oath for fourteen Days, the Office to be void.

Both Companies covenant to pay an equal Proportion for carrying on the United Trade, which ſhall be called, The New Additional Stock of the Engliſh Company. And the Members of each Company may transfer their Stocks in the Book of the ſame Company reſpectively, ſo as the Company keep their Stock in their Politick Capacity for ſeven Years.

It is further covenanted, That the Annuity, after the 24th of July, 1720, ſhall be paid to the Managers Treaſurer, authorized under the Common Seal for ſeven Years, and afterwards to the Treaſurer of the Engliſh Company.

Both Companies covenant with her Majeſty, That the Engliſh Company ſhall export to the Eaſt-Indies of the Growth, &c. of England, at leaſt a Tenth of the whole Sum that they ſhall trade for, by Virtue of the Act of Parliament; and that an Account thereof ſhall be deliver'd to the Privy Council in April Yearly; and that they will ſell and deliver to the Office of Ordnance 494 Ton and a Quarter of good Salt-petre at 45 l. per Ton, in Time of Peace, and 53 l. in Time

Time of War; the Refraction whereof ſettled at 15 l. per Cent.

HER Majeſty appoints that a Proteſtant Miniſter and School-maſter be maintained in St. Helena and all the ſuperior Factories; and a Chaplain on board every Ship of 500 Tons, to be approved by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who ſhall be next after the fifth Perſon that ſhall be of the Council in any of the ſuperior Factories, and ſhall have the like Treatment in their Paſſages to and from India; who ſhall be obliged, within one Year after their Arrival, to learn the Portugueſe Language, and ſhall apply themſelves to learn the native Language of the Country where they ſhall reſide.

IT is appointed by her Majeſty, That the Companies Seals ſhall be taken for all Cuſtoms, except the Duties of 15 per Cent. on the Muſlins.

AND empowers the Managers, or thirteen of them, to adminiſter an Oath to their Officers, Agents, &c. That they ſhall faithfully execute their reſpective Offices, &c.

THE General Courts of both Companies are impowered to make By-Laws for the United Trade, and each Company ſeparately for their ſeparate Affairs.

THE Engliſh Company are to borrow no Money on their Common Seal, nor contract any Debts, except for Cuſtoms, &c. on the ſeparate Account, or elſe by Conſent of both Companies, or the Managers, by whom the Seal is to be kept; and to uſe no other Seal, during the ſeven Years, which the Engliſh Company may have Recourſe to for their ſeparate Concerns.

HER Majeſty grants, That the Managers, or any deputed from them, may ſeize Ships or Goods forfeited, and do all Things that Cuſtom-Houſe-Officers can do: One fourth Part of the Forfeitures to go to the Informer, and the other three Fourths (after the Deduction of Charges) to be divided amongſt all the Members of the United Trade.

BUT it is provided and agreed, That the Engliſh Company ſhall grant Licences to the Factories, Mariners, &c. employed in the United Trade, to traffick in the Manner and Form as the Managers ſhall think fit; and alſo to the Governor and Company to bring home their Effects; likewiſe to licenſe Free Merchants to import Diamonds.

HER Majeſty grants, That the General Courts of both Companies, or the Managers, to have the ſole Government of Forts, &c. and Liberty to build any Forts and Caſtles, &c. and to provide Military Forces, &c. with Liberty likewiſe to coin foreign Coins in India. And that the Governor and Company may convey to the Engliſh Company Bombay and St. Helena; and commands their Admirals, &c. to aſſiſt the Engliſh Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, and thoſe employed under them.

IT is further agreed, That the Governor and Company will not give their ſingle Voices at the General Courts of the Engliſh Company. And her Majeſty grants to the Governor and Company, that they may admit any Perſon into their Company, without Fine or Oath, unleſs they think fit to require it, during the ſeven Years Time they are to continue a Corporation, notwithſtanding any preceding Charters.

IT is further appointed, That the Governor and Company ſhall, after ſeven Years, within forty Days, transfer their Stock amongſt the then Members of their own Company, except 100000 l. which may be aſſigned to particular Perſons in Truſt for ſecuring the Payment of ſuch Debts as they ſhall then own, and the then ſeveral Members of the Governor and Company ſhall thereupon be ſeverally admitted and become Members of the Engliſh Company, &c. by whom, after the ſaid ſeven Years, the whole Trade ſhall be managed, in Purſuance of their Charter, September 5, 1698.

THE Governor and Company, at ſome Time before the End of ſeven Years, are to grant all their Debts and Effects to the Crown, which the Queen will regrant back again within 10 Days, to Perſons in Truſt for the Company; and the Governor and Company oblige themſelves to ſurrender their Charter within two Months after the End of ſeven Years; which her Majeſty promiſes to accept; and after the Surrender, the Engliſh Company is to change its Name, and be called The United Company of Merchants trading to the Eaſt-Indies: And from that Time are to carry on their Trade by their own Directors, and according to the Charter before-mentioned.

HER Majeſty covenants to grant any reaſonable Powers and Privileges, and releaſes both Companies of all Forfeitures, Miſdemeanors, &c. that they may have committed, either in England or Parts beyond the Sea. Likewiſe declares, That this Indenture ſhall be conſtrued in the moſt favourable Senſe for the Advantage of both Companies.

IN the Year 1730, the third of his preſent Majeſty King GEORGE II. an Act of Parliament was paſſed for reducing the Annuity or Fund of the United Eaſt-India Company, and for aſcertaining their Right of Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, and the Continuance of their Corporation for that farther Purpoſe upon Terms therein mentioned.

THE Term granted by Act of Parliament to the United Eaſt-India Company for poſſeſſing the Right of an excluſive Trade, was ſo near expiring that ſeveral Merchants and others applied themſelves to obtain by Parliament the being incorporated, and veſted with the whole Trade to the Eaſt-Indies and elſewhere, in the ſame extenſive Degree as was granted to the Company. Their Offer was to advance 3,200,000 l. to redeem the Fund and Trade of the preſent Eaſt-India Company, to be paid at five different Payments, between March 25, 1733, to March 25, 1735; and they propoſed not to trade with a Joint Stock, or in a Corporate Capacity, but to keep the Trade open to all the Subjects of Great Britain, upon Licence from ſuch propoſed new Company, to be granted to all his Majeſty's Subjects deſiring the ſame, on proper Terms and Conditions. But this Propoſal was rejected; and inſtead of that it was agreed with the Eaſt-India Company, to ſecure to them the full excluſive Trade to the Eaſt-Indies till the Year 1766, upon the following Conditions, 1. That the Eaſt-India Company ſhould pay into the Exchequer the Sum of 200,000 l. towards the Supplies for the Year 1730, without any Intereſt or Addition to the Capital Stock or Debt for the ſame. 2. That the Company ſhould conſent to reduce their Annuity, or yearly Fund of 160,000 l. payable to them from the Publick, to the Sum of 128,000 l. 3. That after the Year 1766, their Right to the excluſive Trade ſhould be liable (upon three Years Notice, and Repayment of their Capital Stock of 3,200,000 l.) to be taken away by Parliament.

THE Deſign of the aforementioned Act is to confirm this Agreement.

NEW MERCHANTS ADVENTURERS.

A NEW Company of Merchants Adventurers there was in Stow's Time, of whoſe Incorporation he could give no Account; but their Coat and Creſt were given by Sir William Seger, Garter, and Mr. Cambden, Clarencieux, Kings at Arms, the 13th of November, in the 14th of King James I. The Motto was; Reddite cuique ſuum. This Company is now extinct.

The

The ROYAL-AFRICAN, or GUINEY COMPANY of MERCHANTS.

THIS Company is called the Royal Adventurers of England trading into Africa, which by their Charter granted to them by K. Charles II. bearing Date the 20th of January, in the 14th Year of his Reign, have very large Immunities granted them, as Power to call and keep Courts, to make By-Laws, ſo as not repugnant to the Law of the Land, and to puniſh Tranſgreſſors by Fine or Impriſonment; to ſet forth Men of War to defend their Factories and Forts, that at any Time after ſhall be erected and ſettled in any Part of Africa, within the Limits of their Charter; which is from Sally in South Barbary incluſive, to Cape de Bonna Eſperanza: And within the ſaid Limits all Engliſh Ships are prohibited to Trade, except thoſe of this Royal Company, and ſuch as are authorized under them. They have Power to appoint Governors over their Plantations, Forts and Factories, to raiſe Arms, to train and muſter Military Forces, and to execute Martial Law againſt Invaſions or Rebellions in their ſaid Factories; but the Sovereign Right and Dominion over the ſame is reſerved to his Majeſty and his Succeſſors. Furthermore, they have the Freedom of enjoying all the Privileges in the City of LONDON, as fully as any Company of Merchants whatſoever.

THE Atchievement belonging to this Company is thus blazoned: Or, an Elephant Sable, a Quarter, quarterly France and England. For their Creſt; out of a Crown Ducal an Anchor erected, wreathed about with a Cable, all Or, between two Wings expanded Argent, each charged with a Croſs of England. And for their Supporters; two Blackmoors proper, with Arrows in their Hands Or, headed, and feathered Argent. And for their Motto; Regio floret, Patrocinio Commercium, Commercioque Regnum.

THEIR Seal is double; One, the Elephant Supported by two Blackmoors: The other, the Effigies of King Charles II. enthroned. The Voyage Out and Home is uſually within a Year, which is but ſhort; and many Ships and Seamen are employed by this Company, who, for the Security of their Trade, have at a very great Expence erected ſeveral Forts and Factories along the Coaſt of Guiney, without which the Trade could not be preſerved to this Nation; and for that very Reaſon this Trade cannot be managed but by a Company and Joint Stock; for no private Perſon will be at the Charge of Forts and Factories: Beſides, ſuch as venture one Voyage, and perhaps no more, do uſually conſult the cheapeſt Way in their Expences and Exports; neither will they take Care to ſend ſuch good and merchantable Commodities to Trade with, as a Company will, whoſe Intereſt obligeth them to ſend ſuch as are good for the Support of their Trade, which otherwiſe would ſink. Beſides, it brings Engliſh Manufactures into a better Reputation than thoſe of our Neighbours, which this Company hath really effected in ſeveral Commodities bought in Holland, as Says, Muskets, Knives, &c. being now all exported of our own Making. And of theſe Differences in and between the Commodities ſent by the Company, and thoſe ſent by private Traders, the Natives of Guiney (who are a ſagacious People) are very ſenſible, by the ill Dealings they have met with in that Kind from ſome private Traders, which hath been a Thing very diſadvantageous to our Engliſh Manufactures and Trade: But theſe Miſchiefs have been removed ever ſince the Settling of this Company, and the Prohibition of Interloping Traders.

THIS may be reckoned the moſt beneficial Trade that belongs to the Crown, as well by the Commodities exported as imported, as by the Negro Trade for the Support of our American Plantations. The Goods exported are, Says, Perpetuanos, Broad Cloths, Welſh Plains, and other Woollen Manufactures in great Abundance; beſides Quantities of moſt other Engliſh Goods and Stuffs. The large Conſumption of which doth not only enable the Tenant the better to pay his Rent, and maintain his Family, but alſo ſets Abundance of poor People to Work. And beſides theſe Goods of our own Growth, vaſt Quantities of Foreign Commodities are ſent them, which were imported by the Eaſt-India Company, and other Merchants, as Iron, Copper, Cowries, Sieſias, Sheets, Manilloes, Royſadoes, Chints, Rombargars, Coral, Callicoes, Piccanies, Cloths, Amber, Powder, Muskets, Batteries of all Sorts, Turkey Carpets, Brandy, Strong Waters, Spirits, Ginghams, Taffeties, Beads of all Sorts, and made into Bracelets, Buckſhaws, Knives, Tallow, &c.

THE Commodities imported are Gold, Gold Duſt, Elephants Teeth, Hides, Ambergreaſe, Wax, Red Wood, Malegutta or Guiney Pepper, with divers other good and rich Commodities, beſides the great Quantities of Negro Slaves for the Supply of our American Plantations; by whoſe Labour and the Planter's Induſtry, the King and his Subjects are very much enriched.

THIS Company, for the Negotiation of their Affairs, have ſettled ſeveral Factories, as at Gambo, Rio Nuno, Rio Grande, Sierra Leona, Serbro, Ceſtos, Achin, Anta, Cormendu, Cape Corſe, Acara, Carmenine, Ardra, Benin, Callabar, and in Time, through the Succeſs of good Management, without Doubt will have many more important Places.

FROM the Gold brought from Guiney by the Company, our Gold Coin, called Guineas, took their Name; and as an Encouragement to the Company to bring over Gold, and to coin it, they are permitted by their Charter to have their Stamp, which is the ſame as the others coined, but with an Elephant on the Arms Side.

THIS Company conſiſts of a Governor, Sub-Governor, Deputy-Governor, and Court of Aſſiſtants, conſiſting of 36, annually choſen out of the Members of the Company on the 10th of January, to whom the Management of the Affairs of the ſaid Company is committed; but of theſe, any ſix or ſeven, choſen out of the Court of Aſſiſtants, may negotiate the Buſineſs, whoſe Tranſactions are to be reported to the Court for their Approbation, and theſe have their Meetings weekly or oftner, at their Houſe, called the African Houſe in Leadenhall-Street.

THIS Company hath of late been ſettled by Act of Parliament, whereby it is allowed to any others, not of the Company, to trade to Guiney, by Licence obtained from the ſaid Company, paying uſually 20 per Cent.

FOR ſome further Hiſtory of this African Company: It was reduced to a very low Ebb, Anno 1708; and, to recover itſelf, the Members thereof endeavoured in the Parliament of Queen Anne, Anno 1708-9, to obtain an Act to trade in a Joint Stock, excluſively to all other Traders.

THEN they ſet forth a Memorial, touching the Nature and State of the Trade to Africa: And therein was ſhewed, how that ever ſince they got firſt Footing on the Coaſt of Africa in the Reign of King James I. they traded thither by Companies, one after another, with Joint Stocks, and endeavour'd all along to erect Forts and Settlements for the aforeſaid Ends. But for Want of a Parliamentary Sanction, their Meaſures were always diſturbed, and the Progreſs of the Trade and Acquiſitions interrupted chiefly upon Account of a divided Intereſt; which was always more or leſs kept up among themſelves, both at home and abroad; ſo that the Trade of Africa hath been often wholly relinquiſhed for Years together, by reaſon of Intruſion, and irregular Proceedings of Interlopers. While the Trade of Africa was laid open, before the Reſtoration of King Charles II. the Dutch Company took ſuch Advantages of Separate Traders, that their Loſſes were computed to about 300,000 l. as appeared by their Petition to the King. Whereupon his Majeſty, Anno 1662, granted a Charter to the preſent Company's Predeceſſors, and they (called then the Royal African Company) paid 34,000 l. to their Predeceſſors for the few Forts and Settlements which remained in their Poſſeſſion at the Time of ſurrendering their Charter; namely, two on the North Coaſt, viz. James Iſland and Sierra Leona; and one upon the Gold Coaſt, viz. Cape Corſe Caſtle, then in an ordinary Condition, and out of Repair.

THAT in the Year 1672 it was eſtabliſhed by a new Charter, with excluſive Privileges. Then they purchaſed and repaired a conſiderable Number of Forts, Factories and Settlements on the Coaſt of Africa, contracted many Alliances with the Natives, and renewed the ſame from Time to Time; they introduced and encouraged the making of ſeveral Sorts of Woollen and other Manufactures, proper for the Trade of Guiney, and formerly manufactured in England, and reduced the making thereof to a ſtaple and ſettled Goodneſs. They exported yearly upwards of 70,000 l. worth of the ſaid Woollen and other Manufactures, and gave far better Prices for the ſame than what uſually is now given for the like. They furniſhed the Weſtern Plantations with conſtant Supplies of great Numbers of Negroes, the Produce of whoſe Labours hath added very much to the Publick Revenues and Riches of this Kingdom. They imported conſiderable Quantities of Gold Duſt, Elephants Teeth, Red Wood, and other Goods fit for being manufactured at home, &c.

So that their Trude did not only produce an annual Dividend of certain Profits to all the particular Adventurers in the Joint Stock, beſides a Multiplication of their Capital, but likewiſe ſeveral other Publick and National Advantages to the whole Kingdom.

BUT for many Years paſt they have ſtruggled with many Obſtructions and Diffiulties for Want of a Confirmation by Act of Parliament; otherwiſe the Britiſh Intereſt on the Coaſt of Africa had been by this Time in a much more flouriſhing Condition, than could be conſiſtent with a precarious Conſtitution; which permits of the pernicious Conſequences that muſt neceſſarily attend a divided Intereſt, eſpecially in a Trade where we have all the Stratagems and united Powers of formidable foreign Competitors to deal with.

THAT ſoon after the Revolution the Interlopers broke in upon the Privileges of the Royal African Company's Charter; and Anno 1697, the Parliament granted a Permiſſion to all the Subjects to trade to Africa, paying to the Company a Duty of 10 l. per Cent. for their Exports, towards the defraying the Charge and Expences of their Forts and Settlements; and ever ſince the Trade hath fallen into great Diſorders and Confuſions; for that, ſince this Liberty was allowed, the Prices of Goods and Merchandizes imported into Guiney are diminiſhed, at leaſt the one half of what they produced formerly. And the Prices of Negroes are advanced to much more than double of their former Prices; which proceeded from the Advantage the Natives take of having Variety of Chapmen. Whereas before they could have Recourſe only to the Company's Settlements and Warehouſes.

THAT foreign Rivals in this Commerce did upon Occaſion foment and encourage the Diviſions among the Traders here, who had different Intereſts; and they inſtructed the Natives how to make their Advantages hence.

THAT after this Act, in one Year the ſeparate Traders ſent eighty-one Veſſels to Africa: But for ſome Years laſt paſt they have not ſent out above one Fifth of that Number of Ships per Ann. by Reaſon of Loſſes and Diſappointments, &c. That finding it impracticable for themſelves, or the ſeparate Traders, to trade profitably on the Foot of the preſent Conſtitutions, they have not traded for near ſo much as otherwiſe they would have done. So that the Planters in America complained, that for ſome Years paſt, the Company and ſeparate Traders together have not ſupplied them with ſufficient Numbers of Negroes; and that thoſe they get, do coſt them more than double the Prices they formerly paid.

THAT without ſome fixed Society, veſted with a conſiderable Joint Stock, there can be no ſure Dependance upon having the Britiſh Plantations ſupplied with ſufficient Numbers of Negroes at moderate or certain Rates, nor upon making any advantageous Contracts with the Spaniard or Portugueſe, to furniſh them with Negroes in their Weſt-Indies.

THAT it would be very difficult to regain a Trade, if once loſt; eſpecially this of Guiney; which all the neighbouring Nations earneſtly thirſt to gain from us; and which, if deſerted for a very ſhort Space of Time, would be certainly poſſeſſed by the French or Dutch. And that the only Means to preſerve the ſame, is by inveſting the Company with Privileges ſuitable to thoſe granted to the Companies of other Nations. But that if this were granted, as the Company had paid in ſeveral additional Sums of Money upon the reſpective Shares of that Joint Stock, in order to preſerve this Trade, ſo eſſential to the Nation, they would advance a further Stock, ſufficient to ſupport and improve the ſaid Trade in every Branch thereof.

HERE follows what Improvements this Company hath made to that Trade. Beſides their old Forts, which they have rebuilt and enlarged, they have purchaſed the Danes Fort, and built ſeveral other Fortifications of Sherbrow, Dickes-Cove, Succondee, Commenda, Queen Anne's Port, Annamadoe, Winebah, Accra-Whidah; beſides ſettling ſeveral other Factories on the Gold Coaſt. The Charge of all which, with the providing of them with great Guns, Small Arms, Ammunition, and Stores of all Sorts, their conſtant Supplies and Repairs, and the Intereſt of that Money ſo long ago advanced, and laid out, hath amounted to ſeveral Hundred Thouſand Pounds. So that all Things conſider'd, the Company's Eſtimation of them will appear to be very moderate, whatſoever private Traders do, or may maliciouſly ſuggeſt to the contrary.

WE ſhall here add the Account given of this Trade, by the late Mr. Joſhua Gee, the Quaker, in his Treatiſe on the Trade and Navigation of Great Britain; tho' he differs much from Mr. Strype in his Opinion, as to the Trade, if carried on by the Company alone, or by private Adventurers.

OUR Trade to Africa, ſays he, has this Advantage, that it carries no Money out, and not only ſupplies our Plantations with Servants, but brings in a great Deal of Bullion for thoſe that are ſold to the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies, beſides Gold Duſt and other Commodities, as Red Wood, Elephants Teeth, Guiney Grain, &c. ſome of which are re-exported. The ſupplying our Plantations with Negroes is of that extraordinary Advantage to us, that the planting Sugar and Tobacco, and carrying on Trade there, could not be ſupported without them, which Plantations are the great Cauſes of the Increaſe of the Riches of of the Kingdom. There has been great Struggles by the African Company to engroſs that Trade to themſelves, by which Means they would not only prevent the large Profits that are brought into the Nation by the Trade private Adventurers drive thither, but would alſo be one great Means of ruining our Plantations; for our Plantations are ſupported by the Labour of Slaves, and our Profit either more or leſs, according to the Numbers there employed; and as the Trade is now drove on by private Adventurers, they puſh it with all imaginable Vigour, and the Planters have not only very great Numbers of Slaves brought in, but they are alſo afforded them at moderate Prices: But if this Trade ſhould fall into the Hands of the Company, the Management would be as it has been in ſome other Companies, carried on to the enriching particular Perſons, who too often trade away the Company's Eſtates; whereas private Traders put themſelves into all Methods of Frugality, Induſtry and good Management, which indeed evidently appears by the Trade the Company drove, and what private Adventurers have done; for the Company at beſt never traded for above 5 or 6000 Negroes yearly; whereas private Adventurers have traded for 30,000, or upwards; and if ever Trade ſhould come to be put under a Company, it may be taken for granted, that our Improvements in the Plantations, which is carried on by the Labour of the Negroes, would ſoon decline.

And it is the Opinion of many, that the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies would be managed with greater Advantage to the Kingdom, if it was laid open as the African is. Governor Pitt, tho' he had been 10 Years at the Head of the Eaſt-India Company's Affairs on the Coaſt of Coromandel, often affirmed the ſame Thing; adding, that it was the Caſe of all Companies; their Officers and Servants, like Noblemens Stewards, uſually grow rich, while their Maſters Eſtates are neglected, and, perhaps, run in Debt to advance their private Fortunes.

The Canary Company of MERCHANTS.

This Company was incorporared by King Charles II. who by his Charter bearing Date the 17th of March. 1664, made them a Fellowſhip by the Name of the Governor and Company of Merchants trading to the Canary Iſlands; to be managed by way of a Joint Stock; and granted to them and their Succeſſors as large Privileges as to the other Companies of Merchants.

These Merchants trade to all the Seven Iſlands, antiently called the Fortunate Iſles, and now the Canary Iſles, which are theſe following, Grand Canaria, Teneriff, Palma, Gomera, Iterro, Lanzero, and Fuerta Ventura.

This Company have granted them the Uſe of a Common Seal, and to bear a Coat of Arms, which is thus blazoned; Argent, St. George's Croſs, and on a Chief, Azure, a Lion of England, between two Bunches of Grapes, Or. For their Creſt, on a Helmet and Wreath of their Colours the Mountain called the Peke Teneriff, proper. And for their Supporters, two Faulcons.

The Commodities exported are chiefly all Sorts of Engliſh Woollen Mnnufactures, as Bays, Kerſies, Serges, Perpetuanoes, Says, Norwich Stuffs and Fuſtians; alſo Hats, Stockings, all Manner of Haberdaſhers Ware, Iron and Tin wrought; likewiſe Store of Poor Jack, Pilchards, Herrings, Beef, Pork, Wheat and other Grains; alſo many Sorts of Linen Cloth, both of Germany, Flanders, Holland and France; likewiſe Pipe-Staves and Hoops, with ſeveral other Commodities: And for theſe are imported great Quantities of Canary Wines, divers Sorts of Weſt-India Commodities, as Varinas, Tobacco, Hides, Logwood, Indico, Cochineal, Campechiana, &c.

These Merchants, for the Management of their Affairs, are governed by a Governor, Deputy-Governor and Aſſiſtants of Twelve, which are yearly choſen at a General Court of the Adventurers, between the 15th and 25th of March. They keep their Courts monthly, or weekly, as their Occaſions require.

The Hudson's-Bay Company.

There is another Company call'd the Hudſon's-Bay Company; and though theſe Merchants make but little Noiſe, it is a very advantageous Trade. They export ſome Woollen Goods and Haberdaſhery Wares, Knives, Hatchets, Arms, and other Hard-Ware; and in Return, bring back chiefly Bever Skins, and other Skins and Furs.

Besides theſe Societies of Merchants incorporated, there are others not incorporated, yet formerly were; namely, the Spaniſh Merchants, the Portugal, Italian, French, Dutch, and thoſe trading to the Weſt-Indies. Which Places now are open to any one to trade unto. And there are ſuch as keep a Trade, ſome to ſome of thoſe Places, others to others, but not in a Joint Stock with others as a Company, but ſingly by themſelves.

Spanish and Portugal MERCHANTS.

These Merchants trading into Spain and Portugal, are found beneficial to the Nation in their exporting theſe Commodities, Bays, Says, Serges, Perpetuanoes, Cloths dreſſed and dyed, and moſt Engliſh Manufactures; alſo Lead, Pewter, Shot, Iron, Tin, Calves Skins, Herrings, Pilchards, Salmon, Poor Jack or Bacalow, Silk Stockings, Perukes, &c. And importing the Wines of Malaga, Zeres, Baſtard, Gandado and Alicant; Oils, Olives, Sugars, Ginger, Roſin, Fruits, White Marble, Allum, Plate, Anniſeeds, Sodobarilla, Sopes, &c.

The Italian MERCHANTS.

The Merchants trading into the Parts of Italy, as Leghorn, Venice, Naples, Genoa, Sicily, &c. export Engliſh Cloths, Bays, Serges, Perpetuanoes, Kerſies, Lead, Tin, Pewter, Red and White Herrings, Pilchards, Pickled Salmon, Newfoundland Fiſh, Calves Skins, Ruſſia Hides, Tallow, Tobacco, the Drugs and Spices of India, Perſia and Arabia, &c. And import Wines, Oils, Silk, raw and wrought into ſeveral Fabricks, as Taffeties, Sarſnets, Sattins, Velvets, Pluſhes, Damask, Cloth of Gold and Silver, Grograins, Fuſtians, Allum, Anniſeeds, Rice, Almonds, Saffron, Brimſtone, Venice Gold and Silver, Argol, Venice Treacle, Quick-Silver, Looking and Drinking Glaſſes, Anchovies, Marble, &c.

The French MERCHANTS.

The Merchants trading into France export and import many good Commodities. Thoſe exported are, Engliſh Cloths, Bays, Kerſies, Frizes, Cottons, Pilchards, Herrings, Newfoundland Fiſh, Lead, Tin, Galls, Cotton Wool, &c. And they import Wines, Oils, Almonds, Paper, Oade, coarſe and fine Linen, Tabby, and other Silks, Canvas, Dowlas, Buckrams, Salt, Cards, Glaſs, &c.

The Dutch MERCHANTS.

Such Merchants as uſe the Trade into the Low-Countries, as Holland and Flanders, export and import the followiug Commodities. Thoſe exported are, Woollen Cloths, Lead, Tin, Sheep and Coney Skins, with moſt of our other

Engliſh

Engliſh Commodities and Manufactures. And for theſe and the like, they import Tapeſtries, Pictures and Prints, Tape, Salt-petre, Quick-ſilver, Rheniſh Wine, painted Tiles, Furs, Butter, Cheeſe, Thread, Flanders Lace, (before it was forbidden) with moſt Commodities of other Nations; which, by Reaſon of their great Trade, and Cunning in buying them at the Seaſons when cheapeſt, or when there is a Glut, they can afford at cheap Rates. And by Reaſon of the Herrings, and other Fiſh, which we permit them to catch in our Seas, they trade for moſt European Commodities.

The SOUTH-SEA COMPANY, eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament in the Reign of Queen ANNE.

THE moſt conſiderable of all the Trading Companies, is that of the South-Sea, eſtabliſh'd by Act of Parliament in the ninth Year of the late Queen Anne, intituled, An Act for making good Deficiencies, and ſatisfying the Publick Debts, and for erecting a Corporation to carry on a Trade to the South-Seas, and for the Encouragement of the Fiſhery, &c.

THE Preamble recites, That the Debt due to the Navy, the Army, &c. amounted to 9000000 and upwards, and thereupon it was enacted, That the Duties following ſhould be impos'd for paying an Intereſt or Annuity, after the Rate of 6 per Cent. per Annum for all the ſaid Sum; which Intereſt amounted to the annual Sum of 568279 l. 10 s.

THE Duties conſtituting the Fund for Payment of the ſaid Intereſt, were, all the Impoſitions and Duties upon Wines, Vinegar, Tobacco, Eaſt-India Goods, Fine Wrought Silk, Whales, &c. granted by an Act of the 8th of Queen Anne, till the Year 1720, continued by this Act to the Crown for ever; together with the Duties on Candles, and on Money given with Apprentices.

AND the Queen was impowered by Letters Patent, to form the ſaid Creditors intereſted in the Navy-Bills, &c. into a Company, who, on their ſubſcribing their Bills, Tickets, Debentures, &c. were to be admitted into the Joint-Stock, and become Members thereof, in Proportion to the Sums due to them.

AND the ſaid Corporation were by the ſaid Act, to be veſted in the ſole Trade to and from all Kingdoms and Lands on the Eaſt Side of America, from the River Oroonoco to the Southermoſt Part of Terra del Foga, and on the Weſt Side thereof, from the Southermoſt Part of the ſaid Terra del Foga, through the South-Sea to the Nothermoſt Part of America, not exceeding 300 Miles from the Continent on the ſaid Weſt Side, (excepting Brazil, and other Places in the Poſſeſſion of the King of Portugal, and the Country of Surinam, in Poſſeſſion of the States General) the Company to be the ſole Proprietors of all Iſlands, Forts, &c. which they ſhould diſcover within theſe Limits, to be held under the annual Rent of an Ounce of Gold.

THE Crown alſo was impowered by Letters Patent, to direct a Stock to conſiſt of 20 s. in every 100 l. of the Capital Stock of the Company, to be raiſed by the Members thereof, and employed in improving, enlarging, and carrying on the Fiſhery of this Kingdom, for the Uſe of the Company.

IN Purſuance of this Act, the Proprietors of the Navy-Bills, Tickets, and Army-Debentures aboveſaid, were incorporated by the Name of The Company of Merchants of Great Britain trading to the South-Seas and other Parts of America, and for encouraging the Fiſhery.

AND on the Peace that follow'd, An. 1713, the late Queen was pleas'd to transfer to the ſaid Company, the Benefit of the Aſſiento Contract with Spain, that is, the furniſhing the Spaniards with Slaves for their Mines and Plantations in America, by which alſo they were intitled to ſend a large Ship annually with European Goods, conſiſting chiefly of our Woollen Manufactures, to the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies.

BY an Act of 1 George I. Cap. 21. the Sum of 822032 l. 4 s. 8 d. was added to the capital Stock of the South-Sea Company, to make it up juſt the Sum of 10,000,000 l.

WITH this large Capital it is not to be found that the Company have much applied themſelves to foreign Trade, (which ſeem'd to be one principal Deſign of incorporating them) unleſs in ſending the Ship above-mention'd with European Goods to the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies, and furniſhing the Spaniards with Negroes.

NOR did they make any Attempt to promote the Fiſhery (another grand Deſign in eſtabliſhing this Corporation) till of late Years, and then only by ſending a ſmall Number of Ships annually to fiſh for Whales; but what they make a Merit of is, "Their contriving the Method for leſſening "the National Debt, and rendering ſome of "thoſe Debts redeemable, which could not have "been redeem'd otherwiſe, without a Breach of "the Publick Faith. They ſay, that they have "not only added above 50 per Cent. to the Eſ-"tates of all the old Proprietors of the Stock, "but have been continually working the Publick "Good, by Savings and Reduction of Intereſt. "That it appears by a Statute of 3 George I. "Cap. 9. that the Capital of the Company then "amounted to 10,000000 l. for which a Yearly "Fund of 600,000 l. was payable to them, after "the Rate of 6 l. per Cent. and that they ſub-"mitted to accept, after Midſummer 1718, of "an Annuity of 500,000 l. being after the Rate "of 5 l. per Cent. per Annum for their Ten "Millions. That the Company agreed alſo to "advance the Government the further Sum of "Two Millions, for the Diſcharge of Lottery "Tickets, that carried 6 l. per Cent. and ac-"cepted another Fund to pay them an Intereſt "of 5 l. per Cent. for the ſaid Two Millions.

"THAT afterwards the South-Sea Company "procured as many Annuities, redeemable and "irredeemable, and other publick Debts, to be "ſubſcrib'd into their Stock, as with their ori-"ginal Capital amounted to Thirty-three Mil-"lions and upwards, taking an Intereſt of the "Government of 5 l. per Cent. for the preſent, "and ſtipulated to take 4 l. per Cent. for the "Whole after Midſummer 1727; by which "Reduction of Intereſt, the Nation was provi-"ded of a Fund, uſually called the Sinking Fund, "and was enabled to diſcharge the whole Debt "within the Compaſs of forty Years, or very "little more, without laying any new Burthens "on the Subject.

"AND whereas it was objected to them, That "the Change that was made in the long Annui-"ties, by the Company's redeeming them at "twenty Years Purchaſe, had brought the Na-"tion in Debt three Millions more than it was "before, the Annuitants not having paid ſo "much Money for them by three Millions.

"THEY anſwer, That the Nation was in Debt "on Account of the Annuities, according to "the Payments ſhe was to make to the Annui-"tants, and according to the Time ſhe was "oblig'd to continue thoſe Payments; and if "their Bargain makes no Alteration in that "Matter, if it neither adds to or leſſens thoſe "Payments, or the Time of continuing them, "then it leaves the Debt of the Nation juſt as "it found it, neither encreas'd nor diminiſh'd "by it: But if it either leſſens the annual Pay-"ments, or ſhortens the Time of making ſuch

"Payments,

" Payments, it muſt be ſo far ſaid to leſſen the " National Debt to the Annuitants.

" In the Year 1716, there was publiſh'd a " Calculation of the State of the National Debt, " in which the Long Annuities granted at ſeve- " ral Times were ſtated, and valued according " to the Sums paid in the Exchequer for them, " which was about eleven Years and a half Pur- " chaſe for thoſe in King William's, and under " ſixteen Years Purchaſe for thoſe in Q. Anne's " Time. This Calculation therefore ſtates the " Debt of the Nation on the Account of the " Annuities, according to the Sums they were " firſt granted at.

" But this could neither be reckon'd the " Debt of the Nation with Regard to the An- " nuitants, nor the Value of the Annuities. It " could not be reckon'd the Debt of the Nation " with Regard to the Annuitants, becauſe the " Nation had contracted with them (not to pay " them off at Pleaſure, by returning them the " Money they at firſt paid into the Exchequer, " but) in an abſolute Engagement for the Pay- " ment of ſuch Annuities for a certain Term of " Years: Neither could it be reckoned the Va- " lue of the Annuities, for their Value muſt be " ſtated (as the Value of every Thing elſe muſt " be) not according to what was given for them " at firſt, or what they were worth at the Time " they are propoſed to be purchaſed: For as " they were then only of ſuch a Value becauſe " Money bore ſuch an Intereſt; ſo if the State " of Intereſt is altered ſince that Time, the Va- " lue of ſuch Annuities muſt be in the ſame " Degree altered; for their Value muſt riſe " in the ſame Degree that the Intereſt of Mo- " ney decreaſes, which was the Reaſon that they " were worth above twenty Years Purchaſe in " the Year 1720, and therefore could not be re- " purchaſed at a lower Rate, unleſs a Power had " been taken in Parliament of fixing the Price, " which was ſuppoſed to be a Step inconſiſtent " with the Safety of Publick Credit. The ſta- " ting therefore the National Debt to the An- " nuitants according to the Sums firſt given for " them, is a great Miſtake.

" But yet upon this Foundation, that the " Degree of the Debt is to be thus ſtated; an " Argument is formed, That the buying the An- " nuities by the South-Sea Company at twenty " Years Purchaſe, makes an Addition to the " National Debt, becauſe here is 3000000 l. " &c. more paid for them than they were at firſt " granted at.

" This ſuppoſes that the Nation owed the " Annuitants no more than their firſt Purchaſe- " Money, and could oblige them to take it " when they pleas'd; and if this had been the " Caſe, then it muſt have been granted, that the " 3000000 l. &c. given by this Bargain, had " been ſo far an Increaſe of the National Debt.

" But if this Suppoſition be quite contrary " to the true State of the Caſe, if the Faith of " the Nation was given abſolutely for the Pay- " ment of ſuch Annuities, and for ſuch a Term " of Years, then the Debt of the Nation to the " Annuitants muſt be ſtated according to that " Grant.

" And then the Queſtion will be, Whether " the Nation is upon better Terms with the " Annuitants by this New Bargain, than ſhe was " without it? And the only Way to ſee this " clearly, is to ſee whether the Nation is to be " ſooner quit of her Payments to the Annuitants, " and therefore pay leſs to them by Virtue of " this Purchaſe, than ſhe muſt have paid to them " had they continued unpurchaſed in their firſt " State. At the Time this Purchaſe was made, " the Nation was to continue the Payment of " the Annuities for about 83 Years.

" If therefore this Term of Payment is by this " New Bargain reduc'd to a Term of Years of " about half the Time, and this be done not by " any further Money advanc'd by the Nation, " but only by a Change made in the Manner of " her Payments, and a Change of the State of " the Annuities, then it muſt be very obvious " how much the Nation is reliev'd in her Debt " to the Annuitants.

" The Change made in the Manner of the " Payment is this: The South-Sea Company " buys 100 l. Annuity with 2000 l. Stock; ſo " that the Nation is to pay Intereſt for 2000 l. " Stock, inſtead of paying an Annuity of 100 l.

" Was the Nation to continue this ſame Pay- " ment to the Stock, and for the ſame Term of " Years that ſhe was to have continued her Pay- " ments to the Annuitants, then it is ſuppoſed " it muſt have been granted, that ſhe had nei- " ther leſſened nor increaſed her Debt by this " Bargain.

" But if by Virtue of this New Bargain, " and by this Change in the Manner of the Pay- " ments, that is, by paying Intereſt for 2000 l. " Stock, inſtead of an Annuity of 100 l. the " Nation has not only a redeemable Debt to deal " with, but is alſo provided with a Fund ſuffi- " cient for the redeeming or diſcharging the " 2000 l. Stock, in about half the Time ſhe was " to have paid the Annuitants, then it muſt be " equally granted, that ſhe has her Debt in this " great Degree leſſened and relieved by this " Bargain.

" Now what is here only ſuppoſed as the Ef- " fect of this Bargain, is the true and real Na- " ture of it, and ſuch as it was ſufficiently fitted " to produce, which may be thus made plainly " to appear:

" The Nation pays Intereſt for 2000 l. Stock, " inſtead of paying an Annuity of 100 l. but it " is provided for in this Contract, That in the " Year 1727, there ſhall be a Reduction of In- " tereſt of 1 per Cent. So that inſtead of the " 100 l. Annuity, there will be only 80 l. per " Annum paid to the 2000 l. Stock; and this " Abatement of Intereſt, or Deduction of 20 l. " per Annum from the 100 l. Annuity, will raiſe " a Fund ſufficient for the Diſcharge of the " 2000 l. Stock, in about half the Time that the " Payment of the Annuities was to have been " continued.

" So that by this meer Change of the State " of the Debt, and the Manner of the Payments, " the Nation is enabled to diſcharge the whole " Debt in about thirty-four Years ſooner than " it could have been diſcharg'd, had the Annui- " ties not been thus purchaſed.

" That notwithſtanding all theſe Advanta- " ges accruing to the Nation by the Scheme " laid by the late South-Sea Directors, they " have been evicted out of their Eſtates, how- " ever long enjoy'd, and by whatever Means " acquir'd.

" As to the Calamities of the Year 1720, " which alter'd the Eſtates of ſo many private " Perſons, they ought not to be imputed to the " Directors, or the South-Sea Scheme, but to a " more general Cauſe; for there was not any " Order of Men in the Nation that had not " ſome Share in helping forward that general In- " fatuation, and to whom therefore the common " Calamity ought to be attributed; ſo that it " might have been juſtly expected, that every " Order of Men in the Kingdom ſhould have " been inclin'd, either to have pardon'd, or " gently puniſh'd ſuch a State of Things as they " had not been meer Spectators of.

" That had the Directors been allow'd the " Benefit of a Trial, they might very juſtly have " pleaded, That they had done nothing pri- " vately,

" vately, or on their own Heads; that they were " driven into all the Steps they took by the " irreſiſtable Temper of Men of all Orders; " that they had acted openly in the Sight of " the Legiſlature, and had the Orders and Au- " thority of General Courts for all they did, and " their Thanks after it was done.

" ANOTHER Cauſe the late Directors aſſign " for the ſudden Riſe of their Stocks, which " occaſioned the Calamities in the Year 1720, " was the Bank Bidding againſt them. The Pro- " poſition made to the Parliament at firſt, ſay " they, was only for a voluntary Subſcription of " the Proprietors of the irredeemable and re- " deemable Debts into the South-Sea Stock, at " the beſt Terms the Company could agree with " them, (which was no more than ſelling their " Stock by Subſcription) a Method the Bank " has often purſued; and as the Miniſtry knew " the Company had gained a Sum for their Pro- " prietors, by taking in Part of the Lottery " 1710, the Year before, beſides what they paid " the Government for ſo doing, they inſiſted the " Company ſhould pay a Sum of Money to the " Government for the Liberty of having the ſaid " Debts ſubſcribed into their Stock.

" BEFORE this Propoſition the Bank had " been applied to for undertaking this Matter; " but they refuſed it, treating it with Con- " tempt.

" BUT on the Propoſition being made to the " Houſe of Commons, they became Bidders of " about five Millions and a half to the Govern- " ment, by which the Scheme firſt propoſed was " entirely altered, the ſame being then put up " to the higheſt Bidder; which influenced the " Minds of all Sorts of People, and was the Oc- " caſion of all the extravagant Riſe of Stocks, " whereby all the miſchievous Conſequences to " private Perſons enſued; for 'tis plain the Na- " tion has received a great Advantage by it, " and therefore the ill Conſequences can only " be the increaſing ſome Perſons Eſtates, and " decreaſing the Eſtates of others. The ſecond " Reaſon of the ill Conſequences of the Scheme " was owing to the Bargain which the Bank ſo- " lemnly made with the South-Sea Company, " and never performed, whereby ſo many Per- " ſons were miſled, and thereby very greatly " injured.

" THEY deſire alſo it may be obſerved fur- " ther, That the Directors and Managers of " that Scheme were never charged with any " Frauds or Embezzlements of the Company's " Effects: Nay, even Mr. Knight himſelf, who " thought fit to decline the Enquiry of Parlia- " ment, and retire from his native Country, re- " tired only with his own Acquiſitions, and " without loading himſelf with the Guilt of Rob- " bing the publick Treaſure which was intruſted " in his Hands.

THE late Directors alſo in their Defence, and in order to ſhew how inſtrumental they have been in reducing the Intereſt of Money, and putting the National Debt in a Way of being paid off in a few Years, publiſhed another Treatiſe, ſtiled, A True State of the South-Sea Scheme, &c. wherein they inform us, That the Method they firſt propoſed for executing their Scheme was as follows:

THE Total of their Capital was about	11,746,000
TOTAL of the Annuities and Debts to be taken in were about	30,981,000
WHICH would make the Total of their Capital	42,727,000

" THE whole Sum to be taken in by the Com- " pany being ſo large, and conſiſting of Annui- " ties and Debts of various Kinds; it was judged " to be impracticable to take in the Whole at " one Time, and that by taking them in at " different Times, Prices and Proportions, the " Proprietors thereof (through Apprehenſion of " being either left intirely out, or of coming in " afterwards, at a higher Price) would be quick- " ened to make their Subſcriptions, whereby " the Execution of the Scheme would be rendered " more eaſy and certain.

" THOUGH when the Scheme was firſt formed " the Price of the Stock did not exceed 116 l. " to 118 per Cent.

" YET it was ſuppoſed, if the Propoſal was " accepted by the Parliament, that Acceptance " would ſo much increaſe the Credit of the " Stock, as the Company might be able to take " in the ſaid Annuities and Debts, at the Rates, " and in the Proportions herein after men- " tioned.

" AND if the Bank and Eaſt-India Company, " or either of them would come in, they were " propoſed to be admitted into the firſt Sub- " ſcription at 130 l. per Cent. or even lower, " which would nevertheleſs have increaſed the " Profit to the South-Sea Company.

" BUT as to their coming in was uncertain, the " Calculation was made only upon the other An- " nuities and Debts, viz.

" 6,500,000 l.	Annuities and Debts " ſubſcribed at 130 " per Cent. for the " Stock would pro- " duce Stock to the " Subſcribers	5,000,000

" Wanting to make an annual Dividend of 8 per Cent.	543,650

" WHICH by gradual ſelling the Stock, the " Company gained on the Subſcriptions would " have ſupplied the ſame for above twelve Years; " before the Expiration of which Time it was " ſuppoſed the Benefit of their Trade to Africa, " and the Grants of Nova Scotia, and of the " French Part of St. Chriſtoper's, would have " been ſufficient to have perpetuated the Divi- " dend, if not to have enlarged it.

" BUT the Commons objecting againſt giving " the South-Sea Company the African Trade, " Nova Scotia, and that which was the French " Part of St. Chriſtopher's, the South-Sea Com- " pany were prevailed with to leave thoſe Ad- " vantages out of their Propoſals, which were " the ſubſtantial Things to have ſupported their " Stock, but ſtill with Aſſurance from thoſe in " the Adminiſtration, of uſing their utmoſt En- " deavours to obtain them for the Company. " But the Price of South-Sea Stock from the " Time of accepting their Propoſal, to the paſ- " ſing the Act, riſing very conſiderably, and the " Bank and their Friends always oppoſing what- " ever appeared to be for the Benefit of the South- " Sea Company, they could never obtain thoſe " advantageous Grants, which they had much " depended on (as ſolid Supporters to the Stock) " tho' they frequently importuned and preſſed " the Miniſtry for the ſame.

" THE extraordinary Riſe of the South-Sea " Stock, before the paſſing the Act, together " with the Oppoſition of the Bank, having de- " feated the Company of thoſe Grants and Set- " tlements which they had depended upon as " the ſolid Supports of the Stock, as has been " already hinted; nothing was left them but " the Opinion of Mankind to enable them to " execute the Act, which put them under a " more than ordinary Neceſſity of complying " with the general Diſpoſition of the People; " and therefore, though their original Deſigns " and Intentions were to have no Subſcriptions " but of the ſeveral Annuities and Debts that " were to be taken in, yet there being imme- " diately after paſſing of the Act, a prevailing " Notion among many of the Proprietors and " others without Doors, (for it did not proceed " from the Directors) of taking in Money Sub- " ſcriptions, and this Opinion growing univer- " ſal, the Directors found themſelves under a " Neceſſity to depart from the Method they had " firſt intended to proceed in, and to begin " the Execution of the Act with a Money Sub- " ſcription, to which they were the more eaſily " induced, finding the Method preſcribed by " the Act would require a great many Months " to effect the taking in but a Part of thoſe " publick Debts, and that unforeſeen Accidents " might ſo reduce the Price of Stock, as whol- " ly to defeat the Execution of the Act, and " yet the Company would remain under the Ob- " ligation of paying to the Publick 4,667,000 l. " though no Part of the Act ſhould be exe- " cuted.

" A further Inducement to admit of a Money " Subſcription was, that they might be there- " by enabled to pay off ſuch of the Redeem- " able Debts, and to offer Money to ſuch of the " Annuitants as ſhould not be inclined to take " Stock for the ſame, they not being then cer- " tain, there would be ſuch an univerſal Diſ- " poſition in thoſe Proprietors to accept Stock " for their Debts and Annuities, as afterwards " appeared; but when that Diſpoſition did ap- " pear, the Directors had no Occaſion to ap- " ply the Money to that Uſe. By theſe and the " like Conſiderations, the Directors were pre- " vailed on to open a Money Subſcription at " 300 l. per Cent. with diſtant Times of Pay- " ment, and without limiting the Sum to be " taken in, Stock being then 285 l. per Cent.

" THE Method they proceeded in was, that " every Director took the Names of thoſe Per- " ſons who applied to them, and the Sums for " which they deſired to be admitted into that " Subſcription, which, when brought together, " and caſt up, amounted to ſo large a Sum, and " the Names were of ſo conſiderable Perſons, " that though their firſt Intention was to have " had that Subſcription for no more than one " Million, or at moſt one Million and a half; " and though they permitted no one Perſon to " have more than 4000 l. and the Sums deſired " were generally reduced; yet the Directors " found they could not bring the Subſcription " to a leſs Sum than 2,250,000 l. without giving " ſuch Diſguſt as might prove prejudicial to the " Company.

" THE firſt Money Subſcription being thus " fixed, and the Sum it amounted to being " 6,750,000 l. of which 60 l. per Cent. being " 1,350,000 l. paid down, the Directors thought " this Subſcription a ſufficient Fund to enable " them to execute the reſt of the Act; and ac- " cordingly came to an unanimous Reſolution of " taking no more Money Subſcriptions.

" BUT the Subſcription ſoon ſelling at a con- " ſiderable Profit, it cannot be forgot how im- " patient Perſons of all Ranks and Degrees were " for another Money Subſcription, and by their " Importunity did prevail on the Directors to " agree the 28th of April to open one, which " was done on the 30th of the ſame Month at " 400 l. per Cent. of which 40 l. per Cent. was " paid down; and the ſame Day they reſolved " it as their Opinion, Nemine Contradicente, not " to take any further Subſcription in Money.

" THIS Subſcription was intended alſo not " to exceed a Million; but the Application to " get into it was ſuch, that when the Directors " came to examine the Names and Sums de- " manded, they found they could not reduce it " under a Million and a half, without giving " the greateſt Offence.

" BUT the Directors Thoughts being intent " upon executing the Act, according to their " firſt Deſign, by taking in the Annuities and " Redeemables, eſpecially the former, on which " the Parliament had laid ſo great Streſs: They " (the ſame Day on which it was agreed to open " the ſecond Money-Subſcription) previouſly " reſolv'd on a Subſcription for the Annuities, " which met with ſuch Succeſs, that, in a few " Days, above two Thirds of them were brought " in; and on the 19th of May (the Price of Stock " being then 375 l. per Cent.) the Directors fix'd " the Price for ſubſcribed Annuities at 32 Years " Purchaſe, to be paid as follows, viz.

" For

l.
" Stock 700 l. at 375 l. per Cent. which } 2625
" amounts to }
" In Money and the Company's Bonds 575

" Total for 100 l. per Ann. 3200

" THIS gave great Satisfaction to all Parties " concerned, and the Stock and Subſcriptions " advanc'd ſo faſt, that when the Parliament " roſe, the Stock was at near 800 l. per Cent. " and the ſecond Subſcription ſold for 500 l. per " Cent. Profit.

" To ſhew that the Riſe of the Stock, and " what was then done in the Execution of the " Act, was far from being at that Time thought " any ways criminal; it may be permitted to cite " a Paragraph in His Majeſty's moſt gracious " Speech to both Houſes of Parliament, on the " 11th of June, when that Seſſion ended, viz.

The good Foundation you have prepared this Seſſion for the Payment of the National Debts, and the Diſcharge of a great Part of them, without the leaſt Violation of the Publick Faith, will, I hope, ſtrengthen more and more the Union I deſire to ſee among all my Subjects, and make our Friendſhip yet more valuable to Foreign Powers.

" AND a Copy of the Speech to his Majeſty " the ſame Day, by the Speaker of the Houſe of " Commons, has been ſeen, wherein were the " following Words, viz.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

YOUR Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament aſſembled, had no ſooner diſpatch'd ſo much of the Supplies as were neceſſary to carry on the current Service, but they immediately applied themſelves to find out Means for leſſening the Publick Debt; in which, if your Commons have the Satisfaction to ſee the Succeſs of their Endeavours, exceed even what the moſt Sanguine could hope: If Your Majeſty's good Subjects have now a certain Proſpect of being eaſed of the heavy Load of very near Eight Millions, in a little more than the Compaſs of one Year: If the Difficulties in diſcharging that Part of the National Debt, which by ſome were thought to be inſuperable, without Breach of the Publick Faith, are now in a Manner overcome: And if at the ſame Time every Branch of the Publick Credit is advanc'd to an unexpected, and ſome of them even to an amazing Height: Yet Your Commons muſt confeſs, that they have been only the happy Inſtruments in conveying theſe Benefits to Your People; and that all the Merit they can claim, is in not having neglected an Opportunity, which the flouriſhing State of the Publick Credit put into their Hands; and muſt in Juſtice acknowledge, that all theſe ſurprizing Events are owing to that profound Veneration and Eſteem, which this Nation, and all Europe, has for Your Majeſty. For Credit is ſo nice and delicate in its Nature, that though in all other Affairs no Detriment is perceiv'd, no Miſchief is felt, till a Calamity comes: Yet, in whatever relates to Credit, the Fear and Apprehenſion of Calamity, is as miſchievous as the Calamity itſelf; and Diffidence is the ſame Thing as Deſtruction. Credit, therefore, is only maintained, in its preſent flouriſhing Condition, by the Experience Your People have had of the Vigilance of Your Majeſty's Councils, and the Reliance on the Steadineſs of Your Conduct. And ſince the juſt Confidence Your Subjects place in Your Majeſty's known Prudence and Wiſdom has enabled Your Commons to make ſo great Progreſs towards diſcharging the Publick Incumbrances: It would have been highly unjuſt, when Your Majeſty condeſcended to deſire the Advice and Aſſiſtance of Your Commons, had they declined to ſupport the Honour and Dignity of the Crown, at a Time when the Nation receives ſo much Benefit from its Luſtre; and it would have been equally ungrateful, had they not chearfully provided the neceſſary Aids, to make the Supplies, voted at the Beginning of this Seſſion, effectual.

" THE Price of Stock, and alſo of the Firſt " and Second Subſcriptions, advancing daily from " the Time of fixing the Price for the Annuities " taken in, caus'd many preſſing Solicitations " from Perſons of all Ranks and Degrees for an- " other Money Subſcription; to which the Di- " rectors conſtantly ſhew'd an Averſion, and en- " deavour'd to diſſuade them from it; giving for " Anſwer, The Reſolution they had come to " againſt any more Money Subſcriptions. But " this did not ſtop, but rather increas'd the ge- " neral Importunity; and, from Perſuaſions, " many proceeded to Menaces and Clamour, " backed with Imputations, That if that favour- " able Opportunity of executing the Scheme was " neglected, the Blame muſt be charg'd on the " Directors: Whereby they were at length " brought almoſt to an abſolute Neceſſity of " opening a third Money Subſcription, which " they did on the 17th of June 1720. And " the ſame was opened the ſooner, at the ear- " neſt Inſtance of many Members of both " Houſes, who deſired it might be made before " their going into the Country.

" AT this Time the Price of Stock being about " 800 l. per Cent. and the ſecond Subſcription " ſelling for about 500 l. per Cent. Advance, and " great Numbers of thoſe who deſired to be " admitted into the third Subſcription, having " requeſted it at 1000 l. per Cent. the Di- " rectors thought they could not ſet it at a leſs " Price; but they allowed ſuch Times of Pay- " ment as with the Midſummer Dividend reduced " it to about 800 l. per Cent.

" THIS met with no Blame from any Perſon " at that Time, but, on the contrary, univerſal " Approbation, as appears by the Price this third " Subſcription bore, it ſoon ſelling at 300 l. per " Cent. Profit.

" WHEN this Subſcription was compleated, " the Directors came again to a Reſolution of " taking no more Money Subſcriptions; and ap- " plied themſelves to take in the Remainder of " the Annuities and Redeemables. To which " End, on the 8th of July, they agreed to open " their Books on the 12th of that Month, to take " in Part of them; which was accordingly done, " and, in a few Days, moſt of the Redeemables " and Annuities ſtanding out, were ſubſcribed; " but ſome of the Proprietors of thoſe Debts and " Annuities, by Reaſon of their Abſence or " other Impediments, not having an Opportu- " nity to ſubſcribe before the Books were ſhut, " made great Application to the Directors to be " admitted; who being willing to compleat the " Execution of the Act, with as much Expedition " as they could, did, on the 27th of July, re- " ſolve to open Books on the 4th of Auguſt fol- " lowing, for taking in the Remainder of thoſe " Debts and Annuities; and moſt of thoſe which " were ſtanding out were then brought in.

" ON the 12th of Auguſt the Price of Stock, " incluſive of the Midſummer Dividend, was up- " wards of 900 l. per Cent. which made the Stock, " excluſive of that Dividend, about 820 l. per " Cent. The Directors agreed to fix the Price " of the ſubſcribed Long Annuities at 36 Years " Purchaſe, and the Redeemables at 105 l. per " Cent. and the Price of Stock to be given for " the ſame, at 800 l. per Cent. ſo that the Re- " deemables, conſidering they were taken in at " 105 l. per Cent. had the Stock at about 60 l. " per Cent. under the current Price, which gave " general Satisfaction at that Time.

" It farther appeared, even to Demonſtration, " that the Terms allowed for the Annuities and " Redeemables which were ſubſcribed, were ve- " ry ſatisfactory, becauſe they were ſold at a much " higher Price than the unſubſcribed; and, ſome " Time after this Price was declared in the Ga- " zette, many conſiderable Proprietors of the " unſubſcribed Annuities and Debts, preſſed and " asked it as a Favour to be, and were accord- " ingly admitted to ſubſcribe; and particularly " ſeveral Foreigners and Merchants entruſted " here by them for their Uſe.

" Although the Directors had come to ſe- " veral Reſolutions againſt any further Money " Subſcriptions, thoſe Reſolutions were not ſuffi- " cient to ſtem the repeated Applications for " the ſame from Multitudes of all Ranks; and " the Proprietors of the Stock began to clamour " at their not being admitted to their Propor- " tions in the former Subſcriptions, and ſome of " them threatened to demand a General Court, " to order that the Proprietors might be admit- " ted to a Subſcription in Proportion to their " Stock, which obliged the Directors to take " that Matter into Conſideration; and the ſame " Day on which they fixed the Price of Stock " for the two laſt Subſcriptions of the Annuities " and Redeemables, they agreed to take a Sub- " ſcription of 20 per Cent. on Stock for the Pro- " prietors only; the Stock in ſuch Subſcription " to be valued at 1000 per Cent. which at that " Time gave great Pleaſure and Satisfaction to " the Proprietors, and 40 l. per Cent. was offered " for the Privilege of that Subſcription.

" But this did not take off the Applications " for another Money Subſcription to all Perſons " indifferently, to which the Directors ſhewed " a great Unwillingneſs; but by the continued " Solicitations of Multitudes of all Degrees, and " from all Parts, they conſented to open a fourth " Money Subſcription on the 24th of Auguſt, at " 1000 l. per Cent. excluſive of the Midſummer " Dividend, (the third Subſcription then ſelling " at about 300 l. per Cent. Advance.) But to " prevent this Subſcription running to an exceſ- " ſive Sum, they agreed that one fifth Part, be- " ing 200 l. per Cent. ſhould be paid down, and " none to be admitted but thoſe who brought " their Money that very Day.

" The Eagerneſs for this Subſcription was ſo " great, that notwithſtanding this Precaution, " and the Directors full Intention that this Sub- " ſcription ſhould not exceed a Million, yet in " a few Hours there was 1,200,000 l. ſubſcribed, " although many were excluded who preſſed ve- " ry earneſtly to come in. Had not the Direc- " tors taken that Precaution, in relation to this " fourth Subſcription, it would probably have " ſwelled to a larger Sum than the third, as " is manifeſt, not only by the eager filling ſo " great a Sum, (as is mentioned) in ſo ſhort a " Space, and the numberleſs Letters the Direc- " tors received from Perſons who deſired to be " admitted into it, but alſo by a memorable Re- " ply that a great Miniſter of State, ſince dead, " made to them, upon their informing him of the " Method they intended to proceed in; who " thereupon told them, That he himſelf had a " Liſt for above a Million for that Subſcription, " and that therefore, if they would proceed in " the Method they had propoſed, without taking " in Liſts, as they had done in the third Sub- " ſcription; he deſired that they would publiſh " an Advertiſement in the Daily Courant, that " it was not in his Power to ſerve his Friends; " that thereby he might clear himſelf from the " Clamour and Charge that would ariſe againſt " him, for having neglected them.

" As to the Subſcriptions for 20 l. per Cent. to " be limited to the Proprietors only, the ſame " was afterwards (for ſeveral Reaſons) thought " fit by the General Court to be omitted.

" The Spring of the Money Subſcriptions " aroſe from without Doors, and not from the " Directors themſelves, as already mentioned; " and one may venture to ſay, Thoſe Subſcrip- " tions were countenanced by the Parliament; " for that after the firſt Money Subſcription was " taken, there having ariſen ſome Doubt con- " cerning the Validity thereof: The Parliament " were pleaſed to paſs a Clauſe in the Act " for eſtabliſhing the two Inſurance-Companies, " confirming not only the Subſcriptions taken, " but alſo all ſuch Subſcriptions as ſhould af- " ter be taken; and to make the Receipts that " ſhould be given out for the ſame aſſignable in " Law, which they would not have been without " Authority of Parliament.

" They obſerve further, That by the origi- " nal Scheme the higheſt Calculation of the " Stock was 160 l. per Cent. and that Advance " ſupported by ſuch beneficial Grants to the " Company, which if purſued and ripened in- " to actual Execution, would have kept the " Stock at leaſt to that Price, without being de- " trimental to any. But ſeveral publick Ad- " vantages would neceſſarily have ariſen there- " from, as,

" Firſt, The bringing the Annuities into a " State of Redemption, which had been always " thought the unſurmountable Obſtacle to get- " ting the Nation out of Debt.

" Secondly, The reducing the Intereſt of the " Publick Debts from 5 to 4 per Cent. and there- " by increaſing the Sinking Fund above 540,000 l. " per Annum, by which the whole Debt of the " Nation might have been paid off in about 24 " Years.

" Thirdly, The lowering the common Rate of " Intereſt which would ſoon have followed as a " neceſſary Conſequence thereof.

" Fourthly, The Trade and Revenues of the " Kingdom would have been increaſed by the " peopling and cultivating Nova Scotia, and " the French Part of St. Chriſtopher's; and eſpe- " cially, by enlarging and opening the Trade to " Africa, into the Inland Parts of the Conti- " nent, whereby they could ſcarce have fail'd of " diſcovering the many rich Gold Mines, which " unqueſtionably are there, and from thence an " immenſe Treaſure might have been brought " into this Kingdom.

" These appear to be ſome of the pleaſing " Thoughts which entertain'd the Minds of the " Authors in the firſt Formation of the Scheme, " and could not but charm the Heart of every " ſincere well Wiſher to the Proſperity of the " Nation; but as no Age nor Country has been " free from Perſons, who, under the ſpecious " Name of Patriots, have malign'd and oppos'd " every Thing that has appear'd for the com- " mon Benefit, whereof they have not been the " Authors; falſely imagining, that whatever " Credit any other Perſons obtained is a Dimi- " nution to themſelves; and thus it has hap- " pened in ſome reſpect in the Caſe before us.

" For tho' this Scheme, as deliver'd to the " Chancellor of the Exchequer, was by him, as " we are well aſſur'd, offer'd to the Directors of " the Bank, and they, as he ſays in his before " quoted Speech, ſhew'd a great Backwardneſs " in undertaking any Thing for the reducing the " Publick Debts, and treated this Scheme with " Contempt; yet, as ſoon as they found the " South-Sea Company were like to come into it, " the Bank and their Friends began to raiſe Ob- " jections to it, as not ſufficiently advantageous " to the Publick, there being no Certainty of " what the Publick ſhould gain by it; becauſe, " as the ſame was firſt propos'd, the Money pay- " able to the Publick was only pro rato, and in " Proportion to the Sum of the Annuities and " Debts which ſhould be taken in.

" THIS Objection caus'd that Alteration " which was made in the Scheme, before the " ſame was ſhewn to the Court of Directors; " whereby the Company were to be obliged to " pay the Publick a Million and a Half certain, " in all Events for the Redeemables, whether " any of them were taken in or not.

" AND to this Oppoſition may be, as is be- " fore ſhewn, juſtly imputed the Beginning of " the Deſtruction of that Scheme, and of the " Misfortunes that enſued: Not that this was " the only Share the Conduct of the Directors " of the Bank had therein, as will appear by " what follows:

" FOR no ſooner was this Scheme open'd in " the Houſe of Commons in Favour of the South- " Sea Company, but (as is before ſet forth) it " appear'd the Bank were come to a Reſolution " to be Competitors for it; which ſo warm'd the " Spirits of the Proprietors of the South-Sea " Company, that though what was firſt propos'd " to them was but a Million and a Half for the " Redeemables, and about the like farther Sum " for the Annuities, or, pro rato, for ſo many " of them as ſhould be taken in; yet they " were prevailed upon to make their Propoſal " 3,500,000 l. certain, for the Whole of the An- " nuities and Debts.

" BUT the Bank's Propoſal (which was deli- " vered at the ſame Time) amounted to above " 5,500,000 l. which was above Two Millions " more than the South-Sea Company's Propoſal.

" THIS Propoſal of the Bank, exceeding ſo " much that of the South-Sea Company, gave the " firſt Fire to the Imaginations of Mankind, that " there was ſomething more advantageous in this " Scheme than had been conceiv'd; ſo that to " this (as it may be ſafely call'd) extravagant " Bidding of the Bank, may be attributed the " ſubſequent Dealings in this Stock at ſuch ex- " ceſſive and pernicious Prices.

" AND this Offer of the Bank ſpirited up the " General Court of the South-Sea Company to " give that Inſtruction to their Directors, Not " to loſe the Scheme, coſt what it would.

" IT was given out, That the Bank would " conſiderably advance beyond their firſt Pro- " poſal, (which was not without Foundation, " for it is certain they were adviſ'd, and had " once agreed to make an Offer of Nine Mil- " lions) whereby the South-Sea Directors were " driven in to the making the large Offer in " their ſecond Propoſal: And from the Time " of the Acceptance thereof, began thoſe great " Tranſactions in the Stock, which occaſion'd " all the Misfortunes that have happened. For " though in Reality the Scheme was ſo much the " worſe, as the Money paid for it to the Publick " exceeded what was at firſt propoſed, yet by " the Oppoſition and great Offer of the Bank, " People's Minds were ſo heated, and their Per- " ſons ſo animated with Apprehenſions of incon- " ceivable Advantages, that from this Time they " ſeem'd to throw away all Reaſon, and give " themſelves up wholly to Humour.

" So that (as has been ſaid) upon the Bank's " Competition and Oppoſition, may be charged " the principal Cauſe of all the Misfortunes that " follow'd.

" NOR was this the laſt Step which the Di- " rectors of the Bank took, that contributed to " our Misfortunes.

" FOR though it had often been propos'd to " them by their Proprietors, to lend Money up- " on their own Stock, yet they could never be " brought into it, till the South-Sea Stock was " greatly advanced, and then they came into a " Reſolution of lending Money on their own Stock, " which could not be done with any other View, " than that of raiſing it beyond its real Value, " and farther puſhing up of the South-Sea Stock, " as Mr. Aiſlabie has very well obſerved in " his ſaid Speech; wherein, Page 15, ſpeaking " of the Bubbles, he expreſſes himſelf as fol- " lows, viz.

" MY Lords, I muſt not omit to take Notice, " that this Spirit of Bubbling had prevailed ſo " univerſally, that to ſhew you what would have " been the Caſe if the Bank had obtain'd the " Scheme, the very Bank became a Bubble: " And this, my Lords, not by Chance or Ne- " ceſſity, or from any Engagement to raiſe Mo- " ney for the Publick Service, but from the ſame " Spirit that actuated Temple-Mills, or Gar- " raway's Fiſhery. For this Purpoſe, my Lords, " they entertained a Scheme in Imitation of the " South-Sea, of lending Money upon their Stock, " which as it contributed to raiſe the Price of " their own Stock, ſo it furniſhed a Supply of " Caſh to the Gameſters in the Alley, that at " once puſh'd up the Bubbles and the South-Sea " to an immoderate Height. But as this was " intended chiefly to advance their own Stock, " let the Project come from what Hand ſoever, " it was founded in the ſame Iniquity with any " other Bubble, and was of ten Times more " dangerous Conſequence: For, as Bank Stock " was raiſed by it from 150 l. to 245 l. and as it " has from thence fallen to 130 l. there have " been many Millions loſt upon it, beſides the " fatal Conſequences it had like to have had up- " on the Publick Credit; for, for Want of this " Money, which was lock'd up in Loans upon " their own Stock, and could not readily be " come at, they were at a Loſs when the Cruſh " happened, and were forced to have Recourſe to " Subſcriptions, ſupported chiefly by the Ad- " venturers of the South-Sea, and to a Memora- " ble Bargain with the South-Sea Company.

" AND to confirm what Mr. Aiſlabie ſays " would have been the Caſe, if the Bank had " obtained the Scheme, and to convince the " World that the Bank (if they had had it) " would have executed it at the higheſt Rate " they could: One need only reflect how ſoli- " citous almoſt every Director of the Bank was " to get into the Third Subſcription; inſomuch, " that when the Directors of the South-Sea Com- " pany had limited, (in order to prevent that " Subſcription running up to an exceſſive Sum)

" THAT no Member of Parliament (except " ſuch as were in the Liſt of Perſons in the Ad- " miniſtration) nor Director of the Bank or Eaſt- " India Company, nor Alderman of LON- " DON, ſhould have more than 1000 l. in that " Subſcription. One of the moſt conſiderable " Directors of the Bank of England, who was " then a Member of Parliament, and an Alder- " man, as well as Director of the Bank, wrote a " Letter to one of the Directors of the South- " Sea Company, demanding to have 3000 l. in " that Subſcription, as having three of thoſe Ca- " pacities, which were admitted to 1000 l. each; " but the ſame was refus'd him, and he was " forced (much againſt his Will) to be content " with 1000 l. Subſcription. But the then " Governor of the Bank, being Deputy-Go- " vernor, was (though not without great Im- " portunity) admitted to 2000 l. in that Sub- " ſcription.

" FOR

" For a further Confirmation of what has been " ſaid, it may not be improper to take Notice, " that when the Directors of the South-Sea " Company agreed to open a Subſcription for the " Redeemables, the South-Sea Stock happen'd " to be about its higheſt; and then were the " whole Body of the Directors of the Bank ſo " ſanguine, as to cauſe the following Letter to " be written to one of the Directors of the " South-Sea Company, viz.

SIR,

THE Bank being poſſeſs'd of ſeveral Sums in the Redeemables, transferrable in the Bank, not exceeding 300,000 l. and having reſolved to write them in upon the preſent Subſcription: We deſire your Favour to inform us, whether we may depend upon its being effected. Your Anſwer this Evening, or To-morrow Morning early, will much oblige, SIR,

Your Humble Servants,

Bank, 12th July, 1720.

John Hanger, Governor.
John Ward,
Peter Delme,
Nath. Gould.

This Letter being laid before the Court of Directors of the South-Sea Company, the Bank's Requeſt was complied with, whereof their Governor being acquainted, the ſeveral Species of the Bank's Redeemables, which before were in ſeveral Names, were transferred into the Joint Names of Mr. Hanger, their Governor, and Sir John Ward, in order to their being ſubſcribed into the South-Sea Company.

How far this Eagerneſs of the Bank contributed to the hurrying in the reſt of the Redeemables, the Proprietors of thoſe Debts are themſelves the beſt Judges.

The next Step of the Bank, is, that which Mr. Aiſlabie, in the Paragraph of his Speech before quoted, calls, The memorable Bargain with the South-Sea Company; who thinking it of Importance to their Credit, that their Bonds ſhould be circulated, propoſed it to the Bank, and thoſe Gentlemen undertook to circulate three Millions of South-Sea Bonds for one Year, at a certain Premium.

It was agreed alſo, That a Subſcription ſhould be taken by the Bank to carry on the ſaid Circulation, and that in Conſideration of this Undertaking, the South-Sea Company ſhould pay 3,700,000 l. to the Bank in South-Sea Stock, the Stock being valued at 400 l. per Cent. The Minute of which Agreement between the ſaid Companies is ſaid to have been drawn up by Mr. Walpole; which Agreement was confirmed afterwards by the Court of Directors of each Company, and the Non-Performance of this Bargain on the Part of the Bank, they inſiſt, ruin'd more Families than all the Tranſactions of the South-Sea Directors.

For, after this Bargain, made in ſo ſolemn a Manner, in the Preſence of the principal Perſons in the Adminiſtration, and by the Direction of the General Courts of both Companies, and reported to the General Court of the South-Sea Company, in the Preſence of ſeveral of the Directors of the Bank, the moſt cautious Men were drawn in to embark their whole Fortunes in South-Sea Stock at near 400 l. per Cent.

On this Occaſion ſome farther Paſſages in Mr. Aiſlabie's ſaid Speech may be properly inſerted. Who, in Page 15, (after having mention'd that Memorable Bargain of the Bank with the South-Sea Company) thus expreſſes himſelf. " And " here, my Lords, while I am ſpeaking on this " Subject, give me Leave to lament the Fate of " the unhappy Proprietors of the Redeemable " Debts, that were drawn in to ſubſcribe their " reſpective Eſtates; not ſo much from the Arts " of the South-Sea Directors, as from the fatal " Influence and Example of ſome of the chief " Managers and Friends of the Bank; who, " though they now make the greateſt Clamour " for Juſtice, were the firſt that ſubſcrib'd the " Redeemables into the South-Sea Company: " And this, my Lords, they did not do by Sur- " prize or Miſtake, but upon great Deliberation, " having ſome Time before prepared for this " Subſcription, and purchaſed great Part of this " Debt at advanc'd Prices for this Purpoſe.

" I could not ſuſpect there was any Intrigue " or Deceit in this Tranſaction, till I ſaw from " the extraordinary Motion in the Alley, and " ſeveral private Hints that were given out, " what was intended. I could not think it " poſſible that the Gentlemen of the Bank, " who had ſuch great Intereſt in the Redeem- " ables themſelves, ſhould drop ſo many Thou- " ſands of the unhappy Proprietors, who had " depended ſo entirely upon them, and who " would certainly have found their Way out of " this curſed Labyrinth, if they had not been " lulled aſleep by this fallacious Agreement.

" As for me, my Lords, I was throughly ſa- " tisfied, that this Agreement of the Bank was a " legal and a firm Bargain: And I can't yet " imagine with what Face of Juſtice or Equity " they could ever break through it, without " providing for the Safety of their Wards (if I " may uſe that Expreſſion) the Proprietors of the " Rededeemable Debts.

And farther, in Page 19, he delivers himſelf thus: " I do not intend, my Lords, by what I " have ſaid, to lay any Imputation upon the " Bank of England, for, as in all great Bodies, " there are few that are let into the Secret, I " ſuppoſe it might ſo happen here: But, if what " I have heard ſince be true, and what they ſay " has been publickly avowed, that this Bargain " was never intended to be kept, then, I ſay, it " was not only a uſeful Secret to thoſe that were " in it, but the moſt compleat Stratagem of the " whole Year.

" This Contract the Bank never performed, " therefore the General Court of the South-Sea " Company, held in Sept. 1721, ordered their " Directors to proſecute the Bank, effectually to " oblige them to comply therewith; but they " never made any Proceedings thereon, only " read to their General Court the Opinions of " three eminent Counſel, two of which gave it " under their Hands, That the Bank could be " compelled to perform that Agreement, but " the third was doubtful.

" But now to proceed to conſider another " Cauſe of the Misfortunes that have happened, " which was, the Diſtemper of the Times, which " captivated the Reaſon of Mankind in general, " not only in England, but in all the neighbour- " ing Countries; who leaving the uſual Methods " of Labour and Induſtry to gain Eſtates, were " all tainted with the fond Opinion of being rich " at once, which cauſed many Perſons, to engage " much beyond their own Fortunes, not only in " South-Sea Stock, but in every pernicious Bub- " ble that could be deviſed. And here needs " only an Appeal to every Man's own Con- " ſcience, and to deſire him to reflect on the " Operations of his own Mind at that Time, " and what he did and ſaw, and knew to be " done by others.

" How did Perſons of all Ranks and Stations " lay aſide all Manner of Diſtance, and almoſt " Decency, to become the humble Suitors for " Subſcriptions, not only to the Directors of the " South-Sea Company, but alſo to the meaneſt

" and

" and vileſt of the People, who had but the Aſ-
" ſurance to ſet up any Kind of Bubble, even " without ſo much as knowing what the Thing
" was, into which they ſo earneſtly preſſed to " be admitted Subſcribers.

" THIS Temper gave Riſe to thoſe number-
" leſs Swarms of Bubbles, which then peſtered
" the Town, and which were ſet up with no
" other View or Deſign, than to get Subſcriptions,
" but never to put the Affair into Execution;
" and were the Names and Numbers of thoſe
" Bubbles and Sums paid in, together with the " advanced Prices they actually ſold at, collected " and publiſhed, it would apparently ſhew, that " the Miſchief and Ruin which proceeded from " them was more than the Loſſes ſuſtained by the " South-Sea Stock, before that memorable Bar" gain with the Bank; and yet it will eaſily be " admitted, that theſe numerous Bubbles, ſelling
" at ſuch extravagant Prices, did not a little con" tribute to advancing of South-Sea Stock to the " high Price it arrived at.

" THESE Bubbles were the more pernici" ous, in that they were generally traded in
" by the lower Part of the People, whoſe Cir-
" cumſtances would not permit them to buy
" South-Sea Stock or Subſcriptions; but being " infected with the then epidemical Diſeaſe of " becoming rich on a ſudden, deſerted their Shops
" and Trades, and their uſual Methods of In-" duſtry, and were ſtripped of what by their " former Diligence and Frugality they had ac" quired.

" THAT which has cauſed Surprize to ſome
" conſidering Perſons, is, that though the South-
" Sea Scheme was originally formed (as plainly " appears by the foregoing Account) with a De-
" ſign of great Advantage to the Publick, as well
" as to the Original Proprietors: And notwith-
" ſtanding the ſame received ſo many Altera" tions between its firſt Formation, and paſ-" ſing into an Act, and the Execution of that " Act has been attended with ſo many Miſ" fortunes; nevertheleſs there ſtill flow there" from many and great Benefits, as well to the " Publick as to the Original Proprietors; and " yet the Directors of the South-Sea Company
" are puniſhed in a Manner beyond any Prece" dent known in England, whilſt the Projectors
" and Managers of the innumerable Bubbles
" ſet up, even without any legal Foundation, and " with no other Intention than that of Fraud
" and Cheat, have not been ſo much as called in " Queſtion.

THUS far the Apology of the South-Sea Directors, in Behalf of themſelves and their Scheme. But whether this be a full Anſwer to the Charge contained in the Act of Parliament for the Confiſcation of their Eſtates, the following Votes of Parliament, and Reſolutions of the Secret Committee, they will do well to conſider.

2 February, 1720.

Reſolved, by the Houſe of Peers, That the South-Sea Directors declaring 30 per Cent. Dividend for the half Year ending at Chriſtmas, and 50 per Cent. per Ann. for 12 Years after, was a villainous Artifice to delude and defraud his Majeſty's good Subjects.

IN which Reſolution the Commons concurred.

16 February, 1720.

The Secret Committee of the Houſe of Commons made their Report, from whence it appears that the following Portions of South-Sea Stock were taken in for the ſeveral Perſons following, viz.

For the Earl of Sunderland, firſt Lord of the Treaſury, at the Requeſt of James Craggs, Sen. Eſq; 50,000 l.

For Mr. Craggs, Sen. 30,000 l.

For the Sword-Blade Company, 20,000 l.

It appeared alſo, That Mr. Aiſlabie, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had great Quantities of South-Sea Stock given him; and that a great deal more had been taken in by Members of both Houſes of Parliament.

18 February, 1720.

Reſolved, That the ſetting the Stock to Sale by Subſcriptions at high Prices above the intrinſick Value by the Directors, was a groſs and notorious Fraud, and one great Cauſe of the ſinking the Publick Credit, and bringing upon the Nation the Diſtreſs it at preſent labours under.

Reſolved. That the adviſing the late Directors to ſet the Stock to Sale by Subſcriptions at high and extravagant Prices, or to declare the high and extravagant Dividends aboveſaid, by any Perſons in the Adminiſtration, was a notorious Breach of the Truſt repoſed in them, to the Prejudice of his Majeſty's Government, and the Intereſt of the Kingdom.

20 February.

Reſolved, That the taking in or holding of Stock by the South-Sea Company, for the Benefit of a Member of Parliament, or Perſon in the Adminiſtration, while the Company's Propoſals or Bill was depending, without a valuable Conſideration or Security for the Acceptance or Payment for ſuch Stock; and the Company's paying or allowing ſuch Perſon the Difference ariſing by the advanced Price of the Stocks, were corrupt, infamous and dangerous Practices, highly reflecting on the Honour and Juſtice of Parliament, and deſtructive of the Intereſt of his Majeſty's Government.

The Commons taking into their Conſideration that Part of the Report of the Secret Committee which related to John Aiſlabie, Eſq; a Member of that Houſe, Mr. Aiſlabie was heard in his Defence; and it being plainly proved that he had cauſed a Book of Accounts between him and Mr. Hawes to be burnt, and given him a Diſcharge for the Balance, amounting to 840,000 l. it was reſolved, Nemine Contradicente, (among other Things) than the ſaid John Aiſlabie had encouraged and promoted the dangerous and deſtructive Execution of the late South-Sea Scheme, with a View to his own exorbitant Profit, and had combined with the late Directors of the South-Sea Company in their pernicious Practices, to the Detriment of great Numbers of his Majeſty's Subjects, and the Ruin of the Publick Credit, and the Trade of this Kingdom.

They reſolved alſo, That he ſhould be expelled the Houſe and committed to the Tower, and a Bill brought in for reſtraining him from going out of the Kingdom, and from alienating his Eſtate, as was done in the Caſe of the Directors.

And the Adverſaries of the South-Sea Scheme ſtill continue to ſuggeſt, that the Confiſcation of the Directors Eſtates by the Legiſlature, was far from being unjuſt; nay, it is affirmed, that ſuch Indulgence was never ſhewn before to People in their Circumſtances; for tho' it ſhould be admitted that they were the Projectors of the Sinking Fund; that they put the Debts of the Nation in a Way of being paid, and rendered thoſe Annuities redeemable, which before were irredeemable; yet it was done by ſuch Methods as ought never to be countenanced or encouraged. Had they not given out that they were able to make ſuch Dividends, the Annuitants had never been drawn in to ſubſcribe their Annuities, and others to purchaſe Stock at thoſe advanced Rates. There is no doubt but the Company had great Advantages by the Publick Debts being ſubſcribed, and by the high Price at which their Stock was purchaſed; but what was the Company's Gain, was the Loſs of Thouſands and Ten Thouſands; nor does the Competition of the Bank at all excuſe the Raſhneſs of the South-Sea Company in Bidding ſo vaſt a Sum for the Scheme as they were conſcious could never be paid by any Gains the Company could fairly make. They had ('tis true) improved their Original Stock by taking in the Debts. The Bank ſaw it, and would have been glad to have ingroſſed thoſe Debts for the very ſame Reaſons the Company were ſo fond of them; but one would think both the one and the other infatuated, as well as the People, to bid ſo many Millions as they did, for the Execution of the Scheme. There is no doubt but the ſeeing theſe great Bodies Bidding againſt each other, did contribute to the advancing the Price of Stock, and if it ſhould be admitted that the Bank had their Share in abuſing the People, and inducing them to part with their Fortunes to purchaſe what had no Exiſtence in Nature; it is not to be conceived how this Step of the Bank can excuſe the South-Sea Company, who led the Way to all theſe Extravagancies. And can it be ſuppoſed, that the Proprietors of the Long Annuities could ever have been prevailed on to ſubſcribe them, or other People to have given 3 or 400 l. for 100 l. Stock, if they had not been aſſured by the Directors it was worth ſo much, and that they could make Dividends in Proportion to thoſe Prices.

The Merit therefore of procuring the Annuities to be ſubſcribed, which before were irredeemable, by giving out that their Stock was worth more than it really was (ſay the Adverſaries of this Scheme) was no more than the Merit of a Sharper; had not the Annuitants been deceived in the Value, they would never have ſubſcribed, and thought the bringing them in might leſſen the National Debt, and be a very great Advantage to the Company, yet as it was accompliſhed by deceitful Arts, has very little Merit in it. The Government may be Gainers by the Scheme, as well as the Proprietors of the Original Stock; but if this Gain has ariſen from the Loſſes innocent People have ſuſtained, who confided in the Veracity and Probity of the Directors, who depended upon it that the Stock was of the Value they ſet upon it; What Excuſe can they make for their Conduct? It is not to ſay, that there has only been a Revolution of Men's private Eſtates and Fortunes, and that what one has loſt, another has gained; but the Queſtion is, By what Means the Loſers were induced to part with their Fortunes and beggar their Families? Whether the Annuitants were not deceived in the Value of Stock when they ſubſcribed, by the Directors ſetting ſo high a Price upon it, and aſſuring them they could divide 20, 30, nay 50 l. per Cent. What Satisfaction faction is it to a Man that he has tricked into a diſadvantageous Contract, and not forced into it? Or how is Publick Credit ſupported better the one Way than the other?

HAD the Government came with an armed Force and compelled Annuitants to accept of a leſs Sum than their Annuities were really worth, or ſhortened the Time for the Payment of them, this would have been juſtly looked upon as a Breach of the Publick Faith. And if by Stratagem, and in Proſpect of imaginary Advantages, a Way is found out to over-reach theſe Annuitants, and induce them to part with their Annuities, or conſent to a Redemptiou of them, for what is not a valuable Conſideration, can any Government in Honour approve of ſuch Practices, and not ſhew ſome Reſentment againſt the Projectors of ſuch Schemes?

SUCH Reflections as theſe we hear daily made (by the Adverſaries of the South-Sea Scheme) and it ſeems incumbent on the Authors of it to give a more ſatisfactory Anſwer to them than they have hitherto done.

THE following Paragraph, taken from Cato's Letters upon this Subject, ſeems very much to the Purpoſe:

I Would gladly know what Advantage ever hath, or ever can, accrue to the Publick, by raiſing Stocks to an imaginary Value, beyond what they are really worth to an honeſt Man who purchaſes them for a regular Support to himſelf and Family, and deſigns not to ſell them again till he hath Occaſion for the Money they will produce. It can moſt aſſuredly ſerve no honeſt Purpoſe, and will promote a thouſand knaviſh ones. Beſides thoſe before-mentioned, it turns moſt of the current Coin of England out of the Channels of Trade, and the Heads of all its Merchants and Traders off their proper Buſineſs. It enriches the worſt Men and ruins the Innocent. It taints Mens Morals, and defaces all the Principles of Virtue and fair Dealing, and introduces Combination and Fraud in all Sorts of Traffick. It hath changed honeſt Commerce into Bubbling; our Traders into Projectors; Induſtry into Tricking, and Applauſe is earned when the Pillory is deſerved. It hath created all the Diſſatisfaction ſo much complained of, and all the Miſchiefs attending it, which daily threaten us, and which give Reaſons of ſtanding or occaſional Troops. It hath cauſed all the Confuſion in our Publick Finances. It hath ſet up monſtrous Members and Societies in the Body Politick, which are grown, I had almoſt ſaid, too big for the whole Kingdom. It hath multiplied Offices and Dependencies in the Power of the Court, which in Time may fill the Legiſlature, and alter the Ballance of Government. It hath overwhelmed the Nation with Debts and Burthens, under which it is almoſt ready to ſink; and it hath hindered thoſe Debts from being paid off; for if Stocks ſell for more, or much more upon the Exchange than the Prices, at which they are redeemable; or more can be got by Jobbing than by Diſcharging them, then all Arts will be uſed to prevent a Redemption.

As to the Trade carried on in the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies by the South-Sea Company, though it appear at firſt View very beneficial, inaſmuch as they export the Manufactures of Britain, and receive Treaſure (chiefly) in Return; yet this (it is ſaid) was done with as great Advantage formerly by the Way of Cadiz and the Flota, and that the fraudulent Practices of the Company's Agents in America, have been one principal Occaſion of the ill Uſage we have met with on that Side.

The PRESENT STATE of the SOUTH-SEA Company, as given us in a Speech made on the 14th of January, 1731-2, by Sir John Eyles, Sub-Governor of the ſaid Company.

Gentlemen,

THIS General Court is called, in order to your declaring the Dividend for the half Year ended at Chriſtmas laſt, and to lay before you ſome Affairs of ſpecial Importance, viz.

THE Situation of the Debt on Loans, contracted in the Year 1720.

THE Circumſtances of the Greenland Trade, which by your Conſent and Order has been carried on for the ſeven laſt Years.

To acquaint you with the State of the Trade to America ſince the Year 1721, thereby to ſatisfy you how unjuſt the Reports have been of great Loſſes thereby.

AND laſtly, To acquaint you with the Meaſures your Court of Directors have, and ſtill are taking, upon an Information they have received of a Breach of Covenants, committed by the Captain of your Annual Ship Prince William, in her late Voyage to Carthagena and Porto-Bello.

THESE are Matters that will in their Courſe deſerve your ſerious Conſideration.

THE Dividend it is propoſed ſhould be 2 l. per Cent. the Warrants to bear Date the 25th of January, and payable the 11th of February, to which your concurrent Order is neceſſary.

AS to the Matter of the Loans, the Company having brought an Action againſt Colonel John Duncomb for two ſeveral Sums of 4000 l. each, by him borrowed of the Company in the Year 1720, upon Stock, according to the Method then practiſed; the Cauſe was appointed to be tried at the Bar of the King's-Bench by a Special Jury, and the Trial came on on Monday the 15th of November laſt, before the Lord Chief Juſtice Raymond, and the other three Judges of the Court, and laſted near ſeven Hours.

IT ſeemed to be the Opinion of the Court, that it was ſufficiently proved on Behalf of the Company, that the Defendant had received of them the Sums laid in the Declaration, by Way of Loan; and that the only Point of Difficulty was, Whether it was intended and underſtood by the Company and the Borrowers, that the pledged Stock ſhould be the only Security for the Money lent; or whether, notwithſtanding the Pledge, the Borrowers Perſon remained liable. Accordingly this Point was particularly taken Notice of by the Lord Chief Juſtice, in ſumming up the Evidence. The Jury, after they had withdrawn for about a Quarter of an Hour, brought in their Verdict for the Defendant.

YOUR Directors are not ſenſible of any Miſconduct on the Company's Part, and therefore think there is Reaſon to believe, that the Verdict was founded on the Point above-mentioned, which they apprehended to be the Merits of the Cauſe.

So that they have no Proſpect of Succeſs to encourage them to carry on any more of theſe Proſecutions.

IN ſtating the Circumſtance of the Greenland Trade, it may be neceſſary to look back into the Proceedings of the General Courts held formerly upon that, among other Subjects, and the Reſolutions then taken for the engaging therein, which, for the Revival of your Memory, we ſhall read to you from your Books.

Here the ſeveral Proceedings of the General Courts held the 1ſt of September, 1721, the 21ſt of September, and 5th of October, 1722, and 20th of May, 1724, we read.

THE Sub-Governor then proceeded as follows:

Gentlemen,

Gentlemen,

YOU obſerve by the Reſolutions taken in the ſaid Courts, your engaging in this Trade was determin'd by a very great Majority on a Ballot; and the Inducements aroſe from the Popularity and National Benefit of the Undertaking, the great Extent it is capable of, if attended with encouraging Succeſs; and from the Probability your Directors then gave you, of your not being behind other Nations, in Point of Management or good Fortune.

In Purſuance of the above Reſolution, your Directors, in the Year 1724, built twelve new Ships proper for that Trade, of 300 Tons each; hired the great Dock at Deptford, and fitted it, together with the Warehouſes, and other Buildings for their Purpoſes, againſt the Return of the ſaid Ships from their Voyage.

It fortun'd that their Succeſs was ſuperior to all other Nations, which encouraged the Directors, againſt the next Year, to build 13 more Ships of like Burthen, which made your Greenland Fleet conſiſt of 25 Sail; after which, no further Increaſe was made, the Stock therein employ'd, which your Directors limited to Two Hundred Thouſand Pound, being thought ſufficient for the Experiment, till repeated Succeſs ſhould give new Reaſon to increaſe it.

It has now been practis'd for ſeven Years, and though we have the Satisfaction, ſo far as our Credit is in Queſtion, to ſay you have not been deceived in the Opinion given you by the then Directors, neither as to the Succeſs in the Number of Whales taken, in Proportion to Foreigners, nor in the Point of Management or Oeconomy; the regular Method and exact Frugality, which have been kept up in the Practice of the Trade, having been remarkable to every Obſerver; yet, the Produce of the Whales taken has been far ſhort of the Expence incurred, inſomuch that your Directors can by no Means encourage you to proceed further in the Exerciſe of this Trade, unleſs the Parliament ſhall think proper to give ſome further Advantages than have yet been granted to the Undertakers; towards which a Repreſentation has been laid before the Adminiſtration; and, no doubt, every reaſonable Encouragement will be given, but in what Shape, cannot yet be determined. When we can ſpeak to you hereupon with more Certainty, we ſhall communicate the ſame to you, and take your further Orders: In the mean Time, 'tis fit we acquaint you, that as Expeditions on the Whale Fiſhery require the Readineſs and Departure of the Ships in the Month of February to Davis's Streights, and the Beginning of April to Greenland, we have been under a Neceſſity of making Preparation for this Year's Fiſhery, although the Encouragements applied for are but in Expectancy, becauſe, ſhould we ceaſe the Courſe of this Trade but for one Year, the Men Foreigners, as well as Engliſh, now trained up in the Art of the Fiſhery, will be diſperſed on other Services, which will be a very great Inconvenience in Caſe you ſhould be encouraged to continue it.

We further think it our Duty, by acquainting you with the true State of your Affairs in Point of Commerce, carried on ſince the Year 1721, to remove the Inſinuation which deſigning Men, in order to depreciate your Stock, and thereby to take Advantage of the Fears and Credulity of the Ignorant, have induſtriouſly ſpread abroad, viz. That there has not been leſs than Two Millions of Money loſt by Trade.

If this Inſinuation has taken Riſe from any who can be ſuppoſed to have had Opportunity or Authority to inſpect your Books, they have ſhewn either their Ignorance in Accounts, or, which is worſe, their little Regard to Truth, in ſowing ſo unreaſonable Jealouſies to diſturb the Credit of your Stock.

Credit is of a very nice and tender Nature, depending not only upon the Situation of publick Affairs between Nations, but alſo upon the Opinion the Poſſeſſors of Property have of its Security and Intrinſick Value, and of the Management and Care of thoſe they entruſt with the Conduct of their Concerns; whoſoever therefore, by willful Miſrepreſentations, ſcatters unjuſt Apprehenſions to ſink Credit below, or unreaſonable Hopes to advance it above its true and real Value, is guilty of a Fraud; and if any one commits ſuch Fraud to profit thereby, the Offence is greatly aggravated: Your Directors, therefore, have ever avoided all vain and groundleſs Amuſements, by giving any fallacious Appearance to your Affairs, or affectedly pretending them to be better or worſe than they really are.

Every Body knows what Misfortunes this Company have undergone in the Courſe of their Commerce. Since you firſt began trading under the Aſſiento Contract, two Seizures of your Effects in the Indies have been made, upon the Miſunderſtadings with Spain, in the Years 1718 and 1727. And though upon the Accommodations of Affairs Reſtitutions have been afterwards ordered, and in good Meaſure complied with, yet theſe Recoveries have not been without great Loſs and Diminution; beſides, that every ſudden Interruption to the Conrſe of your Commerce is alſo attended with Loſs and Damage; and the Expence of your Factories has been unavoidably as great, under the long Suſpenſions of Trade, as while carried on; by which Circumſtances and Accidents, the promiſing Views of Advantage from your Commerce have been very much obſtructed. To which we may add, ſome prejudicial Inconveniencies from the Method in which we found your Factories originally eſtabliſhed; which Method could not well be altered till Experience ſhewed the Defect, and till the Interruption of Commerce in the Year 1727, gave ſufficient Leiſure and Opportunity of ſettling them on a new and better Eſtabliſhment, which has ſince been done.

However, under all theſe Misfortunes, Loſſes and Inconveniencies, which having been generally known, may conſequently have given ſome Credit to the falſe Inſinuations lately ſpread abroad, of the very great Loſſes that have been ſuſtained, amounting, as has been reported, to no leſs than Two Million Sterling, we can aſſure you, that by an Account of your Payments and Receipts on Account of Trade, from March 25, 1721, to Chriſtmas laſt, certified by your Accomptant, and laid before your Directors, it appears, that you are not in Diſburſe one Shilling on Account thereof, which, we hope, will be a ſufficient Satisfaction without ſaying more.

At the Expiration of the calamitous Year 1720, when we, or ſome of us, were elected into your Service, we found your Affairs in the utmoſt Confuſion imaginable abroad and at home. The Difference with Spain had continued from the Year 1718 to that Time, and till the following Year, whereby, and by the Death of many Factors abroad, Loſs of Books, &c. the Debts and Dependencies ariſing from the firſt Sales of Goods and Negroes in all Parts of America, were left in great Obſcurity and Hazard. At home we found your Caſh low, a very heavy Load of Bonds, moſtly iſſued in the Year 1720, on Account of the Long Annuities ſubſcribed, without any Means or Proviſion for the Diſcharge of them; beſides which, there was a Debt of a Million which had been borrowed of the Publick, and Seven Millions were alſo due by Agreement, for the Privilege of increaſing your Capital. We alſo found you you engaged in a Contract for the Circulation of Exchequer-Bills: At the ſame Time, People concerned in the Money Subſcriptions, and thoſe of the Redeemable Debts, were in a confuſed Uproar, and all the Debtors upon Loans in the greateſt Conſternation; a tremendous Weight of Buſineſs upon thoſe who then had the Care of your Affairs! which, however, by the Means you at laſt fell into and agreed upon, almoſt all your Difficulties were ſettled and adjuſted: The Million owing to the Publick has been paid, the other Debt remitted by the Publick, and above half your Bonds have been diſcharg'd. Pending the Operation of thoſe great Events, the Peace with Spain being obtained, the Company had the Notification thereof in Form, and of the Revival of the Aſſiento, with Cedula's of Reſtitution, and for the ſending of an annual Ship to Porto Bello, which was accordingly diſpatched that Year, and your Factories were immediately filled by a new Choice, according to the Plan we found they had been ſettled upon.

WE have mentioned ſo much of the diſordered Situation of your Affairs in thoſe unhappy Times, as an Argument only, by Way of Apology, had any Errors been committed in the new Commencement of your Commercial Affairs, before your then Directors were well inform'd in the Nature of them, and when they were fully employ'd in the moſt intricate and arduous Affairs. Experience gave your Directors new Lights to govern themſelves by, and it has been their conſtant Application to reform and rectify every Thing that could poſſibly be put on a Foot better and ſecurer from Injury and Abuſe, towards which, as Occaſions have offered, divers new Regulations have from Time to Time been made; yet it is no eaſy Matter to find a ſecure Check to every indirect Proceeding of Perſons employ'd in your Service. Which leads us, laſtly, to acquaint you with the Proceedings we are taking, upon an Information your Court of Directors have lately received concerning the Conduct of the Captain of your annual Ship Prince William, in her late Voyage to Carthagena and Porto Bello.

THE Sub-Governor having on the 19th Day of March laſt taken Notice to the Court of Directors, that by the common Report of Advices from St. Chriſtopher's, your ſaid Ship had touched at that Place, in her Paſſage, and taken in a Quantity of Goods, contrary to Covenants entered into, more ſtrict and ſevere than were ever before formed, and contrary to Inſtructions and Orders, your Directors unanimouſly agreed in the following Reſolution, viz.

> THAT it be referred to the Committee of Correſpondence, to inquire into the ſaid Reports, and that they conſider, in Caſe the ſame were found to be true, of ſuch Means of procuring Satisfaction for any Damage the Company might receive thereby, in ſuch Manner as might be leaſt detrimental to the Company's General Affairs.

THE Committee were very careful in their Inquiry, and ſolicitous, agreeable to the Tenour of the Reference, that no Damage might be endanger'd to the Company in their Affairs with Spain, by this ſuſpected Conduct of the Captain and the other covenanting Parties; and were at the ſame Time conſidering the moſt adviſeable Means of obtaining Satisfaction for any Damage done the Company, ſo as to make Report of their Opinion upon the Whole, as ſoon as poſſible, after the Return of the Ship, and the obtaining the fulleſt Evidence that could be got of their Tranſactions.

ON the Return of the Ship, and the Application of the Sailors for their Wages, your Directors retaining a warm Reſentment, ordered an Examination of the Officers and Sailors before their Payment, concerning the Practices at St. Chriſtopher's. Accordingly the Common Sailors and all the Officers were examined, the Reſult of which amounted to nothing of Importance.

THIS Enquiry, however, in ſo publick a Manner, which your Directors, in Zeal for your Service, had ordered, raiſed more Speculation and Diſcourſe abroad on this Subject than ſuited the true Intereſt of the Company, inaſmuch as any Evidence to the Court of Spain of Exceedings in the Tonnage limited and allowed by the Aſſiento Treaty, may ſubject the Company to Inconveniences and Damages from the Complaints of Spain, infinitely greater than thoſe otherwiſe ſuſtained by the Company, eſpecially at this Time, when the great Demands this Company has to make on the Crown of Spain, for their Infractions of the Treaty in Injury to you, are under the immediate Conſideration of Commiſſaries appointed on the Part of both Nations.

THIS is a Peculiarity of Circumſtance that attends this Company in Enquiries of this Nature, beyond that of any other Societies, that trade upon excluſive Charters: They trade where they pleaſe, within the Limits thereof, and to what Amount they think fit: You do not at all in Virtue of your Charter, but only under the limited Grant and Privilege of the Crown of Spain.

BESIDE the Officers and Sailors of the Prince William, the Captain himſelf was examined, who made ſome Confeſſion, and offered to ſubmit himſelf to be dealt with by the Court as they thought fit: But his Confeſſion being not judged to contain the whole Truth, his Covenants were ordered to be put in Proſecution, and the Conduct thereof referred to the Care of a Committee.

WHILE the Committee were employed in taking ſuch proper Meaſures as Counſel adviſed, Mr. Dundey Kidd, Chief Mate of the Prince William, ſignified to the Committee, that in Caſe the Court would indemnify him from the Penalties of his Covenants, he would inform the Court of all Proceedings at St. Chriſtopher's; which, upon the Report of the Committee, was agreed to; and he accordingly, on the 17th of laſt Month came into Court, and gave Information in Writing of Goods taken on board at that Place, to the Amount, as he ſaid he was told, of 150 Tons, which was immediately referred to the ſaid Committee, to make the proper Uſe of.

THIS Information in a Moment become too much the Diſcourſe of the Town to hope for any Avoidance of evil Conſequences at the Court of Spain, by its being a Secret there.

THE Difficulty to which the Notoriety of the Proof of this Fact had reduced your Concerns in ſo critical a Conjuncture, when you were juſt feeling the Sweets of Friendſhip with Spain, and when the Cedula for your next Annual Ship was on the Point of being diſpatched, was too obvious not to require ſome immediate Thought how, if poſſible, to remove it: Your Sub-Governor therefore, that no Time might be loſt, wrote a Letter the following Poſt to your Agent in Spain, inſtructing him how to behave on the Occaſion, to prevent the evil Conſequences otherwiſe to be feared; which Letter being communicated to the Court of Directors at the next Court, the ſame was unanimouſly approved; and it is hoped the Directions therein given may remove the Prejudice that Coutt might otherwiſe entertain againſt the Company, upon the Knowledge of this Affair.

IN the mean Time your Directors are buſy in purſuing that reaſonable Recompence they ought ought in Juſtice to expect from the Offenders, for the particular Damage the Company may have ſuffered.

HAVING thus opened to you the ſeveral Matters we had to lay before you, we hope we have given you Satisfaction in ſo doing.

THEN the ſaid General Court agreed, that the Dividend for the half Year ended at Chriſtmas, be two per Cent. in Money, and be paid the 11th of next Month. Acquieſced in Opinion, as the Trial with Colonel Duncomb went againſt the Company, not to proſecute any more of the Debtors on the Loan of the Year 1720. Alſo that the Greenland Trade go on this Year, in Hopes of the Favour of the Parliament.

THE General Court having deſired to be acquainted with the State of the Company's Bonds, the Sub-Governor informed them thereof.

THE foregoing Account of the Company's Trade, and of their Bonds, and the general Conduct of the Governors and Directors being much to the Court's Satisfaction, a Motion was made and inſiſted on, That the Thanks of the General Court be given to them for their juſt and wiſe Adminiſtration of the Company's Affairs; which the Sub-Governor handſomely waved, and declined to put, ſignifying to the Court, That he had found their Favour at Elections, which was ſufficiently pleaſing to him: But the Court inſiſting on the Motion, the Secretary put the ſaid Queſtion, which was carried Nemine Contradicente.

IT appeared to the Court, that 200,000 l. had been employed in the Greenland Trade, of which 150,000 l. had been laid out in Shipping, and about 50,000 l. was loſt by that Trade: In the Year 1721, 640,000 l. had been loſt or ſunk in the Aſſiento Trade; but ſince that Time 250,000 l. had been received more than ſent out: In the Year 1721, the Company owed on Bonds above 4,400,000 l. but now not 2,000,000 l.

The WHARFS and KEYS of the PORT of LONDON.

FOR aſcertaining the Port of LONDON for the Uſe of Merchants, King Charles II. by Virtue of an Act of Parliament in the 14th Year of his Reign, intitled, An Act for preventing Frauds, &c. did iſſue out a Commiſſion under the Seal of the Court of Exchequer, in the 19th Year of his Reign, Anno 1667, to the Lord High Chancellor, the Lord High Treaſurer, and many other Officers of State, and other eminent Perſons, Citizens and others, to regulate the Port of LONDON, and for the aſſigning and appointing all ſuch and ſo many open Places to be Keys and Wharfs, as ſhould be meet for the ſhipping and landing of Goods, Wares and Merchandizes within the ſaid Port of LONDON; and for the appointing, limiting and bounding all thoſe Places by ſufficient Meets and Limits, and to ſet the Number, Heighth, Breadth, Form and Building of all the Cranes that are, or ſhall be built upon the ſaid Wharfs; and to ſet down and appoint the Extent, Bounds, Limits and Privileges of the ſaid Port. In Purſuance of this Commiſſion, the ſaid Commiſſioners made a Certificate, dated at the Cuſtom-Houſe, May 24, 1667, of all the lawful Keys, Wharfs, and Places for landing, 21 in all; and the Limits of each ſet forth, Eaſt, Weſt, and Northward. And they certified the common Key, called Billingſgate, to be a common open Place for the landing or bringing in of Fiſh, Salt, Victuals or Fewel of all Sorts, and all native Materials for Building and for Fruit, and for carrying out the ſame, and for no other Wares or Merchandizes. And they certified concerning the Bridge-Houſe in Southwark, that it may be allowed as a Place convenient for the landing of any Kind of Corn, bought and provided for the Proviſion or Victualling of the City. To this Certificate Anthony Lord Aſhley, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir William Morrice, Secretary of State, and 30 more ſubſcribed. And laſtly, To confirm and ratify this Certificate, the King allowed it by an authentick Inſtrument under the Seal of the Exchequer, and directed the Execution thereof. The Certificate and Confirmation are as follow:

A CERTIFICATE, in Purſuance of his Majeſty's Commiſſion for regulating the Port of LONDON, and bounding and limiting the Wharf and Keys thereof, &c. Together with his Majeſty's Commiſſion approving and confirming the ſame, and directing the Execution thereof.

BY Virtue of his Majeſty's Commiſſion under the Seal of his Majeſty's Honourable Court of Exchequer hereunto annexed, bearing Date the 29th Day of March laſt paſt, to us and others directed, for the aſſigning and appointing all ſuch, and ſo many open Places to be Keys and Wharfs, as ſhall be meet for the ſhipping and landing of Goods, Wares and Merchandize within the ſaid Port of LONDON, and for the appointing, limiting, bounding and ſettling all thoſe Places by ſufficient Meets, Limits and Bounds; and alſo to ſet forth the Number, Heighth, Breadth, Form and Building of all the Cranes that are or ſhall be built upon the ſaid Wharfs; and to ſet down and appoint the Extent, Bounds, Limits and Privileges of the ſaid Port, according to the Tenor of an Act of Parliament made and enacted in the 14th Year of his Majeſty's Reign, intitled, An Act for preventing Frauds, and regulating Abuſes in his Majeſty's Cuſtoms.

WE the ſaid Commiſſioners, by Virtue of his Majeſty's ſaid Commiſſion, have, the twenty third Day of April, in the ſaid nineteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, and at ſeveral Days and Times ſithence, ſearched, ſurveyed and viewed, and inquired into, by the beſt Ways and Means we could, all and every the convenient and uſeful open Place and Places, to be Keys or Wharfs for the ſhipping, lading, or landing of Goods, Wares and Merchandizes within the ſaid Port of LONDON, below the Bridge towards the Sea; and the Heighth, Length and Breadth, and Form of Building of all the Cranes which are or ſhall be built thereupon; and alſo the Extent, Bounds, Limits and Privileges of the ſaid Port, in Manner and Form hereafter following; and do declare all other Places within the ſaid Port to be unlawful for the ſhipping or landing of Goods, Wares or Merchandize, and utterly to be debarred from that Privilege by Force of the ſaid Statute, and other Premiſſes. And, Firſt, We humbly conceive and certify, that the Keys, Wharfs and Places hereafter named, may be aſſigned, appointed and allowed by his Majeſty to be lawful Keys, Wharfs or Places for the ſhipping, lading, or landing of Goods; that is to ſay, the Wharf or Key called

1. Brewers Key, bounded on the Eaſt with Tower-dock, containing from Eaſt to Weſt ſeventy three Feet, and in Breadth from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

2. Cheſter's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt fifty one Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

3. Galley Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt one hundred and one Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

THE General Court having deſired to be acquainted with the State of the Company's Bonds, the Sub-Governor informed them thereof.

THE foregoing Account of the Company's Trade, and of their Bonds, and the general Conduct of the Governors and Directors being much to the Court's Satisfaction, a Motion was made and inſiſted on, That the Thanks of the General Court be given to them for their juſt and wiſe Adminiſtration of the Company's Affairs; which the Sub-Governor handſomely waved, and declined to put, ſignifying to the Court, That he had found their Favour at Elections, which was ſufficiently pleaſing to him: But the Court inſiſting on the Motion, the Secretary put the ſaid Queſtion, which was carried Nemine Contradicente.

IT appeared to the Court, that 200,000 l. had been employed in the Greenland Trade, of which 150,000 l. had been laid out in Shipping, and about 50,000 l. was loſt by that Trade: In the Year 1721, 640,000 l. had been loſt or ſunk in the Aſſiento Trade; but ſince that Time 250,000 l. had been received more than ſent out: In the Year 1721, the Company owed on Bonds above 4,400,000 l. but now not 2,000,000 l.

The WHARFS and KEYS of the PORT of LONDON.

FOR aſcertaining the Port of LONDON for the Uſe of Merchants, King Charles II. by Virtue of an Act of Parliament in the 14th Year of his Reign, intitled, An Act for preventing Frauds, &c. did iſſue out a Commiſſion under the Seal of the Court of Exchequer, in the 19th Year of his Reign, Anno 1667, to the Lord High Chancellor, the Lord High Treaſurer, and many other Officers of State, and other eminent Perſons, Citizens and others, to regulate the Port of LONDON, and for the aſſigning and appointing all ſuch and ſo many open Places to be Keys and Wharfs, as ſhould be meet for the ſhipping and landing of Goods, Wares and Merchandizes within the ſaid Port of LONDON; and for the appointing, limiting and bounding all thoſe Places by ſufficient Meets and Limits, and to ſet the Number, Heighth, Breadth, Form and Building of all the Cranes that are, or ſhall be built upon the ſaid Wharfs; and to ſet down and appoint the Extent, Bounds, Limits and Privileges of the ſaid Port. In Purſuance of this Commiſſion, the ſaid Commiſſioners made a Certificate, dated at the Cuſtom-Houſe, May 24, 1667, of all the lawful Keys, Wharfs, and Places for landing, 21 in all; and the Limits of each ſet forth, Eaſt, Weſt, and Northward. And they certified the common Key, called Billingſgate, to be a common open Place for the landing or bringing in of Fiſh, Salt, Victuals or Fewel of all Sorts, and all native Materials for Building and for Fruit, and for carrying out the ſame, and for no other Wares or Merchandizes. And they certified concerning the Bridge-Houſe in Southwark, that it may be allowed as a Place convenient for the landing of any Kind of Corn, bought and provided for the Proviſion or Victualling of the City. To this Certificate Anthony Lord Aſhley, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir William Morrice, Secretary of State, and 30 more ſubſcribed. And laſtly, To confirm and ratify this Certificate, the King allowed it by an authentick Inſtrument under the Seal of the Exchequer, and directed the Execution thereof. The Certificate and Confirmation are as follow:

A CERTIFICATE, in Purſuance of his Majeſty's Commiſſion for regulating the Port of LONDON, and bounding and limiting the Wharf and Keys thereof, &c. Together with his Majeſty's Commiſſion approving and confirming the ſame, and directing the Execution thereof.

BY Virtue of his Majeſty's Commiſſion under the Seal of his Majeſty's Honourable Court of Exchequer hereunto annexed, bearing Date the 29th Day of March laſt paſt, to us and others directed, for the aſſigning and appointing all ſuch, and ſo many open Places to be Keys and Wharfs, as ſhall be meet for the ſhipping and landing of Goods, Wares and Merchandize within the ſaid Port of LONDON, and for the appointing, limiting, bounding and ſettling all thoſe Places by ſufficient Meets, Limits and Bounds; and alſo to ſet forth the Number, Heighth, Breadth, Form and Building of all the Cranes that are or ſhall be built upon the ſaid Wharfs; and to ſet down and appoint the Extent, Bounds, Limits and Privileges of the ſaid Port, according to the Tenor of an Act of Parliament made and enacted in the 14th Year of his Majeſty's Reign, intitled, An Act for preventing Frauds, and regulating Abuſes in his Majeſty's Cuſtoms.

WE the ſaid Commiſſioners, by Virtue of his Majeſty's ſaid Commiſſion, have, the twenty third Day of April, in the ſaid nineteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, and at ſeveral Days and Times ſithence, ſearched, ſurveyed and viewed, and inquired into, by the beſt Ways and Means we could, all and every the convenient and uſeful open Place and Places, to be Keys or Wharfs for the ſhipping, lading, or landing of Goods, Wares and Merchandizes within the ſaid Port of LONDON, below the Bridge towards the Sea; and the Heighth, Length and Breadth, and Form of Building of all the Cranes which are or ſhall be built thereupon; and alſo the Extent, Bounds, Limits and Privileges of the ſaid Port, in Manner and Form hereafter following; and do declare all other Places within the ſaid Port to be unlawful for the ſhipping or landing of Goods, Wares or Merchandize, and utterly to be debarred from that Privilege by Force of the ſaid Statute, and other Premiſſes. And, Firſt, We humbly conceive and certify, that the Keys, Wharfs and Places hereafter named, may be aſſigned, appointed and allowed by his Majeſty to be lawful Keys, Wharfs or Places for the ſhipping, lading, or landing of Goods; that is to ſay, the Wharf or Key called

1. Brewers Key, bounded on the Eaſt with Tower-dock, containing from Eaſt to Weſt ſeventy three Feet, and in Breadth from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

2. Cheſter's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt fifty one Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

3. Galley Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt one hundred and one Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

4. Wool Dock, containing from Eaſt to Weſt ſixty one Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

5. Cuſtom-houſe Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt two hundred and two Feet, beſides ſix Feet more at the Eaſt End thereof, betwixt that and Wool Dock, being a Common Sewer arched over; and from the River of Thames Northward, all the Extent of Ground which ſhall not be employed or uſed in the building of his Majeſty's Cuſtom-Houſe, and Offices thereunto belonging. Stone-Stairs on the Weſt Side thereof, containing fifteen Feet in Breadth, is declared to be a Place for Wherries and Paſſengers, and fetching of Water only, and not for any Goods or Merchandize.

6. Porters Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt one hundred and three Feet, and from the River of Thames, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

7. Bear Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt ſixty two Feet four Inches, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

8. Sab's Dock, excluding the Stairs there, (which are hereby declared no lawful Place of Shipping or Landing of Goods or Merchandize) containing from Eaſt to Weſt thirty Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet.

9. Wiggon's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt fifty two Feet and a Half, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

10. Young's Key, containining from Eaſt to Weſt forty ſix Feet four Inches, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet from the narroweſt Place.

11. Ralph's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt eighty one Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

12. Dice Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt one hundred and eleven Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet; and if the Stairs on the Eaſt Side thereof be taken away, and the Paſſage leading thereunto laid into the ſaid Key, then to contain ſix Feet more from Eaſt to Weſt; and Northward from the River of Thames, the ſaid Paſſage to contain forty Feet: But, in the mean Time, the ſaid Stairs are hereby declared unlawful for the Landing, Lading or Shipping of Goods or Merchandize.

13. Smart's Key, at the South End thereof, containing from Eaſt to Weſt ſeven and twenty Feet two Inches, and extending Northward, along the Side of Billingſgate-Dock, one hundred twenty ſix Feet ſix Inches, and in all other Parts, extending from the ſaid Dock Eaſtward, forty Feet.

14. Sommer's Key, containtng from Eaſt to Weſt, and including the Paſſage leading to the Stairs on the Eaſt Side thereof, ſeventy three Feet and a Half, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty feet. But the Place where the ſaid Stairs now ſtand is hereby declared to be no lawful Place of Landing or Shipping of Goods and Merchandize, until the Stairs be taken away.

15. Lion Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt thirty ſix Feet nine Inches, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet: But no Stairs, as formerly, to be erected thereupon or thereunto.

16. Botolph Wharf, containing from Eaſt to Weſt ſeventy eight Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

17. Hammon's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt twenty three Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet.

18. Gaunt's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt irty one Feet, including the ſmall Stairs on the ſt Side thereof, and from the River of Thames Northward forty Feet. The ſaid Stairs is hereby declared unlawful for Shipping, Lading or Landing of Goods or Merchandize.

19. Cock's Key, containing from Eaſt to Weſt forty Feet eight Inches, and from the River of Thames Northward, forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

20. One other Place betwixt Cock's Key and Freſh Wharf, called Part of Freſh Wharf, containing from Eaſt to Weſt twenty five Feet, including the Stairs on the Eaſt Side thereof, and Northward from the River of Thames forty Feet in the narroweſt Place. The ſaid Stairs is hereby declared unlawful for Shipping or Landing of Goods.

21. Freſh Wharf, containing from Eaſt to Weſt one hundred and fifteen Feet, and from the River of Thames Northward forty Feet in the narroweſt Place.

Item, We do alſo humbly conceive and certifie, that the common Key or Place called Billingſgate, containing from North to South one hundred ſeventy one Feet and a Half, and in Breadth from Eaſt to Weſt forty Feet, to be a common open Place for the landing or bringing in of Fiſh, Salt, Victuals or Fewel of all Sorts, and all native Materials for Building, and for Fruit, (all Manner of Grocery excepted) and for carrying out the ſame, and for no other Wares or Merchandize: And that if the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City ſhall think fit to fill up any Part of the ſaid Dock at the North End thereof, not exceeding forty Feet in Length, the ſame Ground ſo filled up may have the ſame Privilege as the reſt of the Wharf before deſcribed.

Item, We think fit, and humbly certify, that the Bridge-houſe in Southwark may be allowed as a Place convenient for landing of any kind of Corn, bought or provided for the Proviſion or Victualling of the City, and not upon any private or particular Perſon's Account, and for no other Goods or Merchandize.

Item, We think it reaſonable, and do humbly adviſe, that it may be lawful for any Perſon to ſhip or lade into any Ship or Veſſel on the River of Thames, bound over Seas, and lying between London and Woolwich, any of the Goods or Merchandize hereafter mentioned, viz. Horſes, Coals, Beer, ordinary Stones for Building, Fiſh taken by any of his Majeſty's Subjects, Corn or Grain; provided that the Cuſtom and Duties of ſuch Goods be duly paid, and Cockets or other lawful Warrants paſſed for the ſame, and delivered to the Searcher, or one of his Majeſty's Under-Searchers, and ſhipped in the Preſence of ſome of them, and in the Preſence of a Deputy, to ſuch Perſons as ſhall be appointed from Time to Time to manage or receive the Cuſtoms in the Port of LONDON, and no otherwiſe.

Item, We humbly adviſe, That it may be lawful for any Perſon or Perſons to unſhip and lay on Land, Deal Boards, Balks, and all Sorts of Maſts, and great Timber, at any Place of the River of Thames, betwixt Weſtminſter and Lime-houſe-Dock; provided the Owner of ſuch Goods do firſt pay or compound for the Cuſtom and other Duties, and declare the Place at which they will land them, before they unſhip any of the Goods, to the Officers or Farmers of the Cuſtoms thereof for the Time being, and receive Sufferance or Permiſſion from them ſo to do; and that they unſhip none of the ſaid Goods but in the Preſence of a Waiter or Officer appointed thereunto, unleſs by ſpecial Licence of the ſaid Officers or Farmers of the Cuſtoms for the Time being; otherwiſe the ſaid Goods to be liable to Forfeiture according to Law.

AND to the End the Buildings upon the Wharfs and Keys afore-named may be carried on with the moſt Conveniency, Regularity and Ornament, and

and be kept at forty Feet Diſtance from the Wall, Key or Wharf which bounds the River of Thames, according to an Act of the now Parliament, lately paſſed for rebuilding the City of LONDON: We humbly adviſe, That it may be lawful for the Owners or Poſſeſſors of the ſeveral Wharfs, called, Lyon Key, Sommers Key, Dice Key, and Sab's Dock, to fill up or wharf over and enlarge into the River of Thames ſo much as will make the Front of their Wall or Campſhot range equally with the adjoining Keys or Wharfs, that is to ſay, that Lyon Key, the whole Length thereof being thirty ſix Feet nine Inches, may be enlarged into the Thames eight Feet in Breadth, to make it equal to the outmoſt Point of Botolph Wharf; and that Sommers Key, being ſeventy four Feet in Length, may be enlarged into the Thames the ſame Breadth of eight Feet from the ſaid Lyon Key to Billingſgate; and that the Dock or Inlet at Dice Key, being fifty ſeven Feet in Length, may be enlarged into the River of Thames twenty four Feet four Inches, to make it range equal with other Parts of the ſaid Key on the Weſt Side, and with Ralph's Key on the Eaſt Side thereof: And that Sab's Dock, being now open in an irregular Form, may be arched, wharfed over, or filled up, to make the ſame front the Thames in a right Range with the Walls or Campſhots on both Sides of it: And in Caſe the ſaid Keys and Dock, or any of them, ſhall be ſo filled up or wharfed over, we think it reaſonable, that from thenceforth the general Wharf of forty Feet to be left next the Thames, be reduced accordingly.

And for further Ornament and Conveniency in the Buildings which ſhall be erected upon the ſaid Wharfs to front the River of Thames, according to the Intent of the Act of Parliament for Rebuilding the City, We think it neceſſary, and do declare, That if any of the ſaid Houſes or Buildings be intended for Warehouſes, or hereafter ſo employed, yet nevertheleſs the two upper Stories and Garrets of the ſaid Houſes be made, and from Time to Time continued with glazed Windows: And if the ſaid Stories or Garrets be made uſe of as Warehouſes, and be made with Doors outward to receive in Goods, yet thoſe Doors to be made in the Form of Doors or Valves for Balconies, to open with double Leaves to the Bottom of the Floor whereunto they are placed.

Item, We think fit that the Number of Cranes upon the ſaid ſeveral Wharfs be at the Erection of the Owners or Poſſeſſors of the Ground, provided they exceed not the Dimenſions following, viz. a ſingle Crane with one Wheel twelve Feet in Breadth, and a double Crane with two Wheels twenty Feet, and each of them in Depth or Length from the Wall or Campſhot, twenty one Feet at the moſt; and that the ſaid Cranes, as well ſingle as double, be kept open and free for common Paſſage from the Ground to the Floor under the Wheels without any other Incloſure, Partition, Separation or Hinderance by Poſts or Spurns, than the neceſſary Poſts or Timbers which ſupport the ſame at both Ends; and that the open Height of the ſaid Crane be at leaſt ten Feet and a Half from the Ground to the Floor under the Wheels, that Carts and Carriages may freely paſs under them.

And, to prevent all Incroachments, Incumbrances and Abuſes that may be made or committed upon the ſaid Wharfs, Keys or Cranes, We do think fit, and do hereby declare, That it ſhall not be lawful for any Perſon to build any Outſets, Jets, Penthouſes, Warehouſes, Rooms, Lodgings, or any Manner of Poſts, Sheds or Buildings, contiguous or annexed to the ſaid Cranes, or any Part of the open Wharf, of forty Feet in Breadth, deſcribed as aforeſaid, more than what is convenient about the Cranes for the Wheels to work in and upon, and ſufficient Covering thereunto, not exceeding the Height, Breadth and Length aforeſaid: And, for further Ornament, in Regard thoſe Cranes ſtand in the moſt publick View of the River, that they be laid in Oil, and coloured Blue, and in the Front thereof, towards the Thames, be placed the King's Arms, painted and ſet in an Eſcutcheon or other Frame, with a decent Moulding about it, of at leaſt four Feet and a Half in Diameter.

Item, We have adviſed, and do think fit, That all the Paſſages, Lanes or Cartways, leading to the ſaid Keys or Wharfs from Thames-ſtreet, and every of them, be made of the Breadth of eleven Feet at the leaſt; but if any was of a larger Breadth or Dimenſion heretofore, this ſhall not be conſtrued or meant to leſſen or ſtraiten it, but that it continue at the antient or larger Dimenſion.

Item, We think fit that the ſeveral Keys and Wharfs deſcribed and allowed to be free Places for Shipping and Landing of Goods and Merchandize as aforeſaid, and which according to the Tenor of the ſaid Act of Parliament for Rebuilding the City, is and ought to be left open and free at the Diſtance of forty Feet from the Water-ſide, ſhall not be ſeparated or divided one from another by any Houſe, Wall, Pale, Poſt, Rail, or other Impediment whatſoever, but only by meer Stones or Marks in the Pavement for the Diſtinction of Propriety, and not otherwiſe.

Item, We think fit, and do hereby declare, That if any Wharfinger or Owner of any of the Wharfs or Grounds allowed for Shipping, Lading or Landing of Goods or Merchandize as aforeſaid, do not conform to the preſent Form, Rules and Method hereby preſcribed and directed for their Wharfs, Cranes, or Buildings, or hereafter ſhall diſcontinue or alter the ſame, or make new Incroachments thereupon: That after publick Notice given by any three or more of the principal Officers or Farmers of his Majeſty's Cuſtoms, by fixing up a Writing under their Hands upon the Wharf where the Fault ſhall be committed, declaring the Offence, and limiting a Day and Time for the Amendment thereof; which if not amended or performed accordingly, that then ſuch Wharf, or Crane, ſhall from thenceforward be no more reputed or taken, or have the Benefit or Privilege as a lawful Place of Shipping, Lading or Landing of Goods or Merchandize; but be thenceforward utterly debarred thereof, unleſs reſtored by his Majeſty's ſpecial Warrant; and nevertheleſs the ſaid Buildings, Alterations and Incroachments to be demoliſhed and removed, as the Law in that Caſe hath directed.

Yet nevertheleſs, notwithſtanding any Advice, Declaration or Appointment herein before mentioned concerning the Keys, Wharfs or Places of Shipping, Lading or Landing of Goods and Merchandize, if at any Time it ſhall ſeem reaſonable to the principal Officers or Farmers of the Cuſtoms for the Time being, and conſiſtent with his Majeſty's Service, to give Sufferance or Permiſſion for the Shipping, Lading or Landing any Goods or Merchandize at any other Place or Places, or in any other Manner than is herein before nominated and adviſed, or aſſigned to be lawful Keys and Wharfs, it ſhall and may be lawful for them ſo to do; and ſuch Sufferance and Permiſſion ſhall be good and warrantable, without any Forfeiture or Advantage to be taken againſt the Goods ſo landed, notwithſtanding any Thing herein before declared to the contrary.

But if his Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to reduce all the lawful Keys and Wharfs to the Space of Ground betwixt London-bridge and the Tower, which will be a great Improvement to the Owners thereof, We do humbly adviſe, and hereby declare, declare, That whoſoever ſhall accept of, or from henceforward employ any of thoſe Keys or Wharfs by Virtue of ſuch Conceſſion to the Uſe of Shipping, Lading or Landing of Goods and Merchandize, that it is to be underſtood, and it is hereby declared to be with this Covenant and Condition, That they perform all and ſingular the Orders, Aſſignments and Appointments, which on their Parts and Behalfs is herein before declared to be performed and done, and not otherwiſe.

AND for the avoiding the Incumbrance and Annoyance which will daily happen, to the Diſturbance of his Majeſty's Service, and Inconvenience to Merchants in taking up their Goods at the ſaid Keys and Wharfs, by ſuffering Cars to ſtand empty upon the ſaid Wharfs and open Places allowed by the Law for other Purpoſes; We think it neceſſary that the ſeveral Wharfingers, or Poſſeſſors of any the ſaid Keys or Wharfs, or their Servants, ſhall not ſuffer to ſtand or remain upon their Wharfs, or Paſſages leading to them from Thames-ſtreet, any more than ſuch Cars or Carts as ſhall be immediately called to lade or take up Goods, Wares or Merchandize there: And if any other Car or Cart ſhall preſume to come down empty, without being called by the Owners or Agents employed in taking up of Goods, and there ſtand, to the Diſturbance and Hindrance of the Service aforeſaid, it ſhall be lawful for the ſaid Wharfingers, or their Servants, by lawful and peaceable Means to force them off; and in Caſe of Refuſal, to proſecute them farther by ſuch Rules, Orders and Puniſhments, as by the Laws and Cuſtoms of the City they may or ought to do.

AND to prevent all future Differences and Diſputes touching the Extent and Limits of the Port of LONDON, and the many Frauds and Abuſes which have been acted and committed, as well upon and within the River of Thames, as without the Mouth thereof upon the Sea, we think it neceſſary, and do humbly adviſe, that the ſaid Port may be declared by his Majeſty to extend, and be accounted from the Promontory or Point, called Northforeland, in the Iſle of Thanet, and from thence Northward in a ſuppoſed right Line to the oppoſite Promontory or Point, called the Naſe, beyond the Gunfleet, upon the Coaſt of Eſſex, and ſo continued Weſtward through the River of Thames, and the ſeveral Channels, Streams and Rivers falling into it, to London-bridge, ſaving the uſual and known Right, Liberty and Privilege to the Ports of Sandwich and Ipſwich, and either of them, and the known Members thereof, and of the Cuſtomers, Comptrollers, Searchers, and their Deputies, of and within the ſaid Ports of Sandwich and Ipſwich, and the ſeveral Creeks, Harbours and Havens to them or either of them reſpectively belonging, within the Counties of Kent or Eſſex; but that every Part and Place of the River of Thames and Sea within the Limits and Bounds aforeſaid, not included or belonging to the ſaid Ports of Sandwich or Ipſwich, or the ſeveral Creeks, Harbours or Havens to them, or one of them reſpectively belonging, within the ſaid Counties of Kent or Eſſex, ſhall be deemed and taken to be within, and Part and Parcel of the Port of LONDON.

AND whereas by the Act of Parliament for Rebuilding the City of LONDON, it is Enacted, That for the Prevention of Inundations, and for Eaſineſs of Aſcent, the Street called Thames-ſtreet, and all the Ground between the ſaid Thames-ſtreet and the River of Thames, ſhall be raiſed and made higher by three Feet at the leaſt, above the Surface of the Ground as it now lieth: And whereas by exact Survey and Levels lately made of the Surface of the Ground, and the ſeveral Wharfs and Campſhots bounding the River of Thames from London-bridge to Tower-dock, it is found that the Grounds, Wharfs and Campſhots aforeſaid have been heretofore of different and unequal Heights, and thoſe made now much more unequal by Rubbiſh and Alteration, which hath happened by the Accident of the late Fire, by Means whereof the antient Surface of the Ground and Campſhots are hardly diſtinguiſhable: And whereas it is alſo found that the Wharf called Sommer's Key, is, in Purſuance of the ſaid Act, raiſed higher than any of the reſt, inſomuch that it now appears to be now five Feet above the High-Water Mark at an ordinary Spring-Tide, which is judged ſufficient Height againſt all Inundations: Therefore according to the true Intent and Meaning of the ſaid Act of Parliament, we hold it neceſſary to declare, that all the other Keys, Wharfs and Campſhots aforeſaid be raiſed to an exact Level with the ſame: And accordingly it will be found, that the ſeveral Places hereafter named ought to be raiſed from the preſent Height as followeth, viz. Brewer's Key one Foot ſix Inches, Cheſter's Key one Foot ſix Inches, Galley Key two Feet, Wool Dock one Foot nine Inches, Cuſtomhouſe Key, on the Eaſt Part thereof ten Inches, and on the Weſt Part thereof one Foot, Porter's Key one Foot, Bear Key on the Eaſt Part thereof one Foot ſix Inches, and on the Weſt Part thereof two Feet, Wiggon's Key one Foot, Young's Key eight Inches, Ralph's Key ſix Inches, Dice Key one Foot, Smart's Key one Foot four Inches, Billingſgate two Feet, Botolph Wharf ſix Inches, Cock's Key ſix Inches, Graunt's Key one Foot, and Freſh Wharf ſix Inches: And for the Eaſineſs of Aſcent, that all the ſaid Ground be continued from the Water-Side to Thames-ſtreet, in an equal and gradual Aſcent to the Height that is to be there ſet forth and limited, according to the Intent and true Meaning of the Act of Parliament aforeſaid.

AND laſtly, We do humbly adviſe, that no further or other Paſſage be made or enlarged to the Wharfs, or any Part of the River of Thames, from Thames-ſtreet within the Limits aforeſaid, other than the antient and common Paſſages to the ſame.

FANSHAWE.

TRINITY-HOUSE.

TO theſe Corporations of Merchants may be ſubjoined the Corporation of Mariners, one of the moſt conſiderable Bodies in England for the

the Uſe of it, both for the Conduct and Safety of Merchants Ships, and alſo of the Royal Navy.

IN Water-lane, in Tower-ſtreet Ward, this Corporation, commonly called Trinity-Houſe, hath their Houſe (beſide that more antient one at Deptford-Strond) conveniently ſeated, and nearer at hand for the Diſpatch of their frequent Buſineſs within the City, and where their Ballaſt Office is alſo kept.

THEIR firſt Charter, whereby there were embodied into a Society, or Guild, bore Date the 20th of March, in the fourth Year of King Henry VIII. The Shipmen and Mariners of England were then incorporated by the Name of the Maſter, Wardens and Aſſiſtants of the Guild, Fraternity or Brotherhood of the moſt Glorious and Undividable TRINITY, and of St. Clement in the Pariſh of Deptford-Strond in the County of Kent. And, ſince, they have been confirmed by Letters Patents from divers Kings and Queens of the Realm.

THE Members of this Corporation are called Elder and Younger Brothers; whereof there be only thirty-one elder Brethren; but the Number of the younger Brethren is unlimited, there being ſome Hundreds of them: And it is free for all Seafaring Men that deſire it, to be admitted into the ſaid Corporation.

THE Ends and Intents of this Foundation were for the Increaſe and Encouragement of Navigation, for the good Government of the Seamen, and the better Secutity of Merchants Ships; and a Power is granted them in their Charter to make By-Laws for the ſaid good and uſeful Purpoſes.

THEIR Government is by a Maſter, four Wardens, eight Aſſiſtants, and eighteen elder Brethren, in all thirty one; whereof the Maſter and two of the Wardens are annually choſen every Trinity Monday; uſually at their antient Houſe at Deptford-Strond, the others being for Life.

THEIR General Courts are accidental, as Occaſion and Buſineſs requires: But their conſtant Weekly Meetings for more ordinary Buſineſs are on Wedneſdays and Saturdays, where the Maſter and Wardens, and ſome of the Brotherhood are preſent.

THE great Uſes and important Services of this Corporation will appear by ſome particular Account of the Buſineſſes they are employ'd about, viz.

THAT formerly moſt of the Sea-Cauſes came down hither, which are now generally decided at Common Law; yet ſometimes (though more ſparingly) ſuch Cauſes are brought before this Court to judge and conclude.

THEY hear and report ſuch Maritime Cauſes as come referred hither from the Admiralty Court; though the final Determination thereof belong to the Judge of the Admiralty.

THEY examine, and report to the Navy Board, if required, the Fitneſs of Maſters for the King's Ships, and certify what Rate the Ships are they take the Charge of, and give Certificates and Teſtimonials to the ſaid Maſters, under the Maſter and Wardens their Hands.

THEY ſurvey the Proviſions of the Navy, and whatever elſe may belong to it.

THEY examine, authorize and appoint all Pilots under the Seal of the Corporation, as well for taking Charge of the Royal Navy, as other Merchants Ships. They alſo ſend Pilots aboard the King's Ships from Time to Time, as they have Occaſions for them.

THEY uſed to bind and enroll Apprentices to the Sea; though many, or moſt, are bound elſewhere now a-days.

THEY examine and certify the Proficiencies and Abilities of the Mathematical Children of the Royal Foundation of King Charles II. in Chriſt-Church Hoſpital, before they be bound out.

ALL Mathematical Teachers have their reſpective Qualifications and Learning examined and certified, who have been of late appointed aboard by the Lord Admiral, for the teaching of Voluntiers that go on board the King's Ships, which extend but to the Third Rate, and ſo downwards.

THEY are liable, at an Hour's Warning, to ſerve the King at Sea, and to attend upon Summons at every Admiralty-Seſſions.

AND further, for the Good of Navigation, to them belong the Service and Power of erecting, placing and maintaining ſeveral Light-Houſes, Buoys and Beacons, or other Sea-Marks upon the Coaſts of England, and in the Mouth of the River of Thames, and to alter and ſhift the ſame, as there may be Occaſion from Time to Time, for the better Security of Ships, according to an Act of the Eighth of Queen Elizabeth.

FOR which End the Brethren do frequently ſurvey the North and South Channels leading to the River, and are watchful to obſerve the Alteration and Increaſe of all ſuch Lands and Shoals as may ariſe in the Channels, or in any Port or Harbour of this Kingdom; upon Signification ſome Time from the Parliament, ſome Time from the Lord Admiral, or Commiſſioners of the Navy; and do accordingly erect their Buoys and Marks.

MOREOVER, ſuch Places and Towns at a further Diſtance, that are minded to have Buoys or Light-Houſes for their Benefit, and do ſend to the Houſe for that Purpoſe, upon their Deſire and Contribution thereunto, the Houſe doth place and erect accordingly.

TO them belong the ſole Care and Power of ballaſting all Ships going out of the River of Thames; which Ballaſt is to be taken from ſuch Shelves as may be moſt dangerous for Ships, and for the better cleanſing and deepening the River.

FURTHER, upon Requeſt of Maſters and Merchants, concerning the Loading of Ships coming into the River of Thames, they do certify the dead Fraught, or Goods damnified through ill Stowage or the like.

Laſtly, They give Licence to poor aged and maimed Mariners to row only a-croſs the River of Thames, Ratcliff Stairs, &c. for their Livelihood, excluſively of the Company of Watermen.

AFTER the Maintenance of their Buoys, Sea-Marks, &c. and other neceſſary Expences of the Corporation, the Remainder of their Revenue is applied wholly to the Relief of poor decayed Seamen, their Widows and Orphans, and none other.

THEY have eighty ſeven Alms-houſes at Deptford and Mile-end, all built in a Manner ſince the Reſtoration; wherein are harboured and maintained the like Number of ſuch, being poor decayed Maſters or Pilots, and their Widows, and none elſe, at the monthly Allowance of 12, 16, and the Governors 21 s. beſides new Broad Cloth given them every Year; and Coals for Firing every Year.

Two Chaplains are likewiſe provided and payed by the Corporation, to read Prayers thrice a Week, or oftener, to each Company of Alms-People in their reſpective Chapels.

BESIDES whom, they relieve by monthly Penſions upwards of two thouſand other poor Seamen and their Widows, allowing ſome more, ſome leſs, according to their Neceſſity.

WHICH Charitable Contributions in the Whole amount to between 5000 and 6000 l. per Annum, with ſome Repairs.

THEIR great Charities reach alſo further to all accidental poor Seafaring Men, or their Wives and and Widows, whom they are ſatisfied to be Objects of Commiſeration by Reaſon of any Misfortunes of the Sea, whom they every Wedneſday and Saturday relieve out of their Poor's Box, which they have therefore, for that Purpoſe, always at hand: It is made of Braſs, with two Keys, whereof the Maſter keepeth one; given by John Wodecote, Maſter, Anno 1597, as is inſcribed upon it; as alſo theſe three Sentences to the ſame Import, in Engliſh, Dutch, and French, viz. Remember the Poor. Ghedent den Armen. Ayes Souvenance du Pouvre. That all thoſe Nations to whom this Box ſhould upon Occaſion be offered by this Corporation, might be excited to beſtow their Charity: So that if any Seamen have been caſt away at Sea, or are to travel to ſome diſtant Place or County to their own Dwelling, or are fallen ſick or the like, and bring good Teſtimonials thereof, they are ever relieved with Money, more or leſs, according to the Diſcretion of the Maſter, Wardens, and the reſt of the Elder Brothers. But Chriſtmas eſpecially is a Time that this Charity is moſt largely and univerſally diſtributed to all that come for Alms, and bring Certificates either from the Maſters of Ships, or other ſubſtantial Perſons of good Credit, that they are proper Objects of Charity. At Chriſtmas, 1705, they expended in this charitable Way of Contribution above 200 l. whereof 1200 and more partook.

Their Benefits and Revenues (whereby they are able to do all this) ariſeth from Light-Money, Buoys, Beaconage, Ballaſtage, and from the Benefactions of the Brethren and others; which are contingent, and ſo no certain State to be made thereof.

In Conſideration of the weighty and neceſſary Services to the Publick from this eminent Corporation, and that they, their Ships, and Servants, are to be at his Majeſty's Call, they have ſeveral Privileges and Immunities granted them; as, to be exempted from ſerving in the Militia on Land-Service, or to be contributary thereunto; alſo from ſerving on Juries and Inqueſts, and the like. This Favour is indulged all the Brethren, both Elder and Younger, their Officers and Servants.

There is in this Trinity-Houſe a Table hung up of the Orders, Conſtitutions and By-Laws, made by the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of the Guild, Fraternity or Brotherhood of the moſt Glorious and Undividable Trinity, and of St. Clement, in the Pariſh of Deptford-Strond, in the County of Kent, touching the Converſation, good Eſtate, wholſome Government, Maintenance and Increaſe of the Navigation of this Kingdom, and of the Mariners and Seafaring Men within the ſame, by Virtue of ſeveral Charters, and Letters Patents, made unto the ſaid Corporation by ſeveral Kings and Queens of this Realm; and, particularly, of a Charter of Conſtitution and Confirmation of the ſame made by King James II. dated the 8th of July, in the firſt of his Reign. It conſiſted of twelve Articles:

The Firſt is, Concerning any Maſter or Pilot, or other Seamen, refuſing to appear, when they ſhall be ſummoned before the Corporation. The Forfeit whereof is 13 s. and 4 d. if a Maſter or Pilot; and if other Mariner, 2 s. for the firſt Default, 3 s. and 4 d. for the ſecond, to the Uſe of the Poor of the Corporation; and for the third, to be puniſhed at the Diſcretion of the Company, the Fine not exceeding ſuch a Sum.

The Second, Concerning ſuch Seamen as go to Sea without paying ſuch Duties as they ought to the Corporation. At the next Return into the River to pay double ſo much, over and beſide the Duty which from them may grow due for the ſaid Voyage at their Return.

The Third, Concerning the Maſters of Ships, or their Mates, to be aboard their Veſſels, to ſee the Merchants Goods ſafe taken in, if the Veſſel be at Blackwall or above, from the Time any Ship or Veſſel within the River of Thames, or any Creek or Harbour of the ſame, ſhall receive into her any Merchants Goods to be tranſported. And at the Return of every Ship, the Maſter or his Mate to be aboard, to ſee the Merchants Goods orderly and ſafely delivered, if at Blackwall or above: And if below Blackwall, then the Maſter or his Mate to be aboard three Times in a Week, or every other Day for the Purpoſes aforeſaid, and for every Time neglecting, to forfeit 6 s. and 8 d. The Maſter, Boatſwain, Gunner and Carpenter, or two of them, to lie on Board, while the Ship ſhall have any Goods remaining in her, upon Forfeiture of 5 s.

The Fourth, Concerning Powder taken aboard Ships before their Departure out of the Thames, and kept aboard at their Return; and alſo concerning heating of Pitch, Tar, Rozin, Greaſe, Tallow, Oil, &c. whence hath happened great Loſſes by Fire. No Ship outward-bound to receive on board any Powder before ſhe ſhall be at or below Blackwall, and not till within twenty-four Hours after her coming to an Anchor there, or at the Place of her unlading, upon Penalty of 5 l. to the Poor of the Corporation: The Maſter to take Care not to ſuffer Pitch, Tar, Roſin, &c. to be heated on board by Fire, Loggerhead Shot, or any other Thing, but to be done upon the Shore, or in a Boat being a Shore, upon the Penalty of 3 l.

Maſters to take Care in drying their Bread-Rooms, and not to dry them in the Night, or keep any Fire therein in the Night-time, upon Penalty of 5 l.

The Fifth, Every Maſter homeward-bound, to unſhot all his Guns before, or as ſoon as he arrives at Graveſend, upon Penalty of 20 Nobles. And no Maſter above Blackwall to preſume to fire any Gun before Sun-riſing, or after Sun-ſetting, upon Penalty of 10 s. for each Gun.

The Sixth, Concerning divers Boats, otherwiſe called Bum-boats, their carrying Fruit, Wine, and Strong-waters, to ſell to Shop-keepers; much Wrong being done to the Owners, by purloining of Carriage or other Materials: All Maſters to take Care they do not permit any ſuch Boats to come on board their Ships, and that their Men do put the Dirt of their Ships in their own Boats at ſeaſonable Hours of the Day, and do carry and lay it on Shore above High-Water Mark, and not to ſuffer any Dirt or Filth to be thrown overboard into the River. In Caſe of Neglect, the Maſter to forfeit 20 s.

The Seventh, No Maſter to ſuffer to be taken in, or heaved out of the Ship, any Ballaſt, without having a Sail nailed to the Sell of the Port; or if a ſmall Veſſel, to the Gunnel, to overhang the Side of the Lighter, upon Pain of 20 s.

The Eighth, Concerning Maſters, by themſelves, or their Officers, or Seamen, refuſing to hinder any Perſon appointed by the Corporation, (and, upon Demand, ſhewing his Authority under the Common Seal) from coming on board his Ship in the Day-time, to ſearch for Powder, Guns unſhotted, heating of Pitch, Tar, &c. the careleſs and unſeaſonable drying of Bread-Rooms, and ſuffering Bum-boats to come aboard, and to traffic with them, upon Forfeiture of 5 l.

The Ninth, Concerning certain Members of this Corporation, that partly of themſelves, and partly at the Requeſt of others, preferred Bills, Petitions, &c. to the Parliament, and to other inferior Juriſdictions, in the Name of Seamen in general, without making the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants acquainted, to the great Detriment and Scandal of the Corporation. For the preventing this for the future, if any Members of this Corporation do, or attempt the like Matters, or or ſhall ſet their Hands to any Bill, Petition, &c. without Conſent of the Maſter, Wardens and Aſſiſtants, he ſhall forfeit 5 l.

THE Tenth, for better regulating and governing of Seamen and Mariners, it was ordered that no Mariner on Ship-board ſwear, curſe or blaſpheme, on Forfeiture of 1 s. for every ſuch Offence, to be put into the Poor's Box, remaining on board the ſame Ship. Any Seaman hired to ſerve in any Ship, and at any Time to lie on Shore, during the Voyage, without Leave, to forfeit 2 s. 6 d. to the Poor's Box. No Mariner, being in perfect Health, to abſent himſelf from Prayers, being performed according to the Liturgy of the Church of England, and not repairing thither immediately after the Ring of the Bell; the Neglect of which is the Forfeiture of 6 d. If any Mariner be drunk, to forfeit 1 s. If he ſhall be obſtinate and ſtubborn in not obeying the Maſter's lawful Command, or the Mate's or Boatſwain's, in his Abſence, to forfeit half his Month's Pay.

ANY Perſon found to offend againſt the abovementioned Orders, to be left to the Liberty of the Maſter or Commander, with Conſent of the Mate, Boatſwain, Purſer, Gunner and Carpenter, or the major Part, either to inflict corporal Puniſhment, according to the Cuſtom of the Seas, or receive and take the Penalty hereby impoſed.

IF the Perſon or Perſons have not preſent Money to ſatisfy what the Order is, then to ſubſcribe their Names to the Maſter or Purſer's Books, thereby ſignifying their Conſents, that the ſaid Forfeitures may be defaulted out of their Wages the next Pay-Day.

THE Eleventh, Concerning any Mariner's ſhipping himſelf with any Maſter for a Voyage, and afterwards deſerting and ſhipping himſelf with another, the Maſter with whom he goes the Voyage to detain 2 s. in every Pound of his Wages, for the Time he ſerves in his Ship, to be paid to the Corporation for the Uſe of the Poor.

THE Twelth, Every Commander of a Ship hiring any Mariner to ſail with him upon any Voyage, to take in Writing under the Seaman's Hand, upon what Condition he is entertained, and to ſubmit himſelf to the By-Laws of the Trinity-Houſe.

ALL which Acts, Ordinances and Conſtitutions, George Lord Jeffreys, Baron of Wem, Lord High Chancellor of England, Sir Robert Wright, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Pleas, before his Majeſty to be holden, and Sir Edward Herbert, Lord Chief Juſtice of his Majeſty's Court of Common-Pleas, at the Requeſt of the Maſter, Warden and Aſſiſtants, and Elder Brethren of the ſaid Corporation, by Authority and Virtue of an Act of Parliament made in the 19th Year of King Henry VII. for that Purpoſe, ſaw, read and examined; and for good, lawful and laudable Ordinances and By-Laws, did allow and approve, and ſet their Hands and Seals thereunto the 24th of June, 1687.

THERE is yet another Table hanging up in Trinity-Houſe, which ſhews the Number, Tonnage and Meaſure of each Lighter belonging to the Ballaſt-Office, weighed May 15, 1700.

THE Maſter, Wardens and Aſſiſtants of Trinity-Houſe, have cauſed all the Lighters employed in the Ballaſt-Work, to be new weighed and marked in their own Preſence, with all the Exactneſs poſſible. And to the End that no Maſter of a Ship, or other Perſon, having Occaſion for Ballaſt, may be deceived in the Tonnage by the Lightermen employed in that Work, the ſaid Corporation publiſhed in Print the ſaid Table.

AFTER the Table is added:

NOW whereas this Corporation is informed that divers Maſters of Ships, and coaſting Veſſels chiefly, do frequently take in Ballaſt from private Wharfs and Places in the River without entering it at the Office, and paying for the ſame; it is hereby declared, That if any Maſter ſhall take in all or part of his Ballaſt, (or Chalk Stones or Rubbiſh of any Kind, to be uſed inſtead of Ballaſt) from any Wharf or Place whatſoever within the River of Thames, (excepting from our own Wharfs at Greenwich and Greenhith) or ſuffer our own Lightermen, or any other, to ſerve him with Ballaſt, before it be entered and paid for; he is for the firſt Time to pay double the Price of the Ballaſt he did ſo take in, and for the ſecond, to be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

AND if any Maſter, or his Company, ſhall violently take and carry aboard his Ship any Lighter with Ballaſt, not appointed to him by the Office, no further Supply of Ballaſt, or any Bill ſhall be given to the ſaid Maſter, until he ſhall have given ſuch Satisfaction for his or their aboveſaid Abuſe and Diſorder, as this Corporation ſhall think reaſonable.

AND if any Maſter ſhall not take in his Ballaſt when brought to his Ship Side at the Time of his own Appointment, or ſhall not diſcharge the Lighter or Lighters bringing the ſaid Ballaſt the ſame Tide of Ebb, he ſhall pay for the ſaid Ballaſt, though it be afterwards carried away, as if it had been taken into his Ship; unleſs he ſhall, one Tide at leaſt before, give Notice at the Offie, that he ſhall not be ready for the Ballaſt at the Time before appointed. This Table was ſigned, CHAP. XI.

Of the MERCHANTS of LONDON in General.

IN the Reign of King Edward VI. there were but few Engliſh Merchants Adventurers, and a great Want of Shipping to convey our Commodities abroad, and bring in Returns for them. A notable Merchant in thoſe Days wrote thus in a Letter to a Stateſman then, (viz. Sir William Cecyl) "I think there is "never a City in Chriſtendom, having the Occu- "pying that this City hath, that is ſo ſlen- "derly provided of Ships, having the Sea coming "to it, as this hath. And, that he had heard "of late much complaining for Engliſh Ships to "lade Goods into Spain, and other Places, and "none were to be had. And that he had ſeen "thirty ſeven Hoys laden with Wood and Tim- "ber, go at one Tide out of Rye, and never an "Engliſh Mariner among them.

THE Number of Merchants in LONDON in the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth, viz. when Alderman Lodge was Mayor, (which was Anno 1561,) were in all 327, whereof the Company of Mercers afforded 99; and theſe were the Names of the Chief, Sir Thomas Leigh, Sir Thomas Greſham, Mr. Alderman Martin, Mr. Alderman Baskerfield, Sir Rowland Hill, Vincent Randal, Lionel Ducket. Of the Grocers were 57, whereof the Chief were, Sir John Lyon, Mr. Alderman White, Mr. Alderman Lodge, Lord Mayor, Mr. Edward Jackman, Alderman. Of the Drapers 29, whereof the Chief were, Sir William Cheſter, Mr. Alderman Champion. Of the Haberdaſhers 51, whereof the Chief were, Sir William Hawarde, Alderman Woodroff. Of the Merchant-Taylors, 25, whereof the Chief were, Sir Thomas White, Sir John York, Sir William Harper, Alderman Row, Richard Hills. Of the Skinners 16. Of the Fiſhmongers 12. Of the Clothworkers 13, whereof was Alderman Hayward. Of the Ironmongers 6, whereof was Alderman Chamberlain. Of the Salters 2. Of the Girdlers 2. Of the Bowyers 1. Of the Leatherſellers 9. Of the Armourers 1.

THE Traffick of the Merchants to the Parts of the World at a greater Diſtance, was firſt to Ruſſia, which began in the latter End of King Edward VI. wherein divers of the Court were Adventurers with the Merchants of LONDON.

IN the Year 1563, in March, a Voyage was undertaken to Maderabombo, ſet forth by ſome Merchants, ſome Mariners, and ſome of the Court, to encourage Foreign Trade, viz. the Earl of Pembroke, the Lord Robert Dudley, the Lord Admiral, and Sir William Cecyl, Knt. Secretary of State, Sir William Garret, Sir William Cheſter, Sir Thomas Lodge, Benjamin Gonſon, Edward Caſtlyn, Merchants; John Hawkyns, William Wynter, Mariners. The Ships that went in this Adventure, the Complement of Men in each, each, and the Charge of their Ordnance, Tackle and Apparel, were as follow :

Ships.	Men.	Ordnance, &c.
The Jeſus of Lubeck	80
The Solomon	35	600 lb.
The Tyger	20	200 lb.
The Swallow	15	120 lb.
	150	920 lb.

THE Wares and Victuals for the Negroes, with their Apparel, and Habiliments of War, amounted to the Charge of 1190 l.

THE Sum of the whole Charge (over and beſide the Adventure of the Jeſus of Lubeck accounted for) 3300 l.

IN the Year 1576, certain Muſcovy Merchants (with whom ſeveral of the Court were alſo Adventurers) ſent Martin Furbiſher, or Frobuſher, in a Voyage to diſcover a Paſſage by Sea North Weſtward to Carthay: Which Voyage coſt 1600 l. wherein Michael Lock was one of the chief Adventurers, and Treaſurer. From this Voyage was brought home 200 Weight of Ewer by Furbiſher, for Experiment, which was molten and tried by one Jonas Schutz, an Almain, and John Baptiſta Agnello, an Italian, and three Engliſhmen; and there proceeded thence in Silver ſix Ounces ſeven Penny Weight, and 13 Grains; and of the ſame Ewer in Gold, five Penny Weight and five Grains; which both in Silver and Gold amounted to 47 s. 6 d. Sterling, at 5 s. the Ounce Silver, and 3 s. the Penny Weight Gold, according to the Account brought in to the Muſcovy-Houſe. So that at that Rate a Ton of the ſaid Ewer would make in Money 23 l. 15 s. all Charges deducted. Hence, upon the View of this Account they found, that for every 8 l. to be diſburſed by the Adventurers, they would gain 5 l. which aroſe upon every 100 l. Gain clear above the Sum of 60 l. And a Writing was delivered in to Secretary Walſingham, one of the Adventurers, to the ſame Import. And hereupon Sir William Wynter certified ſeveral honourable Adventurers, as well as Walſingham, upon the Information given him, That Furbiſher had found a Mine of Gold worth 60 l. the Ton, from whence the aforeſaid Ewer was taken.

UPON which a ſecond Voyage was undertaken by the ſaid Furbiſher in the Year 1577, which coſt above 4000 l. to fetch Ewer from this Gold Mine. And a third, Anno 1578, made upon the Foundation of ſome Writings of the Value of the Ewer brought the ſecond Voyage (however the Ewer proved not good.) And their Honours gave Orders for this Voyage by their Letters written to the Commiſſioners. Which Voyage coſt 15000 l. Yet, after all, theſe Voyages turned not to the deſired Account: For they could find no more of their firſt Ewer.

IN the Year 1583, Alderman Hart, Mr. Spencer Hoddeſdon, and divers other Merchant-Adventurers, attempted a Diſcovery, in order to Trade, of the hithermoſt Parts of America, to the Latitude of 40 Degrees, or thereabouts, under Capt. Carleil; who excited them thereto by many conſiderable Arguments of the Profitableneſs thereof; the Country being very fruitful, inhabited with a ſavage People of a mild and tractable Diſpoſition; and that of all other Places, which were unfrequented at that Day, it was the only fitteſt and moſt commodious for us to intermeddle withal. For, Firſt, it was not any long Courſe, but ſuch as might be performed to and fro in four Months, after the firſt Diſcovery thereof. Secondly, One Wind ſufficed to make the Paſſage, whereas moſt other Voyages of like Length were ſubject to three or four ſeveral Winds. Thirdly, It was to be performed at all Times of the Year. Fourthly, The Paſſage was upon the High Sea, whereby they were not bound to the Knowledge of Dangers, or any other Coaſt, more than of that Country, and of ours here at home. Fifthly, Thoſe Parts of England and Ireland, which lie apteſt for the proceeding outwards and homewards upon this Voyage, were very well ſtored of good Harbours. Sixthly, That it was to be accounted of no Danger at all, as touching the Power of any foreign Prince or State.

SUCH as deſire to know more of the Voyages ſet out by the Merchants Adventurers, for Diſcovery of foreign Parts of the World, and for ſettling a Traffick there, may conſult Hackluit's Voyages; where the various Hiſtories thereof, in the Northern, Weſtern and Eaſtern Regions of the Earth, are ſet down at large.

ABOUT the Year 1590, the Number of the chief Merchants in LONDON increaſed greatly, 280 Names being to one Petition. And of the Court of Aldermen theſe Members ſigned it, William Row, Mayor, Richard Hayward, Richard Martyn, William Webbe, Cuthbert Buckle, John Spencer, William Maſham, Anthony Radclyff, Hugh Offley, Henry Billingſley, Richard Saltonſtal, William Elkyn, Stephen Soame, Thomas Skyner, and Richard Gourney.

OF the Commodities which were of the Growth or Manufacture of England, it is not needful to make a diſtinct Declaration. But among other Things ſent Abroad by the Merchants, about the Year 1580 and odd, much Beer was tranſported, and became a great Commodity in Queen Elizabeth's Reign: But the Exporting of it was often forbad by that Queen's Proclamation: For commonly it was a Cauſe of enhancing the Price of Corn: Yet even upon Prohibitions, ſpecial Licences were granted by the Lord Treaſurer. Thus he allowed one Lyſter, in the Month of November, to brew and tranſport 500 Ton of Beer for the Queen's Uſe: And in the ſame Month another Ship was laden with 350 Barrels of Beer to Embden; and in the ſame Month again a Ship of Amſterdam laded 300 Barrels of Beer more. And in the ſame Month four Ships of Embden more were laden with 800 Barrels; which ſhews in what Requeſt our Engliſh Beer was then Abroad.

AMONG the Commodities of the Growth of England ſent Abroad, as well as ſpent here at Home, the Sea Coal of Newcaſtle deſerves ſome Mention. This is the great Commodity that ſupplies the City with Firing, both for Dreſſing of Food, and for the Operation of divers Trades and Manufactures exerciſed there. About the Year 1590 and odd, Sea Coal began to advance its Price far higher than ever before, being enhanced by ſiniſter Ways and Means of ſome at Newcaſtle; a few engroſſing the whole Commodity to themſelves. And, beſides, the Coals were not ſo good as they uſed to be, by their ſending out the beſt into foreign Parts, and ſending the worſt to be ſpent in the Realm. The Price of Sea Coal, of the beſt Sort, went at 4 s. the Chaldron, for many Years.

THEN there happened a Leaſing of the Mines, which was called, The Grand Leaſe: Which Grand Leaſe was aſſigned to one Mr. Sutton: And then the Price came to 6 s. the Chaldron; and ſo continued during the Time that Sutton enjoyed the Leaſe. Then it was aſſigned over to the Town of Newcaſtle; and then the Price began to increaſe to an exceſſive Rate; firſt to 7 s. then to 8 s. and then grew to 9 s. Neither could be ſo had, unleſs the Buyer would be content to take of both Sorts, viz. the Good and Bad together.

Of this the Lord Mayor made Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, againſt the Town of Newcaſtle; ſetting forth the Cauſes of theſe Abuſes, and then the Remedies for the Reformation of them. The chief Cauſes were, Certain Inhabitants of Newcaſtle, called Freehoſts, to whom the Grand Leaſes were firſt made over to the Uſe of that Town, being to the Number of ſixty Perſons, or thereabouts. Theſe of later Times had compounded and made over their whole Right to a far leſs Number, viz. to eighteen or twenty Men; who having before Coal-pits of their own, engroſſed the whole Commodity, and reduced the Trade into a few Mens Hands, combining together to ſell their Sea Coal at their own Prices, and ſo advanced the Price, as was ſaid before, to 9 s. the Chaldron, one with the other. The ſaid few Perſons, being Men of great Wealth, had, beſides the Grand Leaſe, taken and engroſſed all the Coal-Mines about the ſaid Town; namely, the Mine of Stella, the Biſhops Mine, ſometimes farmed by one Mr. Tempeſt and others; the Mine of the Lordſhip of Ravenſworth, the Mine of Mr. Gaſcoign, the Mine of the Lordſhip of Newborne, and divers others. Of theſe Mines or Pits they opened or ſhut up ſuch and ſo many as they thought good, for the advancing of their private Gain; whereby the Freehoſts, who were wont to make Suit for the Sale of their Coals, and offer the ſame unto the Ship-maſters, (which made a Cheapneſs) were now ſued unto, and made it a Matter of Favour and Preferment whom firſt they would ſerve, ordering the Prices at their own Pleaſures.

The Remedies propounded were, That the Lords of the Privy Council would take Order, that all Owners and Farmers of Coal-Mines might open them, and make Sale of their Coals at reaſonable Rates, not exceeding the Price of 7 s. the Chaldron, and to lade the ſame at moſt opportune Places without any Reſtraint. And that they be enjoined to have good Store of Coal digged before-hand, and ready to be laden; whereby the Ship-maſters might not be enforced to ſtay for their Lading, as they had ſometimes, four, five or ſix Weeks together; whence the Price of Coals became increaſed.

The Town of Newcaſtle made a great Benefit by theſe Coals long ago: For, in the latter Time of Queen Elizabeth, were yearly ſhipped hence unto ſeveral Places within the Realm and beyond the Seas, by Computation, five or ſix Hundred Thouſand Chaldrons: The Toll whereof, after the Rate of 4 d. the Chaldron, amounted to the Sum of 10000 l. a Year, which went to the Chamber and Corporation of that Town, beſide the Revenue which grew to the Inhabitants of that Place for the Sale of their Coals.

So that in the latter Part of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, theſe Coals bore 9 s. the Chaldron: But, in the Time of King Henry VIII. they were bought at Newcaſtle for 2 s. 2 d. the Chaldron: For one Thomas Barnaby, a Merchant in thoſe Times, exciting a great Courtier in King Edward's Time to promote Shipping, and increaſe the Number of Mariners, which would turn ſo much to the Strength of England, ſhewed, how the ſending Coals into France from Newcaſtle would ſet 6 or 7000 Mariners on work; whereas then the French got the Benefit: For, in Times of Peace, there would be three or fourſcore Ships of Normans and Britons at once, as ſoon as their Fiſhing was done, fetching Coals from thence; and, as ſoon as they were departed, would come as many more. The Advantage of that Trade to the Engliſh would prove very conſiderable: For as he, the ſaid Barnaby, had bought Coals at 2 s. 2 d. the Chaldron, ſo he had ſold them in France for 13 Nobles: And this for the Commodity of Sea Coal.

Let ſome Notices more modern be yet added concerning this notable Commodity of Sea Coal. There was about the Year 1698 a Tax laid upon them of 5 s. the Chaldron, which the Citizens were extremely diſpleaſed at; and, in a little Book, drawn up chiefly for the Uſe and Information of the Parliament, printed Anno 1699, is ſhewed the Miſchief of it: It is intitled, The Miſchief of the Five Shilling Tax upon Coals. This was taken off by the firſt Seſſion of the next Parliament, and laid on again the laſt Seſſion of the ſame. It was expected never to have heard of this Tax again, having been taken off in a full Houſe, and after full and ample Examination by the Committee, and after the Experience of its Partiality, eſpecially upon the Poor, and of its pernicious Conſequences upon Trade and Navigation.

The ſaid Book ſhewed, That 1400 Sail of Ships were employed in the Collier Trade, as appeared by the Coaſt-Books of the Cuſtom-Houſe in the Port of Newcaſtle, which coſt in building one Thouſand Pounds one with another; and that it was notorious, that the ſaid Ships gave not, when this Tax was on Foot, (nor ever would give as long it continued) one Farthing Profit to the Owners. Here then was the Intereſt of 14000 l. loſt from the Proprietors of Shipping, and ſo from the Nation itſelf.

Therefore it was humbly repreſented to the Parliament, that this Tax was inconſiſtent with the Safety of England, partial upon the Poor, pernicious to our Shipping and Seamen, deſtructive of our Rivermen, viz. Boatmen, Keelmen, Bargemen, Ballaſtmen, Coalheavers, &c. fatal to our Manufacturers with Sea Coal, (eſpecially Salt, Glaſs, and all Sorts of Groſs Iron-work) that by this Coal Tax muſt run into Coal Countries, or out of the Kingdom, and ſo highly injurious to the Royal Revenue.

It appeared by the Cuſtom-Houſe-Books for the Coaſt-Duty of 12 d. per Chaldron on Coals at Newcaſtle, that there was exported from that Port Communibus Annis, in Times of Peace, 200,000 Chaldrons of Coal, Newcaſtle Meaſure. And Newcaſtle hath but two Thirds of the Collier Trade. So that the Writer ſaid, that he might with Safety affirm, there was exported from Newcaſtle and its Member-Ports, 300,000 Chaldron of Coals, which is in Tonnage of Shipping 795,000 Ton: To which, if we ſhould add the Over-Sea Collier Trade, he doubted not to affirm the Collier Trade employed 900000 Tonnage of Shipping per Annum; which is more than two Thirds of all the Tonnage of Goods imported or exported every where, from or into this Kingdom in Engliſh Bottoms. So that the Collier Fleet is the great Body of the Shipping of England, and all our other Trades are ſerved by Detachments from it.

This is the Navigation and Collier Trade of England; but upon this Tax, there would not be exported (as he computed) from the North Coaſtways, above 150,000 Chaldron, Newcaſtle Meaſure; nor half the Number of Ships and Sailors be employed upon the ſaid Trade that was before the ſaid Tax; for there would remain no further Occaſion for Coals in the South, than for domeſtick Uſe: Their Forges and Furnaces being run, by this Tax, either into the North, or out of the Kindom. And inſtead of 100,000 l. per Annum, which was expected from this Tax, we ſhould find it would not bring in above 50,000 l. and there would be a Fall in the Proceed of other Taxes above double the Sum. And one half of the Collier Trade failing, one half of the Men it ſupported at Sea, in our River, ver, and at Land, would either be driven abroad, or reduced to live upon the Alms of the Pariſh. 20,000 Souls was the leaſt we ſhould find to fall into theſe miſerable Circumſtances. And this muſt make a vaſt Abate in the Proceed of the Taxes, the Pole-Money, Births and Burials, the Exciſe of Beer, Ale and Salt, the Duties upon the Materials for Navigation, and the Branches of Cuſtoms.

FURTHER, the Author computed, that if there were no 5 s. Tax upon Coals, we ſhould export from the North Coaſtways above 400,000 Chaldrons of Coals, Newcaſtle Meaſure, which might be modeſtly computed and judged at 1,200,000 Tons of Coals; having every Day an increaſing Trade; for Wood decays every where, and the Town grows more populous, having many new Streets built out of her void Spaces and cumberſome Places. This 1,200,000 Tons of Coals is a Bulk of Cargo ſufficient to employ 2000 Sail of Ships, of the ſame Burden with thoſe at preſent in the Collier Trade, and will maintain 20,000 Seamen, and a tripple Number of Rivermen, at the loading and unloading Ports; and always living jollily and comfortably in their Buſineſs, muſt raiſe the Proceed of the Revenue far above what is expected from that aforeſaid Tax. 30 Years Experience ſince the Writing of this Book will ſhew what Truth there is in that Argument.

ABOUT the Year 1572 conſiderable Quantities of Iron Ordnance, caſt here in England, were tranſported abroad, whereby the Queen's Enemies, as it was feared, were ſupplied, and that by ſome Licence ſecretly obtained; but the Merchants of LONDON, knowing how this might furniſh the Enemies Ships to obſtruct their Trade, and bring other great Damages upon the Queen and her Subjects, petitioned her, in a great Body, to withdraw this Licence, laying alſo their Reaſons before her Majeſty for it: But this Petition (whether it was ſhuffled off by ſome about the Queen) never came before her. But they petitioned a ſecond Time, for the preventing ſo great a Danger, beſeeching her to take a full View and deep Conſideration of their former Petition, together with the Reaſons annexed thereto. The Iſſue was, that in September the aboveſaid Year, there was a ſtrict Reſtraint for tranſporting all Iron and Braſs Ordnance, proclaimed. It ſet forth, "How the Queen was informed, that notwithſtanding it was unlawful to tranſport any Ordnance out of the Realm, without ſpecial Licence, other than for her Majeſty's natural Subjects, to be uſed in their Shipping, and not to be aliened to any Stranger, yet this had been lately practiſed by ſome. Therefore, for the Stay hereof, her Majeſty did ſtrictly command all Manner of Perſons to forbear to ſhip, with Intent to tranſport to any foreign Parts, any Kind of Ordnance of Braſs or Iron, or to ſell or deliver any ſuch Ordnance to any Perſon to tranſport the ſame, upon Pains, &c. which her Majeſty muſt extend againſt ſuch Offenders, as did thereby ſtrengthen the common Enemies againſt her Majeſty and her Realms.

"AND for a further Remedy againſt the Inconvenience that was generally ſeen in making of great Quantity of Iron Ordnance, and by ſelling the ſame to ſundry Perſons that had ſecretly carried the ſame out of the Realm, whereby the common Enemy had been furniſhed with the ſame, not only for Shipping, but alſo for Maritime Towns and Ports, which otherwiſe had not been able, nor durſt have put their Ships to the Seas; therefore ſhe ſtraitly charged all Owners of Iron Works, Furnaces or Forges, or that made any Iron, that none of them ſhould make any Manner of Ordnance above a Minion, and that to be of ſo many Pounds." This good Service the Merchants now did for the Nation, as well as for themſelves.

THE Ground of all this ſeems to be, that the Lord Admiral had granted a Licence of tranſporting Iron Ordnance to Sir Thomas Leighton, who had made Uſe of one Garret Swift to obtain it of the Admiral; and Sir Thomas, underhand, did promiſe to the ſaid Swift, by a Writing dated in Auguſt 1592, that in Conſideration hereof, upon his obtaining the Suit, he would appoint him, the ſaid Swift, his whole and only Deputy to execute the ſame under him during his Life, and for his Pains would give him the fourth Part of all ſuch Fees and Benefits as ſhould any Ways ariſe by the ſame.

IN the Year 1590, John Allington, Draper, moved that an Office might be ſet up for the making and regiſtering all Manner of Writing in the ordinary Contracts and Bargains, uſually made between all Merchants, Owners, and Maſters of Ships, before the going out of every Ship or Veſſel; and that he, his Deputies or Aſſigns, might be the only Regiſters for that Office; and that no Ships ſhould paſs beyond Sea before they, the ſaid Allington, or his Aſſigns, had made their Charter Parties, Bonds, Bills of Lading, or other Writings, concerning their Agreement for the Voyage; upon Pain to forfeit, for every Ship or Veſſel ſo departing, 40 l. the one Moiety to the Queen, the other to Allington, or his Aſſigns; the Parties paying to the ſaid Allington for the making of the ſaid Writings, ratably as they had heretofore uſually paid. The Reaſons for the Queen's granting this were, that hereby the Queen, beſide the Gain of 40 l. yearly, and the Forfeitures, her Cuſtoms might be much the better aſſured and increaſed from Time to Time. And it might be a general Benefit to the Commonwealth. For, whereas oftentimes corrupt Merchants pretended to paſs with their Ladings from Port to Port within the Realm, yet when they were at Sea, they paſt into foreign Countries, as well to the Queen's Enemies as Friends; ſome without paying any Cuſtoms, ſome often colouring Strangers Goods, whereby the Queen did loſe one half of her Cuſtoms, the Subjects the more unfurniſhed of Victuals, Corn, and other Commodities. All which, by the Diligence of this Patentee might be often diſcovered or prevented. Beſides, from him might be preſently given a perfect Note, what Number of Ships and other Veſſels were yearly employed, by whom, whither, of what Burthen, and who were their ſeveral Owners and Maſters. Laſtly, That divers Suits of like Nature, and not of greater Importance, yet much more beneficial, had been granted by the Queen to ſundry Subjects, by Virtue of her Highneſs's Prerogative only.

ABOUT 16 or 17 Years before, ſuch a Kind of Grant, Sir John Hawes being Mayor, one Richard Candler, Mercer, obtained of the Queen, viz. to make and regiſter all Manner of Aſſurances, Policies, Intimations, Renunciations, and other Things whatſover, that hereafter ſhould be made upon any Ship or Ships, Goods or Merchandize, or any other Thing or Things in the Royal-Exchange in LONDON, or in any other Place within the City, by any Manner of Perſons of what Nation, Condition or Quality ſoever, to endure the Queen's Majeſty's Pleaſure; but with a Proviſo, that if the ſaid Office ſhould be thought needful to be reformed for the better Benefit of the Subject that ſhould have any Dealing herein; then, notwithſtanding the ſame, upon Suit made to her Highneſs, or her Honourable Council, by Order to be directed in Writing, the ſaid Candler ſhould conform himſelf thereunto. But this Patent was ſoon complained of by the Notaries Publick and the Brokers, That it was an Intruſion upon them, and would be their utter Undoing, as hath been ſhewn before. And upon this, this Patent ſeems to have been revoked. But now, after divers Years, another endeavoured to get the like Grant.

Now as to the Merchants who were Foreigners born, a few Remarks may be added. Of theſe there were very many reſiding and trading here in former Times. In the Reign of King Richard III. LONDON harboured abundance of Italian Merchants. And in the Parliament, in his Days, was an Act made againſt their Abuſes. It ſet forth the Evils and Incommodities they brought into the Realm. Theſe Merchants are there ſpecified to be Venetians, Apulians, Sicilians, Lucaners, Cataloyns [Catalonians perhaps, who were Spaniards] and others. The Act mentions, that theſe did in great Numbers inhabit and keep Houſe, as well in LONDON as in other Cities and Burghs within the Realm; and took Warehouſes and Cellars to put therein their Merchandizes and Wares.

Their evil Doings were, (as was there ſpecified) That they did deceitfully pack and meddle their Wares, and kept the ſame till ſuch Times the Prices were greatly enhanced, for their great Lucre; that they ſold them to all Manner of People, as well by Retail as otherways, as well within the Ports where they brought them as elſewhere; that they bought at the ſame Ports and Places, at their own Liberties, the Commodities of this Realm, and ſold the ſame again at their Pleaſures within the ſame, as commonly and freely as any of the King's Liege People; and did not employ a great Part of the Money coming thereof upon the Commodities of the Realm, but made it over Sea, by Exchange, to divers other Countries, to the King's great Damage and Loſs in his Cuſtoms, and to the great Impoveriſhing of his Subjects, of whom they ought to have bought the Commodities of the Realm. That the ſame Merchants of Italy, and other Merchant Strangers were houſed, and took to them People of other Nations, and were with them daily, and did buy, ſell, and make privy and ſecret Contracts and Bargains with the ſame People, to their great Increaſe and Profits, and to the importune Damage of the King's Subjects, and contrary to divers Statutes. That theſe Merchants bought a great Quantity of Wool in divers Places, and Woollen Cloth and other Merchandizes of the King's Subjects. And Part thereof they ſold again to the ſame Subjects and others within the Realm, and much of the ſame Wools they delivered to Cloth-makers, thereof to make Cloth at their Pleaſure; King Richard III. therefore did make a Law, that theſe Italian and Foreign Merchants ſhould cauſe their Goods and Commodities to be ſold and bartered in Groſs, not by Retail, and to employ the Money coming of that Sale within the ſame Ports where they did arrive, upon Commodities and Merchandize of this Realm, their reaſonable Coſt and Expences always excepted and deducted, upon Pain of Forfeitures; and by no Means to make over ſuch Monies by Exchange, and finally, to reſtrain the aboveſaid Abuſes. Of this Matter of Employment more will be ſaid by and by.

Anthony Guidotti, an Italian Merchant, towards the Beginning of King Edward VI. his Reign, did good Service to England, by his Wiſdom and Dexterity in managing State Buſineſs, in ſetting forward a Peace between England and France. For taking divers private Journeys from the Conſtable of France to the Council in England (which he ſeemed to do at firſt upon his own Head) it came at laſt to this Point, that four Commiſſioners were appointed to treat, and after long Debate it ended in a Treaty, and that in a Peace, Anno 1549; and for a Reward, in April 1550, Guidotti was recompenced with a Knighthood and 1000 Crowns, and 150 Crowns Penſion, and his Son with 250 Crowns Penſion.

Among the Foreigners that for the Liberty of their Religion planted themſelves in England under King Edward VI. many were Italians and Genoeſe, having a Congregation in LONDON, and moſt of them Merchants who brought over and traded in Silks, Velvets and Damasks, and got great Wealth thereby.

In Queen Elizabeth's Reign, about 1572, were of Note Franciſco Galliardetto, Cæſar Adelmar, (whence the Family of Cæſars of Hertfordſhire, ſtill flouriſhing) Acerbo and Benedict Spinola, who had ſo much Favour granted him as to obtain divers Licences for the paſſing of Cloths and Kerſies with Engliſh Cuſtom.

There have been from Time to Time many Acts made (beſides that mentioned before) for the Regulation of the Trade of Merchants, Aliens and Strangers, and that the Nation might receive Benefit and Advantage from it; as, that they ſhould dwell in no other Place but in an Engliſhman's Houſe, and he to be their Hoſt, and to have the Sales of all ſuch Goods as they ſhould bring into the Realm; and he, the ſaid Hoſt, to ſee the Money received for ſuch Commodities, to be employed upon the Commodities of the Realm. That they ſhould have appointed them by the Mayor, Sheriffs, Bailiffs and Conſtables, their Hoſt, whither they were to reſort, and to no other Place; and he to be appointed the Surveyor or Broker of all ſuch Merchandizes by them brought into the Realm, and the ſame to be regiſtered by him; and for his Pains and travel therein to have 2 d. for every 20 s. That neither they, their Servants or Factors, ſhould ride into the Country, or any Part of the Realm, to buy any Wool, Cloth, Lead, Tin, or any other Commodities; becauſe they uſed to ſell the ſame again within the Realm to other Merchants Strangers, to the Hindrance of the King's Subjects; and by riding from Place to Place, and from Haven to Haven, they might underſtand the State of the ſame, with all ſuch landing Places as were meet for any Enemies to land at. That no Merchant Stranger or Denizen might buy any Wools, Wolfels, Leather, Lead, Tin, or any other Commodity throughout our Realms and Lands by Covin or Colluſion to abate the Prices of the ſame Merchandizes: For by their riding and ſending into the Country, they came to know the Value of the Engliſh Commodities, whereby the Merchants that were wont to ſerve them of the ſame, could ſcarce be offered the Monies it coſt in the Country, to the Hinderance of the ſaid Merchants, and Decay of the Commodities. That where any Contract was made with any Lombard, or other Merchant Stranger, and any Bond thereof paſt between them, that if he ſhould break and eſcape out of the Realm without Agreement made with his Creditors, then if any Merchant of the Company acknowledged himſelf bound by the Manner, the Company ſhould anſwer the Debts. For in former Times divers Merchants Strangers, as well of the Stillyard as others, having by their Credit here gotten great Sums of Money and Wares into their Hands of divers Subjects of this Realm, ſuddenly broke and play'd Bankrupts, and thereupon departed the Realm, whereby none of their Creditors knew where to ſeek any Part of his Debts. That Merchants Strangers, being Victuallers, ſhould put in good Aſſurance for the employing of their Money received for the Victuals. That none of them ſhould lodge in their Houſe any other Merchant Stranger than of their own Country, upon Pain of forfeiting 40 l. and in the Reign of King Henry VII. not to lodge in their Houſe any Merchant Stranger, either of his own Country or other upon the ſame Penalty: For with theſe theſe they uſed to buy, ſell, barter and exchange as commonly and freely as Engliſh Merchants did. By which Means they coloured one another's Goods, and hindered the Sale of our Country Commodities. That they ſhould make ſuch Exchange to the Court of Rome or elſewhere, and to be bound perſonally in the Court of Chancery by Recognizance, to buy within nine Months after ſuch Exchange, and make like Merchandizes in this Realm as ſhould amount to the ſaid Sum, of ſo much as was exchanged, upon Forfeiture of the ſame. Laſtly, That where they daily brought in Wheat, Corn, Merchandizes, &c. for the which they received Gold and Silver, and carried the ſame out of the Realm without any Employment upon any Kind of Merchandize of this Realm, to the Damage and impoveriſhing of the ſame, and diminiſhing the King's Coin; therefore none ſhould carry away any Beer, Wheat, Corn, or any other Merchandize from any Creek or Port, but that it ſhould be lawful to ſeize the ſame as forfeit.

THESE old Laws were revived in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth. About the 14th Year of whoſe Reign a great Quarrel aroſe againſt the Merchants Strangers, and continued a great while after, That they did not employ the Money they received of the Commodities they brought into the Land, in purchaſing therewith other Goods of our own Growth and Manufacture; but that they returned their Monies by Bills of Exchange, or otherwiſe, Abroad; and ſo emptied the Land of its Treaſure. William Bird, of the Cuſtom-Houſe, informed the Treaſurer, Anno 1572, that it was reported, that ſome Merchants Strangers brought in Wares for 8 or 10000 l. or more a Year, and did not make Employment for 200 l. of the ſame in the Commodities of the Realm. Which was contrary to the good Policy of the Realm, and a great Damage to her Majeſty: For hereby the Queen's Revenues were ſunk; and the Lord Treaſurer was informed from the Cuſtomers, that the Queen's Officers had no ſuch Knowledge of the Strangers Goods and Wares brought from beyond Sea, as heretofore they uſed to have: Whereby her Highneſs's Cuſtoms and Subſidies outward were much decreaſed. And they prayed him to take Order, That the Merchants Strangers ſhould deliver (as heretofore they had done) a Bill or Content of all ſuch Goods and Merchandizes as they ſhould from Time to Time bring into the Port of LONDON; whereby their Employments made, and their Bonds taken for the ſame, might the better be ſeen unto for her Majeſty's Service.

THAT which gave a great Occaſion to theſe Matters againſt the Foreigners, was a Supplication made to the Lord Treaſurer by one John Fabian, a Citizen, in the Year 1571, that he might be conſtituted the Broker for Strangers Goods. He ſhew'd, in a long Paper, the Acceſs of Aliens and Strangers coming out of foreign Realms and Countries into the Realm, and eſpecially LONDON, where, for the moſt Part, they made their Dwelling; that it had been now of late Years far greater than in any Age or Time heretofore paſt, and ſo yet continued. That their Numbers daily increaſed in that Meaſure, that it ſurmounted all Memory; which ſaid Strangers, for the moſt and greateſt Part of them, uſed the Trade of Merchandize, but that they did not, nor would ſet on work, as Brokers in the Sales and Buying of their Goods, any Engliſh or Freemen of the City, but only Foreigners and Strangers, and that for the moſt Part ſuch as were of their proper Nation and native Country, to the great and unſpeakable Gains of themſelves, and Loſs and Hinderance of the Commonwealth of the City. Now Fabian ſupplicated for the Reformation hereof, that in Conſideration of his Induſtry and Willingneſs, his Skill and Ability to do and execute the ſame, and for the Profit to redound thereby unto the Queen, the whole City, and the Freemen thereof, to grant unto him and his Aſſigns, to be the principal, ſole and only Broker for, and to all Merchants Strangers that ſhould bring in, or convey out of the Realm any Wares, Goods, or Merchandizes whatſoever, into, or out of the Port of LONDON; for which he would pay certain Sums of Money in annual Rent, or Ready Money; and, finally, that he being the firſt Deviſer and Inventer of this Suit, might be firſt preferred in it.

BUT this the Strangers by no Means liking of, endeavoured that they might have Brokers of their own, and one Stephen John, and Nichol de Franays, Italians, were nominated by them; the latter ſued to Acerbo and Spinola, two chief Italian Merchants, to be admitted by the Lord Treaſurer.

IN the Year 1573, Orders were made by the Lord Treaſurer for the Employment of Money growing by Wares brought into the Realm by Strangers, upon Wares of the Realm to be carried outward, to avoid thereby the continual carrying and ſtealing out of the Realm our Gold and Silver; and that Employment to be within ſix Months, &c.

THIS Order, touching ſo hard upon all the Strangers, Denizens, as well as all others, awaked them to ſeek for ſome Remedy and Favour in this Matter; which they did ſo vigorouſly, that it was a Thing that depended many a Year after. The Denizens, they petitioned to be diſcharged of this Order, and that they ought to be ſo by a Statute of the Third of Henry VII. they urged that they might enjoy the antient Privileges of the Laws and Cuſtoms of this Realm, and all the Grants of her Majeſty's Letters Patents, and other of her Anceſtors; and particularly the Limitations of the antient Intercourſe between the Houſe of Burgundy and us. And further, they declared themſelves content to be bound in reaſonable Bonds, not to carry out of the Realm any Money, Plate or Gold. They ſhewed moreover, that in theſe preſent Days they could not ſell the hundredth Part of their Commodities but at three or four Months, five and ſix Months, and often eight, and alſo at twelve Months and a Day Payment, according to the Nature and Quality of the Merchandize; and a great many did not pay till three or four Months after the Day; and ſome, for Want of Ability, paid not at all. That when there came a Glut of Merchandize, their ſaid Wares could not be ſold for Lack of Vent. And for ſuch Wares as could not tarry, they gave very long Days of Payment. That Commodities brought in by Strangers, ſometimes the moſt Part of them were bought upon Credit beyond Sea, and to pay for the ſame, they muſt deliver their Money here received by Exchange to Engliſh Merchant Adventurers, and others, who do ſhip Cloth and other Commodities, to be paid beyond the Seas, or elſe pay here ſuch Bills of Exchange, as by their Creditors are directed for the Payment of the ſaid Merchandizes. That the Commodities coming from beyond the Seas is oftentimes the Return of the Commodities taken up likewiſe upon Credit here, and ſhipped over the Sea to be anſwered there with the Money of the ſaid Return brought in, &c.

IN the Year 1584, Andreas de Loo, and divers Strangers of the Low Countries, and others, were Suiters to the Lord Treaſurer, to have this Matter qualified according to the Law. They urged for themſelves, that at the Colloquy at Bruges by Dr. Wotton, Dr. Haddon, and Dr. Aubrey, it was accorded, that no ſuch Servitude of Valuation of Merchandize ſhould be upon the Low Country Men; and that Bills of Exchange ſhould be counted counted for Employment. And that in the Year 1567, Haddon wrote a Letter to the Cuſtomers of LONDON, to allow Bills of Exchange for Employment. They further ſhewed, that the Employment out of the Realm of Engliſh Commodities, was ſo great now by the Engliſh Merchants, that the Companies of the Merchant Adventurers, the Spaniſh Merchants, the Muſcovian Merchants, and the Eaſtland Merchants, were fain to ſtint themſelves, what every Merchant ſhould ſhip out of the Realm, according to the Antienty of Continuance, Place and Freedom, every body being ready to carry out more than could be bought; ſo as there lacked no Employment. And the whole Tranſportation by Strangers of their Commodities was now taken out of their Hands by Engliſhmens Trade and Importation; the falſe Suggeſtion of the Lack thereof being one of the Cauſes of making thoſe Orders.

But Fabian, before-mention'd, in the Year 1588, was very hard againſt the Strangers. He aſſerted, that at the Conference had with the Houſe of Burgundy at Barborough in Flanders, concerning the Intercourſe, not any Charter or Monument could be produced to impugn or prejudice this Action for Employment. And that the Parliament then at hand might, if any Thing were wanting, make it ſtrong and in Force. He urged the Fruit it would bring. Firſt, The great Augmentations of the Queen's Cuſtoms. Secondly, The Vent of the Commodities of the Realm. Thirdly, The only Stay of our Money and Bullion from Tranſportation, and the reducing and bringing back that which had been conveyed and carried out. Fourthly, the Let that the Realm ſhould not be indebted, as now it was, to foreign Nations, by bringing in and conſuming more of their Wares, than was carried away of our Commodities. Fifthly, It would yield a Rent to the Queen of good Value, to be paid yearly, where and how the Lord Treaſurer ſhould appoint. Sixthly, It would diſcover other Things worthy of underſtanding, not to be omitted, to ſerve the Lord Treaſurer, and the State; which without, it could not ſo come to Light.

The ſaid Fabian ſtood now to be Surveyor upon the Statute of Employment; that is, to be privy to all Strangers Entries in the Cuſtom-Houſe, and to the Sale of their foreign Wares, and the Employments made upon the ſame. He, beſides the Arguments already made uſe of, ſhewed moreover, that it would bring in all the Trade, outwards and inwards, unto our Nation, and draw it away from Merchants Strangers, that got the whole Gain from us, if they refuſed to ſubmit themſelves to the Laws and Ordinances of our Land. For, as our Laws ſtood in old Time, that Merchants could not make any Exchange of Money over the Sea from hence without the Queen's Licence; ſo then they muſt of Neceſſity employ the Money of their Wares brought in and ſold, in our Commodities, or elſe to be charged to have imported the ſame out of the Realm, and never ſhould be able to deny it. Which Commodities of the Realm, when the Stranger could not tranſport as cheap as the Engliſh Merchant might, by Reaſon of the high Cuſtoms he muſt pay, then would he leave the Trade to our own Men: And ſo by this Means all Merchants Strangers would leave the Realm, being not able to uſe Exchange as they were wont to do, by delivering the ſame unto our Men under the true Valuation of our Standard; whereby they had impoveriſhed the Land a long Time of many Thouſand Pounds a Year, and alſo had moſt pitifully bitten our Merchants by the ſaid Change, Rechange, Intereſt and Uſury. In this Suit Fabian continued till the Year 1590.

The main Matter that awakened theſe old Laws of Employment, was, that the whole Trade of Spain, Portugal, Flanders, Artois and Brabant was then in the Hands of the Low Country Men, and of the French. The Popes Allum alſo conſigned to Philip Corſini. And they all made no Employment of the Wares brought in and ſold, and ſo were in Danger of ſpoiling the Realm.

By what is ſaid above it appears, that theſe Strangers were not without the Envy and ill Will of the Engliſh, among whom they came to ſojourn. They grumbled; and ſo Fabian complained to the Lord Treaſurer, how that if any Commodity happened to be in Requeſt, by and by the Stranger Leger gave Advice on the other Side of the Sea. And if the Commodity were foreign, they had it here with the firſt, and enhanſed the Price on the other Side. And that by this Means the whole Trade of Wares almoſt came into their Hands, the Engliſh Merchants excluded, that were wont only in former Times to be made rich thereby. But if the Commodity were of our own native Country, they ran upon it likewiſe, enhanſing the Price here, and ſent it away, taking the firſt Market on the other Side. That they enhanſed their Commodities at their Wills and Pleaſures, to the Diſcommodity and Hinderance of the Commonwealth. That they bought and ſold among themſelves, to the Hinderance of Freemen. That they were wont to defraud the Queen of her Cuſtoms by their ſubtle Devices, &c. And about the Merchants Strangers Exchange, Peter Osborn, the Lord Treaſurer's Remembrancer, ſhewed what an Inconvenience that was to the Engliſh Nation. Which Objection, he ſaid, all the Italians in the World, nor the Low Country Men, ſhould ever be able to anſwer.

This alſo appeared by the Diſpleaſure that was taken at the many uſeful Manufactures brought in and ſet up here in LONDON, and other Places of the Realm, by the Strangers; pretending, the great Loſs the Queen ſuſtained in her Cuſtoms hereby, as well as other Diſprofits to the Subject. Concerning which, Thomas Smith, the Queen's Cuſtomer, wrote thus to the Lord Treaſurer, being required thereunto, "That "he had ſought out, as near as he could, the "Certainty of the Queen's Loſſes, and Hinder-"ance in her Cuſtoms inwards, by the late In-"creaſe of made Wares here, which were ac-"cuſtomed to be brought into this Realm, and "anſwered her Highneſs's Cuſtom and Subſidy "for the ſame, at leaſt to the Value of 1000 l. "yearly; which did ariſe in theſe Commodities "following, viz. Striped Canvas, ſtriped Sack-"cloth, tuft and plain Mocadoes, Norwich and "Sandwich Grograms, Serges, Sayes, Drape-"ries and Tapeſtries, and all Kind of Fringes; "and Laces of Gold, Silver and of Crewel, be-"ſides Bays and Frizadoes. Of which Com-"modities, in Time paſt, was very few, or none "at all, made here. Furthermore, that he had "learned that there was a great Number of "Bays made in England, Sandwich, Norwich, "Colcheſter, and Thetford; whereof many were "ſpent there, and many were ſent for Portugal, "Spain, and the Low Countries. That he had "alſo learned, that the Number of Bays making "here did much hinder and decay the making of "Welſh, Cheſhire, and Mancheſter Cottons, and "of other coarſe Cloths made in the North Parts, "as Northern Cottons, Cardinal Whites, North-"ern Streittes, Northern Checks, and Peniſ-"tones; and alſo of Pindewhites and Plaines "made in the Weſt Country. That the Decay "of the making of theſe Commodities did not "only hinder the Queen's Cuſtom outwards, but "alſo a great Number of the Poor, which were "wont to be ſet on work by the ſame. For he "had learned, that the Strangers ſet few Eng-"liſh on work. And laſtly, That the making of "Bays,

" Bays, Frizadoes, and ſuch like here, did " much raiſe the Price of Wools and Fells in " this Realm; whereby her Majeſty was much " hindered in her Cuſtoms outward of the " Staple.

AND that the Citizens ſtill ſtand alike ill-affected towards theſe Strangers, appears from the late Endeavours to hinder the Naturalizing of them; which were much uſed in the Reign of the late King William, ſhewing to the Parliament the Inconvenience thereof, in a Paper, intitled, REASONS humbly offered to the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament aſſembled, againſt the paſſing of ſeveral Bills now depending in Parliament for Naturalizing of Aliens.

AS it hath been the Prudence of the Princes (Kings and Queens) of this Nation, always to take Care to make a Diſtinction between natural-born Subjects, and Aliens of other Kingdoms; and have never encouraged, nor indeed tolerated them in any Thing further than that which might one Way or other be for the Intereſt of their native Subjects: So it it has no leſs been their Care of the Great and Populous City of LONDON, to preſerve the Trade thereof to the Native Freemen of the ſame, eſpecially and principally againſt the Incroachments of Aliens of other Kingdoms. Witneſs, the antient Oath adminiſtered to every Freeman, who ſwears not to take the Child of an Alien Apprentice; which clearly points out to us the Miſchiefs they apprehended would thereby redound to the Trade of the ſaid City: And Witneſs alſo the ſeveral Tolls and Duties antiently and Time out of Mind laid upon the Goods of Aliens imported and exported out of the Port of LONDON, called Scavage, Package, Balliage and Porterage; and for weighing of Goods and Merchandizes, called Tronage; and other Things, which in Proceſs of Time are become conſiderable Revenues of the ſaid City; which ſaid Duties, amongſt other Things, are as a Security, appropriated by a late Act of Parliament for Payment of the perpetual Intereſt of the Orphans Debts; and the other Part thereof doth help to maintain the Charge, and ſupport the Magiſtracy and Grandeur of the ſaid City. Now, by the Naturalizing of Aliens, the Revenue of the City would be greatly leſſened, if not totally loſt, and the City thereby deprived of one principal Means of bearing the Charge, and ſupporting the Grandeur and Magnificence thereof. There are ſeveral other Inſtances to be given, to prove that the Naturalization of Aliens is greatly prejudicial to the Trade of the ſaid City, and Publick Good of the Nation in general: Some of which are ſet out in the Statute of 1 Henry VII. Cap. 2. in theſe Words, viz.

WHEREAS in Times paſt divers Grants have been made by King Edward, as well by his Letters Patents as by Acts of Parliament, to divers Merchants Strangers, born out of this Realm, to be Denizens, whereby they have and enjoy ſuch Freedoms and Liberties as do Denizens born within the ſaid Realm, as well in Abatement of their Cuſtom which they ſhould bear as if they were no Denizens, as in buying and ſelling of their Merchandize to their great Avail and Lucre, and oft-times ſuffer other Strangers, not Denizens, deceitfully to ſhip and carry great and notable Subſtance of Merchandize in their Names, by which the ſaid Goods be free of Cuſtom, in like wiſe as if they were the Goods of a Denizen, where of Right they ought to pay Cuſtom as the Goods of Strangers, by the which they be greatly advanced in Riches and Honour; and after they be ſo enriched, for the moſt part they convey themſelves with their ſaid Goods into their own Countries, wherein they be naturally born, to the great impoveriſhing of this Realm, and to the great Hurt and Defraud of the King's Highneſs in Payment of his Cuſtoms: Wherefore it is Enacted, Eſtabliſhed and Ordained, by the Advice of the Lords Spiritual, &c. That any Perſon hereafter to be made Denizen, ſhall pay for his Merchandize like Cuſtom and Subſidy as he ought or ſhould pay, before that he were made Denizen; any Letters Patents, or other Ordinances by Parliament or otherwiſe notwithſtanding.

THE Statutes of 11 Hen. VII. Cap. 14. and 22 Hen. VIII. Cap. 8. are both to the ſame Purpoſe. And during the Reigns of Edward VI. Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, few or none were Naturalized. And in all the Reigns of King James I. and King Charles I. not above 10 Aliens Merchants were Naturalized, and thoſe ſuch as by long Abode in England had merited that Kindneſs of the Nation; and then it was rare to hear of an Engliſh Merchant that failed, ſo that the Clothiers grew rich, and the Clothing was in great Requeſt abroad. Beſides which,

THIS Favour of Naturalizing Aliens is ruinous to the Engliſh Merchants Trade, by Commiſſion, which they enjoyed plentifully before theſe Naturalizations, which theſe naturalized Aliens now enjoy. The Engliſh had Factories ſettled in all Countries, whereby they governed the Trade of the World; and theſe Engliſh Factors were great Incouragers of our Manufactures, and brought a great Addition to the Capital Stock of the Kingdom, by the great Eſtates they arrived to, and brought home. But ſince theſe particular Naturalizations of Merchants Aliens, our Factories in France, the Netherlands, Portugal, Hamburgh, and other near Countries, are ruined and enjoyed by Aliens.

BY the ſecond Rule in the Book of Rates, annexed to the Act of Tonnage and Poundage, Goods imported having paid Cuſtom, and again exported by Engliſh in 12 Months, and Aliens in nine Months, Drawback from his Majeſty half the Cuſtoms paid by them on the Importation, and in ſome Caſes more than half; which Rule was deſigned to give the Engliſh Merchant three Months longer Time for a Market for their Goods in England than Aliens had, and yet ſaved to them the Benefit of the Drawback of half the Cuſtom, in Caſe they miſſed of a Market here, and were neceſſitated to ſend them abroad for a foreign Market; which diſcriminating Advantage will be loſt to the Engliſh, when Aliens being Naturalized ſhall thereby have the ſame Privilege.

AND (among other Things) it is not to be forgotten, how our antient native Manufactures are ſlighted and neglected, by Reaſon of the many Aliens being Naturalized and Settled among us, have introduced foreign Faſhions and Inventions, to the Ruin of the honeſt Engliſh Handicrafts Tradeſman, whoſe Manufactures thereby become a Drug, which would not be, were Aliens not Naturalized: For by the Statute of 32 Hen. VIII. Cap. 16. an Alien Artificer is diſabled from ſettling among us, and cannot ſo much as take the Leaſe of an Houſe in England to drive his Trade in.

UPON the whole Matter, it ſhould ſeem highly conſonant to Reaſon, for all Engliſhmen, Lovers of their Country, and eſpecially for this High Court of Parliament, to take Care to preſerve the Revenue and Trade of the great and populous City of LONDON, to the Native Freemen thereof, for the Benefit of themſelves and their Succeſſors, by preventing the future Naturalization of Aliens: Or if any hereafter, for weighty Reaſons, be Naturalized, that it may be under a Proviſo, " That " they pay a greater Cuſtom to his Majeſty and " his Succeſſors, for the Goods and Merchan- " dizes they ſhall import or export, than his Ma- " jeſty's native Subjects; and may pay all City, " Town and Port Tolls and Duties payable be- " fore by any Aliens." And hereby will Trade be by the native Engliſh carried on in an equal Ballance with Aliens, the Cuſtoms (being the Publick Revenue of the Nation for guarding the Seas) increaſed, the honeſt Engliſh Handicrafts-Men encouraged, the native Manufactures brought again into Requeſt, the antient Trade by Commiſſion regained, the Number of Engliſh Factors abroad increaſed, the younger Sons of the Engliſh Gentry preferred, the Freemen and Members of this great Metropolis enriched, and the Revenue thereof, for Payment of the Orphan's Debts, and ſupporting the Magiſtracy and Government thereof preſerved, and generally the Good of all his Majeſty's Subjects advanced.

" turalized,

BESIDES the Freemen Inhabitants of this City, there are likewiſe a great Number of Strangers and Foreigners that have choſen here to fix their Habitations: And they are of two Sorts, either ſuch as are Natives of England, and come of Engliſh Extraction, but not free of the City, nor any of the Corporations; or ſuch who themſelves, or whoſe Anceſtors came from other Parts and Dominions. Theſe latter making ſo conſiderable a Part of the City, both for Number and Wealth, may juſtly fall under ſome Cognizance in this Place.

MANY of theſe came antiently here, (beſides thoſe of Calais and the Parts adjacent, when they were loſt) eſpecially Italians and Genoeſes, and French and Flemings, upon the Account of Trade; but in the Days of King Edward VI. and Queen Elizabeth, for Religion and Trade too; and they chiefly from the Low Countries, and ſome Italians, French and Spaniſh; for theſe Nations alſo had received the Goſpel. The ſeveral Things relating to theſe Foreigners may be digeſted under the following Heads; as, Firſt, The Places where they generally fixed themſelves. Secondly, Their Occupations. Thirdly, Their Numbers. And, Fourthly, The Reception and Entertainment they met with among the Citizens.

THEY choſe to live by one another, and conſorted as much together as they could; and the Streets and Places where they chiefly inhabited were either in the Suburbs, or in privileged Places; as St. Martin's le Grand, Black-fryars, Clerkenwel, Turnmil-ſtreet, St. John's-ſtreet, High Holborn, the Dutchy of Lancaſter without Temple-bar, St. Catharine's, Holywel, Holywel-ſtreet, Norton-folgate, Shoreditch, Hoxton, Whitechapel, Wapping and Southwark. In the Liberties of the ſaid St. Catharine's is a Place called now Hangman's Gains, by a ſtrange Corruption for Hammes and Guynes, where the poor Trades People of Hammes and Guynes were allotted to dwell, after Calais and thoſe Places were taken from the Engliſh.

FOR the Italian Merchants, whom the Engliſh Citizens could not well brook for their great Wealth, which they got here by their rich Silks and Damasks which they brought over: There were of them Florentines, Luccaſſes, Venetians, Genoeſes, &c. and they chiefly reſided in Broad-ſtreet Ward, in St. Bartholomew's near the Royal Exchange, and Bennet Fink.

As for their Trades and Occupations, ſome of them followed the Calling of Merchants, others were Jewellers, Brokers, Weavers, Taylors, Shoe-makers, Stone-cutters, Hatband-makers, Potters, Painters, School-maſters, Phyſicians, Surgeons, Joiners, Butchers; and many were of no Trades at all, but lived of what they brought over with them. By theſe Foreigners divers Manufactures were ſet up in England; but the Queen thereby loſt in her Cuſtoms.

THE Strangers of the Low Countries brought in the making of Bays, that has proved ſuch an advantageous Commodity for our Merchants to tranſport; but theſe were chiefly made at Norwich and Colcheſter, and brought up to LONDON; and they were made ſo well, and ſo ſtrictly examined every Piece, that they carried a Reputation throughout the World. At Norwich were 18 Perſons appointed on purpoſe for the Search, Sealing and Meaſuring of the Baytre; as the Mayor and Aldermen of Norwich wrote to the Lord Treaſurer, whereby their Commodity held ſuch Credit and Eſtimation, that they were vendible both in this Realm and in many Countries beyond Seas, to the Benefit of the Queen's Cuſtoms, and Relief of the poor Strangers, the Workers thereof, with many of the Engliſh Nation. The Manner and Order of their Search and Sealing was remarkable, as they ſent it up Anno 1578, to LONDON, in Writing, to this Tenor:

" Firſt, There been three Governors which " overſee the Woolls, leſt any Lambes Wooll " be occupied: And they alſo viſit the Racks " in eche Howſe, that it be equal Length to " warp upon, and their Slays to be accordingly; " and they alſo renew their Stamps ſo often as " nede requireth.

" THERE been two Serchers, by the Name " of Prynters, which do twice in the Week " viſit eche Baye-Weaver's Howſe, to view " their Warps; and whether their Slays be full " of Threds or not: And if they be found as " they ought to be, then they ſet a Seal upon " that of Allowance; otherwiſe it is not re- " ceived for a Baye, but is converted to a Blan- " ket, and is finable. Alſo eche Wever is " bound to make th' Owner's Mark upon the " Baye. Moreover, if Threds do breke in the " Weving, and not tied again to a certain " Nombre, that is finable alſo.

" AFTER they come from the Lome, they are " brought as they be, to the firſt Howſe called " the Rawe Perſe. Where there belong to that " Serch nine Perſons that view eche Baye for the " true Workmanſhip of the Wever, and paſſeth " undre Seal, and his Default, if eny be, is ſet " upon the Seal, is finable according to the Fault. " And the Owner's Mark, and the Wever's " Mark been ſown up ſo cloſe, that many Times " the Owner geveth Sentence upon his own " Baye to him unknown, to his own Loſs. But " this is a General Rule, the Workman that " maketh the Fault of Workmanſhip payeth the " Fyne.

" FROM thence they go to the Scowring and " Fulling, and the Fuller is to Stamp a Lead " with his Mark thereupon, to the Entent that " if any Fault be in his Office, he doth allow " the Owner the Fyne that ſhall be ſet upon that " Default.

" FROM the Fuller to the Sherman, called " the Rower, who in like Manner by a Mark or " Letter is known, and is t' aunſwer his Default, " if eny be made, to the Owner, after it be " found and judged by the Serchers.

" FROM the Fuller they be brought to the ſe- " cond Howſe, called the High Perſe, where be " alſo nine Serchers, there to have the full Allow- " ance according to the Goodneſs of the Baye, " whether it be an whole Caſtle, a Lyon, or a " Sword; for theſe been the Differencies of Seals, " whereby their Goodneſs are known, that eny " Perſon of Diſcretion may buy them by theis " Marks, and by one other Addition which is uſed " if they want full Goodneſs or Worthyneſs of " either of their Seals; then do they notwith-

" ſtanding carry the Seal with a Difference by a " Corner of the Baye cut, whereby it is known
" not to be a full Caſtle, Lyon, or Sword, and " bereth Price accordingly. The Manner of " Serche is, each Baye with his Marke and Leads
" paſſed at th' other Serche, is wound up cloſe
" and ſowed together, to that End it may not be " known what is paſſed before, but to give the " right Judgment as they fynd it then.

" AND when the Serchers do agree of the Good-
" neſs, and find the Baye not worthy of the beſt
" Lead, which eche Man doth covet, the Offi" cer of the Baytre goeth out to th' Owner, who " waiteth for his Baye, and declares what is " found, before it be ſtamped: But if the Owner
" thinketh his Baye to be better, he doth appeal
" to another Company called Betrackers, which
" be ſeven of them, that geve their Attendance
" twice in the Week, Tueſday and Friday, and as " they fynd it he muſt ſtand contented, tho' it
" be worſe than the firſt Men did allow. In this
" Serche there been certain Leads ſet upon the " Lyſte of the Baye, called Over-Leads, t' admo-" niſh the Buyer of every Fault, whether it be in " the Fuller or Rowar, and hath for every ſuch

" ties newly invented, have the like Carefulneſs
" in their making and ſerche, before they paſs.

To this Manufacture of Bays ſet up by the Strangers at Norwich, may be added another Manufacture, viz. making of Gallipots, ſet up there alſo Anno 1567, by Jaſpar Andries and Jacob Janſon, Potters, who came from Antwerp, to avoid the Perſecution there. And theſe were for the moſt Part the Trades and Occupations of the Strangers that ſeated themſelves in LONDON or elſewhere. Great Number of thoſe in LONDON were Merchants; over whoſe Goods and Traffick it was thought by ſome, that a more ſtrict Eye ſhould be had, as not employing in the Engliſh Manufactures that Money which they gained by their Trade here, but returning the ſaid Monies into foreign Parts. One John Fabian therefore, (partly for his own Ends) in the Year 1571, put up a Supplication to the Lord Treaſurer, that he might be conſtituted the Broker for Strangers Goods, in a long Paper, ſhewing, in the Beginning, the Acceſs of Aliens and Strangers coming out of Foreign Realms and Countries into this Realm, and eſpecially to LONDON; whereof ſome Account is given before.

THE Numbers of theſe Strangers that came over hither, eſpecially in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, were conſiderably great, inſomuch that there were three Churches appointed for them, (though all ſeemed to be ſhelter'd under the Charter of King Edward VI. for the Strangers free Exerciſe of their Religion) viz. a Church for them that came out of Flanders and the Low Countries; another for ſuch as came from the Parts of France and Artois; and a third for Italians; and there may be added a fourth for Spaniards; beſides, many of theſe Foreigners reſorted to the Engliſh Churches; but many there were that reſorted to no Church at all.

OF theſe Strangers the State being ſuſpicious, as coming from the King of Spain's Dominions, who had conceived malicious and deſtructive Deſigns againſt the Queen and her Kingdom, ſhe did, from Time to Time appoint ſome in every Ward to go from Houſe to Houſe to take their Names, their Qualities, their Callings, and their Churches; and Certificates were ſent up according to theſe Inquiſitions taken. Thus, about the Year 1566, the Names were taken out of all the Members of the Dutch Church, and the Number of them, which was 310, among which was Gherardt Ver [Van] Strype, Anceſtor of the Reverend Mr. Strype, who publiſhed, with large Additions, the laſt Edition of Stow's Survey, and to whom we are much indebted in this Work.

BY another Account taken of the Strangers, there appeared to be of them 2730, whereof Dutch 2030, French 428, Burgoinians 44, Italians 140, Spaniards and Portugueſe 45, Scots 40, Danes 2, Liegiois 1. Again, in the Year 1580, or thereabouts, the Certificates of the Strangers in the ſeveral Wards and Precincts about the City of LONDON ſtood thus:

Men	1391	Denizens	245
Women	965	Of which Mere Strangers	1119

Anno

Anno 1593, May the 4th, a compleat Liſt was brought in of the Number of Strangers, with the Children and Servants, according to Certificates made by ſeveral Wards of LONDON, viz.

Strangers	1970	whereof	Denizens	267
Their Children	2067		No
Women Servants	1227		Denizens	737

Engliſh-born Servants kept by Strangers	959
Engliſh-born ſet at work by Strangers	534

By another Book of the Numbers of Strangers, taken for the ſame Year 1593, they are reckoned to amount to 5259, taking in, all within the Liberties alſo and without. Thence were deducted 259 Engliſh Servants; and the Sum was reduced to 4300; to which were alſo ſubjoined all the Engliſh that were ſet on work by the Strangers, which were made to amount in the Whole to 1493.

Among the Perſons named in a Liſt of the Year 1576, are John Howblowe, and Gyllam Tulyer mentioned. And in another are the Names of John Houbland, and Peter Hubland, miſwrit in both Places, no doubt, by the Engliſh Scribes. And in an authentick Catalogue of ſuch French as fled to Rye in Suſſex, upon that inhuman Maſſacre of the Proteſtants in France, Anno 1572, there be the Names of Le Tellier, and Tellier, one a Merchant, another a Miniſter, and another a Brazier of Diep. Some of theſe, very probably, were the Anceſtors of thoſe eminent Merchants and Citizens bearing the Name of Houblon and Lethieulier, which at this preſent flouriſh here in Wealth and Reputation; and ſome of them, ſuch as have, and do partake of the Government of this City, as well as other Places of Honour and Truſt.

And having related thus much of the Foreigners that tranſplanted themſelves from abroad into this Place, ſomething may further be added of the Manner of their Reception and Entertainment among the Citizens. Many whereof (eſpecially the more ordinary Sort) had no great Love for them, and were glad of an Opportunity of oppreſſing them, the Engliſh Nature being ſomewhat inhoſpitable to Strangers, jealous of their Induſtry, and ſuſpecting them to get their Trade away from them.

Anno 1563, July 30, a Proclamation came out againſt Strangers; and divers Frenchmen Denizens, and others, were ſeized, it may be, upon the Falſeneſs and Treachery of the French to the Engliſh at Newhaven. But to ſee how ready the Citizens were to take this Opportunity to expreſs their Diſguſt againſt Foreigners, Sir Thomas Lodge, Lord Mayor, wrote to the Privy Council, That the People, a great Number of them, were very fervent, and a great Number very unquiet; and proceeded, without Order, in the Execution of the Proclamation; ſo that he thought it good, as he wrote, to give their Honours Intelligence thereof, beſeeching their further Order and Pleaſure herein; for that the ſame Proclamation was not orderly publiſhed, and the People very heady in uſing the Liberty of the ſame.

The poor Strangers not only in LONDON, but all England over, as they were offenſive to the ordinary Sort of People, as Mechanicks and ſuch like, ſo they were ſought as a Prey by others, to make a Benefit of them. Thus one Ralph Lane, a projecting Man, in the Year 1583, made this Motion to the Lord Treaſurer, that conſidering, by Reaſon of the Civil Wars in the Parts beyond Seas, Numbers of Strangers made their Habitations within this Realm, and that in ſuch great Multitudes, as was to the great Annoyance of homeward Artizans and Subjects, both through the Exerciſe of Engliſh Trades, and by not performing, for their Parts, that which the Laws of this Land did enjoyn for the Benefit of the Commonweal; as alſo through the Increaſe of the Prices of Victuals, raiſing the Rents of the Tenements, and increaſing of Sickneſs by their over peſtering of ſmall Rooms with many of them; beſides other like Inconveniencies, meet either to be refrained, or elſe at the leaſt, in ſome Meaſure to be reſtrained by new Proviſions, meeting with the Miſchiefs of ſuch new Accidents: Therefore, that her Majeſty would be pleaſed to grant him the executing ſuch Laws as were made againſt Aliens, with the Benefit of the Penalties thereof, and Authority, yearly, to ſurvey them, taking their Appearances, and for the regiſtering of every of their Names to take 4 d. with a like Authority to take yearly Bonds to her Majeſty's Uſe (and that only of ſuch of them as have already broken the Laws) not to offend in the like hereafter, and to diſpenſe with what is paſt. This, if it had paſſed according to the Petitioner's Deſire, would (it is like) have given Occaſion of continual Vexation to the Strangers.

Three Years after, viz. 1586, the Apprentices of LONDON did conſpire an Inſurrection in the City againſt the French and Dutch, but eſpecially againſt the French; a Thing as like unto evil May-Day as could be deviſed, in all Manner of Circumſtances; there wanted nothing but Execution. Several of theſe were taken, all under twenty-one Years of Age. They were of the Myſtery of the Plaiſterers, and were committed to Newgate upon the Queen and Council's Commandment; and the Recorder, and other Magiſtrates of the City, were in Search for the principal Captain. For the effecting this, they had been working one whole Day or two after in Whitehall and at Weſtminſter, (where they ſuſpected him to be) and at his coming home they hoped to have him, having ſet a ſtanding Watch armed, from Nine at Night until Seven in the Morning; and meant to continue the ſame ſo long as it ſhould be thought convenient by the Lord Treaſurer, and other of the Lords, as the Recorder ſignified to them.

Again, in the Year 1592, the Outlandiſh Strangers that dealt in Retale Trades, were greatly diſguſted by the Engliſh Shop-keepers and Freemen of LONDON, as ſpoiling their Trades; and they made Complaint, and drew up Allegations againſt retailing Strangers, in Order to the getting an Act of Parliament againſt their Retailing. They alledged, That the Retailing of foreign Commodities by Strangers cauſed the Decay of Engliſh Retailers, in Ability, Number, and Trade. For Example, The Engliſh Retailers of Linen Cloth in LONDON were to the Number of 160, or thereabouts, but now they were but 67; and the Strangers were increaſed double in that Trade. And whereas, within ſeven Years paſt, one Engliſh Retailer of Linen Cloth in LONDON uttered yearly in Lawns and Cambricks to the Value of 1400 l. now the beſt of them uttered not in that Sort of Ware yearly 200 l. and ſo of the reſt; though much more of thoſe Wares were uttered at that Day than was wont to be. So that what the Engliſh Retailer loſt, the Retailing Strangers got. They alledged further, That the Strangers Retailers had more Liberty than the Engliſh Retailers, in that they retailed in Cities, Towns Corporate, and the Suburbs of Cities, and other exempt Places; which Engliſh Retailers were prohibited by a Law to do, viz. the Statute of 1 & 2 Phil. & Mary. And that ſome Strangers were both Merchants and Retailers. They alledged, That the Strangers Retailers hindered the Queen's Subſidies and Cuſtoms, in living obſcurely as poor Retailers in Shew; and ſo paid the Queen for for Subſidy but 4 d. a Poll; and in not being mere Merchants, whereby they ſhould pay double Cuſtom and Subſidies. They alledged, That they enhanſed the Prices of Wares, by ſecret combining with Merchants beyond the Seas, Wares being then by one half dearer than they were before they retailed. They alledged, That they were dangerous to the State, in Reſpect of their exceeding Wealth, by uſing two or three ſeveral Trades; in Reſpect of their great Numbers planted in the chief Cities and Coaſt-Towns of this Land; in Reſpect of their Readineſs to fly from us upon Report of Danger; and in Reſpect that many of them were of no Church or apparent Profeſſion. Laſtly, They alledged, that they kept a Commonwealth among themſelves, and they would not teach any of our People their Trades, nor bring up any Children of our Nation in their Trade under them. Upon theſe Reaſons they endeavoured to get an Act of Parliament againſt them.

THE Foreigners on the other Side argued for themſelves, that ſuch an Act was againſt Charity, in that it debarred Strangers from their Livings; that the Strangers Retailers ſold Wares better cheap than the Engliſh Retailers did; that it was againſt the Freedom of their Denizations; that it was againſt the Queen's Benefit, in that Strangers paid double Cuſtoms and Subſidies; that they had done much Good to divers Cities and Towns within this Realm; and laſtly, that if they were reſtrained from Retailing, the Engliſh Retailers would raiſe the Prices among themſelves. The Number of theſe Strangers within LONDON and the Liberties (according to the above-ſaid Complaint againſt them) were, reckoning both Denizens, and no Denizens, 1062.

THIS Bill againſt Aliens ſelling by Way of Retail, was brought into the Parliament, 35 Eliz. Anno 1593, and Counſel was held for the Strangers, and for the City againſt them. Sir John Wolley (Secretary for the Latin Tongue to the Queen) was againſt the Bill, and ſaid in the Houſe, "That ſuch a Reſtraint upon Strangers "would be ill for LONDON itſelf; for the "Riches and Renown of the City came by the "entertaining of Strangers, and giving Liberty "unto them. That Antwerp and Venice could "never have been ſo rich and famous but by "entertaining of Strangers; and by that Means "had gained all the Intercourſe of the World.

BUT Sir Walter Raleigh took the other Side, and ſpake againſt the Strangers, and that with great Bitterneſs, and ſaid to this Tenor, "That "whereas it was pretended that it was againſt "Charity, againſt Honour, and againſt Profit to "expel them; in my Opinion, ſaid he, it is "no Matter of Charity to relieve them; for, firſt, "ſuch as fly hither have forſaken their own King. "Our Religion is no Pretext for them; for we "have no Dutchmen here but ſuch as come from "thoſe Princes where the Goſpel is preached, &c. "As for Honour, it is Honour to uſe Strangers "as we be uſed by them. But it is a Lightneſs "in a Commonwealth, yea, a Baſeneſs in a Nation, to give a Nation a Liberty, which we "cannot receive again. In Antwerp, where our "Intercourſe was moſt, we were never ſuffered "to have a Taylor or a Shoemaker to dwell "there. Nay, at Milan, where there are three "Hundred Pound Engliſhmen, they cannot have "ſo much as a Barber among them. And then "as for Profit, they are all of the Houſe of Almaine, who pay nothing, yet eat our Profits, "and ſupplant our own Nations, &c. And therefore he ſaw no Reaſon ſo much Reſpect ſhould "be given unto them. And ſo he concluded, "that he ſaw no Matter of Honour, no Matter "of Charity, no Matter of Profit, in relieving "of them.

Dr. Kennet obſerves, upon Sir Walter Raleigh's Speech, "That this was a ſevere Speech againſt "the poor foreign Strangers, delivered by him, "who could not foreſee his own Misfortunes of "being firſt ruined in a Voyage to foreign Parts; "and after his Return, of being hunted to Death "by a foreign Miniſter.

BUT Sir Robert Cecil, (one of the Secretaries of State) a Man of a better Spirit, by his Wiſdom and Temper, took off this Invective; who ſpake after this Sort; "That he could not but "own it a Matter of Charity to relieve Strangers, and eſpecially ſuch as do not grieve our "Eyes. And as to the Point of Honour, this "Entertainment of them had brought great Honour to our Kingdom, in that it was accounted "the Refuge of diſtreſſed Nations: For our Arms "have been open to them, to caſt themſelves "into our Boſoms. And yet (added he, to moderate Matters) our Charity muſt not hinder "or injure ourſelves. That, as the Bill was, "it was not ſufficient for this Purpoſe.——That "for his own Conſcience, if the Queſtion were "then made, he was not reſolved to give his "Voice. That if it were not for the Gravity of "the Houſe, nor for the Credit of the Committees to have it rejected upon the ſudden; that "as it was then, it was not fit to paſs, in his "Credit. He ſaw the Citizens themſelves would "be well aſſenting unto the reforming of the "ſame. For that Mr. Recorder yeſterday ſpeaking with them for the City, yet, with good "Regard, thought the Bill might receive great "Moderation." And, upon this Motion and Diſcourſe of Cecil, the Houſe was pleaſed to ſtay the Bill, and commit it again to the former Committee. The Bill afterwards paſs'd the Houſe of Commons with a good Majority, but went no further before the Diſſolution: When the Strangers here reſiding, were left in Poſſeſſion of all Indulgence that the Laws of the Kingdom did allow, and the Laws of Hoſpitality could beſtow upon them.

AGAIN, Anno 1593, one Edward Dymock ſued for a View of Aliens and Strangers throughout the Realm, and to keep a Roll and a Book of the Names and Numbers of them. The like Suit did Sir Thomas Milmay make; petitioning for the erecting an Office to keep a Regiſter yearly of the Names, Ages, Abilities of Body, Countries, Callings, Arts, Sciences, Places of Habitation, Cauſes of Repair hither, and Times of Departure hence, of all Foreigners and Strangers, now being and inhabiting within the Realm; and of all others that ſhould from Time to Time come into the Realm to inhabit, or paſs out of the ſame; allowing 6 d. for every Poll at their firſt Entry into the Regiſter, and yearly after 4 d. of ſuch as were Houſholders, and 2 d. for Children and Servants; and 4 d. for every one that ſhould depart the Realm.

IT was commonly urged againſt the Strangers, that a greater Number might repair hither, than with good Policy were fit to be endured. That very many might juſtly be ſuppoſed to reſort hither, not ſo much out of Zeal to Religion, or Love to the Queen, as to practiſe againſt her, and her State, and to rob the Engliſh of their Commodities to enrich themſelves. That they placing themſelves in LONDON, Norwich, Canterbury, or in Port Towns, as Southampton, Sandwich, Colcheſter, might be more ready to do Miſchief, or lie fitteſt to engroſs our Commodities into their Hands, and to tranſport the ſame to their own private Benefit. That the Artiſans and mechanical Perſons might be impoveriſhed by the great Multitude of Strangers being of their Trades and Faculties. That there were many rich Men among them that lived obſcurely, to benefit themſelves by Uſury and Exchange of Money, Money, without doing good to the Commonwealth. That many having gotten into their Hands great Riches and Treaſure by engroſſing our Commodities, ſuddenly departed the Realm, and many Times ſtole away with other Men's Goods, without any Notice thereof; and that under Colour of Merchandize and Religion, many Intelligencers and Spies adventured to come hither. Theſe were ſome of the Reaſons which Sir Thomas Mildmay, above-mentioned, uſed to perſuade the Queen to grant a Regiſter.

The wiſer and better Sort were rather for cheriſhing theſe Strangers, as well perceiving what Advantages they brought to the Nation, both for their Callings and Examples of Thrift and Diligence; as alſo by rendering the Queen's Enemy weaker by the diſpeopling his Country, and abating his Trade and Traffick. They had alſo a Religious Compaſſion for ſuch as left their own Country and Friends, and plentiful Living, (as moſt of them did) for the Sake of God and Truth. Of this Temper and Judgment was the wiſe Lord Treaſurer Burghley; for when in the Year 1588, great Labour was uſed to make Strangers employ their Monies received for foreign Goods and Commodities, in other home Commodities to be tranſported abroad, and not by Exchange; he was againſt urging it too rigorouſly, becauſe he ſaw it would drive away Strangers, who in thoſe Days ought, as he ſaid, rather to be cheriſhed than hardly dealt withal, or exacted upon.

Nor were they backward to aſſiſt the Queen according to their Ability, and to do as other Subjects did. Thus in that critical Year 1588, there being a Loan charged by the Queen upon the City, the Companies and Myſteries of LONDON ſubſcribed each diſtinctly. Then did the Strangers alſo ſubſcribe among themſelves the Sum of 4900 l. Their Names, and the Sums they ſubſcribed were as follow:

In the Year 1595, the poor Tradeſmen made a Riot upon the Strangers in Southwark, and other Parts of the City of LONDON, whereupon was a Preſentment of the greateſt Inqueſt for the ſaid Borough, concerning the outrageous Tumult and Diſorder, unjuſtly committed there, upon Thurſday, June 12, 1595, and the Leaders were puniſhed, and alſo the chief Offenders.

The like Tumults began at the ſame Time within the Liberties (as they are called) where ſuch Strangers commonly harboured. And upon the Complaint of the Elders of the Dutch and French Churches, Sir John Spencer, Lord Mayor, committed ſome young Rioters to the Compter. And when ſome of their Fellow-Apprentices and Servants gathered in a Body, and attempted to break open the Compter, and deliver the Priſoners; the Mayor went out in Perſon, and took 20 or more of them, and committed all to ſafe Cuſtody, and promiſed to proceed againſt them with all Severity, as he ſignified in a Letter to the Lord Keeper, dated the 12th of June, 1595.

The State of the poor French Proteſtant Refugees, Anno 1687, was this: Their Numbers that were relieved by a Brief that Year, were 15,500 Perſons, whereof 13,500 were in and about LONDON, and 2000 in ſeveral Sea-Port Towns; of theſe were 140 Families of Perſons of Quality; 183 Miniſters with their Families; 144 Families of Lawyers, Phyſicians, Merchants and Citizens; the reſt Artificers, Husbandmen, &c. and conſiderable Numbers of them more ſtill at that Time coming over. The Collection that was made for them in LONDON, and other Parts of the Nation, in the abovеſaid Year 1687, amounted to 40,000 l. paid into the Chamber of LONDON, and not long after 2000 l. more was paid in. Fifteen French Churches, or convenient Places for the Worſhip of God, were erected by Means of this Collection, viz. three in LONDON, and 12 in ſeveral Counties, beſides thoſe great Numbers before-mentioned relieved thereby.

The Chriſtian Hoſpitality of King Charles II. towards theſe Refugees, in the Reception of them ſome Years before, appears by this that follows:

On the 21ſt of July 1681, there was a Memorial preſented to King Charles II. in Behalf of the diſtreſſed Proteſtants abroad; which he referred to the Conſideration of the Lords Committees of Council-Board for Trade and Plantations, with Directions to report their Opinion thereupon; which they accordingly did July 28 following in Council. And then the King in Council at Hampton-Court did declare, "That "he held himſelf obliged in Honour and Con- "ſcience to comfort and ſupport all ſuch af- "flicted Proteſtants, who by Reaſon of the Ri- "gors and Severities which were uſed towards "them upon Account of their Religion, ſhould "be forced to quit their native Country, and "ſhould deſire to ſhelter themſelves under his "Majeſty's Royal Protection, for the Preſer- "vation and free Exerciſe of their Religion; "and in order hereunto his Majeſty was pleaſed "further to declare, That he would grant unto "every ſuch diſtreſſed Proteſtant, who ſhould "come hither for Refuge and reſide here, his "Letters of Denization under the Great Seal, "without any Charge whatſoever; and likewiſe "ſuch further Privileges and Immunities as were "conſiſtent with the Laws, for the Liberty and "free Exerciſe of their Trades and Handicrafts; "and that he would likewiſe recommend it to "his Parliament at their next Meeting, to paſs "an Act for the general Naturalization of all "ſuch Proteſtants as ſhould come over as afore- "ſaid; and for the further enlarging their Li- "berties and Franchiſes granted to them by his "Majeſty, as reaſonably might be neceſſary for "them. And for their Encouragement his Ma- "jeſty was likewiſe pleaſed to grant unto them, "that they ſhould pay no greater Duties in any "Caſe than his Majeſty's own natural born "Subjects; and that they ſhould have all Pri- "vileges and Immunities, that generally his "Majeſty's native Subjects had, for the In- "troduction of their Children into Schools and "Colleges.

"And his Majeſty was likewiſe pleaſed to or- "der, That all his Officers, both Civil and Mi- "litary, ſhould give a kind Reception to all ſuch "Proteſtants as ſhould arrive within any of his "Majeſty's Ports in this Kingdom, and to fur- "niſh them with free Paſſports, and give them "all

" all Aſſiſtance and Furtherance in their Journeys " to the Places to which they ſhould deſire to " go. And the Lords Commiſſioners of his Ma- " jeſty's Treaſury were to give Orders to the " Commiſſioners of his Cuſtoms, to ſuffer the " ſaid Proteſtants to paſs free with their Goods " and Houſhold Stuff, whether of a greater or " ſmaller Value, together with their Tools and " Inſtruments, belonging to their Crafts or " Trades, and generally all what belonged to " them, that might be imported according to " the Laws then in Force, without exacting any " Thing from them.

" AND for the further Relief and Encourage- " ment of the ſaid neceſſitous Proteſtants, the " King would give Order for a general Brief " through his Kingdom of England, for collect- " ing the Charity of well-diſpoſed Perſons, for " the Relief of the ſaid Proteſtants who might " ſtand in need thereof.

" AND to the End when any ſuch came over, " being Strangers, they might know where to ad- " dreſs themſelves to fitting Perſons, to lay their " Requeſts and Complaints before his Majeſty, " he was graciouſly pleaſed to appoint the Moſt " Reverend Father in God the Lord Archbiſhop " of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the " Lord Biſhop of LONDON, or either of " them, to receive all the ſaid Requeſts and " Petitions, and to preſent the ſame to his Ma- " jeſty; to the End ſuch Order might be given " therein as ſhould be neceſſary." And this Order, for the more publick Knowledge thereof, was printed by the King's Printers.

QUEEN Anne, of later Years, was not behind in her Compaſſion of the Miſery of theſe poor Proteſtants, ſtill under grievous Perſecution. For in the Year 1707, theſe Refugees, viz. the Earl of Lifford, Monſieur Le Coq; Monſieur St. Leger and ſeveral other French Proteſtant Gentlemen and Miniſters, introduced by the Earl of Sunderland, one of the Principal Secretaries of State, April 2, 1707, preſented to her Majeſty an Addreſs ſigned by a great Number of them; expreſſing their Gratitude for the gracious Protection, and charitable Aſſiſtance they had received from the Engliſh: And laying before her Majeſty the diſtreſſed and calamitous Condition of their Brethren in France under the preſent Perſecution: And prayed, that her Majeſty would be pleaſed to take the ſame into her Royal and tender Conſideration.

To which Addreſs her Majeſty was pleaſed to return the following Anſwer: " I have always " had a great Compaſſion for the unhappy Cir- " cumſtances of the afflicted Proteſtants of France. " I will communicate my Thoughts upon this " Matter to our Allies; and hope ſuch Meaſures " may be taken as may effectually anſwer the " Intent of your Petition.

AND laſtly, upon the Bill about Occaſional Conformity in that Queen's Reign, fearing ſome Reſtraint might be put upon them in Reſpect of the Exerciſe of their Religion, they recommended their Caſe to the Parliament as follows:

The CASE of the DUTCH and FRENCH Proteſtant Churches in England.

THAT they were firſt eſtabliſhed in the Reign of King Edward VI. and afterwards in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and have now continued in this Nation upwards of 150 Years.

THAT thoſe Churches were, and are compoſed of ſuch Perſons, who themſelves and their Anceſtors fled out of the Netherlands, France, and other Parts beyond the Seas, from Popiſh Perſecution.

THAT they have introduced and eſtabliſhed a great Number of very profitable Woollen, Silk, and other Manufacturies in this Realm, particularly at LONDON, Canterbury, Norwich, Colcheſter, &c.

THAT they have always continued very Dutiful and Loyal to the Crown and Government.

THAT in the Act of Uniformity, made in the 13th and 14th Years of King Charles II. there is Proviſion made, and a Clauſe inſerted in Favour of the ſaid Churches.

THAT King James I. of glorious Memory, in 1614, ſent his Royal Letters to the National Synod of the French Churches, expreſſing his great Care and Concern for their Peace and Preſervation.

THAT in 1618, his ſaid Majeſty ſent one of his Biſhops, and four of the moſt famous Doctors of the Church of England, to the Synod of Dort, who acted with the whole Body, and ſigned all their Acts.

THAT the Convocation of the Clergy of England, were pleaſed to take Notice of the Proteſtant Churches Abroad, in ſeveral Addreſſes made to the Crown, and to declare how much they were concerned for the Preſervation of their Religion.

THAT in the Prayers appointed for the publick Faſts, and upon ſolemn Occaſions, the Reformed Churches abroad are therein recommended to GOD.

THAT the Crown of England hath, on the Behalf of the Proteſtants, been Guarrantee in ſeveral Treaties of Peace between the Proteſtants and Papiſts.

THAT many of the Engliſh Nobility and Gentry, when abroad, do repair to the Proteſtant Churches and Aſſemblies, and there receive the Sacrament.

THAT the Papiſts abroad will revile the Proteſtants, that they are not of the ſame Religion with the Church of England, altho' they have a Liturgy and Form of Prayer.

THAT the Dutch and French Churches maintain (by voluntary Contribution) great Numbers of poor People; which they will be diſabled to do, in Caſe Perſons of honourable Offices and Imployments are prohibited, under Penalties, to reſort to their Churches, and thereby the Poor (which are numerous) will become a great Charge to the ſeveral Pariſhes.

THAT by the Bill depending concerning Occaſional Conformity, the ſaid Churches will be greatly prejudiced in their eſtabliſhed Privileges, and their Members may become liable to ſeveral Penalties and Forfeitures, unleſs a Clauſe be inſerted for their Exemption.

THAT not only they will be prejudiced, but alſo all the Reformed Churches abroad: For one of the Advantages of thoſe Churches is, being looked upon by their Enemies as Churches which are of the ſame Communion with the Church of England; but when it is known that thoſe which are in this Kingdom in any Place of Honour or Truſt, incur Penalties for being preſent in the Aſſemblies where their Rites and Diſcipline are followed, they will become contemptible and deſpicable to their Adverſaries; and their Members will be deprived of the Comfort and Encouragement they find in their glorying of being of the ſame Religion with the Church of England; and that the Queen's moſt Excellent Majeſty is Defender of their Faith, and of their Intereſt in the World.

Wherefore it is humbly hoped, that a Proviſo or Clauſe may be added for their Exemption in the ſaid Bill concerning Occaſional Conformity, they performing their Exerciſes in the Dutch and French Languages.

CHAP. XII.

The MILITARY GOVERNMENT of the CITY of LONDON.

HAVING thus treated of the Eccleſiaſtical and Temporal, or Civil Government of the City, there is yet a third State of Government diſtinct from the former, viz. the Military State, ſerving for the Defence thereof, in Caſe of any hoſtile Invaſion, or Oppreſſion. And the City is able to furniſh out conſiderable Forces for its own Defence, and the Service of the Prince, upon Occaſion; and hath her Members carefully diſciplined in Martial Arts, and Feats of War for that Purpoſe.

In a Time of War, under King Stephen, the City muſtered 20,000 Horſe, and 60,000 Foot, of their own Men.

In the Year of our Lord 1532, (not to look farther back) being the 23d of King Henry VIII. there was a General Muſter in LONDON; wherein were taken the Names of all Men within the City and Liberties, from the Age of 16 unto 60, the Harneſſes, and all Sorts of Weapons for War being taken Account of. They then drew out only ſuch able Men as had White Harneſſes; and cauſed them all to appear in white Coats and Breeches, and White Caps and Feathers. And becauſe Notice was given that the King would ſee them muſtered, they all prepared to appear as ſplendid as they could; and, to that End, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, Sheriff, and all that had been Sheriffs, had White Harneſſes, and over them Coats of Black Velvet, with the Arms of the City embroidered thereon; each one a great Gold Chain, and well mounted on Horſes with rich Trappings; on their Heads Velvet Caps, and in their Hands Battle-axes gilt. Each Alderman and the Recorder had four Halbertiers in White Silk, or Buff-Coats, waiting on them, with their Halberts gilt. And the Lord Mayor had ſixteen tall Men apparelled in White Sattin Doublets, Caps and Feathers, Chains of Gold, and other gorgeous Attire, with long gilt Halberts, following his Lordſhip at a Diſtance. But next to him he had four Footmen attired in White Sattin; then two Pages cloathed in Crimſon Velvet, and Cloth of Gold, riding on fine Horſes richly furniſhed, one of them carrying the Lord Mayor's Helmet, and the other his Pole-axe, both richly gilt. Moſt of the Citizens, of any Quality or Office, were clad in White Sattin, or White Silk Coats, with Chains of Gold; and ſome had rich Jewels.

What was the Number of Men then in Arms, is not recorded; but that they may be gueſſed at by what follows. They muſtered in Mile-end Fields, and, before Nine o' Clock in the Morning, they began to march, entering at Aldgate in great Order; and ſome marched up to Weſtminſter, where the King and moſt of the Courtiers were placed to view them, as they paſſed by. Thence they marched about St. James's Park, ſo through Holborn, and thence to Leaden-hall, where they disbanded and went home. And this was not done till Five o' Clock in the Afternoon; which was eight Hours March.

In the Year 1585, were great Muſters in LONDON, that ſo the City might be in a Readineſs upon any Invaſion of the Spaniards, who threatened terribly, by the Preparation they were making; and upon any Inſurrections at Home, by Reaſon of the Queen of Scots. And large Contributions were raiſed upon the Citizens for this Charge: But they in Black-fryars, St. Martin's, White-fryars, and other exempt Places, refuſed to be taxed, and would not yield to pay any Thing, unleſs they received Direction from the Lord Treaſurer, and other Lords of the Privy Council for the Doing thereof. So that Sir Thomas Pullyſon, Lord Mayor, deſired the ſaid Lord Treaſurer to give his Orders to thoſe Places.

And in April and May this Year, the Queen being at Greenwich, the City Militia, compleatly armed, muſtered before her ſix or eight Days, laying intrenched about Blackheath, to the Number of 4 or 5000 Men. Then all the Companies and Myſteries of LONDON ſent out their Numbers. And here follows a Scheme of what Numbers of Men each Company ſent forth, and the Charge of Arms, Wages and Victuals.

UPON the dangerous Threatening from the Conſpiracies by Papiſts carrying on, in September 1586, the City thought of putting themſelves into a Poſture of Defence: And there was for that End drawn up (to be conſidered by the Lords) a Book, intituled, The Manner of ordering the Citizens of LONDON, to the ſafe Keeping and Defence of that her Majeſty's City, againſt the traiterous and ſudden Attempts of all Conſpirators and Traitors whatſoever. Which, being ſo remarkable a Matter, and ſhewing the Vigilancy and Courage of the City at this Time, may deſerve to be here exemplified.

1. THAT everie Alderman of his Warde, aſſiſted with the graveſt Inhabitants there, doe gather and regiſter the Names of all ſuche Howſehowlders, their Children and Servants, as dwell in the ſame Warde, who openlye profeſſe and ſhewe themſelves to love the Goſpel, and hate Poperie, being of ſufficient Wealthe to mayneteyne their owne State, and able to beare Armes.

2. Item, That of the moſt apte of thoſe Cittizens, there be choſen out for ſpecial Leaders (everye of them to lead xxv of his Neighbours dwelling next him.) And that there be ſo manye of thoſe Leaders, as after that Rate ſhal be ſufficient to leade iiij. or v. thouſand Men, or more or leſſe, as ſhall be thought meete: And that the ſayd Nomber of Men be choſen out of thoſe, to be regiſtred as aforeſayd.

3. Item, That of the moſt valiante, grave and wiſe amonge the ſaid regiſtred Cittizens, there be choſen Captaynes of Bandes, everie of them under ſeverall Enſignes; to receave tenne of the ſayd ſpecial Leaders, with everie of them his xxv Men. So ſhall there be two hundred and fifty Men under an Enſigne: And that they have their ſeveral Enſignes accordinglye.

4. Item, That of the ſaid Cittizens there be choſen to ſerve under everie ſuche of their Captaynes, their ſeveral Lyvetenantes, Enſigne-Bearers and Sergeantes, with a fit Drumſter: And that there be aſſigned a Place certen to everye Captayen, whereunto he ſhall reſorte upon any ſudden Alarme. And that he know all his Officers, and thoſe petty Leaders ſpeciallie appointed, to bring his Men thither to him. And likewiſe that thoſe Officers and Leaders know the ſame Place, and their Captayne.

5. Item, That after ſuche Election and Appointment as aforeſaid, everie one applye himſelf to learne and know, howe to exerciſe their ſeveral Offices and Romes, as apperteyneth. And that everie Houſeholder have readie in his Howſe all Weapons and Furniture neceſſarie for himſelf and thoſe of his Howſe, to be appointed in this Service.

6. Item, That the Watches for the Nighte be kepte according to the former Order. But the ſame to be of more ſufficient Perſons; and that ſpeciallie, there be at everie Gate a Watche from ix o'Clock at Nighte, till vj in the Morning for the Wynter, and from x to v in the Sommer; and that the Portculliſes at everie Gate be ſurveyed and made readie to uſe at any ſuddeyn, yf any Nede be.

7. Item, That inaſmuche as that Syde of the Cytie, next the Ryver lyeth open, That therefore from the Tower to Brydewell, they do appointe all alongeſt a ſufficient Nomber of Watche Howſes. And therein nightlie to be good Watches to come and contynue at the Gate: And that all pryvate Kayes, Alleys and Wharfes during the Howers aforeſayd, be cloſe ſhut upp in.

8. Item, That at thendes of Streetes be prepared Chaynes, as ſhal be thought needfull, for interrupting thentrie and Paſſage of anye Adverſarie.

9. Item, For quenching of ſudden Fiers, yt will be neceſſarie to have a thowſand truſtie Perſons to carrie Leather Bucketts and Ladders. And that to them of the graver Cyttyzens there be appointed Leaders, to lead them as nede may be, by Hundreds and Fiftyes, for to be redie to releve anye fiered Place. And that likewiſe, under like Leading, there be appointed v hundred Pyoners with Mattockes and Shovells, ready to make Trenches and Rampyers at all Occaſions.

10. Item, That the whole ordring and diſpoſing of the Premiſſes be at the Direction of the Lord Maior, Sheriffes and Aldermen, and ſuche grave Perſons as they ſhall take and chuſe of the ſayde Cyttye to aſſiſte them; and ſo from Tyme to Tyme, and not otherwiſe.

11. Item, Upon anye Alarme to be geven, everye Captayne forthwith to repayr to his appointed Place, and all his Officers, and the ſeveral Leaders, with the xxv Men a peece, forthwith to reſorte to that Place to their ſpecial appointed Captaine. And two of thoſe Captaines being placed next to the Lord Maior's Howſe for the Time being, with bothe their Bandes, to repayre ymmediately to his Lordſhip. And to either of the Sheriffes in like Sorte, to repayre one ſeverall Captayne, with his ſeverall Bande. And all other Captaines and their Companies to remayne at their appointed Places, till they receave Order from the Maior. And that in ſuch Caſe one general Watch Word be geven to everye Soldyer: And that they have ſome ſpecial Token whereby everye of them may be knowen one to another.

12. Item, That upon any Shewe or Suſpicion of any dangerous Attempte diſcryed or perceyved by any of the Watches, that then forthwith they ſhall geve Knewledge thereof to the Lord Maior and Sheriffe, and to everye Alderman or his Deputie, in the ſeveral Wardes; that they maye call ſo manye to Armes, as in Caſe by them ſhal be thought convenient and ſufficient.

13. Item, That upon anye Alarme or Warning geven, everie Inhabitant prepare and have readie in his Howſe a Lanthorne with Lighte readye to hange out, when by Authoritie it ſhal be ſo commanded.

14. Item, That ſtraighte Order be taken, that if any Alarme be proclaymed, that no Maſters of Howſes goe noe further than the Streete Dores of their Howſes; and that noe Servante or other (upon grevous Payne) do then iſſue into the Streete, except the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, Captaynes, Leaders, Officers and Soldiers aforeſayd, and their Buketiers and Pyoners, and their Leaders; and ſuch others as ſhall be eſpeciallie called or commanded by the Lord Mayor or Sheriffs.

15. Item,

15. Item, That one of the Watche Howſes at the Water Syde be nere the Engine there that ſerveth the Cittie with Water: For that above all other is moſt preſent, and abundant to that Purpoſe, and moſt readye for quenching Fyer, and therefore is ſpeciallie to be garded.

16. Item, That ſuch Recuſants as have greate Houſes and Lodginges within the Liberties of the Citie; and likewiſe all dangerous and ſuſpicious Perſons to the State, may, by her Majeſty's Authoritie be removed from lodging within the Walles of the Citie, (or Suburbs, yf that may be) for thoſe Howſes are moſt like to harbour and cover dangerous Perſons to be nearer and readyer to make ſudden Invaſion upon the Cittie.

17. Item, That ſome ſpecial Conſideration may be had of all Strangers, having Howſes in the Cittie, and which are not of the Frenche or Dutche Churche. And that ſome Order may be ſett downe, eſpeciallie concerning them, as in this Time and State ſhall be found requiſite.

Again, in the Beginning of the Year 1588, the Queen hearing and ſeeing ſuch vaſt Preparations making by Spain, and concluding theſe Clouds to be intended to be diſcharged upon her, reſolved, in the beſt Manner ſhe could, to put her City into a Condition of Defence. So the Lords of the Council ordered Edmund York, a brave Commander in the Low Countries, to give his Directions how the City ſhould be ordered for this Purpoſe: But ſtill the Lord Mayor was to be the chief Governor of all this military Preparation in the City, in making Colonels and Captains, and other Officers; which was ſuch a Truſt by the Queen impoſed upon the Lord Mayor, as York ſaid, Such an Honour, and ſuch a gracious Favour never happened to any People, neither was the like heretofore done unto them. York's Diſcourſe follows, intitled,

An ORDER to be obſerved for the Marſhalling of the City of LONDON into a true Form of Diſcipline, to be uſed in Time of Occaſion.

Conſidering the auncient Government of the Citie hath always depended on the Lord Mayor and his Brethren, which Courſe hath always been found ſo pleaſinge to our Prynces, and liking to the People, as to alter were inconvenient; if therefore your Lordſhips ſhall pleaſe rather to give them ſome Authoritie (by your Directions) Marſhall, then to derogate anye Thinge from them, it will animate them in their Accounts and Expences; which Authoritie ſhall contynew till her Majeſtie and your Lordſhips ſhall pleaſe to the contrarie. Yet conſideringe theire Profeſſions and Nurritures not to performe the Actions, therefore to joyne unto the Mayor's Authoritie ſome Man of Judgment, Experience and Fidelitie, it were convenient, as Marſhall; by whoſe Adviſe, with the Mayor's Conſent, all Cauſes Marſhall be directed, then a Sargeant, Mayor and a Provoſt, the one to marſhall the Men, and the other to do Juſtice; wherein the French truly ſaith, That three Things mayneteyne the Warres, which is, Bon Chief, Bonne Burſe, and Bon Burreau, meaning Juſtice; all which may be performed in the Citie: For the Chief, or Marſhall, being appointed by your Lordſhips, there is no doubt of his Sufficiencie, upon whom the greateſt Weight of this Burthren muſt lye; the Purſe conſidering the Charges ſo ſmall, it will ſoon be performed; the Juſtice by your Lordſhips Directions, and the Provoſt's Diligence ſhall be duly adminiſtred; ſo as all Things ſhall proceede to the Glorie of God, to the Honour of her Majeſtie, and to the Benefit of the People. Object they canne not, for that the Charges is defrayed by the Entertainment onely of three Perſons, ſo as no doubt of the Allowance in Reſpect of Charges. For infringing the Liberties and Privileges your Lordſhips do give them more than ever they had. For Reputation and Truſt, her Majeſtie and your Lordſhips do putt Armes, and the managing of Armes into their Hands; ſo as no doubt, but of a moſt gracious Acceptance and Acknowledgement of ſo an eſpeciall gracious Favour and Truſt; and may juſtlye ſaye themſelves to be the happieſt People of the World, in having ſo gracious a Prynce, who contrarie to the Policie of all other Prynces (who diſarme their Subjects) doth put Armes, and managing of Armes into their Hands: O bleſſed Prynce and happy People. By how much therefore are we more bound to her Majeſtie then any other Subjects of the World to their Prynces, by as muche as our Lives, our Wives, our Children, our Goods, our Freedome and Poſteritie is worth.

The Marſhall, Sargeant, Mayor and Provoſt being by your Lordſhips appointed, the firſt Thinge they are to doe, (after the receiving of theire Commiſſions from your Lordſhips) is to make a Review General of all the Armes and Munition within the Citie and Suburbes, and thereof to enforme your Lordſhips.

The next is, to make a Review of all the Garners of Corne, as well in private Houſes as in common Magaſyns, not onelye of Corn but of all Manner of Victuals, and thereof enforme your Lordſhips.

Theise Reviewes made by the Mayor, his Brethren, and Marſhall, (to whome all Proviſion of Munition, Armes, and Victuall belongeth) then ſhall they warne everie common Marchant of Corne to have ſuch a Quantitie, and to everie common Baker and Brewer; to have allwayes in a Readynes ſuch a Quantitie of Corne as he uttereth in fortie Dayes, over and above his ordynarie uttering; and ſo ſhall geve like Order of Proviſion to eurye ſeverall Perſon that lives and gaynes by ſelling Victualls; for as the Merchant of Armes and Munitions, the Baker, the Brewer, the Butcher, and all other Trades have a contynuall getting, ſo lett them be bound to have an Overplus always in their Handes, to ſerve her Majeſtie, and to ſuſteyne themſelves uppon any Occaſion of Warres, Dearth, or the Suſtenaunce of diſtreſſed Frendes.

This done, the Citie ſhall be divided into ſo many Quarters as there is fifteene hundreth Men: In everie Quarter ſhal be choſen one Collonell, a Man there dwellinge, and a Citizen of Honeſtie, Reputation and Wealth, elected by the Maior and Marſhall (after your Lordſhips Allowance,) who ſhall haue under hym tenne Captaynes, all Dwellers in that Quarter; and everie Captayne ſhall have a hundreth and fiftie Men, all Inhabitants in that Quarter, which ſhal be either the Houſholder, his Sonne, or his contynewed Servant. Provided that the Collonells be none of the Aldermen, becauſe they are already choſen to the Civill Government.

The Regiment being all Dwellers togeather in one Quarter, doth make the Collonells Governement eaſye, and makes the Aſſemblye of the Souldiers ſpeedie.

The Collonells choſen, and the Quarters devidided, then ſhall everie Collonell chooſe ſix Captaynes, which ſhal be allowed by the Maior and Marſhall, (after they have enformed your Lordſhips) being all Dwellers in the Collonells Quarter.

After the Captaynes choſen, the Lord Maior, his Brethren, and the Marſhall, ſhall deliver ſo many Houſholders, theire Sons or contynewed Servaunts, as will furniſh eurye Captayne 150 Men with Wepons thus devided, that is, eight Halberdiers, berdiers, 60 armed Pikes, 30 Musketiers, and 50 Harquebuſiers, and the two odd Men ſhal be for the Sargeants. For to put into theſe trayned Companyes and Archers, or a ſuperfluous Number of ſhort Weapons, it were inconvenient, for that the Multitude uppon any Alarum, will come furniſhed with thoſe Weapons; and therefore to teach that by Art which Nature geves, were Tyme loſt; and to charge a People with that which is not wanting, were frivolous.

THE Companies furniſhed, as is aforeſaide, then the Sargeant Major, or his Corporalls ſhall viſitt every Man's particular Furniture in their private Howſes; aſwell to ſee the Goodnes of their Armes, as to ſee it in order, leaſt they ſhould diſhonour their Commanders; for not performing that which apperteynes to Men of Judgment and Souldiers to doe.

AFTER your Armes provided and reviewed, a Muſter-General of all the Armye ſhall be held in ſome convenient Place; at which Muſters ſhall onely be the Shew of the Men with theire Armes without any Exerciſe, which ſhall be held in the Preſence of ſuch Honorable Perſons as your Lordſhip ſhall appoynt, ioyned with the Maior, his Brethren, the Marſhall, and Sargeant Major: At which Tyme the Marſhall, Sargeant Major and Provoſt ſhal be preſented unto all the Collonells, Captaynes and Souldiers, theire Commiſſions publiſhed.

WHEN your Collonells, Captaynes and Souldiers know this, then everie Night at 6 of the Clock ſhall five Companyes of ſeverall Regiments putt themſelves in Armes. And ſo with theire Enſignes ſhall marche unto the Exchange, and there ſhall ſtand in Battell a quarter of an Houre: To whom the Marſhall ſhall come with the Word, which he ſhall take from the Major, who ſhall haue it from her Majeſtie (if ſhe be neare LONDON) which the Marſhall ſhall deliver to the Sargeant Maior with great Duetie and Reſpect, who ſhall geve it unto the Capteyne of the Watche, and to everie Officer that is in Garde that Night: After the Word delivered, a Prayer for her Majeſtie's Eſtate and Kingdome, the Lord's Prayer ſhal be ſayed. Then the Sergeant Major ſhall putt five Billets in a Hatt, which the Captaynes that are in Garde drawe for their Places of Gardinge; ſo as he that draweth the Billett of the Exchange, ſhall that Night be Capteyne of the Watche: He that drawes the Billett of the Bridge, ſhall gard it, and St. Catheryn's Gate by the Tower: He that draws Aldgate ſhall garde it, and Buſshopſgate: He that drawes Creplegate ſhall garde it, and Alderſgate: He that drawes Newgate ſhall gard it, and Ludgate: As for Moregate, it is no Avenew, but a Paſſage, as the Poſterne and the Graye-fryers are. Why I devide the Companyes into two Gardes, is, for not over-toylinge the Souldiers, being Men of Trade: For by this Meanes they garde but once in 20 Dayes, which elſe would come everie tenne Days.

WHEN the Companyes are thus entred into Garde, the chief Cordegard for the Captayne of the Watche, ſhal be kept at the Exchange, by his whole Companye, and the other Cordegards at the Gates by halfe Companyes. Upon everie Cordegard ſhall contynuallye ſtand in Armes five or ſixe Souldiers, who ſhall be relieved every halfe Hour. And conſidering the contynuall ſtyrringe and travayle that is in LONDON, it ſhall not be convenient to ſhut the Gates tyll Tenne of the Clocke or after: and then at Eleven to put forth the Centinells, which ought to be placed uppon the Walles, or as near as may be: and ſo ſhall ſtand centeneld till 3 in the Morninge, and ſhal be changed eurye Houre; and eurye half Houre they ſhall make the Round, which is the ſureſt Garde in the World: But conſidering how impoſſible it is to place the Centinells, by Reaſon of the diſorderlye and dangerous Buildinge of Howſes which are upon the Walles: By which Means I haue knowne many Townes ſurprized and greate Intelligence paſſed to their utter Ruine; for where your Centenells canne not come to the Walles, nor your Round haue free Paſſage, it is impoſſible of any certen Safetie, which Manner of Buildinge ought carefully to be looked unto, eſpecially in any Place of Importance, as the Tower, or ſuch like Forts are: Therefore muſt the Centenells be placed in the Streetes, who, after they are once poſted, ſhall not ſuffer anye to paſſe without the Worde, which Manner of ſevere Gardinge ſhal be but uſed tyll the Companyes have once all gone over: Whiche is onelye to teache them to knowe how to ſtande upon theire Gardes, duringe which Tyme onelye the Gates ſhal be ſhutt, and the Keyes delivered to the Maior, and no Man to come in but by Commandement from your Lordſhips, in as good and orderly Forme, as in anye Towne of Warre.

AND the Orders and Ordynances for the Diſciplyne ſhal be publiſhed by the Provoſt, that in offending no Man pleade Ignorance hereafter. At this Muſter a perfect Rolle ſhal be made by ſome ſufficient Perſon, of all Perſons and Weapons in theire Army, which ſhal be delivered to your Lordſhips, and regiſtred in the Guildehall. And at these Muſters everie Collonell ſhall bringe his Stampe and Marke particular, with the which every Corſlett, Pike, Harquebuze, Muskett, Murrion, and Furniture of his Regiment ſhal be marked, to avoyde this unmeete lendinge of Armes; whereby they neglect theire Duties to her Majeſtie, diſhonour their Commanders, and utterly deceave themſelves. I remember when I was firſt brought up in Piemount, in the Countie of Briſſacks Regiment of the old Bandes, we had our particular Calibre of Harquebuze to our Regiment, both for that one Bullet ſhould ſerve all the Harquebuzes of our Regiment, as for that our Collonell would not be deceaved of his Armes: Of which Worde of Calibre, came firſt this unapt Terme wee uſe to call a Harquebuze a Calliver, which is the Height of the Bullett and not the Piece. Before the Battle of Mounguntur, the Prynces of the Religion cauſed 7000 Harquebuzes to be made all of one Calibre, which were called Harquebuſe du Calibre de Monſeur le Prince: So as I think ſome Man not underſtandinge Frenche, brought hither the Name of the Height of the Bullett for the Piece, which Word of Calibre, is yet contynued with our good Cannoniers.

AFTER the Muſters paſſed, the Mayor, the Marſhall, and the Sargeant Major ſhall ride round about the Citie, to ſee all the Wayes or Avenues that comes unto the Towne, to looke what Places are moſt fit to place Gardes upon, what Streetes are moſt convenient to make Places of Armes, or Randeuous general, for Aſſembly uppon any Alarum in; which I think wil be moſt neceſſarie in two Places, that is, one Place of Aſſemblye ſhall be at Leadenhall, which anſwers Algate, Buſhopſgate, the Bridge, and directly into LONDON: The other ſhall be without Newgate, which anſwers Holbourne, Smithfield, Ludgate, and directly into LONDON; to everie one of theſe Randeuouſes ſhall, uppon any Alarum, aſſemble five Companies of five particular Regyments: The other five Companies of everie one of thoſe five Regyments ſhal be thus employed, that is, one Companye ſhall goe to Algate, another Companye to Buſhopſgate, and the other three Companyes of the Regyment ſhall ſtand in Armes in theire Quarter, tyll the Marſhall or Sargeant Mayor ſhall command them; ſo as upon any ſodeyne Alarum, your Souldiers knowe whither and how to aſſemble without Confuſion, fuſion, which is a Matter of greate Weight. By this Means your Lordſhips have two Companyes at evrye Gate, 20 Companyes at either of the Places of Aſſembly, and one Companye in everye Streete of Ymportance in LONDON.

When your Collonells and Captaynes knowe whither to aſſemble uppon any Alarum (without Confuſion) he ſhal be ſhewed by the Marſhall or Sargeant Major: Then ſhall the Sargeant Major and his Corporalls have five Companyes everie Day abroade in ſome private Place to teache them to weare theire Furnitures, and to uſe theire Armes, ſo that in 20 Dayes the whole 15,000 will knowe how to weare their Furniture, and carrye theire Armes (which Number I eſteeme eaſye to be leavyed of the beſt and honeſteſt Sort) which is as muche as for this Tyme is requiſite.

As you have here the Forme how theſe Companyes ſhall enter into Garde, how to divide themſelves to their Gardes, how to place there Centenells, and how to make the Ground; (which Form ſhall every Night be obſerved, and when the Drums ſounde to put the Companyes that enter into Garde in Armes.) Then ſhall the Companyes that are in Garde, put themſelves in Armes, and ſo ſtand upon theire Cordegard, tyll the Companye that enters into Garde, be poſſeſſed of the Cordegard. Then ſhall they depart, and march orderlye to Garde home theire Colours: All which is onelye done to teache your Captaynes, Officers and Souldiers, to know how to enter into Garde, how to place their Gardes, and how to ſtand upon their Gardes; which is the moſt aſſuredſt Thinge that ever was deviſed for the Safetie of anye Citie, Towne, Place, Camp or Army, which in the open Field without anye Covert in the World, of Wall, Trenche or Carriage will be as orderlye and Safely performed, as in any Towne, if the Maiſter of the Campe have Judgment in placinge of the Armye, and the Sargeant Major Diſcretion in placing of the Gardes.

By this Meanes there is everie Night at 6 of the Clock, 10 Enſignes marching in LONDON, which is drawne out of ſeveral Regiments, and feverall Quarters, to make the greater Stirring and greater Showe: And becauſe Townes Men love Eaſe and Profit, therefore there ſhall onely remayne all Night 25 at every Gate, and 50 at the Exchange; ſo as they enter into Garde but once everie 20 Dayes, and ſtand upon theire Garde but once in 60 Dayes, which is Nothinge.

When the Gates and chief Bodie of the Watche by the Exchange is poſſeſſed (for that you muſt never carry out your Souldiers, but that you are firſt poſſeſſed of your Gardes for the Aſſurance of your Retreate;) then ſhall the Sargeant Major have five Companyes every Daye abroade, and the Sargeant Major of every Regiment ſhall have one Company abroad, to teach them to uſe theire Armes, to march, aſſayle, defend: So by this Meanes there is everie Day in Armes 9 particular Companies, with theire Sarjeant Major, and five Companyes with the Sargeant Major General, and ten Companyes entring into Garde, and in Garde, ſo as there is 24 Companyes everie Daye in Armes.

Once everie 20 Days the Marſhall and the Sargeant Major ſhall have one whole Regyment abroad, to teache them to marche, and range them in Battell, and to uſe theire Armes, and once every two Monthes, the Major, the Marſhall, the Sargeant Major and the Provoſt ſhall have all the Armye abroade for two Dayes, (ſaving the Companyes in Garde, and thoſe that muſt enter the next Dayes into Garde; for you muſt never leave the Gardes ungarded or unprovided of thoſe that ſhall ſuſteyne the Gardes,) whereby they ſhall know how to Marche, how to garde in Camp, how to range in Battell, and how to lodge in the Feeld, for on their Marches it were good they ſhould learne how to marche in Covert and Champion; how to attack a Skyrmiſe; how to range ſoddenly in Battel, and how to aſſayle and defend: So as if her Majeſtie upon any ſodden Occaſion ſhall pleaſe to uſe this Army, they are at all Tymes readie to marche; and know how to marche, how to lodge, how to garde, and how to uſe theire Armes, and (which is more) knowe how to command, and how to obey. Which is onlye brought unto them by her Majeſties great Care, and eſpeciall Favour and Truſt, with your Lordſhips Directions, and not any wayes to their Charges; for they onlye are charged with the Enterteynment of three Perſons. Synce therefore it pleaſeth her Majeſtie and your Lordſhip to laye upon this eſpecial Honour and Truſt, as to make the Major Lieſtenant in makinge Collonells, Capteyns, Officers and Souldiers, being all Citizens, is ſuche an Honour, ſuch a Truſt, and ſuch a gracious Favour, as never happened unto anye People, neither was the like ever heretofore done unto them, or anye other by anye Prince.

As your Lordſhips have provided for the marſhalling of the Citie, ſo to prevent any Inconvenience that by anye forren Enemy may happen, which no wayes canne annoye LONDON (in Reſpect of the Multitude of People therein) but by ſome ſoodeyne Attempt, which may breede verye greate Amazement and Fright, with moſt aſſured Daunger. If therefore to prevent anye ſoodeyne Furye, either of Horſe or Foot, your Lordſhips ſhall pleaſe to give Directions, that everie End of evererie Suburbe, there be thirty or forty emptye Pipes, which ſhall be kept in ſome Place tyll Occaſion ſerve, and then to place them in ſuch Manner (as I will hereafter ſhew unto your Lordſhip, when it ſhall pleaſe you to command) ſo as 100 ſhall withſtand anye 2000, till further Ayde ſhal be in a Readyneſs.

My Meaning is not that theſe Forces continually uſe this trayning and gardinge, but onlye duringe ſuche Tyme as your Lordſhips ſhall beſt like, and that they be once well and orderly marſhalled, and reduced into good Form, being divided into Regyments and Companyes; that everie Capteyne maye know his Collonell, every Souldier know his Capteyne and Officer, whither to aſſemble upon anye Alarum, and how to aſſemble, to avoyde that dangerous Miſchief of aſſembling in Confuſion, and to put them in true Order and Forme of the Uſe of theire Armes, and in their Gardes. So as if at any Inſtant hereafter, her Majeſty and your Lordſhips ſhall pleaſe to uſe their Service, they are at all Tymes readie without further Direction or Trouble, to performe theire Duties, and to obey her Majeſty and your Lordſhips Commandements, havinge onlye a Sargeant and two Corporalls to everye Regiment; which three ſhall bring the whole Regyment in Order, being Souldiers of Worth; without the which it is impoſſible to reduce them into any Order; ſo as by this Meanes her Majeſty ſhall continually have xxx Souldyers of Worth in a Readynes.

Thus, to obey your Honours Commandments, I ſhew my Wants, which I will rather do, then diſobey you, knowing your honourable Vertues ſuch, and your Care of me ſo favourable, as that which is ſuperfluous, you will forget; and that which is wanting, you will with your honourable Favour help: Being therefore neither Scholler nor Learned, I hope your Honour will beare with my Imperfections; but fearing you ſhould trye the Opinion of a great Man of Warre, who ſayed, a Souldier ought never to be without his Sword or his Penne in his Hand, meaning in Tyme of Warre to followe thoſe Accounts, and in

Tyme

Tyme of Peace, or idle Tyme which I have, (whereof I am aſhamed) to obſerve that which by Experience he hath learned. Wherein I finde my ſelf farre unable to accompliſhe your Lordſhips Expectation, yet rather then to neglect my Dutie, I bewraye my Ignorance. Thus, beſeeching God to geve you long Life, and greate Honour, I commit your Lordſhips to his Tuition, and my ſelf to your Direction, this Day of March 1588.

Your Honours moſt humbly to doe you Service,

EDMUND YORKE.

Now as to the Strength of the City, in Regard to the Forces it is able to furniſh out, Howel writes thus, in his Londonopolis; That ſo long ago as 1293, the City ſet forth a Fleet of ninety-five Ships. And another Record ſhewed, That in King Stephen's Reign the City raiſed 60,000 Foot, and 20,000 Horſe for Land-Service. And that in his Time (which was Anno 1657,) LONDON had 12,000 Trained Bands, Citizens perpetually in a Readineſs, and excellently armed. He eſteemed the Circumference of the City to be about twelve Miles, and the Number of Inhabitants therein to be ten hundred thouſand; and allowing but the tenth Part able to bear Arms, the City and Suburbs might raiſe an hundred and fifty thouſand fighting Men. Of which the third Part were enough for a brave Army, viz. 50,000 Men, according to the modern Diſcipline of War.

IN the Year 1614, there was a great Muſter of the City, the King having appointed after Harveſt a general Muſter all England over; which evey Shire performed with much Cheerfulneſs. Then did the Citizens alſo ſhew themſelves very forward, as well in making new Proviſions of Ammunition, as in practiſing all Points of War and Military Diſcipline. And for the well managing of this Muſter, the Lord Mayor and Commonalty appointed twenty Captains to be ſelected of the moſt active and able Citizens; and unto every of them he allotted 300 Shot and Pikes, viz. 6000 in all for that Time, being for the moſt Part Houſholders, bravely furniſhed. Theſe twenty Captains performed all Things with ſuch Expedition, Bounty and Bravery, as, except in the Year 88, the like was never before. And ſuch of them as were not formerly of the Martial Society, and Practice of the Artillery-Garden, were then admitted.

BUT to come to Muſters of a later Date, and to ſhew how the Military Government is now eſtabliſhed.

ABOUT the Middle of April, in the Year 1660, the Time of the Reſtauration of King Charles II. there were in LONDON, and the Liberties thereof, that were muſtered in Hide Park, Six Regiments of Trained Bands.

Six Regiments of Auxiliaries. And One Regiment of Horſe.

The 12 Regiments of Foot conſiſted of 80 Companies, and in each Company not leſs than 250 Men. By which Account the whole Number did amount unto 18,000 Men.

THE Regiment of Horſe conſiſted of ſix Troops, and each Troop of 100 Men.

THIS Force of the City's being judged to be highly uſeful for the Defence, not only of the City, but Safety of the King's Perſon, his Majeſty was pleaſed ſome few Months after to ſend to the City a Commiſſion of Lieutenancy, appointing ſeveral Perſons to act as his Lieutenants in LONDON; giving them the ſame Power that the Lord Lieutenants of the Counties in England have. And, in Purſuance of that Commiſſion, the Regiments were new ſettled.

The MODEL thus:

THERE were ſix Regiments of Trained Bands commanded by ſix eminent Citizens, who were all Knights; and their Lieutenant-Colonels were alſo Knights.

THERE were alſo ſix Regiments of Auxiliaries. And in theſe 12 Regiments there were 20,000 Men.

THERE were alſo at that Time liſted two Regiments of Horſe, each conſiſting of five Troops, and in each Troop 80 Men; which makes the two Regiments to contain 800 Men.

WHEN this Model was ſettled, they were all drawn into Hide Park, where his Majeſty did view them, with divers Perſons of Quality, and innumerable other Spectators, to the general Satisfaction. And beſides theſe, in Caſe of Neceſſity, it is certain, that in LONDON, and within the Liberties, there may in a few Days be raiſed at the leaſt 40,000 Men.

THE Colonels of the ſix Regiments of the City in the Reign of the late King William, of happy Memory, were Sir Robert Clayton, Sir Tho. Stamp, Sir Will. Aſhurſt, Sir Tho. Lane, Sir Tho. Abney, and Sir Owen Buckingham. But upon the late Queen's Commiſſion of Lieutenancy, opened at Guild-Hall, July 9, 1702, (where was a very great Appearance of the Commiſſioners) they choſe Sir William Pritchard, Sir John Fleet, Sir Francis Child, Sir Samuel Daſkwood, Sir Thomas Cook, and Sir Charles Duncomb.

May 23, 1707, the Queen appointed a new Lieutenancy for the City. The Commiſſion of which Lieutenancy was opened June the 27th following; and then were choſen Colonels, Sir Will. Aſhurſt, Sir Owen Buckingham, Sir Jeffrey Jeffreys, Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Sir Charles Thorold, and Sir Samuel Stainer. Nicholas Baker, Clerk; Capt. Joſeph Hyde, Muſter-maſter.

The following is a LIST of the NAMES of the Commiſſioners of LIEUTENANCY for the City of LONDON, by Commiſſion under the Great Seal, dated Feb. 17, 1727.

THE Six Regiments of the City Trained Bands are thus commanded:

THE Green, by Sir William Humfreys, Knt. Baronet and Alderman, Colonel.

THE Yellow, by Sir Charles Peers, Knt. and Alderman, Colonel.

THE Orange, by Sir Gerard Conyers, Knight and Alderman, Colonel.

THE White, by Sir John Eyles, Baronet and Alderman, Colonel.

THE Red, by Sir Robert Baylis, Knt. and Alderman, Colonel.

THE Blue, by Sir William Billers, Knt. and Alderman, Colonel.

IN every one of theſe Regiments are eight Companies, conſiſting of 150 Men each, making in the Whole 7200 Men.

MOREOVER, one Regiment of Trained Bands in Southwark, conſiſting of 1500 Men.

TWO Regiments within the Tower-Hamlets, conſiſting of 3000 Men.

THE Holborn Regiment, conſiſting of 2000 Men.

AND Weſtminſter Regiment, alſo of 2000 Men.

Of the ARTILLERY COMPANY.

BESIDES the afore-mentioned Trained Bands and Auxiliary Men, there is the Artillery Company, which is a Nurſery for Soldiers, and hath been ſo near 100 Years. It is a Kind of Independent Company, conſiſting of ſeven or eight hundred Voluntiers. Their Place, or Field of Exerciſe, formerly was in the Old Artillery Ground, now in Finsbury Fields, adjoyning to the upper Quarters of Moorfields on the Eaſt, and Bunhill on the Weſt: It is a large Piece of Ground, containing about ten Acres, incloſed with a high Brick Wall.

KING Charles II. liſted himſelf into this Company when he was Prince of Wales, about the Year 1636, and ſo did his Royal Brother James, Duke of York, at the ſame Time: Who (after the Reſtoration) took upon him the Command thereof, and owned it as his Company.

UNDER the principal Commander, there is a Leader, who exerciſes this Company every Tueſday Fortnight; and the other Tueſdays the Exerciſe is performed by the ſeveral Members of the Company who are to command.

MANY of the Nobility of the Land are of this Company, as alſo the Lord Mayor, and moſt of the Aldermen: And all the Commanders and Commiſſion Officers of the Trained Bands, and Auxiliaries before-mentioned, do exerciſe Arms in this Ground, the whole Company conſiſting of 600 Men, or thereabouts.

The Government of this COMPANY, and the principal MEMBERS.

1. A Leader.
2. Two Lieutenants.
3. Two Enſigns.
4. Two Serjeants.
5. A Provoſt Marſhal.
6. Three Gentlemen of Arms.

THEY have a Court Martial, which conſiſts of a Preſident and Vice-Preſident; a Treaſurer, and twenty-four Members of the Company.

UPON the ſecond Tueſday in February, at a General Rendezvous every Year, the Officers are elected.

April 27, 1708, a General Court of the Artillery Company met in the Artillery Garden, to chooſe a Preſident, Vice-Preſident, Treaſurer, and twenty-four Aſſiſtants, for the Year following; where the Election for the three former fell by a great Majority on Sir William Aſhurſt for Preſident, Sir Owen Buckingham, Vice-Preſident, and Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Treaſurer, in the room of Sir John Fleet, Sir Jeffrey Jeffreys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Robert Child. And for Aſſiſtants, chiefly thoſe in preſent Commiſſion in the City.

OF the Original of this Artillery Company, we have this Relation: That Anno 1585, the City having been greatly troubled and charged with continual Muſters and Training of Soldies, certain gallant, active and forward Citizens, having had Experience both at Home and Abroad, voluntarily exerciſed themſelves, and trained up others, for the ready Uſe of War. So as within two Years there were almoſt three hundred Merchants, and others of like Quality, very ſufficient and skilful to train and teach common Soldiers the Management of their Pieces, Pikes and Halberts, to March, Counter-march and Ring. Which ſaid Merchants, for their own Perfecting in Military Affairs and Diſcipline, met every Thurſday in the Year, practiſing all uſual Points of War, and every Man, by Turns, bore orderly Office, from the Corporal to the Captain. Some of them, in the dangerous Year 1588, had Charge of Men in the great Camp at Tilbury, and were generally called Captains of the Artillery Garden, the Place where they exerciſed. Theſe took Precedent from the Merchants of Antwerp.

BUT this uſeful Artillery-Exerciſe became afterwards diſcontinued for a great while, till the Year 1610, when by Means of Philip Hudſon, Lieutenant of the ſaid Company, Tho' Laverock, Rob. Hughs, Sam. Arthois, Rob. Greenhurſt, and divers other Gentlemen and Citizens of LONDON, this brave Exerciſe was renewed and ſet on Foot again. Theſe Gentlemen aſſociated in the ſaid Garden, having ſufficient Warrant and Toleration granted them by the Lords of King James's Privy Council, to whom they became humble Suitors in the Beginning, for Prevention of all future Miſconſtructions of their honeſt Intent and Actions there. And having duly conſidered the Neceſſity of the Knowledge of Arms in ſo populous a Place, and the Inconveniencies that happened to Antwerp, and other their late populous and flouriſhing Neighbour-Cities, principally by Reaſon of their Neglect of that moſt noble Exerciſe of Arms, and Martial Diſcipline, in Times of Wealth and Peace. Theſe therefore now undertook, at their own private and particular Charge, a Weekly Exerciſe of Arms after the modern and beſt Faſhion and Inſtruction then in Uſe. And, moreover, for their better Eaſe and Conveniency, they erected a ſtrong and well furniſhed Armory in the ſaid Ground, in which were Arms of ſeveral Sorts, and of ſuch extraordinary Beauty, Faſhion and Goodneſs for Service, as were hardly to be matched elſewhere.

CAPT. Edward Panton was their firſt Captain, and Nicholas Spering, a Merchant of the City, their firſt elected Antient, or Enſign-Bearer. And as thoſe formerly of the Old Artillery-Garden did good Service many Ways in their own Perſons, and in teaching others, ſo theſe laſt were likely to do more particular Service, being Men of more Skill, and their Practce greater.

THE Company was now grown great, and in good Eſtimation: And unto the Artillery Garden, at the uſual Times of their Military Exerciſe, many Country Gentlemen of all Shires reſorted, and diligently obſerved their Exerciſes, which they ſaw were excellent. And being returned home to their own Countries, they practiſed and uſed the ſame with their Trained Bands. Prince Charles came hither ſometimes to ſee them.

AT this Time young Scholars, and other Youth, from the Age of nine to ten, unto ſeventeen, of their own Warlike Diſpoſitions, voluntarily choſe themſelves Captains and Lieutenants out of their own Companies; and, with Sound of Drum, and other Enſigns ſpread, marched into the Field, upon Play-days and Holidays; and practiſed all Points of War which they had ſeen their Elders teach; having got themſelves Pikes and Pieces fit for their handling.

Note, Every County of England hath a Lord Lieutenant, but the City of LONDON is a Lieutenancy of itſelf, not ſubject to any Lord Lieutenant, but the Office executed by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and other principal Members of the City, authorized by a peculiar Commiſſion from the King.

BEFORE we quite leave the City of LONDON, it is fit we rectify one Miſtake which happen'd in Book IV. Page 83, that Sheet being printed off on the 24th of June, the Day the Sheriffs are elected, we have placed George Mertin, Sen. Eſq; and William Pate, Eſq; as the two Sherriffs of LONDON and Middleſex for the preſent Year; but thoſe Gentlemen, after their Election, having diſqualified themſelves, as ſome others did afterwards, either by ſwearing off, or paying their Fines, the Sheriffs that now ſerve are Micajah Perry, Eſq; Alderman of Aldgate Ward, and John Salter, Eſq; Alderman of Cornhill Ward.

The End of the FOURTH BOOK.

City of WESTMINSTER.

BOOK V.

Containing an Account of the Antiquities, Bounds, Liberties, Pariſhes, Churches, Royal Palaces, Courts of Juſtice, Great Houſes, and other eminent Places of that City; together with the antient Monaſtery and Church of St. Peter.

CHAP. I.

A Deſcription of WESTMINSTER.

WESTMINSTER had its Name from the Minſter, that is, the Monaſtery, ſituated Weſtward; as there was another Minſter not far from the Tower of LONDON, Eaſtward of the City, called Eaſtminſter. It was antiently but a Town, and ſo it was called about the Beginning of King Henry VIII. There was an Act of Parliament in 37 H. VIII. to authorize that King, by Letters Patents or Proclamations, to make Weſtminſter an Honour, with ſome other Places of the Kings, viz. Kyngſton upon Hull, St. Oſyth's in Eſſex, and Donnington in Berks.

In former Times there was not a continued Street of Buildings between LONDON and Weſtminſter as now there is, but much vacant Space of Fields and open Grounds between; then the Way was often bad to paſs, and the Sheriffs of LONDON have ſometimes taken Care for the Reparation thereof. Thus did King John ſend to them to that Purpoſe, Preceptum fuit Vicecomitibus LONDON, ad reparandam viam a LONDON ad Weſtmonaſterium.

The Highway of the Strand, from Temple-bar to the Savoy, ſeems to have been paved about Ann. 1385, in the Reign of King Richard II. in whoſe eighth Year Toll was granted to be taken for that Purpoſe. And again, the like was granted in 24 H. VI. Anno 1446, but the Paving went went no farther than to the Savoy, till towards the latter Part of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, Sir Robert Cecil, Knt. building a fair Houſe ſomewhat beyond the Savoy, at Ivy-bridge, levelled and paved the Highway near adjoining.

Now touching this City of Weſtminſter, to begin at Temple-bar, on the Right Hand or North Side, and ſo paſs up Weſt through a back Lane or Street, wherein do ſtand three Inns of Chancery; the firſt called Clement's-Inn, becauſe it ſtands near St. Clement's Church, but near to a fair Fountain, at the Time of its firſt Building called Clement's-well; the ſecond is New-Inn, ſo called, as more lately made than the other an Inn of Chancery for Students out of a common Hoſtery, the Sign of our Lady. This was about the Beginning of the Reign of Henry VII. and not ſo late as ſome have ſuppoſed, viz. at the pulling down of Strand-Inn, in the Reign of King Edward VI. for Sir Thomas More, ſome Time Lord Chancellor, was a Student in this New-Inn, and went from thence to Lincoln's-Inn.

THIS Street ſtretches up to Drury-lane, ſo called for that there was a Houſe belonging to the Family of the Drury's. This Lane turns Northward toward St. Giles's in the Fields. From the South End of this Lane in the High Street were divers Hoſteries and Houſes for Gentlemen, among which was Cecil-Houſe, ſome Time belonging to the Parſon of St. Martin's in the Fields, and which, by Compoſition, came to Sir Thomas Palmer, Knt. in the Reign of Edward IV. who began to build the ſame of Brick and Timber, very large and ſpacious; but it was afterwards enlarged and beautified by Sir William Cecil, Baron of Burghley, Lord High Treaſurer and great Counſellor of State.

FROM thence was a continued Building of good Houſes, as far as the Earl of Bedford's Houſe, near Ivy-bridge, over-againſt Ruſſel-Houſe, afterwards the Lord Burghley's, and ſo on the North Side to a Lane that turned to the Pariſh Church of St. Martin's in the Fields. Then was the Chapel of our Lady, called the Pew, with a Houſe wherein ſome Time were diſtracted and lunatick People, of what Antiquity Stow ſays he has not read, nor of the Suppreſſion; but it was ſaid, that ſome Time a King of England not liking ſuch Kind of People to remain ſo near his Palace, cauſed them to be removed farther off to Bethlem without Biſhopſgate of LONDON, and to that Hoſpital the ſaid Houſe of Charing-croſs remained in Stow's Time.

AMONG other Things of this Chapel Stow remarks that on the 17th of February, in the Year of CHRIST 1452, by Negligence of a Scholar appointed by his School-Maſter to put forth the Lights of this Chapel, the Image of our Lady, richly decked with Jewels, precious Stones, Pearls and Rings, (more than any Jeweller could judge the Price) was, with all this Apparel, Ornaments and Chapel itſelf burnt; (but Stow, in his ſecond Edition chooſes to place this Chapel elſewhere, viz. near St. Stephen's.)

THEN is the Meuſe, ſo called of the King's Faulcons there kept by the King's Faulconer, which of old Time was an Officer of great Account, as appears by a Record of Richard II. in the firſt Year of his Reign. For, Sir Simon Burley, Knt. was made Conſtable for the Caſtles of Windſor, Wigmore and Guilford, and of the Manor of Kennington, and alſo Maſter of the King's Faulcons at his Meuſe, near Charing-croſs by Weſtminſter. Of later Time King Henry VIII. having good Stabling there for Horſes, in the Year 1534, the 28th of his Reign, it was burned with many great Horſes and much Hay therein; but it was again re-edified in the Reigns of King Edward VI. and Queen Mary. And this was the fartheſt Building Weſt on the North Side of that high Street.

ON the South Side of which Street, in the Liberties of Weſtminſter (beginning at Ivy-bridge) firſt was Durham-Houſe, built by Thomas de Hatfield, Biſhop of Durham, who was made Biſhop of that See in the Year 1345, and ſat Biſhop there 36 Years. Durham-Houſe.

Manerium, ſive Hoſpitium Epiſcopale Londoniæ cum Capella & Cameris, ſumptuoſiſſime conſtruxit. This Biſhop died Anno 1381, May the 8th, at his Manor near LONDON, called Alford, probably Aldford, that Place near Stratford le Bow, now called Oldford.

THUS writes Sir Henry Spelman of this Durham-Houſe, that Biſhop Tonſtal, about 26 Henry VIII. conveyed the ſame to the King in Fee; and that King, in Recompence thereof, granted to the See of Durham, Coldharbrough, and other Houſes in LONDON. And after, King Edward VI. about the ſecond Year of his Reign, granted Durham-Houſe to the Lady Elizabeth, his Siſter, for Life, or until ſhe was otherwiſe advanced. Afterwards the Biſhoprick of Durham, by a private Act, 7 Edward VI. was diſſolved, and all the Poſſeſſions thereof given to King Edward VI. who ſhortly after conveyed in Fee the ſaid Biſhop's late Houſe at Coldharborough, and other Houſes in LONDON, to Francis Earl of Shrewsbury and his Heirs. Soon after, 2 Mar. ca. 3. the Statute of 7 Edw. VI. for diſſolving that Biſhoprick was repealed; but, by a Proviſo, the Manſion-Houſe of Coldharborough, &c. ſo granted to the ſaid Earl, was confirmed to him; and the Biſhop by that Act prayed a Recompence from the Queen, at his Charge. Whereupon Queen Mary, about the 5th or 6th Year of her Reign, granted to the ſaid Biſhop of Durham her Reverſion of Durham-Place in Succeſſion. Which coming into Poſſeſſion by the Death of Queen Elizabeth, the Biſhop of Durham that then was, (afterward Archbiſhop of York, viz. Toby Matthew) entered into and enjoyed the ſame in the Right of his See, by Opinion of the Lord Chief Juſtices of the Land, referred to by the King, being oppoſed by Sir Walter Raleigh; and ſo did the Biſhop of Durham that ſucceeded him.

Juſting Feaſt at Durham-Houſe.

AMONGST Matters memorable concerning this Houſe, this is one: In the Year of CHRIST 1546, the 32d of Henry VIII. on May Day, a great and triumphant Juſting was holden at Weſtminſter, which had been formerly proclaimed in France, Flanders, Scotland and Spain, for all Comers that would undertake the Challengers of England, which were Sir John Dudley, Sir Thomas Seymour, Sir Thomas Ponings, and Sir George Carew, Knts. and Anthony Kingſton, and Richard Cromwell, Eſqs; all which came into the Liſts that Day richly apparelled, and their Horſes trapped all in white Velvet; there came againſt them the ſaid Day 46 Defendants or Undertakers, viz. the Earl of Surrey foremoſt, Lord William Howard, Lord Clinton, and Lord Cromwell, Son and Heir to Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Eſſex, and Chamberlain of England, with other; and that Day, after the Juſts were performed, the Challengers rode to this Durham-Houſe, where they kept open Houſhold, and feaſted the King and Queen, with her Ladies, and all the Court.

THE ſecond Day Anthony Kingſton and Richard Cromwell were made Knights there.

THE third Day of May the ſaid Challengers did Tournay on Horſeback with Swords, and againſt them came 49 Defendants; Sir John Dudley and the Earl of Surrey running firſt, which at the firſt Courſe loſt their Gauntlets; and that Day

Day Sir Richard Cromwell overthrew Mr. Palmer and his Horſe in the Field, to the great Honour of the Challengers.

The fifth of May the Challengers fought on Foot at the Barriers, and againſt them came 50 Defendants, which fought valiantly; but Sir Richard Cromwell overthrew that Day at the Barriers Mr. Culpepper in the Field, and the ſixth Day the Challengers broke up their Houſhold.

In this Time of their Houſe-keeping they had not only feaſted the King, Queen, Ladies, and all the Court, as is afore ſhewed; but alſo they cheered all the Knights and Burgeſſes of the Common-Houſe in Parliament, and entertained the Mayor of LONDON, with the Aldermen and their Wives, at a Dinner, &c. The King gave to every of the ſaid Challengers, and their Heirs for ever, in Reward of their valiant Activity, 100 Marks, and a Houſe to dwell in of yearly Revenue, out of the Lands pertaining to the Hoſpital of St. John of Jeruſalem.

Now to ſpeak ſomewhat of latter Time concerning this Durham-Houſe; it was well known and obſerved, that the outward Part belonging thereto, and ſtanding North from the Houſes, was but a low Row of Stables, old, ruinous, ready to fall, and very unſightly, in ſo publick a Paſſage to the Court and to Weſtminſter. Upon which Conſideration, or ſome more ſpecial Reſpect in the Mind of the Right Honourable Robert Earl of Salisbury, Lord High Treaſurer of England, it pleaſed him to take ſuch Order in the Matter, that (at his own Coſts and Charges) that deformed Row of Stabling was quite altered by the Erection of a very goodly and beautiful Building inſtead thereof, and in the very ſame Place. Some Shape of the Modelling, though not in all Reſpects alike, was after the Faſhion of the Royal-Exchange in LONDON, with Cellars underneath, a Walk fairly paved about it, and Rows of Shops above, as alſo one beneath, anſwerable in Manner to the other, and intended for the like Trades and Myſteries.

This Work was not long in taking down, nor in the Erection again; for the firſt Stone was laid on the 10th Day of June, 1608, and alſo was fully finiſhed in the next enſuing November after. Alſo on Tueſday, being the 10th Day of April following, divers of the upper Shops were adorned in rich and beautiful Manner, with Wares moſt curious to pleaſe the Eye; ſo ordered againſt his Majeſty's coming thither, to give a Name to ſo good a Building. On the Day following it pleaſed his Highneſs, with the Queen, Prince, the Duke of York, and the Lady Elizabeth, to come thither, attended on by many great Lords and Ladies. It then pleaſed his moſt excellent Majeſty, becauſe the Work wanted a Name before, to entitle it Britain's Burſe, or Buſs.

Next beyond this Durham-Houſe was another great Houſe, ſome Time belonging to the Biſhop of Norwich, and was his LONDON Lodging, which afterwards pertained to the Archbiſhop of York, on this Occaſion. In the Year 1529, when Cardinal Wolſey, Archbiſhop of York, was indicted in the Premunire, whereby King Henry VIII. was entitled to his Goods and Poſſeſſions, he alſo ſeized into his Hands the ſaid Archbiſhop's Houſe, commonly called York Place, and changed the Name thereof into Whitehall.

This Houſe was called antiently the Archbiſhop of York's Inn by Weſtminſter. Concerning which this may be noted, Anno 1399, October 19, In Capella Hoſpitii Archiep. Ebor. juxta Weſtmonaſt. In the firſt Parliament of Henry IV. Tho. Sameſten Epus Karlelen, formerly Monk of Weſtminſter, perſonally appearing, performed and did Obedience and Fealty to the Lord Archbiſhop of York, his Metropolitan, and to his Succeſſors. Preſent then and there, the Abbot of Weſtminſter, Tho. Walworth, Rich. Conyngsbey, Canon of York, &c.

The Archbiſhops of York being diſpoſſeſſed, and having no Houſe of Repair about LONDON, Queen Mary gave to Nicholas Heth, then Archbiſhop of York, and to his Succeſſors, Suffolk-Houſe in Southwark, built by Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, as is ſhewed elſewhere.

This Houſe the ſaid Archbiſhop ſold, and bought the aforeſaid Houſe, of old Time belonging to the Biſhops of Norwich, which (of this laſt Purchaſe) was called York-Houſe. The Lord Chancellors, or Lord Keepers of the Great Seal of England, have been ſometimes lodged there.

While this Houſe belonged to the Biſhops of Norwich, there was a Preſentment made in the King's-Bench againſt one of the Biſhops, 21 Edward IV. for Annoyance of a Way inter Hoſpitium Epiſcopi Norvienſis & Dunelmenſis in Parochia Sti. Martini in campis: Whereupon there was a Caſe.

This Place of the Biſhop of Norwich, among all or the greateſt Part of the Poſſeſſions of the See of Norwich, about 27 Henry VIII. were conveyed to the King by a private Act of Parliament, in Recompence of the Union of the Monaſtery of St. Bennet de Hulmo, and the Poſſeſſions thereof, to that Biſhoprick, being of far better Value than the antient Lands of the Biſhoprick of Norwich aſſured to the King, as is recited in the Statute of 32 Henry VIII. whereby the Biſhop of Norwich is made Collector of the Tenths of his Dioceſe, as other Biſhops were, being freed thereof by the ſaid private Statute of 27 Henry VIII.

The Biſhop of Norwich was limited by the ſaid private Act, to enjoy perpetually in Succeſſion, a Prebend in the Free Chapel of St. Stephen's at Weſtminſter, and the Houſe thereto belonging in Chanon-row, whereof then was Incumbent one Knight: The Houſe was ſaid to be leaſed by the Biſhop in Edward VI's Time, for ſome ſmall Rent, to Sir John Thinn, Knt. for many Years enduring.

This York-Houſe remained to the Archbiſhop of York in Archbiſhop Sandys's Time: But then, in the Year 1588, it was by ſome earneſtly endeavoured to be gotten from the See; whereat that Archbiſhop made a Complaint in a ſecret Letter to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley; "That it was moſt unreaſonably requeſted of "him. He could not, he ſaid, in Conſcience "yield to that Requeſt, and remained reſolute; "entreating that Lord to be a Means to the "Queen, that he might refuſe his yielding here-"in, without Offence to her; ſhewing, that her "Speech to him heretofore, about the ſame "Thing, had been ſuch, that he was fully per-"ſuaded ſhe would not deal againſt him in it.

This York-Place or Houſe, was occupied or enjoyed in King James I's Time, by Thomas Viſcount Brackly, Lord Elleſmere, Lord Chancellor, and by Francis Viſcount St. Alban's, ſome Time Lord Chancellor after him. In 2 Jac. I. an Exchange of it was made by Toby Matthew, Archbiſhop of York, who was ſeized in Fee-Simple, in Right of his Archbiſhoprick, of the ſaid Manſion-Houſe, and of divers other Meſſuages and Tenements ſituate within the Pariſh of St. Martin in the Fields. Theſe he granted to King James I. and the ſaid King granted to the ſaid Archbiſhop the Manor or Lordſhip of Brighton, with the Lands in Melborn, the Manor of Acomb, or Acom, and Holgate; and all the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments in Acomb, Holgate, Clifton, Skelton, Wigginton, Botham, &c. the Manor of Santon, and Lands in Eaſtrop, &c. and the Manor or Grange of Beckhay, with all Rights, Members, Members, and Appurtenances thereof; which would be more profitable and commodious unto the Archbiſhop and his Succeſſors, than the ſaid Manſion-Houſe. For that the Archbiſhop, nor his Predeceſſors, had not, for many Years paſt, the Uſe of the ſaid Manſion-Houſe; and the other Premiſes yielded them very little Profit. And farther, the ſaid Manſion-Houſe was like to be burdenſome, and a Charge to the ſaid Archbiſhop and his Succeſſors: Which was the Reaſon uſed in the Act of Parliament for the ſaid Exchange, viz. That it would be for the Benefit of the Archbiſhop and his Succeſſors; and therefore it was of the King's Grace and Favour to the ſaid Church and See, to make this Conveyance and Aſſurance.

THEN was there an Hoſpital of St. Mary Rouncival, by Charing-Croſs, (a Cell to the Priory and Convent of Rouncival in Navar, in Pampelione Dioceſe) where a Fraternity was founded in the 15th of Edward IV.

NEAR unto this Hoſpital was an Hermitage, with a Chapel of St. Catharine, over-againſt Charing-Croſs; which Croſs, built of Stone, was of old Time a fair Piece of Work, there made by Commandment of Edward I. in the 21ſt Year of his Reign, in Memory of Eleanor, his deceaſed Queen, as is before declared.

St. James's. WEST from this Croſs ſtood ſome Time an Hoſpital of St. James, conſiſting of two Hides of Land, with the Appurtenances, in the Pariſh of St. Margaret in Weſtminſter, and founded by the Citizens of LONDON, before the Time of any Man's Memory, for fourteen Siſters, Maidens, that were leprous, living chaſtly and honeſtly in Divine Service.

AFTERWARDS, divers Citizens of LONDON gave 56*l.* Rent thereunto, and then were adjoined eight Brethren to miniſter Divine Service there.

AFTER this alſo, ſundry devout Men of LONDON gave to this Hoſpital four Hides of Land in the Field of Weſtminſter; and in Hendon, Calcote, and Hampſtead, eight Acres of Land and Wood, &c. King Edward I. confirm'd thoſe Gifts, and granted a Fair to be kept on the Eve of St. James, the Day, the Morrow, and four Days following, in the 18th of his Reign.

THIS Hoſpital was ſurrender'd to Henry VIII. the 23d of his Reign; the Siſters being compounded with, were allowed Penſions for the Term of their Lives, and the King built there a goodly Manor, annexing thereunto a Park, cloſed with a Wall of Brick, now called St. James's Park, ſerving indifferently to the ſaid Manor, and to the Manor or Palace of Whitehall.

AND this Place now, ſince the burning down of Whitehall, is become the Royal Palace of our Kings, and their chief Reſidence.

SOME Diſtance hence, between St. James's and Hide-Park, was kept May Fair, yearly, where young People did uſe to reſort; and by the Temptations they met with here, did commit much Sin and Diſorder. Here they ſpent their Time and Money in Drunkenneſs, Fornication, Gaming, and Lewdneſs; whereby were occaſioned oftentimes Quarrels, Tumults, and Shedding of Blood. Whereupon, in the Month of November, 1708, the Grand Jury of Weſtminſter, for the Body of the County of Middleſex, made a Preſentment to this Import, "That being ſenſible of their Duty, to make Preſentment of "ſuch Matters and Things as were publick E"normities and Inconveniencies; and being en"couraged by the Example of the worthy Ma"giſtracy of the City of LONDON, in their "late Proceedings againſt Bartholomew-Fair, "did preſent, as a publick Nuſance and Incon"venience, the yearly riotous and tumultuous "Aſſembly in a Place called Brook-Field, in the "Pariſh of St. Martin in the Fields, in this "County, called May-Fair. In which Place "many looſe, idle, and diſorderly Perſons, did "rendezvous, and draw and allure young Per"ſons, Servants, and others, to meet there, to "game, and commit Lewdneſs, and diſorderly "Practices, to the great Corruption and De"bauchery of their Virtue and Morals; and in "which many and great Riots, Tumults, Breach"es of the Peace, open and notorious Lewdneſs, "and Murder it ſelf had been committed; and "were like to be committed again, if not pre"vented by ſome wiſe and prudent Method: "And for that the ſaid Fair being ſo near her "Majeſty's Palaces, and might be very danger"ous to her Majeſty's Royal Perſon and Go"vernment, by ſeditious and unreaſonable Men; "taking thereby Occaſion to execute their moſt "wicked and treaſonable Deſigns. Wherefore, "and becauſe the ſaid Fair, as it was then uſed, "both actually was, and had ſo fatal a Tenden"cy to the Corruption of her Majeſty's Subjects, "Violation of her Peace, and the Danger of her "Perſon; they humbly conceived it worthy the "Care of thoſe in Power and Authority to rec"tify the ſame.

SOUTH from Charing-Croſs, on the right Hand, in Stow's Time, were divers handſome Houſes, then lately built before the Park: Then a large Tilt-yard for Noblemen and others, to exerciſe themſelves in Juſting, Turneying, and Fighting at the Barriers.

ON the left Hand from Charing-Croſs were alſo divers Tenements then lately built, till you come to a large Plat of Ground encloſed with Brick, and called Scotland, where great Buildings have been for Receipt of the Kings of Scotland, and other Eſtates of that Country. For Margaret, Queen of Scots, and Siſter to King Henry VIII. had her Abiding there, when ſhe came into England, after the Death of her Husband, as the King of Scotland had in former Times, when they came to the Parliament of England.

THIS was firſt given by King Edgar, a Saxon King, (who reigned about the Year 959,) to Keneth, or Kynald, King of Scotland; from whom he had received Homage for that Kingdom, and enjoined the ſaid King Keneth, once every Year to repair unto him in England, for the making of Laws, which in thoſe Days was done by the Noblemen and Peers. To which End the ſaid King Edgar gave that King this Piece of Ground, lying beſide the new Palace of Weſtminſter, for his Reſidence when he came up; upon which this Keneth built an Houſe: Which by him and his Poſterity was enjoyed until the Reign of King Henry II. in whoſe Time, upon the Rebellion of William, then King of Scots, it was reſumed into the King of England's Hands. After that, the Houſe went to Decay; but the Ground where it ſtood is called Scotland-Yard to this Day.

THEN is the ſaid Whitehall, ſome Time belonging to Hubert de Burgh, Earl of Kent, and Juſticiar of England, who gave it to the Black Fryars of Oldborne, or Holbourn, although he left one Daughter, who was married to an Anceſtor of the preſent Sir John Guiſe of Elmore and Rendcomb in Gloceſterſhire; which Family, upon this Marriage, changed their Coat of Arms for that of the Burgh's, viz. Seven Lozenges variet Azure and Argent, in a Field Gules; and have born the ſame ever ſince. King Henry VIII. ordained this Place to be called an Honour, and built there a ſumptuous Gallery, and a beautiful Gatehouſe, croſs the High Street to St. James's Park. In the uppermoſt Rooms of this Gatehouſe is the Paper-Office, or Paper-Houſe, wherein Papers of State, Embaſſy, &c. are repoſited.

IN

In this Gallery, the Princes, with their Nobility, uſed to ſtand or ſit, and at Windows, to behold all triumphant Juſtings, and other Military Exerciſings.

Beyond this Gallery, on the left Hand, is the Garden or Orchard belonging to the ſaid Whitehall.

There is an Inſtrument among the Records at Weſtminſter, 21 Hen. VIII. for the Recovery of the Place (called then York Place) for the King, omnibus, &c. wherein it is ſpecified, " That " Thomas More, Lord Chancellor, the Duke of " Norfolk, Treaſurer of England, William Fitz " Williams, Knight of the Garter, Treaſurer of " the King's Houſhold, and Chancellor of the " Dutchy of Lancaſter; Robert Norwich, one " of the King's Serjeants at Law, and Chriſto- " pher Hales, Attorney-General, in Hilary " Term, before the Juſtices at Weſtminſter, re- " covered to them and their Heirs, for the Uſe " of our Lord the King, Henry VIII. againſt the " moſt Reverend Father in Christ Thomas " Cardinal of York, one Meſſuage, two Gardens, " and three Acres of Land, with the Appurte- " nances, ſituate in the Village or Town of Weſt- " minſter, in the County of Middleſex; which " are commonly called York Place. And they " delivered, demiſed, and by that preſent Char- " ter confirmed to the King the ſaid Meſſuage, " &c. Dated the 7th of February, 21 H. 8.

And in the ſaid King's Donation to the ſaid Cardinal, (after the Forfeiture of all his Goods and Chattels) in the ſaid Month of February, to enjoy the Archbiſhoprick of York, and all the Benefits thereof, it is excepted in the Inſtrument, to the King and his Heirs, and reſerved all that Meſſuage, two Gardens, and three Acres of Land, with the Appurtenances, called York Place.

King Henry VIII. was the firſt King of England that removed his Dwelling from the Old Palace nigh unto the Monaſtery of St. Peter's Weſtminſter unto Whitehall; and that becauſe that old Palace was then, and had been long Time before, in utter Ruin and Decay, as it is expreſſed in an Act of Parliament; and that the King had lately obtained this Whitehall, which is ſtiled in the ſame Act, " One great Manſion- " Place and Houſe, being Parcel of the Poſſeſ- " ſions of the Archbiſhoprick of York, ſituate " in the Town of Weſtminſter, not much diſtant " from the ſame antient Palace: And that he " had lately, upon the Soil of the ſaid Manſion- " Place and Houſe, and upon the Ground there- " unto belonging, moſt ſumptuouſly and curi- " ouſly built and edified many and diſtinct, beau- " tiful, coſtly and pleaſant Lodgings, Buildings " and Manſions, for his Grace's ſingular Plea- " ſure, Comfort and Commodity, to the Ho- " nour of his Highneſs and his Realm: And " thereunto adjoining had made a Park, walled " and environed with Brick and Stone, and " there deviſed and ordained many and ſingular " commodious Things, Pleaſures, and other Ne- " ceſſaries, apt and convenient to appertain to ſo " noble a Prince, for his Paſtime and Solace.

By the ſaid Act, this Place, with the ſaid Buildings and Park, are taken into the Bounds of the King's Palace, and to enjoy all the Privileges thereof. And the whole Limits of the Royal Palace are there ſet out and deſcribed, namely, " That all the ſaid Soil, Ground, Man- " ſion, and Buildings, and the Park, with all " the Things, Commodities, and Pleaſures, " thereupon built and deviſed; and alſo the Soil " of the antient Palace, ſhould be from thence- " forth the King's whole Palace at Weſtminſter; " and ſo be taken, deemed, and reputed, and " to be called and named, The King's Palace at " Weſtminſter for ever. And that the ſaid Pa- " lace ſhould extend, and be as well within the " Soil and Places before limited and appointed, " as alſo in all the Street or Way leading from " Charing-Croſs unto the Sanctuary-Gate at " Weſtminſter; and to all the Houſes, Build- " ings, Lands and Tenements on both Sides of " the ſame Street or Way from the ſaid Croſs " unto Weſtminſter-hall, ſituate, lying, and be- " ing between the Water of the Thames on the " Eaſt Part, and the ſaid Park-Wall on the Weſt " Part; and ſo forth, through all the Soil, Pre- " cinct, and Limits of the ſaid old Palace: And " all the ſaid Palace to enjoy the like Prerога- " tives, Liberties, Pre-eminences, Juriſdictions, " and Privileges, as to the King's antient Pa- " lace within this Realm have at any Time here- " tofore belonged, uſed, or of Right apper- " tained.

Here is the magnificent Building called the Banqueting-houſe; which, before King James I. came hither, was old, rotten, and but ſlightly built; that therefore the King cauſed to be pulled down, Anno 1606, and new built very ſtrong and ſtately, every Way larger than the former; and fair Lodgings were new built there and increaſed.

James th'eldeſt Sonne and Heir to Lord D' Aubeney, was baptyſed the 26th Day of April 1612, in the King's Majeſty's Chapell Royall of Whitehall. The King was his Godfather: And the Officers of the Veſtry had to their Fees xl s.

The Marriage of the two excellent Princes, Frederick, Prince Palatyne, and Lady Elizabeth, ſole Daughter to King James, was ſolemnized on Shrove-Sunday, being the 14th of February 1612, in his Majeſty's Chapell Royall at Whitehall, by the Right Reverend Father in God George Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and aſſiſted by the Biſhop of Bathe and Welles, Dean of the Chapell, who preached at the Marriage the ſame Day. The Gentlemen of the Chapell, and the Officers of the Veſtry had given them for their Fees, an hundred Pounds in Jacobuſes; whereof the Serjeant of the Veſtry had four Markes, the two Yeomen had between them ſeven Jacobuſes, and the Grome had thirtie Shillings.

Anne, firſt Daughter to Robert Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, was baptyſed in the King's Majeſty's Chapell Royal at Whitehall, the 23d of February 1612. For her Godmothers ſhe had Queen Anne, and th'elder Counteſs of Derby, Wyfe to the Lord Chancellor; and for her Godfather, Gylbert Earl of Shrewsbury. The Officers of the Veſtry had for their Fees xl s.

The Marriage of the two noble Perſons, Robert Earl of Somerſet, and the Lady Frances Howard, was ſolemnyſed on St. Stephen's Day, being Sunday the 26th of December 1613, by the Right Reverend Father in God, James Biſhop of Bathe and Welles, in his Majeſty's Chapell Royall at Whitehall: And her Father gave her in Marriage, and the Deane of Weſtminſter preached at the Marriage. The Officers of the Veſtry had for their Fees xl s.

Henry, Sonne to the Lord D'Aubeney, was baptyſed the 2d Day of April 1616, in the King's Royall Chapell at Whitehall. Queen Anne was his Godmother, and Prince Charles and the Earl of Marr his Godfathers. The Gentlemen of the Chapell had for their Fees 5 l. and the Officers of the Veſtry had for their Fees xl s.

James, Sonne and Heire to Sir John Edgerton, was baptyſed on Tueſday the firſt of October at Durham-houſe. His Godfathers were K. James, and Thomas Lord Elſmer, Lord Chancellor, Grandfather to the Child, and the Lady Marchioneſs of Northampton Godmother. The Officers of his Majeſty's Veſtry had for a Gratuity the Sum of xxix s.

James,

James, Sonne to the Lord Viſcount Harrington, was baptyſed the 11th Day of March, by the Biſhop of Wincheſter in the Chapell at Whitehall, Anno 1616. His Godfathers were the King's Majeſty, and the Earl of Suſſex, his Godmother the Counteſs of Bedford. The Officers of the Veſtry had their uſual Fees.

James, Sonne to Sir William Feilding, was baptyſed by the Right Reverend Father in God the Biſhop of Wincheſter, on Thurſday the 13th of March, in the ſaid Chapell. His Godfathers were the King's Majeſty and the Earl of Buckingham; and the Counteſs of Bedford was Godmother. The Officers of the Veſtry had the uſual Fees.

Charles, ſecond Sonne to Sir James Ramſey, Lord Viſcount Haddington, was baptyſed on Sunday the 17th of May, Anno 1618, in his Majeſty's Chapell Royall at Whitehall, by the Reverend Father in God the Lord Byſhop of Durham. The Goſſips were, Prince Charles, George Marquis of Buckingham, and the Counteſs of Hertford. Payd for Fees for the ſame Service to the Gentlemen of the Chapell 5 l. and to the Officers of the Veſtry 2 l.

ON the Right Hand were divers Tennis-Courts, Bowling-Allies, and a Cock-Pit, all built by K. Henry VIII. (out of certain old Tenements) and then one other arched Gate, with a Way over it, thwarting the Street, from the King's Gardens to the ſaid Park.

Whitehall now lies in Ruins, having been burnt down by Accident in the Reign of King William. For Want of rebuilding the ſame, Mr. Weedon, an ingenious Gentleman, ſuppoſed the City of Weſtminſter was damnified above 30 l. per Cent. in their Houſes, Trades, and Properties. The ſame Gentleman therefore, of his own good Will, to the reforming that moſt noble Palace, for the Honour and Benefit of the Queen, and her Kingdom, propoſed in Print, That an Act of Parliament ſhould be made for the Rebuilding of it, after the Manner of a Model or Plan of Inigo Jones, the famous Engliſh Architect in King James I's Time, who built the Banqueting-Houſe at Whitehall, and left a Plan for the whole Palace to be built ſuitable to it, that being reputed one of the beſt Buildings in Europe; which Plan his late Majeſty, viewed and approved of. This Palace, to be built after the ſaid Plan, would amount to ſix hundred thouſand Pounds, and might be about ſeven Years in building. He propounded moreover, That the ſaid Structure ſhould extend from the North Eaſt of the firſt Scotland-yard, and be continued to the North Side of the old Palace-yard at Weſtminſter, and the common Way to Weſtminſter made to run next the Waterſide, whereby the new Palace might front St. James's Park and the River. That there might be twelve Commiſſioners, ſix to be appointed by her Majeſty, and ſix by the Parliament, to carry on the ſaid Building, and to have a Power, by a Jury, as thoſe Commiſſioners had, that were appointed for the Rebuilding of LONDON after the dreadful Fire, whereby to adjuſt all Perſons Intereſts and Differences, and truly to account for and to apply whatſoever Value ſhould be raiſed or given towards the Charges; and that there be ſeven Perſons, whereof one to be Treaſurer, to promote and collect voluntary Benefactions and Subſcriptions towards the carrying on ſo National a Good.

THEN he offered Ways and Means for the Raiſing of the ſaid Sum of ſix hundred thouſand Pounds: And the firſt was, That the City of Weſtminſter ſhould be incorporated, to conſiſt of a Mayor, Recorder, and 24 Aldermen; and certain Franchiſes and Liberties to be granted them. That all Profits ariſing to the ſaid Corporation, over and above all Manner of Expences and Charges the Corporation would be at in ſupporting it ſelf, be for the next ſeven Years appropriated to carry on the ſaid Palace. That Duties ſhould be laid upon new improved Rents within the ſaid City of Weſtminſter. That all Officers that held two or more Offices of above the Value of 300 l. per Annum, ſhould pay ſo much in the Pound. And that ſuch as had any Right or Title to any Houſe, or Office, or Lodging, within the ſaid new intended Palace, ſhould pay likewiſe ſo much in the Pound. That all Improvements of any Part of the Ground of Whitehall, and the Benefit ariſing to her Majeſty of all future and new Inventions, Diſcoveries and Improvements, be for ſuch a Term appointed towards the ſaid Charge. And that all future Forfeitures accruing to her Majeſty for a Term of Years, to be likewiſe appropriated for the ſame Charge: But this Work was thought fit to be laid aſide for the preſent.

FROM the arched Gate, which was at the Eaſt End of King-ſtreet, to a Bridge over Longditch, (ſo called, the ſame making the City of Weſtminſter almoſt an Iſland) was a Way leading to Chanon-row, ſo called, becauſe it belonged to the Dean and Chanons of St. Stephen's Chapel, who were there lodged, as were afterwards divers Noblemen and Gentlemen, whereof one was Sir Edward Hobbey, another, John Thin, Eſq; whoſe Houſe was rebuilt in a ſtately Manner by Anne Stanhope, Dutcheſs of Somerſet, Mother to the Earl of Hertford, who enjoyed it in Stow's Time. Next to this was a fine Houſe building, at the ſame Time, by William Earl of Derby; over-againſt which was a handſome Houſe built by Henry Clinton, Earl of Lincoln.

THE King [Henry VIII.] granted a Charter of Privilege to the Dean of the Free Chapel of St. Stephen, and the Canons, to pull down all the antient and very ruinous Tenements, and to build them again. It is ſet out there, how butted and bounded, viz. "Situate in Le Wolſtaple, between "the Clock toward the Eaſt, and Le Way Houſe "toward the Weſt, and the Wall of our Palace "in Length toward the South, and Le Wulbrige "of our Staple toward the North.

FROM this Way up to the Woolſtaple, and to the high Tower, or Gate, which enter'd the Palace Court, all was repleniſhed with Buildings and Inhabitants.

Staple; the Word means the Place where the Market of ſuch or ſuch Merchandize was kept, as here in Weſtminſter was the Woolſtaple. The Word was antiently writ Eſtaple, and comes of the French Word Eſtape, which ſignifies a Mart or Market. There are five Staple Merchandizes of England, ſaith the Lord Coke, viz. Wool, Woolfells, Leather, Lead, and Tin. There was a Major of the Staple, and there was a Court of the Major of the Staple, wherein Merchants of the Staple did ſue by Law-Merchant; ſo there was a Statute, That Merchant Strangers might ſue before the Major of the Staple, according to the Law-Merchant, or at the Common Law. And this Court was holden at Woolſtaple in Weſtminſter. This Court, tho' it were far more antient, was ſtraitened and warranted by Act of Parliament 27 Edward III.

THE Bounds of the Staple at Weſtminſter began at Temple-bar, and extended to Tuthill.

IN the Reign of Edward I. the Staple being at Weſtminſter, the Pariſhioners of St. Margaret, and Merchants of the Staple, built a-new the ſaid Church, the great Chancel excepted, which was lately before new built by the Abbot of Weſtminſter.

MOREOVER, Edward III. in the 17th of his Reign, decreed, That no Silver be carried out of the the Realm on Pain of Death; and that whoſoever tranſported Wool, ſhould bring over, for every Sack, four Nobles of Silver Bullion.

In the 25th of his Reign, he appointed the Staple of Wool to be kept only at Canterbury, for the Honour of St. Thomas. Moreover, in the 27th of the ſaid King Edward, the Staple of Wool, before kept at Bruges in Flanders, was ordained (by Parliament) to be kept in divers Places of England, Wales, and Ireland; as at Newcaſtle, York, Lincoln, Canterbury, Norwich, Weſtminſter, Chicheſter, Wincheſter, Exeter, Briſtol, Caermarthen, &c. to the great Benefit of the King, and Loſs unto Strangers and Merchants: For there grew unto the King by this Means (as it was ſaid) the Sum of a Thouſand an Hundred and Two Pounds by the Year, more than any of his Predeceſſors before had received. The Staple at Weſtminſter, at that Time, began on the next Morrow after the Feaſt of St. Peter ad Vincula.

The next Year was granted to the King, by Parliament, towards the Recovery of his Title in France, Fifty Shillings of every Sack of Wool tranſported over Seas, for the Space of ſix Years next enſuing: By Means whereof, the King might diſpend daily, during thoſe Years, more than a thouſand Marks Sterling: For, by the common Opinion, there were more than an hundred Sacks of Wool yearly tranſported into foreign Lands; ſo that during ſix Years, the ſaid Grant extended to fifteen hundred thouſand Pounds Sterling.

In the 37th of Edward III. it was granted unto him for two Years, to take ſix and twenty Shillings and eight Pence upon every Sack of Wool (notwithſtanding the King's Oath, and other great Eſtates) was ordained to be kept at Calais, and ſix and twenty Merchants, the beſt and the wealthieſt of all England, to be Farmers there, both of the Town and Staple, for three Years, every Merchant to have ſix Men of Arms, and four Archers, at the King's Coſt. He ordained there alſo two Majors, one for the Town, and one for the Staple, and he took for mala capta, commonly called Maltorth, Cuſtom twenty Shillings, and of the ſaid Merchants, Guardians of the Town, forty Pence upon every Sack of Wool.

In the 44th of Edward III. Queenborough, Kingſton upon Hull, and Boſton, were made Staples of Wool: Which Matter ſo offended ſome, that in the 50th of his Reign, in a Parliament at LONDON, it was complained, That the Staple of Wool was ſo removed from Calais to divers Towns in England, contrary to the Statute, appointing, That Citizens and Merchants ſhould keep it there, and that the King might have the Profits and Cuſtoms, with the Exchange of Gold and Silver that was there made, by all the Merchants in Chriſtendom (eſteemed to amount to eight thouſand Pounds by Year the Exchange only.) And the Citizens and Merchants ſo ordered the Matter, that the King ſpent nothing upon Soldiers; neither upon Defence of the Town againſt the Enemies; whereas now he ſpent eight thouſand Pounds by Year.

In the 51ſt of Edward III. when the Staple was ſettled at Calais, the Major of the Staple did furniſh the Captain of the Town, upon any Road, with an hundred Bill-men, two hundred Archers, of Merchants and their Servants, without any Wages.

In the Year 1388, the 12th of Richard II. in a Parliament at Cambridge, it was ordained, That the Staple of Wool ſhould be brought from Middleborough in Holland to Calais.

In the 14th of his Reign, there was granted forty Shillings upon every Sack of Wool, and in the 21ſt was granted fifty Shillings upon every Sack tranſported by Engliſhman, and three Pounds by Strangers, &c.

It ſeems that the Merchants of this Staple be the moſt antient Merchants of this Realm, and that all Commodities of the Realm are Staple Merchandizes by Law and Charter, as Wools, Leather, Woolfells, Lead, Tin, Cloth, &c.

King Henry VI. had ſix Wool-houſes within the Staple at Weſtminſter; thoſe he granted to the Dean and Canons of St. Stephen at Weſtminſter, and confirmed it the 21ſt of his Reign.

And now to paſs to the famous Monaſtery of Weſtminſter: At the very Entrance of the Cloſe thereof is a Lane that leads towards the Weſt, called Thieving-lane, for that Thieves were led that Way to the Gatehouſe, while the Sanctuary continued in Force.

The Monaſtery of St. PETER WESTMINSTER.

THIS Monaſtery was founded and built by Sebert, King of the Eaſt Saxons, [that began his Reign Anno 603] upon the Perſuaſion of Ethelbert King of Kent, who having embraced Chriſtianity, and being baptized by Melitus, Biſhop of LONDON, immediately (to ſhew himſelf a Chriſtian indeed) built a Church to the Honour of God and St. Peter, on the Weſt Side of the City of LONDON, in a Place (which becauſe it was overgrown with Thorns, and environed with Water) the Saxons called Thorney, and now of the Monaſtery and Weſt Situation thereof, is called Weſtminſter. In this Place (ſaith Sulcardus) long before was a Temple of Apollo; which being overthrown, King Lucius built therein a Church of Chriſtianity.

When the Church of God firſt began to grow in Great Britain at ſuch Time (ſaith Sulcardus) as Antoninus Pius was Emperor of Rome, the Temple of Apollo, which was then ſeated on the Weſt Side of the City of LONDON, where now Weſtminſter ſtands, fell down by the Violence of an Earthquake; of the Ruins whereof, Lucius (who was King of the Britons, and reigned here by Permiſſion of the Romans) built a ſmall Church to the Honour of Christ, in the Year of our Lord 170, which afterwards was utterly defaced when the Heat of Perſecution (under Dioclefian) waſted Britain.

This Place afterward, for a long Time, lay altogether neglected, and not regarded, but became all overgrown with Thorns and Buſhes, inſomuch as the Engliſh Saxons named it Thornez, or Thorney, until Sebert, King of the Eaſt Saxons, (or of Eſſex and Middleſex) who was the firſt that ſubſcribed to the Worſhip of Christ, built in that Place a Monaſtery to Christ and St. Peter, in the Year of Christ 605; whereupon, partly from the Situation to the Weſt, and partly from the Monaſtery or Minſter, it began to take the Name of Weſtminſter: But afterwards, when this Monaſtery was deſtroyed in the furious Wars of the Danes, Dunſtan, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, (by the Favour of King Edgar) repaired it, and granted, and gave it to a ſmall Company of Monks.

Afterward King Edward, ſurnamed the Confeſſor, with the Tenths of all his Revenues, built it a-new, to be a Place for his own Sepulchre, and a Monaſtery for the Monks of St. Bennet's Order, and endowed it with Revenues lying here and there in all Places of England, and it is an antient Fabrick, and very ſtately. Since which Time this Monaſtery hath been, and yet is, very famous, for the Conſecration and Coronation of the Kings of England, and the Burial of many of them, and other great Perſonages, and for the Cuſtody of the Regalia for the Coronation.

BUT 160 Year after, King Henry III. pulled down that antient Fabrick of King Edward, and (with 50 Years Work) built a Church of a moſt goodly Frame, with a Multitude of Marble Pillars, ſet in comely Order; whereof he himſelf laid the firſt Stone, and covered the Roof with Lead, Anno 1220.

IT appears by ſome Records in the Tower, that ſeveral Things were given for adorning this Church, both by that King and his Queen. She ſet up in St. Edward's Feretory the Image of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary. And the King, in the 28th of his Reign, which was about the Year 1244, cauſed Edward Fitz Odo, Keeper of his Works at Weſtminſter, to place upon her Forehead, for Ornament, an Emerald and a Ruby, taken out of two Rings, which the Biſhop of Chicheſter had left the ſaid King for a Legacy. The ſame Year the King commanded the Keepers of his Works at Weſtminſter, that they ſhould provide for the Abbot of Weſtminſter one ſtrong and good Beam to ſupport the Bells of the King's Gift, and deliver the ſaid Beam to the Sacriſtan: And in the 39th of the ſaid King, he gave 100 Shillings, by Payment each half Year, to the Brethren of the Guild at Weſtminſter, and their Succeſſors, who were aſſigned to ring the great Bells there, to be paid out of his Exchequer, till the King can provide them the Value of 100 Shillings, Land or Rent. In the 24th of his Reign, he gave the Prior three Marks to repair the Organ. In the 28th Year of his Reign he commanded Edward Fitz Odo to make a Dragon in Manner of a Standard or Enſign of certain red Samitt, to be every where adorned with Gold, and his Tongue to be made appearing, as though it continually moved; and his Eyes of Sapphires, or other Stones, agreeable to him; and this to be ſet in St. Peter's Church againſt the King's coming thither. In the 30th of his Reign, the ſame King Henry III. gave the ſaid Church one great Crown of Silver, to ſet Wax Candles upon in the ſaid Church; and he commanded the Keeper of his Exchange to do this out of the Iſſues thereof, and to buy alſo out of the ſaid Iſſues, as precious a Mitre as could be found in the City of LONDON, for the Abbot of Weſtminſter's Uſe, of the King's Gift. And laſtly, the 41ſt of Henry III. about Anno 1257, as a farther Ornament for St. Peter's, he ordered a ſumptuous Monument to be erected there for his Daughter Catharine deceaſed, giving Order to his Treaſurer and his Chamberlains of the Treaſury, to deliver to Mr. Simon de Wells five Marks and a half for his Expences in going to LONDON for a certain Braſs Image to be ſet upon her Tomb, and returning home again: And upon the ſame Tomb there was alſo ſet a Silver Image. For the making of which, William of Gloceſter, the King's Goldſmith, was paid ſixty Marks and ten.

THIS Church afterward the Abbots did much enlarge to the Weſtward: And King Henry VII. in the Year 1502, beſtowed 14000 Pounds on the Eaſt Side, where he built a Chapel [called Our Lady's Chapel] of admirable Beauty, (which Leland calls the Miracle of the World; for any Man that ſees it may ſay, that all Elegancy of Workmanſhip and Matter is couched in it) to be a Place of Sepulture for himſelf and all his Poſterity; wherein, at this Day, is to be ſeen his own Tomb, moſt gorgeous and great, made all of ſolid Braſs; where alſo his Queen lies by him. And in the ſaid King's laſt Will, dated Apr. 10. Anno 1508, he appointed to be buried there, in a Chapel made by himſelf, and a Sum of 5000 l. is mentioned to be delivered to the Abbot of Weſtminſter, for Maſſes and Alms, whereof Ten Thouſand Maſſes to be ſaid for his Soul at 6 d. a Maſs, and 2000 l. for Alms between his Death and Burial: So much to the City of LONDON; ſo much to Priſons, &c.

A late Author gives the following Account of this Building:

"THE Arch, at the Entrance of Henry VII's "Chapel, is exceeding grand and ornamental; "the Steps underneath are a fine Preparation for "the Scene at landing, and the three Doors an "admirable Expedient to favour the Perſpective "within; but this, and ſeveral other Beauties, "are utterly ſpoiled by the Stalls, which cut off "the collateral Iſles of the Chapel intirely, and "thereby ſpoil the Beauty and Symmetry of the "Whole.

"THE Roof of this Structure is certainly one "of the fineſt Things in the World, I mean in "the Gothick Stile; nothing can be a better "Form, or more richly decorated; perhaps had "it been more ſimple, it had ſhewn to greater "Advantage; but ſtill 'tis a Wonder that one "continued Cluſter of Ornament could be con-"trived to pleaſe ſo much, and anſwer ſo well.

"WERE the abſurd Partitions mention'd a-"bove thrown down, the Roof would appear "ſtill more ſurprizing, and the Area before more "ſpacious and more proportionable; all thoſe "Tombs which are now ſhut up in ſuch a Man-"ner, that they are no where to be ſeen as they "ought, would then come forward to the Eye, "and give an additional Grandeur and Solem-"nity to the Scene; the Perſpective would be "finely broke, and every Object properly ter-"minate in the Founder's Mauſolæum, as the "principal Point of the whole View.

"THERE are few Tombs in Europe more fa-"mous than that of Henry VII. neither indeed "are there many which deſerve to be more ſo. "The Undertaking, in itſelf, was vaſt and ſur-"prizing, the Coſt prodigious, and the Execu-"tion exceedingly difficult and laborious; and "yet the Artiſt has ſucceeded in it to Admira-"tion; there is hardly a Part in it that is not "excellent, from the chief Figures to the minu-"teſt Point of the Decoration; the Statues of "the King and Queen are grand and noble, and "the Bas-Relief on the Sides below, beautiful "and expreſſive. I am of Opinion the Work-"man, whoever he was, was equal to the nobleſt "Scheme of this Nature, and would have made "a Figure even amongſt the Antient. What a "Pity is it therefore that ſuch a Genius, and ſo "much Art, ſhould be laviſh'd away on a Thing "intirely out of Taſte, and which, at the ſame "Expence and Study, might have been made "the Wonder of the World! To explain my "ſelf farther on this Head, nothing can be more "ſtupid than the laying Statues on their Backs, "in ſuch a Situation, that 'tis impoſſible they "ſhould ever be ſeen to Advantage, and, of "courſe, that all their Perfections muſt be ut-"terly thrown away. In the next Place, the "Brazen Incloſure, which ſurrounds this Tomb, "wonderful as it may be, conſidered by itſelf, is "a monſterous Blemiſh, with Regard to the "Thing it was intended to preſerve and adorn; "becauſe it riſes abundantly too high, and in-"tercepts the View intirely from the principal "Objects.

"WITHOUT Doubt the Statues of the King "and Queen ought to have been in living Atti-"tudes, erect and bold, and the decorating Fi-"gures ſhould have form'd a correſponding "Groupe, which in every Light ſhould have "ſtood the Teſt of Criticiſm, and given the "Spectator an intire Satisfaction; a few more "Steps too ſhould have been added to raiſe the "Foundation higher; a magnificent Arch might "have been thrown over all, and the Boundary

"below

" below ſhould have been only a Guide, not an " Incumbrance to the Proſpect.

In the Year 1569, this moſt magnificent Monument of Henry VII. and alſo of Queen Elizabeth his Wife, received much Damage by a certain rude Fellow who ſtole away divers Parcels of Braſs and Copper that adorned their Tombs: But he was diſcovered and puniſhed by Mr. Barnard Randolph, the Common Sergeant of LONDON.

Among the reſt of the Lands belonging to this Abbey was a Garden, they called the Vine-garden; becauſe perhaps Vines antiently were there nouriſhed and Wine made. It was in King Edward VI's Time encloſed with Houſes and Buildings, and other Lands and Meadows, and Paſtures belonging to the ſame; and likewiſe a certain Parcel of Land called, The Millbank: Theſe were of Value 58 s. and given by that King in the Third of his Reign, to Joanna Smith, in Conſideration of Service.

Afterward, when the Monks were expelled by King Henry VIII. it was converted to divers Governments. Firſt, It had a Dean and Prebendaries: After, a Biſhop, and that only one, named Thomas Thurlbey, Anno 1540, when the Revenues of the Church were abridged. He departed thence Anno 1550, being removed to Norwich, and left it to be governed by a Dean.

Within ſhort Time after Q. Mary brought in the Monks again, with an Abbot named Feckenham, who not long after being expulſed by Act of Parliament, Queen Elizabeth (of bleſſed Memory) converted it into a Collegiate Church, or rather a Nurſery for the Church, in the Year 1560. For there ſhe ordained (to the Glory of God, and the Propagation of true Religion and good Literature) a Dean, twelve Prebendaries, an Upper-Maſter, and an Uſher for the School, forty Scholars, termed the Queen's Scholars, who (at their due Times) are preferred to both the Univerſities; beſides Miniſters, Singers, and Organiſts, ten Choireſters, and twelve poor Soldiers, &c.

The Church at Weſtminſter, erected by Queen Elizabeth into a College or Collegiate Church, by Order preſcribed from her Majeſty to Dr. Bill, the firſt Dean of the ſaid College, is governed as a College, and in Manner and Form as Eaton and Weſtminſter College.

The Dean and Prebendaries do keep Commons together in the Hall, and in likewiſe the School-Maſter and Uſher, and her Majeſty's Scholars, and alſo the Servants and Officers of the ſaid College.

The Scholars Order for Admittance is by Election and Aſſent of the Dean of Chriſt's Church in Oxford, and the Maſter of Trinity College in Cambridge, and their Colleges, and the Dean of Weſtminſter, one Prebendary and School-Maſter, both into Weſtminſter, and from thence unto the Univerſities, according to her Majeſty's Letters Patents.

The Scholars Allowance for Diet is in the ſaid Hall, after the Rate of a Proviſion made by the Dean and Prebendaries, viz. a Buſhel of Wheat for twenty Pence, a Barrel of double Beer for three Shillings four Pence, and the Fuel after a certain Rate, paying for the Carriage only.

The Scholars are allowed for Livery, every one two Yards of Broad Cloth, which coſt xi s.

The Queen's Scholars lay all in one great Chamber, provided for that Purpoſe by Dr. Bill, and the Prebendaries then; but there is now lately built a New Dormitory for them, which is accounted a fine Piece of Architecture.

In Church, School, Hall, Chamber, they keep daily ordinary Prayers.

A Houſe is provided for them within the Cloſe, if they ſhould fall ſick.

There is alſo a Houſe built at Cheſwicke with Chamber and School for the Summer Time, and if there ſhould be Occaſion of Sickneſs; which Houſe coſt building five hundred Pounds.

The Maſter of the Choireſters hath allowed him a Houſe and four Pounds in Regard, and three Pounds ſix Shillings four Pence for every one of the ten Choireſters, beſides a yearly Livery to every one, and a Buſhel of Wheat weekly.

The Miniſters and Singing Men have every one of them Houſes and forty Shillings allowed them over and above their Stipends in Regard yearly, which amounts to the Sum of forty Pounds.

The Servants and Officers have Allowance of Diet, Livery and Stipend, where before they had only a Penſion by Patent or otherwiſe.

When as this Church was a Cathedral the Dean and Prebendaries kept ſeveral Houſes, and kept Reſidence only for xxi Days, three Quarters of the Year, and xxiiii one Quarter.

The Dean, if he were abſent any one Day of his Reſidence, he paid ten Shillings for every Day; if he came not at all, he had but the Corpſe of his Deanry, which was xl l.

The Prebendary omitting any one Day of his Reſidence, he loſt a Shilling for every Day; if he were wholly abſent, he had but the Corpſe, which was x l.

The ſaid Proviſions of Corn and Fuel was divided between the Dean and Prebendaries Reſident.

The Scholars had but three Pounds ſix Shillings four Pence allowed them to every one, and ſo did board themſelves in the Town or elſewhere, and only came to the School.

The Servants and Officers of the Church were then allowed a Stipend only.

The firſt Dean then of that Foundation was Mr. William Bill, who being taken away within two Years, had for his Succeſſor, Mr. Gabriel Goodman, Doctor of Divinity; who, when he had governed this Collegiate Church (with great Commendation) the Space of forty Years, died in the Year of our Lord God, 1601, and then Mr. Lancelot Andrewes, Doctor alſo in Divinity ſucceeded him; next Dr. Neale, and after him Dr. Mountaine.

Sebert was buried in this Church with his Wife Athelgoda, whoſe Bodies many Years after, viz. in the Reign of Richard II. (ſays Walſingham) were tranſlated from the old Church to the new, and there interred.

Edgar, King of the Weſt Saxons, repaired this Monaſtery about the Year of Christ 958, Edward the Confeſſor built it new; whereupon T. Clifford writes thus:

" Without the Walls of LONDON " (ſays he) upon the River of Thames, there " was in Time paſſed a little Monaſtery, built " to the Honour of God and St. Peter, with a " few Benedictine Monks in it under an Abbot, " ſerving Christ. Very poor they were, and " little was given them for their Relief. Here " the King intended (for that it was near the " famous City of LONDON, and the River " of Thames, that brought in all Kind of Mer- " chandizes from all Parts of the World) to " make his Sepulchre: He commanded there- " fore, that of the Tenths of all his Rents, the " Work ſhould be begun in ſuch Sort as ſhould " become the Prince of the Apoſtles.

At this his Commandment the Work was nobly begun, even from the Foundation, and happily proceeded till the ſame was finiſhed: The Charges beſtowed, or to be beſtowed, are not regarded. He granted to this Church great Privileges vileges above all the Churches in this Land, as partly appears by this his Charter.

" EDWARD, King, greets William Biſhop, " and Leofſtane and Ælfſie, Portrieves, and " all my Burgeſſes of LONDON, friendly : " And I tell you, that I have this given and " granted to CHRIST and St. Peter, the Holy " Apoſtle, at Weſtminſter, full Freedom over " all the Land the belongeth to that Holy " Place, &c.

HE alſo cauſed the Pariſh Church of St. Margaret to be newly built, without the Abbey Church of Weſtminſter, for the Eaſe and Commodity of the Monks. Becauſe (before that Time) the Pariſh Church ſtood within the old Abbey Church in the South Iſle, ſomewhat to their Annoyance.

THIS Church of St. Margaret (which that King Edward built) continued till the Days of Edward I. at what Time the Staple of Wools were at Weſtminſter ; and then the Pariſhioners and Merchants of the Staple built it all of new, the great Chancel excepted, which was done by the Abbots of Weſtminſter, as is afore ſhewed.

KING Henry III. in the Year of CHRIST 1220, and in the fifth of his Reign began the new Work of our Lady's Chapel, whereof he laid the firſt Stone in the Foundation ; and in the Year 1245, the Walls and Steeple of the old Church (built by King Edward) were taken down, and enlarging the ſame Church, cauſed them to be made more comely. For the Furtherance whereof, in the Year 1246, the ſame King (diviſing how to extort Money from the Citizens of LONDON towards the Charges) appointed a Mart to be kept at Weſtminſter, the ſame to laſt fifteeen Days, and in the mean Space all Trade of Merchandize to ceaſe in the City ; which Thing the Citizens were fain to redeem with two thouſand Pounds of Silver.

THIS King Henry, as he rebuilt this religious Fabrick of King Edward the Confeſſor, ſo he religiouſly obſerved his Feſtival at the ſaid Place. And when he could not be preſent, he gave Command to have it honourably celebrated by others in his Name. Thus in the 39th of his Reign, Anno 1255, it is recorded in the Tower Records, that becauſe the King was not ſure that he could be preſent at the Solemnity of the Feaſt of St. Edward approaching, by Reaſon of various and urgent Affairs in Scotland, he commanded Philip Luvel his Treaſurer, and Edward of Weſtminſter (his Son) in the Faith and Love whereby they were held bound to the King, that they keep the ſaid Feaſt together, with the venerable Fathers, the Biſhops of Sarum, Norwich, Bath, Colcheſter, and the neighbouring Abbot and Prior, whom the King, by his Lerter, has invited to the Feaſt ; and that they ſolemnly celebrate it at the King's Coſt ; and for the Poll of the King and Queen and their Children, ſo much to be offered, ſcil. de 36 Almuciis nomine eorum offerri, in their Name ; and that they cauſe to be touched the Silver Croſs upon the great Altar at Weſtminſter ; and that they offer one Plate of Gold of the Weight of one Ounce in the King's Name, as is cuſtomary in the Solemnity of the Maſs of the ſaid Edward, as tho' the King himſelf were preſent. And to fill the King's two Halls at Weſtminſter, in the ſaid Feaſt (with People) and cauſe them to be fed, as has been accuſtomed to be done ; and cauſe ſolemnly to come to Weſtminſter on St. Edward's Day, the Proceſſion of the Church of St. Margaret, and all the Proceſſions of the City of LONDON, with Wax-Lights, and their other Proceſſions, as the King has likewiſe commanded the Mayor, and the honeſt Men of LONDON. This was dated at Werk the 13th of September.

AND that nothing, no not Vows, might obſtruct this King's Solemnization of this Feaſt, the next Year, viz. 1256, he obtained a Bull from Pope Alexander, for the King and his Gueſts to keep it, whenſoever it ſhall fall on a Saturday. It was directed, To his dear Son in Chriſt, Henry King of England. And it was granted on this Occaſion, as it ſeems by the Import of the ſaid Bull, viz. That the King was detained by a Vow he had made from eating Fleſh on Saturdays, and that he had deſired a Freedom from that Vow, that he might the better keep this Feaſt, whenſoever it ſhould fall out on that Day. Cum ſicut ex ſua parte, &c. " Whereas, on their Be- " half it is ſignified to us, that you are bound by " Vow to abſtain from Fleſh on Saturdays, we, " yielding to your Requeſt, indulge, by the Au- " thority of theſe Preſents, your Excellency, " that if the Feaſt of the Tranſlation of St. Ed- " ward happen to be kept on a Saturday, it may " be lawful for you to eat Fleſh, notwithſtanding " ſuch a Vow ; and alſo for your Gueſts, who " have not been bound by ſuch Vow. And we " will, that you be bound for this to feed an hun- " dred Poor the ſame Day. " This Bull has a leaden Seal with Strings of yellow and red Silk.

THE Works of this Church, with the Offices, were finiſhed to the End of the Choir, in the Year 1285, the 14th of Edward I.

ALL which Labour of 66 Years was in the Year 1299, utterly defaced by a violent Fire which broke out in the leſs Hall of the King's Palace, and burning Weſtward ſeized the Roof and burnt down great Part of the Church.

THEN was the Monaſtery again repaired by the Abbots of that Church, King Edward I. and his Succeſſors putting to their helping Hands.

Edward II. appropriated to this Church the Patronages of the Churches of Kilueden and Sabritſworth in Eſſex, in the Dioceſs of LONDON.

Simon Langham Abbot (having been a great Builder there in the Year 1362) gave 400 l. to the Building of the Body of the Church : But (amongſt others) Abbot Iſlip was (in his Time) a great Builder there, as may appear in the Stone Work and Glaſs Windows of the Church : Since whoſe Deceaſe that Work ſtood for a good Number of Years as he left it, unperfected, the Church and Steeple being all of one Height.

THE Face of this Church is much altered from the early Appearance of it, not only by the Injuries of Time, but the more deſtructive Hands of hot-brain'd Zealots. As for the Altars, they were moſt of them removed at the Reformation, though ſome have been injured in our late thorough Reformation, as it was then called ; and ſome of the Chapels, Time, the Weight of Monuments, and the neceſſary Repairs of the Church, have entirely made away with, that not even the Site is to be diſcovered. However, what has been formerly mentioned of them is here ſet down.

THE Chapel of St. Benedict the Abbot, where was formerly an Altar to that Saint, near the Tomb of Biſhop Langham ; at which Altar whoever heard Maſs had an Indulgence granted for the Space of two Years and thirty Days. This Chapel is now ſtanding, and had, not long ſince, a plain Skreen of Wood cancellated, opening to the South Croſs, which was removed to make Way for the Tomb of Mr. Dryden. It is the firſt Chapel of the Area going round St. Edward's, and is likewiſe called the Dean's Chapel.

ST. Edmund's Chapel, founded as before-mentioned, by Abbot Crokeſly, in which there is no Account of any Altar to this Shrine. This Chapel is the ſecond in the Area, and the largeſt.

St.

St. Nicholas's Chapel is the third in the Area, and had formerly in it an Altar erected to that Saint; for hearing Maſs at which Altar, was granted an Indulgence for three Years and ſixty Days.

Next to this was formerly a Chapel dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, founded by Henry III. but pulled down by Henry VII. in order to found his new Chapel, and was ſituate where now are the Stairs and Portico of that Chapel. In this former Chapel was an Altar, at which whoever heard Maſs, had an Indulgence for two Years and one hundred Days. In the ſame Chapel, at the Door on the North Side, two Years and fourteen Days: By which it appears there was a Paſſage into the Church through this Chapel.

Chapel of Henry VII.

Chapel of St. Paul, in which was an Altar, where whoever heard Maſs, had two Years and thirty Days Indulgence.

Chapel of St. John Baptiſt, in which whoever heard Maſs, had Indulgence for three Years and an hundred and forty five Days.

Chapel of Iſlip; this has in a late Book been confounded with the Chapel of St. John Baptiſt, and called by that Name, contrary to all former Writers, and without the leaſt Grounds, except a Text Inſcription over the Door of the latter, bearing the Name of that Saint.

The Chapel of St. John the Evangeliſt, in which was formerly an Altar erected to that Saint, where, whoever heard Maſs, had an Indulgence for two Years and thirty Days. This is the laſt Chapel in the Area, and looks towards the great North Croſs, from which it is ſeparated by a Skreen cancellated of Wood, formerly finely carved, gilt and adorned with Arms of ſeveral of our Nobility, but is now almoſt gone, or blinded with the Tomb of Sir Gilbert Lort.

Next to this Chapel is that of St. Michael, now not ſeparated from the former, looking into the North Croſs, from which it was skreened by Cancellæ like the former; but they are now blinded, or rather removed, for ſetting up the old Duke of Newcaſtle's Tomb.

The Chapel of St. Andrew, being the laſt of the three that look into the North Croſs, and now laid into one with the two former. This was formerly adorned with a Skreen made by Abbot Kirton, in which were the Arms of many of our Nobility and others, curiouſly carved and gilt, and was a beautiful Piece of antient Work; but now a huge Monument, erected to the late Duke of Newcaſtle, fills up its Place, and blinds the Chapel; together with a very curious Monument that ſtands in it. In this Chapel was an Altar dedicated to St. Andrew, at which, whoever heard Maſs, had an Indulgence for two Years and thirty Days.

The Chapel of St. Blaſe, was a Place in the South Croſs, incloſed with Wainſcot, lately made uſe of as a Reveſtry. This Incloſure was not long ſince taken away, which was indeed a ſcandalous Blot in the Beauty of this Part of the Church; and a much more convenient Place is found out for the ſame Purpoſe that was made uſe of. Mr. Dart, in his Antiquities of Weſtminſter-Abby, ſays, when he was about that Work, that this South Croſs was made a News-Walk by the Singing Men, till the Sub-Dean or any of the Prebendaries come, and then in a hurried, confuſed Manner they run different Ways to get into their Seats in Time.

In this Chapel of St. Blaſe was an Altar formerly, at which, whoever heard Maſs, had Indulgence granted them for the Space of two Years and twenty Days.

Beſides the Chapels, which (except the old one of the Virgin Mary) are now ſtanding, there is in ſeveral Papers belonging to the Church, an Account of theſe following, of which the very Situation is now intirely loſt.

The Chapel of St. Catharine, in which, whoever heard Maſs, had Indulgence granted for two Years and ſixty Days. It was in this Chapel, (which muſt therefore be of great Antiquity) that Matthew Paris tells us King Henry III. cauſed a great Anathema to be read againſt all Violaters of this Church.

The Chapel of St. Anne, where was granted a like Indulgence for hearing Maſs for the Space of two Years.

Of the antient Custom of offering Salmon in this Church.

This Cuſtom was long kept up to preſerve a monſtrous Monkiſh Tradition, relating to a pretended Conſecration of this Church, which, as the fabulous Hiſtorians tell us, was in this Manner; the Church being built by Sebert, King of the Eaſt Saxons, and quite finiſhed, Mellitus, Biſhop of LONDON, intending to conſecrate it, was thus prevented: St. Peter himſelf one Night called upon a certain Fiſherman, whoſe Name was Edricus, and deſired him to carry him over to Thorney, the Waters being that Night raiſed with prodigious Rains; which he accordingly did; and then the Apoſtle conſecrated the Church; the Fiſherman, the mean while, hearing heavenly Muſick, and ſeeing a great Light of Tapers. The Apoſtle, upon his Return, diſcovered himſelf to him, and bid him let Mellitus know what he had ſeen, and that he ſhould refrain from a ſecond Conſecration: To confirm which, he bid him throw his Nets into the River at ſuch a Place, and he ſhould have a large Number of Fiſh; which he did, and had ſuch a Draught that his Nets were ready to break with a vaſt Quantity of Salmon. The Apoſtle told him, that he nor any other ſucceeding of his Trade, ſhould want for that Kind of Fiſh, upon this Condition, that they made an Offering of the tenth Fiſh to this Church of Weſtminſter. There is in an antient Manuſcript in the Cotton Library, an Account received by Tradition of ſeveral Monks of that Church, living about the Tenth Century, who had ſeen Salmon offered upon the Altar in that Church; and likewiſe a Diſpute made by the Parſon of Retherhith, or Rotherhith, upon the Thames Side, with the Abbot and Monks of this Church upon that Affair.

Mellitus, having heard of this miraculous Conſecration, haſtens to the Church, and finds the Chriſm, the Drops of the Wax Tapers, and all the Marks of a real Conſecration; whereupon he deſiſted from Proceeding to a new Conſecration, and in Remembrance of this Miracle ordered the Name to be changed from Thorney to Weſtminſter.

The Ceremonies uſed at the Offering the Salmon were theſe: The Salmon, after being offered at the High Altar, was carried into the Kitchen, and being ſcraped and cleaned, the Sacriſtan (having delivered to the Fiſherman a Candle of a Pound, and to two of his Companions, if there were two, a Candle each of half a Pound Weight,) in lieu thereof he demanded of the Cook the Head of the Fiſh, and as much below the Gills as the Breadth of three Fingers, or the Ala of the Fiſh ſhall be griped off, being extended. When the Fiſh was boiled, it ought to be carried in a Diſh to the Table in the Middle of the Refectory, to which the Prior and Convent ought to riſe. This Day the Fiſhermen had a Right to dine at the ſame Table with the Prior and Convent; and that Day might demand of the Cellerer Ale and Bread; for which the Cellerer might demand as much as four Fingers, with the Thumb erect, could take of the ſaid Fiſh's Tail.

Of the SHRINE of St. EDWARD.

THIS Prince, of whom it is neceſſary to give ſome Account, was Son of Ethelred King of England, and Emma, and was born at Iſlip; but, by the Daniſh Uſurpation, being obliged to ſhelter himſelf in Normandy, he reached not the Throne till the 40th Year of his Age; ſo that his Youth, (a Time when Vice chiefly ſteals upon Greatneſs) being ſpent in Afflictions, the Remainder of his Life was a Courſe of ſedate Piety. He was a Man not over wiſe, from whence (according to the Cuſtom of that Time) he was called Edward the Simple; yet, ſays Rob. Gloc. was the Nation happily governed and defended under him, by ſome Miniſters of extraordinary Conduct and Courage. He was eaſy of Temper, and the hard Uſage of his Mother is rather owing to the Influence of thoſe about him. He releaſed his Subjects of Taxes, and ſecured them by wholſome Laws, and was wanting only in not endeavouring a Succeſſor, (the Cauſe of their future Miſeries) after his Marriage with Godwin's Daughter, againſt whom there was no Objection but a Point of Religion, ſtrained too far, and a mean and narrow Opinion of its Rules; which is no Wonder to find in a Prince, who at the ſame Time that he was of a monaſtick Temper, was but of a ſhallow Underſtanding. He was ſo in Love with a cloyſtered Life, that he was never well but when paying Viſits to his adjoining Monaſtery, or receiving them from Edwyn, Abbot of it; with whom he ſpent moſt of his private Hours. He was ſo great a Lover of Retirement, that at one of his Country Seats, being diſturbed by the Singing of Nightingales, he prayed they might be no more heard in that Place; which, ſays the Legend, was accordingly granted. Many are his Miracles, of which it is neceſſary to mention one in this Place, for the better underſtanding ſome Parts of this Hiſtory. The Story is that of the Ring, which is this: Upon a certain Time, a Beggar asking Alms of this Prince, for the Sake of St. John the Evangeliſt, he gave him out of his abundant Charity, a Ring; ſome Time after two Pilgrims, Engliſhmen, being at Jeruſalem, met a third, who ſaluted them; and enquiring what Countrymen, they told him: Whereupon he deliver'd them a Ring, and bad them recommend him to their King Edward, and tell him he was St. John the Evangeliſt, to whom he had afore Time at Weſtminſter given a Ring; and bad them further tell him from him, that he ſhould in nine Days Time die. The Pilgrims, ſurprized at ſuch a Meſſuage, told him, That to deliver it in Time, was impoſſible. He, in Anſwer, bad them take no Care of that, and took his Leave. After they had walked ſome Way, being weary, they fell aſleep; and upon waking, obſerved a ſtrange Alteration of the Place: Upon which, ſeeing ſome Shepherds in the Field, they inquired of them where they were; who made anſwer, They were in Kent: Whereat being rejoiced, they made the beſt of their Way to King Edward, to a Seat of his in Waltham Foreſt, then called the Bower, and ſince, Havering in the Bower, in Eſſex, and delivered this Meſſage to the King, who accordingly died, as was told him. This Story has been depicted in the Pariſh-Church where this was, viz. in Rumford Church in the Glaſs-Windows, where was not long ſince (perhaps yet remaining) the Picture of this King, and the two Pilgrims, with theſe Words under, Johannes per peregrinos miſit Regi Edwardo - - - - The Statues of this King and the Pilgrims are over the Courts of King's Bench and Common-Pleas in Weſtminſter-hall, and over the Gate, going into Dean's Yard; the whole Story is wrought in Baſſo Relievo, in the Chapel where he lies, on the Backſide of the Skreen that divides it from the Altar. It was likewiſe wrought in the Hangings of their Choir, and formerly painted in a Glaſs-Window in the South Iſle, next that Window over the Door, going into the Weſt Walk of the Cloyſters; and, in Alluſion to this Story, King Edward II. offered, at his Coronation, a Pound of Gold, made like a King, holding a Ring in his Hand, and a Mark of Gold, which is eight Ounces, made like a Pilgrim, putting forth his Hand to receive the Ring: And this very Ring, among other Relicks, is ſaid to have been given to the Monaſtery, and is called the Ring given by King Edward to St. John the Evangeliſt, who ſent it him again out of Paradiſe two Years and a half after, and which was taken off the King's Finger the Night of his Tranſlation, and ordered to be kept in this Place for the Sake of the Miracle.

WHEN this King died, ſaith an antient Hiſtorian, with him, at the ſame Time, fell all Happineſs, Liberty died, and all Power was buried. "At the Exequies of this King were aſſembled "Biſhops, and a frequent Multitude of Prieſts "and Religious Men ran thither, Monks went "thither in Droves, and innumerable Crowds of "Inhabitants of Cities and Villages flew toge-"ther: Hence Pſalms reſound; thence Tears "and Sighs burſt forth; every where Joy and "Grief co-mixed are carried to the Church; and "that Temple of Modeſty, that Seat of Virtue, "was honourably buried in the Place where him-"ſelf order'd." The Burial of this King is wrought in Baſſo Relievo in his Chapel, that Corner of it next King Edward I's Tomb. As for his Friend Edwyn the Abbot, (who retained the utmoſt Value for him dead) as his Cuſtom was daily to viſit him living, ſo now he was no leſs conſtant in paying daily Viſits to his Grave; which Cuſtom the old Man continued as long as he lived. Nor was this faithful Prieſt the only Viſitor of that Place, for long before he was inſhrin'd, or remov'd, William the Conqueror, upon his firſt entering LONDON, paid a Viſit to his Tomb, and made an Offering of two Palls to lay over it: Which Tomb not long after he altered, and built him one much more curious of Stone, ſaid to be very coſtly, and extended his Care ſo far as to make a Grant to this Church for the Good of his Couſin King Edward's Soul, as did after him King Henry I.

IN King William I's Time was a Miracle perform'd at the old Tomb for Wolſtan the Biſhop, a great Favourite of King Edward's, beforemention'd: Being upon the Conqueror's Acceſſion required to reſign, he made Anſwer, That as he received that Staff from King Edward, and no other, ſo would he reſign it to him, and no other; and going away to this King's Tomb, he ſtruck againſt it with his Staff; whereupon it ſtuck to the Stone, ſay the Hiſtorians of that Time.

THIS, with abundance more Miracles, made ſo great Noiſe, that all reputed him to deſerve a Place in the ſacred Kalendar, but more particularly the Monks of this Church. Upon which the Abbot Gervaſe de Blois, about the Year 1158, ſent over to Pope Innocent II. to ſolicit for his Canonization. The Perſon he ſent was one Oſbert de Clare, Prior of this Church, a Man of extraordinary Learning accounted in that Time; who coming to Rome, found the Pope averſe to comply with it: Whereupon he returned home without accompliſhing the End of his Meſſage. But this Denial did not diſcourage them; for the ſucceeding Abbot, Laurentius, being reſolved to make a ſecond Attempt, endeavoured to make Intereſt Intereſt to back his Deſigns. In order to which, he preached a publick Sermon in this Abbey Church before not only the Monks, but the Nobility of this Kingdom, concerning the glorious King Edward; the Auditory moved at this, with one Voice, prayed of the Abbot that he would take Care that ſo glorious a Light ſhould not be hid from the World. The Abbot, pleaſed with their Importunities, firſt conſulted the Pleaſure of King Henry II. concerning it, who agreeing, the before-mention'd Osbert de Clare, and other Monks, were a ſecond Time ſent to Rome; where ſhewing a Catalogue of Miracles wrought by him, (cuſtomary before Canonization) and the King's Teſtimony of the Truth of them, the before-mentioned Pope Alexander III. pronounced in a publick Manner, his Order for his Canonization, placed him in the Catalogue of Saints, and iſſued his Bull to that Purpoſe, directed to the Abbot Laurence, and Convent of Weſtminſter, in which he calls him the Glorious King Edward, and excuſes the Refuſal, or rather Delay, as he calls it, of his Predeceſſor; and enjoins, that his Body be honoured here upon Earth, as he himſelf is glorify'd in Heaven, &c. Conſequent to which, King Henry II. having prepared for it (ſome ſay at Becket's Inſtigation) a pretious Feretry, he was tranſlated on the Third of the Ides of October, in the Year 1163, ſeventy ſeven Years after his Burial. This ſolemn Ceremony was perform'd at Midnight; and upon opening his Coffin, his Body was found uncorrupted, a Miracle frequent at that Time; his Habit in which he was dreſſed was taken off, and likewiſe the Ring of St. John, before-mentioned. Of the Burial Clothes, the Abbot Laurence made three Copes.

This done, the Body was array'd a-new, and it appeared (if the late Diſcovery were true) veſtimento holoſerico, as uſual: For the late Diſcoverer of his Croſs ſays, he drew out of the Coffin Pieces of Gold, coloured and flowered Silk, and Linen. Being thus arrayed, and incloſed in a Cheſt of Wainſcot, he was moved into the before prepared Feretry.

The Day of his Tranſlation was ſolemnly obſerved, and Indulgences granted to thoſe who ſtrictly and religionſly kept it, of nineteen Years and one hundred and three Days, with Participation of all Spiritual Benefits, and Remiſſion of a ſeventh Part of Sins; of which Term Pope Nicholas granted one Year and forty Days, Pope Clement four Years and eighty Days, Pope Innocent IV. three hundred Days, and on the Octaves of the ſame five Years and one hundred Days. Thus this Body continued till King Henry III. rebuilt the Church; and greatly eſteeming this St. Edward, erected for him, in a Chapel dedicated to him, a ſtately and curious Feretry of admirable Workmanſhip, in which, ſay they, he encloſed the two former Shrines, and placed upon him a third of pure Gold, and precious Stones, which was ſo curiouſly wrought, that the Workmanſhip exceeded the Matter. And having removed his Body to this Shrine, with which was likewiſe encloſed the Heart of Henry, Son to Richard King of the Romans, and Earl of Cornwall, who was ſlain hearing Maſs at Viterbo in Italy, by the then Earl of Leiceſter's two Sons. The King, upon this Removal, held a ſtately and magnificent Feaſt upon this Occaſion, particularly for the Feaſt of the Tranſlation he annually obſerved, as did the City of LONDON, and all the neighbouring Pariſhes, who uſed to come in ſolemn Proceſſion to this Church, as appears by the King's Injunction. And if by urgent Buſineſs he could not be preſent, he nevertheleſs order'd ſome of his Nobility to attend this Feſtival, as is before mentioned.

This King Henry III. having thus a-new enſhrin'd him, heap'd upon it Preſents of whatever was rich and valuable, reſolving to make this the chief Place of his Devotion and Offerings. His Value for this Saint was ſo great, that he always ſwore by him, and gave his Name to his Son King Edward I. Yet, in the Year 1243, being ſtraitened by ſome Exigencies, he was forced to make free with the Jewels and Treaſure that had been offer'd to his Shrine, and pawn them to carry on his Expedition. However, he obligated himſelf, by Writing, to ſee them ſafely reſtored to the Convent. Theſe Heaps of Wealth daily increaſed; for the preſerving which, one of the ſenior Monks was made Keeper of the Feretry of St. Edward; and, in the Salmon Cuſtom, one John London is ſaid to hold that Place.

Before this Shrine of St. Edward was an Altar dedicated to him, where the Offerings were made, and where, ever ſince the Reformation, has been one caſually erected upon ſome of our Coronations, and particulrrly King Charles II. who laid the Regalia there, and was crown'd at it with the Imperial Crown. At this antient Altar, whoever attended Maſs, had Indulgence granted them for the Term of four Years and two hundred Days.

Before the Shrine was a Lamp kept continually burning, which King Henry III. gave 5 l. to purchaſe.

Here likewiſe ſtood an Image of the Virgin Mary, wrought in Silver, which Eleanor, Queen to King Henry III. gave, with the Jewels out of the Biſhop of Chicheſter's Ring.

Here ſtood alſo another Image of the Bleſſed Virgin, wrought in Ivory; a Piece very curious, and much eſteemed by Thomas a Becket, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who offer'd to the Shrine of St. Edward.

Here King Edward I. after his Conqueſt, offered the Scotiſh Regalia, and Chair, which is ſtill kept there joining to the Shrine: Whereof more hereafter.

About the Year 1280, Alphonſo, third Son to King Edward I. offered to St. Edward the Golden Coronet of Llewellen Prince of Wales, and other Jewels, which were repoſited at, and adorned his Shrine.

Abbot Berkyng, of this Church, about the Year 1250, gave the Abbot and Convent of this Church, in Honour of St. Edward (duo coremia) for the Uſe of the Choir, on which were wrought the Life and Actions of our Saviour, and holy St. Edward the Confeſſor.

And at the Requeſt of King Henry III. the aforeſaid Abbot granted, that three Days following the Feaſt of this Saint's Tranſlation, ſhould be ſtrictly obſerved with ſolemn Service and Ringing of Bells.

Another great Admirer of this Saint was that unhappy Prince King Richard II. who always eſteemed him as his Patron, and wore his Arms; which he likewiſe, as a ſingular Honour, granted to the Houſe of Norfolk; which, in Proceſs of Time, was the ſpecious Colour of taking off the learned and gallant Earl of Surrey by King Henry VIII. This Prince likewiſe was a ſolemn Obſerver of his Feaſt: For, in the Year 1390, on St. Edward's Day, the King kept the Feaſt in his Robes, and ſat crown'd in this Church at Maſs with his Queen, having their Scepters in their Hands. It is not improbable the Painting in the Choir, of which we ſhall ſpeak hereafter, was made upon this Occaſion.

The Arms of this Prince were formerly over the North Porch of this Church, impaled with St. Edward's, and ſupported between two Angels, he being the firſt of our Kings who uſed Supporters; under which was a Hart couchant, gorged with a Golden Coronet and Chain under a Tree, his uſual Device, which is elſewhere expreſſed in this Church: His Arms impaled with the King's, was likewiſe in St. Olave's Church in the Old Jewry, and are ſtill remaining in the Windows of the Church of St. Bartholomew the Leſs, near Smithfield. It is very probable, that out of the Regard this Prince had to this Saint, Henry V. ſome Years after removed his Body, and depoſited it on the South Side of his Shrine.

THAT King Henry IV. was an Admirer of this Prince, as appears by the laſt Hours of his Life; for, being upon his Knees before this Shrine, he was ſeized with a Fit of the Apoplexy, whence being carried and put to Bed in the Abbot's Houſe, he enquired where he was? And upon being anſwered, That the Room was called Jeruſalem, he made this Reply, Lord, have Mercy on me, for here I muſt die; having been before told ſo by a Soothſayer, that he ſhould die in Jeruſalem; which he, by Miſtake, ſuppoſed to be that Jeruſalem, to which, for expiating the Blood he had ſpilt, he was going upon the Cruſado.

IN the Year 1415, after the famous Battel of Agincourt, on the Morrow after St. Simon and Jude, News being brought to LONDON of that Victory, there were Rejoicings made by all Degrees of People, and Te Deum having been ſung in all the Churches of the City and neighbouring Pariſhes, the religious Men of what Order ſoever, ſet out from their different Houſes about Nine o'Clock, in ſolemn Proceſſion to the Shrine of St. Edward at Weſtminſter; and at the ſame Time went thither likewiſe the new Mayor, with his Court of Aldermen, and all the Livery Men, who all offered at St. Edward's Shrine. After which Offering he went and took his Charge, and then all returned with great Rejoycings. The ſame Morning the Queen and the Nobility, with all her Attendants, went to the aforeſaid Shrine, and made Offerings upon Account of the aforeſaid Victory. This Prince, King Henry V. had engraved on his Seal the Repreſentation of this Saint and King Arthur, with their Arms repreſented.

Edward Earl of March, upon coming to LONDON, aſſuming the Name of King, having heard Te Deum ſung at St. Paul's, went thence in Proceſſion to Weſtminſter on the 3d of March, where being ſet in the Hall with St. Edward's Scepter, the People were asked their Choice, Whether he ſhould be King? who aſſenting, he went forthwith in Proceſſion to this Shrine, and being placed in the Choir during the ſinging of Te Deum, he made his Offering to this Saint, and returning back to St. Paul's, was proclaimed, and the 28th of July following was ſolemnly crowned here.

IN the Year 1483, K. Richard III. that Monſter of Deceit and Barbarity, to ſhew his extraordinary Reverence to this Saint, went the Morning he was to be crowned in ſolemn Proceſſion to his Shrine, from the King's-Bench in Weſtminſter-Hall, with his Queen, bare-footed, having the Regalia carried before them; and having made their Offering at it, returned to their Places in the Choir, where they were crowned. Many other Inſtances may be given of the great Reverence and Eſteem this Saint was held in by our Engliſh Princes, and others, it being cuſtomary at Coronations and ſolemn Thankſgivings to repair and make Offerings at this Place; a Cuſtom which, doubtleſs, continued till the Time of the Reformation, when it was deſpoiled, not only of its acquired Wealth and Ornaments, but of any future Means of renewing them.

IN this Change of Religion, it had however a Reſpect paid to the Building, and ſome remaining Shew of Reverence to the Place; of which this Shrine was for many Years the only Inſtance. As for the firſt, the Reformers had ſo much Regard to it, as being a Repoſitory for a Prince, though they denied its being a Shrine for a Saint, that they deſpoiled it of nothing but what was valuable: Avarice (in this Caſe) not Diſreſpect, being the chief Motive that induced their defacing it. And as to the remaining Reverence paid to it, that was partly Reſpect to Royal Decency, and partly from the Regalia uſed upon that Occaſion, and the Character that Prince bore, not only as a devout Man, but a wholeſome Legiſlator; Characters that (reminded by his Example,) they promiſed to bear, and ſuch as were well worthy their Imitation.

ANOTHER Relick repoſited at this Shrine, was the Blood (as they ſay) that iſſued from our Saviour's Side on the Croſs. This was ſent from the Holy Land to King Henry III. by one of the Knights Hoſpitallers, with Letters Teſtimonials from the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, and the Maſters of the Knights Templers and Hoſpitallers, and preſented by this King to St. Edward on the Day of his Tranſlation, Anno 1247. Upon which ſolemn Occaſion the King ſent Orders to all the Clergy in and about the City of LONDON, that they ſhould aſſemble together at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, being arrayed in their Surplices and Copes, with their Clerks bearing Croſſes, and Wax Tapers lighted, whither the King likewiſe came; and taking the Veſſel of Chryſtal in which this holy Treaſure was contained, he carried it in a Diſh elevated above his Forehead, being poorly habited, viz. bare-foot in a Cope, without a Hood, and ſo proceeded, without reſting, to the Church of Weſtminſter, continually holding up the Veſſel, and keeping his Eyes fixed on it. Over all was carried a Canopy, ſupported by four Spears, and the King's Elbows likewiſe ſupported. Thus, attended by Biſhops, Abbots and Monks, more than 100 in Number, he proceeded to the Biſhop of Durham's Houſe, where he was met by the Choir of Weſtminſter, who returned in Proceſſion with the King, who carried it firſt round the Church, then round his Palace, and laſtly offered it to St. Peter, and his Favourite St. Edward. On this Occaſion the Biſhop of Norwich celebrated high Maſs, and after a Sermon, proving the Reality of this new Treaſure, he pronounced to all attending it a hundred and forty Days Indulgence. At this Solemnity Matthew Paris was, he tells you, preſent: But Matthew Weſtminſter makes this Indulgence ſix Years and a hundred and ſixteen Days, which was after enlarged to all ſuch viſiting the Relicks in this Church. This Day the King made a ſplendid Feaſt for the Monks of this Church in the Refectory.

IN the following Year, on the Tranſlation of St. Edward, the Fair of 15 Days was kept at Weſtminſter, and many People came on Account of this holy Blood, as well as the Tranſlation; at which Time the King continued in the Church all Night in Watchings and Prayers, and had Morrow-Maſs ſung by the Choir in precious Veſtments of Silk.

AT this Feretry was preſerved another famous Relick, viz. the Marble Stone whereon our Saviour ſtood at his Aſcenſion, and which bare the Marks of his Footſteps. This Stone the Friars Preachers brought with them, which the King preſented to this Church.

A third Relick at this Shrine was a large Piece of the Holy Croſs, being richly adorned with Gold, Silver, and precious Stones; this King Edward I. brought with him out of Wales, which being carried in ſolemn Proceſſion, was depoſited here Anno 1285.

THIS

This curious Shrine, as it now remains, has been ſurveyed and meaſured by the ingenious Mr. Tallman; where the Moſaick was broken away it is juſtly ſupplied: It is compoſed of various coloured Stones, ſaid by ſome to be Part of thoſe which Abbot Ware brought to pave the Altar; but there is a large Difference, if we may gueſs by what remains: The Floor indeed is of the ſame Materials with that before the Altar, but the Shrine ſeems to be of a thin Moſaick, like King Henry III's Tomb. The Stone Work is hollow within Side, and within it, about as high as the Top of the Side Arches, is a large Cheſt banded with Iron, and now almoſt loſt in Duſt. Over the Stone Work is a Frame of Wainſcot, ſaid in Time paſt to have been curiouſly plated with Gold, and adorned with precious Stones. The Frame is very neat and regular, but ſeems never to have been covered, and as for the Jewels that adorned it, they are ſtill there; for on the Pilaſters between the Arches, is a Kind of Moſaick Work of ſtained Glaſs, a cuſtomary Ornament at that Time, as appears by the Tomb of Edmund Crouchback, on the North Side the Altar, which is inlaid after the ſame Manner. This Frame was covered at Top, as appears by the Draught in Mr. Sandford; but that upper Frame is much disjointed and ſunk in; over which Frame was the curious one mentioned by Paris. This Shrine was undoubtedly repaired or built at ſeveral Times, as appears, in ſome Meaſure, by the Difference of Workmanſhip; for Inſtance, the Pillars at the Weſt End are very unlike, the one having a Dorick Chapter, the other a Wreath of Vine Leaves; the ſame Diſſimilitude is between the Eaſt End and the Weſt, the latter ſtanding on a Greave, or the Baſis of the Tomb, the former having no Chapter, and the Baſis buried in the Earth. But for this, perhaps, a Reaſon may be given; for under the Chair of the Coronation the Floor is paved with Tiles different from the Moſaick Pavement, in which Place were Steps to deſcend under the Tomb, where (very probably) the enſhrined Body of this Saint lay; the Cuſtom of enſhrining being very different; for ſometimes the Coffin was placed level with the Surface of the Earth, ſometimes upon it, and ſometime in altum: The firſt was to Men of exemplary Piety, who had ſuffered no more for Religion than what Self-denial, Self-impoſed Severities and Abſtinence required, which was the Caſe of this Saint; the other for Men of more early Example, and was firſt a Cuſtom, as in the Caſe of Cuthbert before he was Sainted, and others, but afterwards grew a Favour to Saints of the ſecond Rank; the elevated Body was uſually for ſuch who had ſuffered Martyrdom for Religion. The Shrine ſeems to have been repaired in King Richard II's Time, as appears by the painted Moſaick of Gold, and Black in ſome Places, but the Frame-Work at the Top ſeems to have been ab origine. Round the Verge of this Tomb is this Inſcription in Letters of Gold on Black:

Omnibus inſignis virtutum laudibus heros,
Sanctus Edwardus Confeſſor, Rex venerandus.
Quinto die jani moriens ſuper Æthera ſcandit, Surſum corda. Moritur Anno Dominii 1065.

This Inſcription is ſuppoſed to have been put on it in the Time of King Richard II. when the old one, which was emboſſed on it, was worn away, which when remaining was thus:

Anno milleno Domini, cum ſeptuageno,
Et bis centeno, cum completo quaſi dexo,
Hoc opus eſt factum, quod Petrus duxit in actum,
Romanus Civis, homo, cauſam noſcere ſi vis,
Rex fuit Henricus, ſancti præſentis amicus.

But the Letters of the Form being not the uſual Character of that Age, it was ſince renewed. It will be neceſſary here to take ſome Notice of a Narrative concerning the finding St. Edward's Body, and the Croſs in the Cheſt incloſed, as before-mentioned, which was thus: "One Young belonging to the Choir of this "Church, which Young, by the way, was no "other than Henry Keep, who in K. James II's "Time being reconciled to the Church of "Rome, changed his Name: Some Time after "the Coronation of King James II. he obſerved "the Cheſt before-mentioned to be broken, as "he ſuppoſed, by the Fall of a Beam from the "Coronation Scaffolding, which had broken a "Hole in the Lid over the Breaſt. He went "with two Friends who came to ſee the Tombs, "and fetching a Ladder to ſee if the Report "was true, found it ſo: Upon which, putting "his Hand, he turned the Bones, and found un-"the Shoulder Blades a Crucifix richly adorned "and enamelled, and a Gold Chain of 20 Inches "long, with Pieces of Linen and Gold coloured "Silk. The Head was ſolid and firm, the up-"per and lower Jaws full of Teeth, and a Liſt "of Gold round the Temples, and much Duſt "in the Coffin. This Croſs he preſented the "King, who, he ſays, thereupon ordered the "Coffin to be incloſed in a new one two Inches "thick, and cramped with Iron Wedges.

On the South Side of this Shrine was depoſited the Body of Editha, or Egitha, Queen to the ſainted King Edward; ſhe was Daughter of Godwin, Earl of Kent, a Woman of Beauty and Virtue, whence the Writers of that Time compared her to a Roſe growing from a Briar.

Sicut ſpina roſam genuit Godwinus Edivam.

But this Reflection upon Godwin is owing to the Norman Writers, whoſe Invaſions he ſtrenuouſly oppoſed, and the Churchmen, whoſe Rights he ſometimes invaded; for the Man himſelf, ſetting aſide his Pride and arbitrary Management, made brave Head againſt the Inroaders upon his Country's Rights. But to return: This Lady was, ſays Ingulphus the Abbot (who knew her perſonally, being himſelf bred in the Court,) "A Woman of Beauty, Learning and excellent "Conduct of Life, of religious Humility, mild, "ſincere and obliging. I have, ſays he, fre-"quently ſeen her when my Father lived in the "Court, and as I have returned from School, "i. e. at Weſtminſter, ſhe would often ſtop me, "and examine me in the Claſſicks, and poſe "me with wond'rous Readineſs in my Grammar "and Logick, and then generally ordered a "little Maid that waited on her, to give me "three or four Pieces of Money, and having re-"freſhed, diſmiſſed me." Another Author ſays, Erat pulchra facie, ſed morum probitate pulchrior multo. She was fair of Face, but more valuable for the Beauties of her Mind. Brompton ſays,

"Her Breaſt was a Storehouſe of all liberal "Sciences.

And indeed moſt of our Hiſtorians agree in the ſame Character of this moſt excellent Woman: That ſhe was curious in other Arts, and employed in them more than in outward Pomp and Court Ceremony, appears by her having wrought with a Needle thoſe curious magnificent Robes the King appeared in on his Collar Days. But with all theſe Excellencies, ſhe was an uſeleſs Sharer of a Royal Bed; for that Prince, who was ſuperſtitious not a little, and full as narrow in his Intellects, had ſome empty Scruples in his Mind which forbad him knowing her, though they always lay together for eighteen Years; ſome attribute this to the King's Reſentment of Godwin her Father's Inſolence, and that he married her only to keep his Word, having otherwiſe no Deſire of Marriage; others, that none of Godwin's Blood ſhould mingle with his Race; others, that he foreknew his being Sainted, and declined for that Reaſon, or to profeſs Virginity, and that he did it for Mortification; and ſome, though very few, that he had no Inclination to Women, and that they did it jointly by Conſent: And to this agrees an old Manuſcript: And nathelees tho' ye Kinge had a Wife he lived ev'moe in Chaſtete and in Clennes wythowten any fleſhly Dedes doyinge wyth his Wyfe the Quene; and ſo dyd the Quene in her Syde. And laſtly, Alured, who refutes the former Opinion of mixing with the Blood of Rebels, ſpiritualizes it in this Apology, Diliget ille ſed ne corrumpitur, diligitur illa ſed non tangitur, & quaſi nova quadam Abiſac regem calefacit amore, nec diſſolvit libidine; mulcet obſequiis, ſed deſideriis non emollit. However that was, it is certain, as ſhe herſelf confeſſed on her Death Bed, that he never cohabited with her, and it is probable he had otherwiſe no great Affection to her, for upon Godwin's Inſolence he ungenerouſly revenged the Crime of the Father, then out of his Reach, on the Daughter his Queen, by ſeizing all her Jewels, and confining her Priſoner to the Abbey of Warwel, where his Siſter was Abbeſs, with only one Maid to attend her; but the Year following (ſays Sim. Dunelm) received her. This Lady ſurvived her Husband eight Years, and was a Spectator of all the Miſeries enſuing his Death, though the Conqueror treated her with the utmoſt Reſpect, and allowed her a Place in the King's Seat at Wincheſter, where ſhe died on the 15th of the Kalends of January, and was, by the Order of William the Conqueror, buried near her Husband in this Abbey, and, upon rebuilding it, her Body, and that of another excellent Woman, were depoſited on each Side this Shrine, before laying the Moſaick Pavement, where no Doubt the Coffins ſtill continue entire, having been ſubject to no Interruptions: She lies on the South Side (ſays Lib. Conſuetud.) in parte aquilonari inſigniter erat ſepulta. Her Anniverſary was obſerved on 14 Kal. Jan. in albs. and at her Tomb was a Lamp kept burning Night and Day, by Order of King Henry III. as appears by the ſaid Lib. Conſuetud. written in his Time.

ON the South Side lies that moſt excellent Princeſs Maud, or Matilda, called the Good Daughter of Malcolm Commair, King of Scots, and St. Margaret his Wife, (whoſe holy Life Turgat of Durham dedicated to her) and Granddaughter to Duncan the murder'd King of Scots. She was eſpouſed to Henry I. King of England, in order to unite the Saxon and Norman Lines; but the Marriage was ſome Time oppoſed upon Account of her being a Nun; which Eadmerus, who lived in Court, aſſures us, was not ſo, but that at Winton the Lady Abbeſs put a Veil on her ſuddenly, to ſcreen her from the Fury of the Danes. This Story, which is variouſly reported, being overcome, ſhe was married to the King by Archbiſhop Anſelm, Anno 1102. The Character of this Lady is univerſally extolled; ſhe is generally called the Good, and by Alured, the bleſſed Queen, who compares her to Heſter; Brompton ſtiles her, Mulier Pia & Deo Devota; and the Annals of Waverly tells us, "Her Virtues were ſo great "that a Day would not ſuffice to recount them." She was ſo religious that ſhe would deſire Leave of the King to ſpend ſeveral Days and Nights together in this Church, and would in Lent come hither barefoot in a Garment of Hair, and waſh the Poor's Feet. Alured tells us a Story, that he heard from the Mouth of David, King of the Scots, her Brother, "How that coming into her "Chamber he found her incircled with Beggars "and Lepers waſhing and kiſſing their Feet." Her Bounty was as remarkable, ſhe gave Relicks to this Church, and Plate and Ornaments to others, as appears by the Biſhop of Man's Epiſtle to her; and did many publick Acts, (beſides encouraging Muſick and other Sciences) as building the Priory within Aldgate, the Hoſpital of St. Giles, and two Bridges, one at Stratford Bow, and another near Weſtminſter, where Channel-row now is, and an Hoſpital for Lepers in LONDON, called by Paris, Maud's Hoſpital. After a Life of excellent Example, ſhe ſurrendered her Soul to GOD the 1ſt Day of May 1118, or, as Wykes ſays, 1119, and was buried, as ſome ſay, in the Old Chapter-houſe; but if ſo, ſhe was removed upon rebuilding the Church; for the 4th Part of the Book of Conſtitutions in King Henry III's Time ſays, In auſtrali parte magni altaris decentiſſime erat ſepulta, at which Place that King ordered a Lamp to burn Night and Day. Her Anniverſary was on the 6th Non. May, and was celebrated in Albs; at which Time for the Pittances and Cup of Charity was aſſigned 27 s. and 3 s. to the Sacriſtan for Lights round her Tomb, for which was aſſigned 30 s. upon a Houſe in Thodenham, which one Laurence Ducket purchaſed. Mr. Weaver has given us four Lines of an Epitaph on her Death, which he found in an old Manuſcript in the Cotton Library, but the reſt, he ſays, are loſt; however, theſe four Lines with four more, viz. the firſt and two laſt of her Epitaph, are in the Continuer of Indulphus, which not only as of Right, but alſo for the Excellency, are here inſerted.

O Regina potens Anglorum linea Regum
Scotos nobilitans nobilitate ſua.
Et poſt multa de morum prærogativa ſic,
Proſpera non lætam fecerit, nec aſpera triſtem;
Aſpera riſus ei, proſpera terror erant.
Non decor effecit fragilem, non ſceptra ſuperbam
Sola potens humilii, ſolæ pudica decens.
Maii prima dies noſtrorum nocte dierum
Raptam perpetua fecit miſſe die.

OF which take in Part a Tranſlation:

Succeſs ne'er ſat exulting in her Eye,
Nor Diſappointment heav'd the troubled Sigh.
Proſperity but ſaddened o'er her Brow,
When glad in Trouble ſhe enjoy'd her Woe.
Beauty nor made her vain, nor Scepters proud,
Nor high Eſtate, to ſcorn the meaner Crowd;
Supreme Humility was awful Grace,
And her chief Charms a Baſhfulneſs of Face.

ON the North Side of this Chapel, near the Feet of King Henry III's Tomb, is a ſmall Table Monument covered with a Slab of black Lydian, finely poliſhed, on which are remaining the Nails that faſtened Plates of Braſs, now ſtolen away. This was placed in Memory of Elizabeth Tudor, ſecond Daughter of King Henry VII. who died at Eltham in Kent, the 4th of September 1495. But for the reſt of the Monuments, ſee them hereafter in their proper Order.

Of the antient RELICKS in this CHURCH.

Sebert, the Founder, gave to this Church Part of the Beam in the Manger where CHRIST was laid; Part of his Croſs and of his Sepulchre; Part of the Wax and Incenſe uſed by St. Peter at the conſecrating this Church; (at leaſt ſome Body, ſince his Time, to favour the Legend) of the Veſtments of the twelve Apoſtles; Relicks of Cnute, or Canute, gave the Arm of St. Orias, and the Relicks of St. Edward the King and Martyr; one Finger of St. Alphage, and another of St. Gregory, with other of his Bones.

Emma, Mother to Edward the Confeſſor, gave Relicks of St. Agatha; a Finger of St. Bridget; with Relicks of St. Felix and St. Perpetua; alſo of the Head of St. Mary Egyptiaca; Part of the Head of Maxilla, and the Arms; with other Relicks of St. Helena.

Edward the Confeſſor gave Part of the Place where CHRIST was born; of his Manger; and alſo of the Frankincenſe offered to our Lord by the Eaſtern Magi; of the Table of our Lord; of the Bread which he bleſſed; of the Seat where he was preſented in the Temple; of the Wilderneſs where he faſted; of the Jail where he was impriſoned; great Part of the Holy Croſs incloſed in a certain one, particularly beautified and diſtinguiſhed; with many other Pieces of the ſame. He gave alſo the Croſs that floated againſt the Wind and Wave over Sea from Normandy hither with that King; and great Part of one of the Nails of our Saviour's Croſs; Part of his undivided Garment; of the Spunge, Launce, and Scourge, with which he was tortured; of the Sepulchre and Cloth that bound his Head; of the Mountains Golgotha and Calvary. Many Pieces of the Veſtments of the Virgin Mary; of the Linen that ſhe wove; of the Window in which the Angel ſtood when he ſaluted her; of her Milk; of her Hair; of her Shoes, and her Bed; alſo the Girdle which ſhe worked with her own Hands, always wore, and dropped to St. Thomas the Apoſtle at her Aſſumption. Of the Hairs of St. Peter's Beard, and Part of his Croſs. Relicks of St. Paul, viz. a certain Cloth in which his Head was wrapped when cut off, and one of the Fingers, and ſome Blood of the ſame Apoſtle. Many Bones of St. Andrew, and Part of his Croſs. A Bone of St. James Major, and Relicks of the Apoſtles Philip and James; Arms of the Apoſtles Bartholomew and Thomas; with the Relicks of the Apoſtles Barnaby, Matthew, and Mathias; great Part of the Body of St. Botolph the Abbot, with one of his Cowls, and Relicks of the ſame: Alſo the Head and Pouch, and Ivory Staff of St. Andwen the Biſhop; and Relicks of St. Giles, Jerome, Ethelwold, Erkenwald, Theodorick, and many others; the Head of St. Margaret, with other Bones, and of her Clothes; Oil of the Tomb of St. Catharine; Relicks of St. Cecilia and Teckle; and half a Jaw, with three Teeth of St. Anaſtatia.

William the Conqueror procured for this Church the Relicks of St. Dioniſius; one Tooth of St. Nugatius; with Relicks of St. Euſtathius and Rumbald.

Laurentius the Abbot gave three embroidered Copes made of the Cloths Edward the Confeſſor lay in in his Coffin.

Thomas Becket, commonly called St Thomas of Canterbury, gave to St. Edward's Feretry an Image of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, beautifully framed of Ivory, and much eſteemed by him.

Maud, or Matild, commonly called the Good Queen, Wife of Henry I. gave Relicks of the Cell, and Garments of St. John the Evangeliſt; great Part of the Hair of St. Mary Magdalen, with her black Girdle, in which was wrought in Letters of Gold this Antiphon, Neſciens mater & orationem Deus qui ſalutis. Likewiſe two Rings and the Pincers of Mary Magdalen, with one Bone of Chriſtina the Virgin.

Henry III. gave the Blood that came from CHRIST's Side, ſent to him from Jeruſalem by the Patriarch Robert. Alſo a Thorn of CHRIST's Crown, and the Stone, with the Impreſſion of his Feet left on it at his Aſcenſion, and alſo great Part of the Blood de Miraculo: Relicks of Celicus, Jellicius, Suppellectilus, and others: Cloths, with an Ivory Comb, and the Blood of Archbiſhop Becket (or called St. Thomas the Martyr:) Alſo many Pieces of the Skull of St. Chriſtopher, and the Head of St. Maurice the Martyr: Relicks of St. Leonard: The Arm of St. Silveſter, and one Tooth of St. Athanaſius.

Simon, ſome Time Abbot of Bury, gave Relicks of St. Edmund the King and Martyr.

ABBOT Berkyng of this Church, gave the Arms of St. Fœlix and Vetalis, Martyrs of the Theban Legion.

Peter of Swevia gave the Arm of St. Serus the Martyr, of Conſtantinople.

Edward I. gave one great Bone of the Thigh of St. Leonard the Abbot; alſo a Gown ſtained with the Blood of St. Edmund the Biſhop and Confeſſor, and the Knife with which he was embowelled; together with his Mitre, Ivory Comb, and other Relicks of him: One Rib of St. Cecilia, and Part of the Oil of the Tomb of St. Catharine, with other Relicks.

Alianore, his Queen, gave a Finger of St. Nicholas, the Biſhop and Confeſſor, with other Bones, and Oil from his Tomb.

Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, gave the Head of St. Urſula, with the Relicks of the ſame.

A Prior of St. Swithin's at Wincheſter, gave the Joint of one of the Fingers of St. Nicholas, the Biſhop, before-mentioned, with one of his Teeth, and other Relicks.

Edward

Edward III. gave the Head of St. Benedict the Abbot; the King's Letters Patent for which Grant is to be ſeen in Rhymer's Fœdera.

A VIEW of the preſent Building of the Church of St. Peter's.

THIS antient and venerable Pile is at preſent ſo incumbered by adjoining Buildings, that it is difficult to take a juſt View of it: The North Side, being the moſt beautiful, hath, by many, from its curious Form, been called Solomon's Gate. This magnificent Porch was founded by that unhappy Prince Richard II. as appeared formerly by his Arms carved in Stone over the Door, and impailed with thoſe of Edward the Confeſſor, with a Hart couchant, and two Angels for the Supporters. This ſtately Portico is now lately beautified, the Time-eaten Sculpture and Maſonry pared away, the Gothick Order juſtly preſerved, and the Whole adorned with a magnificant Window, deſigned by the ingenious Mr. Dickenſon, Surveyor of this Building. This Pile, excepting the Weſtern Towers, has nothing but its lofty Roof to make it eminent to diſtant View. There was indeed a Deſign in Abbot Iſlip's Time, of a Middle Tower and Spire but the Pillars, curiouſly taper, and very lofty, were thought too weak for ſuch a Weight, ſo that the Work remained unfiniſhed. There was in the old Church a Tower raiſed in the Cloiſters, for there is Mention made of ſome of the Abbots buried in auſtrali parte clauſtri, prope Cymbalum; but there are not now any Remains of it. The Form of this Church is that of a Croſs, and gave Pattern to moſt Collegiate Churches in England. The Chapel of King Henry VII. is, properly ſpeaking, a different Building, the old Church and Form being compleat without it, the Apex being Edward the Confeſſor's Chapel: From the Eaſt End of which this ariſes by Steps, and extends itſelf 122 Feet further.

To view the inward Glories of this Structure, let us enter the Weſt Door, from which Entry, at one View, the Church opens itſelf to your Eye, the Pillars dividing the Nave from the Side Iſles, being ſo curiouſly taper as not to obſtruct the Side-Openings; nor is the Sight terminated to the Eaſt by any Thing but the curiouſly painted Window over the Portico of King Henry VII's Chapel; which Sight was undoubtedly of old more ſurpriſing, when the Altar was low, and the glorioufly adorned Shrine of Edward the Confeſſor overlooked it, and was viſible from the moſt diſtant Parts of the Church. This Range of Pillars continue to the Sacriſtary, and there with a Sweep form a Semicircle round the Chapel of that King. Theſe Pillars are, as well as the reſt of the Building, of Suſſex or Grey Marble, and are diſtinguiſhed by Fillets on the Top; theſe reaching Weſtward to the Gates of the Choir, being filletted with Free-Stone, which point out to us how far Henry III. extended his Building: Thoſe extending to the Weſt Doot are filletted with Braſs, as appears by the black Colour of the Rings. This Part of the Building was what the Abbots, and ſome ſucceeding Benefactors, carried on; of whom Edward I. was one, and Edward III. and Richard II. This Range of Pillars end in acute Angles, and throw the Roof into Variety of Intaglio, of which thoſe over the Choir are curiouſly gilt. On the Arches of theſe Pillars are Galleries of double Columns, and double arched, lying open to a Deambulatory of Brick 15 Feet wide, covering the Side Iſles, and enlightened by a ſecond Tier of Windows in the Out-Proſpect, and over this upper Tier of Arches are large Windows. Thus the Nave of this Church lifts itſelf by beauteous and magnificent Degrees; as does likewiſe the Croſs, anſwering in the ſame Manner, and turning off at four ſtately Pillars ſupporting the Dome, and riſing over the Pavement before the Altar, ſtretches itſelf North and South. The Window of the South Croſs is large and noble, and was repaired in the Year 1705. The Window of the North was anſwerable, but of late beautifully renewed. Beſides theſe Pillars that ſupport the Nave, there are Side Columns adjoining to the Wall, and between them Gothick Arches raiſed eight or ten Feet, as we ſee over Dr. Goodman's Tomb, and that of Jeffrey Chaucer; between the Arches of which were the Arms of Great Men at the Time of building this Church, with their Titles in Saxon Characters over them; many of which are now broken away to make Room for new Monuments; which, inſtead of the former Gothick Regularity, diſplay now an irregular Variety; no Care having been taken to ſupply the Injury of the old Form, except in the Caſe of two lately erected, over which are curious Gothick Arches, reared in ſome Imitation of the former, which, had they been done in other Caſes, had made a venerable Appearance. The Arms (of which many remain, and others ſupplied) were as follows, beginning with the antienteſt, which is:

ON the South Side:

1. S. Edwardus Rex & Confeſſor, B. a Croſs Patonce, between five Martlets, Or.
2. Henricus Tertius Rex Angliæ, Gules, three Lions Paſſant Guardant, Or.
3. Alexander Tertius Rex Scotorum, Or, a Lion Rampant within a double Treſſure, Flory, Counterflory, Gules.
4. Raimundus Comes Provincie, Or, four Pallets, Gules.
5. Rogerus de Quincy, Comes Wintonie, Gules, ſeven Maſcals conjoined, 3, 3, 1, Or.
6. Henricus de Lucy Comes Lincolnie, Quarterly, Gules and Or, a Bendlet Sab. and Fule of five Lambeaux, Argent.
7. Richardus Comes Cornubie, Arg. a Lion Rampant, Gules crowned, Or, within a Bordure Sab. Bezanty.
8. R. Comes Rotheſaie, Gules, three Lions Rampant, Argent.
9. Gulielmus Comes de Ferrariis & Derbie, Varie, Or, and Gules.
10. Gulielmus de Longaſpala Comes Sarum, B. ſix Lions Rampant, Or, 3, 2, 1.
11. Gulielmus de Valentia Comes Pembrochie, Barry of ten, Argent, and B. an Orle of Martlets, Gules.

19. Warinus de Vernon, Or, a Feſs, B.
20. Gulielmus de Malpas, Gules, three Pheons, Argent.

Over theſe are a Row of arched Windows, which, as well as the former, were finely painted, but now ruin'd; and particularly there remains in the Windows on the North Side of the Nave, toward the great Weſt Door, the Arms of King Henry III. before his Marriage, viz. two Lions, and afterward three Paſſant. And in the Window, over Smith's Tomb, by the Door entering the Weſt Cloiſter, the ſame, and the Arms of Queen Eleanor, viz. Or, four Pallats, Gules. Two Windows from which, on the ſame Range, toward the Weſt, was painted in Glaſs, the Story of Edward the Confeſſor and the Pilgrim, reckon'd by Caxton a very curious one, and the fineſt painted among them; under each of which were ſeveral Verſes in Latin; the firſt under the Pilgrim was thus defaced:

——gratia petit.

But we may gueſs, by thoſe under the King, they were asking an Alms.

Rex cui nil aliud præſto fuit, accipe, dixit,
Annulum, & ex digito detrahit ille ſuo.

The Story ſee before. In a South Window of this Abbey was the Picture of K. Richard II. with a White Hart Couchant, gorg'd with a Golden Coronet and Chain under a Tree; a fatal Badge to his Followers. In the Windows on the Weſt Side of the North Croſs were, not long ſince, the Arms of Queen Eleanor, Wife to King Edward I. viz. Quarterly Gules, a Caſtle Or, and Argent, a Lyon Rampant Purple; the third as the ſecond, the fourth as the firſt. At the Weſt End, in the great Weſt Window, is ſtill remaining a Painting very curious, though ſmall, of King Edward III, and ſome other Pieces; which Window was beautified by Abbot Kirton. In the Window South of this, built by John de Eſtny, Abbot, is a Painting of one of our Kings, but the Colours being of a Water Blue, no particular Face can be aſſign'd. Some have made it for Edward the Confeſſor; but that pacifick Prince is never repreſented in Armour; it's true, his Arms are underneath it; and from thence it may be conjectured to be King Richard II. who bore them, or elſe the Arms have been injudiciouſly patch'd in. In the Window on the North Side the Weſt Door is a Portraiture of Edward the Confeſſor in his Robes, the Face of which ſeems lively to repreſent the Simplicity of that Prince; under the Feet are likewiſe his Arms, viz. Azure, a Croſs Patonce between five Martlets, Or. In the Windows over his Shrine, at the Eaſt End of the Church, are ſeveral Paintings, which together caſt a religious Gleam, but are ſo confuſedly placed, that little or no Conjecture can be made. Theſe are the Remains of thoſe once curious Paintings.

Having thus in general deſcribed this Building, to be more particular, we muſt next take a Walk round it. Firſt, at the Entrance of the Weſt Door, which is now repairing (a conſiderable Sum being given for that and other Repairs of the Abbey by the laſt Parliament) there are two Squares, one on each Side incloſed ſo far in the Church, as the two firſt large Pillars which ſupport the Weſtern Towers. In the Incloſure on the Right Hand, is the Conſiſtory Court, with a Seat raiſed for the Judge; from which Court is a Paſſage through a Door into the Dean's Houſe. Almoſt over this Court is an antient Bay-Window, jutting into the Church, and gives Light to a Gallery in the Dean's Houſe, perhaps deſigned for View of Coronations, and other Proceſſions. The Square anſwering to the Conſiſtory-Court is the Bellfry. Advancing from the Weſt Door Eaſtward, about two Thirds of this Nave and Side Iſles, you come to the Gates of the Choir, which extend Weſtward from the four great Pillars that ſupport the Dome, to four of the Pillars of the Nave, and Eaſtward to two, being the Breadth of that and the Sides, and confined and fixed to thoſe Pillars. The Entrance into it is by a Pair of handſome Gates, grated with Iron, gilt; the Pilaſters and Pyramids finely carved and gilt; over which is a ſtately Organ, lately ſet up. The Floor of it is paved with the fineſt black and white Marble, paved at the Charge of Dr. Busby, Prebendary of this Church, and Maſter of Weſtminſter School. The antient Stalls are covered with Gothick Acute Arches, ſupported by ſmall Pillars of Iron and painted Purple; below which are Seats for the Choir; and in the Length of the Choir are Seats on each Side, with Mats on the Floor for the King's Scholars, as uſual, in the College Chapels. On the Right-Hand Side, at the Entrance in the Dean's Seat, formerly the Abbot's, and on the Left the Sub-Dean's, formerly the Prior's, from whence the Prebends Stalls proceed. Theſe Sides of old were called Choirs; that on the Right the Abbot's, or Superior, and that on the Left the Prior's, or Inferior; and in ſuch Senſe the Word is uſed by ſeveral of our antient Writers, when they ſpeak of the Choirs of a Church. Thus Paris, ſpeaking of a Novice of his Houſe preferred, Etſi fuerit de parte prioris (quam nos chorum Prioris appellamus transferetur ad Chorum Abbatis ubi ſupremus ſtatuetur.) The Choirs chanted alternately, as uſual; and from thence the ſame Hiſtorian ſays, That upon a Solemnity in this Church there was ſuch Shouting, that one Choir could not hear another. On the South Side, at the upper End of the Dean's Row, is the Pulpit, by which is remaining an antient Painting of that unhappy beautiful Prince Rich. II. ſitting in a Chair of Gold, dreſſed in a Veſt of Green, flowered with Flowers of Gold, and the Initial Letters of his Name, having on Shoes of Gold pondered with Pearls, the whole robed in Crimſon lined with Ermin, and the Shoulders ſpread with the ſame, faſtened under a Collar of Gold; the Pannel plaiſtered and gilt, with ſeveral Croſſes and Flowers of Gold emboſſed. The Length of this Picture is ſix Feet and 11 Inches, and the Breadth three Feet ſeven Inches. This Piece was juſtly taken, among other curious Things in this Church, by that curious Preſerver of Antiquities, J. Tallman, Eſq; and by him communicated to the Society of Antiquaries. The lower Part of this Picture is much defaced by the Backs of thoſe who fill that Stall, which is uſually the Place of the Lord Chancellor, when the Houſe of Lords repair hither.

PROCEEDING, we riſe by the firſt Aſcent towards the Altar, which was called, The ſecond Pavement, where was formerly placed a Wax-Light all the Time of Eaſter; for it is ſaid, in the Life of Abbot Sudbury, that he was buried ante paviment. ubi cereus paſchalis ſolet ſtare; and Thomas Henley in the lower Pavement, before the high Altar. On each Side of this Pavement are Doors entering into the North and South Croſſes. From hence, by another Aſcent, we come to the Altar, incloſed with a curious Balluſtrade, within which is a fine Pavement of Moſaick Work, made at the Charge of Abbot Ware. Round this Pavement, as well as in the Choir, are buried many of the Abbots of Weſtminſter, and other Perſons of Note; which ſee in the Survey of Tombs. The Altar, now ſtanding, is a ſtately and beautiful Piece of Marble, and was removed from the Chapel at Whitehall; on it is this Motto:

Anna auguſta, pia, fælix, auguſta parens patriæ. D.

Shewing it to be the Preſent of that religious and munificent Prince. On each Side the Altar are Doors in the Marble arched, and within them the old wooden cancellated Doors going into the Chapel of St. Edward, where our Kings retire and refreſh themſelves at their Coronations, and change their Dreſs; which Place is then hung with Tapeſtry kept for that Purpoſe in a large Cheſt in the old Reveſtry. This Part of the Choir, within the Rails, was formerly hung with Cloth of Arras, which contained on one Side the Story of St. Edward, Hugolme and the Thief, with Verſes; which ſee before, and the Story of the ſame King and the Pilgrim: On the other, the Coronation of our Kings, with this Diſtich under it:

Hanc Regum ſedem ſibi Petrus conſecret Edem,
Quam tu Papa regis inſignit & unctio regis.

But the Sides are now cloſed up, and the Backs of Valence's, Crouchback's, and other ſtately Tombs, once open to the Altar; and Mr. Keep ſays, to be ſeen in his Time, if you withdraw the Hangings, are now wainſcotted on this Side, and only to be ſeen in the Sacriſtary: Over which Wainſcot are now curious Hangings of freſh Tapeſtry, repreſenting the Story of Abraham and Lot parting on one Side, and the Meeting with Melchiſedeck on the other. On this Altar was formerly placed a large Croſs of Silver, to be touched at great Solemnities. Beyond this Altar is the Work of the old one remaining, about 15 Feet high, and level at the Top, that ſo the Shrine of St. Edward might be more viſible; at the Back of which, by a Riſe, is the Chapel of that King; and at the extreme Semicircle, one incloſed with Iron Doors for King Henry V. the End of which looks to the Turn of the Area, and fronts the Aſcent of Steps to K. Henry VII's Chapel on the other Side. On the Inſide of the Walls of this Chapel, are Preſſes of Wainſcot, with Shelves and Folding-Doors, very neat; there are in all ſix, viz. four on the two Sides, i. e. the Lining of the Side-Walls; and on each Side the Altar is one ſmaller. The Altar is aſcended by two Steps; one croſſes the Chapel, from the Extremes of the Side-Preſſes; and the other nearer the Altar, which is broke away, the Places where it was faſtened to the Wall viſible; over it are ſeveral Images, viz. St. George, St. Edward, and a void Nitch over the Altar, not improbable our Saviour's Paſſion, pulled down at the Reformation. There are others of Saints, not to be eaſily diſtinguiſhed. There are in this Chapel the Trophies of this Warlike Prince, viz. his Helmet, placed on the Wall, over-looking St. Edward's Shrine; his Shield, which is ſmall, the Handfaſt broken away, and the Colours of it not to be diſtinguiſh'd; his Saddle of Blue Velvet, pondered with Flowers-de-liz of Gold, the Velvet duſty, but ſubſtantial, and the Colour tolerably freſh; three large Reſts for Spears; a large Capariſon Cloth, tolerably freſh, being Quarterly of four, viz. the firſt in a Field engrail'd, the Colour not viſible; a Fez Cheque Sable and Azure; the ſecond, three Flowers-de-liz, Or, in a Field, Azure; the third as the ſecond; the fourth as the firſt. Over the Croſs is a Cloth, the Colour loſt, but on it are painted in Gold ſeveral large Harneſs-Buckles; the whole Cloth is ſurrounded with a Fringe of Brown and Gold Silk. Round this Chapel within, and likewiſe on the Out-Walls, looking to the Area, are ſeveral Devices, viz. 1. A Hart chained to the Stock of a Tree, on which is a Beacon. 2. A Swan. 3. A Stork, holding a Fiſh in its Mouth, &c.

HAVING thus deſcribed the Choir, and Aſcents from it, we return into the Body of the Church; where, in the North Iſle, through two large arched Doors, we deſcend by ſeveral Steps into the Weſt and Eaſt Walk of the Cloiſters, of which, with the other Places, we ſhall treat hereafter. Entering the North Croſs we ſee an open Gallery on the Weſt Side, lying over the Cloiſter, being the Office of the Regiſter of this Church, where the Deeds are preſerved in good Order in Preſſes. And againſt the Wall in this Office, is a Hart painted large as the Life, the Badge of King Richard, as before-mentioned. At the South End of this Croſs is the Chapel of St. Blaſe, where ſtands the Clock, and is now uſed as a Veſtry; but the old Reveſtry is beyond, going on one Side of this Chapel to it; for the Chapel of St. Blaſe was ſquare, and ſurrounded with a Stone Wall, as the Eaſt End now is, till the Wainſcot was lately placed, to part it off quite to the Weſt Wall, before which the Way to the Reveſtry lay open to this Croſs Iſle, on one Side the Chapel. This Reveſtry (which is called the Chapel of King Henry VIII, for what Reaſon is unknown, unleſs for that he ſtripped it of its Furniture) is incloſed with three Doors, the Inner cancellated; the Middle, which is very thick, lined with Skins like Parchment, and driven full of Nails. Theſe Skins they, by Tradition, tell us, were ſome Skins of the Danes, tanned, and given here as a Memorial of our Delivery from them. The Doors are very ſtrong, but were, notwith-notwithſtanding, broken open not many Years ſince, and the Place robbed. In this Reveſtry, at the upper End, is a Riſe of Stone in a Circular Form; over which is a very antient Painting of a Woman, with her Hair hanging looſe, and in her Hand an Inſtrument, ſeemingly of ſix ſmall Bars of Iron, an Inch Diſtance, and four or five long, holding it on her Finger by a Ring; 'tis in the Left Hand, and not unlikely to have been the Repreſentation of ſome Muſical Inſtrument. This Picture ſeems to be made for Eleanor, Queen to King Edward I. who was a great Benefactreſs, and upon Account of whom this Church was repaired, and for the Good of whoſe Soul it was endowed. Another Reaſon why it ſhould be her, is, there is a Benedictine kneeling at her Feet, as has been likewiſe painted on her Tomb. At the other End are a Set of Cranes of Wood, ſwinging, as if in a Rack, on which, formerly, the Copes and Veſtments in common Uſe were hung. Going hence, in the South Eaſt Angle of the North Croſs, is a low arched Door leading to the Old Palace, before which a Lamp uſually burned; and, proceeding Northward, we enter the Sacriſtary, or Area, round the Chapel, or raiſed Ground of St. Edward's Shrine, which bounds it on the Right, and the ſeveral Chapels of this Church anſwer on the Left, being ſwelled out beyond the high Building; as ſee in the other Proſpect, and curiouſly arched over, ſome in ſix, ſome eight, or more acute Gothick Angles.

The firſt is St. Benedict's, whoſe Altar was where the Counteſs of Hertford's Monument ſtands. 2. St. Edmund's. This is not the antient Chapel of St. Edmund, which Abbot Crokeſley built, Anno 1246; for that was juxta Septentrionale oſtium Eccleſiæ ſuæ, near the North Door of the Church, in which Chapel that Abbot was buried; but this, as Fleet obſerves, was in Time decayed, and his Body removed. In this Chapel St. Edmund's Altar was, where are now the Tombs of Knowles and Seymour. 3. St. Nicholas's Chapel. There was a Chapel dedicated to this Saint, through which was a Church Door for Agelricus, Biſhop of Durham, buried in the Porch of St. Nicholas's Chapel in Weſtminſter, Anno 1072. The Altar here was near where is the Tomb of Fane. Next is the Aſcent to Henry VII's Chapel; of which hereafter. 4. St. Paul. This Skreen was built for Robſart's Tomb, as appears by the Devices on it. The Altar was where is now the Tomb of the Counteſs of Suſſex; and there are Pieces of St. Paul's Story in Relieve by Fullerton's Tomb. 5. That of St. John Baptiſt, on which are ſome Relieves of Scripture Story; the Altar near Lord Hunſdon's Tomb, and by it Lockers for Books.

The Places where theſe Altars have been formerly affixed in this Church, may, with the utmoſt Eaſe, be diſcovered; there being generally a Riſe, croſs the Floor of the Chapel aſcending to them; and likewiſe by taking Notice where the antient Tombs lie, who generally choſe to have their Bodies laid near on the Sides of them: As for Inſtance, 1. In St. Benedict's, the Tomb of Langham directs its Feet to the North Side of the Altar belonging to that Saint. 2. In St. Edmund's, the Tomb of John Eltham, and the ſmall one for Edward III's Children. Here the Riſe is viſible, and the Place which was diſtinguiſhed till after the Reformation. The Dutcheſs of Suffolk, and others, had their Tombs there. 3. St. Nicholas's, near where Carew's old Tomb is.

There are ſeveral Aſcents to the Roof of this Church, viz. at the Weſt Corner of the North Croſs, and the Eaſt of the South, &c. and over the South Weſt Tower are ſmall Chambers, ſaid to have been formerly the Habitation of Bradſhaw, the Mock-Preſident of the Rebels bloody Court. This melancholy Wretch, it is ſaid, ended his Courſe in the blackeſt Deſparation.

St. Eraſmus, or Iſlip's Chapel, of which ſee the Work over his Tomb. This Roof he made and the Chantry over, and incloſed it from the Area; for we muſt not ſuppoſe he built it, the Place ſhewing us it anſwers to St. Benedict's from the original Foundation. Over the Door of St. John Baptiſt, where the Letters St. Eraſmus are, is a Nitch for a Statue, and the Devices of Iſlip round it, viz. an Eye and Slip of a Tree, and a Hand ſlipping a Tree; and in the Chantry over his Chapel, where the old Statues of our Kings are, was formerly painted an Hierogliphical Device of Cremer, ſome Time Abbot here, and Scholar in Chymiſtry to Raymund Lully, which was painted by his Order in this Place; but ſome, in the Rebellion, ſuppoſing it a Popiſh Story, have White-waſhed it over. The next Chapel is that of St. John Baptiſt, next that of St. Michael. Laſtly, That of St. Andrew, where is a ſtately Tomb erected for the late Duke of Newcaſtle. They are now laid into one, and are taken out of the North Croſs on the Eaſt, in Proportion to what the Cloiſters take from the South Croſs on the Weſt.

Besides theſe were the Chapels of St. Catharine and St. Anne. Of the latter is little or no Mention; but the former was a large and very antient one, and, in the old Church, of conſiderable Conſequence; for Anno 1189, in King Richard I's Time, Geoffrey de Lucy, Biſhop of Winton, and Hubert Walter of Salisbury, conſecrated in it by Baldwin, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ſo early as the Time of the Abbot Laurence, the King, Archbiſhops, Biſhops, and moſt of the Nobility, were convened here. In the Year 1173, in King Henry II's Time, a Council ſet in this Chapel, where Richard, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, ſwore Fealty. There are ſeveral Inſtances of this Kind, but all before the rebuilding this Church.

This Sacred and Reverend Structure has happily eſcaped the Fury of all Changes, ſaved in the Main, though with much Difficulty. She once had a ſad Proſpect of being laid level with the Earth, when in the Reign of King Edward VI. his Uncle, the Duke of Somerſet, a Man whoſe chief Religion was Intereſt, and who ſtopped at nothing that might gratify his Avarice; an Avarice the moſt ſacrilegious that any Hiſtory affords us, taking its ſordid Flight at the moſt ſtately Structures, and levelling the chief Glories of our Nation. This Man came after the firſt Gathering of King Henry VIII. and finding not ſo plenteous a Harveſt, rather than not partake of the Plunder, he pulled the very Orchard Trees that were left, meerly for Fuel. The Abbies being gone, his Sacrilege aſſaulted the Cathedrals of this Land, of which St. Paul's was a melancholy Inſtance, when he removed many Cart-loads of the Bones of Perſons of all Degrees, and carried them to Finsbury, to raiſe the Soil for a Windmill to ſtand upon, that he might employ the Materials of the Cloiſter, and curious Chapel where they lay, to his own Uſe. At this Time he demoliſh'd the inimitable Painting of Holbens, called the Dance of Death, unequal'd and invaluable. Another Inſtance of this Man's Rapine was his blowing up the ſtately and antient Church of the Knights of John at Jeruſalem with Gunpowder, after its Grandeur moved even King Henry VIII. to ſpare it, that he might build his Houſe with the Materials, which, with the Ruins of ſeveral Churches, he effected. By theſe Degrees of Sacrilege he arriv'd (O daring Thought!) to attempt to throw down this celebrated and venerable Church, expoſe the Royal Aſhes of our Princes in ſuch Manner as he did the others, and employ the curious Materials of this this to the ſame Uſe of Building. But a Thought of this Kind being in itſelf ſo unreaſonably miſchievous, he was prevented putting it in Practice, but not without the Gift of fourteen Manors in Lieu of it. Of the Revolutions of this Building, ſince his Attempt, and the Havock made there in the late Wars, with its Hiſtory to this Time, the Reader will find when we treat of the modern Affairs of this Church.

CHAP. II.

IN this ſolemn Survey we ſhall take the ſame Method with the late Mr. Dart, in his Antiquities and Hiſtory of this Church, and enter in at the Door of the South Croſs; cloſe to which, on the left Hand, againſt the Wall, is Ben Johnſon. erected a neat Marble Monument with a Buſto in Baſſo Relievo, to the Memory of Ben. Johnſon, the firſt who regulated the Engliſh Stage, after the Manner of the Antients. This Gentleman was the Son of a Clergyman in Weſtminſter, and was educated in the College belonging to this Abbey, while Mr. Cambden was Maſter of it, whoſe Care over him he gratefully acknowledged. After his Father's Death his Mother married her ſecond Husband, a Bricklayer, and taking him from School, forced him to work at her Husband's Trade; during which Time, 'tis ſaid, he worked upon ſome Buildings in Lincoln's Inn, with his Trowel in one Hand, and Horace in the other; but his Maſter Cambden taking Pity that excellent Parts ſhould be loſt, recommended him to Sir Walter Raleigh, whoſe Son he attended in his Travels; upon his Return they parted, and Mr. Johnſon went to Cambridge, where he was elected into St. John's College; his Stay here was uncertain; but afterwards coming to LONDON, and eager to try his natural Bent to Poetry, he applied himſelf to a private Booth, or Playhouſe, called the Green Curtain near Shoreditch, or Clerkenwell; but he made a poor Progreſs there: Afterwards, with the Advantages of politer Converſation, he attempted a ſecond Time, and ſucceeded ſo well as to gain the prime Character among the Dramatick Writers of that Time. He left the World in his 63d Year, Anno 1637, viz. the 16th of Auguſt, and was three Days after buried in this Abbey, in the North Iſle, under the antient Eſcutcheon of Robert de Roos, over whoſe Tomb one Young, afterwards a Knight in K. Charles II's Time, of Great Milton in Oxfordſhire, placed a Stone, which coſt eighteen Pence, and on it this Inſcription:

WHICH Stone is ſtill remaining. There was, 'tis ſaid, a conſiderable Sum of Money gathered among the curious Men of that Time, for erecting a Monument or Statue over him, but the Rebellion breaking out, prevented it. The Monument which is now ſet up in this Place we are ſpeaking of, was done by ſome Perſon of Quality whoſe Name was deſired to be concealed. It has only the old Inſcription, O rare Ben. Johnſon! and is a neat Piece of Work; but a Miſtake of the Sculptor, in ſetting the Buttons on the left Side of the Coat, occaſioned the following Epigram:

O rare Ben. Johnſon! What, a Turncoat grown!
Thou ne'er wer't ſuch till clad in Stone.
When Time thy Coat, thy only Coat impairs,
Thou'lt find a Patron in a hundred Years:
Then let not this Miſtake diſturb thy Sprite,
Another Age ſhall ſet thy Buttons right.

NEXT to Ben. Johnſon's is a rough Monu- Spencer
ment of coarſe Marble, which, by the Moiſture and Injury of the Weather, looks much older than it is. This is erected to the Memory of Mr. Edmond Spenſer, a Man of great Learning and ſo luxuriant a Fancy, that his Works abound with as great Variety of Images, and curious Paintings, as any Author in our own or any other Language afford. The preſent Inſcription on his Monument is as follows:

Heare lyes (expecting the ſecond
comminge of our Saviour Chriſt
Jeſus) the Body of Edmond Spencer,
the Prince of Poets in his Tyme,
whoſe Divine Spirit needs noe
othir Witneſſe then the Works
which he left behind him.
He was borne in LONDON in the Yeare 1510, and died in the Yeare
1596.

BY what Cambden and others ſay of this Monument, the Original was in Latin, and is thus Engliſhed:

Edmond Spenſer, born in LONDON, and chief Poet of our Age, which his Works, written with a happy Spirit and maſterly Genius teſtify. He died by a too early Death in the Year 1598, and lies buried near Chaucer, who was the firſt that ſucceſsfully wrote Poetry in the Engliſh Language; over whom are written theſe Epitaphs:

Here plac'd near Chaucer, Spencer claims a Room,
As next to him in Merit, next his Tomb.
To Place near Chaucer, Spenſer lays a Claim,
Near him his Tomb, but nearer far his Fame.
With thee our Engliſh Verſe was raiſed on high;
But now declined, it fears with you to die.

AS for the firſt Part, which are Mr. Cambden's Words, there is no Mention made of his Birth. And it is rightly enough to be perceived that the Verſes are two diſtinct Epitaphs, the Thought in the firſt and ſecond Lines being repeated in the third and fourth with very little Difference: But whether they were both placed on the Monument, or not, is doubtful. Perhaps the latter might (according to Mr. Cambden's Cuſtom) be an Improvement of his own on the former

CHAP. II.

IN this ſolemn Survey we ſhall take the ſame Method with the late Mr. Dart, in his Antiquities and Hiſtory of this Church, and enter in at the Door of the South Croſs; cloſe to which, on the left Hand, againſt the Wall, is Ben Johnſon. erected a neat Marble Monument with a Buſto in Baſſo Relievo, to the Memory of Ben. Johnſon, the firſt who regulated the Engliſh Stage, after the Manner of the Antients. This Gentleman was the Son of a Clergyman in Weſtminſter, and was educated in the College belonging to this Abbey, while Mr. Cambden was Maſter of it, whoſe Care over him he gratefully acknowledged. After his Father's Death his Mother married her ſecond Husband, a Bricklayer, and taking him from School, forced him to work at her Husband's Trade; during which Time, 'tis ſaid, he worked upon ſome Buildings in Lincoln's Inn, with his Trowel in one Hand, and Horace in the other; but his Maſter Cambden taking Pity that excellent Parts ſhould be loſt, recommended him to Sir Walter Raleigh, whoſe Son he attended in his Travels; upon his Return they parted, and Mr. Johnſon went to Cambridge, where he was elected into St. John's College; his Stay here was uncertain; but afterwards coming to LONDON, and eager to try his natural Bent to Poetry, he applied himſelf to a private Booth, or Playhouſe, called the Green Curtain near Shoreditch, or Clerkenwell; but he made a poor Progreſs there: Afterwards, with the Advantages of politer Converſation, he attempted a ſecond Time, and ſucceeded ſo well as to gain the prime Character among the Dramatick Writers of that Time. He left the World in his 63d Year, Anno 1637, viz. the 16th of Auguſt, and was three Days after buried in this Abbey, in the North Iſle, under the antient Eſcutcheon of Robert de Roos, over whoſe Tomb one Young, afterwards a Knight in K. Charles II's Time, of Great Milton in Oxfordſhire, placed a Stone, which coſt eighteen Pence, and on it this Inſcription:

WHICH Stone is ſtill remaining. There was, 'tis ſaid, a conſiderable Sum of Money gathered among the curious Men of that Time, for erecting a Monument or Statue over him, but the Rebellion breaking out, prevented it. The Monument which is now ſet up in this Place we are ſpeaking of, was done by ſome Perſon of Quality whoſe Name was deſired to be concealed. It has only the old Inſcription, O rare Ben. Johnſon! and is a neat Piece of Work; but a Miſtake of the Sculptor, in ſetting the Buttons on the left Side of the Coat, occaſioned the following Epigram:

O rare Ben. Johnſon! What, a Turncoat grown!
Thou ne'er wer't ſuch till clad in Stone.
When Time thy Coat, thy only Coat impairs,
Thou'lt find a Patron in a hundred Years:
Then let not this Miſtake diſturb thy Sprite,
Another Age ſhall ſet thy Buttons right.

NEXT to Ben. Johnſon's is a rough Monu- Spencer
ment of coarſe Marble, which, by the Moiſture and Injury of the Weather, looks much older than it is. This is erected to the Memory of Mr. Edmond Spenſer, a Man of great Learning and ſo luxuriant a Fancy, that his Works abound with as great Variety of Images, and curious Paintings, as any Author in our own or any other Language afford. The preſent Inſcription on his Monument is as follows:

Heare lyes (expecting the ſecond
comminge of our Saviour Chriſt
Jeſus) the Body of Edmond Spencer,
the Prince of Poets in his Tyme,
whoſe Divine Spirit needs noe
othir Witneſſe then the Works
which he left behind him.
He was borne in LONDON in the Yeare 1510, and died in the Yeare
1596.

BY what Cambden and others ſay of this Monument, the Original was in Latin, and is thus Engliſhed:

Edmond Spenſer, born in LONDON, and chief Poet of our Age, which his Works, written with a happy Spirit and maſterly Genius teſtify. He died by a too early Death in the Year 1598, and lies buried near Chaucer, who was the firſt that ſucceſsfully wrote Poetry in the Engliſh Language; over whom are written theſe Epitaphs:

Here plac'd near Chaucer, Spencer claims a Room,
As next to him in Merit, next his Tomb.
To Place near Chaucer, Spenſer lays a Claim,
Near him his Tomb, but nearer far his Fame.
With thee our Engliſh Verſe was raiſed on high;
But now declined, it fears with you to die.

AS for the firſt Part, which are Mr. Cambden's Words, there is no Mention made of his Birth. And it is rightly enough to be perceived that the Verſes are two diſtinct Epitaphs, the Thought in the firſt and ſecond Lines being repeated in the third and fourth with very little Difference: But whether they were both placed on the Monument, or not, is doubtful. Perhaps the latter might (according to Mr. Cambden's Cuſtom) be an Improvement of his own on the former former. But what has raiſed the chief Diſpute concerning the Epitaph, is the Date of Mr. Spenſer's Birth, which upon the Tomb was ſaid to be in 1510. This indeed ſquares but ill with Mr. Camden's Expreſſion of an early Death: Yet however, (if poetically placed) may only relate to the too haſty Loſs of ſuch a Man, and allude to his Merit rather than his Years. That Mr. Spenſer was an old Man at his Death is generally ſuppoſed, but of what Age is doubtful, and was perhaps when this Inſcription was placed here, which was not till the Year 1631; and therefore this of 1510, being added to ſupply the Vacancy, requires no great Streſs to be laid upon it.

Butler. On the other Side Spenſer's Monument, affixed to the Wall, a Stone Buſto, is erected to the Memory of Mr. Butler, the celebrated Author of Hudibras.

Mr. Butler was buried in the Church-Yard of St. Paul's Covent-Garden. The Latin Epitaph on his Tomb is thus tranſlated:

Sacred to the Memory
Of
SAMUEL BUTLER,
Who was born at Strenſham in Worceſterſhire, 1612, and died at LONDON, 1680.

A Man of extraordinary Learning, Wit, and Integrity,
Peculiarly happy in his Writings, not ſo in the Encouragement of them;
The curious Inventor of a Kind of Satire amongſt us,
By which he pluck'd the Mask from pious Hypocriſy,
And plentifully expoſed the Villany of Rebels:
The firſt and laſt of Writers in his Way.

Leſt he, who, (when alive,) was deſtitute of all Things.
Should, (when dead,) want likewiſe a Monument,
John Barber, Citizen of LONDON, hath taken Care,
By placing this Stone over him, 1721.

Fronting the Door, and next to Butler's, is a Monument fixed to the Wall, erected in Memory of Mr. Shadwell; this Gentleman, whoſe Talent lay much in the Comick Part of the Dramma, had the Misfortune to fall under the Laſh of Mr. Dryden, in thoſe two ſevere Satires, the Character of Ogg, in the ſecond Part of Abſolom and Achitophel, and Macflecknoe. He died at Chelſea, by taking Opium, to which he had been long accuſtomed, and was there buried. But his Son, Sir John Shadwell, ſome Years after, ſet up this Monument in the Abbey, the Latin Inſcription on which is thus Engliſhed:

Shadwell.

Sacred to the Memory
Of
THOMAS SHADWELL, Eſq;
Deſcended from an antient Family in Staffordſhire, Poet Laureat, and Hiſtoriographer in the Reign of King William and Queen Mary. Died the 20th Day of November, Anno Dom. 1692, and in the 55th Year of his Age.
John Shadwell, Son of Thomas, Doctor of Phyſick, in Perpetual Teſtimony of Filial Duty to his dear Father, hath cauſed this Monument to be erected.

Next to the laſt mentioned, is a ſtately Marble Monument, erected to the Memory of Mr. Prior, the Poet; the Buſto was the Work of a famous Statuary in Paris, named Rigault, and made a Preſent of by the late French King to Mr. Prior, who ordered it to be ſet up in the Abbey, and, for this Piece of Poſthumous Vanity, as he expreſſed it in his Will, he left the Sum of Five Hundred Pounds.

Prior.

He died at Wimple, a Seat of the preſent Earl of Oxford, in Cambridgeſhire, from whence he was brought to the Jeruſalem Chamber, and buried in this Church.

He had his Education at Weſtminſter School, and St. John's College in Cambridge, of which he continued Fellow to the Time of his Death.

In the Year 1690 he was ſent Secretary, by King William and Queen Mary, to the Congreſs of the Allies at the Hague.

In the Year 1697, in the ſame Capacity, to the Ambaſſadors at the Treaty of Ryſwick.

He was afterwards a Commiſſioner of the Cuſtoms; laſtly, he was ſent by Queen Anne, Plenipotentiary to the French King Lewis XIV. in the Year 1711, to negotiate the Peace afterwards concluded at Utrecht; and while he was deſigning to write a Hiſtory of his own Time, a Fever creeping on him by Degrees, broke both the Thread of his Life and his Work.

Sept. 18. Anno Dom. 1721.
Ætat. 57.

On the Right Hand of Mr. Prior's, and in a Line with Mr. Shadwell's Monument, is a very neat Table Monument, with his Buſto, erected to the Memory of Monſieur St. Evremond, a Gentleman of a very gay Turn of Humour as well as Writing. He was a perfect Maſter of what the French call the Belles Lettres, as appears by his Writings. He had a very great Value for the Dutcheſs of Mazarin, with whom he kept an Intimacy to the laſt. He lived to a great Age, and preſerved his Humour and Intellects to the laſt. He fell ill of a violent Fit of the Stranguary, to which he had been long addicted, together with the Loſs of his Stomach; whereupon he ſettled his worldly Affairs, in order to leave it, and made his Will on the 24th of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1703; wherein was one Legacy worth Remark, which is here ſet down with the Preamble:

St. Evremond.

"I under-ſign'd Charles de St. Dennis le Guaſt, Lord of St. Evremond, of the Pariſh of James Weſtminſter, being in Sound Mind, of Memory and Underſtanding, and willing to diſpoſe of ſuch Goods as I ſhall be poſſeſſed of at my Death: In the firſt Place, I implore God Almighty's Mercy, and ſurrender my Soul into his Hands. I leave to the Executor of this my laſt Will, the Care of burying my Body, without Pomp, in ſuch Manner as he ſhall think moſt fitting. I bequeath to the poor French Refugees the Sum of twenty Pounds Sterling. I alſo bequeath to the poor Roman Catholicks, or of any other Religion, the like Sum of twenty Pounds Sterling, &c." He died the 9th of September; the Latin Inſcription on his Monument is thus Engliſhed:

CHARLES de St. DENNIS, Lord of St. Evremond, Deſcended from a noble Family in Normandy;
Who, when young, apply'd himſelf to Military Affairs,
And, by ſeveral meritorious Advances, was preferr'd to be Marſhal in the Army,
Where he more than once gave Proofs of his Probity and Courage
With Conde, Turene, and other famous Generals.
At length, leaving his Country, he came into Holland,
And was from thence invited into England by King Charles the Second.
He very happily cultivated Philoſophy, and the uſual Parts of Learning;
He poliſhed, adorned, and enriched the French Language,
By his Writings both in Proſe and Verſe.
He deſervedly gain'd Favour and Bounty of the Kings of England,
And the Eſteem and Friendſhip of the Nobility.
And having reach'd beyond his 90th Year of Age, he dy'd the 9th of September 1703.
That this ingenious Man may be remembred
Among the beſt Writers of his Age,
His Friends (concern'd at his Loſs,)
Have plac'd this Monument.

NEAR the Corner of St. Blaſe's Chapel, on the Weſt Side of the South Croſs, was buried William Bedel, and Cecilia his Wife; over whoſe Grave upon a Braſs Plate remaining in Weaver's Time, was this Epitaph:

In Engliſh thus:

Here lies William Bedel, Eſq; and Cicily his Wife, Daughter and Heir of Sir Robert Green, Knt. and alſo Heir of Sir John Cley, Kt. which William was Treaſurer of the Houſhold to the excellent Princeſs Margaret, late Counteſs of Richmond and Derby, Mother of K. Henry VII. and alſo Treaſurer of the Houſhold to the Reverend Father in God, and Chancellor of this Kingdom, and Prieſt-Cardinal of the Holy Roman Church by Title of St. Cecilia; which William died the 3d of July 1518.

IN this South Croſs lies buried, without any Monument yet erected to his Memory, Mr. Nicholas Rowe, who was late Poet Laureat. He has written ſeveral Plays which have pleaſed the Town, and finiſhed, not long before his Death, a Tranſlation of Lucan's Pharſalia. Rowe.

OVER-AGAINST Mr. Prior's Monument, is one of blue Marble, erected to the Memory of Mr. Drayton, with this Inſcription in Letters of Gold, but now faded: Drayton.

Michael Draiton, Eſq; a memorable Poet of this Age, Exchanged his Laurell for a Crown of Glory, Ann. 1631.
Doe, pious Marble, let thy Readers knowe,
What they, and what their Children owe.
To Draiton's Name, whoſe ſacred Duſt
We recommend unto thy Truſt.
Protect his Mem'ry, and preſerve his Storye,
Remaine a laſtinge Monument of his Glorye;
And when thy Ruines ſhall diſclaime
To be the Treas'rer of his Name;
His Name, that cannot fade, ſhall be
An everlaſting Monument to thee.

THIS Gentleman was no indifferent Poet in his Time, and his Compoſitions have ſome Beauties in them which might become the beſt of our modern Writers. He was a Man much verſed in our Engliſh Hiſtory, as well as the Antiquities of our Country. The firſt appears by his Epiſtles and Legends; and the latter by his Polyalbion, which the learned Selden thought worthy his Comment.

NEXT adjoining to Mr. Drayton's, and between that and Chaucer's Monument, is a curious Cenotaph of white Marble, to the Memory of Mr. John Phillips, on which is a Buſto in Relieve, having on one Side a Lawrel, and on the other an Apple-Tree weaving an Arbour over it, and on a Scroll at the Top, this Motto, Honos erit huic quoque pomo; which Quotation from Virgil, is not only a Compliment to the Place of his Birth, that brave County Herefordſhire, but alſo to his Writing an excellent Poem on Cyder; not to the Honour of that County only, but of all England in general, to which Book this Motto was prefixed. This Gentleman wrote but few Pieces; and prodigious it is to think thoſe few could be ſo correct and finiſhed in the too few Years of his Life. In his Blenheim he has ſhewn us what a riper Age could have performed in the Epick Way. His Cyder, though it is not properly a Georgick, is ſomething as good, and the very beſt of its Kind, ſince Virgil wrote in that Manner. And that he was a perfect Maſter of Horace, and had the very Soul of him, in the Lyrick Way, appears by his Ode to my Lord Bolingbroke, on Tobacco. The Splendid Shilling is intirely his own, and one of the beſt Pieces, excepting only Milton's Paradiſe Loſt, that ever was wrote in Engliſh Blank Verſe. This Gentleman bid fair for obliging the Age with many Excellencies, but that Hope was deſtroyed by an immature Death. He died at Hereford, and was there buried, as is ſaid, in the following Inſcription, upon his Cenotaph in this Church: Mr. John Phillips.

In the Church of Hereford lies the Body,
In this is erected the Effigies,
And through all Britain is ſpread the Fame
of JOHN PHILIPS,
Who, eſteemed alike by all good and learned Men,
His immortal Wit, (cultivated with various Kinds of Learning,)
Adorn'd and embelliſh'd
With extraordinary Candour of Mind,
And Plainneſs and Sincerity of Manners.
That early Thirſt of Learning,
Which (when a Boy) ſeized him at Wincheſter,
He continually gratified while a Student at Chriſt Church;
In which Seat of the Muſes,
Fir'd by the curious Performances of his Collegians,
And intently familiar with the beſt of Authors,
He attempted Poetry in the Engliſh Language,
Happily drawn from the Greek and Latin Springs,
And well worthy an Attick or Roman Ear.
The Jingle in Verſe in Rhyme he gave up,
For that antient, free, and various Manner,
Suited and attemper'd to Things themſelves,
Not always returning in the ſame Round of Meaſure,
Nor meeting in the ſame Cloſe of Sound.
In this ſingle Inſtance of Fame he was ſecond to Milton,
But in the firſt, equal to him.
Whenever he undertook to embelliſh any Subjects,
Whether they were low, lofty, or mid'ling,
He both diſcovered and imitated,
Whatever was beautiful in others.
To whatever Subject he adapted his Style,
He was juſt in his Expreſſion, and curiouſly inventive of Words.
O Chaucer, Father and Founder of Engliſh Poetry.
Suffer this, tho' a bold Deviator from thy antient Law of Rhyme,
A Place adjoining to thee.
For ſurely it will not misbecome thy Duſt,
To be encircled by a Chorus of Bards ever y where around thee.
Simon Harcourt, Knight,
Who, (in regard he was valuable both for Character and Writings.)
Was whilſt living, his Encourager,
After his Death, in reſpectful Remembrance of him,
Hath erected this Monument.

J. Philips, Son of Stephen Philips, D. D. Archdeacon of Salop, was born at Brampton in Oxfordſhire, Dec. 30, 1676, died at Hereford, February 15, 1708.

ADJOINING to this of Mr. Philips, is an antient Monument of grey Marble in the Wall, erected to the Memory of the Father of our Engliſh Poets, Jeffrey Chaucer, who was born in LONDON, in the Year 1328. His Father was Sir John Chaucer, employed in foreign Affairs by Edward III. Our Poet was firſt brought up at Cambridge, then at Merton in Oxford; hence he ſtudied the Law in the Middle-Temple: After this, he grew a Favourite at Court, was Valet to the King, and Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber; afterwards Shield-Bearer to the King; then Maſter or Comptroller of the Cuſtoms of LONDON, and Ambaſſador to Genoa; and laſtly, Chaucer.

laſtly, to Monſtrevil. He was a great Favourite of this Prince, who granted him many Penſions and Favours. In the Time of King Richard II. he fled for High Treaſon, but was taken, and committed to the Tower, where he wrote his Teſtament of Love. He and the Duke of Lancaſter, John of Gaunt, marrying two Siſters, the Daughters of one Payne Roet, he grew a great Favourite with Hen. IV. but died at LONDON in the 2d Year of his Reign, aged 72 Years, and was buried before the Chapel of St. Bennet, where his Stone of broad grey Marble was not long ſince remaining; but was taken up when Mr. Dryden's Monument was erected, and ſawed to mend the Pavement. Upon the corner Pillar of St. Bennet's Chapel hung antiently a leaden Plate, with his Epitaph, written by Surigonius, a Poet of Milan, printed before his Works. This was all the Monument Chaucer had till about the Year 1555. Mr. Nicholas Brigham erected this in a convenient Place, as near his Grave as he could, on which was formerly painted his Picture in a Blank on the North Side the Epitaph, but now quite defaced. It was exactly like the Painting of Ocklefe, printed before the old Edition, and was remaining in Mr. Aſhmole's Time, who in one of his Treatiſes has given us the Monument. It is likewiſe expreſſed in the ſame Manner before the new Edition of his Works. There was formerly round the Verge of the Tomb theſe Verſes:

Si rogitas quis eram forſan te fama docebit,
Quod ſi fama neget mundi quia gloria tranſit,
Hæc monumenta lege.

On the Inſide of the Tomb was his Arms, now gone, but the ſame are painted over it under the Arch of the Church. The Latin Epitaph is but ſhort, and ſignifies: That Geoffry Chaucer, who was formerly the chief Poet in England, lies buried there, and that he died October 25, in the Year 1400.

Death is the Repoſe of the Weary.

Nicholas Brigham, a Lover of the Muſes, erected this 1556.

Adjoining to Chaucer's is Mr. Cowley's Monument, of white Marble, with the Epitaph, Abraham Cowley, &c. In Engliſh thus: Cowley.

Near this Place lies
ABRAHAM COWLEY,
The Pindar, Horace, and Virgil of England,
And the Delight, Ornament, and Favourite of his Age.

While ſacred Bard far Worlds thy Works proclaim,
And you ſurvive in an immortal Fame:
Here may you bleſs'd in pleaſing Quiet lie,
To guard thy Urn may hoary Faith ſtand by;
And all thy favourite tuneful Nine repair,
To watch thy Duſt with a perpetual Care.
Sacred for ever may this Place be made,
And may no deſperate Hand preſume t' invade.
With Touch unhallow'd, this religious Room,
Or dare affront thy venerable Tomb:
Unmov'd and undiſturb'd, till Time ſhall end,
May Cowley's Duſt this Marble Shrine defend.

" So wiſhes, and deſires that Wiſh may be ſa-
" cred to Poſterity, George Duke of Bucking- " ham, who erected this Marble Monument for " that incomparable Man. He dyed in the 49th
" Year of his Age, and was carried from Buck- " ingham-Houſe with honourable Pomp; his
" Exequies being attended by Perſons of illuſ-
" trious Character of all Degrees, and buried
" the 3d of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1667.

On the Pavement before the Monument is a large blue Stone, thus engraved:

ABRAHAMUS COWLEIUS, H. S. E. 1667.

On a Table Monument, adjoining to St. Benedict's Chapel, placed high on a Pillar, is a Latin Inſcription, thus Engliſhed:

Sacred to the Memory of
MARTHA BIRCH,
The Daughter of Samuel Viner, Eſq;
She was firſt married to Francis Millington, Eſq;
Afterwards to Peter Birch, a Prebendary
Of this Church.
She was religious, modeſt, and prudent.
The beſt of Wives to both her Husbands.
She died the 25th of May 1703,
Aged 50 Years.

Next to Mr. Cowley's Monument, and fronting the Chapel of St. Benedict, towards the South Croſs, being incloſed with a Balliſter, and Wings of Iron Rails, the Breadth of the Chapel, is a Monument of Marble erected to Dryden, plain, majeſtick, and juſt, equal to the great Imagination of the Patron who erected it, and the Merits of the Poet whoſe Name it bears. Dryden.

J. DRYDEN.
Born 1632. Died May 1, 1700.
John Sheffield, Duke of Buckinghamſhire,
Erected this Monument 1720.

Mr. Dryden was by Deſcent a Gentlemen of a good Family in Northamptonſhire; and born, as he himſelf ſays, in a Village belonging to the late Earl of Exeter in that County. He had his Education at Weſtminſter School (being King's Scholar there) under the learned Dr. Busby; and in the Year 1650, he was elected from thence to Trinity College in Cambridge, where he purſued his Studies, with his worthy Friend Sir William Bowyer of Denham Court.

Mr. Congreve ſpeaks thus of Mr. Dryden's Writings:

" As to Mr. Dryden's Writings, I ſhall not " take upon me to ſpeak of them; for to ſay
" little of them, would not be to do them Right;
" and to ſay all that I ought to ſay, would be " very voluminous. But I may venture to ſay
" in general Terms, that no Man hath written
" in our Language ſo much and ſo various Mat" ter, and in ſo various Manners, ſo well. An" other Thing I may ſay was very peculiar to " him; which is, that his Parts did not decline
" with his Years: But that he was an improving " Writer to his laſt, even to near 70 Years of " Age; improving even in Fire and Imagination,
" as well as in Judgement; witneſs his Ode on " St. Cecilia's Day, and his Fables, his laſt Per" formances.

" He was equally excellent in Verſe and
" Proſe: His Proſe had all the Clearneſs imagi" nable, together with all the Nobleneſs of Ex-
" preſſion, all the Graces and Ornaments proper " and peculiar to it, without deviating into the " Language or Diction of Poetry. I make this " Obſervation only to diſtinguiſh his Stile from " that of many Poetical Writers, who meaning
" to write harmoniouſly in Proſe, do in Truth
" often write meer Blank Verſe.

" His

" His Verſification and his Numbers he could " learn of no Body; for he firſt poſſeſſed thoſe " Talents of Perfection in our Tongue; and they " who have beſt ſucceeded in them ſince his " Time, have been indebted to his Example; " and the more they have been able to imitate " him, the better have they ſucceeded.

" As his Stile in Proſe is always ſpecifically " different from his Stile in Poetry, ſo on the " other hand, in his Poems, his Diction is, where- " ever his Subject requires it, ſo ſublime, and " ſo truly Poetical, that its Eſſence, like that of " pure Gold, cannot be deſtroy'd. Take his " Verſes, and diveſt them of their Rhimes, diſ- " joint them in their Numbers, tranſpoſe their " Expreſſions, make what Arrangement and Diſ- " poſition you pleaſe of his Words, yet ſhall " there eternally be Poetry, and ſomething which " will be found incapable of being reſolved into " abſolute Proſe; an inconteſtable Character- " iſtick of a truly Poetical Genius.

" I will ſay but one more Word in general of " his Writings; which is, that what he has done " in any one Species, or diſtinct Kind, would " have been ſufficient to have acquir'd him a " great Name: If he had written nothing but " his Prefaces, or nothing but his Songs, or his " Prologues, each of them would have intitled " him to the Preference and Diſtinction of ex- " celling in his Kind.

ON this Side the South Croſs, and not far from this Place, was buried one Sir John de Shorditch; of which Name there were two; the firſt a Man of Character in the Time of King Henry III. by whom he was ſent Ambaſſador to Rome; the ſecond in like Favour with King Edward III. by whom he was ſent Ambaſſador to France, and was the Man who vindicated to the French King his Maſter's bearing the Engliſh Pards in his Arms before the French Lillies. If what the Hiſtorians of this Church ſay, is true, that Helenah is Wife lies buried here, it ſhould ſeem to be the latter; for he and Helena, in the 14th of King Edward III. granted to one Croſtone, their Chaplain, certain Lands in Hackney, where he had a Seat call'd Shorditch Place, now, by the ignorant People, Jane Shore's Houſe. But then, if it is the latter, it ſeems ſtrange that Fleet mentions Abbot Curlington's being buried near the Tomb of this Knight, when he died in 1331, in the 7th of King Edward III. And this was in the French Wars in the 14th, when he made the aforeſaid Aſſignment. If it is urged, that was a Tomb of Diſtinction, and Fleet took it as a Mark for the Place, he had no Need, the Abbot's Tomb bearing his Image, and an Inſcription. To which of them this Tomb belonged, there are no Remains of it at this Time, unleſs that plain Grey Stone between Hauly and Dryden, be it: But the antient Account of its Place was in the South Croſs, before the Altar of St. Benedict, under a Lamp there burning, near the Door.

ON the Pavements before Mr. Dryden's Monument, as far as the Pillar of the Croſs, is an antient Stone of grey Marble, on which, by the Marks, has been an Image of a Man in Armour, but the Plates are torn off. Under this lies the Body of one John Haule, who was a Soldier in King Edward III's Army; and having at the Battle of Nazers in Spain, together with one Schakel, taken the Earl of Dene Priſoner, he delivered his Son as Surety. Upon their coming to England, the Duke of Lancaſter demanded him for the King, who would give them little or nothing for him: Upon denying which, they were thrown into the Tower; but eſcaping thence took Sanctuary here, whither Sir Ralph Ferreris and Sir Alan Buxhal, Captain of the Tower, (or as others ſay, the Lord Latimer; for all of them who were Creatures of the Duke, reſpected the Church no more than their Maſter,) with 50 Men armed came, and having wiled Schakel out of the Bounds, they attempted to ſeize Haule, who ſtoutly reſiſted them, but at length was ſlain in the Choir, before the Prior's Stall, not in the Chancel, as Weaver ſays, commending him to GOD, the Avenger of Wrong: They ſlew a Servant of the Abbey, who pleaded for him, upon Account of Church-Privilege. This was on the 11th of Auguſt, 1378.

FRONTING the South Croſs, and erected againſt the Outſide Wainſcot of the Choir are two ſtately Monuments of Marble, to the Memory of two very excellent Men: The firſt is Dr. Busby, whoſe Epitaph has been thus rendered in Engliſh:

See! underneath lies
The Image of BUSBY:
Such as he appeared to human Eyes.
If you deſire to ſee,
That part of him more deeply impreſs'd in their Minds, Dr. Busby.
Thoughtfully ſurvey the ſhining Characters
Of both Univerſities, and the Law,
And the leading and principal Men,
In the Court, the Parliament, and the Church.
When you have view'd around,
Such a full ſown and plenteous Harveſt of ingenious Men,
Only conſider what muſt he have been who ſow'd it.
This muſt be he, who the natural Genius in every one Nicely diſcover'd,
Uſefully managed,
And happily improved.
This he,
Who, by his Inſtructions, ſo form'd and nouriſh'd
The Minds of Youth,
That they learn'd to grow wiſe, as they learn'd Language;
And while they were educated as Boys,
They improved as Men.
As many as taught by him,
Appeared in Publick,
So many faithful and ſtrenuous Aſſerters were raiſed
To the Monarchy and Church of England,
Laſtly, whatſoever Fame
The School of Weſtminſter boaſts,
And whatever Advantages Mankind ſhall reap from thence,
Is principally owing to Busby,
And will be owing to him in all Ages.
So uſeful a Member of the Commonwealth,
God was pleaſed to bleſs with Length of Days,
And Encreaſe of Riches.
And in Return, he chearfully devoted himſelf and his
For the Promotion of Piety,
To relieve the Poor,
To encourage Learning,
To repair Churches.
Theſe were his Ways of enjoying Wealth;
And what he did not employ in Life-Time to this Purpoſe,
He bequeathed at his Death.

ON

On the Pedeſtal:

Richard Busby, of the County of Lincoln, D. D.
Born at Lutton 1606, Sept. 22.
Made Maſter of Weſtmin. Coll. 1640, Dec. 23.
Elected { Prebend of Weſtminſter and Treaſurer of Wells, } A. D. 1660. { July 5. Aug. 11.
Died 1695, April 5.

The other is to the Memory of Dr. South, the Inſcription on which is thus Engliſhed:

Not far from this Monument.
Dr. South. ROBERT SOUTH, D. D.
Gave Orders his Aſhes ſhould reſt near thoſe of his Maſter Busby:
A Man of Learning, Piety, and Simplicity of Manners.
He was Scholar of Weſtminſter School, then Student of Chriſt Church;
And after the Reſtauration of King Charles, by the Intereſt of my Lord Clarendon, Prebendary of both Colleges where he was educated:
A firm and indefatigable Champion for the Church,
In her flouriſhing and afflicted State.
A ſtout Aſſerter of the Chriſtian Faith.
Excellent in his Sermons for a new Method entirely his own,
But illuſtrious and admirable;
Inſomuch that, vers'd in all theſe Qualities, there is no room to doubt,
Whether he was moſt excellent
In his fine Turn of Thought, or Force of Argument,
The Richneſs of his Doctrine, or the Beauty and Weight of his Language.
With theſe Aſſiſtances, being undoubtedly at the ſame Time poſſeſs'd,
He not only gained upon the Souls of his Audidience, but inflamed and moved them.
In orthodox Divinity, as well as human Learning, he was ſcarce equall'd;
And, at the ſame Time, familiar with the School-Men,
Out of whom he made uſe of whatever was wholeſome and nouriſhing.
And having reliev'd it from their nice and intricate-Diſtinctions.
And Cloud and Jargon of Words,
He ſet it off in fine Language.
If at any Time he was ſevere in his expoſing the Vices of Men or the Times,
It ought not to be aſcribed to Party or ill Nature,
For in all theſe Caſes he openly expreſſed,
What he had before deliberately weigh'd in his Mind:
And, being well aſſured of his own Innocence,
He, warm'd with a generous Indignation,
Expoſed whatever was baſe in Life, or ſuperficial or affected in Religion.
Intent on theſe Studies, and his Mind working that Way,
When he was more ſecluded from Men in his Converſation,
He was not wanting to them in his Aſſiſtance:
How munificent, how pitiful he was in his Temper, to thoſe in Diſtreſs,
Is evident from his extended Charity when living, and Legacies at his Death.

Upon the Pedeſtal:

He was Rector of Iſlip, where he rebuilt the Rectory,
And founded and endowed a School for the Education of poor Children:
An Encourager of Learning both at this Place and Chriſt Church:
For enlarging the Buildings of which College, he left by His Will the Sum of one thouſand Pounds, three hundred
Of which to be paid in one Year after his Deceaſe;
Laſting Monuments of his Piety to God, and Beneficence towards Men.
He died the 8th of July, A. D. 1716,
Aged 82 Years.

Adjoining to this Tomb is the Opening of the Area leading to the ſeveral Chapels, encloſed with fine Palliſades of Iron, where Perſons attend to explain and ſhew the Tombs. Of which Chapels, the firſt is that of St. Benedict: In order to enter which, we muſt go to the South Side of Mr. Dryden's Monument, where is a Door made in the Iron Rails adjoining to his Tomb, and which with that, ſeparates this Chapel from the South Croſs: This is called by ſome the Dean's Chapel, becauſe the two firſt Deans of this Church were buried here.

On the North Side of this Chapel, and adjoining to the Area, is a very handſome antient Tomb of Free-ſtone, railed round with Iron, and a Canopy of Wood, almoſt broke away at the Coronation of King George I. on which lies the Image of a Biſhop in his Habit: This was erected to the Memory of Simon de Langham, a great Benefactor to this Church, in which he was brought up, being a Monk of this Houſe, and afterwards Prior, and laſtly Abbot; then Biſhop of Ely, London, and laſtly, Archbiſhop of Canterbury: He was likewiſe Archdeacon and Treaſurer of Wells, which he held in commendam. He was immenſely rich, which, whether he acquired by the many Places he held, for he was both Treaſurer and Chancellor of England; or whether from Oppreſſion, which he was charged with when Biſhop, is doubtful; but that he was reflected upon for the latter, is plain from this Diſtich made on his being removed from Ely to Canterbury.

Letentur Cæli quia Simon tranſit ab Ely, Cujus in adventum flent in Kent millia centum.

After having ſat Archbiſhop two Years, he was made Cardinal of St. Sixtus by Pope Urban V. whereupon he went to Avignon, where he founded a Houſe of Carthuſians; and being made Biſhop-Cardinal of Præneſte by Pope Gregory XI. he lived there eight Years, and died of a Palſy, with which he was ſeized at Dinner, on the 22d of July, 1376, and was buried in the Church of the Carthuſians, there, whence being removed three Years after, as himſelf had appointed, his Bones were brought here, and buried. The Epitaph round his Tomb, on a Braſs Ledge, is now in a great Meaſure torn away; but when entire, was thus: Hic jacet Dominus Simon de Langham quondam Abbas hujus loci, Theſaurarius Angliæ electus London. ep. Elien. Cancellar. Angliæ Archiep. Cantuar. Presbyter Cardinalis, & poſtea Cardinalis ep. Præneſtin.

There was, ſays Weaver, an Epitaph in Verſe, (though there are now no Remains of it at his Tomb) ſignifying, "That he was Monk, Prior, "and Abbot here; then Biſhop of London and "Ely; Primate and Chancellor of England; "Prieſt, Cardinal, afterwards Biſhop-Cardinal "of Præneſte, and Nuncio from the Pope; and "that he died on the Feaſt of St. Mary Mag- "dalen, in the Year 1376, on whoſe Soul God "have Mercy, and grant him the Joys of Hea-"ven, for the Merits of his Mother.

In the Midſt of this Chapel is a ſtately and curious Monument of Black and White Marble, on which are two Images in a cumbent Poſture, repreſenting an antient Nobleman in his Robes, with his Lady. This Monument was erected to the Memory of Lionel Cranfield, Earl of Middleſex, by his Relict the Lady Anne, as appears by the Inſcription thus tranſlated:

" Sacred to the Memory of
" LIONEL Lord CRANFIELD, Earl of " Middleſex, who by that diſcerning Prince King
" James I. being called to attend the Court,
" was for his excellent Parts and Wit, bounti-
" fully rewarded both with Honours and Profit;
" Maſter of the Requeſts, Wardrobe, Preſident
" of the Court of Wards, and Privy Counſellor.
" The New and Illuſtrious, as well as difficult " Province of Lord Treaſurer of England he " filled; which Service, how indefatigably he " underwent; his Titles of Knight, Baron
" Cranfield, and laſtly, Earl of Middleſex, with " various other Honours, abundantly teſtify.
" From hence Envy ſwelling, all its Efforts were " made to raiſe Storms againſt him. Whilſt he " briskly ſtanding on his Guard, encouraged by " his Aſſurance of Innocence, was ſhamefully
" toſſed about; and barely eſcaping Shipwreck,
" in a compoſed Winter caſt Anchor; and ſpent
" and finiſh'd his Life in a retired Leiſure; here
" lying concealed, being whilſt weary'd out
" firſt, and waſted afterwards, this Pilot was " rouſed up to undertake a ſafer Voyage; and " made the Port of Heaven. He died the 6th
" of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1645, about ſeventy
" Years of Age.
" He had two Wives, both which brought " him Iſſue. Elizabeth, the firſt, bare him
" Daughters, Elizabeth, now Counteſs of Mul-
" grave, Martha, Counteſs of Monmouth, and " Mary, who died before Marriage. His other
" Wife ſurviving, Anne, now Counteſs of Middle-
" ſex, and who, when God ſhall pleaſe, is to be " buried in this Tomb, on which is placed her
" Effigies, bare him James, Heir to the Honour,
" and Earl of Middleſex, Lionel and Edward,
" now living; and of the other Sex, Frances
" Lady Buckhurſt, and Suſanna, who died an " Infant the 25th of June, 1647.

NEAR Simon de Langham's Tomb, and on the Backſide of Mr. Dryden's Monument, is raiſed about a Foot and a half from the Ground, on which is engraved on a Braſs Plate, the Image of an antient Man, in a Doctor's Habit, and four Eſcutcheons, of which one is torn from it. This was erected to the Memory of Dr. William Bill, round which is an Inſcription upon a Braſs Ledge, as follows:

" Here lies William Bill, D. D. Dean of Weſt-
" minſter, Preſident of Eaton College, and Head
" of Trinity in Cambridge, and Chief Almoner
" to the Moſt Serene Princeſs Queen Eliza" beth. He died the 15th of July, Anno Do" mini 1561.

ON the South Side of this Chapel, and under the Arch adjoining to Dr. Goodman's, is a neat Table Monument of white Marble affixed to the Wall, ſignifying, That George Sprat, Son to the late Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, lies there. The Epitaph is as follows: H. S. E. Georgius Sprat, &c.

Here lies GEORGE SPRAT.
Second Son to the Reverend Thomas Sprat, D. D.
And Dean of this Church, and of Helena his Wife, Deſcended of the antient and honourable Family
Of the Wolſleys
In Staffordſhire;
Born the 8th of the Ides of October, 1682.
And died on the Kalends of October, 1683.
Of ſuch is the Kingdom of Heaven!

ON the Eaſt Side of this Chapel, in that very Place where once ſtood the Altar of St. Benedict, is erected a ſtately Monument of various Kinds of Marble, on which, in a cumbent Poſture, is the Statue of a Lady in her Robes, her Feet ſupported by a Lion. This Monument was erected to the Memory of the Lady Frances, Counteſs of Hertford, upon which are the following Inſcriptions:

" Here lies intombed the noble Frances, Coun-
" teſs of Hertford, dear Spouſe unto the noble
" Edward, Earl of Hertford, and Baron Beau-
" champ, Son to the renowned Prince Edward,
" Duke of Somerſet, Earl of Hertford, Viſcount
" Beauchamp, and Baron Seymour,
" A Lady deſcended of a right noble Lineage,
" being Daughter of the noble Lord William,
" Baron Howard of Effingham, Companion of
" the moſt famous Order of the Garter, High
" Admiral to Queen Mary, and Lord Chamber" lain of the Houſhold, and Lord Privy Seal to " Queen Elizabeth. He was Son to the right
" noble Prince Thomas, Duke of Norfolk and " Earl of Surrey, Earl Marſhal of England, and
" Father to the noble Charles, Earl of Notting" ham and Baron of Effingham, of the ſaid moſt
" noble Order of the Garter, Knight, and Lord
" High Admiral of England.
" This Lady, highly renowned for her many " virtuous Gifts and Graces both of Mind and " Body, greatly favoured by her gracious Sove" reign, and dearly beloved of her Lord, after " long Sickneſs, in firm Faith in Chriſt, and con-" ſtant Patience, departed this Life at forty " four Years of Age, the 14th Day of May, Anno
" Dom. 1598, in the fortieth Year of the moſt
" happy Reign of our moſt gracious Sovereign
" Lady Queen Elizabeth, to whoſe Memory the " ſaid Earl, her loving Lord and Husband, much " lamenting her Death, in Teſtification of his " great Love towards her, and of his careful Di" ligence in this doleful Duty, doth conſecrate
" this Monument.

ON the South Side of this Chapel is a Monument affixed to the Wall, whereon is repreſented an antient Clergyman kneeling. This was erected to Dr. Gabriel Goodman, Dean of Weſtminſter; the Inſcription informs us, that he was fifth Dean of this Church, which he governed with great Applauſe for the Term of forty Years; that he founded an Hoſpital at Ruthen in Denbighſhire, where he was born, and endowed a School there (viz. in the Year 1595;) a Man of regular and devout Life, and beloved of all good Men. He ſet out for his heavenly Country on the 17th Day of June, A. D. 1601, aged 70 Years. He was a great Friend to Mr. Camden, who calls him Patron of his Studies, and made him ſecond Maſter of Weſtminſter School. He likewiſe defrayed Mr. Camden's Expences in ſome of his Journeys after Antiquity.

BEFORE we take Leave of this Chapel of St. Benedict, it is proper to mention what Perſons lie there without Inſcriptions, viz. Catharine Daughter to Dr. Dolben, Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter; a Counteſs of Kildare in Ireland; and a nameleſs Archbiſhop of St. Andrew's.

LEAVING this Chapel, and going to the Area, there is affixed in the Wall, between the two Chapels, a Monument of Moſaick Work, the Sides in the plain Pannels, but the Top of the Table wrought in Figures, ſaid to be done with the ſame Stones as the Floor before the Altar.

This

This Monument was erected for three of the Children of King Henry III. viz.

Richard, his third Son, who derived his Name from his Uncle Richard, King of the Romans and Almain, who died an Infant.

John, the fourth Son of the ſaid King, who died likewiſe an Infant, Henry, his ſixth Son, who likewiſe died in his Infancy.

Catharine, youngeſt Daughter to the before-mentioned Prince, who was born Anno 1253, at LONDON, on the 25th of November, being St. Catharine's Day, whence ſhe had her Name given her by Boniface, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, her great Uncle, who ſtood her Godfather. She died before the 5th Year of her Age, and was here buried. Over this Tomb is ſomething which ſeems to have been a Piece of Church-Perſpective, but ſcratched, and almoſt entirely defaced. And there is no Doubt but the Tomb itſelf was formerly a rich and curious Piece of Work; for it appears by the Records in the Tower, that at the Time of his Daughter Catharine's Death, viz. 1257, the King ordered a ſumptuous Monument to be here erected to her, and gave Orders to his Treaſurer, and Chamberlains of the Treaſury, to deliver to Maſter Simon de Wells five Marks and a Half, for his Expences in going to LONDON for a certain Braſs Image to ſet upon her Tomb, returning home again. And upon this Tomb was likewiſe placed a Silver Image, for which William de Gloceſter, the King's Goldſmith, was paid ſeventy Marks. In this Place likewiſe are ſaid to be buried four Children of King Edward I. viz.

John, his eldeſt Son, who died whilſt under the Care of Richard, King of the Romans, during his Father's Voyage into Syria; Henry the ſecond Son, who died young; and Alphonſus, eldeſt Son, according to the Annals of Weaverly; but by Sandford, ſaid to be his third, born at Maine in Gaſcoigne, in November, Anno 1275, on the Vigils of St. Catharine, who, as before mentioned, offered a Crown and Jewels at St. Edward's Shrine. He died in the eleventh Year of his Age, according to ſome; to others, before the tenth, on the 14th of the Kalends of September, viz. on the 19th Day of Auguſt, being Sunday, Anno Dom. 1284, and was buried near the Feretry of St. Edward, by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, on the Sunday after St. Bartholomew.

Eleanor, ſixteenth Child of the aforeſaid King, and his only Daughter by Queen Margaret, his ſecond Wife, who died an Infant. Mr. Strype ſays, that of the Children of King Henry III. and King Edward I. there were ten; yet he enumerates but ſeven; and perhaps there were no more: To make up which, we may add Berenger his fourth, or Alice his fifth Daughter, who both died Infants. He tells us likewiſe, they were buried in St. Thomas's Chapel; but where that was is uncertain. Theſe Children were buried in ſeveral Places on this Side the Area, which lay open to St. Edward's Shrine, before they erected their Tombs in this Chapel.

LEAVING the Chapel of St. Benedict, the next to it, in the Area, is that of St. Edmond; at entering which, on the left Hand Side of the Door, is an antient Monument of White Stone, with Gothick Spires, on which is the Image of an Armed Knight, of White Alabaſter, erected to the Memory of John of Eltham. The Head of the Statue is encompaſſed with a Coronet of greater and leſs Leaves, and is the firſt of that Kind known, they uſually being repreſented with a Circle only as Valence before-mentioned, and Lacy Earl of Lincoln, who lay ſome Time in St. Paul's. This John of Eltham was ſecond Son to King Edward III. and ſo called from Eltham in Kent, where our Engliſh Kings had ſome Time a Seat, in which he was born on Aſcenſion-Day, Anno 1315. In the Year 1328, the ſecond of the Reign of King Edward III. his Brother, he was, in a Parliament held at Salisbury, created Earl of Cornwall; the Year following, was Cuſtos of the Kingdom, and King's Lieutenant, while he went beyond Seas. In the Year 1333 Propoſals of Marriage were made between him and Joan, Daughter of Ralph Earl of Eu; in the following Year with Mary, Daughter of the Count of Blois; neither of which being concluded, a Third was moved for Mary, Daughter of Ferdinand King of Spain; for which an Agreement was drawn up; but he lived not to conſummate it: For the Month following, being in Scotland at St. John's Town, he died in October 1334, at his nineteenth Year of Age. From whence being brought up, he was ſolemnly interred in this Abbey, in St. Edmond's Chapel, on the South Side of the Choir; which Funeral was ſo ſtately and magnificent, that the Prior and Convent of this Church demanded one hundred Pounds, (a vaſt Sum in thoſe Days) for Horſe and Armour offered there upon the Day of his Burial.

NOT far from this Monument, is a ſmall one rais'd about two Feet from the Floor, on which are two ſmall Images, as here expreſſed, ſaid, by ſome of the Writers of this Church, to be Children of King Edward II. but, by Miſtake, for King Edward III. in the Dreſs of which Time they appear, the Girl having a horned Head-dreſs, like the Statue of her Mother Queen Philippa (of which frightful Dreſs, Stow tells us, great Complaint was made); and the ſhort Doublet of the Boy, (an Indecency of Dreſs then common) which Chaucer's Parſon complains of. The Names of the Children were as follows, viz.

William of Windſor, ſo called from the Place of his Birth, ſixth Son of King Edward III. died a Youth, being no otherwiſe mentioned in Hiſtory, than that he was buried in a little Tomb of Free-ſtone in St. Edmond's Chapel in Weſtminſter.

THE other Blanch de la Tour, ſo called from being born in the Tower of LONDON, and the Name of her Brother's Wife, the Dutcheſs of Lancaſter. She died alſo an Infant, An. 1340. There was a Fillet of Braſs round this Tomb with an Epitaph upon it, but now torn away. The Statues of theſe Children were in like Form placed in Niches among others on the North Side of their Father's Tomb in this Church; the Niches are, and the Arms under them, ſtill remaining.

NEAR this Tomb is another raiſed from the Floor about three Feet high, on which is the Effigy of a Lady in Robes, repreſenting the Dutcheſs of Suffolk. This Lady was a Daughter of Charles Brandon, the fine and gay Duke of Suffolk, by Mary the French Queen, Daughter to King Henry VII. who is ſaid to fall in Love, ſeeing him at a Tournament; and after the Death of Lewis XII. which was in three Months Time from their Marriage, came over into England, and wedded him. This their Daughter Frances was twice married, firſt to Henry Grey, Marquis of Dorſet, afterwards created Duke of Suffolk, who was beheaded on Tower-hill the 23d of February 1554, in the firſt Year of Queen Mary's Reign: By him ſhe had the Lady Jane Grey, proclaimed Queen of England; but with her Husband the Lord Gilford Dudley, and both their Fathers, the Dukes of Northumberland and Suffolk, beheaded. Her ſecond Daughter Catharine was married to the Lord Herbert, Son to the Earl of Pembroke, and afterwards to Edward

Earl

Earl of Hertford. This Lady Frances, after the Execution of her Husband and Daughter, was proſecuted by ſome of the Miniſtry for having been a very great Eſpouſer of the Reformation in King Edward VI's Time, even to a Fault, and for dreſſing a Cat in a Rochet, and ridiculing in that Manner the Order of Epiſcopacy: But the moſt dangerous Cauſe of Reſentment ſhe had given, was to Dr. Gardiner, Biſhop of Wincheſter, who being in Diſgrace, and confined in the Tower in King Edward VI's Time, as the Dutcheſs went by, pulled off his Cap, and made her a low Bow from his Window: At which ſhe, in a ſcornful Manner, looking at him, told him, It was well for the Lambs, now the Wolves were ſhut up. This Indignity he remembered; and ſhe, fearful of the Danger, fled. During which Diſgrace, ſhe married one Adrian Stokes, or Stock, a Country Gentleman, and was reduced (ſays Mr. Fox, who tells a lamentable Tale of her) to that Degree, as to lie all Night in a Church-Porch. She lived private till Queen Elizabeth came to the Crown, and then grew a Favourite with her. The Time of her Death is not on her Tomb; but it ſhould appear, by a Warrant to the Heralds, that it was in December, the ſecond Year of that Queen's Reign.: For the Queen, out of the great Love and Regard ſhe had to this Lady, and for that ſhe was lineally deſcended from King Henry VII. gives Orders to Sir Gilbert Dethick, Knt. Garter, and one Harvey, Clarencieux, to allow of, and enter in their Books, that this Lady and her Poſterity ſhould bear an Augmentation of the Arms of England, viz. with a Border Goubony, Gold and Azure; and orders them, at her Funeral, to place it with her Anceſtors Arms in Banners, Bannerolls, Lozenges and 'Scutcheons, &c. Theſe Arms are accordingly quartered on the Monument which was erected to her by her Husband Adrian Stokes.

NOT far from this is a curious Monument of white Marble, repreſenting a Youth armed, ſitting on a Greek Altar. This was erected to Francis Holles, Son of the Earl of Clare, as appears by the following Inſcription:

Whatſo thou haſt of Nature, or of Arts,
Youth, Beauty, Strength, or what excelling Parts
Of Mind and Body, Letters, Arms, and Worth,
His eighteen Years beyond his Years brought forth;
Then ſtand and read thyſelf within this Glaſs,
How ſoon theſe periſh, and thyſelf may paſs.
Man's Life is meaſured by the Work, not Days,
No aged Sloath, but active Youth, hath Praiſe.

" To the Memory of Francis Holles, a brave " Youth, (who returning home from making a " Campaign in the Netherlands, died the 12th " Day of Auguſt, in the Year of our Lord's Age " 1622, and of his own the 18th:) His afflicted " Father, John Earl of Clare, hath to this his " valued and lamented Son, erected this Mo- " nument.

IN this Chapel, not far from the aforeſaid Statue, and within the Rail of Lord Ruſſel's Tomb, is a curious Monument made after the Manner of an ant ent Altar, on which is a Figure of white Alabaſter, ſitting in a Chair of the ſame. This Monument was erected to the Memory of Elizabeth Ruſſel, (Daughter of the Lord Ruſſel,) by her ſurviving Siſter Anne, married to the loyal Marquis of Worceſter. The common Tradition of this Church is, that this Lady died with a Prick of her Finger, which is heard with much Concern by the ignorant Spectators; but the ſame is told of ſeveral Monuments reſembling this in other Churches. This Story, it is likely, had its Riſe from a Poſture in which ſhe is placed; which is, with her Finger pointing downwards to a Death's Head, under her Right Foot, upon which ſhe has been contemplating till ſhe is fallen aſleep. Which, as it was, no doubt, the curious Deſign of that ingenious Family, Sir Anthony Cook's, ſo it ſignifies, That before her Death, ſhe made Death itſelf ſo familiar to her, that her Departure, regular and compoſed, might properly be called a Sleep; to which the Motto under her Feet alludes:

Dormit, non mortua eſt.

" She is not dead, but ſleepeth.

AND at a lower Diſtance:

Fæliciſſimæ, &c.

" Sacred to the happy Memory of Elizabeth " Ruſſel her afflicted Siſter Anne hath erected " this Monument.

NEAR this, affixed to the Wall, is a Monument erected to the Memory of the Lady Jane Seymour, with this Inſcription:

The noble Lady Jane Seymour, Daughter of the renowned Prince Edward, Duke of Somerſet, Earl of Hertforde, Viſcount Beauchampe, and Baron Seymour, and the right noble Lady Anne, Dutcheſſe of Somerſet his Wyfe, departed this Lyfe in her Virginitie, at the Age of xix Years, the xix Daie of Marche, A°. M. ccccc lx, in the ſecond Year of the moſte happy Raign of Queen Elizabeth, and was honorablie buryed in the Floore of this Chapel: To whoſe Memorie Edward Earl of Hertforde, and Baron Beauchampe, her deare Brother, hath cauſed this Monument to be made.

NEAR this is another Monument, likewiſe affixed to the Wall, erected to the Lady Knolles, firſt Couſin to Queen Elizabeth, Niece to Anna Bullen, Grand-daughter to the Earl of Wiltſhire, and Siſter to the Lord Hunſdon, of whom hereafter. This Lady was Wife to Francis Knolles, by whom ſhe has a Daughter, Leticia, married to Walter Devereux, Earl of Eſſex, by whom ſhe had that great Favourite the Earl of Eſſex.

THE following Inſcription on the Front of this Monument.

The Right Honourable Lady Katherin Knollys, cheefte Lady of the Quenes Majeſties Bed-Chamber, and Wife to Sir Francis Knollys, Knight, Treſorer of her Highnes Howſholde departed this Lyffe the 15th of January, 1568, at Hampton-Courte, and was honourably buried in the Flower of this Chappell, this Lady Knollys and the Lord Hunſdon, her Brother, were the Childeren of William Caree, Eſquier, and of the Lady Mary his Wiffe, one of the Daughters and Heires to Thomas Bulleyne, Erle of Wylſhier and Ormand, which Lady Mary was Siſter to Anne, Quene of England, Wyffe to Kinge Henry the Eight, Father and Mother to Elizabeth Quene of England.

NEXT to this is a very ſtately Monument of coloured Marble and Alabaſter, painted and gilt, erected to the Memory of John Lord Ruſſel, Son and Heir to Francis Earl of Bedford, and his Son Francis, an Infant. This John Lord Ruſſel died before his Father, viz. in the Year 1584. He married with Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir Anthony Cook, Knt. of Giddy-Hall, near Rumford in Eſſex, by whom he had this Francis, who who died an Infant in the Year 1584, and two Daughters, Anne, before-mentioned, and Elizabeth married to the Marquis of Worceſter. This Lady Elizabeth, his Wife, was eſteemed a Woman of the beſt Learning in that Age, as were likewiſe her two Siſters, the Lady Burleigh and another, all of them admirably verſed in the Latin and Greek Languages, and excellent Poets. Some of their Verſes Dr. Fuller has given us; but we need not go farther for a Specimen than this Tomb, of which the Inſcriptions, viz. three in Latin, one in Greek, and another in Engliſh, are the Compoſition of the former; thoſe in Latin and Greek are here tranſlated. This Lady Elizabeth was married firſt to Sir Thomas Hobby, by whom ſhe had a Son, who has likewiſe beſtowed the laſt Epitaph on his Father-in-Law.

The Engliſh Epitaph:

Right noble twice, by Virtue and by Birth,
Of Heaven lov'd, and honoured on the Earth,
His Country's Hope, his Kindred's chief Delight,
My Husband dear, more than this World's Light, Death hath me reft. But I from Death will take His Memory, to whom this Tomb I make.
John was his Name, (ah was!) Wretch, muſt I ſay;
Lord Ruſſel once; now my Tear thirſty Clay.

The firſt Latin Inſcription is thus tranſlated.

A Poem of an afflicted Mother to her ſurviving Daughters.

Now weep, my Girls, now make your pious Moan,
Alas! the Glory of your Houſe is gone:
Death, haſty Death, hath ſeized the Stock that grew,
And flouriſh'd with a Stem of beauteous Hue,
Your Sire, eſteem'd by all, by all deſired,
For Learning and for Piety admired.
Then you, his Heirs, be what he was before,
Who ſhone by Birth, but ſhone by Virture more.

The ſecond (being Greek) thus:

The once bright Glory of his Houſe, the Pride
Of all his Country, duſty Ruins hide:
Mourn, hapleſs Orphans, mourn once happy Wife;
For when he dy'd, dy'd all the Joys of Life.
Pious and juſt, amidſt a large Eſtate,
He got at once the Name of Good and Great.
He made no flatt'ring Paraſite his Gueſt,
But ask'd the good Companions to his Feaſt.

The third thus:

One of the ſame Lady, on the ſame Subject in Latin.

How was I ſtartled at the cruel Feaſt,
By Death's rude Hands, in horrid Manner dreſt;
Such Grief as ſure no hapleſs Woman knew,
When thy pale Image lay before my View.
Thy Father's Heir in beauteous Form array'd,
Like Flowers in Spring, and fair, like them, to fade;
Leaving behind unhappy wretched me,
And all thy little Orphan Progeny:
Alike the beauteous Face, the comely Air,
The Tongue perſwaſive, and the Actions fair,
Decay; ſo Learning too in Time ſhall waſte;
But Faith, chaſte lovely Faith, ſhall ever laſt.

The fourth thus:

A Poem of the afflicted Lady Elizabeth Ruſſell, on the Death of her Son.

Behold! the Grandſire's Joy, his Sire's Delight!
My very Soul, dire Fate hath clos'd in Night!
O! that th' Almighty Will before this Day,
From this vain World had taken me away!
But I in vain expoſtulate with Jove,
Who bids me only ſeek for Joys above.

The fifth thus:

On the Death of the Hon. the Lord John Ruſſel, an Epicedium of his Loving Son-in-Law, Sir Edward Hoby, Knt.

Ah Ruſſel! Death in Sleep hath clos'd thine Eyes;
But thy free Soul, far hence above the Skies,
Expatiates; thoughtful now of Death no more,
Whoſe virtuous Life hath taken Care before
For ſuch an End: And having yielded Breath,
Still lives a glorious Conqu'ror over Death.
Who and what Man thou waſt, thy Race portend,
Thy virtuous Life, and thy lamented End.
Accept this Verſe I offer at thy Stone;
You was my Sire in Love, and I your Son.

Fronting the Entrance into this Chapel, and placed in the Wall under the Window, is an antient Monument repreſenting a Knight in a cumbent Poſture, and armed: This was erected for one Sir Bernard Brocas, who was Chamberlain to Anne, Queen of King Richard II. as appears by an Inſcription round the Verge of the Tomb.

Hic jacet Bernardus Brocas Miles T. T. quondam Com.
Annæ Reginæ Angliæ: cujus animæ propitietur Deus. Amen.

This Sir Bernard Brocas was a faithful Adherer to his depoſed Maſter King Richard II. which coſt him his Life; for being concerned in the Conſpiracy with the Lord John Holland, and others, at Reading in Berkſhire, he took Arms with them; and by the Colour of one Maudeline, Counterfeit King, ſought to raiſe Forces. He was with others taken by the People of Reading, and confined in the Abbey there; whereupon they attempted an Eſcape, by firing ſeveral Houſes in the Town: But this, on the contrary, ſo enraged them, that they drew out, and executed ſeveral of them inſtantly: But this Sir Bernard was reſerved for a more publick Execution; for being brought to LONDON, he was beheaded in January, Anno Dom. 1399, and here buried.

At the Entrance of this Chapel, on the Right Hand, is an antient Monument of Grey Marble, on which is placed a Cheſt of Wainſcot, whereon lies an armed Knight with a deep Shield on his Arm. The Statue is covered with gilt Copper, and had a Fillet of the ſame round the Head ſet with Stones, now picked out, but the Sockets remaining; and the Shield, as well as the Surcoat, is enamell'd with ſmall Eſcutcheons. The Statue is Wood, and the Copper from one of the Feet taken away, and that cut and abuſed. The Cheſt, as well as Figure, was formerly plated with Copper, but now there is but a ſmall Shew of it at the Edge; and round it thirty ſmall Images, viz. twelve on each Side, and three at each End, under little Niches of Braſs, and at their Feet Eſcutcheons; but theſe are now almoſt gone, with ſeveral of the Niches, as is likewiſe the antient Inſcription. This Tomb was erected to William de Valence, Earl of Pembroke. He was Son of the Earl of March, by Iſabel, Widow to King John; and being half Brother to King Henry III. was a chief Favourite with that Prince, and had committed to him the chief Management of all Affairs: Cui Rex totius conſilii ſui habenas commiſerat, ſays Matthew Paris. In the Year 1237, this Valence finding himſelf hateful to the Barons Barons, left England; and his Lands and Wealth, which, by the King's Bounty, was very great, he committed to one Aaron, a Jew, at York, as a Pawn for 90 Marks of New Sterling; and being thus loaded with Gold, Royal Furniture, Horſes, Mares, &c. he ſet out for Dover, attended by the King and ſeveral Courtiers. His Wealth he diſtributed abroad, and returned empty. About the Year 1239, the King made Intereſt to get him the Biſhoprick of Wincheſter, afterwards that of Norwich; but being a Man of Blood, the Monks refuſed him. He was no ſmall Actor againſt Simon de Mountfort, and the diſaffected Barons. This Valence, in the Year 1258, upon ſome Agreement between the King and Barons, was baniſhed, with his three Brothers, Gaufride, Guydon, and Aymer, with other Strangers. After ſome Time he was recall'd. Laſtly, ſetting out with Edmund, Earl of Lancaſter, his Nephew, to Gaſcoign, he, after performing many notable Exploits, was ſlain at Bayon by the French, as ſays the Epitaph, in 1304. This, according to Harding, was Anno 1296, on the 5th Day of June (however the Epitaph ſays it was in May) by Means of an Ambuſhment, which came unawares upon them from an adjoining Wood. His Body was brought over to England, and honourably buried in this Church, with an Inſcription, ſome Time remaining in Saxon Characters, but now torn from it.

FOR the Prayers of all devout People offered up for the Soul of this Valence at his Tomb, was granted Indulgence for the Term of 100 Days. Before we leave this Tomb, we ſhall take an Account from Matthew Paris of a great Inſtance of his arbitrary Power and Oppreſſion in England. This Valence had for his Seat Hertford Caſtle, from whence coming to Town, he forcibly entered the Park of the Biſhop of Ely, which was near his Manor of Haethfeld, now Hatfield, and hunted there without the Biſhop's Leave. After being tired with his Sport, he went to the Biſhop's Houſe, where being thirſty, and finding no Drink but Ale, he broke open the Doors, which were very ſtrong, and barr'd, making great Noiſe and Tumult, and raging moſt horribly, ſwearing, and curſing the Ale, and thoſe who brew'd it; he ordered the Spigots to be pulled out of the Pipes of Wine, conſuming great Quantities of the Liquor; and having drank his Fill, diſtributed it to his Attendants, and gave it about as tho' it were Water, or Small Beer, and beat a Servant of the Biſhop's. After they had all got drunk, they never put in the Taps, but went away laughing at their Miſchief.

ANOTHER Inſtance he gives of his Tyranny, and of thoſe under him: For at LONDON a certain 'Squire of his drew his Knife, and ſwore to wet it in the Blood of the Citizens, wounded ſome of them without Cauſe, and back'd his Actions with Threats and Abuſes. Upon which the Citizens ſwarming around him in Heaps, and little heeding his Power, Valentiam (here Matthew puns upon his Maſter's Name) ſlew him with Stones, &c. As he was dying, being carried into a neighbouring Houſe, he uttered theſe Words: For God's Sake, let not this my Death be charged upon any but myſelf, and my own Folly; for we, relying upon our Maſter's Power, have baſely oppreſs'd and trampled upon, without any Difference, both the Guilty and Innocent; and ſo he dy'd. When his Maſter heard this, he made heavy Complaint to the King; and, to affect him the more, had the dead Corpſe brought before him. Upon which the Mayor and Commonalty were ſent for, who related the Provocation, and dying Confeſſion of the Man. At hearing whereof, the King made Anſwer, Let him have his Deſerts, a Villain! However, this Valence bore great Revenge to the Citizens, which he not long after put in Execution.

NEXT adjoining to the Weſt Side of Brocas's Tomb is a lofty Monument erected to Sir Rich. Peckſall, Knt. Maſter of the Buckhounds to Queen Elizabeth. The Inſcription on this Monument is as follows:

" To God and future Ages.
" Here reſts, expecting the glorious Reſur-
" rection of Chriſt, Richard Peckſall, Kt. ex" cellent in his Religion and Probity; he mar" ried firſt Alianor, Daughter of William Paw-
" let, Marquis of Wincheſter, and Lord Trea-
" ſurer of England, who bare him four Daugh" ters. His ſecond Wife was Alianor, Daugh" ter of John Cotgrave, and after his Death
" married to Sir John Savage, Kt. of the Coun" ty of Cheſter; who out of reſpectful Regard " towards her dear Husband, and in perpetual " Memory of their Marriage Faith, hath, at " her Charge, freely and willingly erected this " Monument.

ON the Baſis of the Pillars adorning this Monument are Latin Verſes, which are thus tranſlated:

Death can't diſjoin whom Chriſt hath join'd in Love.
Life leads to Death, and Death to Life above.
In Heaven's a happier Place, frail Things deſpiſe.
Live well, to gain of future Life the Prize.

ON the Right Hand Side of this Chapel, between this and Valence, is a ſtately and magnificent Monument, incloſed with a Grate, but great Part of it ſtolen, erected to the Lord Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, and his Lady, whoſe Effigies in their Robes, painted and gilt, lie on a black Marble, ſupported by a Pedeſtal of Alabaſter. The whole Monument is compoſed of various coloured Marbles, and curious Carving, with its Epitaph, which gives Account of them, and in Engliſh thus:

Sacred to the Memory
Of EDWARD of the noble Family of the TALBOTS,
The eighth Earl of Shrewsbury, Weſtford and Waterford,
Lord Talbot, Earl of Badenbagh, Valence, Montcheney, Strange de Blackmere, Gifford de Brimesfield, Clifford de Corſham, Furnival Verdon and Lovetoft.
A Perſon every Way equal to his Titles;
Of ſuch ſincere, juſt, and yet obliging Diſpoſition,
That the Greatneſs of his Dignities took not from him the Honour.
He was no leſs remarkable for his Deſcent and Family,
Than for his Piety and Purity of Life;
Nor was he tainted with any of thoſe Vices,
To which great Men are too frequently addicted.
He was honourable without Pride,
Potent without Oſtentation,
Religious without Superſtition,
Munificent both in his Mind, and with his Hand,
Warded always againſt Fortune.
His whole Life was a Path of Juſtice;
And his Innocence eſcaping Envy.
Continued thro' the whole Courſe of his Life.
Laſtly, certain of future Fame by a good Conſcience, while he lived;
He now enjoys it, and with it an unſullied Character,
And Reſt after the Troubles of Life;
Of which, that ſhe may be a Sharer, is the Deſire of

His

His afflicted Wife, Jane Cuthbert, eldeſt Daughter of the Baron Ogle.
Who being drown'd in Tears, hath, out of pious Regard, erected this Monument.
He died the 8th of February 1617,
In the 57th Year of his Age.

Here likewiſe lies the Lady Jane, Counteſs of Shrewsbury, Widow of the before-mentioned Earl of Shrewsbury, interr'd near the ſame Monument.

On the Floor of this Chapel is a Tomb raiſed two Feet from the Ground, on which is a Lady cut in Braſs, in a Widow's Dreſs, with a Barb and Veil; and round the Braſs Ledge of the Tomb this Inſcription:

Cy giſt Alianore de Bohune eiſne fille & un des heires a l'honorable Seigneur Monſſ. Humphry de Bohune, Compte de Hereford, d'Eſſex, & de Northampton, & Conſtable d'Engleterre, femme a puiſſant & noble Prince Thomas de Wodeſtocke, fils & tres excellent & trepuiſſant Seigneur Edward Roy d'Engleterre, puis le Conqueſtries Duc de Glouceſter, Compte d'Eſſex, de Buckingham, & Conſtable d'Engleterre, qui mourit le tier jour d'October, l'an de Mil. ccc. lxxxxix.

" Here lies Alianor de Bohun, Daughter and " Coheir of the Honourable Knight Sir Hum" phrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, Eſſex and " Northampton, and Conſtable of England, Wife
" to the mighty and noble Prince Thomas of " Woodſtock, Son of the thrice excellent and " mighty Prince Edward, King of England, the " Third, ſince the Conqueſt, Duke of Glou-
" ceſter, Earl of Eſſex and Buckingham, and " Conſtable of England, who died the 3d of " October, in the Year of Grace, 1399.

This Lady, who was the greateſt Heireſs in England, and by whom the aforeſaid Titles came to her Husband, had the Misfortune to have him taken from her at Pleſhy, a pleaſant Seat in Eſſex, where his Nephew Richard II. called to viſit, and in Duty he thought to wait on him, in the Evening, Part of the Way to Town; but was hurried away to Stratford by Perſons placed for that Purpoſe; thence carried to Calais, and ſtifled between Feather Beds. After this melancholy Accident, ſhe ſpent the Remainder of her Widowhood in the Nunnery at Barking in Eſſex, which was two Years; and making her Will on the 6th Day of Auguſt, in the Year 1399, died the 3d Day of October following, and being brought from Barking, was here buried.

Adjoining to this Tomb, nor much differing in Height, is a Table Monument of white Marble, a little veined with Blue, erected to the Memory of Mary Counteſs of Stafford, married to Sir William Howard, Knt. of the Bath, who was firſt created Baron, and then Viſcount Stafford; and being in the Year 1678, one of the Lords ſent to the Tower for High Treaſon, he was condemned and beheaded on Tower-Hill the 29th of December 1680. She was, after his Death, by Patent created a Counteſs. On her Tomb is this Inſcription:

" Mary Counteſs of Stafford, Wife of William
" Viſcount Stafford, deſcended from the Royal
" Stock of Thomas Woodſtock, and Eleanor de
" Bohun, Duke and Dutcheſs of Glouceſter, and " from the Barons and Earls of Stafford, and a " Daughter and Heir of the Houſe of the Dukes
" of Buckingham, lies buried here near the " Aſhes of her Anceſtors. She died on the Ides " of January, in the 74th Year of her Age, and
" of our Redemption 1693.

Near the Foot of the Dutcheſs of Glouceſter's Monument is a flat Stone of Marble, with five Eſcutcheons engraven on Braſs Plates, and a Mitre in the Midſt of them, with this Inſcription on Braſs round the Verge of it:

" Here lies Henry Ferne, D. D. eighth Son
" of Sir John Ferne, Knt. of the City of York,
" Head of Trinity College in Cambridge, and
" at the ſame Time Biſhop of Cheſter, in which " he ſat but five Weeks, and dy'd the 16th of " March, A. D. 1662, in the 59th Year of his " Age.

This Dr. Ferne was originally of St. Mary's Hall in Oxford; thence removed to Cambridge, where he commenced Doctor. He was, upon the Reſtoration of King Charles II. made Dean of Ely, and afterwards, as before-mentioned, Biſhop of Cheſter. He was a Man of extraordinary Learning and Character.

Near the Tomb of Brocas is an antient Monument of Grey Marble, raiſed three Feet, on which, in plated Braſs, is the Figure of a Knight in Armour, his Head reclined upon his Helm, and one of his Feet placed upon a Leopard, the other on an Eagle. The whole Tomb is embelliſh'd with Variety of Arms. This Monument covers the Body of Humphrey Bourchier, who was Son and Heir of John Bourchier Lord Berners; who eſpouſing the Part of King Edward IV. was ſlain at the famous Battle at Barnet-Field on Eaſter-Day, 1471, and brought and interr'd here.

Near the Dutcheſs of Glouceſter's Monument is another, a flat Stone on the Pavement, on which, engraven in a Plate of Braſs, is the Effigy of an Archbiſhop in his Maſs Habit. This is placed over Robert de Walby, an Auguſtin Monk, who, when young, attended Edward, the Black Prince, into France; where he proſecuted his Studies for many Years, and grew an excellent Proficient in Languages, Natural and Moral Philoſophy, Phyſick, and the Canon Law, an eloquent Man, and an admirable Preacher. For which Qualities, and his profound Knowledge in Divinity, he was made Chairman, or Divinity Profeſſor, at the Univerſity of Thouloufe. He was a great Favourite of Prince Edward, and of his Son King Richard II. who made him Biſhop of Man. From thence he was removed to the Archbiſhoprick of Dublin in Ireland; thence to Chicheſter; and laſtly, made Archbiſhop of York; in which See, before he ſat three Years, he quitted it, together with this World, on the 29th of May 1397. There was a Latin Inſcription round the Ledge of this Tomb; but it is now almoſt torn away.

On the Weſt Side of this Chapel is another Grave-ſtone of Black Marble, over the Lord Herbert; on which, under his Arms, is this Epitaph:

" EDWARD Lord HERBERT, Baron of
" Cherbury in England, and Caſtle-Iſlands in " Ireland, dy'd on the 9th of December 1678,
" in the 64th Year of his Age, and lies buried
" under this Stone.

In this Chapel, but without any Inſcription, lies buried Dr. Nicholas Monk, Lord Biſhop of Hereford. He was third Son of Sir Thomas Monk, of Potheridge, in the County of Devon, Knt. deſcended from King Edward IV. and Brother to the great Reſtorer of King Charles II. and was no ſmall Aſſiſtant in that happy Deſign. This Gentleman was educated at Wadham College, where he was entered at his 17th Year, viz. Anno 1626; and having gradually riſen there, entered into Holy Orders. After the Grand Rebel-

Rebellion broke out, he was a Sufferer with other valuable Loyaliſts; but in ſome Time Sir John Greenville, his Kinſman, who was afterwards Earl of Bath, gained ſome Preferment for him. In the Year 1659, he began by Letters to influence his Brother General Monk, then in Scotland, to attempt the Reſtoration of the King, and went himſelf thither in Perſon. In the Year 1660, he was made Preſident of Eaton-College, and ſoon after, by King Charles's Letters to the Univerſity, created Doctor in Divinity. In which Letters his Majeſty was pleaſed to give him this Character: That he was well aſſured of his particular and eminent Sufferings and Service for himſelf, and the Church, during the late Deſtructions, &c. Afterwards nominated to the See of Hereford, to which he was conſecrated in this Abbey Church on the 6th (Sandford ſays the 13th) Day of January, by the Archbiſhop of York, Biſhops of Durham, Chicheſter, Lincoln, and Peterborough. But this valuable Prelate lived not a Year to ſerve in this eminent Station, and from whence, doubtleſs, he would have riſen to the higheſt in the Church; for, on the 7th Day of December (Sandford ſays the 11th) 1666, he died at his Lodgings in the Old Palace-Yard in Weſtminſter, and on the 20th was buried in this Chapel of St. Edmond, his Brother the Duke of Albemarle being chief Mourner; and the Sermon was preached by the Lord Biſhop of Gloceſter. He left two Daughters, the ſecond of which, Elizabeth, was married to Curwen Rawlinſon, of Cark-Hall in Cartmale in Lancaſhire, and Member of Parliament for Lancaſter, by whom ſhe had two Sons, Monk Rawlinſon, who died at Cark-Hall, aged 21 Years, and Chriſtopher Rawlinſon, now living, who has rather added, than derived Honours from his Family, by being a fine Judge, and generous Encourager of Learning, and obliging the World that Way, particularly by publiſhing Boetius de Conſolatione, in Saxon; which he printed at his own Charge, while Gentleman-Commoner of Queen's-College, Oxford.

LEAVING this Chapel, brings us to the Chapel of St. Nicholas. Soon after entering this Chapel, you ſee on the Left Hand a Monument of curious poliſh'd Black Marble, raiſed from the Ground, round which are Cherubims Heads of Alabaſter, and on a Scrole of the ſame an Inſcription, informing, That under it lies the Lady Jane Clifford. The Monument hath this Inſcription as follows:

Here lies the Right Honourable the Lady Jane Clifford, youngeſt Daughter to William Duke of Somerſett, Grandaughter to Edward Earl of Hertford, and great Grandaughter to Edward Duke of Somerſet, and Uncle to King Edward the Sixth, Protector of his Realmes and Governour of his Royall Perſon.

She was married to the Right Hon. Charles Lord Clifford and Dungravan, Sonn and Heir apparent to Richard Earl of Burlington in England, and Cork in Ireland, Lord High Treaſurer of Ireland, and to Elizabeth his Counteſſe ſole Daughter and Heireſs to Henry late Earle of Cumberland, Lord Clifford, &c. The laſt Male of that noble Family. Shee hadIſſue five Sonns and ſix Daughters, of whom twoSonns and three Daughters are now living.

Shee lived an Honour to the Family ſhee was deſcended from, and the great Comfort of that into which ſhee was married, and died much lamented on the 23d Day of November, in the Year 1679.

Aged 42 Years 4 Months and 17 Daies.

ADJOINING to the Left Hand Side of the Door is a Monument of Alabaſter, curiouſly carved and gilt; at the Corners of which were four ſmall Pillars of black Marble, (of which one is broke away,) ſupporting a fine poliſhed Table of Lydian. This Monument was erected to the Memory of the Lady Cecil, Daughter of the Lord Cobham, Lady of the Bed-Chamber to Queen Elizabeth, and married to Sir Robert Cecil, Knt. Son of William Lord Burleigh, Treaſurer of England, the laſt of Auguſt in the Year 1589. She died in Childbed two Years after, in the Year of our Lord 1591.

ON the Baſe of the Monument are theſe Verſes:

A Brooke by Name, the Baron Cobham's Child,
A Newton was ſhe, by her Mother's Side,
Cecil her Husbande, this for her did Builde,
To prove his Love did after Death abide,
Which tells unto the Worldes that after come
The Worlde's Concepte, whilſt here ſhe held a Rome,
How Nature made her wiſe and well beſeeminge,
Wit and Condition, ſilente, trew and chaſte,
Earth coulde not yealde more pleaſynge earthy Bliſſe, Bleſt with two Babes, the third brought her to this.

NEAR this Monument, and adjoining to the Eaſt Wall of the Chapel, is a ſtately Monument of various coloured Marble, erected to the Memory of Anne, Dutcheſs of Somerſet, Wife to Edward Duke of Somerſet, Brother to Queen Jane Seymour, and Uncle to King Edward VI. and Protector of England. This Duke was beheaded for Felony in the Reign of his Nephew. Of this Lady ſee more in the Inſcription on her Monument, thus tranſlated:

" Here lieth entombed the noble Dutcheſs of " Somerſet, Anne, dear Spouſe unto the re- " nowned Prince Edward, Duke of Somerſet, " Earl of Hertford, Viſcount Beauchamp, and " Baron Seymour, Companion of the moſt famous " Knightly Order of the Garter, Uncle to King " Edward VI. Governor of his Royal Perſon, and " moſt worthy Protector of all his Realms, Domi- " nions and Subjects, Lieutenant-General of all " his Armies, Treaſurer and Earl-Marſhal of " England, and Captain of the Iſles of Guern- " ſey and Jerſey, under whoſe proſperous Con- " duct glorious Victory hath been ſo often and " ſo fortunately obtained over the Scots van- " quiſhed at Edinburgh, Leith, and Muſſelbo- " rough-Field.

" A Princeſs deſcended of noble Lineage, be- " ing Daughter to the worthy Knight Sir Ed- " ward Stanhope, by Elizabeth his Wife, that " was Daughter to Sir Foulke Bourchier, Lord " Fitz-Warren, from whom our modern Earls of " Bath are ſprung: Son was he to William Lord " Fitz-Warren, that was Brother to Henry Earl of " Eſſex, and John Lord Berners, whom William " their Sire, ſome Time Earl of Eu in Nor- " mandy, begot on Anne, the ſole Heir of Tho- " mas of Woodſtock, Duke of Glouceſter, " younger Son to the mighty Prince Edward III. " and of his Wife Eleonore, Coheir unto the " tenth Humfrey de Bohun, that was Earl of " Hereford, Eſſex and Northampton, High Con- " ſtable of England.

" Many Children bare this Lady unto her " Lord, of either Sort, to wit, Edward Earl of " Hereford, Henry, and a younger Edward, " Anne Counteſs of Warwick, Margaret, Mary, " Katherine and Elizabeth; and with firm Faith " in Chriſt, and in moſt mild Manner, rendered

" ſhe

" ſhe this Life, at 90 Years of Age, on Eaſter-
" Day, the 16th of April, Anno 1587.

" The Earl of Hertford, Edward, her eldeſt
" Son, in this doleful Duty careful and dili" gent, doth conſecrate this Monument to his " dead Parent, not for her Honour, wherewith
" living ſhe did abound, and now departed,
" flouriſheth; but for the dutiful Love he bear-
" eth her, and for his laſt Teſtification thereof.

ADJOINING to the Dutcheſs of Somerſet's is a ſtately Monument erected againſt the Wall of Marble, and painted in divers Colours. This Monument was erected to the Lady Elizabeth Fane, as appears by the Inſcription, thus Engliſhed:

" This Lady, Elizabeth Fane, remarkable for " her antient Deſcent, but more ſo for her own
" Virtue, Daughter of Robert, Baron Spencer,
" of Wormleighton, and Wife to the Honour" able Sir George Fane of Buſton in the County
" of Kent, Kt. a chaſte, modeſt, and religious " Wife, who in moſt ardent Ejaculations, fre" quently repeated, with a loud Voice, recom" mended her Soul to her Reedemer,

In the Year { of our Lord 1618 } with great Character.
{ of her Age 28 }
{ of her Marriage 10 } leaving no Iſſue.

" Her moſt afflicted Husband, to this his " matchleſs Wife, hath gratefully placed this " Monument; who, as his Effigies is placed near " hers, ſo intends their Aſhes ſhall be united.

UNDERNEATH this Monument, affixed to the Wall, is an antient Monument of grey Marble, having ſmall Pillars and Arches wrought on the Side, but without either Plates or Inſcription: This was placed over Nicholas Baron Carew, and the Lady Margaret his Wife, who died within a Week of each other. Theſe Carews were an antient Family of Carew Caſtle in Pembrokeſhire. The Son of this Lord Dinham was beheaded in the Time of Henry VIII. for the Conſpiracy about ſetting up Cardinal Pole, and was buried in Aldgate, in the ſame Vault with Thomas Lord Darcy, beheaded in the ſame Reign. This Lady Margaret was Daughter of John Lord Dinham. Which three Families had been long united in their Intereſt: For in the Year 1469, Sir Robert Darcy, Father of the aforeſaid Lord Darcy, choſe the Lord Dinham, Brother to this Lady, Overſeer of his Will. The Inſcription on this Monument is as follows:

In Engliſh thus:

" Pray for the Souls of Nicholas, ſome Time
" Baron Carew, and the Lady Margaret his " Wife, Daughter of John Lord Dinham, Kt.
" which Nicholas died the 6th Day of Decem" ber, Anno Dom. 1470, and the aforeſaid Lady
" Margaret died the 13th Day of December
" 1470.

NEXT adjoining to the Monument of Fane, is a ſtately Monument of Porphry, and other Kinds of Marble, gilt with Gold. This was erected by the Lord Burleigh, High Treaſurer of England, to the Memory of Mildred his Wife, and the Lady Anne Counteſs of Oxford, their Daughter.

THE Inſcription is too long to be tranſlated, without giving Pain to the Reader; but the Meaning of it is this: It is made as if the Image of Burleigh itſelf explains the Monument, and tells the Spectator, That if he would know who that venerable greyheaded old Man is, kneeling, and rob'd with the Enſigns of the Garter, and who thoſe two Women are enrobed, and who thoſe are kneeling at their Heads and Feet, he ſhall know by the Inſcription.

The firſt, ſays he, is, alas! my long-loved Wife Mildred, and the other my loved Daughter Anne. Mildred was married in 1546. lived with me forty three Years, and was Sharer in all my good and bad Fortune, in the Reigns of Henry VIII. Edward VI. Mary, and Elizabeth now reigning. She brought me many Children, of which only three lived to Years, i. e. two Daughters, Anne and Elizabeth, and one Son, Robert. Anne was married to Edward Earl of Oxford, Lord Chamberlain, and bore him, among other Children dying young, the three at the Head of their Mother; the firſt Elizabeth, the ſecond Bridget, the third Suſanna. My Daughter Anne, after an excellent Conduct of Life, died, and was by me and my Wife here buried. The Mother ſoon after followed, who was well verſed in the ſacred Writers, and thoſe chiefly of the Greeks, as Baſil the Great, Chryſoſtome, Gregory, Nazianzen, &c. She was a Benefactor to ſeveral Colleges in both Univerſities. She gave a Scholarſhip in St. John's College in Oxford, and took particular Care at her Death of the Poor of Rumford, where ſhe was born, and Cheſthunt, where ſhe lived, by leaving Money and Food for them, to be diſtributed every firſt Sunday in the Month for ever, to Widows and Orphans at Cheſthunt, frequenting the Church; and in both Places left Money to poor Tradesmen to be given every other Year. She died the 4th of April 1589, aged 63, in Burleigh-Houſe at Weſtminſter.

Anne, Counteſs of Oxford, was born the 5th of Decemb. 1556, married at fifteen to Edward Vere Earl of Oxford, by whom ſhe had many Children, but left only three Daughters. She died of a Fever the 5th of June 1588, in the Palace of Greenwich, &c.

AGAINST the Weſt Wall of the Chapel is erected another very lofty Monument of various coloured Marble adorned with Gold, encloſed with a Grate, erected to the Memory of the Lady Winifred, firſt Wife to Sir Richard Sackville, Knt. Chancellor of the Exchequer, and afterwards to John Paulet, Marquis of Wincheſter. She ſurvived her Lord, and died a Widow in the Year 1586.

AGAINST the South Wall of this Chapel is an antient Monument of Free-Stone, on which was formerly an Image of a Biſhop cut in Braſs, but the Plate is torn away; round the Ledge of it was the following Inſcription:

Hic jacet Gulielmus de Dudley, & familia Baronum de Dudley Dunelm Epiſcopus. Obiit Ann. Dom. 1483.

" Here lies William de Dudley, of the Fami" ly of the Barons of Dudley, Biſhop of Dur" ham. He died Ann. 1483.

THIS William Dudley, who was likewiſe named Sutton, was Son of John Lord Dudley. He was firſt Dean of Windſor, and thence removed to the See of Durham in the Year 1476, in which he ſate ſomething more than ſix Years. This Prelate was Uncle to that blood-ſucking Dudley, King Henry VII's Creature, and who afterwards met with a Reward due to ſuch Monſters, who dare oppreſs, pillage and terrify a People, to gratify the Deſires of an arbitrary Prince, and an avaricious Court.

IN the Midſt of the Floor of this Chapel is a raiſed Tomb of the fineſt black and white Marble, curiouſly poliſhed, on which is the Ef-figies of a Knight armed with a Helmet, and by him a Lady in her Robes. This Monument was erected to the Memory of Sir George Villars, Knt. of Brokesby in the County of Leiceſter, whoſe Son, Mr. George Villars was that Duke of Buckingham, the Favourite of King James, and ſtabbed at Portſmouth, of whom hereafter. His Lady was Mary Beaumont, ſaid on the Monument to be immediately deſcended from five of the moſt powerful Princes in Europe, created by King James (at her Son's Requeſt) Counteſs of Buckingham. This is that Sir George Villars, of whom the Lord Clarendon relates a Story, that he appeared after Death to an antient Servant of his, giving him a Charge to his Son; of which ſee the Particulars in that Hiſtory.

ON the Weſt Side of this Chapel is a Monument ſeemingly very antient, by the white ſpungy Stone whereof it is made, on which is the Image of a Lady veiled, and leaning on her Left Arm. The Monument hath no Inſcription, but as appears by the Arms and the Herald's Regiſter, was erected to the Lady Elizabeth, commonly called the Lady Roſs, who was Daughter of Edward Earl of Rutland, by Iſabella, Daughter of Sir Thomas Holcroft, of the Vale-Royal in the County Palatine of Cheſter, who was buried at Stepney in Middleſex. This Lady Elizabeth, their only Child, married with William Cecil, Knight of the Garter, Lord Burleigh and Earl of Exeter. She died in the Houſe of her Grandfather, Sir Thomas Holcroft, in Tower-ſtreet, LONDON, on the 11th of April, 1591, Ann. 33 Elizabeth, and was buried here the 19th of May following, leaving by my Lord Burleigh one Son, named William, one Year old, who at her Funeral, after the Service in the Church, was proclaimed by the Title of Lord Roſs of Hamlake, Trusbut and Belvoir. This William, in the Time of King James I. claimed in Right of his Mother the Baronies of Roſs and Hamlake, Trusbut, Belvoir, againſt Francis Mannors, Earl of Rutland: Thereupon the King awarded, that the ſaid William Cecil ſhould be ſtiled Lord Roſs of Holderneſs; and the ſaid Francis Earl of Rutland ſhould keep the Title of Lord Roſs of Hamlake, and take Place below him. This William dying at Naples without Iſſue, the Barony of Roſs revolved again to the Earls of Rutland.

IN this Chapel, near the Tombs of the Lady Cecil and Lady Clifford, is a curious Pyramid of black Marble. This was erected over an Infant Child of Nicholas Bagenall of Angleſea, and at little more than the End of two Months overlaid, as appears by the following Inſcription:

This Monument is erected to the Memory of NICHOLAS BAGENALL, Son of Nicholas Bagenall, of the Iſle of Angleſea, Eſq; and of the Right Honourable the Lady Charlott Bagenall, his Wife, one of the Daughters of the Right Honourable Robert, late Earl of Aylsbury, Lord Chamberlain of his Majeſties Houſhould who was born the 31ſt Day of December, Anno Domini 1687.

And by his Nurſe unfortunately overlayed the 7th of March following.

ON the South Eaſt Corner of this Chapel is a neat Pedeſtal of black Marble, raiſed on a Stone Baſis, and ſupporting a Pyramid of white Marble. On the Top of the Pyramid is a Cup, in which was depoſited the Heart of Anna Sophia, Daughter of the French Ambaſſador. She died here in England 1605.

AGAINST the Weſt Wall of this Chapel, and raiſed on high over the Lady Roſs's Tomb, is a curious Monument of veined poliſhed Marble, erected to the Memory of that excellent and learned Prelate Dr. Thomas Sprat, Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, and Dean of this Church, and his Son Mr. Thomas Sprat, Archdeacon of Rocheſter, with Inſcriptions, which are attempted in Engliſh.

Here lies
THOMAS SPRAT, D. D.
Son of a Clergyman, born in the County of Dorſet, Fellow of Wadham College in Oxford.
Whilſt he was but a young Poet he publiſhed ſeveral Specimens
Of an extraordinary Genius and Learning;
But ſoon leaving the Muſes, (however favourable to him)
He reſign'd this Glory to his Cowley,
And choſe rather to purſue the Beauties of Proſe,
In which Study being equally exerciſed and delighted,
He made the earlieſt Appearance amongſt thoſe
Who undertook to poliſh the Engliſh Tongue.
And transferr'd to his native Language
All the Graces of the Greek and Roman Eloquence,
For which being deſervedly eſteem'd by Men of the firſt Character,
He was ſoon made known to George Duke of Buckingham,
And by him to that nice Judge of Politeneſs
King CHARLES,
Who beſtowed on him a Prebendary in the Churches
Of Weſtminſter and Windſor:
Not long after he was made Dean of this Church;
And laſtly, Biſhop of Rocheſter;
Both which Provinces he govern'd with the higheſt Reputation.
He, both in his Writings and common Converſation,
Expreſſed that Politeneſs,
Which evidently ſhew him converſant with Great Men,
He carried it obligingly to all;
And yet ever preſerved that Diſtance
Which he ſeemed leaſt to arrogate to himſelf.
In dangerous, as well as proſperous Times,
He ſtood firm in his Integrity to the Church and Monarchy,
And by that Means kindled the Envy of wicked Men,
Who by invented Crimes,
Brought him in Danger of his Head:
But being happily delivered from theſe Troubles,
His Life afterwards flow'd on with an even Temperament,
Neither burthenſome to himſelf nor his Friends,
At length falling at once by full Ripeneſs of Age,
He died with the ſame Calmneſs that he liv'd,
May 20, 1713, in the 77th Year of his Age.

On the Pedeſtal.

Here alſo Thomas Sprat, A. M. Son of this moſt happy Prelate, ordered his Aſhes to be laid near thoſe of his Father's.
He was Archdeacon of Rocheſter,
And Prebendary
Of the Churches of Rocheſter, Wincheſter and Weſtminſter;
Who from his earlieſt Youth learn'd to purſue
All Parts of Learning and genteel Education;
And emulating the Virtues of his excellent Father,
Liv'd not, alas! to reach his Years.
He died the 10th of May, Anno 1720, aged 41.

JOHN

JOHN FRIEND, M.D.
Who had for him the utmoſt Reverence,
That he might here ſhew it
Hath conſecrated this Monument jointly to their Memories.

ON the Right Hand, as you enter the Door, is an antient Monument of Free-ſtone againſt the Wall, where is the Effigies of a Lady in Robes, of an antient Form, under a Canopy of Wood, formerly painted with a Sky, and Stars of Gold, and our Saviour's Paſſion. This Tomb was erected over the Lady Philippa, ſecond Daughter and Coheir to John Lord Mohun of Dunſter, and married to Edward Plantaganet, Duke of York, Earl of Cambridge, Rutland and Cork, Conſtable of England, and Knight of the Garter, by whom ſhe had no Children. After whoſe Death ſhe married Sir Walter Fitzwalter, Knight; and dying Anno 1433, was here buried, over whom the ſaid Fitzwalter erected this Monument. The Inſcription round the Ledge is as follows:

Philippa, filia & hæres Johannis Domini Mohun de Dunſter, Uxor Edwardi ducis Eboracenſis, moritur, Anno Dom. 1434.

" Philippa, Daughter and Coheir of John " Lord Mohun of Dunſter, and Wife of Edward " Duke of York, died in the Year 1433.

ON a Grave-ſtone, the Feet of which comes near the Tomb of Carew, is the Portraiture of a Man in Armour cut in Braſs, with four Eſcutcheons round him, and this Inſcription cut in Braſs under his Feet.

" Here lies Humfrey Stanley, Knt. Eſquire " of the Body to the moſt excellent Prince Hen- " ry VII. King of England, who died the 12th of " March, Anno Dom. 1505, on whoſe Soul God " have Mercy. Amen.

THIS Stanley was a Relation of the Lord Stanley, and was with him on the Side of King Henry VII. at the Battle of Boſworth Field, where for his ſignal Services that Day, the King conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on him, with ſeveral others.

NEAR the aforeſaid Tomb, and at the Feet of Sir George Villiers's, was ſome Time buried two of the Children of the preſent Duke of Somerſet, but a few Years ago, in the Beginning of January, taken up and depoſited all Night in the old Reveſtry, and the next Day carried down to the Burial-Place of his Grace's Family.

NEAR theſe, at the South Weſt Angle of Villiers's Tomb, was buried the Body of a Son of the Marquis of Hamilton, who died in the Year 1633.

THERE is likewiſe an old Stone of Grey Marble, on Part of which the Tomb of Villiers ſtands, which, it is very probable, might be laid over the Counteſs of Derby, who was buried in the Floor of this Chapel Anno 1626.

NEAR whom was likewiſe buried the Lady Elizabeth Norris, in the Year 1645.

ON the South Eaſt Corner of Villers's Tomb, and near thoſe of Harley and Dudley, are two Grave-ſtones, the firſt covers the Body of George Sprat, Son to the Biſhop of Rocheſter, bearing the ſame Inſcription literally with that on his Monument in St. Benedict's Chapel. The other covers the Bodies of Biſhop Sprat, and his Son Thomas, and on it is this Inſcription:

THOMAS SPRAT,
Epiſcopus Roffenſis,
Hujuſce Eccleſiæ Decanus,
Obiit 12mo Maii MDCCXIII.
Ætatis ſuæ LXXVII.

AND at a little Diſtance:

THOMAS SPRAT,
Archidiaconus Roffenſis,
Hujus & Winton. Eccleſ. Preb.
Obiit Maii x. A. D. MDCCXX.
Ætatis ſuæ XLI.

THE Body of Archdeacon Sprat lies under the Coffin of the Biſhop, according to his particular Directions.

THE Lady Barbara Fielding was buried in this Chapel Anno 1641. As we leave this Chapel, going out of the Door, we tread upon the Ruins of that great and learned Antiquary Sir Henry Spelman, who dying at more than 80 Years of Age, was buried at the Door of this Chapel in the Year 1641.

LEAVING this Chapel, we aſcend to that of Henry VII.

AT the Eaſt End of the South Iſle of which Chapel is a Monument of Black Marble and Touch-ſtone, on which is an Image of Copper, gilt. This Tomb was erected to Margaret Counteſs of Richmond, Mother to King Henry VII. She was ſole Daughter and Heir to John Beaufort Duke of Somerſet, by Margaret Beauchamp, and was firſt married to Edmund Tudor, Son of Owen Tudor, and Catharine, Widow of King Henry V. Which Edmund was by Patent, dated 1452, created Earl of Richmond, by whom ſhe had King Henry VII. After his Death ſhe married Sir Humphry Stafford, a younger Son of Humphrey Duke of Buckingham, whom ſurviving likewiſe, ſhe married a third Time with Thomas Lord Stanley Earl of Derby, but had Children by neither of them. She was a great Encourager of Learning, and founded two Colleges in Cambridge, Chriſt-Church, and St. John's. She inſtituted a Divinity Lecture in each Univerſity, ſtill called by her Name. She was a great Encourager of Printing, when firſt begun in England, and was a chief Supporter of Caxton, or Wynk in the Wend, who ſtiles himſelf, in a Piece of Biſhop Fiſher, her Confeſſor's Works, Printer to her Highneſs's Grace, Margaret the King's Grandame. She always ſtiled herſelf Mother to the illuſtrious Prince Henry VII. This being in King Henry VIII's Time, was an Augmentation to her Title. She died the 3d of the Kalends of July, (Mr. Weaver, by Miſtake, ſays the 12th of July) and was buried here, Biſhop Fiſher preaching her Funeral Sermon, in the firſt Year of K. Henry VIII. viz. Anno 1509. Of her particular Charities, ſee in the Preface to her Funeral Sermon, lately reprinted at Cambridge; and of ſome Particulars, ſee in the Inſcription round the Tomb, and engraved under it on the Plate. Her plain and juſt Epitaph was written by Eraſmus, for which he had a Reward of 20 s.

The Engliſh is thus:

" The Tomb of Margaret of Richmond, Mo- " ther of King Henry VII. Grandmother of " King Henry VIII. who gave a Salary to three " Monks of this Convent, and founded a Gram- " mar School at Wimbourne, and to a Preacher " throughout England, and two Interpreters of " Scripture, one at Oxford, the other at Cam- " bridge; where ſhe likewiſe founded two Col- " leges, one to Chriſt, and the other to St. John " his Diſciple.

AT the Weſt End of the ſaid Iſle is a curious Monument of Marble, encloſed with Rails of Iron. On the Tomb is a Lady robed, of fine Alabaſter, and on each Side it four Children kneeling. This Tomb was erected to Margaret

Daughter

Daughter to Margaret Queen of Scots, Daughter to King Henry VII. and the Earl of Angus. This Lady was born at Harbottle Caſtle in Northumberland, Anno 1515, at which Place her Father and Mother reſided, being in Exile, (through Diſſentions among the Scotiſh Nobility.) This Lady, who was very beautiful, was in the Year 1537 ſought for in Marriage by Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk, who was upon that Account, together with this Margaret, committed to the Tower, and the Duke was in Parliament convicted of High Treaſon, for affiancing her without King Henry VIII. her Uncle's Conſent, where he died. After ſome Time, ſhe being releas'd, married Matthew Earl of Lenox, by whom ſhe had the beautiful Lord Darnley, who at ſeventeen was married to Mary Queen of Scots. Of the eight Children round this Tomb, Mention is made but of three; for four Daughters and one Son died Infants. Of theſe three, was the Lord Henry, before-mention'd; Charles, Father to the Lady Arabella Stuart; and another, Henry, who died at nine Years old, and lies in the Chancel of Stepney Church, near LONDON. This Lady died the 10th of March, in the Year 1577. On this Monument are the following Inſcriptions:

Henry ſecond Sonne to this Lady was K. of Scotts and Father to James the 6 now King. This Henry was murthered at the Age of 21 Yeares; Charles her youngeſt Sonne was Earle of Levenox Father to the Ladie Arbell. He died at the Age of 21 Yeares, and is here intombed.

This Ladye had to her Great Grandfather K. Edward the 4. to her Grandfather K. Henry the 7. to her Uncle K. Henry the VIII. to her Couſin Germane K. Edward the VI. to her Brother K. James of Scotland the 5. to her Sonne Kinge Henry the firſt. to her Granchild K. James the 6. having to her great Greate Grandmother and Grandmother 2 Queens, both named Elizabeth, to her Mother Margaret Queen of Scotts; to her Aunt Mary the Frenche Q. to her Couſyns Germanes Mary and Elizabeth Queenes of England; to her Neece and Daughter-in-Law Mary Q. of Scotts.

Here lyeth the noble Ladye, Margaret Counteſs of Levenox, Daughter and ſole Heire of Archibald Earle of Anguiſe, by Margaret Q. of Scotts his Wiſe, that was eldeſt Daughter to K. Henry the 7. whoe bare unto Matthew Earle of Levenox, her Husband, 4 Sonnes and 4 Daughters.

Here lies alſo the before-mentioned Charles Stuart, Earl of Lenox, third Son of the ſaid Lady Margaret, who was born in England, and took to Wife Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir William Cavendiſh of Chatſworth. He died in the 21ſt Year of his Age, and was here buried in a little Vault, containing only two leaden Coffins, his and his Mother's; which being placed over it, has by its Weight ſo injured the former, that when it was opened ſome Years ſince, the Skull, dry'd Sinews, and Skin like ſhrivell'd Parchment, was viſible.

Mary Queen of Scots.

IN the ſame South Iſle, between the former of the Counteſs of Richmond and this is a magnificent one of various coloured Marble, erected to Mary, the unfortunate Queen of Scotland. This Lady, who was Daughter and Heir to James the Vth of Scotland, was born Anno 1542, and being an Infant when her Father died, was proclaimed Queen in her younger Years. Overtures were made to marry her to Edward VI. King of England; but that Match not taking Effect, ſhe was married to Francis, Dauphin of France, who ſoon after ſucceeded as King, but reigned no more than ſeventeen Months and odd Days, leaving this Queen without Iſſue; who going into Scotland, married the young Lord Henry Darnley, her Couſin, by whom ſhe had King James VI. of Scotland, and Firſt of England. But not long after this ſecond Match, this young King Henry was ſtrangled in the Night, and the Houſe blown up with Gunpowder. After which, being deſtitute of Power to make Head againſt Murray and the reſt of the Faction, ſhe was conſtrained to marry James, Earl of Bothwell. After which the Faction grew more hot againſt her, ſtirr'd up by Knox and other Incendiaries, who charged her with the Murder of her Husband, the Lord Darnley, and afterwards marrying with his Murtherer. Bothwell flies, and the Queen they ſeize, and commit Priſoner to Loch Levyn. Queen Elizabeth interpoſes in theſe Affairs, and ſends Sir Nicholas Throckmorton; but to no Purpoſe. At length the Queen, to ſave her Life, reſigns the Kingdom to her young Son, and placed Murray, the prime Rebel, Viceroy during his Minority: But not long after, eſcaping out of Priſon, ſhe declares theſe forced Reſignations void, and raiſed Forces: But they, upon engaging Murray, were defeated, and the Queen, with much Difficulty, eſcaped, by travelling ſixty Miles in one Day to the Lord Heris. Thence ſhe ſent a Ring to Queen Elizabeth, which ſhe had received from her as a Pledge of Friendſhip, deſiring her Aid; but (raſhly) before the Meſſenger returned, ſhe, with the Lords Heris and Flemming, enter'd a ſmall Veſſel, and landed at Workington in Cumberland; where, inſtead of an Aſylum to her Diſtreſs, ſhe was denied Acceſs to the Queen, and committed Priſoner to the Earl of Shrewsbury, and was confined in Chatſworth-houſe in Derbyſhire, now a Seat of the Duke of Devonſhire. After eighteen Years Confinement, during which ſhe had ſtruggled for Liberty, ſhe was, upon State-Views, charged with acting to the Prejudice of England; and by an unprecedented Proceeding tried, and ſentenced for High Treaſon; which Sentence was accordingly put in Execution; for on the 6th of the Ides of February 1587, ſhe was beheaded in the Caſtle of Fotheringhay in Northamptonſhire, upon a Scaffold erected in the Hall of that Caſtle.

AFTER which Execution, Queen Elizabeth deteſted the Act, and declaring it done without her Privity; ordered the Corpſe to be ſolemnly buried in the Cathedral of Peterborough, on the firſt of Auguſt 1587 (the Counteſs of Bedford being chief Mourner) where ſhe reſted, and had a ſumptuous Hearſe erected to her, till King James her Son, ſoon after coming to theſe Crowns, removed her privately, and buried her in a Vault made for that Purpoſe, near this Monument.

IN the ſame Vault, and under the Coffin of the Queen of Scots, lie ſeveral Perſons of Character; of whom, that we may not interrupt the Courſe of Monuments, we will ſpeak particularly hereafter.

AT the Eaſt End of this Iſle, above the Tomb of Mary Queen of Scots, near where ſtood an Altar before the Reformation, is a Royal Vault; ſo called from being the Repoſitory of King Charles II. for whom it was made, and whoſe Figure of Wax-work ſtands over it in a Caſe of Wainſcot, dreſſed in his Coronation Robes, which is all that marks it from the common Pavement.

ANOTHER Wainſcot Preſs of the ſame Form is placed at a Corner of the great Eaſt Window of this Chapel, in which is the Effigies of the Lady Mary, Dutcheſs of Richmond, who was Daughter to James Duke of Richmond and Lenox; and Heireſs to the Honours and Eſtate of her Family after the Death of Duke of Eſme her Brother. She married with Richard Butler, Earl of Arran

in

in Ireland, ſecond Son to James Duke of Ormond. She is dreſſed in Robes worn by a Dutcheſs on the Coronation.

A late Writer has the following Words concerning theſe Waxen Figures, "Which are "placed ſo curiouſly up and down this venerable Building, particularly the King William "and Queen Mary, which have been lately ſo "amicably ſhut up together in the ſame Box. "To oblige them therefore, and in Compliment "to the Reverend Dean and Chapter, who permit theſe noble Decorations, I will throw "away a Moment or two in giving my Opinion "of them. In the firſt Place, therefore, with "all Submiſſion to better Judgments, I think "they are ridiculous and unnatural in themſelves, expreſſing neither Figure like Statuary, "nor Colour like Painting. Secondly, I am "humbly of Opinion, that they would become "a Puppet-Shew better than a Church, as making a mere Farce of what ſhould be great and "ſolemn. And, Thirldly, I think them highly "injurious to the Characters they repreſent, as "ſhewing them like Jointed Babies, to the ſtupid "Admiration of the Vulgar, and the Contempt "of Men of Senſe; inſtead of characterizing "their Perſons, and perpetuating their Virtues.

"For all which, and many more Reaſons, "I beg Leave to move, that the whole preſent "Set of Waxen Worthies may be demoliſhed "without Benefit of Clergy, and that all their "preſent Patrons and Abettors may be ſubſtituted in their Place; and that, as faſt as any "future Reverence ſhould endeavour to ſeduce "his Brethren to the like Idolatry, he ſhould "be immediately chronicled in Wax, and ſhewn "with a Cap and Bells, to diſtingiuſh the Extent "of his Underſtanding, and the Perfection of "his Taſte.

In the North Iſle of this Chapel, at the Weſt End, and placed againſt the Head of Queen Elizabeth's Tomb, is a third Wainſcot Preſs, but without Glaſs, as the others, in which is the Effigies of General Monk, Reſtorer of the Royal Family and Monarchy to theſe Realms. To ſpeak particularly of this great Man: He was Son of Sir Thomas Monk of Potheridge, deſcended from the Plantaganets, and was after his Father's Death Lord of the Manor of Potheridge. After the Reſtoration of King Charles, in Reward for his unequalled Services, was created Duke of Albemarle, Earl of Torrington, Baron Monk of Potheridge, Beauchamp, and Teys, Captain-General of his Majeſty's Forces, Maſter of the moſt noble Order of the Garter, and Privy Counſellor. He died the 4th of January 1669, and was buried after a moſt honourable Manner, on the laſt Day of April following; at which Funeral he had a Hearſe erected in this Church, and on it this Effigies was placed. He lies in a Vault near this Place, made for him and his Family, of which we ſhall give a particular Account hereafter.

In the Nave of this Chapel ſtands the ſumptuous and magnificent Tomb of the Founder of this Chapel, Henry VII. and his Queen Elizabeth. She died in Chilbed in the Tower of LONDON, on Saturday the 11th Day of February, being likewiſe her Birth-Day, Anno 1502, in the 37th Year of her Age, after having ſat Queen ſixteen Years; upon whoſe Death ſolemn Diriges and Maſſes, with ringing of Bells, were ordered throughout England. Her Body being embalmed, for which ſixty Ells of Ell-broad Holland was allowed, together with Spices, Wine, Wax, &c. was cered, and then, by the King's Plumber, encloſed in Lead; which, with an Epitaph in Lead, was encloſed with Board, covered with Black Velvet; a Croſs of White Sarcenet was placed in the Tower Chapel under a Hearſe with Lights; and Windows, railed a good Height, were hung with Black Cloth, and filled with Tapers. The Corpſe was covered with a rich Pall of Black Velvet, with a Croſs of Gold; and after Pater noſter ſaid for the Soul of the Defunct, it was conveyed into a Chair or Hearſe covered with Black Velvet, with a Croſs of Cloth of Gold, fringed, and an Effigies in Robes laid on it, with a Crown, and the Hair diſhevelled; a Scepter in her Hand, and Rings on her Fingers. She was drawn to Weſtminſter, having White Banners of our Lady, ſignifying ſhe died in Chilbed; then followed eight Ladies of Honour on Palfries; then the Mayor and Commonalty, Orders of Religious Houſes, &c. Thus they proceeded through the Streets, illuminated with Torches, to Charing-Croſs, where the Choir of St. Paul's left them, and the Abbots of Weſtminſter and Bermondſey met them, with the Convent, who received the Corpſe, and at the Church-yard of St. Margaret's it was removed out of the Chair, and conveyed into the Abbey, where was provided a ſumptuous Hearſe. Dr. Fitz James, Biſhop of Rocheſter, preached the Funeral Sermon upon this Text, Miſeremini mei, miſeremini mei, ſaltem vos amici mei, quia manus Domini tetigit me. After which King Henry left Orders that her Image of gilt Copper ſhould be placed near his, upon a Tomb he intended ſhould be erected.

Henry VII. having ſurvived his Queen ſeven Years, died at his Palace of Richmond on the 21ſt of April 1509, in the 53d Year of his Age, and in the 24th of his Reign. After his Death, his Body was placed in the Great Chamber, and then in the Chapel, under Hearſes; at which ſeveral Places it had ſolemn Maſs and a Dirige, ſung by a Biſhop. On Wedneſday the 9th of May it was conveyed in a Chair covered with Cloth of Gold, drawn by five Horſes covered with Black Velvet, adorned with Eſcutcheons, on which was his Effigies, placed in his Robes, with the Crown, Scepter, and Ball. Before the Body went ſeveral Prelates and others praying, and 600 Torches followed it; thus they proceeded to St. George's-Fields near Southwark, where they were met by the Religious Orders, &c. the Mayor and Aldermen, who brought it to St. Paul's, where it reſted under a ſtately Hearſe, while the Biſhop of Rocheſter ſaid ſolemn Maſs and preached a Sermon. The next Day it was conveyed to Weſtminſter, where it was placed under another Hearſe while the Choir ſung Placebo and Dirige, which cloſed the Solemnities of that Day. The next Day ſolemn Maſs was ſung by three Biſhops, at the laſt of which was offered the Banner, Coarſer Coat, Armour, Sword, Target, and Helmet; and the Nobility offered their Pall of Cloth of Gold, and Baudekin; then the Choir Libera me, and the Corpſe was interred, the Great Officers breaking their Staves, and Garter proclaiming King Henry VIII. his Title, they went to Feaſt at the Palace.

In the Place where he was interred he gave Orders to his Executors to erect a Monument over him and his Queen, which for its curious Form and Structure is unequalled. It is encloſed in a Sacellum, or Chantry Chapel, of Braſs, curiouſly caſt in Entaglio and Devices, at the Corners of which are ſeveral Statues of Braſs, ſome Time gilded, but they are now in a great Meaſure gone, there being but four remaining, St. George, St. James, St. Bartholomew, and St. Edward. In this curious Encloſure ſtands the Tomb of black Marble, with the Effigies of this Prince and his Queen in their Robes of Copper, gilt. At the Head of this Tomb is a large Roſe crowned, and ſupported by a red Dragon, the Enſign of Cadwallader, the laſt King of the Britons, from whom he derived his Title, and in Honour of which Enſign is inſtituted a Herald, ſo called. This red Dragon he had painted on white and green Silk in his Standard at Boſworth, and is likewiſe ſupported by an Angel at the Foot of the Tomb. His Monument is adorned with Portcullis, in Memory that he deſcended by his Mother's Side from the Beauforts. There is likewiſe on his Monument Roſes twiſted, alluding to the Union of the Houſes of York and Lancaſter. And at each End of his Tomb is a Crown in a Busk, alluding to the Crown of King Richard III. found in a Hawthorn at Boſworth Field, with which he was there crowned. This Monument was made by Peter Florentine, who received for Materials and Workmanſhip no more than 1000 l. Sterling.

AT the Eaſt End of this Tomb was an Altar, where ſolemn Maſs was ſaid for his Soul, on which four Tapers burnt perpetually, as before-mentioned.

AT the Head of King Henry VII's Chantry lies buried King Edward VI his Grandſon, who dying at Greenwich the 6th Day of July, 1553, in the 16th Year of his Age, when he had reigned ſix Years, five Months, and nine Days, was buried on the 8th of Auguſt following; at whoſe Burial were carried ſeveral Banners and Trophies; the Marquis of Wincheſter was chief Mourner. An Hearſe was ſet up for him at Weſtminſter with Bannerol, Penſiles, and Eſcutcheons, and an Imperial Crown over it. The Service was in Engliſh, by the eſpecial Favour of his Siſter Queen Mary, who erected over him a ſtately Monument at the Head of King Henry VII. being an Altar of Braſs, gilt, having on the Back the Reſurrection of our Saviour wrought; but this, as ſeveral other Pieces of Value, was (perhaps for that it had two Angels on the Top kneeling, the one holding a Croſs, the other a Pillar of our Saviour's Paſſion) by the hot-brained Zealots in 41 demoliſhed, ſo that not the leaſt Footſteps now remain. In Mr Camden's Time it was remarkable; for, ſpeaking of this Prince, he ſays, Ad caput avi Henrici ſeptimi requieſcit ſub altari ex ære deaurato, & artificioſe alaborato.

ON the South Side of the Tomb of Henry VII. in a ſmall Chapel, which contains a moſt ſtately and ſumptuous Monument of caſt Braſs, where, on a Marble Table, are, in cumbent Poſtures, the Effigies of a Nobleman and his Lady robed, under a Canopy of curious Workmanſhip, ſupported by four Figures of Braſs, large as the Life, repreſenting Faith, Hope, Charity and Prudence. This was erected to the Memory of Lewis Stuart Duke of Richmond, and the Lady Frances his Dutcheſs, as appears by the Inſcriptions engraved on the Tomb, and here Engliſhed:

Here lies buried the Body of the moſt illuſtrious and moſt excellent Prince Lewis, Son of Eſme Stuart Duke of Lenox, Grandſon of John, Nephew to the Serene Prince King James I. Duke of Richmond Lenox, Earl of Newcaſtle upon Tine and Darnley, Chamberlain and Hereditary Admiral of Scotland, Lord High Steward of the Houſhold, firſt Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber and Privy Counſellor to his ſacred Majeſty King James, Knight of the Garter, Ambaſſador from Scotland to France; a Prince born to every Thing that was great and good, but gone to far better. He lived 49 Years, 4 Months and 17 Days.

2 Sam. 3. 38.

CHRONOG.

Know ye not that a Prince and a great Man is this Day dead, 16 February. Deſigned the firſt of the Princes of this Land.

THE ſecond thus:

The moſt illuſtrious and moſt excellent Princeſs Frances Dutcheſs of Richmond and Lenox, Daughter of Thomas Lord Howard of Bindon, Son to the Duke of Norfolk, by Elizabeth Daughter of Edward Duke of Buckingham, Wife of Lewis Stuart, Duke of Richmond and Lenox, who, ever mindful of this her deareſt Lord, hath to him who well deſerved it, and to herſelf, erected this Monument. She died the 8th of October, Anno Dom. 1639.

AT the Feet of this Monument, and within the ſame Chapel is a Pyramid of black and white Marble ſupporting a ſmall Urn. Round the Pyramid is a Coronet of Braſs, gilt. This was erected to the Memory of Eſme Stuart, Duke of Richmond and Lenox, by his Lady Mary, Daughter to the Duke of Buckingham. He died in France in the Year 1660, aged 10 Years, leaving the Honour and Eſtate to his Siſter Mary. He was brought over, and his Heart repoſited in the Urn over, and his Body under the Pyramid.

OF this illuſtrious Family are others buried near this Place without Monuments; an Account of whom ſee in a ſeparate Survey of ſuch Interments: Only give me Leave to obſerve, that in an old Wainſcot Preſs adjoining to this laſt mentioned Tomb, were the Effigies or Hearſe-Statues of the Duke and Dutcheſs of Richmond before-mentioned, but (being decayed) a Batton is nailed a-croſs the Foldings, and has been for ſome Years.

CROSSING the Feet of King Henry VII's Chantry and Tomb, leads us to a ſmall Angle, deſigned and uſed formerly as a Chapel, where is lately erected one of the moſt magnificent Monumenrs in this Abbey, compoſed of the fineſt veined Marble, where on an Altar, lies an Image of a General in a Roman Habit, and at his Feet is a Lady weeping; the firſt repreſenting John Sheffield, late Duke of Buckingham, and the latter his Dutcheſs now living. Over all is a Figure of Time carrying ſeveral Buſto's in Relieve, of Children of this noble Couple. The Inſcription upon this Monument is as follows, viz, on the Ledge:

Often for my Prince, ever for my Country.

ON the Table over the Effigies:

I liv'd doubtful, not diſſolute;
I die unreſolved, not unreſign'd;
Ignorance and Error
Are incident to Human Nature.
I truſt in an Almighty and all good God.
O! thou Being of Beings! Have Compaſſion on me.

ON an Oval under the Altar:

Sacred to the Memory
Of John Sheffyld, of the illuſtrious Race of the Sheffylds, who from the Reign of King Henry III. have by a direct Succeſſion of Male Heirs preſerved its Name even to this Day:
Duke of Buckinghamſhire,
Duke and Marquis of Normandy, Earl of Mulgrave,
Baron Sheffyld and Botterwick, and Kt. of the noble Order of the Garter.
He firſt married Urſula Counteſs of Conway:
His ſecond Lady was Catherine, Counteſs of Gainsborough,
His third, Catherine Counteſs of Angleſey, Daughter of King James II. and Catherine Sedly, Counteſs of Dorcheſter,
Who

Who bare him, 1. Sophia, 2. John, 3. Robert, 4. Henrietta Maria, (all now reſting in the Boſom of Time) 5. Edmund, now the only Comfort of his afflicted Mother.

In the Reign of King Charles II. he was General of the Dutch Troop of Horſe, Governor of Kingſton Caſtle upon Hull, and firſt Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber. After which, in the Reign of King James II. he was made Lord Chamberlain, and in the Reign of Queen Anne, Lord Privy Seal and Preſident of the Council.

In his Management of the Publick Affairs in the Houſe of Lords, for the Space of 54 Years, it is doubted whether was more, his graceful Elocution, or ready Application: His Vigour of Body declining, he preſerved that of his Mind to his laſt Breath. At length his Strength gently decreaſing, he lay down under his Burthen the 24th Day of February, and went to Reſt in the 75th Year of his Age, and of our Redemption, Anno 1720.

Round the Verge of the ſeveral Buſto's are theſe Inſcriptions, viz.

On that Shield carried in the Left Hand of Time:

John Marquis of Normandy, born Sept. 1710, and Sophia Sheffyld, 1709.
The one died four Days old, the other three Weeks.

On that in his Right Arm:

Henrietta Maria Sheffyld, born 24 Feb. 1713. died 20 Dec. 1717.

On that reſting on the Altar at his Foot:

Robert Marquis of Normandy, born 2 Decemb. 1711. died 1 Feb. 1714.

On the Ledge of the Tomb:

Catherine, Dutcheſs of Buckingham, much afflicted, gave Orders to erect this Monument, Anno 1722.

This great and excellent Nobleman, amongſt the many Commendations applicable to him, ſhines in the firſt Rank of our Engliſh Writers, and as ſuch has been for many Years celebrated. As he was himſelf a fine Judge, and an excellent Maſter of the Engliſh Poetry, ſo was he a generous and friendly Encourager of it in others; to whom his Favour was ſo extenſive, that even the meaneſt partook of his Bounty, though none but thoſe his nice Eye diſcovered to be the greateſt, ſhared his Friendſhip: Of which two Inſtances give us a Taſte, viz. Mr. Dryden, the Glory of the laſt, and Mr. Pope of the preſent Age; to the firſt of which his Care extended even after Death, by erecting a Monument well worthy of him; and to the latter he has raiſed a no leſs laſting Monument in his Works, by a Poem in Praiſe of him, in which he has preſerved the Dignity of the Nobleman, the Majeſty of the higheſt Critick, and yet the Familiarity and Friendſhip due to ſuch Merit, as evidently ſhews, that as his Grace was a perfect Maſter of the antient Writings, ſo was he of the antient Patronage; and that, as the Spirit of a Mæcenas required no nauſeous Flattery, ſo neither did it preſerve any haughty Diſtance. And he who maintained the higheſt Dignity, and diſtinguiſhed himſelf even with almoſt the greateſt Characters in this Land, knew how to unbend himſelf, and ſhare the moſt ſocial Familiarity with the more private, though more excellent ones in Learning. And that (as he was above foreign Praiſe, his Works and himſelf diſdaining it) he alſo was without any View, but that which always actuates the greateſt Souls. His Grace's Works he ſubmitted to the Care of Mr. Pope.

In a ſmall Chapel North of King Henry VII's, is another ſtately Monument, but of a more antique Form, compoſed of black Marble, Touch, and other curious Marbles, having ſeveral Figures of Braſs, large as the Life, and gilt with Gold, ſitting round the Tomb, on which are the Statues of George Villiers Duke of Buckingham, that great Favourite of King James I. and who, in the Reign of King Charles, was ſtabbed at Portſmouth by one Felton, a Lieutenant, a melancholy and zealous Diſcontent of that Time.

He married Catharine, Daughter of the Earl of Rutland, who erected this Monument, and lies buried with him.

Leaving the Nave of this Chapel, we enter the North Iſle, at the Eaſt End of which is a Vault, wherein are repoſited the Bodies of King James I. and his Queen Anne; of whom, as crowned Heads, though not diſtinguiſhed by Monuments, we ſhall here ſpeak.

He was Son of the Lord Darnley, by Mary Queen of Scots, and was, while an Infant, crowned King of Scotland, during his Mother's Troubles. After her Death, he was by Queen Elizabeth declared her Succeſſor to England, of which he was crowned King the 25th of July, 1603. He took to Wife Anne, Daughter of Frederick II. King of Denmark and Norway, by the Advice of Queen Elizabeth. This Prince reigned over Scotland 59 Years, three Months, and 12 Days, and over England 22 Years and three Days. He died between Twelve and One before Noon, the 16th of March, 1625, aged 60 Years, at his Palace at Theobalds in Hertfordſhire, from whence his Body was carried to Denmark-Houſe, now called Somerſet-Houſe; where having reſted about a Fortnight, it was brought into this Church, and placed under a Hearſe erected for that Purpoſe, and buried in this Vault the 14th of May, King Charles, his Son and Succeſſor, being chief Mourner, ſupported by the Earls of Arundel and Rutland.

In the ſame Vault lies interred Anne of Denmark, his Queen. She was Daughter of Frederick II. King of Denmark and Norway, born at Scanderburgh on the 14th of December 1574, and married to this Prince at her 16th Year of Age by Proxy at Cornenburgh; after which Marriage the King ſailed to Norway, and conſummated it. She died at Hampton-Court on Tueſday the 2d of March 1618, about Two in the Morning, in the 43d Year of her Age. Her Corpſe was brought in a Barge to Denmark, or Somerſet-houſe, where it lay in State nine Weeks, and was on Tueſday the 13th of May, conveyed hither in State, and buried in this Vault. On her Coffin is no Inſcription; but the leaden Urn which contained her Bowels had Anna Regina, and the Year 1619 on the Top; which Urn is now in the Vault of General Monk; perhaps removed there by the Workmen, when this Vault was opened for the Bones of King Edward V. and his Brother.

Over this Vault is a ſmall Tomb of Marble and Alabaſter, gilt, with the Figure of a Child lying on it, reſting on its Left Arms. This was erected to Mary III. Daughter of King James I. born at Greenwich in 1605, and ſoon after committed to the Care of the Lady Knevet, in whoſe Houſe at Stanwell ſhe died on the 16th Day of December, 1607, aged two Years five Months, and odd Days. The Body of this Child was brought in a Coach to the Houſe of Dr. Richard Neyle, Neyle, then Dean of Weſtminſter, and the following Day conveyed privately through the Cloiſters, and buried here.

ADJOINING to this is another ſmall but curious Monument, repreſenting a Child lying in a Cradle; this was erected to Sophia, 4th Daughter to King James, who was born at Greenwich on Sunday Morning the 21ſt of June, 1606, and lived not three Days. She was carried by a Barge to Weſtminſter, and buried here in State; at which Time the Workmen were erecting Queen Elizabeth's Tomb.

BETWEEN the former two, and fixed in the Eaſt Wall of this Iſle, is a beautiful Altar of white Marble. This was erected by King Charles II. to the Memory of King Edward V. and his Brother; who by their treacherous Uncle Richard were ordered to be ſmothered in the Tower, now called the bloody Tower, being near the Water-Gate. This horrid Act was committed by Miles Forreſt and John Dighton, under the Command of Sir James Tyrril. After which their Bodies were buried in a great Heap of Rubbiſh, near the Foot-Stairs of their Lodging, where now is the raiſed Terraſs, on the Left Hand as you go from the inner Arch of the Water-gate to the Tower Chapel, near the Stair-Caſe to that Terraſs. But here they reſted not long, for King Richard gave Orders to remove them; which Care was committed to the Prieſt of the Tower, who dying ſoon after, left the World in the Dark as to the Place. Various were the Conjectures of the Hiſtorians for many Years. Sir James Tyrril, when he was in the Tower for High Treaſon againſt King Henry VII. being examined concerning this Matter, together with Dighton, confeſſed the Murther and Circumſtances, perhaps as melancholly as moſt, which ſome of our Hiſtorians give at large; but they confeſſed they knew not the Place of their ſecond Burial. Others (as Hiſtorians love to work in the Dark) write, that Sir Robert Brakenbury's Prieſt cloſed them in leaden Boxes full of Holes, and let them down into the Sea at the Mouth of the Thames, in a Place called the Black Deeps. But however this Story was repreſented, the Place was brought to Light after 200 Years; for in July 1674, there being Orders to rebuild ſome Offices, and clear the White Tower from thoſe adjoining, as they were taking away the Stairs going from the King's Lodging into the Chapel of the White Tower, the Workmen diſcovered, about 10 Feet deep in the Ground, ſome ſmall Human Bones in a wooden Cheſt; which Bones being nicely examined, were found to have been thoſe of two Boys, the one of 13, the other of 11 Years of Age; the Skull of one whole, but the other broken by the Labourers, as were ſeveral of the other Bones, and likewiſe the Cheſt; who, not heeding them, caſt them away with the Rubbiſh; whereupon they were commanded to ſift it, and ſo preſerved all the Bones. This being brought to the Ears of King Charles II. his Majeſty ordered them to be put in a Marble Urn, and repoſited here. Theſe Princes were as follows, viz.

Edward of York, eldeſt Son of Edward IV. was born in the Sanctuary belonging to this Church, whither his Mother fled during the Conteſt between the two Houſes, his Father being driven out of the Realm; ſo that his Birth was in Trouble, and his End anſwerable. His Birth was the 4th of November 1470. At the eleventh Year of his Age, he was, upon the Death of his Father, crowned King; which Title he held ſomething more than two Years, and was murder'd the 9th of the Kalends of June, 1483, being thirteen Years old.

Richard of Shrewsbury, Brother to the former, was born May 28, 1474. He was made Duke of York, Norfolk, and Earl Warren. He was, while a Child, married to Anne Mowbrey, Heireſs of Norfolk, in the Year 1477. He was conſtituted Lieutenant of Ireland; but, by Reaſon of Minority, deputed. He was with the former ſmothered, as before rehearſed, being 11 Years old. This Inſcription on the Monument, which King Charles ordered, the Engliſh is as follows:

Here lie
The Reliques
Of Edward V. King of England, and Richard Duke of York;
Theſe Brothers being confin'd in the Tower,
And there ſtifled with Pillows, were privately and meanly buried,
By the Order of
Their perfidious Uncle Richard the Uſurper, Whoſe Bones, long enquired after and wiſhed for,
After 201 Years
In the Rubbiſh of the Stairs (i. e. thoſe lately leading to the Chapel
Of the White Tower)
Were on the 17th Day of July, 1674, by undoubted Proofs diſcover'd, Being buried deep in that Place.
Charles II. a moſt compaſſionate Prince, pitying their ſevere Fate, Ordered theſe unhappy Princes to be laid
Amongſt the Monuments of their Predeceſſors, Anno Dom. 1678, in the 30th Year of his Reign.

PROCEEDING Weſtward in this Iſle, we are almoſt forbid Paſſage by a large and ſtately Monument, erected to the Great and Glorious Queen Elizabeth. This Monument, of various Kinds of Marble, gilt, and Arms and Cognizances of the Engliſh Kings, is, together with its Inſcription, which being the juſt Character of her Actions, will require no other Tranſlations for the Engliſh Reader, viz.

To the eternal Memory of Elizabeth Queen of England, France and Ireland, Daughter of King Henry VIII. Grandaughter of King Henry VII. Great Grandaughter to K. Edward IV. Mother of her Country, a Nurſing Mother to Religion and all Liberal Sciences, ſkill'd in many Languages, adorned with excellent Endowments both of Body and Mind, and excellent for Princely Virtues beyond her Sex. James, King of Great Britain, France and Ireland, hath devoutly and juſtly erected this Monument to her, whoſe Virtues and Kingdoms he inherits.

ON the other Side:

Sacred to Memory:

Religion to its primitive Purity reſtored, Peace ſettled, Money reſtor'd to its juſt Value, domeſtick Rebellions quelled, France relieved when involved with inteſtine Diviſions, the Netherlands ſupported, the Spaniſh Armado vanquiſh'd; Ireland, almoſt loſt by Rebels, eas'd by routing the Spaniard; the Revenues of both Univerſities much enlarged by a Law of Proviſions; and laſtly, all England enrich'd. Elizabeth, a moſt prudent Governor 45 Years, a victorious and triumphant Queen, moſt ſtrictly religious, moſt happy, by a calm and reſigned Death at her 70th Year left her mortal Remains, till by Chriſt's Word they ſhall riſe to Immortality, to be depoſited in this Church, by her eſtabliſh'd and laſtly founded. She died the 24th of March, Anno 1602, of her Reign the 45th Year, of her Age the 70th.

THIS

This excellent Princeſs died at Richmond, where her Body was embalmed and cloſed in Lead, and brought by Water to Whitehall, from whence being attended by 1600 Mourners, to this Church, it was buried the 28th of April 1602.

In the ſame Grave lies her Siſter and Predeceſſor, Queen Mary; who, after a ſhort and bloody Reign of five Years, four Months, and eleven Days, died at St. James's, where her Bowels lie in the Chapel, and her Heart, which was ſeparately incloſed in a Box covered with Velvet, and bound round with Silver. Her Body being embalmed, was encloſed in Lead, and put in a Coffin covered with Purple Velvet, which was covered with a Pall of Cloth of Tiſſue, with a Croſs of White Cloth of Silver, adorned with Eſcutcheons, and placed under a ſtately Hearſe in the Chapel; and on Tueſday the 12th of December ſhe was conveyed in an open Chariot, with her Effigies, to the Church, in which was placed an Hearſe for the Corpſe, while Garter asked Prayers for her Soul. After the Ceremonies of Burial, ſhe was interred in this Place, and had no Memorial, till King James I. erected this Tomb to Queen Elizabeth.

Next, Weſtward to the Tomb of Queen Elizabeth, on the South Side of this Iſle, is a Monument of white Marble, with a Buſto of George Saville, late Marquis of Hallifax.

Westward from which is a ſtately Monument, being a Pyramid of veined Marble, of an extraordinary Height, ſupported by two Griffins of Braſs, gilt, on a Pedeſtal of the moſt curious Marble, and the Arms of Braſs likewiſe gilt. This was erected to the Memory of that great Encourager of Learning, the late Earl of Hallifax, whoſe Character ſee in the Inſcription of this Monument thus Engliſhed:

Here lies

CHARLES MOUNTAGUE,

Son of the Honourable George Mountague of Horton, in the County of Northampton, Nephew of Henry Earl of Mancheſter, who was a Scholar in the Royal College of this Church, Fellow of Trinity College in Cambridge. He ſo ſtudied the Polite Parts of Learning, that he ſhone among our firſt Poets and Orators, altho' by a different Bent of Study, yet with an equal Applauſe. Being well inſtructed in the Liberal Sciences, he left the Academick Walks, and came forth into the World, and from being firſt the Ornament, ſoon arriv'd to be the Encourager of Learning; for this Gentleman, from his juſt Oratory in the Parliament, and his Care in the Council, and his fine Language, Integrity and Influence in both, applied himſelf to the Affairs of our Coin; where opportunely undertaking the intricate Affairs of the Treaſury, the Silver Coin being clipp'd, to the great Loſs of the Publick, he reſtored it to its primitive Value. This vaſt and laborious Undertaking, even at the Time we were in a long War, he both engag'd with and compleated. And left in the mean Time the Subſidies of the Nation, and Neceſſaries to it, ſhould be wanting, he wiſely took Care that the Private and Publick Credit ſhould not in the leaſt be upon the Totter. For theſe Deſerts to his Country and his Prince, united with well Wiſhes to both, he added new titular Honours to the antient Glory of his Race, being created firſt Baron, and then Earl of Hallifax, being the fourth Nobleman of the Name of Mountague. He was laſtly honoured with the Garter. While for promoting the Publick Welfare and Profit he wholly employed his Mind, labouring in the Midſt of theſe Deſigns, he (O! ſlippery Fate of human Things) died, with Grief of all good Men, the 19th of May, Anno Dom. 1715, aged 54.

These two laſt Gentlemen lie in General Monk's Vault, with many others; of which Vault, and the Perſons there, as well as the other Vaults in this Chapel, Mention will be made hereafter.

Leaving this Royal Chapel, the next in the Area is the Chapel of St. Paul.

On the Left Hand, when you enter this Door, and againſt the Weſt Wall of this Chapel, is a ſtately Monument of various coloured Marble, erected to Sir John Puckering, Lord Keeper in the Time of Queen Elizabeth. The Inſcription on the Monument in Engliſh is as follows:

Sir John Puckering, Knt. remarkable for his Knowledge in the Laws, Piety, Wiſdom, and many other Virtues: Privy Counſellor to the ſerene Princeſs Elizabeth Queen of England, and Keeper of the Great Seal, after he had given juſt Decrees for four Years with ſingular Integrity and Equity, fell aſleep in the Lord, and lies here. He lived 52 Years, and died the 30th of April, Anno 1596.

The Publick Care and Laws engag'd my Breaſt,
To live was toilſome, but to die is Reſt.
Wealth, Maces, Guards, Crowns, Titles, Things that fade,
The Prey of Time and Sable Death were made.

VIRTUE FIRES MEN.

His Wife this Statue rears to her lov'd Spouſe,
The Teſt of Conſtancy and Marriage Vows.

I truſt to ſee the Lord in the Land of the Living.

Adjoining to the former is a Monument of Black and White Marble, now pretty much broken and injured, on which are two Statues, a Man and a Woman in a cumbent Poſture, and over them a Table of Black Marble, bearing only an Inſcription on one Side of it. This Monument was erected to Sir James Fullerton, with the following Inſcription thereon:

Here lyes the Remnant of Sir James Fullerton, Knight, firſt Gentleman of the Bedchamber to King Charles the Firſt, (Prince and King) a gracious Rewarder of all Virtue: a ſevere Reprover of all Vice: a profeſt Renouncer of all Vanitie He was a firm Pillar to the Common Wealth: a faithful Patron to the Catholiq; Church: a faire Patterne to the Britiſh Court. He lived to the Welfare of his Country to the Honour of his Prince: to the Glory of his God. He dyed Fuller of Faith: then of Fears: Fuller of Reſolucon then of Pains; Fuller of Honour then of Days.

In the Middle of this Chapel is a Tomb of White Marble, encloſed with Rails, with two antient Statues lying on it, which covers the Body of Sir Giles Daubney, Knt. a Man of great Authority in the Time of King Henry VII. of whoſe Bedchamber he was. The Inſcription, as Mr. Camden has given it us, is thus:

Here lieth buried within this Tomb Sir Giles Daubney, Kt. Lord Lieutenant of Calais, Lord Chamberlain to the Noble King Henry VII. The which Giles died the 22d Day of May, in the Year of our Lord God 1507. And Dame Elizabeth his Wife, the which died in the Year of our Lord God 1500, on whoſe Souls Jeſus have Mercy. Amen.

NEAR the Tomb of Fullerton is a very magnificent Monument of Alabaſter, with Pillars of Marble and Lydian, gilt, on which is the Effigies of an antient Perſon in a Chancellor's Gown, with eight Children kneeling at his Feet. This Monument was erected to Sir Thomas Bromley, as appears by the Epitaph thus tranſlated:

Thomas Bromley, Kt. remarkable for his Wiſdom, Piety, and Knowledge of the Law, Privy Counſellor to Queen Elizabeth, and Lord Chancellor, when he had for eight Years delivered Equity with ſingular Integrity and Temper of Mind, being ſnatched haſtily away, to the Grief of all good Men, was here buried. He lived 57 Years, and died the 12th of April, Anno 1587. He left by his Lady Elizabeth, of the Family of the Forteſcues, eight Children. Henry his Son has to the beſt of Fathers erected this Monument.

ON the Pedeſtal:

By Labour and Induſtry. —— By Study and Diligence.

ON the Eaſt Side of this Chapel is a beautiful Tomb of Alabaſter, and other Kinds of Marble, on which is the Effigies of a Lady rob'd, with a Coronet on her Head. This Monument was erected to the Memory of Frances Counteſs of Suſſex, as appears by the following Inſcription:

Here lieth the moſt Honourable Lady Frances, ſome Time Counteſs of Suſſex, Daughter of Sir William Sidney of Penſehurſt, Kt. Wife and Widow to that moſt noble, moſt wiſe, and moſt martial Gentleman, Thomas Ratecliffe, Earl of Suſſex; a Woman, while ſhe lived, adorned with many and moſt rare Gifts both of Mind and Body, towards God truly and zealouſly religious; to her Friends and Kinsfolk moſt liberal; to the poor Priſoners, to the Miniſters of the Word of God always moſt charitable. By her laſt Will and Teſtament ſhe inſtituted a Divinity Lecture to be read in this Collegiate Church; and by the ſame her Teſtament gave alſo 5000 l. towards the building of a new College in the Univerſity of Cambridge, with ſufficient yearly Revenue for the continual Maintenance of one Maſter, ten Fellows and twenty Scholars, either in the ſame College, or elſe in another Houſe in the ſaid Univerſity, already built, commonly called Clare-Hall. She lived 58 Years, and died the 9th of March, and was buried the 15th of April, 1589.

NEXT to this Monument is a ſtately one of black Touchſtone, raiſed againſt the Wall, and at the Top of it a Buſto of white Marble in a circular Frame of gilt Braſs, and on a Table of the ſame an Inſcription. This was erected to Anne Lady Cottington, Baroneſs of Hanworth.

AT the Feet of which Monument is another curious one, raiſed like a Table, of black and white Marble, on which, reſting on the Left Arm, is the Effigies of Francis Lord Cottington, to whom this was erected, as appears by an Inſcription over it. Of this Lord Cottington ſee much, as well as his Character, in my Lord Clarendon's Hiſtory of the Rebellion:

Dedicated

To the Memory of ANNE, the pious and beloved Wife of FRANCIS Lord Cottington, Baron of HANWORTH in the County of Middleſex, Daughter of Sir William Meredith of the County of Denbigh, Knt. and of Jane his Wife, Daughter of Sir Tho. Palmer of Wingham in Kent, Knt. and Baronet, who having lived in long and perfect Conjugal Affection, died full of Chriſtian Comfort the 22d Day of Feb. Ann. 1633, ætatis 33, having had one Sonne and fower Daughters; of which Frances, Elizabeth and Anne, now living, Anno 1635.

Here lyes Francis Lord Cottington of Hanworth, who in the Reign of King Charles I. was Chancellour of his Majeſty's Exchequer, Maſter of his Court of Wards, Conſtable of the Tower, Lord High Treaſurer of England, and one of his Majeſty's Privy-Council: He was twice Ambaſſador in Spain, once for the ſaid King, a ſecond Tyme for King Charles II. now reigning: To both which hee moſt ſignally ſhowed his Allegiance and Fidelity during the unhappy Civil Broils of thoſe Times, and for his faithfull Adhearance to the Crown (the Uſurpers prevailing) was forced to fly his Country, and during his Exile died at Validolid in Spaine, on the 10th of June, An. Dom. 1652, Æt. ſuæ 74, whence his Body was brought and here interred by Charles Cottington, Eſq; his Nephew and Heir, An. 1679.

NEXT which, in the Skreen of the Chapel, and indeed the whole Skreen is properly Part of the Monument, is an antient Tomb of grey Marble, under a low Gothick Arch, on which are Boards raiſed like the Lids of Coffins, or Cheſts, in old Time, under which, ſay ſome Writers, lay the Bodies to whom this Tomb was built in Lead Coffins; but upon ſearching under them, there cannot be diſcovered the leaſt Remains, or the leaſt Likelihood conceived of ſuch Things. Over the Arch, the Skreen is painted with many Arms, of which we have preſerved all that remain, for many are gone; and along the upper Ledge, between theſe Eſcutcheons ſtill remains in Text Letters of Gold this Inſcription:

Non nobis Domine, non nobis, ſed Nomini tuo da gloriam.

BESIDES that which was on the middle Ledge, another but now gone; however in Mr. Camden's Time it was thus:

Learn to die, to live ever.

AND another in French:

L'honneur adieu, a nous merci.

THIS Monument was erected to one Lewis Robſert, a Native of Hainault, and his Wife Elizabeth, Daughter to Sir Bartholomew Bourchier: He was Standard-Bearer to King Henry V. Knight of the Bath, afterwards Knight of the Garter, and Lord Bourchier. He died Anno 1431. On the Monument are ſeveral Arms of the Engliſh Gentry, and thoſe of Hainault. This Robſert ſhould ſeem to be a Relation by Marriage to Jeffry Chaucer, our Poet; for the Creſt to his Arms is that of Sir Payne Roet's of Hainault, Father to Chaucer's Wife, and Catharine Swinford, Dutcheſs of Lancaſter. The Arms of Roet are likewiſe on the Skreen, viz. three Wheels, Or, in a Field, Arg. Chaucer's Arms are likewiſe there, viz. Argent and Gules per pale, a Bendend counterchanged.

THE next Chapel is that of St. John Baptiſt. In which, on the Right Hand, after entering, is a curious Monument of fine Marble, the Side Pillars of red, and on it a Lady kneeling, repreſenting Mrs. Mary Kendal, of whoſe excellent Qualities read the following pathetick Inſcription, which is on her Tomb:

This

This Monument was erected by Captain Thomas Kendal.
Mrs. MARY KENDAL,
Daughter of Thomas Kendall, Eſq; and of Mrs. Mary Hallet, his Wife, of Killigarth in Cornwall, was born at Weſtminſter, Nov. 8. 1677. and dyed at Epſom, March the 4th, 1709-10. having reached the full Term of her bleſſed Saviour's Life; and ſtudy'd to imitate his ſpotleſs Example. She had great Virtues, and as great a Deſire of concealing them, was of a ſevere Life, but of an eaſy Converſation, courteous to all, yet ſtrictly ſincere; humble, without Meaneſs; beneficent without Oſtentation; devout without Superſtition. Theſe admirable Qualities, in which ſhe was equalled by few of her Sex, ſurpaſs'd by none, render'd her every Way worthy of that cloſe Union and Friendſhip, in which ſhe liv'd with the Lady Catharine Jones; and in Teſtimony of which, ſhe deſired, that even their Aſhes after Death, might not be divided; and therefore, order'd herſelf here to be interr'd, where ſhe knew that excellent Lady deſigned one Day to reſt, near the Grave of her belov'd and religious Mother, Elizabeth, Counteſs of Ranelagh.

On the South Wall of this Chapel is a handſome Monument, being two Statues of white Marble, reſting their Arms on a Marble Table; on which Table was formerly an Inſcription, ſhewing that one Edward Popham, an Officer, and Colonel in the Rebels Army againſt King Charles I. lay there; and ſhewing what was there called the Merits and Glory of that Rebellion: For which after the Reſtoration, this Monument was ordered to be defaced; but upon Application made to his Majeſty King Charles, by ſome of the Lady's Relations, who had ſerved the Royal Party, it was ſuffered to remain, only the Inſcription was turned inward.

Near the North Eaſt Angle of this Chapel, is a handſome Table-Monument of white Marble, erected to the Memory of Thomas Cary, ſecond Son to the Earl of Monmouth: He was of the Bed-Chamber to King Charles I. and died, as is thought, of Grief, ſoon after the Murder of his Maſter, viz. Anno 1648, aged 33 Years, and lies in the Lord Hunſdon's Vault.

In the Midſt of this Chapel is a very large Monument of black Marble, of which are, incumbent Poſtures, the Effigies of a Nobleman, in the Robes of the Garter, and a Lady on his Right Side, with Space on his Left for another. This Monument was erected to that great Stateſman, Thomas Cecil, Earl of Exeter, as appears by an Inſcription round the Ledge, in Engliſh thus:

Thomas Cecil, Earl of Exeter, Baron of Burleigh, Knt. of the Garter, Privy Councellor to King James, with his two dearly loved Wives, Dorothy Nevil, Daughter and Coheir to the noble Lord Latimer, his firſt Wife, and Frances Bridges, of the noble Family of the Chandois, his ſecond Wife: They reſt under this Monument in firm Hope of a Reſurrection.

Againſt the Eaſt Wall of this Chapel, where was formerly the Altar of St. John Baptiſt, is a moſt magnificent Monument of various Marble and Alabaſter, gilt with Gold, and adorn'd with Sculpture. This Monument was erected to the Memory of Henry Carey, firſt Couſin to Queen Elizabeth, by the Mother's Side. This Gentleman, tho' much eſteem'd by the Queen, could not attain thoſe Honours he deſerved; which, as they were always the Rewards of Merit, ſo came they very ſeldom from the Hand of that wiſe and judicious Princeſs. This Gentleman at length took the Diſappointment to Heart, at which the Queen, moved too late, created him a Baron, and ordered the Patent and Robes to be laid upon his Bed; but Honours appearing to him then in a juſter Light, when wiſely inſtructed by Death, he left them and the World together, and lies in a Vault near this Tomb, Anno 1596.

Againſt the Weſt Wall of this Chapel, under an Arch, is an antient Monument of grey Marble, plated with Braſs, inſculp'd with the Figure of a Knight in Armour, under his Head his Helmet, with an Unicorn's Head for the Creſt, and Eſcutheons at each Corner, with ſome Remains of other Engraving; the Ledge is gone, but when in Being, ſome Time ſince, bore this Inſcription:

Thomas Vaughan —— & Theſaur. Comer. Edwardi IV. & Camerar.
Principis & primogenitis —— requieſca-- in pace Amen.

On the South Side of this Chapel is an antient Monument of Free-Stone, where under a Gothick Canopy, lies the Image of a Biſhop in his Habit. This was erected to the Memory of Thomas Ruthal, Biſhop of Durham, born at Cirenceſter, in Gloceſterſhire, educated at Cambridge, where he commenced Doctor of Laws, preferr'd by Henry VII. to the See of Durham, made Privy Counſellor to Henry VIII. who employed him, as being a wiſe and learned Man, in ſeveral Embaſſies. The odd Manner of this Gentleman's Death, take from Biſhop Godwin.

It pleaſed the King one Time to require him to ſet down his Judgment in Writing, concerning the Eſtate of his Kingdom in general, and particularly to inform him in certain Things by him ſpecified. This Diſcourſe the Biſhop writ very carefully, and cauſed it to be bound in Vellum, gilt, and otherwiſe adorned in the beſt Manner. Now you ſhall underſtand, how that it chanced him about the ſame Time to ſet down a Note of his own private Eſtate, containing an Inventory not only of his Utenſils and Houſhold-Stuff in every of his Houſes, with their Value, but alſo of his Monies, either owing to him, or Deniers contained ready in his Coffers, which amounted to an infinite Treaſure, no leſs than 100,000 l. This Account was written in a Paper Book of the ſame Faſhion and Binding that the other was, which he had provided for the King; whereby it happened, that the King ſending Cardinal Wolſey for the other Draught that he had ſo long before required of him, the Biſhop miſtaking, delivered that which contained the Report of his own Wealth and private Eſtate: This the Cardinal ſoon eſpying, and willing to do the Biſhop a Diſpleaſure, (for there had been long and great Emulation between them) delivered it as he had received it, to the King, ſhewing how the Biſhop had happily miſtaken himſelf; for now (quoth he) you ſee where you may at any Time command a great Maſs of Money, if you need it. As ſoon as the Biſhop underſtood his own Error, the Conceit thereof touch'd him ſo near, as within a very ſhort Time after he died.

This Prelate's Death happen'd in the Year 1523. He built the great Chamber at Aukland, Part of the Bridge over the River Tyne, and intended to rebuild the Pariſh-Church of Cirenceſter, but was prevented by Death. On his Tomb was this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Thomas Ruthall, Epiſcopus Dunelmen. & Regis Henrici ſeptimi Secretarius, qui obiit 1524.

ADJOINING to this is another antient Monument of Free-ſtone, with the Image of a miter'd Abbot. This was raiſed over one William de Colcheſter, Abbot of this Church.

A third antient Monument is the Weſtward of the three; it is plain, arched in the Skreen, and grated with Iron. Towards the Area, and on the Frieze of the Stone-work, is Flacket in a Cypher, intimating, that George Flacket, Abbot of Weſtminſter, in the Time of Henry VII. lies here.

ON the Tomb of Flacket is a large Stone Coffin, with a Croſs on it, ſaid by ſome to contain the Body of one of the Bohun's, Earls of Hereford; by others, Thomas Milling, Biſhop of Hereford, and ſome Time Abbot of this Church. True it is, that when Camden wrote of theſe Monuments, Milling lay in medio hujus Sacelli; but that he was removed upon making the Earl of Exeter's Monument, is meer Conjecture. Certain it is, that one Richard de Croſsly, Abbot in Henry III's Time, being bury'd in St. Edmund's Chapel, and that Chapel in Time decaying, his Body was carry'd to that of St. Nicholas, and laid under a little plain Stone; but afterwards, in Henry VI's Time, the Body was taken up, and ſeen in a Stone Coffin whole and ſound, dreſſed in his Maſs Habit; and it is not unlikely that it reſted there above Ground till a more convenient Repoſitory happened on the Tomb of one of his Predeceſſors. Another Reaſon that makes it doubted to be Milling's, is, the antient Form of it, and the Matter itſelf; for Stone Coffins were very rarely, if at all, uſed here in the 14th Century: But however doubtful the Name of the Owner of it is, the Hiſtorian of this Church, Mr. Keep, was much miſtaken in aſſerting that it contained a Body viſible, but ſomewhat defaced by its Removal; which if it was ſo, it has in thirty Years, notwithſtanding its Stone Security, met with ſtrange Alteration; for, upon Inſpection, there are not the leaſt Remains of Bones, or any Appearance that it had been inhabited, were it not for three or four Oak Boards (once the inward Cheſt, a firmer Proof of its Antiquity) fallen flat one on the other, and lying at the Bottom of the Stone Coffin.

NEAR the Lord Hunſdon's Vault is a ſmall Grave-ſtone, with this Inſcription:

Charles Howard, third Son of the Right Honourable Charles Earl of Carliſle, who was born the fifth Day of September, Anno Dom. 1668, and died the third of April 1670, and lieth here interred.

LEAVING this, we come to the Chapel of Iſlip, call'd commonly, St. Eraſmus.

IN which Chapel, in the Midſt, is a plain Marble Table, with four ſmall Pillars of Braſs ſupporting it; under which Table was a Skeleton of Alabaſter, in a Shrowd, now taken away, repreſenting John Iſlip, Abbot of Weſtminſter, in the Time of Henry VII. Founder of this Chapel, and a great Benefactor to this Church.

ON the Eaſt Wall of this Chapel, is a handſome Monument of white Marble, erected to Sir Chriſtopher Hatton, Knight of the Bath, by his Lady Alice. He died the 23d of July, 1596. Aged 72.

OVER this Chapel is the Chauntry of Iſlip, to which we aſcend by Stone Steps; in it are two large Preſſes of Wainſcot, containing the Effigies of our Princes, and other great Perſons who have been buried here, which were carried in open Chariots at their Funerals, and laid on Hearſes, in this Church: There are many of them, but ſadly mangled; ſome with their Faces broke, others broken in ſunder, and moſt of them ſtripped of their Robes.

In the Chapel of St. John the Evangeliſt. At the Entrance into this Chapel, and under the Skreen which incloſes it from the Area, are two antient Monuments of Free Stone, raiſed four Feet from the Ground; on that on the Right Hand, is the Image of an Abbot in his Maſs Habit, curiouſly ſculp'd in Braſs.

THE Monument on the Left Hand, bears the Figure of a Knight armed, ſculp'd as the former, reſting his Feet on a Lyon, and his Head on a Greyhound. There has been an Inſcription, but it is now torn from the Ledge, excepting theſe Words, Menſis Maii ———.

UNDER which, the Regiſter of this Church informs us, lies buried Sir John Herpedon, Knt. who died Anno 1457.

ON the North Side of this Tomb, and within the Chapel, is a large Tomb of Free-Stone, with a Braſs Inſcription round the Ledge; on which were, in Braſs Plates, ſeveral Eſcutcheons and Verſes, now torn away. Under this is buried Sir Thomas Parry, Knt. Treaſurer of the Houſehold, Maſter of the Court of Wards and Liveries, who died the 15th of December 1560. Anno 2 Eliz. as the Inſcription expreſſes it: Hic jacet Thomas Parry, Reginæ, Obiit 15 Decemb. A. D. 1560.

AGAINST the Eaſt Wall, on a Baſis bearing in Relievo the Siege of a Town, is a Statue in a Roman Habit, with a Battoon and Shield, one of the Eyes fabled as if loſt, and on each Side the Pedeſtal a Pallas curiouſly carved. This Monument was erected to Sir George Holles, Nephew to Sir Francis Vere, at whoſe Feet he lies, and Brother to John Earl of Clare. His Epitaph mentions his being Major-General in the Netherlands, with his Uncle Sir Francis; and that he died the 14th Kal. of January, 1626, being aged 50 Years, three Months and four Days.

IN the Midſt of this Chapel is a monumental Table, covered with a Coat Armour, ſupported on the Shoulders of four Knights kneeling, under which lies the Effigies of Sir Francis Vere, Knt. in a Gown, on a Quilt of Alabaſter. A Gentleman of ſingular Character, both for Arms and Letters; of the firſt, his being trained up from his Youth in the Camp, being 30 Years in the States Service, and 20 Years the Queen's General over the Engliſh, are ſufficient Proofs; and for the ſecond, his learned and excellent Commentaries will witneſs. He died the 28th of Auguſt 1608. On the Baſis of the Tomb, being black poliſhed Marble, is this Inſcription in Letters of Gold: "Franciſco Vero Equiti au-"rato Galfridi F. Johannis Comitis Oxoniæ ne-"poti, Brieliæ & Portſmuthæ præfecto, Angli-"carum copiarum in Belgio ductori ſummo; "Elizabethæ Uxor viro chariſſimo, quo cum "conjunctiſſime vixit, hoc ſupremum amoris & "fidei conjugalis monumentum mœſtiſſima & "cum lacrymis gemens, poſuit. Obiit 28 die "Auguſti, An. Salutis 1608. Ætatis ſuæ 54.

NEAR the Tomb of his Anceſtor lies buried Aubery de Vere, the laſt Earl of Oxford of that Name, which had continued from the Conqueſt in that Earldom, and for the moſt Part retained the Chriſtian Name. He was Lieutenant-General of her late Majeſty's Forces, of the Privy-Council, and Knight of the Garter: He died March the 12th, 1702, without any Male Iſſue, whereby that Earldom, with that of Earl Mortimore, were by the Queen conferred on the Right Honourable Robert Harley, firſt Lord of the Treaſury. In the ſame Place, on his Left Side, lies his Lady Dianah, Counteſs-Dowager of Oxford; ſhe was interred here on the 16th Day of April, 1719, in a Coffin of Lead. And on her Left Hand is a Stone Coffin, but the Owner of it is doubtful.

NEAR

Near the Foot of Holles is the late Duke of Newcaſtle's Grave-Stone, with the Inſcription; of whom, when we come to his Monument in the North Croſs.

The next or middle-moſt of the three, now one with them, and looking to the North Area, is the Chapel of St. MICHAEL.

On the Eaſt Side of this Chapel was ſome Time ſince a Monument of Alabaſter and Marble, repreſenting the Effigies of a Lady in a Ruff and the Elizabeth Dreſs, cumbent, and reſting on her Right Hand, with two Children kneeling by her. This Monument, which, in repairing the Church, has, notwithſtanding the utmoſt Care, been broken to Pieces, was erected with Intent to perpetuate the Memory of Catharine Lady St. John, who died in the Year 1614.

On the ſame Eaſt Side of this Chapel is another, erected to the Dutcheſs of Somerſet, with an Inſcription, thus Engliſhed:

Here lies the late moſt illuſtrious Sarah Dutcheſs of Somerſet, ever celebrated for her Charity and Beneficence, who erected a Grammar-School for Boys at Tottenham in the County of Middleſex, enlarged the Income of the Green-Coat Hoſpital at Weſtminſter; largely endowed Brazen-Noſe-College in Oxford, and St. John's in Cambridge, for the educating and nouriſhing Youth in Piety and good Literature: She was likewiſe an Encourager of Trades and Handicrafts, and had a tender Regard to Old Age, by erecting an Alms-houſe at Froxfield in Wiltſhire for thirty Widows. She was very charitable to the Poor of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, where ſhe inſtituted a Lecture, and gave many ſtately Ornaments to the Church. She died the 25th of October 1692.

Chapel of St. ANDREW.

On the North Weſt Corner of this Chapel is the antient Grey Marble Tomb of Abbot Kirton.

Against the Eaſt Wall is a Table Monument, to preſerve the Memory of Sir John Bourgh.

The Narrative Part of which Epitaph on the Monument is thus in Engliſh: The Magnanimous Illuſtrious Man John Bourgh, Son of the Noble Baron the Lord William Bourgh, deſcended from that brave Hero Hubert de Bourgh, ſome Time Earl of Kent, and the Noble Lady the Lady Catharine Clinton, Daughter of the Lord Edward Clinton, Son to the Earl of Lincoln, late Admiral of England, famous for his Exploits both by Sea and Land; Governor of Duisburgh, twice honoured with Knighthood, firſt in the Netherlands by the illuſtrious Earl of Leiceſter, Governor of her Majeſty's Forces, and thoſe of the United Provinces; afterwards by Henry IV. King of France, at the Victory of St. Andrean. At length, endeavouring to take and bring into England a huge Spaniſh Ship, called a Carack, laden with Jewels, Gold, Silver, Indian Spices, &c. a Prize worthy a Naval Crown, and deſerving the higheſt Applauſes; whilſt he, led by an unhappy Security of Mind, deſpiſed the Enemy, tho' too well guarded, and boldly defended ſuperior to his Force, he met an untimely Death, to the Grief of his Friends, and Loſs of his Country, in the 32d Year of his Age, on the 7th of March 1594. Thus ſnatched away, he here waits the Trumpet of a general Reſurrection. In the mean Time, to ſtay the flying Memory of ſo great a Man, this Monument, &c.

Here alſo near him lies Sir John Burrough, Governor under the Earl of Eſſex in the Time of Queen Elizabeth.

In this Chapel lies alſo buried, by the particular Directions of Queen Elizabeth, Henry Noel, Eſq; Brother to Sir And. Noel. He was Gentleman Penſioner to the Queen, and much eſteemed at Court for genteel Addreſs, and Skill in Muſick. He died in February 1596.

In the Middle of this Chapel, under a moſt magnificent and curious Monument of various Marble and Alabaſter, adorned with Relieve, and beautified with Painting and Gilding, lies buried Sir Francis Norris, a famous Warrior in the Netherlands, in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, by whom he was created Lord Norris of Rycott; and his Lady. Their Statues are at full Length on the Tomb, but there is no Inſcription, nor it's likely ever was; for Mr. Keep, in his Time, tells us he could ſee no more Remains of any.

On the Weſt Side of this Chapel is the Back of the late Duke of Newcaſtle's Tomb, the Front being to the North Croſs.

Having thus gone through all the Chapels, wherein are Monuments, for in that of St. Blaſe there are no Remains of any; we now return through the three laſt Chapels, now laid open into one, where in Keep's Time the Lower Convocation ſat, into the Sacriſtary, or circular Paſſage ſurrounding St. Edward's Chapel, and affording a Paſſage to the others, in which Area, the ſeveral Tombs erected, and Perſons of Diſtinction buried, we next proceed to mention. And firſt to begin with the three antient ones, on the Weſt End and North Side of it, fronting the Chapels of St. Eraſmus and St. John the Evangeliſt on one Side, and encloſing one Part of the Pavement before the Altar, and once open to it on the other, which in Keep's Time were thence to be viewed by withdrawing the Tapeſtry Hangings, but ſince erecting the new Altar wainſcotted cloſe up, and one of them to be by no Means ſeen, and the others only from the Side next the Area.

The firſt of theſe, which is entirely clos'd up, is the Weſtermoſt of the three; and near the Iron Rail Gates, encloſing the Area from the North Croſs, where, till of late Years, they attended to ſhew the Tombs, as they do now in the South Side. The Tomb is of Free-ſtone, made like a cloſe Bed, the Back of it wall'd toward the Area, againſt which Biſhop Duppa's Tomb is placed; the Tomb is covered with an antient Gothick Arch, almoſt a half Circle, and an Obtuſe Riſing over it, and adorned on the Top with a Fleur-de-liz; on the Side of the Arch are Vine Branches in Relievo, the Roof within is compoſed of many Angles, under which lies the Image of a Lady in a very antient Dreſs, muffled under the Chin, and a Veil partly over her, her Feet reſting upon two Lyons, and her Head on Pillows, ſupported by Angels ſitting on each Side the Effigies, gilt and painted; on the Side of the Tomb are ſix Niches, on which ſeem to have been painted, Six Monks; and on the Pedeſtal, towards the Area, are Remains of Painting. This Tomb may, by the Curious, be ſeen juſtly engraved in Mr. Sandford's Genealogical Hiſtory of the Kings of England. It was erected for Aveline Counteſs of Lancaſter, Daughter to William de Fortibus, Earl of Albemarle and Holderneſs, by Iſabella, Daughter and Heir of Baldwin, Siſter and Heir of Baldwin de Ripariis, or Rivers Earl of Devon; ſhe was married to Edmond Earl of Lancaſter, Son to King Henry III. on the 6th of the Ides of April 1269, being Thurſday before St. Ambroſe; at which Marriage the King was preſent. In Right of this Lady, as Heir both to Father and Mother, her Husband had the Earldoms aforeſaid, and the Iſle of Wight. She died the ſame Year of her Marriage. Dugdale mentions one Aveline Counteſs of Lancaſter, married this Year, who died at Stockwel, near LONDON, 4 Id. of Nov. 1293, and was buried in the Priory of Bromore in Wilts.

ON the Back of which is a Table-Monument of white Marble, erected for Dr. Duppa, Bp. of Wincheſter, and Tutor to King Charles II. All in general who mention him gave him the Character of a Perſon of excellent Qualifications, ſingular and exemplary Piety, of a reſigned Humility and extenſive Charity; to which, if we add, a graceful and comely Perſonage, he was every Way qualified for the Tuition of the Prince; and the Converſation of the diſtreſſed King, who, when a Priſoner in Carisbrook Caſtle, uſed to ſay his Confinement was much relieved by that Divine's Converſation, and whoſe exemplary Conduct had raiſed ſuch Reverence for him in his Royal Pupil, Charles II. that the Day before his Death that Prince came to Richmond, and at the Bed-Side asked his Bleſſing on his bended Knees: He lived univerſally beloved, and died equally eſteemed. He lived not two Years after the Reſtoration, and in that Time he was a conſiderable Benefactor to Chriſt-Church College, and that of All Souls in Oxford, to all the Cathedral Churches over which he had formerly preſided; founded an Hoſpital at Greenwich, where he was born, with this Inſcription over the Door, A poor Biſhop vow'd this Houſe, but a great and wealthy one built it; and laſtly, he founded that remarkable Hoſpital at Richmond, where he died. Theſe Inſtances are ſufficient Proofs of this great and good Man. Upon this Prelate's Death, his Body was removed to York-Houſe in the Strand, and thence in State hither, Dr. King, Biſhop of Chicheſter, preached his funeral Sermon. His Epitaph tranſlated into Engliſh is as follows:

BRIAN DUPPA, Votive to immortal Memory here depoſited his Mortality, who was born at Greenwich towards the End of the Year 1588, on the 10th of March, firſt a Scholar at Weſtminſter School, where he was inſtructed in Hebrew by the then Dean, Lancelot Andrews, next Student of Chriſt-Church in Oxford, elected A. M. in All Souls, created D. D. and made Chaplain to the Elector Palatine; afterwards reviſiting his College of Chriſt-Church, he preſided as Dean there the Space of ten Years; but higher Cares waited for, greater Employment required ſo eminent a Perſon. He attended as Tutor to the Prince of moſt Royal Expectation; from whence being graced with three ſucceſſive Mitres, he became the Ornament of as many Churches, Chicheſter, Salisbury; and laſtly, upon King Charles's Reſtoration, of Wincheſter; with which Title he was diſtinguiſhed, and that of Prelate of the Garter. In the Beginning of his 74th Year, A. D. 1662, on the 26th of March, being at Richmond, where he lived while the Prince's Tutor, where he lay concealed in the troubleſome Times, and where he founded a remarkable Hoſpital. He, folded in the Arms of his Royal Pupil, breath'd forth his pious Soul.

HE lies under the Pavement between the Tomb of Valence, and Eraſmus's Chapel: Over his Body is a large Stone of Blue Marble, thus inſcribed: Hic jacet Brianus Winton.

THE next, being the middle-moſt of the three antient ones before-mentioned, is compoſed of Gothick Arches, and Spires of grey Marble inlaid, after the Moſaick Manner, with ſtained Glaſs, and the Effigies on it dreſſed in Scarlet, painted and gilt, with a Surcoat of Arms; this Monument was erected over Athelmer, or Aymer, ſirnamed Valence, third Son of Wm. Earl of Pembroke, before-mentioned, by Joan his Wife: He was a famous Warrior in the Time of King Edward III. in the 25th Year of whoſe Reign he attended him in his Expedition into Flanders; in the 26th Year he went againſt the Scots; in the 29th, Ambaſſador into France; in the 34th, Guardian of the Marches, and the King's Lieutenant in Scotland, and went againſt Robert de Bruce, whoſe Wife he took in the Caſtle of Kentire, and Nigel his Brother; the latter of which he hanged, and all the reſt in the Caſtle, after a barbarous Manner. He attended Edward I. in his laſt Expedition into Scotland; and Burgh upon Sands, where the King died, was appointed by him on his Death-Bed to carry his dying Charge to his Son againſt Gaveſtone, &c. In the firſt Year of Edward II. he was ſent to the Pope, and the Year following joined with others in pulling down Gaveſtone, the King's Favourite, and was one of them that ſeized him in Scarborough Caſtle, whence he was taken and hanged. In the 10th of Edward II. he was at the Battle of Bannocksbourne, and in the ſame Year was taken Priſoner abroad, and obliged to ranſom himſelf for 20,000 l. of Silver. In the 11th of of Edward III. he was Governor of Rockingham Caſtle, and ſiding with the Change of the Government, ungenerouſly and unjuſtly was one of the Judges that gave Sentence on Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, which (as ſome ſay) occaſioned his own Death ſoon after; for the 17th of King Edward III. attending Queen Iſabel into France, he was there murthered on the 23d of June, dying without Iſſue, though he had three Wives, the laſt of which who ſurvived him was Mary of St. Paul. He was a tall pale Man, ſays Walſingham, and from thence came the Joke made on him by Gaveſtone, who floutingly uſed to call him Joſeph the Jew.

THE third and Eaſtermoſt of the three is more ſtately and lofty than the former, painted, gilt and inlaid with ſtained Glaſs, the Inſide of the Canopy being a Sky with Stars, but by Age turned into a dull Red. This was erected for Edmund Crouchback, fourth Son to Henry III. by his Wife Iſabel, Daughter and Coheir to Raymond Earl of Provence, born 16 Jan, 1245, or according to Wykes, 1244. He was ſirnamed Crouchback, as ſome think, on Account of bowing or bending his Back; which Opinion is by others accounted ridiculous; and Harding particularly ſays, it was a Reflection made upon him Parties in Government, for indeed Lancaſter's Claim aroſe from him: Others ſuppoſe it given him (according to the Cuſtom of thoſe Times, ſirnaming from Features or Dreſs,) upon Account of his Journey into the Holy Land with his Brother Edward, and comes from the Word Crouch, a Croſs, then worn as Diſtinction on that Affair; and Wykes obſerves, that upon this Expedition vaſt Numbers were eager of it; Caraſtare Crucis humeros ſuos adornabant. Others aſſert, he is no where in Writings called by any Title but Gibboſus, Bunchback, and that is moſt probable. At 19 Years old he was, upon Simon de Montford's Forfeiture, created Earl of Leiceſter, and Steward of England: At his 21ſt Year he was made Earl of Lancaſter; which Title he always uſed, and had afterwards the Earldom and Eſtate of Ferrars Earl of Derby, together with that of Campaign, about the Year 1255. Upon the Death of the Emperor Frederick, the Pope offer'd the Kingdoms of Sicily, Apulia, and Calabria to Richard King of Almain, on Condition to pay him a vaſt Sum of Money that he had diſburſed in defending them, and of the Papal Patrimony; but he refuſing, the Pope ſent a Ring by one of his Biſhops, in order to inveſt this Edmund with thoſe Dominions, although Conradus was then living: Upon which (ſays Matthew Paris) his Heart exulted, as though he had already ready the Fealty of the Subjects, and Poſſeſſion of the Kingdoms, and inſtantly he vowed a Journey thither: The King, no leſs pleaſed with this titular Honour, ſent Peter de Eglebank, Biſhop of Hereford, to Rome, who accordingly obligated the Nation for the Payment of a vaſt Sum in Marks of Silver, but this proving only a Slight of the Court of Rome, to impoſe upon that credulous Prince his Father; after this prodigious Impoſition it ended in fumo, though to further it there were ſeveral Pieces of Gold ſtamped with this Title, Aidmundus Rex Siciliæ. He married two Wives, the firſt Aveline beforementioned, the other Blanch, Queen of Navarr, Widow of Henry, by whom he had three Sons, Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, executed, and reputed a Saint in Edward II's Time; John Lord of Monmouth, and John who lived in France: Laſtly, Being ſent in the Reign of his Brother Edward I. into Aquitain, with an Army, he there performed many notable Exploits; but being diſappointed by his Soldiers falling from him, he took it to Heart and died at Bayon, on the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, in the Year 1296, giving Order on his Death-Bed not to bury him till his Debts were paid; and was two Months after brought into England, and interred here with great Solemnity. Harding ſays, he was ſlain at Bayon, at the ſame Time with William of Valence. Theſe three Tombs formerly incloſed this Side of the Chancel, and made a glorious Appearance from the Altar. On the Baſe of this Tomb, towards the Area, are the Remains of a curious, and perhaps the antienteſt Painting extant, but much defaced, being ten Knights armed with Banners and Surcoats of Arms, and croſs-belted, repreſenting, undoubtedly, his Expedition into the Holy Land, the Number ſo ſuiting what Matthew Paris ſays, that there was himſelf, Brother, four Earls, and four Barons, of which ſome may be diſcovered, as one with a Surcoat Checquee, repreſenting the Lord Roger Clifford. The Annals of Waverly mention William of Valence and Thomas de Clare, but they are not diſtinguiſhable, the Colours on their Surcoats being loſt.

On a ſmall Monument of White Marble, adorned with an Urn, and affixed to the Corner of St. Eraſmus's Chapel, erected to the Memory of Mrs. Chriſtian Ker, is this Inſcription: Here lies the Body of Mrs. Chriſtian Ker, the moſt deſervedly beloved Wife of William Ker, of Chatto, in the County of Twigdale in Scotland, eldeſt Daughter to Sir William Scot of Harden, Baronet, in the ſaid County. She departed this Life upon the 16th Day of May, in the 41ſt Year of her Age, Anno Dom. 1694.

On a Grave-Stone: Here lies interred the Body of Rebecca Foliot, Daughter of the Honourable Henry Lord Foliot, who departed this Life, Sept. 5, 1697, the eleventh Year of her Age.

On the Pavement near the Grave-Stone of Biſhop Duppa, and at the Feet of the former, is a Blue one with this Inſcription: Johanes Doughty, S. T. P. hujus Eccleſiæ Prebendarius. Obiit xxv. Dec. M DC lxxii. Ætatis ſuæ lxxv.

This Gentleman, who was a Friend of the Biſhop's, was born at Martley in Worceſterſhire, was Fellow of Merton-College, Oxon 1619; afterwards Chaplain to the Earl of Northumberland; preſented by his College to the Rectory of Lapworth in Warwickſhire; but, upon the breaking out of the Grand Rebellion, he left all, and retired to the King at Oxford, where he was (by Biſhop Duppa) preferr'd to be Lecturer to St. Edmund's Church in that City. After the King's Forces were routed in the Weſt, he retired to LONDON, and liv'd with Sir Nathaniel Brent in Little Britain; after the Reſtoration, he was made a Prebendary of this Church, Rector of Cheam in Surrey, and commenced Doctor in Divinity. He lived to be childiſh a ſecond Time, by Age, and died at Weſtminſter on Chriſtmas-Day, as before-mentioned.

Not far from the Chapel of St. John the Evangeliſt, and joining the Bottom of Abbot Eſtney's Tomb, are two old Grave-ſtones plated with two Images of Monks of this Church, one of them for Thomas Brown, the other for Humphry Roberts.

Somewhat lower than which, and nearer King Henry VII's Chapel, is another plated Grave-ſtone, with this Inſcription:

Hic jacet frater Gulielmus Amundiſham quondam Monachus hujus Loci Receptor. noſtri Canonici. Qui obiit Anno Dom. 1420. Menſe Julii Die Decimo quarto; cujus Animæ propitietur Deus. Amen.

Affixed to a Pillar on the Eaſt Side St. Eraſmus's Chapel Door, a Monument for Jane Crew, Daughter of Sir John Poultney, Knt. and Wife to Sir Cloppesby Crew; ſhe died the 2d of December, Anno 1639, aged 30 Years.

On the other Side one of the like Materials, with this Inſcription:

Juliana Crew Virgo pientiſſima, clariſſima & unica Filia Ranulphi de Crew Equitis Aurati, Regi Tribunalis Capitalis Juſticiarii, ex Juliana de Cloppesby conjuge, vetuſtæ familiæ de Cloppesby in agro Norfolcienſi Cohæredes ſuſcepta, Redemptoris adventum his expectat. vernante ætate in Patriam, obiit 22 Apr. 1621.

That is,

Julian Crew, a moſt pious young Lady, the deareſt and only Daughter of Ralph de Crew, Kt. Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, by Julian de Cloppesby his Wife, a Coheireſs of the antient Family of Cloppesby in Norfolk, here expects her Redeemer's coming. She died in the Flower of her Age, on the 22d of April 1621.

Under a Grave-ſtone near it, and at Dr. Doughty's Feet, lies John Crew of Crew in Cheſhire, who died Anno 1683-4.

Adjoining to the Baſe of King Henry III's Tomb lies buried John Lord Viſcount Fitzharding: On his Grave-ſtone this Inſcription: Here lieth the Body of John Fitzharding, Lord Viſcount Fitzharding, of Bear-haven, and Baron Berkeley of Rathdown in the Kingdom of Ireland; he was one of the four Tellers of the Exchequer, and Treaſurer of the Chamber of her Majeſty Queen Anne, and Cuſtos Rotulorum of Somerſetſhire. Who departed this Life the 19th Day of Decemb. 1711. in the 63d Year of his Age.

Under a Graveſtone at his Feet lies his Lady.

On the oppoſite Side the Area, and near the Baſes of Ruthal and Colcheſter's Tombs, is an old Grave-ſtone plated with Braſs, repreſenting a Man, but much worn, for John Windſor, Nephew to Sir William of Windſor, a famous Man in the Reign of King Edward III. Lieutenant of Ireland, and who married to the famous Alice Perers, the King's reputed Miſtreſs. This John, who liv'd at Stanwel, had been a Soldier in his Youth, and was a great Commander in the Wars in Ireland, and in the Battle at Shrewsbury with King Henry IV. but repenting him of his Bloodſhed, finiſhed his Life in Piety, and died in the 2d of King Henry V. on Eaſter-Eve, viz. 7th of April 1414.

The next Monument in the Area, is a curious one of White Marble, repreſenting a Lady on her her Death-bed, with Mourners weeping, done finely in Relieve, but the Light (not being conſulted in affixing it) falls ſo ſtrongly on the Noſe of the dead Perſon, that it repreſents it as a Dent, and entirely ruins the Beauty of the Face. This Monument was erected for Eſther de la Tour de Gouvernet, the Lord Eland's Lady; the Inſcription in Engliſh thereon, is as follows:

ESTHER DE LA TOUR DE GOUVERNET,

A Name renowned in France: And which her excellent Endowments of Mind and Body rendered much more illuſtrious, Was the beſt of Wives, And ſoon the Widow of the moſt Noble Lord Eland, Eldeſt Son of the Marquiſs of Halifax. Her extraordinary Goodneſs towards all, Her ſingular Dutifulneſs to her Parents, Made her beloved of all, But by her Mother above all. Her Soul thus adorned with heavenly Graces ſhe early reſigned to Heaven, and her Body to this Tomb, Which her Mother (herſelf allmoſt buried in Sorrows) As the leaſt Mark of her unſpeakable Grief made for her. She dyed the 28th Year of her Age; Of the Chriſtian Account 1694.

NEAR the ſame Place is likewiſe buried the Lady Eſther, Marchioneſs de Gouvernet, Mother of the above-mentioned Lady; ſhe dyed July 4, 1722, aged 86 Years, and was buried from the Jeruſalem Chamber on Tueſday July 10. Theſe two Ladies lie in a handſome Vault near the aforeſaid Tomb, in which lies the Mother of the laſt mentioned, and Grandmother of the firſt. There is Room for four Coffins remaining.

BETWEEN King Henry III's Tomb and St. Paul's Chapel Door is a Grave-ſtone thus inſcrib'd: Sir Thomas Peyton of the County of Kent, died Feb. 11, 1683-4. And under it, on the ſame Grave-ſtone: Here alſo lies Dame Catharine Longville, Relict of Sir Thomas Longville, of Wolverpton in the County of Bucks, Bart. and ſecond Daughter to Sir Thomas Peyton of Knowlton in Kent, Bart. Died Dec. 30. 1715, aged 70.

ON a Grave-ſtone adjoining: Here lies Elizabeth Longville, Wife to William Longville, Eſq; of the Inner Temple, London, and third Daughter to Sir Thomas Peyton of Knowlton in Kent, Bart. died Jan. 14, 1715, aged 69.

NEAR them, but with no Inſcription, lies William Longville, Eſq; who died March 1721, aged 21 Years, and was buried March 30.

ON a Grave-ſtone near St. Paul's Door: Here lies the Body of George Wild, Eſq; lately a Member of the Honourable Houſe of Commons in Parliament; Son of George Wild, late Serjeant at Law, deceaſed, and youngeſt Brother of John Wild, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer. Obiit 15 die Jan. 1649. In vita honeſt. in lege & literis erudit. in morte fortis & pius.

THIS Wild, who is here called Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, muſt not be look'd on as a Judge, but an Executioner, he being a Creature of Cromwell's, and made uſe of in all his bloody Deſigns, and was the Perſon who barbarouſly condemn'd Captain Burley for attempting the King's Eſcape from the Iſle of Wight, and was the firſt that hanged a Man for High Treaſon in adhering to his Prince; and ſoon after acquitted Rolph for attempting to ſhoot the King; for which, ſays the Noble Hiſtorian, this infamous Judge was made Lord Chief Baron.

THE next Monument in the Area is at the Corner of St. Nicholas's Chapel, and near the Steps to King Henry VII's Chapel; it is of Alabaſter and Marble, adorned with a neat Urn, erected for Sir Thomas Ingram, Knt. a famous Loyaliſt, Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lacnaſter, and Privy Counſellor to King Charles II. The Inſcription follows:

Here lies interred, in full Aſſurance
of a glorious Reſurrection,
the Body of the Right Hon^ble
Sir Thomas Ingram, Knt. who for his eminent Loyalty, Sufferings and Services to and for their Majeſties King Charles the 1ſt and 2d, was by the latter made Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, and one of his moſt Honourable Privy Council.

He married Frances Daughter of Tho. Lord Vice count Faconberge, by whom he had Iſſue Mary his only Childe, who died in the 12th Year of her Age, An° Dom. 1651. and lies likewiſe here interr'd. He was primitively religious and eminently (without Oſtentation) charitable, an excellent Subject, a moſt affectionate Huſband and a faithful Friend, and to the great Grief of his Lady and Relations Loſs, to his Prince and the Publick he exchanged his Earthly for a Heavenly Habitation the 13 Day of Feb. 1671. to whoſe dear Memory this Monument was erected by his diſconſolate Lady.

OPPOSITE to it, and fixed to the Corner of King Henry V's Chapel, on this Side, as Madam de Gouvernet's is, on the other, and under Phillippa's Tomb, is a Monument of Black Marble, with a Buſto of Braſs, gilt, for Sir Robert Aiton, Knt. a Perſon of great Virtue and Learning, eſpecially in Poetry: He was a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to King James, and ſent Legate into Germany to the Emperor. He died Anno 1638.

AFFIXED to the Pillar dividing St. Nicholas's from St. Edmund's Chapel, is a Monument of Alabaſter, being a Buſto, gilt in ſome Places with Gold, erected for Richard Tufton, Eſq; with this Epitaph:

Here lies the Body of Richard Tufton, Eſq; third Son of Sir John Tufton, of Hothfield in Kent, Knight and Baronet, by Chriſtian Brown, his Wife, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir Humphry Brown, Knight, one of the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas, and Anne his Wife, Daughter to George Earl of Kent. Which Sir John Tufton left Iſſue married, by the aforeſaid Chriſtian his Wife, Nicholas Baron of Tufton and Earl of Thanet, Humphrey Tufton, Knight, the aforeſaid Richard Tufton, and William Tufton, Baronet, of Ireland, Cicely Counteſs of Rutland, and Mary Counteſs of Dunbar; the reſt died unmarried. This Richard married Criſogon, youngeſt Daughter and Coheir of Herbert Morley of Gline in Suſſex, Eſq; The other Daughter of the ſaid Morley being Margaret, and the eldeſt, was married unto Sir Humphry Tufton before-named, who erected this Monument in Memory of his Brother Mr. Richard Tufton, who departed this mortal Life, leaving Iſſue John, Mary, and Chriſtian, the 4th of October, Anno Dom. 1631.

IN this Part of the Area lie three Grave-ſtones for the Honourable Perſons following, thus inſcribed:

ON the Firſt, adjoining Abbot Berkynge's Grave-ſtone; Dame Frances Apſley, who died Sept. 22. 1698.

ON the Second, Sir Samuel Apſley, who departed this Life Octob. 15. 1683.

ON

On the Third, Allen Apſley, Eſq; who died Aug. 5, in the Year 1691.

Between the Baſis of King Richard II's Tomb, and that of King Edward III. lies Thomas Bilſon, D. D. he was ſome Time Warden of Mancheſter College, next made Biſhop of Worceſter 1595; having ſat there two Years, was tranſlated to Wincheſter, and made Privy Counſellor to King James I. He died June 18, 1616, aged 69 Years.

Near this is an antient Stone, but the Plates torn off, which was for Ralph Selby, Doctor of the Civil and Canon Laws, and Monk of this Houſe; he was in great Favour with King Henry IV. and his Son, and died Sept. 29, 1420, in the 8th of the latter's Reign.

Near the Baſis of King Richard II's Tomb, in the Area, is an antient flat Stone in the Pavement, formerly plated with a Man's Effigies, and a Canopy, with Arms, and an Inſcription round it, of which no more is remaining than broken Words: Under this is buried Sir John Golofre, (or Holofre) called Lord of Langley, natural Son of Sir John Golofre, Kt. by Johannet Pulham. This Golofre was a famous Man in King Richard II's Time, by whom he was ſent Ambaſſador into France, Anno 1389, and was one of the King's Favourites, proſecuted by the diſcontented Lords, and had ſuffered as Burleigh and others, but that he was abroad. He married (as ſome ſay) the Lady Philippa Fitzwalter, and Dutcheſs of York, who lies buried in St. Nicholas's Chapel; yet Dugdale ſays he married Elizabeth Counteſs of Sarum, Siſter to the ſaid Philippa. He died at Wallingford in the County of Oxford, 20 Richard II. 1396, having directed his Body ſhould be buried in the Chapel of the Friars Minors Church at Oxford, near his Father's, if he ſhould die before his Wife; but notwithſtanding that, the King gave Orders for his Burial in this Church. At the End of his Will, dated three Days before his Death, it is ſaid, That whereas he willed his Body to be buried in the Grey Fryars at Oxon, yet the King diſpoſed of it otherwiſe, viz. that it ſhould be buried at the Conventual at Weſtminſter.

On a Grave-ſtone near Golofre's was ſome Time this Inſcription in Braſs: Here lieth Cecil Ratcliffe, ſome Time chief Gentlewoman with my Lady Dudley, on whoſe Soul God have Mercy. Amen. Mercy, Grace, and Forgiveneſs.

At the Door of St. Benedict's Chapel lie three or four Grave-ſtones croſs the Area to Sebert's Tomb: On one Side this Inſcription: Here lieth James Cranfield, Earl of Middleſex, who died the 16th of September, An. Dom. 1652.

On another: Near interr'd lieth the Body of Lionel Earl of Middleſex, Baron Cranfield of Cranfield in the County of Bedford, one of the Gentlemen of his Majeſty's Bedchamber. He was ſecond Son of Lyonel Earl of Middleſex, Lord High Treaſurer of England; the laſt of that Honourable Family. He died the 26th Day of October, in the Year of our Lord 1674.

On a Third, this: Under this Marble lies the Body of Anne, Counteſs Dowager; Wife to Lyonel Earl of Middleſex, Lord High Treaſurer of England. She departed this Life the third Day of February, in the Year of our Lord 1669.

Near theſe Grave-ſtones is the curious Moſaick Tomb erected for King Henry III's Children.

Paſſing from this Area through the Hatches, in the South Croſs, we turn in at a Side Door which brings us into the Choir, before the Rails of the High Altar, and through them, upon the curious Moſaick Pavement, which is eſteemed unequalled in its Kind. About the Year 1258, when Richard Ware was elected Abbot of this Church, he going to Rome for Conſecration, in his Return through France, purchas'd, from the Ruins of a decayed Building there, the Materials of a Moſaick Pavement, which Work was formerly, i. e. towards the Decline of the Roman Empire, in great Eſteem, and conſiſted of ſmall Pieces of Clay painted and burnt like Bricks, and being of various Colours made, by a juſt Diſpoſition, Variety of curious Figures, more beautiful and durable than the fineſt Marble; but this is ſuppos'd to be compos'd of real Marble, as Porphyry, Touch, Jaſpar, Lydian, Alabaſter, and Serpentine; it is form'd in ſeveral Squares and Circles; the Stones are ſquare, and about a Finger in Length, of which, a great Number being taken up at the erecting the new Altar, ſome of them are with the Right Honourable the Earl of Oxford. The Pavement, at erecting that Altar, was threaten'd with a total Diſſolution by the Workmen, whoſe mercenary and misjudging Notions deſtroy whatever is venerable; but, by the Influence of the Lord of Oxford, and the Care of the then Biſhop of Rocheſter, it was for the moſt Part ſaved; yet they broke it up under where the Altar ſtands, and where the Marble Slabs lie round the Edges on the Sides. What is left makes a moſt beautiful Appearance, and ſeems to brave all the Injuries of Time, but for that the Braſs Circles of Letters are almoſt worn out.

On the North Side of this Place lay once open the magnificent Tombs of Valence, Crouchback, and his Lady; and under them, in the Pavement, were old Tomb-ſtones plated for Abbot Ware, Abbot Henley, and Abbot Sudbury. There was one likewiſe for Sir Thomas Clifford, Knt. Governor of Berwick.

On the South Side was once open the Tomb of Sebert, which is already deſcribed; and near another of Free-Stone, having on it, in a Cypher A. C. and on the Sides the Arms of Cleve and Juliers; it was erected to the Memory of Anne of Cleve, Siſter to William Duke of Cleve, a Lutheran Prince of Germany. This Lady was contracted in Marriage by King Henry VIII. She was received in great Triumph at Blackheath, on the 3d of January 1539; on the 9th of the ſame Month married, and the July following, by the King and the Archbiſhop of Canterbury's Authority, divorced, with Liberty to re-marry. After this Divorce, the Queen liv'd ſingle in England, and was called the Lady Ann of Cleve; and ſixteen Years after, viz. in the 4th of Queen Mary's Reign, ſhe died at Chelſea, and was here buried, without any Epitaph.

In the Pavement near her, lies buried a more unfortunate Queen, viz. Anne, Wife to King Richard III. Daughter ro Nevil Earl of Warwick. She was, as moſt think, poiſoned by Order of that Uſurper her Husband, to make Way for a Marriage with Elizabeth, Daughter to his Brother King Edward IV. and was the fifth Royal Life he had taken away to ſecure his ill-gotten and ſhort-liv'd Power.

On the ſame Side was formerly a Grave-Stone plated for Abbot Wenlock, and about it for ſeveral other Abbots. Before the Rail lies buried Dr. South and Dr. Busby, under blue Grave-Stones, their Graves join, and are turned over with Arches of Brick. Paſſing hence through the Doors on the Sides of the High Altar, brings us into the Chapel of St. EDWARD.

Which Chapel is paved with the ſame Moſaick Work as that before; in the Midſt of it ſtands ſtands the Shrine of that Saint, and round it the Tombs of our Engliſh Kings. The Chapel is but ſmall, but ſo ſolemn and venerable that it ſtrikes a greater Idea of religious Solitude and Contemplation, than any Place perhaps in the World.

ON the North Side of St. Edward's Shrine is a ſmall Tomb (almoſt of the ſame Faſhion with that we have before-menntioned for Princeſs Elizabeth, Daughter of Henry VII.) placed over another young Princeſs, viz. Margaret, ſirnamed of York, viz. of the Family, Daughter to Edward IV. King of England, by Elizabeth Woodville his Queen: She was born the 19th of April, 1472, and died the 11th of December following, being not nine Months old, and was here buried. Mr. Sandford gives us this Inſcription, of which Part ſtill remains:

Nobilitas & forma, decorque, tenella, juventus
In ſimul hic iſta mortis ſunt condita ciſta,
Ut genus & nomen, ſexum, tempus quoque mortis,
Noſcas cuncta tibi manifeſtat margo ſepulchri.

AND alludes to a verge Inſcription, which was thus:

Margareta illuſtriſſimi Regis Angliæ & Franciæ Domini Edwardi quarti, & Dominæ Elizabethæ Reginæ ſereniſſimæ conſortis ejuſdem filia, & quinta proles, quæ nata fuit 19 die Menſis Aprilis, Anno Dom. 1472, & obiit 11 die Decembris, cujus animæ propitietur Deus. Amen.

IN Engliſh thus:

Margaret fifth Daughter of the moſt illuſtrious Edward IV. King of England and France, and Elizabeth his Queen, his moſt ſerene Conſort: She was born the 19th Day of April, Ann. Dom. 1472, died the 11th of Dec. on whoſe Soul God have Mercy. Amen.

High Birth and beauteous Form, and Youth in Bloom,
At once lie cheſted in this ſilent Tomb.
All that remains to tell thee what ſhe was,
Around the Margin ſee inſculp'd in Braſs.

IT is obſervable, that Mr. Weaver takes no Notice of the Proſe Inſcriptions, neither of this nor that of the Princeſs Elizabeth, which makes one incline to believe they were torn away at the Time of the Reformation; for that ſuch Inſcriptions were there, is plain Proof, not only from Records, but the Verſes of this latter refer to the Proſe.

AT the Weſt End and South Side of this Chapel is a large plain Stone of grey Marble, compoſed of ſeven Stones; four makes the Sides, two the Ends, and one the Cover; this plain and rough Monument was placed over the glorious King Edward I. This Prince was Son of King Henry III. and born at Weſtminſter the 17th of June, 1239, and four Days after chriſtened by the Legate Otho; he was called Edward from his Father's Favourite, St. Edward the Confeſſor, and Longſhanks, from the Tallneſs of his Stature; he was, at his Father's Death, warring in the Holy Land, where he had been ſucceſsful againſt the Infidels; but returning was crowned in this Church the 19th of Auguſt, 1274. He was a Prince of martial Spirit, and overcame the Welch, and ſubdued Scotland, bringing away the fatal Stone, and offered it at St. Edward's Shrine in this Church. He was a Prince every Way of extraordinary Accompliſhments, and in his Time many wholeſome Laws were enacted. Laſtly, Hearing the Scots had roſe, and ſhook off their Allegiance, he marched againſt them, but, being afflicted with a Diſentery, or Bloody-Flux, he returned to Carliſle, where ſending for his Son, Prince Edward, he gave him in ſtrict Charge, That he ſhould carry his Bones about him thro' Scotland, till he had brought it to Subjection. 2*dly*. That he ſhould ſend his Heart to the Holy Land, with 140 Knights, and the 32,000 l. he had provided to that Purpoſe; and that he ſhould not recal Gaveſtone from Baniſhment; neither of which the Prince performed. After which, proceeding on his Journey, he fell ill at Borough, or Burgh, upon the Sands in Cumberland, the 7th of July, Anno 1307; but according to Wykes, by Miſtake, 1304, having reigned 34 Years, ſeven Months and 21 Days, and lived 68. After his Death, Peter of Spain, the Cardinal made ſolemn Proceſſions, and gave a Year's Indulgence to all ſaying Pater-Noſter, and Ave Maria for the King's Soul, whoſe Death Robert Archbiſhop of Canterbury, is ſaid to have ſeen in a Viſion, being then at Rome; his Body was brought to Waltham, and there remained 15 Weeks; Walſingham ſays ſix; every Week the neighbouring Monaſteries ſending ſix Monks or Canons to wait Day and Night round his Body, whence being conveyed in a ſolemn and magnificent Manner to LONDON, he was interr'd here on the 28th of October, being St. Simon and Jude's Day: Anthony Patriarch of Jeruſalem, and Biſhop of Durham performing his Exequies. On the North Side of his Tomb are theſe Words painted in Black, not long ſince, and under them the Stone rubb'd, where, 'tis probable, was the original Inſcription, of which this is a Copy.

Edwardus primus Scotorum malleus hic eſt 1308, pactum ſerva.

THERE was ſo great Reſpect paid to his Memory, that ſo long after as King Richard II's Time, his Great Grandſon, there was an Order to renew the Cerecloths for preſerving his Body, which is as follows:

Rex Theſaurario, &c. in Engliſh thus:

THE King to his Treaſurer and Chamberlains, Greeting. We command you that the Cerements round the Body of our Progenitor, of celebrated Memory, Edward late King of England, Son of King Henry, which Prince lies buried in the Church of St. Peter at Weſtminſter, be renewed at our Coſt, as hath heretofore been accuſtomed. Witneſs the King at Weſtminſter, the 11th of July.

ON a Table hanging by his Tomb were Verſes in Latin and Engliſh not now legible; the Engliſh is as follows:

Death is too doleful which doth join
The higheſt Eſtate full low:
Which coupleth greateſt Things with leaſt,
And laſt with firſt alſo.
No Man hath been in World alive,
Nor any may there be,
Which can eſcape the Dint of Death,
Needs hence depart muſt we.
O noble and victorious Man,
Truſt not unto thy Strength;
For all are ſubject unto Death,
And all muſt hence at length.
Moſt cruel Fate from worldly Stage
Hath wreſt a worthy Wight;
To whom all England mourned loud
To ſee his doleful Plight.

Edward

Edward is dead, which was adorn'd
With divers Graces here,
A King, or fragrant Nardus Height,
A gracious Princely Peer.
In Heart the which was Lybard like,
Right puiſſant, void of Fear:
Moſt ſlow to Strife, diſcreet and wiſe,
And gracious every where.
In Arms a Giant fierce and fell,
Attempting famous Facts,
Moſt prudent, did ſubdue the Proud
By Feat of martial Acts:
In Flanders Fortune gave to him,
By Lot right good Succeſs,
In Wales he wan: The Scottiſh Rout
With Arms he did ſuppreſs.
This King without his like alive,
Did firmly guide this Land:
And what good Nature could conceive,
He had it plight at Hand.
He was in Juſtice, and in Peace,
Excelling: Laws took Place,
Deſire to chaſe all wicked Works
Did hold this King's good Grace.
He now doth lie intombed here,
Which furthered each good Thing:
Now nought he is but Duſt and Bones,
Which was a worthy King.
The very Son of God, whom erſt
This King did love right dear,
Hath given to him immortal Bliſs,
For his good living here.
Whilſt liv'd this King, by him all Things
Were in moſt goodly Plight:
Fraud lay hid, great Peace was kept,
An Honeſty had Might.

This Engliſh Verſion ſeems to be added, ſays Mr. Dart, ſome conſiderable Time after the Latin; for Mr. Weaver gives us no Verſion, nor hints at any being fixed here; but on the contrary give us a Tranſlation of them out of Fabian, which he calls his Ballad Royal, and begins thus:

This ſorrowful Death, which bringeth Great full low,
And mooſt and leaſt he joineth into one, &c.

On the North Side the Chapel is a moſt magnificent Tomb, admirably curious in the Workmanſhip, conſidering that Age, and inimitably rich in the Materials; the Side and End Pannels of the Table being of the moſt poliſh'd Porphyry, of a clear Red, and the Work round them Moſaick, of Gold and Scarlet; it is upon an Aſcent of Steps, and under it are three Ambries or Lockers, lined with the ſame Moſaick; the Corners of the Table are Serpentine Pillars, gilt and enamelled, and upon it the Effigies, in Braſs gilt, ſo as ſtill unfaded, of King Henry III. the Canopy of Braſs and Gothick Fillars, which lay at the Head, and down the Sides of the Statue, are torn away; the Top of the Table is Braſs, engraved Lozengy with Flowers. This Prince was Son of John, King of England, born October 1, 1206, and took the Crown at nine Years of Age; he reigned a long, but troubleſome Reign, by Reaſon of the Animoſities raiſed againſt his Father, which upon the leaſt Hint took Fire, and occaſioned the Inſurrection of the Barons; the Conſequence of which was the Great Charter, and that of the Foreſt, which were ſo ſtrictly obſerved by our Forefathers as the undoubted Security of our Country, and indiſpenſible upon any Exigence whatever. He was a Prince rather devout than wiſe, in actibus ſæcularibus minus putabatur prudens; as appears by his hearing Maſs three times a Day, at the ſame Time that he refuſed to hear any Complaints made againſt his Court-Pariſites, as the Valences, &c. whom he enriched to the impoveriſhing himſelf, and promoted their foreign Creatures to Places where they might inſult his People; a Practice which we have found ſeverely true, where the Prince is their Friend, and Power in their Poſſeſſion; nor was his Regard to the Poictavins more pernicious to England than his bigotted Obedience to the Pope, who made him his Property, and drew Supplies from us till we had no more to take: Of which Exactions, and the King's Indiſcretion, Paris inveighs much. He was a Man of a middle Stature, well ſet, had a Caſt with one Eye, even to hide Part of the Ball and Pupil. A Man of Vigour and Strength, and ſuppoſed by Paris to be foretold by Merlin, under the Allegory of the Leopard.

He fell ill at St. Edmund's-Bury in Suffolk, as he returned from Norwich, and died at Weſtminſter, Anno 1272; according to Wykes, 71, on the 16th Kal. Dec. aged 65 Years, and having reigned 56, and the Sunday following, viz. on the Feaſt of St. Edmund the King, he was buried magnificently in this Church; his Body was dreſt in his Royal Robes, with the Crown upon his Head, and all the Nobility attending; the Templers carrying the Body; which Shew was ſo magnificent, that he ſhew'd more magnificent (ſays Wykes) when dead, than he appeared when living; his Body was buried before the High Altar, but his Heart he gave Order ſhould be buried at Fonteverard in Normandy, which accordingly was delivered to the Lady Abbeſs of that Place, by the Abbot of Weſtminſter, in the Preſence of many of the Nobility, on the Monday next before the Feaſt of St. Lucy the Virgin, Anno 20 King Edward I. Matthew Weſtminſter attributes many Miracles to him after Death. Round the Verge of his Tomb is this Inſcription, emboſſed in Saxon Characters:

Ici: Giſt Henri, Jadis: Rey: De: Engletero: Seygnur De: Hirlaunde: Duc: De: Aquitayne: Le: Filz: Li: Rey Johan: Jadis: Rey: De: Engletere: A: Kidou: Face Mercy: Amen.

On the North Side, toward the Area, this in gilt Letters.

Tertius Henricus eſt Templi conditor hujus, 1273. Dulce Bellum Inexpertis.

On a Table ſome Time hanging by, were theſe old Latin Rhimes, with Fabian's Tranſlation on them:

Tertius Henricus jacet hic pietatis amicus,
Eccleſiam ſtravit iſtam quam poſt renovavit,
Reddet ei munus qui regnat trinus & unus.

The Engliſh on the ſame Table:

The Friend of Piety and Almſdeed:
Henry the Third whilome of England King,
Who this Church brake, and after his meed
Again renewed to this fair Building:
Now reſteth here, which did ſo great a Thing
He yield him Meed that Lord of Deitie,
That as one God reigns in Perſons three.

At the Feet of Henry III. is an antient and curious Tomb of grey Marble, on the Sides of which are engraven the Arms of Caſtle and Leon, Quarterly, and thoſe of Ponthieu, hanging on Vines and Oak-Trees; on the Table is a Covering of Copper, gilt, engraven with the Arms of Caſtile and Leon, Lozenge; upon which lies, of gilt Copper, the Effigies to Aleonar, Queen to Edward I. large as the Life; over all, a Canopy of Wood; and round the Copper Verge is emboſſed this Epitaph in Saxon Characters:

Icy

Icy giſt Alianor Jadis Reyne de Angleterre, Femme al. Re. Edward Fiz.

AND on the North Side has been Painting, but now worn out; yet there appears a Sepulchre, at the Feet of which are two Monks, at the Head a Knight arm'd, and a Woman with a Child in her Arms; over which, in modern Characters, but defaced with the Ledge where they are engraved, is to be ſeen this Inſcription:

Regina Elionora, Conſors Edvardi primi ſuit Alionora 1298. Diſce mori.

THIS Lady was Daughter of Ferdinand III. and Joan, Daughter to John Earl of Pontive, and whereby ſhe was Heir to that Earldom. She was married to King Edward I. in the Life-time of his Father, and was a Sharer with him in all his Journies and Enterprizes, travelling with him to the Holy Land, where, as Fame reports, ſhe cur'd him of a Wound received by a poiſon'd Arrow, by ſucking the Wound: But Walſingham, tho' he ſays ſhe was nobilis genere ſed multo nobilior morum gravitate, is ſilent in this Inſtance; and Knighton, on the contrary, tells us, that when his Wound was to be dreſs'd, the King ordered Edmund, and John de Veſey, to carry her out of the Room, while he was dreſſed, which they did, ſhe ſhrieking and making great Lamentation. She was his Wife thirty-ſix Years, and attending the King to Scotland, fell ill, and died in the Houſe of one Richard de Weſton, at Hardey, in the County of Northampton. Wykes ſays at Grantham, on the 27th of November, Anno 1290, in the 19th Year of her Husband's Reign; upon whoſe Death the King returned to LONDON with her Corpſe, and erected, (that Paſſengers reminded might pray for her Soul) a Marble Croſs at every Place where it reſted, with her Effigies on them, as at Lincoln, Grantham, Stanford, Giddington, Northampton, Stony-Stratford, Dunſtable, St. Alban's, Waltham, and Charing; of which, ſeveral ſtill remain; that at Charing was pulled down as a Piece of Superſtition, in the Beginning of the Grand Rebellion; on that at Waltham, is the Queen's Statue, like that on her Tomb, with others, and on the Sides the Arms of Ponthieu, viz. Three Benlets within a Bordure, &c. and the Arms of Leon. Her Bowels were firſt buried in the Cathedral Church of Lincoln, where was a Cenotaph erected for her with her Effigies on it in gilt Copper, and round it, in Saxon Characters, an Inſcription.

THE Corpſe being embalmed, and put in a Coffin filled with Spices, was brought to LONDON; and her Heart, put in a ſeparate Box, was buried in the Choir of the Friars Predicants in LONDON, and her Body in this Church, on the Sunday before St. Thomas the Apoſtle, viz. Kal. Jan. the Biſhop of Lincoln performing the Ceremony, for the then Archbiſhop of Canterbury would not appear in it; for that upon a Quarrel between him and the Abbot of this Church, he had interdicted it; and the King gave to Walter, then Abbot, twelve Manors, which were for yearly Obiits for the Queen, with Money to be diſtributed to the Poor. And to all ſuch as ſhould devoutly, in this Church, pray for her Soul, was granted Indulgence for the Term of five Years and two hundred and fifteen Days: Her Anniverſary was obſerved 3d Kal. December.

ON a Table, once hanging near her Tomb, was this Inſcription in Engliſh:

Queen Elenor is here interred,
A worthy Noble Dame,
Siſter unto the Spaniſh King,
Of Royal Blood and Fame.
King Edward's Wife, firſt of that Name,
And Prince of Wales by Right;
Whoſe Father Henry, juſt the Third,
Was ſure an Engliſh Wight,
Who crav'd her Wife unto his Son,
The Prince himſelf did go
On that Embaſſage luckily,
As Chief, with many mo.
This Knot of linked Marriage
Her Brother Alphonſo liked,
And ſo 'tween Siſter and this Prince,
The Marriage was up ſtriked.
The Dowry Rich and Royal was,
For ſuch a Prince moſt meet:
For Pontive was the Marriage Gift,
A Dowry Rich and Great;
A Woman both in Council wiſe,
Religious, fruitful, meek,
Who did encreaſe her Husband's Friends,
And larg'd his Honour eke.
Learn to die.

WE next come to the Chapel and Tomb of King Henry V. which is at the Eaſt End of St. Edward's, and parted off by a Skreen of Iron made in the Time of King Henry VII. on each Side which are Stair-Caſes adorn'd with Images, as big as the Life, according to the Chantry over it, as before deſcribed. In this Chapel lies interred that glorious and warlike Prince Henry V. Son of King Henry IV. He was ſirnam'd of Monmouth, the Place of his Birth, which happened Anno 1388. In his early Years he was guilty of many Follies and Extravagancies, ill becoming his Dignity, and, upon coming to the Crown, wore it with the utmoſt Applauſe. He was crowned in this Church the 9th of April 1414, and reigned nine Years five Months and fourteen Days, after having boldly proved his Right to the Crown of France, by that glorious Victory at Agincourt: But whilſt he was in Purſuit of further Conqueſt, and endeavouring to lay France under quiet Subjection, he fell ill at Suley of a Fever and Flux, as he was marching to relieve Coſſney, then beſieged by the Dauphin; from whence being removed to Bois de Vicennes, he departed this Life on the laſt Day of Auguſt 1422, aged 34 Years. Immediately upon his Death, his Bowels were buried in the Church of St. More de Foſſes; afterwards, his Body being ſeared and cloſed in Lead, was attended by the Nobility of England and France to the Church of Notre Dame at Paris, where he had his Exequies performed; from whence he was brought to Rhoan, from thence to England, in an open Chariot, on which was laid his Image of boil'd Hides of Leather, and painted to the Life, having on its Head an Imperial Diadem, and in his Hands a Scepter and Ball of Gold. As this Proceſſion paſs'd through any noted Town, a rich Canopy was born over it by Perſons of Quality; thus accompanied by the King of Scots, and the firſt of our Nobility, following two Miles off, he was brought thro' Abbeville, Hedin, Monſtrevil, and Bulloign to Calais, thence to Canterbury, where, as Walſingham ſays, his Exequies were celebrated, thence by Water to LONDON, whither it was brought the 10th of Nov. and reſted in the Cathedral of St. Paul's. On the Covering of the firſt Horſe that drew the Chariot was embroider'd the Arms of England, 2d England and France quarterly, 3d France, 4th of King Arthur, viz. three Crowns of Gold in a Field Azure.

Azure. At St. Paul's he had ſolemn Exequies, and thence was brought to this Abbey, as in his Will he had given Orders, to be interred in great State, his Effigies being on the Coffin in a Robe of Purple and Ermines, holding in one Hand his Scepter, in the other the Ball and Croſs, having a Golden Crown on his Head, and the Royal Sandals on his Feet, and ſo placed in an open Chariot, that he might be ſeen; around the Chariot 1400 Tapers were carried by venerable Perſons. He lies at the Feet of Edward the Confeſſor, in a Place ſet apart for keeping Reliques, where his Queen erected a Monument over him of grey Marble, whereon was placed his Statue of Heart of Oak; on which was a Head of Silver, and likewiſe his Scepter, and other Regalia, with a Plate of Silver inſcrib'd with theſe ſtupid Verſes, the Product of the darkeſt Age England ever ſaw, our Learning declining ſenſibly in the hurried Affairs ſucceeding Richard II's Death, and the Uſurpation conſequent. Such as they were take them:

Dux Normanorum, verus conqueſtor eorum
Heres Francorum deceſſit, & Hector eorum.

But all theſe Silver Ornaments, the Head not excepted, became the Prey of pilfering, avaricious and ſacrilegious Hands, ſo that the headleſs Trunk is all that remains. This Tomb was encloſed with Grates and Gates of Iron, finely wrought, by King Henry VII. and over it is a Chantry Chapel, as mention'd in the Deſcription of the Church, with his Weapons Capariſon, Cloth &c. His Tomb, and the Head ſupply'd, is in Sandford and Dart's Weſtminſter Abbey, taken from an antient Painting. This Prince was very tall of Stature, a long Neck, his Body lean and ſlender, and his Bones ſmall, yet he exceeded moſt Men in Strength; he was brave, couragious, but very merciful and generous, as appears by his Concern for King Richard II's Murder. He had undoubtedly raiſed England to almoſt over-balance Europe, had not Death put a Stop to his Deſigns, which however might ſtill have been effected, had not his Blood degenerated its Heat, in that mild Prince his Son, as indeed had been the Caſe at moſt Times in that Age, viz. King John and King Henry III. King Edward I. and King Edward II. the Black Prince, King Richard II. and this Prince and King Henry VI.

On a Table hanging near:

Gallorum maſtrix jacet hic Henricus in Urna, 1422. Domat omnia virtus.
Pulchra virumque ſuum ſociat tandem Katherina.
Otium fuge.

O merciful God, what a Prince was this!
Which his ſhort Time in martial Acts ſpent
In Honour of Conqueſt that Wonder to me it is,
How he might compaſs ſuch Deeds excellent,
And yet for that his Mind nothing dent,
All ghoſtly Health for his Soul to provide,
Out of this World ere he fatally ſhould ſlide.
So though I had Tully his Eloquence,
Or of Seneca the grave Morality,
Or of Solomon the perfect Sapience,
Or the ſweet Ditties of Dame Calliope;
Yet might I not in Proſe, or other Ditty
Accordingly advance this Princeſs' Fame,
Or with due Honour to enhance the ſame.
Conſidering his Acts, whereof Parcel appear.
In this rude Work, with many more left out,
The Time alſo was leſs than ten Year,
That he ſo ſhortly brought all Things about,
By divine Grace furthered out of Doubt
That mightful Lord he holp his ghoſtly Knight
With Grace and Honour to paſs this Worlds ſight
And to have Reward double, and condign,
And firſt for martial Acts by him done,
To be advanced amongſt the Worthies nine,
And for his Virtues us'd by him eftſoon,
With many good Deeds which he on Earth had done.
Above the Hierarches, he is I truſt now ſtall'd
That was on Earth King of Kings call'd.

On the Pavement cloſe to the Side of the former Tomb, lies an old wooden Cheſt or Coffin, in which is incloſed the Body of Catharine, Queen to the aforeſaid King Henry V. This Lady was youngeſt Daughter to Charles VI. King of France, and Iſabel his Queen; ſhe was born the 27th Day of October, Anno 1400, and being a Lady of extraordinary Beauty, the King, upon ſeeing her, was ſo taken, that he told the Duke of Burgundy, he would either (with other Demands) enjoy the Lady Catharine, or drive the King of France out of his Kingdom, and him from his Dukedom; which Reſolution being entered upon, they were obliged to comply with his Demands, and, upon a Meeting at Troys in Champaign, he was affianced to her, and declared Heir apparent to the Crown of France, and on the 3d of June following, being the Day after Trinity Sunday, their Marriage was pompouſly celebrated in the Church of St. Catharine at Troys, by Henry de Savoiſſy, Archbiſhop of Sens, to whom the King gave in Dowry 10,000 Marks and returning with this Prize into England, ſhe was crowned in this Church by Archbiſhop Chichley, King James I. of Scotland being preſent; the Feaſt upon this Occaſion being covered Meſſes of Fiſh. By her the King had one Son, viz. King Henry VI. whom ſhe bore at Windſor the Year following their Marriage; and not long after, going over Sea to the King her Husband then reducing France to Obedience, ſhe had the Grief to attend his Corpſe into England. After the King's Death, ſhe married with Owen ap Meredeth ap Tudor, a Welſh Gentleman, belonging to the Court, of ſmall Fortune, but antient Deſcent, having a direct one from the Britiſh Kings, to which add the moſt beautiful Perſonage of that Time. This Marriage was kept ſecret till the Queen's Death, as Stow reports, but it is moſt probable that it was diſcovered before, becauſe this Tudor was in Newgate, and broke from thence the Year after her Death. By this Owen ſhe had Edmond Tudor, Earl of Richmond, and Father to King Henry VII. Jaſper, Duke of Bedford, and Owen Tudor, who took the Religious Habit, and died a Monk of this Abbey, in which he lies buried. Queen Catharine herſelf died in her 38th Year, in the Abbey of Bermondſey, near Southwark, (where ſhe retired) on the ſecond (Sandford ſays the third) Day of January, Anno 1437; from whence being brought to the Thames Side, ſhe was conveyed by Water to the Collegiate Church of St. Catharine near the Tower of LONDON; on the 8th of February following, from thence carried to the Cathedral of St. Paul; and laſtly brought to this Abbey, where ſhe was interred in the Chapel of our Lady: But ſome Years after, when her Grandſon King Henry VII. pulled down that in order to build a ſumptuous Chapel, her Body was taken up, and the Coffin being decay'd, it was put in a wooden Cheſt, and placed near her Husband's Tomb at the Eaſt End of the Fryars, (as Stow calls it) where it has ever ſince continued to be ſeen, the Bones being firmly united, and thinly cloth'd with Fleſh, like Scrapings of tanned Leather; a View fit to re-preſent to us the End of Beauty, Greatneſs, and what elſe ſublunary Things we boaſt. Near which Cheſt, on a Tablet, Latin Verſes were formerly legible, written in King Henry VIII's Time, and as it is ſuppoſed, by Skelton.

AND on the ſame Table theſe wretched Rhimes, by Way of Tranſlation:

Heres lies Queen Katharine clos'd in Grave,
The French King's Daughter fair,
And of thy Kingdom (Charles the Sixth)
The true undoubted Heir.
Twice joyful Wife in Marriage match'd,
To Henry Fifth by Name;
Becauſe thro' her he nobled was,
And ſhin'd in double Fame;
The King of England by Deſcent,
And by Queen Catharine's Right,
The Realm of France he did enjoy,
Triumphant King of Might.
A happy Queen to Engliſh Men,
She came right grateful here,
And four Days Space they honoured God,
With Mouth and reverend Fear.
Henry the Sixth this Queen brought forth,
In painful Labours plight,
In whoſe Empire a French Man was,
And eke in Wight.
Under no lucky Planet born,
Unto himſelf nor Throne:
But equal with his Parents both,
In pure Religion.
Of Owen Tudor after this
The next Son Edmund was,
O Catharine, a renowned Prince,
That did in Glory paſs,
Henry the Seventh, a Britain Pearl,
A Gem of England's Joy,
A Peerleſs Prince was Edmund's Son,
A good and gracious Boy;
Therefore a happy Wife this was,
A happy Mother pure,
Thrice happy Child, but Grandam ſhe,
More than thrice happy ſure.

BETWEEN the Gates of this Chapel, and the Feet of St. Edward's Shrine, almoſt contiguous to the latter, and partly cover'd with the Step or Aſcent of the former, are two Stones of Grey Marble, of which that on the South Side, being broader at Head than Feet, hath ſome ſmall Remains of a Croſs, which ſometime reach'd to the Bottom, but now Part of the Top only viſible, and that not much: There are likewiſe the Similitude of Nails ſaltier'd with it, compoſed of a pitchy Subſtance, and not to be injured but by wearing the Stone itſelf. The Writers of our Church have not heeded it, as appears by Keep's joining it with the other, as belonging to two Children; but Mr. Dart ſays, if he may be allowed to conjecture, he takes it to cover the Body of Roger de Wendover, ſince no other has yet attempted to aſſign a Place for his Burial. This Wendover was Parſon of Bromley in Kent, and elected Biſhop of Rocheſter, on the 6. Kal. March, upon the Death of Biſhop Sandford, but being thought inſufficient by Edmund, the Archbiſhop, he rejected him, who thereupon appealing to Rome, was received there and confirmed, and afterwards conſecrated at Canterbury, on the Morrow after St. Edward the King, Anno 1238, and inſtalled at Rocheſter, by Simon, Archdeacon of Canterbury; and having ſat Biſhop 22 Years, he died at Frakenham, 4 Id. October, 1250. Whereupon the King, (quia ſanctus habebatur) for that he was a holy Man, ordered him to be buried in this Church. That this is highly probable, appears by the antient Form of the Stone, and the Croſs uſually impreſſed on the Coffins and Graves of Biſhops and Abbots, and no other; and this Mr. Dart ſeems aſſured of, that no Biſhop, or Abbot was ever buried in this Chapel, except John of Waltham, whoſe Tomb is fair and viſible; and Biſhop Courtney of Norwich, who dying ſo late as 1415, and being more the Stateſman than a Prelate, and of a great and honourable Alliance, leaves no Room to ſuppoſe a Stone and Croſs of ſuch antient ſimple Form to be placed over him: Yet Weaver ſays, there lies in the Wall of Bromley Church, a Figure ſaid to be his Portraiture, but ſays, he cannot contradict his Burial here.

ADJOINING to which is another Stone, Mr. Keep ſays two, of Marble, laid in the Pavement, under which it is ſaid were buried Margaret and John, two Children of William de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, mentioned before in the Chapel of St. Edward: But here Mr. Keep was ſtrangely miſinformed, for Valence had but one Child that died young, (tho' Milles ſays William likewiſe; but he lived long after, and was ſlain in France, the 7th of King Edward I.) neither is there any Likelihood for this Conjecture, unleſs the before-mentioned Tomb of Wendover lying by it is taken for the other. This John was eldeſt Son of William of Valence, by Joan de Mouncheſey, and dying in his Infancy, his Father procured for all ſuch as ſhould devoutly pray for his Soul, Indulgence for 160 Days.

ON the South Side of this Chapel, and with the Feet adjoining to King Henry V's. is a handſome antient Tomb of black Marble, on which lies the Effigies, in white Alabaſter, of Philippa, of Heinault, Queen to King Edward III. She was third Daughter of William Earl of Heinault, and Joan, eldeſt Daughter of Charles Count de Valois, younger Son of Philip the hardy King of France; her Brother was William, the fourth Earl of Holland and Heinault, who being ſlain by the Friſons, this Earldom come to her: She was married to King Edward III. at York, Feb. 25, Anno 1327, and crowned at Weſtminſter the firſt Sunday in Lent following; ſhe lived his Wife 42 Years, and bare him no leſs than 14 Children. Mr. Weaver, from Harding, tells us, That when an Embaſſy was ſent to chuſe one of the Earl's Daughters, a certain Biſhop amongſt them, adviſed to chuſe the Lady who had the largeſt Hips, as promiſing a numerous Progeny: This the Event made good. She was a Woman of great Honour and Virtue, and a firm Friend to England; ſhe was, ſays Walſingham, Mulier nobiliſſima & Anglorum ematriæ conſtantiſſima, ſtrenuouſly aſſerting her Husband's Right to France, notwithſtanding her cloſe Alliance to that Crown: She died the 15th Day of Auguſt, being the Bleſſed Virgin's Aſſumption, Anno 1369, the 43d of King Edward III. and was here buried, the King pouring vaſt Expence in performing her Exequies, and erecting her Tomb; round the Tomb were formerly the Statues in Braſs, and Eſcutcheons of the following Perſons; at the Head of Edward, Prince of Wales, Lewis the Emperor, King Edward III. John, King of France, and William, Earl of Heinault, the Queen's Father: On the South Side of Joan, Counteſs of Heinault, the Queen's Mother; William, Earl of Heinault, the Queen's Brother; Margaret, Empreſs of Germany, the Queen's Siſter; Reginald, Duke of Geldres; Eleanor, Dutcheſs of Geldres; John, of Bavaria, Earl of Heinault; Mary, Dutcheſs of Britain; Lewis, Duke of Bavaria; Margaret, Counteſs of Pembroke; Charles, of Valois, Son to the King of France; and John, Duke of Brabant: On the North Side of Joan, Queen of Scots, John, Earl of Cornwall; Joan, Princeſs of Wales; Lionel, Duke of Clarence; Iſabel, Counteſs of Bedford; John, Duke of Lancaſter; Elizabeth, Dutcheſs of Clarence; Edmund, Earl of Cambridge; and

Thomas

Thomas, Earl of Buckingham: And at the Foot, of the Kings of Naverre, Bohemia, Scotland, Sicily and Spain.

On a Table near the Tomb were formerly these Verses:

Fair Philip, William Henald's Child,
And youngeſt Daughter dear,
Of Roſeat Hue, and Beauty bright,
In Tomb lies killed here.

Edward the Third, through Mother's Will,
And Nobles good Conſent,
Took her to Wife, and joyfully
With her his Time he ſpent.

His Brother John, a martial Man,
And eke a valiant Knight,
Did link this Woman to this King
In Bonds of Marriage right.

This Match and Marriage thus in Blood,
Did bind the Flemings ſure
To Engliſhmen, by which they did
The Frenchmens Wrack procure.

This Philip flowr'd in Gifts full rare,
And Treaſures of the Mind,
In Beauty bright, Religion, Faith,
To all and each moſt kind.

A faithful Mother Philip was Full many a Son ſhe bred,
And brought forth many a worthy Knight,
Hardy and full of Dred.

A carefull Nurſe to Students all,
At Oxford ſhe did found
Queen's College, ſhe Dame Pallas School
That did her Fame refound.

Adjoining to this, and between the two Pillars, parallel with the Shrine of St. Edward, is a ſtately Monument of grey Marble, having over it a decayed Canopy of Gothick Work, on which is a Table Effigies of Copper gilt, repreſenting King Edward III. though his Corpſe lies in the ſame Grave with Phillippa's, as herſelf deſired on her Death-Bed; on the Sides of the Tomb were the Braſs Statues and Arms of theſe his Sons and Daughters, (of which ſome remain) viz. on the South Side, Firſt, Edward Prince of Wales; Second, Joan de la Tour, called Queen of Spain, Lionel Duke of Clarence, Edmund Duke of York, Mary Dutcheſs of Britain, and William of Hatfield. On the North Side, were the Statues of Iſabel, Lady of Concy, William of Windſor, John Duke of Lancaſter, Blanch de la Tour, Margaret, Counteſs of Pembroke, and Thomas, Duke of Gloceſter; of theſe laſt the Arms only remain; on the Baſis of the Tomb are placed on large Shields of Braſs, enamelled, the Arms of St. George and King Edward III. On the little Tomb of Margaret, King Edward IV's Daughter, which joins to the Head of this Tomb, is placed the Shield and Sword carried before this King in France; the latter of which is ſeven Feet long, and weighs eighteen Pounds.

This King Edward III. was eldeſt Son of Edward II. King of England, who being depoſed and murdered in the Infancy of this, the Crown was placed upon his Head at his 14th Year; he laid Claim to the Crown of France, in the Right of his Mother Iſabel, Daughter to King Philip IV. and made the Claim ſure by numerous Conqueſts under his Conduct, and that of his brave Son the Black Prince. Scotland he reduced to Allegiance, and after the ſecond Revolt, took their King Priſoner. France, by the Battles of Creſſy and Poictiers, he ſubdued; at the latter of which, John their King was likewiſe taken; ſo that he had at LONDON two Captive Kings at once; the firſt of theſe, after 11 Years Impriſonment, was releaſed, the latter died in the Savoy.

In his Time England ſeemed to ſhine in her Meridian; Learning was encouraged; Gallantry, and that the moſt honourable, was practiſed; the Order of the Garter inſtituted; the Subjects beloved; the Prince honoured at home, and feared abroad; till after a long Reign, and impaired Age, the Reins of Government began to grow ſlack; the Prince was impoſed upon, and Lancaſter, that ambitious Son of his, clouded all the ſetting Glories of his Reign, incouraging popular Faction, and debauched the King's Hours with a Woman who had too great an Aſcendant over him, an imperious arbitrary Favourite, one Perers, having been chief Lady to the Queen, was much eſteemed after her Death by the King, not as a Miſtreſs, which ſome (in Regard ſhe was a Wickliffiſt) ſay, and particularly Walſingham, who, with a Heat uſual to him, calls her infandæ meretrix & verecunda pellex, but out of Reſpect to his Queen's Memory; this Woman was married to Sir William Windſor before-mentioned. Thus ended this glorious Sun its Courſe, being upon his Death-Bed deſerted by all his Favourites, and particularly the aforeſaid Perers, who even took the Rings from his Fingers before his Breath was gone, and lying alone, gaſping almoſt his laſt, a Fryar came into the Room, and moved at ſuch an Object, had the Courage to approach, and bad him cry Pardon for his Sins, giving him a Crucifix, the King often kiſſed its Feet, the Tears flowing a-pace, and was heard to pronounce the Word Jesus, and ſo expired, at his Manor Houſe of Shene, near Richmond in Surrey, the twenty firſt Day of June, 1377, in the ſixty fourth Year of his Age, having reigned fifty five Years, four Months and twenty eight Days; from whence he was brought and buried here. Round the Verge of the Braſs Table were ſome Latin Verſes.

On a Table near it was this Tranſlation:

Of Engliſh Kings here lyes the beauteous Flower
Of all before paſſed, and Myrror to them ſhall ſue:
A merciful King, of Peace Conſervator,
The III. Edward; the Death of whom may rue
All Engliſh Men, for he by Knighthood due,
Was Libarde invict, and by Feat Martial
To worthy Macabe in Vertue Peregal.

Next adjoining, and between this Tomb and the back Skreen of the high Altar, is another Tomb, not much unlike the laſt, being of grey Marble, with empty Niches on the Sides; over it is a Table of Copper with two Effigies of the ſame, gilt, large as the Life, being erected to King Richard II. and his Queen; his Robing is wrought with Peaſcod-Shells open, and the Peas out, but upon what Account that Deviſe was uſed, is not certain; over the Tomb is a Canopy of Wood, which has formerly been curiouſly Painted, with the Virgin Mary and our Saviour, ſtill viſible, and the Arms of Anne his Queen, viz. Quarterly, an Eagle diſplayed with two Heads, Sable, the Imperial Arms, and Gules, a Lion rampant, quevee forchee, Argent crowned, Or, the Arms of Bohemia impaled with King Richard II. viz. Quarterly, France, Semee and England, &c. but are ſcarcely now viſible. This unhappy Prince, King Richard II. was Son to that victorious Black Prince, and Grandſon to King Edward III. laſt mentioned, whom he ſucceeded in the Throne at his eleventh Year of Age. He was ſirnamed Bourdeaux, the Place of his Birth, which was Anno 1366. He was a Prince of unequalled Beauty, and had the Excellencies lencies of his Mind equalled thoſe of his Form, he had compleated the Glories his Granſire began; but hurried with the Paſſions to which Youth is incident, he involved himſelf and the Nation in many Difficulties, to which the Factions about him contributed not a little; of which Diſadvantages, Henry of Bullingbrook taking hold, uſurped the Throne, by a canting, far-fetch'd Right from King Henry III. for Conqueſt nor Reſignation were not then pleaded. Soon after which, this hapleſs dethroned Monarch was impriſoned, firſt in Leeds, in Kent, then in Pontefract or Pomfret Caſtle in Yorkſhire, where, ſome ſay, he died by Famine. Stow ſays, they vexed him five Days with Cold and Hunger; the Continuer of Ingulphus, that he voluntarily faſted five Days and Nights, and Walſingham ſays, that for the Grief conceived upon Diſcovery of the late Plot, Semetipſum extinxit media voluntaria. Others ſay, that Henry IV. gave Hints to have him deſtroyed, which one Pierce of Exton hearing, went from Court with eight Men in Company to Pomfret, and entered the King's Chamber armed; who perceiving their Deſigns, put the Table from him, wreſted a Bill from the Hands of the foremoſt, and ſlew four of the Aſſailants; but being drove back to his Chair, where Sir Pierce ſtood, he with a Pole-Ax ſtruck out his Brains. This was done at Pomfret in the Bloody Tower, on St. Valentine's Day, Anno 1339, Anno 1 King Henry IV. Whereupon his Body was embalmed and incloſed with Lead, all but the Face, and was brought to the Tower, thence to St. Paul's Church in LONDON, to be expoſed to publick View for three Days, where Service was performed, at which the Uſurper was preſent: From whence it was conveyed to Langeley, and buried in the Church of the Fryars Predicants, the Office being performed by the Biſhop of Cheſter, and the Abbots of St. Alban's and Waltham, without any Nobility preſent, or even any Crowd, nor any to invite them afterwards to Dinner, where he reſted for ſome Years till King Henry V. a Prince of great Humanity, reigning, pity'd his Caſe, and gave Orders to remove him in State to this Abbey, whither he was drawn in a Royal Chair, himſelf and all the Nobility attending; he was interred near the Shrine of his admired St. Edward the Confeſſor, over whoſe ſacred Arches the King erected a Tomb of grey Marble, with Niches on the Sides; but without any Statues in them, but on the Tomb is a Table of Braſs, gilt, and on it, in gilt Copper, large as the Life, the Effigies of this unfortunate Prince, with his Queen Anne: On the King's Robe are the Devices of Peaſcod-Shells open, with the Peas out; over all is a Canopy of Wood as before-mentioned. Mr. Keep ſays, at the Time of writing his Hiſtory, thoſe Statues were removed, and a late Writer ſays, they are not there now. How Mr. Keep could make ſuch a Miſtake, when Sandford nor any other at that Time mention it, is ſtrange; there not appearing the leaſt Sign of their having been ever removed, though there have been but too flagrant ones of their having been injured, large Pieces of the Copper being cut off from the Table, and the Arms ſtolen from the Side next the Area, in the Holes of which any one putting their Hands, may turn the Boards of his Coffin. Round the Verge is the following Inſcription, an extravagant Proof of the Generoſity of King Henry V. by whoſe Order it was placed there:

Perfect and Prudent, Richard by Right the Second Vanquiſh'd by Fortune, lies here now in Stone
True of his Word, and thereto well reſound;
Seemly in Perſon, and like to Homer, as one
In worldly Prudence, and ever the Church in one Upheld and favoured, and caſting the Proud to Ground,
And all that would his Royal State confound.

In the ſame Tomb with him lies his Queen, Anne, Daughter to the Emperor Charles the 4th, and Siſter to Wenceſlaus, Emperor and King of Bohemia; ſhe was crown'd at Weſtminſter, by William Courtney, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; by her the King had no Children, and having been his Wife 12 Years, ſhe died the 7th of June, in the Year 1394, at Shene in Surrey, for whoſe Death the King's Grief was, like his other Paſſions, ſo extravagant, that he curs'd the Place of her Death, and ordered the Buildings to be demoliſhed: She was buried at Weſtminſter, in a pompous and ſolemn Manner, and at prodigious Expence. Stain'd with the Blood of the Earl of Arundel, as Walſingham obſerves, who never fails affronting this unhappy Prince's Memory, when he can, uſing the weak and baſe Supports of Uſurpation, Perſonal Reflection, and Vindication of the Loſs, and firſt Eſſays of Rebellion, which were quaſh'd, to give Sanction to the greater more ſucceſſive and ſucceſsful ones, under the Conſequence of which he lived.

Between the Shrine of St. Edward, and the Tomb of Queen Philippa, under a large Stone, once finely plated with Braſs, with Inſcriptions now not legible, lies Thomas Woodſtock, Brother to Edward the Black Prince, ſixth and youngeſt Son to King Edward III. and Uncle to King Richard II. He was born at Woodſtock, then the Palace, from whence he took his Name, the 7th Id. Jan. 1355. In the 50th Year of his Father he ſat in Parliament as Conſtable of England. On the Coronation of his Nephew, Richard II. he was honour'd with the Title of Earl of Buckingham, with an Annuity of 1000 l. per Ann. ſettled on him, and the 22d of June following, he confirmed him Conſtable of England, and in the Right of his Wife Elianor, Daughter of Humphey de Bohun, he had the Titles of Earl of Eſſex, and Northampton. Of which Elianor, and her Tomb, ſee more in the Chapel of St. Edmond. He was afterwards advanced by Patent, dated the 6th of Auguſt, in the 9th of King Richard II. to the Titles of Duke of Gloceſter. This Gentleman whom Walſingham calls, Vir optimus & regis patruus in quo poſita fuere ſpes & ſolatium totius regni communitatis, was extremely careful over the Affairs of the Kingdom, during the unhappy Meaſures his Nephew took, but too ſubject to a Warmth of Temper, and a froward Oppoſition of every Thing his Prince deſired; and having once by a Combination of the Lords, brought him under, intended ſtill to keep him ſubject to his Dictates; which the King, now of ripe Years perceiving, reſolved to remove from him, ſo ſevere an Obſerver and reprover of his Actions: In order to which he caus'd him to be ſurpriz'd at his Caſtle of Pleſhey in Eſſex, and convey'd to Calais, where he was ſmother'd between two Feather-beds, by William Serle, —— Francis, and others: This was done on Sept. 8, 1397. and but one Year before his Nephew met with as hard a Fate, at Pomfret, and Mowbrey, Duke of Norfolk, the Contriver of it, baniſh'd for Life. His Body was conveyed to Pleſhey, and buried in a College of Canons Regular, which he had founded, under a handſome Tomb, but afterwards his Body was removed and buried in this Place. Upon the Tomb were the Figures of himſelf, Dutcheſs Elianor, King Edward III. and Queen Philippa, with his Brothers and Siſters: On the South Side of which, on the Verge was this broken Fragment, ſome Years ſince, ſince, but now not legible, ore giſtcuſeuelez entre les come tu poes iey deoir foit a malyn mydy ou Coyr; priez adieu pur ſalme de luy; quil eu eſt de luy mercy meint home ne. ——

NEAR the Foot of King Edward I's Monument is another Pavement-ſtone inſculped with Braſs, and an Inſcription, Part of which was viſible in Biſhop Godwin's Time, but now gone; on the Plates of which are eight Figures, four on the one Side, defaced by often Paſſage over that Side, through the Skreen, from the High Altar to St. Edward's Shrine; and the four others in Gothick Letters, Johannes - - - - - which adorn the Effigies of a Biſhop, in his Maſs Habit: This was laid over John de Waltham, Biſhop of Salisbury, a great Favourite of King Richard II. in whoſe Time he was Maſter of the Robes, Keeper of the Privy Seal, and was choſe one of the fourteen over the Revenues, and laſtly, viz. Anno 1391, made Lord High Treaſurer of England; he died in that Office, having ſupplied it four Years, and that of Biſhop ſeven; his Death happened Anno 1395: He was much lamented by the King, who gave Orders he ſhould be here buried, as Walſingham obſerves, hoc Anno, i. e. 1395, obiit Jo. de Waltham, Epiſcopus Sarum & Regni complacuerat, ut etiam (multis licet murmurantibus) rege jubente apud Weſtmonaſterium inter reges meruit ſepultura. This Waltham ſeems to have been a Man of great Spirit, as appears by his oppoſing the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who in his Viſitation had been oppoſed by the Biſhop of Exeter; and after bringing him to Submiſſion, proceeded to Salisbury, where this Waltham refuſed him, upon Account of a Privilege obtained from Pope Boniface, then newly Pope, to exempt his Dioceſe from any Metropolitan's Viſitation, by Virtue of any Power granted from the late Pope Urban; but the Archbiſhop, who knew his Metropolitan Power of Viſitation independent of the Pope, proceeded to Excommunications and Cenſures, till Waltham was forced to ſubmit.

IN this Chapel was interred the Heart of Henry de Almaine, Son of Richard King of the Romans, who having been long in Foreign Countries, returning to England, as he paſſed through Tuſcany with Philip, after King of France, was murdered at Viterbo, in the Church of St. Silveſter, while he was hearing Maſs, by Simon and Guido, Sons of Simon de Mountfort, Earl of Leiceſter, Anno 1270. The Picture of his Murder the Inhabitants had painted and hung in the Church, on which, Matthew Weſtminſter gives us ſome Verſes. His Body was, the following Year, viz. on the 3d Id. May 1271, brought to LONDON, and his Heart put in a Cup, and placed near St. Edward's Shrine; his Body was buried in the Monaſtery of Hales. The two Murderers were excommunicated by the Pope, and Simon, one of them, died in the Caſtle of St. Senenſis, a miſerable Vagabond, the Year following.

HERE alſo lieth interred, without Monument or Inſcription, Richard Courtney, of the Family of the Earl of Devonſhire, Kinſman to William Courtney, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, educated at Exeter College in Oxford, firſt Prebendary of Sneating in St. Paul's, Dean of Aſaph, Canon of York, Chancellor of Oxford; Canon, and then Dean of Wells; and laſtly, Biſhop of Norwich, in 1413, a great Favourite of King Henry V. whom he attended at Normandy, where he died at the Siege of Harfleur, of a Flux, on the 14th or 16th of September 1415, and being brought over to England, was buried near the Shrine of St. Edward.

BEFORE we leave theſe Chapels, we muſt not paſs over the Perſons buried in them, though not diſtinguiſhed by Monuments, yet of equal, and ſome of ſuperior Characters to thoſe that are; to which we ſhall proceed, after deſcribing

The Chapel of HENRY VII. and the private Interments and Vaults there.

THIS Miraculum Orbis, as Leland calls it, on the Outſide, would yield a moſt ſurpriſing View, were it not that the Smoke has pretty much injured it, and is adorned with fourteen Gothick Towers jutting out in ſeveral Angles, enlightened with Windows, and covered with the moſt curious Carv'd-work of Portculliſes, Flowers-de-liz, &c. and have had a vaſt Number of Statues placed in Niches round them, but taken away, leſt they ſhould fall upon the Heads of thoſe who attend the Parliament; from which Towers, to the Sides of the Roof, are Gothick Arches. The Aſcent to the Inſide from the Eaſt End of the Sacriſtarea of St. Edward, is by Steps of Black Marble, being —— Feet in Length, under a ſtately Portico, to the Gates opening to the Body or Nave of it; before you enter which, you obſerve on either Hand a Door-way opening from the Area at the Top of the Aſcent into the Side-iſles of this Chapel; for it is compoſed of a Nave and Side-iſles, in Manner of a Cathedral; the Entrance to the Nave from the Aſcent, is through three noble Portals of Braſs, wrought like Frame-work, and in every other open Pannel a Roſe and a Portcullis of Hollow Work, alternately: Entering through theſe your Eye takes in the moſt beautiful and ſurpriſing Proſpect in the World; the Roof of it is very lofty, and wrought with the moſt curious Variety imaginable; the Windows lofty and lightſome; the Stalls of the Choir of Wainſcot, curiouſly carved, with Gothick Canopies, and the Seats with Variety of Devices; the Pavement is of Black and White Marble, done at the Charge of Dr. Killigrew, Prebendary here, as appears by two Plates of Braſs fixed to the Riſe toward the Founder's Tomb.

THE Eaſt View from the Entrance preſents you with the Braſs Chapel and Tomb of the Founder, and round it, where the Eaſt End forms a Semicircle, are the Chapels of the Dukes of Buckingham and Richmond, and the open Spaces and Windows, where is the Tomb of Sheffield Duke of Bucks, and the Effigies of the Counteſs of Richmond, on each Side the Inlet to the great Eaſt Window. The Side-iſles open to the Nave at the Eaſt End, on each Side the Founder's Tomb. At the Eaſt End of the South Iſle is the Royal Vault; and of the other, the Monuments of the Two Murdered Prince: The Walls, as well as the Nave of the South Iſles, are wrought into the moſt curious Imagery, and contain 120 large Statues of Patriarchs, Saints, Martyrs and Confeſſors, placed in Niches; under which are Angels ſupporting Imperials Crowns, beſides innumerable ſmall ones; and theſe have been eſteemed ſo curious, that Painters, Statuaries, and other Artiſans of all Countries have travelled hither to copy them. The Windows, which are thirteen on each Side above, and as many below in the North and South Iſles, beſide the ſpacious Eaſt Window, jut out into the Gothick Towers, viſible without, and have been formerly of painted or diaper'd Glaſs; and in every Pain was a Red Roſe, the Badge and Cognizance of the Houſe of Lancaſter, or a Text H. the initial Letter of the Founder's Name, and Portculliſes, the Badge of the Beauforts, crown'd, of which many are ſtill viſible. The Roof, which is flattiſh on the Outſide, is ſupported on Arches between the Nave and Side-iſles, which turn upon twelve ſtately Gothick Pillars, curiouſly adorned with Figures, Fruitage and Foliage. The Length of this Chapel, within-ſide, is 99 Feet, the Breadth 66 Feet, and the Height 54 Feet.

Vaults and Interments in this CHAPEL.

THE firſt, being the antienteſt, is in the South Iſle, and near the Tomb of Margaret Douglaſs, Grandmother to King James I. in which that Lady is buried. She lies in a Leaden Coffin, placed on another, in which is the Body of Charles Earl of Lenox, Son to the ſaid Margaret, by Matthew Earl of Lenox: He dy'd Anno 1576. Theſe are all it contains. Upon what Occaſion it was opened in Mr. Keep's Time, or whether by Communication with the adjoining Vault he ſaw thoſe Coffins, is uncertain: but he tells us, the undermoſt was much ſhaken and decay'd, ſo that the Skeleton and dry'd ſhrivel'd Skin might be ſeen.

ON the ſame South Side of this Chapel, is a large and capacious Vault, which King James prepared to receive his Mother Mary, Queen of Scots, and his Family: From her being laid there, it is commonly called the Queen of Scots Vault. And is frequently called the Royal Vault, from the many Branches of that Royal Stem which have ſince been depoſited there. Of which in Order.

Henry Prince of Wales, eldeſt Son of King James I. who was born the 12th of Feb. 1593, and after giving great Promiſes of a Bleſſing to this Land, died of a malignant Fever the 6th of Nov. 1612, at his 19th Year, at St. James's, whence he was drawn in a Chariot, and had a Hearſe erected to him in this Abbey, with his Arms, and this Motto, Javat ire per altum. His Body was incloſed in Lead, proportioned to the Shape of it, and his Heart likewiſe encloſed by itſelf, to its Shape, and laid on his Breaſt, and under it the Figures 1612, with the Prince's Device, Motto, and a Roſe and Thiſtle, with H. P. under it emboſs'd. Some Time after, it is thought, this Body was removed; for upon digging to clean Monk's Vault, a Corpſe, thus incloſed, was dug out of the Sand; and from a Hole made by the Workmen, iſſued a black Liquid of intolerable Stench.

Elizabeth, Daughter to King James I. married to Frederick Count Palatine of the Rhine, who was afterwards nominated King of Bohemia; but driven by the Emperor both from thoſe Dominions and his own. This Lady, after the Reſtauration of her Nephew King Charles II. came into England. She lived with the old Lord Craven in Drury-lane, and died at Leiceſter-Houſe, on Thurſday Feb. 1661, aged 66, and was carried from Somerſet-Houſe by Water, and here buried, her Son Prince Rupert being Chief Mourner.

Arabel Stuart, Daughter to Charles Earl of Lenox; ſhe married Mr. William Seymour, ſecond Son to the Earl of Hertford; but this Marriage being conſummated without the Conſent of King James I. and ſhe being Couſin German to the King, they were both committed Priſoners to the Tower, where this Lady ended her Life without Iſſue, on the 27th Day of Sept. Anno 1615, and was buried here in a Leaden Coffin without any Inſcription, ſays Sand.

Henry Duke of Gloceſter, fourth Son of King Charles I. a Prince of Wiſdom, and Courage, and Piety, beyond his Years. He lived a ſhort Time after the Reſtauration, viz. about four Months, and died at Whitehall the 13th of Sept. following, much lamented by all, but particularly by the King, who was never known to grieve ſo much upon any other Occaſion. He was carried from Somerſet-Houſe, by Water, to the Parliament-Stairs, and here depoſited. His Coffin was of Black Velvet, and on it a Plate of Silver.

Mary Princeſs of Orange, eldeſt Daughter to King Charles I. She died of the Small-Pox, at Whitehall, (being invited into England by her Brother Charles II. ſoon after his Reſtauration) on the 24th of Dec. 1660, a Princeſs of great Virtue, and a kind Aſſiſter of her Brother in Exile; ſhe was carried by Water from Somerſet-Houſe, and on her Coffin of black Velvet a Copper Plate.

SEVERAL Children of King James, when Duke of York, viz. Charles Duke of Cambridge; ſecond Son of James Duke of York, afterwards King James II. died an Infant. On his Coffin a Silver Plate thus Inſcribed; as likewiſe on thoſe following:

Depoſitum Celciſſimi Principis Caroli Ducis Cantabrigiæ filii Primogeniti Jacobi Ducis Eboracenſis, qui natus 22 die Octobris 1660. obiit in Aula Whitehall, quinto die Maii, 1661.

AT the Eaſt End of this Iſle is the Royal Vault.

Richmond's Vault, ſo called from being the Repoſitory of that Title, is on the Right Side of King Henry VII's Tomb, where is a Chapel peculiar to them. Here are two Coffins covered, one with Crimſon, and the other Black, unburied, according to the Cuſtom of Foreigners, whoſe they were. In this Vault (beſides the Family of the Lenox's) have lately been buried theſe following:

John Earl of Kildare, and Baron Ophaley, buried Dec. 4, 1707.

Walter Lord Blantyre in Scotland, buried here June 23, 1713, aged 30 Years.

Catharine Counteſs-Dowager of Abercorney, deceaſed May 24, 1713; late Duke of Richmond, Natural Son of King Charles II.

IN the North Iſle:

Monk's Vault, ſo called from the Burial of that great Man, the Reſtorer of Monarchy, Religion and Liberty to this Nation, and deſigned for him and his Family only. It goes down in a little Side Chapel on the Left Hand, and is 15 Feet in Length and ſeven in Breadth; ſo that Mr. Keep, who ſeldom inquired of this Church, than what the open Monuments told him, is groſly miſtaken, in ſaying it was made to hold but two, him and the Earl of Sandwich, as will appear by the Perſons following, whereof ſome have lately been buried there:

George Monk, Duke of Albemarle, the Reſtorer, was buried here in great Pomp the laſt Day of April, 1670, and died the 4th of January, 1699.

Anne, Dutcheſs of Albemarle, Widow of the Duke, died Sunday 29 Jan. 1699, aged 54 Years, and was buried here the laſt of Febuary following.

Chriſtopher, Duke of Albemarle, Son to the General, and Governor of Jamaica, where he died on the 6th of October, 1688; whence his Body, being embalmed and wrapped in Lead, was brought into England, and buried here.

A Son of the ſaid Duke, that died in its Infancy, and was here interred.

Edward Montagu, Earl of Sandwich, Admiral of the Engliſh Fleet, and Aſſiſtant with Monk in the Reſtoration; he was Vice-Admiral under the Duke of York, at the Dutch Naval Fight, when the Royal James was blown up, and in her her this noble Warrier, who refuſed to ſave himſelf, but periſhed with his Ship. His Body, being known by the George, was afterwards taken up and brought into Harwich, where the Governor cauſed it to be embalmed; and the King ſent for it, and buried it here at his own Charge, with great Solemnity. His Death was on the 28th of May, 1672, being aged 74 Years.

THESE three were in Pieces upon opening the Vault in 1714, at which Time that of Monk's of Lead was firm, but ſince, by placing another upon it, is ſqueezed together.

George, Marquis of Halifax, whoſe Coffin is of Lead.

Elizabeth, Lady Stanhope, Wife of the late Lord Stanhope, and Daughter of the ſaid Marquis, by Gertrude his Wife, buried September 12, 1708, aged 35 Years. Upon her Coffin is placed that of Charles late Lord Halifax, whoſe Titles are inſcribed upon his Coffin in French.

Catharine, Dutcheſs of Northumberland, buried the 3d of June, 1714.

George Fitzroy, Duke of Northumberland, third Son of King Charles II. by the Dutcheſs of Cleaveland, buried here the 11th of July, 1716, aged 51 Years.

THE Right Honourable Joſeph Addiſon, Eſq; whoſe Writings gave him a Character ſuperior to all the honourable Poſts he held, and whoſe Name is the greateſt Character, was buried from the Jeruſalem Chamber on Friday the 26th of June, 1719, the Dean officiating. He was, at his Death, 47 Years of Age, and left behind him one Daughter by his Lady the Counteſs of Warwick.

THE next was James Cragg's, one of the Secretaries of State; he died of the Small-Pox, and was buried from the Jeruſalem Chamber the 2d of March, 1720.

A ſmall Vault at the Feet of Queen Elizabeth's Tomb, made at the Time that was building for one of King James the Firſt's Daughters; and another ſmall one on the Left Side for the other.

KING James I. and Anne of Denmark, his Queen, reſt in a Vault by the old Duke of Bucks's Tomb, eight Feet 10 Inches long, four Feet ſix Inches wide, three Feet high.

UNDER the great Eaſt Window of this Chapel, is a large Vault called by the Regiſtery of this Church, Ormond's, from its having been the Place of Sepulture for ſeveral of that truly noble Family. It is likewiſe called Oliver's, for here, it ſeems, the Body of Oliver Cromwel was depoſited till after the Reſtauration, when it was taken away. What Number of Burials have been here, or what Removals, is uncertain; but from the Account of the Regiſter we find the following Perſons:

Eliza. Butler, Dutcheſs of Ormond, married to that famous and ever-memorable Aſſerter of Monarchy and the Church of England, at once againſt the equally dangerous Rebels of England and Ireland, whoſe remarkable Courage, exemplary Piety, and unſhaken Loyalty, will make even the Name of this Family eſteemed by all who either have or value any of thoſe Excellencies. The Dutcheſs died in her Houſe in St. James's-ſquare, on the 26th of January 1685.

Ja. Botelar, Earl of Oſſory, eldeſt Son of the aforeſaid Duke and Dutcheſs, and Father to James Butler, the preſent Duke; he was Privy Counſellor to King Charles II. and Knight of the Garter.

Richard Botelar, ſecond Son of the aforeſaid Duke and Dutcheſs of Ormond, Earl of Arran in Ireland, and Baron of Weſton in Huntingdonſhire in England; which laſt Title was conferred on him for his Service againſt the Rebels at Carickfergus, and in the Dutch Fight under the Duke of York. He died the 26th of Jan. Anno 1685, whether theſe three were removed afterwards to Kilkenny, the Burial Place of their Family is uncertain. Mr. Keep mentions only the Earl of Oſſory, as lying here in his Time, and but three others, viz. Charles Earl of Doncaſter, Son to James Duke of Monmouth, by the Lady Anne, Daughter to the Earl of Buclugh in Scotland; born the 24th of Auguſt, 1672; he died the 9th of February, 1673, aged one Year, five Months, 15 Days.

Charles Fitz Charles, Earl of Plymouth, Natural Son to King Charles II. by Mrs. Catharine Peg, born in 1658; he died of a Bloody-Flux at Tangier in Africa, while it was beſiged by the Moors, on the 17th of October 1680, aged 23 Years.

Mary Dutcheſs of Southampton, Daughter to Sir Henry Wood, Knt. and married to Charles Fitzroy, eldeſt natural Son to King Charles II. She died without Iſſue, Anno 1680, and was buried here the 16th of that Month. Theſe three laſt were the only ones, when Mr. Keep wrote, beſides which are theſe following interred:

LORD Francis Scot, fourth Son of James Duke of Monmouth, by the Lady Anne Scot, he was born Anno 1678; and dying Anno 1679, in December, was buried here the 8th of that Month.

LALY Charlotte Scot, eldeſt Daughter of the ſaid Duke, died young, and was buried here the 5th of September, 1683.

LADY Anne Scot, ſecond Daughter, born the 17th of September, 1675; and dying in the Tower of LONDON in the Beginning of Auguſt 1685, was buried here the 13th of the ſame Month.

LORD George Scot, and Lady Anne Scot, Children of the aforeſaid Dutcheſs of Monmouth, by her Husband Charles, late Lord Cornwallis, who both died young.

James, Earl of Doncaſter, ſecond Son to James Duke of Monmouth, born the 23d of May 1674, afterward Earl of Dalkeith, and Knight of the Thiſtle, Father of the preſent Duke of Bucclugh, by the Lady Henrietta Hyde, ſecond Daughter of Lawrence Earl of Rocheſter; he died at his Houſe in Albemarle-ſtreet, on Wedneſday the 14th of March 1703-4, and was buried here the 19th of the ſaid Month, aged 30 Years.

Charles Scot, ſecond Son of the aforeſaid Earl, born March 25, 1700, and died a Fortnight old, on the 4th of April, and was buried here on the fifth.

Charlotte, Counteſs of Yarmouth, Natural Daughter of King Charles II. by Elizabeth, Viſcounteſs Shannon, married to William Viſcount Yarmouth; died July 28, 1684.

Elizabeth, Counteſs Dowager of Devon, died Nov. 16, 1689. She lies at the Eaſt End of the Vault, in a Coffin japanned over.

Thomas, Earl of Oſſory, Son to the late Duke of Ormond, died Feb. 26, 1698-9, aged three Years, and is the uppermoſt Coffin on the Right Hand at Entrance.

LORD Somerſet, third Son of Charles, Marquis of Worceſter, died Dec. 17, 1704, and was removed July 31, 1712.

In a ſmall Vault, ſufficient for one, lies Sir Joſeph Williamſon, Kt. a Clergyman's Son, born in Cumberland, Under Secretary to Secretary Nicholas, afterwards to Henry Earl of Arlington, Clerk of the Council in 1671, Clerk of the Papers, Member of Parliament for Thetford, Plenipotentiary to Holland and Germany, Principal Secretary of State and Privy Counſellor. In 1678 he was, by the Commons, ſent to the Tower, and the ſame Day releaſed by the King; but finding the Commons troubleſome and vexatious to him, he reſigned his Office of Secretary 1678. He was Preſident of the Royal Society.

Private Interments in other Chapels.

In the Chapel of St. Benedict, lies buried Dr. John Spotſwood, Archbiſhop of St. Andrews in Scotland, and Lord Chancellor; a long experienced and faithful Miniſter to King James, and King Charles I. Soon after, reading the Liturgy (at the ſtilling the Riot, upon which he was preſent) he was ſo violently purſued by the Kirk Party, that he fled to LONDON, and having given his Sovereign a true Notion of that Party and Nation, died ſoon after, in a good old Age, Anno 1640. He publiſhed a fair and juſt Hiſtory of the Affairs of that Kingdom, and has been, for that, eſteemed the trueſt Hiſtorian that Country has produced. He was a Perſon of ſingular Integrity, great Wiſdom, and exemplary Life; for which, till the new Uproars, he was much reverenced for many Years.

In St. Edmund's.

In this Chapel is a fine Monument, being a Pyramid of the fineſt Marble, for Biſhop Monk, erected at the Charge of his Grandſon Chriſtopher Rawlinſon, Eſq; of Carkhall in Lancaſhire. The Epitaph is thus tranſlated:

" In this Chapel lies the Body of the late " Reverend Father in Chriſt, Nicholas Monk, " D. D. who was ſome Time Provoſt of Eaton-" College, afterwards Biſhop of Hereford: The " moſt endeared Brother to the moſt noble " George Monk, Duke of Albemarle, Earl of " Torrington, and Baron Monk of Potheridge; " and was the chief and moſt ſucceſsful Aſſiſtant " with him in that glorious Reſtoration of King " Charles II. and the Church of England. He " died Dec. 11, 1661, cloſing, alas, too haſtily, " his Courſe, at the Opening of his 51ſt Year.

" Chriſtopher Rawlinſon, of Cark in the " County of Lancaſter, Eſq; his moſt regardful " Grandſon, and the only ſurviving Heir to his " Family, hath, to the laſting Memory of his " moſt worthy Anceſtor, devoutly erected this " Monument 1723.

In this Chapel, near William of Valence's Tomb, was buried, without any Monument or Inſcription, Humphry Bourchier, Lord Cromwell, Son to Henry Earl of Eſſex, who was ſlain at the Battle of Barnet. Mr. Camden, by Miſtake for another, aſcribes to him a Monument in this Chapel, bearing that Name, as Mr. Keep ſays.

George Brideman, Keeper of the Palace at Weſtminſter, died 1580, and his Wife 1590.

Margaret Clifford, Daughter to Henry Earl of Cumberland, died 1596.

Henry Earl of Stafford, and Baron Stafford. On his Coffin: " The Right Honourable Henry " Stafford Howard, Earl, Viſcount, and Baron " of Stafford; obiit die Aprilis 27, 1719. Æta-" tis ſuæ 72. Requieſcat in pace." On each Side of him are Leaden Coffins.

CHAPEL of St. NICHOLAS.

IN which, beſides thoſe already mentioned, are buried in a Vault in the Middle of it, call'd Villiers's, theſe following:

HON. Elizabeth Granville, Daughter of Charles Lord Lanſdown; died Sept. 18, 1689, aged 25 Years.

Bridget Herbert, Daughter of James Herbert, Eſq; April 13, 1692, aged eleven Years.

THESE were the Leaden Coffins; beſides which were two or three wooden ones broken to Pieces, Anno 1713, not unlikely, Sir George Villiers's, and Lady Norris's, 1645; and there was the Leaden Coffin of the Lady Mary Beaumont, Mother to the great Duke of Buckingham, that was ſtabb'd by Felton.

LADY Anne Charlotte Bagenal, buried the 13th of March 1712-13. On her Right Side lies the Lady Barbara Fielding, Wife of Baſil, Lord Viſcount Fielding, died April 2, 1641.

LADY Archibald Hamilton, was interr'd here on the 4th of April 1719; which Coffin filled the Vault. Before we leave this Chapel, 'tis to be noted, that Biſhop Sprat's Coffin joins the Foundation; and to anſwer the Height of that, a Brick Wall was built on his Left Hand, and at eighteen Inches above the Coffin-lid was laid thick Plank. The Inſcription on his Plate was thus: Thomas Epiſcopus Roffenſis hujus Eccleſiæ Dec. obiit 20. Maii 1713.

CHAPEL of St. PAUL.

Devereux, Earl of Eſſex, and General on the Rebels Side againſt King Charles I. and for ſome Time the Darling of the Presbyterian Faction, afterwards being much ſlighted by the Army and Independents, he reſigned his Commiſſion, and, in a retired diſconſolate Manner, ended his Life, on the 14th of September 1647, as ſome ſuſpected, of Poiſon. The Two Houſes of Parliament, ſo called, attended his Funeral, towards which, they ordered 5000 l. to be paid. He was pompouſly buried the 22d of October following, and a Hearſe erected for him in the South Croſs, which was afterwards, by Cromwell's Soldiers, defaced, his Effigies hack'd to Pieces, and his Spurs and Atchievements torn down.

Ezekiel, Baron of Spanheim, Ambaſſador from the King of Pruſſia, and Reſident here nine Years; famous for Medal-learning, and his Books De præſtantia & uſu numiſmatum antiquorum. He died by diſlodging a Stone, through Means of a violent Vomiting, on the 20th of November 1710, in the 81ſt Year of his Age.

LADY Elizabeth, Baroneſs of Spanheim, Wife to the before-mentioned, buried here Jan. 19, 1707-8.

Anne Ferrers, Widow of John Ferrers, Eſq; buried in a Coffin of Lead the 5th of May 1715, aged 90 Years.

Sir Henry Bellaſyſe, Anno 1717; and at Lady Spanheim's Head lies Mary Bellaſyſe.

CHAPEL of St. JOHN BAPTIST.

LORD Viſcount Ranelagh, died Jan. 5. 1711, and was buried here on the 5th following; aged 71 Years; and near him his Lady.

John, Earl of Cherbury, on the Left Side Lady Ranelagh, buried Jan. 16, 1713.

ISLIP's, or the CHAPEL of St. ERASMUS.

AT the Entrance of which was ſome Time buried, Anne Dutcheſs of York, ſole Daughter to John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, married to Richard Duke of York, Son to King Edw. IV. and Brother to (and murthered in the Tower with) King Edward V. She was married to him at his third Year of Age.

Mrs. Jane Hatton.

THE Right Honourable the Earl of Falmouth, killed in the Dutch Wars, on board the Duke of York's Ship, by one fatal Shot, which at the ſame Time ſlew the Lord Muskerry, and the Honourable Mr. Boyle. The ſhattered Ruins of this brave Man were afterwards interred here, Anno 1665.

St. JOHN EVANGELIST.

NEAR the Tomb of Burroughs lies another brave Soldier of the ſame Name, viz. Sir John Burroughs, a famous Engliſh Officer under the Duke of Buckingham, in King Charles I's Time. He was, in the Iſle of Rhea, beſieging the Citadel of St. Martin's, ſlain by a Musket Shot from thence, as he was viewing the Works, on the 20th of September 1627.

Sir Edward Sprague, another brave Man, as famous at Sea as any it has carried; he was by King Charles II. appointed Envoy in the Affairs of the Netherlands to the Conſtable of Caſtile. He was in the famous Dutch Fight, 1673, where finding his Ship diſabled, and going to another in order to board Van Tromp, with the Earl of Oſſory, the Boat he was in was ſhatter'd to Pieces, and he drowned in the Sea. It was ſaid, when he left the King, he told his Majeſty he would bring Tromp alive or dead, or periſh in the Attempt; which happened accordingly: His Name was long formidable to the Dutch, and one of their Writers has lately given him the Character of the braveſt Admiral England ever had.

John Duke of Newcaſtle, on the Left Hand of the Earl of Oxford, Auguſt the 9th, 1711, of whom hereafter.

Mr. Keep ſums up theſe antient Burials in this Chapel, viz. Thomas the firſt Lord Wentworth, Richard Knevet, Eſq; one of the Gentlemen Penſioners to Queen Elizabeth, who died on the firſt Day of November, Anno 1559. Sir Edward Rogers, Knt. Comptroller of the Houſhold likewiſe to Queen Elizabeth, who died Anno 1590. Elizabeth, the Daughter of Sir John Forteſcue, Kt. who died May 21, 1597.

The CHAPEL of St. MICHAEL.

IN this Chapel is ſaid to have been buried Sir William Truſſel, Knt. a powerful Stateſman in the Times of King Edward II. and III. In the 15th of the former's Reign he adhered to Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, and in his 20th was baniſhed. He attended Queen Iſabel into England, with other Malecontents, and was appointed, in the Name of the People, to depoſe Edward II. which he impudently did, by renouncing his Allegiance to him. After the Murder of that King he was made Eſcheator-General on this Side Trent; but being ſtill meddling, he oppoſed his Brother-Rebel Mortimer, and was forced to fly; but after his Fall, viz. the 4th of King Edward III. was reſtored to his Place: He was Conſtable of Beaumares in Angleſey, Commiſſioner to treat with France, the 9th of King Edward III. and had 1000 Marks given him. In the 13th of King Edward III. he was Admiral of the Royal Navy; was in an Expedition in Flanders and Scotland; and in the 15th was ſummoned as Baron; he was Ambaſſador to France, the 20th of King Edward III. and was one one that ſate with Thorpe, Chief Juſtice, on the Trials of the Earls of Fife and Monteth. When he died is uncertain.

SINCE his Time theſe following have been buried here, viz.

Sir Hugh Vaughan, Knt. with Anne his Wife, who was the Daughter of Henry Earl of Northumberland, and Widow of Thomas Hungerford.

Sir Thomas Wharton, Knt. afterwards Lord Wharton, who married the Daughter of Robert Earl of Suſſex, and was buried here, Anno 1572.

Elizabeth the Wife of Sir John Boom, Knt. Secretary to Queen Mary; ſhe died on the 22d of June, Anno 1576.

IN this Chapel alſo was buried Arabella, Viſcounteſs of Dunganon, 1709.

The CHAPEL of St. ANDREW's:

In the Area are theſe buried following:

Edward Earl of Jerſey, Maſter of the Horſe to Queen Mary, and Preſident of the Houſhold, died Auguſt 26, 1711, and was buried September 4, aged 56 Years. He lies over-againſt St. John Baptiſt's Chapel.

Henry Gee, Son of the Reverend Dr. Gee, eleven Feet within the Gates, at the Head of Brown the Monk's Tomb, buried April 9, 1689. There is likewiſe buried there another of his Children.

Sir Edward Villiers, Knt. on the Left Side joining the Earl of Jerſey.

Edward Earl of Clarendon, Lord Chancellor of England, and the moſt excellent Hiſtorian of the late Times, who for his firm Religion, unſhaken Loyalty, ſincere Love of his Country, unbiaſſed Integrity, and univerſal Humanity and Munificence, was (after ſerving the martyr'd Father in his Affliction, conducting the exiled Son and reſtoring him, preſerving his Country's Privileges, after the Reſtoration, and mitigating the juſt Diſpleaſure of the King againſt the Rebels) by that very Prince he had ſerved, that Country he had preſerved, and thoſe Factions he had with Lenity endeavour'd to moderate, rewarded with Baniſhment in his old Age. He died of the Gout at Rhoan in Normandy.

Edward Hyde, third Son of the Chancellor, Student of Chriſt-Church in Oxon; he died of the Small-Pox, on the 10th of —— 1664, aged 19 Years.

LADY Hyde, Daughter of the Lord Hyde, buried in Lead, Nov. 2, 1709, near the former.

Henry, Earl of Clarendon, Son of the Chancellor, Nov. 4, aged ſeventy-two Years; in the ſame Place.

LADY Henrietta Hyde, July 5, 1710, in Lead, at the Foot of the ſame Stairs.

Laurence, Earl of Rocheſter, another Son of the Chancellor, died May 2, 1711, and was buried in Lead the 10th following, between his Daughter Henrietta, and Henry Earl of Clarendon his Brother; aged 69 Years.

Edward Lord Clifton, died Feb. 12, 1713-14, and was buried on the 26th following, on the Left Side of the Chancellor.

LADY Clifton, buried Aug. 5, 1722, out of the Jeruſalem Chamber. She lies adjoining the Lord Clifton. On her Coffin-Plate is this Inſcription: The Right Honourable, and moſt Noble Lady, Theodoſia, Baroneſs Cliſton, of Leighton Bromswold, died July 30, 1722, in the 26th Year of her Age.

Edward, Earl of Clarendon, Son of the Chancellor, was buried at the Foot of the ſame Stairs, near his Father, in a Leaden Coffin; there remains Room for no more in that Place.

Arthur, Earl of Torrington, died the 22d of April, 1716, aged 67 Years, and lies in the South of the Area.

Robert, Lord Biſhop of Sarum, near the Graves of Cranfield, Earl of Middleſex.

Anne Buxhall, Daughter of Sir Allan Buxhall, Knt. Lieutenant of the Tower, one of Haule's Murderers. She was married to Sir John Beverly, Knt. and dying Anno 1416, was buried near St. Edmond's Chapel Door, and near her, the ſaid Sir John Beverly, her Husband.

SOUTH-CROSS.

OUR beginning this Survey being at the Door entering this Church into the South-Croſs, one Side of it, in our Way, hath already been deſcribed; returning therefore, we proceed on the other Sides, till we enter the North Iſle, &c. And in this Cemitery of Men of Learning, who honour this Pile (though without Tombs to point them out) more than the ſplendid and more magnificent Monuments of Dead Greatneſs, or Living Vanity, we ſhall be the more particular, and ſhew them at one View, that the Reader may, with the greater Reverence, enter this Part of the Church, and contemplate the better upon what a Variety of Literature he treads at every Step, and raiſe from hence a plain Proof, that this Church affords great Characters with no Monuments, and great Monuments with no Characters.

Firſt then, in our Way as we paſs by Dryden's Tomb, the Pavement adjoining as you go into St. Benedict's Chapel, covers the Aſhes of Francis Beaumont, the Dramatick Writer, who aſſiſted John Fletcher, in compoſing that Number of Plays that go under their Names. He was much complimented by the Poets of that Time, as Cuſtomary, from which, and his Plays, the Reader may know more of him. He died in LONDON the Beginning of March, 1615, and was buried here the 9th, without Tomb or Inſcription.

NEAR Chaucer's Tomb was buried Nicho. Brigham, who erected that Monument over him, a Gentlemen equally valuable for his Knowledge in Poetry, Hiſtory, and the Municipal Laws; he publiſhed a Book intituled, De venationibus rerum memorabilium, (from which Bale has borrowed much) and other miſcellaneous Pieces, Poems, &c. He died at Weſtminſter in December 1559, and is ſuppoſed to be here buried; nor is it improbable, ſince in his Life he buried his Daughter Rachel here, a Child of four Years old, as appears by this Inſcription, viſible in Mr. Camden's Time, but now gone:

Unica quæ fueram proles ſpeſque alma parentum,
Hoc Rachel Brigham condita ſum tumulo.
Vixi Annos quatuor, menſibus tribus diebus quatuor horis 15.

PASSING hence to the South Weſt Angle of this Croſs, over five or ſix antient Stones ſtripped of their Braſs Plates, and only known by Conjecture, of which hereafter, lies buried, without Memorial inſcribed, Sir Robert Stapylton, a remarkable Poet in the Time of King Charles the Firſt, whoſe Cauſe he followed, and for whom he ſuffered in the Times of Uſurpation: Upon King Charles II. being reſtored, was made one of the Gentlemen-Uſhers of the Privy Chamber; he wrote ſeveral Comedies, tranſlated

Juvenal

Juvenal and other Pieces, and died the 11th of July, 1669.

AGAINST the Weſt Wall of this Croſs, is a Monument of white Marble, raiſed to the Memory of Dr. Outram. The Inſcription in Engliſh is thus: Near this Place lies William Outram, D. D. born in Derbyſhire, Fellow of Trinity and Chriſt College in Cambridge, Canon of this Church, and Archdeacon of Leiceſter, a deep and finiſhed Divine in all Reſpects, a nervous and accurate Writer an excellent and conſtant Preacher, firſt in Lincolnſhire, afterwards at LONDON, and at length at St. Margaret's, Weſtminſter, where he finiſhed his Courſe of Life with great Applauſe, and no leſs Succeſs; but in ſo great Labours and Intenſeneſs of Mind, he being ſo inflamed with the Study of Scripture and the Holy Father's, grew much diſtempered with the Gravel, with which being long afflicted, and at length worn out, he ended his Life with the utmoſt Compoſure of Mind, Aug. 23, Anno Dom. 1679, having compleated his 54th Year.

AFTER a long and religious Courſe of Life, and 42 Years of Widowhood, here reſts Jane, Wife of Dr. William Outram, who for a well-regulated Life, Piety to GOD, Sincerity to Friends, Charity to the Poor, was eſteemed by Heaven, dear to many, admired by all. She died October 4, 1721.

ON a Grave-Stone: GULIELMUS OUTRAM, S. T. P. hujus Eccleſiæ Canonicus Jana Outram. Obiit 4th Octobris, 1721.

ON a Grave-Stone on the Right Side the other: H. S. E. Depoſitum Reverendi admodum in Chriſto patris Edwardi Wetenhal S. P. T. primo Corrugienſis, An. 20. Deinde Kilmorienſis & Ardaghenſis, An. 14. in Regno Epiſcopi Hibernia, ob. Nov. 12. An. Dom. 1713. Ætatis ſuæ 78, i. e. Here lies buried the late Reverend Father in Chriſt, Edward Wetenhal, D. D. firſt Biſhop of Cork in Ireland 20 Years, afterwards of Kilmore and Roſs 14 Years. He died the 12th of November 1713, aged 78.

IN a Grave near was buried his Lady, who died the 18th of April, 1717, and on her Coffin was laid Robert Freind, a Child, Son of Dr. Freind, Prebendary of this Church, and Maſter of the School, which Child died Anno 1722.

ON the ſame Line with Wetenhal's, is a Monument erected to the Memory of Dr. Grabe, who publiſhed an Edition of the Septuagint, with Notes. This Monument was raiſed at the Expence of a noble Peer, and has on it the Doctor's Effigies of Marble, ſitting, indeed in an odd Poſture. The Author of A Critical Review of the Publick Buildings has the following Remark upon this extraordinary Statue: "Elevated on a "high Sort of Funeral Cheſt, with a Lamp on "his Side, and open in his Hand to repreſent, "I ſuppoſe, his unwearied Application to Study "in his Life-time; but then the ridiculous "Height of the Statue, the Clumſineſs of the "Attitude, and the Oddneſs of the Employ, "never fail to excite Laughter in all who be-"hold them: In ſhort, he looks like a Boy on a "high Joint-ſtool, kicking his Heels about, and "afraid of tumbling every Moment.

ON the Left Side, adjoining Dr. Outram, on a Blue Grave-ſtone: Hic ſitus eſt Thomas Chiffinch Sereniſſimi Caroli Secundi a teneris annis in utraque fortuna fidus aſſecla ac proinde a regiis cimeliis primo conſtitutus. Vir notiſſimi candoris & probitatis. Obiit vi. Id. April. An. Dom. 1666. i. e. Here lies Thomas Chiffinch, a faithful Page of the ſerene Charles II. in either Fortune. A Man of known Candour and Probity. He died the 6th of the Ides of April 1666.

NEAR the Feet of which, diſtinguiſhed by a ſmall White Stone a Foot ſquare, and thus inſcribed, [O rare Sir William Davenant,] lies that once noted Poet; he was Son of John Davenant, a Vintner at Oxford, where he was born in Feb. 1605-6, his Father being then Mayor of that City; his Mother was a Woman of good Wit and agreeable Converſation, which occaſioned a Reſort of the Polite Men to their Houſe; among whom Shakeſpear is ſaid to take up his Lodging frequently. His Education was in Lincoln College; after leaving which he became firſt Servant to Frances Dutcheſs of Richmond, and next to Fulk Lord Brook; after whoſe Death he took to writing Plays, and grew acquainted with Endymion Porter, Henry Jermain, and Sir John Suckling. This Sir William was Poet-Laureat to King Charles I. upon Ben. Johnſon's Death, but had the Misfortune to make no graceful Appearance in that Station, having loſt his Noſe by an odd Accident, for which he was cruelly banter'd by the Wits of that Time. In the Year 1641 he was accuſed of ſeducing the Army againſt the Parliament; upon which he was ſeiz'd at Feverſham in Kent; but being afterwards bailed, he fled into France. In 1643, he was Knighted at the Siege of Glouceſter; but the King's Cauſe declining, he went again into France, at which Time he wrote his Gondibert; afterwards being taken at Sea by the Parliament Ships, he was committed Priſoner to the Iſle of Wight, thence removed to the Tower of LONDON, in order to be try'd for his Life by the High Court of Juſtice; but at Milton's Interceſſion, he eſcaped. At length, having lived to ſee the Stage flouriſh after the Reſtoration, he died in his 63d Year, in his Houſe in Little Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, Anno 1668, and was two Days after buried in this Place, whence his Antagoniſt, May, had not long before been removed. He was ſucceeded as Laureat by Mr. Dryden.

NEXT is a Monument of White Marble, with a Buſto for Dr. Iſaac Barrow, Head of Trinity College, Cambridge. He travelled into ſeveral Countries, and learned many Languages; in 1660 choſen Greek Profeſſor of that Univerſity, and two Years after, Geometry Profeſſor in Greſham College; in 1672, elected Maſter of Trinity. See his Life before his Works, publiſhed by Archbiſhop Tillotſon. The Inſcription on his Monument is in Engliſh, viz.

Iſaac Barrow, D. D. Chaplain to King Charles I.
A Man well nigh Divine and truly Great,
Of Piety, Honeſty, Sincerity, great Learning,
and as great Modeſty,
Strictneſs of Life, and Sweetneſs of Temper.
Geometry Profeſſor of Greſham College in LONDON, and of Greek and Mathematicks at Cambridge,
And was an Ornament to all his Places, his Church and Country.
He adorned Trinity College, while Head of it, and much enlarg'd the Royal Library there,
Wealth, Honours, and the general Purſuits of Life,
He, born for greater Ends, deſpis'd not, but reſign'd to the World.
God whom from his Childhood he had ſerved,
He in the ſtricteſt Manner imitated, in wanting little,
and doing Good to many, and even to Poſterity, to whom, even dead, he now preaches.

What

What further and more excellent you would know concerning him may be found in his Writings.
Reader, go thy Way and imitate him.
He died the 4th of May, Anno 1677, aged 47 Years.
His Friends erected this Monument.

BETWEEN the Baſis of Dr. Barrow's Monument, and the Range of Pillars, lies buried another Mathematician, viz. Sir Robert Murrey, Knt. Secretary of State for Scotland, and Privy Counſellor for that Kingdom to King Charles II. He was one of the Contrivers of the Royal Society, and firſt Preſident of it; and, ſays a late Writer, while he lived, he was the Life and Soul of that Body. He was skilled in Chimiſtry, and a great Admirer of the Roſy-cruſians, and had a Genius like Peiriski, as deſcribed by Gaſſandus. He was well verſed in experimental Philoſophy; and being a great Favourite with King Charles II. and having a Pavilion in the Garden at Whitehall, he died there ſuddenly, on the 4th of July, 1673, and was buried here at the King's Expence.

ON a Grave-ſtone farther Eaſt, and at ſome Diſtance from the Door of St. Blaſe's Chapel, lies William Barnaby, Eſq; died November 8, 1716, in the 23d Year of his Age.

ON a Grave-ſtone adjoining: T. Car, obiit 7 die Junii, Anno Domini 1712. Ætat 93.

Old Parr. NEAR theſe, under a ſquare Stone, lies Parr, the Neſtor of our Land, with this Inſcription: Thomas Parr, of the County of Salop, born in Anno 1483. He lived in the Reigns of Ten Princes, viz. King Edward IV. King Edward V. King Richard III. King Henry VII. King Henry VIII. King Edward VI. Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, King James, and K. Charles. Aged 152 Years, and was buried here Nov. 15, 1635.

ON the Right Side of which Stone is Mr. Rowe, the late Poet-Laureat, buried five Feet below the Pavement, on Friday Dec. 19, 1718.

BEFORE the Door going into the hither Veſtry lies buried Chriſtopher Sutton, ſome Time Vicar of Ranceham in Eſſex, Parſon of Caſton in Hampſhire, of Woodriſing in Norfolk, of Murley-Bromley in Eſſex; and laſtly of Cranworth in Norfolk; and, for his florid and excellent Preaching, made Prebendary of this Church by King James I. This Gentleman preached Mr. Camden's Funeral Sermon, he publiſhed ſeveral Tracts of Divinity, and, dying in May or June, 1629, was here buried, having bequeathed 5 l. to the Gentlemen of the Choir.

THE next Monument we meet with, is, adjoining North to Dr. Barrow's, of white Marble, to commemorate Dr. Triplet, ſome Time Prebendary of this Church. This Gentleman was born near Oxford, and educated in the College of Chriſt-Church in that Univerſity, where he was eſteemed a Wit, a good Grecian, and a Poet. In the Year 1645, he was made Prebendary of Preſton, in the Church of Sarum, and had likewiſe a Benefice; but being ſequeſtered in the Rebellion, he taught School at Dublin in Ireland, where he was when King Charles was Beheaded. He afterwards removed to Hays in Middleſex, where he taught till the Reſtauration, at which Time he was made Prebendary of this Church, and of Fenton in the Church of York. The Inſcription on his Monument is thus tranſlated:

Here reſteth the Reverend Dr. Thomas Triplet of Oxfordſhire,
Prebendary of this Church,
Who having for 70 Years approv'd himſelf for Piety and Devotion to God, and uncommon Knowledge of the Greek Language, Munificence to Men of Learning, and Charity to the Poor, and with innocent Chearfulneſs in Converſation made himſelf dear to all Men.
Paſs'd from this Life to a better on the 18th of July, Anno Dom. 1670.

NEXT adjoining is a Table Monument of White Marble for Sir Richard Cox, Knt. Taſter to Queen Elizabeth, and King James I. to the latter of which he was Steward of the Houſhold; a Man commended in his Epitaph for his Religion, Humanity, Chaſtity, Temperance, Friendſhip, Beneficence, Charity, Juſtneſs, &c. He died a Batchelor, aged 60, on the 13th of December 1623. The Epitaph follows in Engliſh, thus:

To the Great and Good God.
Here reſteth in the Lord Richard Cox of Porters, Knight,
Third Son of Thomas Cox of Beymonds in the County of Hereford, Eſq;
Servant in the Royal Palace for many Years,
And approved for his Fidelity, Diligence and Prudence, Taſter to Queen Elizabeth and King James;
To the latter of which he was, at length, made Steward of the Houſhold, a Man of pure Religion, Social Behaviour, Chaſtity of Body, temperate in his Deſires, loving to his Friends, beneficent to the Poor,
charitable to all, juſt in his Dealings.
In the 60th of his Age, being unmarried,
After having prepared himſelf for a better Life,
by much Vigilance, Self-denial,
He chearfully reſign'd his Soul to God
the 13th Day of December. 1623.
John Cox of Beymonds, Eſq; 2d Brother and Heir, hath as a Teſtament of his Love,
erected this Monument.

AT ſome Diſtance from the Baſis of this Eaſtward, is a large Stone of Grey Marble, with an Inſcription round the Ledge, in Saxon Characters; the Manner of it is very antient, but broken Letters, by no Means to be connected.

AT ſome Diſtance Eaſt, lies —— Harſtal, B. D.

ON a Grave-ſtone adjoining North, Dame Mary Steel, Wife of Sir Richard Steel, Knt. Daughter and ſole Heireſs to Jonathan Scurlock, Eſq; of the County of Caermarthen, died December 26, 1718, aged 40 Years; leaving Iſſue one Son and two Daughters, Eugene, Elizabeth, and Mary.

ON a Grave-ſtone adjoining North: Hic jacet Gulielmus Craig, A. M. hujus Eccleſiæ Prebendarius, obiit 10 die Febr. 1720.

ON another near the Weſt Wall: "Here lieth "the Body of John Osbaldiſton, of Leland in the "County of Lancaſter, Eſq; Page of the Bed-"chamber to King Charles II. He died the 1ſt "of March 1666, and was buried the 3d Day of "the ſame Month, aged 55 Years.

AND near it, againſt the Weſt Wall, adjoining to Cox's Monument, is one of White Marble erected, in Honour of that profound Scholar and admirable Critick, Iſaac Caſaubon: He was Library-keeper to the King of France, afterwards invited by King James I. into England. His Writings and Character are univerſally known. He died 1614, aged 55. This Monument was erected by Dr. Moreton, Biſhop of Durham, with its Epitaph, as follows:

ISAAC CASAUBON.

Ye Men of Learning riſe with Reſpect
To this ſo venerable a Name
Whom Gallia produced for the Good of the learned World:
And Henry IV. the powerful King of France call'd from his Studies,
And made Keeper of the Royal Library at Paris, and while he lived ever eſteemed him.
After his Murder, King James, Monarch of Great Britain, the moſt learned of the Kings, and moſt indulgent to learned Men, Invited him to England and munificently encourag'd, and whom Poſterity will ever admire for Learning.
Here he lies ſuperior to Envy,
Breathing out his Soul in Chriſt. He enter'd into Eternity, on the Kal. of July 1614. aged 55 Years.
To this moſt excellent Man, well worthy Immortal.
Thomas Moreton Biſhop of Durham, pleaſed with the Memory of his Converſation erected.
He that would know Caſaubon, let him not read Monuments but Books, Superior to Marble and more uſeful to Poſterity.

NEAR the Corner, going into the South Iſle, is a Monument of White Marble, with a Demy Effigies, and the Inſcription thus in Engliſh:

WILLIAM CAMDEN,

Who illuſtrated the Britiſh Antiquities,
by antient Truth, and indefatigable Induſtry, and adorned his innate Simplicity with uſeful Literature,
And illuſtrated his Pleaſantneſs of Humour with Candor and Sincerity, lies here quiet, in Hope, of a certain Reſurrection in Chriſt.
He died the 9th of November 1623.
Aged 74 Years.

OF this Father of our Antiquities, take this Account: His Father was one Sampſon Camden, Citizen and Painter-Stainer of LONDON, in which City this William was born, in the Old Bailey, on the 2d of May 1551. His firſt Education, i. e. of Reading, was in Chriſt-Church Hoſpital, then newly founded, afterwards at St. Paul's School, whence he was ſent to Magdalen College in Oxford, Anno 1566, where he was a Choriſter; there meeting with Diſappointment, he was removed to Broadgates, now Pembroke College; afterwards he grew in Favour with Dr. Goodman, Dean of this Church; and in 1575 he was made Maſter of the School of this Abbey, about which Time he proſecuted his Search into Antiquities, incited thereto by Dr. Goodman. In 1588 he was made Prebendary of Ilfarcomb, in the Church of Salisbury, which he kept till his Death. In March 1593, he was made head Maſter of Weſtminſter School. In 1596, he was made Richmond Herald, and the next Day Clarencieux King at Arms. Anno 1619, being then dangerouſly ill, he founded his Hiſtory-Lecture at Oxford. In Auguſt 1622, he fell from his Chair, and never recover'd, dying at his Houſe at Chiſſelhurſt in Kent, on Sunday the 9th of November 1623, about Four or Five in the Morning; whence he was carried to his Houſe at Weſtminſter, where he lay in State ſome Time; and was thence brought to this Church. His Monument was defaced in 1646, when the Hearſe and Effigies of Robert Earl of Eſſex, the Parliament-General, were cut in Pieces and defaced.

IN this Croſs are two Tablet Monuments affixed to the Pillars, the firſt to Dr. Barton, Prebendary of this Church, who died 1715, aged 68. The Inſcription is in Engliſh, thus:

Near this Column lies
The mortal Remains of SAMUEL BARTON, D.D.
Prebendary of this Collegiate Church.
What he was, learn in few Words,
A Man of remarkable Genius, Learning,
Honeſty and Piety,
And laſtly, an unfeign'd Love for his Church and Country.
He died 18 Kal. of Septemb. 1715.
Aged 68.

THE other for Dr. ANTHONY HORNECK, born at Wittemberg in Zealand, and educated at Queen's College, Oxford; King's Divinity Profeſſor, Prebendary of this Church, and Preacher at the Savoy. He died 1696, aged 56 Years: The Epitaph in Engliſh, thus:

To the laſting Memory of
ANTHONY HORNECK, D.D.
Chaplain to the King, and Canon of this Church,
A Man of the firſt Rank for Learning and Education, but chiefly
For remarkable Zeal to God and Religion,
Holineſs of Life, Gravity of Manners,
Deeds of Humanity to ſeveral in Diſtreſs,
And in Sickneſs. Indefatigable Pains in Preaching at St. Mary Savoy 26 Years.
Sermons which wonderfully abounded
With that primitive Piety, and ſtrict Severity, and ſmooth florid Oratory, which was famous far and near, and procured him great Fame from all good Men.
worn out with great Pains,
Which he went through, in Diſcharge of his Duty.
He fell ill of the Stone,
and dy'd of that Malady,
Reſign'd his moſt pure Soul to Heaven,
the laſt of January 1696
Aged 56.

ON a Grave-ſtone near the former: Richard Lucas, D.D. Prebendary of this Church, died the 29th of June, A.D. 1715, in the 67th Year of his Age.

ON a Grave-ſtone: Here lieth the Body of Samuel Bolton, Doctor in Divinity, Chaplain in Ordinary to his Majeſty Charles II. and Prebendary of this Cathedral Church, deceaſed the 11th of February 1688.

ON a Graveſtone adjoining to the Partition of the Choir: "Here lieth interr'd the Body of "Major Henry Carr, one of the Gentlemen "Uſhers, and Daily Waiter to King Charles II. "and King James II. He married Venetia, "ſole Daughter and Heir of Edward Carrew, "Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue one Son Henry, "and four Daughters, viz. Elizabeth, Anna, "Sophia, Anna Maria, and Carrew. He de-"ſcended from that Right and Honourable and "antient Family of the Earls of Ancram, a pious "Chriſtian, faithful Husband, tender Father. "He changed this Life for a better the 25th of "Auguſt, Anno 1690. Ætatis ſuæ 38. Re-"ſurgam.

THESE are all the Monuments and Graveſtones now viſible in this Croſs.

IN the Chapel of St. Blaſe, lies buried Owen Tudor, third Son of Owen Tudor, and Queen Catharine, Widow to King Henry V. died a Monk of this Convent. Mr. Keep, by Miſtake, calls him Edmond.

SIR

Sir James Allen, ſaid by Keep to be a great Commander in the Netherlands.

William Heywood, D. D. Chaplain to Archbiſhop Laud, afterwards to King Charles I. Rector of St. Giles's and Canon in the 5th Stall in this Choir, ejected by the Long-Parliament Commiſſioners, impriſoned in ſeveral Priſons, and in the Ships himſelf, Wife and Children, expoſed to great Want, and forced to teach a little School in Wiltſhire for Bread, 'till at the Reſtoration he had again his Preferments, and ended his Days in perfect Peace and Happineſs. He was a good Scholar and a good Preacher; and dying in July 1663, he was buried near the Bottom of the Pulpit Stairs: And near him, John Heywood, A. M. Fellow of Oriel-College, Son of the Doctor, died February 22, 1688.

James Lamb, D. D. Prebendary of this Church, and Rector of St. Andrew's Holborn, a great Maſter of the Oriental Languages, of which he left four Treatiſes, three in Arabick and one in Syriack, late in the Bodleian Library. He died 1664, and was buried near the ſame Place.

William Heither, Doctor of Muſick, Gentleman of the King's Chapel, Founder of the Muſick Lectures in the Univerſity of Oxford, buried the 1ſt of Auguſt, 1627, in this Croſs.

Lambert Osbaldſtone, D. D. Maſter of Weſtminſter School, a great Man in School Learning, but unhappy in a Virulence of Temper, which, by Dean Williams's Inſtigation, he expreſſed againſt Archbiſhop Laud, in ſuch Manner that he was ſentenced to ſtand in the Pillory, to pay 5000 l. and ſtripped of all his Spiritualities; but he fled, and was afterwards, by the Parliament, reſtored to his Prebendary; but diſliking their Proceedings, lived retired, and died in October, 1659, and was buried near the Poor's Table.

Francis Durant de Brival, D. D. and Prebendary of this Church, was buried Jan. 29, 1707-8, nine Feet below the Pillar with Dr. Horneck's Monument.

Dr. Birch, Prebendary, died July 4, 1710, aged 63, near St. Bennet's Chapel, at the Feet of his firſt Wife, and a ſecond Wife of the Doctor's.

Theodore Gunter, Eſq; died on the 22d of Jan. 1713, on the left Side of Mr. Burnaby.

The Reverend Mr. James Sartrens, Prebendary, on Sept. 5, 1713.

The Right Reverend Charles Henchman, Lord Biſhop of Londonderry, was interred here Dec. 5, 1713, aged 65.

John Leſter, Eſq; the 8th of March, 1714-15, on the Right Side Horneck, aged 79 Years.

Honourable Madam Jane Berkley, June 25, 1718, aged 77 Years.

Baron Schulenburg, buried from the Jeruſalem Chamber, on his Coffin was affixed a Plate with this Inſcription: Fredrici Willielmi Liben, Baronis de Sculenberg, Denati in Palatio Regii 3 Jan. An. 1720. Ætatis 37.

Several antient Monuments there are, but the Plates and Inſcriptions being torn off, there is no naming them.

The SOUTH-ISLE.

In which, between the Corner of the South-Croſs and Entrance into the Cloiſter, is a curious Monument of fine Marble, in Memory of Sophia, Counteſs of Anandale; which Lady was buried under a broken Stone near the Poor's Table. The Monument with the Epitaph thus tranſlated:

" Sacred to the eternal Memory of the moſt
" rare Matron, the Lady Sophia Fairholm, Marchioneſs of Anandale, born in Scotland, whoſe
" Elegance of Senſe and Behaviour contended
" for Preference, with an excellent and beautiful Form of Body; renowned for the Praiſes
" of the Mother and Wife, ſo diligent a Governeſs in her Family, that ſhe ſuſtained the " Weight of her Family Affairs with a manly " Conduct equal to it; adorned with ſuch and
" ſo many Virtues, that ſhe finiſhed a Life
" admired by all, by a Death univerſally la" mented. This Monument, as a Token of " Duty and Gratitude, is erected by her af" flicted Son, James Johnſtoune, her eldeſt Son,
" Marqueſs of Anandale. She died Dec. 13.
" Anno Dom. 1716, aged 49.

Here alſo, by Direction of the aforeſaid Marquis, are buried the Reliques of the Lord William Johnſtoune, his dear Brother, ſecond Son of the aforeſaid Marchioneſs, who died Dec. 24, 1721, aged 26 Years.

Opposite to which is an antient Monument of Marble and Alabaſter, gilt, repreſenting a Warrior lying at length on a Quilt. Which Statue is to repreſent William Thynne of Botteville, Eſq; a polite Gentleman, a Traveller, and a brave Soldier in the Reign of King Henry VIII. by which Prince he was, in the Year 1546, made Receiver of the Marches. The latter Part of his Life was ſpent in Retirement and Devotion in this Church, whither he conſtantly repaired Morning and Evening. His Brother was Sir John Thynne, Secretary to the Duke of Somerſet, from whom deſcended that unhappy Gentleman of the ſame Name, whoſe Monument we ſhall ſpeak of ſhortly. The Epitaph on this Monument is thus:

" Here lies William Thynne, Eſq; Brother of
" Sir John Thynne, Kt. deſcended from the an-" tient Family of the Botteviles, who, in his " Youth travelled to moſt Parts of Europe, fought
" againſt the Scots at Muſſelborough with un" daunted Courage: At length, enfeebled with " Age, he went to ſleep in the Lord, the 14th " Day of March, 1584. John Chamberlain of " Preſtbury, Eſq; to his moſt dear Kinſman, hath
" erected this Monument.

Chriſt is my Life, and Death is my Gain, Phil. i. The Day of Death is the Birth-Day of eternal Life.

On the Weſt Side of the Cloiſter-Door, on a ſmall oval Tablet fixed to the Wall: " Near
" theſe Steps lies the Body of Mrs. Anne Wemys, Daughter of Dr. Lodowick Wemys, ſome " Time Prebendary of this Cathedral; and of " Mrs. Jane Bargrave his Wife, who departed
" this Life the 19th Day of December, in the " 67th Year of her Age, 1698.

Opposite to this Cloiſter-Door, and againſt the Back of the Choir, next to Thynne's, is a large and noble Monument of black Marble, on which is the Effigies of a Judge in his Robes, with a Collar of SS's. repreſenting Sir Thomas Richardſon, Kt. Speaker of the Houſe of Commons in the 21ſt and 22d Years of King James I. Chief Juſtice of the Court of and Common-Pleas; and laſtly, by King Charles I. made Lord Chief Juſtice of England. He died 1634, in the 66th Year of his Age. This is the Subſtance of his Epitaph. This is that Judge Richardſon, who, to pleaſe the Faction of his Time, iſſued out an Order againſt the antient Cuſtom of Wakes, and ordered every Miniſter to read it in his Church. This Incroachment on the Eccleſiaſtical Authority, was complained of by the Biſhop of Bath and Wells, and a Certificate was ſigned by ſeventy of the ableſt Clergy of the Dioceſs, to prove prove the Antiquity and Inoffenſiveneſs of thoſe Diverſions, which being ſent, a Biſhop reported it at the Council Table, where Richardſon was ſo ſeverely reprimanded, that he came out complaining he had almoſt been choaked with a Pair of Lawn Sleeves. This Step was the Means of the Book of Sports, ſo fatal to that good unhappy Prelate.

NEXT to this Weſtward, and divided from it by one of the Pillars, is a handſome Monument of white and veined Marble, on which are two Buſtos in Relieve, repreſenting Judith and Elizabeth Freke, with the following Inſcription thereon:

" Near this Place lyes all that is mortal of " Elizabeth and Judith, Daughters of Ralph " Freke of Hannington in Wiltſhire, Eſq; by Ce- " cilia his Wife, Daughter of Sir Thomas Cole- " peper of Hollingbourn in Kent.

" Elizabeth was married to Piercy Freke of " Weſt Bilney in Norfolk, Eſq; and was the Mo- " ther of Sir Ralph Freke, Bart. deceaſed, the " Father of a flouriſhing Poſterity there. She " was of excellent Life, frugal to be Munificent, " a lively Chriſtian Pattern of Charity and Self- " Denial. She dyed April 7th, 1714, aged 69 " Years.

" Judith was the Wife of Robert Auſtin, of " Tenterden in Kent, Eſq; and the Mother of " a very conſiderable and hopeful Family in that " County.

" She dyed the 19th of May 1716, aged 64 Years. " They were both great Examples to their Sex, " the beſt of Daughters, the beſt of Wives, and " the beſt of Mothers.

" Francis Lady Norton, Widdow of Sir George " Norton, of Abbots Leigh in Somerſetſhire, " their mournfull Siſter, has in the Year of our " Lord 1718, erected this Monument of her " Love; and recommends the Imitation of the " Virtue of her dear Siſters to their Deſcendants " for ever.

" Which ſaid Lady Norton has ordered, by " her Will, her Executor to bury her near this " Place by her Daughter, Lady Gethin's Mo- " nument.

THE next Monument, bearing the Effigies of a Lady kneeling, with two Angels, one holding a Crown over her Head on one Side, and the other a Chaplet on the other, was erected for Grace, Lady Gethin, Niece to the afore-mentioned two Ladies. She was famed for exemplary Piety, and endowed with good Senſe. There is extant a ſmall Octavo Volume of Devotions, written by her, before which is printed a Cut of her Monument; and Mr. Congreve has Verſes, among his other Poems, in Commendation of her. The Inſcription on her Monument is as follows:

" To the pious Memory of Dame Grace Ge- " thin, Wife of Sir Richard Gethin, of Gethin- " Grott, in Ireland, Bart. Daughter of Sir " George Norton, and Grand-daughter of Sir " George Norton, and Great Grand Daughter " Sir William Owen of Salop, Sir Thomas " Freke of Dorſet, and Sir Thomas Colepeper of " Kent, Kts. who being adorned with all Graces " and Perfections of Mind and Body, crowned " them all with exemplary Patience and Humili- " ty; and having, the Day before her Death, " moſt devoutly received the Holy Communion, " which ſhe ſaid ſhe would not have omitted for " ten thouſand Worlds: She plainly evidenced " her ſure and certain Hope of future Bliſs, and " thus continuing ſenſible to the laſt, ſhe reſign- " ed her pious Soul to God in fervent Tranſports " of ſpiritual Joy and Comfort, for her near Ap- " proach to the Heavenly Glory.

" Obiit 11th October, in } of her Age 21. " the Year } of our Lord, 1697.

" Her dear and diſconſolate Parents, for a " laſting Memorial of this her Godly and Bleſ- " ſed End, have erected this Monument, ſhe be- " ing the laſt of their Iſſue.

UNDER the Right Hand Pillar:

" Alſo lieth near this Place interred, George " and Elizabeth Norton, Children of Sir George " Norton, Knt. by his Wife Dame Frances " Norton, both of them dying young in the " Year ——

OPPOSITE to theſe, againſt the South Wall, is a Monument for Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, Knt. repreſented lying on his left Side, his Figure being cut out of white Marble; and underneath, his Ship repreſented, ſtriking againſt the Rock. The Inſcription on the Monument, being in Engliſh, was this:

Sir CLOUDESLY SHOVEL, Kt. Rear-Admiral of Great-Britain, and Admiral and Commander in Chief of the Fleet: The juſt Reward of his long and faithful Services. He was deſervedly beloved of his Country; and eſteemed, though dreaded, by the Enemy, who had often experienced his Conduct and Courage. Being Shipwreckt on the Rocks of Scylly, in his Voyage from Toulon, the 22d of October 1707, at Night, in the 57th Year of his Age. His Fate was lamented by all; but eſpecially the Seafaring Part of the Nation, to whom he was a generous Patron, and a worthy Example. His Body was flung on the Shore, and buried with others in the Sands: But being ſoon after took up, was placed under this Monument, which his Royal Miſtreſs had cauſed to be erected, to commemorate his ſteady Loyalty, and extraordinary Virtues.

HE lies under a Canopy, the Curtains turned aſide: Two rich Marble Pillars ſupport two Boys, having a Trumpet in one Hand, and his Coat of Arms in the other, which is, Gules, a Chevron Ermin between two Creſcents, Argent; and a Flower de Lys in the Baſe.

THIS Monumant of Sir Cloudeſly Shovel is, very juſtly, thought to be executed in the worſt Taſte of any Thing of that Kind in the Abbey, the following Remark is made upon it, by the late Mr. Addiſon, in the Paper called the Spectator.

Sir Cloudeſly Shovel's Monument has very often given me great Offence; " Inſtead of the " brave rough Engliſh Admiral, which was the " diſtinguiſhing Character of that plain gallant " Man, he is repreſented on his Tomb by the " Figure of a Beau, dreſſed in a long Perri- " wig, and repoſing himſelf upon Velvet Cuſhi- " ons, under a Canopy of State. The Inſcrip- " tion is anſwerable to the Monument; for in- " ſtead of celebrating the many remarkable " Actions he had performed in the Service of his " Country, it acquaints us only with the Man- " ner of his Death, in which it was impoſſible for " him to reap any Honour. The Dutch, whom " we are apt to deſpiſe for want of Genius, ſhew " an infinitely greater Taſte of Antiquity and " Politeneſs in their Buildings and Works of " this Nature, than what we meet with in thoſe " of our own Country. The Monuments of their " Admirals, which have been erected at the " publick Expence, repreſent them like them- " ſelves,

" ſelves, and are adorned with roſtral Crowns and
" and naval Ornaments, with beautiful Feſtoons
" of the Sea Weeds, Shells and Coral.

He was buried here on the 22d of December, 1707, at the Foot of his Monument, his Right Side joining the Foundation.

On a Table near it.

To the Glory of the Lord of Hoſts,
Here-under reſteth Sir Richard Bingham, Kt.
of the antient Family of the Binghams, of Bingham Melcomb in the County of Dorſet, who from his Youth was train'd up in military Affairs, and ſerved in the Time of Q. Mary at S. Quintin's, in the Weſtern Iſles of Scotland, and in Britain, in the Time of Queen Elizabeth,
at Leith in Scotland,
in the Iſle of Candy under the Venetians,
at Cabo Chrio,
and the famous Battle of Lepanto againſt the Turks, in the Civil Wars of France,
in the Netherlands,
and at Smerwick,
where the Romans and Iriſh were vanquiſh'd.
After he was made Governour of Connaught, where he overthrew the Iriſh Scots, expelled the traiterous Orourke, ſuppreſſed divers Rebellions, and that with ſmall Charges to her Majeſty, maintaining that Province in a flouriſhing Eſtate, by the Space of thirteen Years:
finally, for his good Service, was made Marſhal of Ireland, and General of Leineſter,
where at Dublin, in an aſſured Faith in Chriſt,
He ended this tranſitory Life,
the 19th of Jan. An. Dom. 1598. Ætat. 70.

This is done by Sir John Bingley, ſome Time his Servant.

Near which, and againſt the ſame Wall, is a handſome Monument of veined Marble, with its Epitaph, erected to the Memory of Dr. Knipe, Maſter of Weſtminſter School: The Inſcription is thus tranſlated into Engliſh:

Thomas Knipe, D. D.
Prebendary of this Church, gave Direction his Body ſhould lie in that Part of the Cloyſters oppoſite to this Monument, where Anne his Wife,
with five of their Children were buried.
For the Space of fifty Years he,
in the School of Weſtminſter labour'd for the promoting Piety and Learning, and for ſixteen Years was Head Maſter there, which Province
he happily adminiſter'd being deeply acquainted with the Helps of Learning practis'd to indefatigable Induſtry, and made up of the moſt humane Sweetneſs:
From hence he ſupplied the Univerſity with Youth vers'd in the beſt Diſcipline, many of which are now Ornaments in the Church and State.
and more there are who now give Earneſt of being hereafter ſo. To theſe Praiſes he added theſe other Virtues which ſpeak the good Man, as Piety and Munificence,
Socialneſs and Benevolence,
Candor and Sincerity,
and ready Bounty to thoſe in Diſtreſs.
He enjoy'd a firm Health and long Age, attended with all the other Comforts of Life,
till decaying gradually, by a ling'ring Diſtemper,
Which at length violently encreaſing upon him he died, beloved by the Poor, his Scholars, Friends, Relations and Wife,
8 Id. Aug. Anno 1711, aged 73.
To this her dear Husband,
Alice, his ſecond and moſt afflicted Wife,
hath erected this Monument,
one Day intending her Aſhes ſhall reſt in the ſame Tomb.

Opposite to Dr. Knipe, and placed againſt the back of the Choir, between the ſecond and third Pillars from the North Weſt Corner of it, is an antient Monument of Marble and Alabaſter gilded, and the Effigies of a Judge at length, in Scarlet Robes, leaning on his Left Arm, erected to ſignify the Burial of Thomas Owen, Eſq; near it: This Owen was born at Candover in Shropſhire, educated in Broadgate's Hall, Oxon, ſtudied the Law at Lincoln's-Inn, was Lent Reader of that Houſe, after created Judge of the Common-Pleas, and not, as Sir William Dugdale ſays, of the King's-Bench; which Place he faithfully diſcharged for five Years. He hath publiſhed Reports in that Court, printed 1656. It is to be obſerved, that Roger Owen, his Son, hereafter mentioned, was a Knight much commended by Camden, a ſtrenuous Vindicator of the Clergy in Parliament, 11 Jac. I. and died in a diſtracted Condition, univerſally lamented, Anno 1617, on the 29th of May.

Sacred to the Triune God.
Expecting the 2d Coming of Chriſt our Redeemer, under this Tomb lies Thomas Owen, Eſq;
Son of Richard Owen,
by Mary, Daughter and Heir of Thomas Otely of the County of Salop, Eſq; who from his Youth was inſtructed in the Study of the municipal Laws of England
ſo proſper'd in induſtrious Application, Readineſs and Judgment that he was firſt choſen Serjeant at Law to Queen Elizabeth, afterwards one of the Juſt. of the C. of Common-Pleas, among whom, when he had ſat five Years with ſingular Integrity, Equity, and commendable Prudence:
And by Sarah his Wife,
only Daughter and Heir of Humphry Baskerville, had five Sons and as many Daughters:
And married Alice his ſecond Wife,
who ſurvives him,
He devoutly ſlept in Chriſt the 21ſt Day of Decemb.
in the Year of our Redemption, 1598.
Roger Owen, his moſt afflicted Son, hath, as a Proof of his officious Duty, and Regard to the Memory of this beſt of Fathers,
erected this Monument.

The Souls of the Righteous are in the Hand of God.

Against the South Wall of this Iſle, almoſt oppoſite to Owen's, and adjoining South to Knipe's, is another Monument, as rich for Marble and mean in Deſign as that of Sir Cloudeſly Shovel's, but erected to the Memory of a much greater Man, viz. Mr. Stepney, a Gentleman equally converſant with the World of fine Letters, and that of Buſineſs, of whoſe Character learn more in the Inſcription, which in Engliſh is thus:

Here lies interr'd
George Stepney, Eſq;
for his ready Genius, Knowledge of Learning,
Sweetneſs of Temper,

Experience of the World,
Acquaintance of Great Men,
Elegance of Language, Stile, and Life,
Eminent Stations he held,
of Britain and of Europe,
much celebrated in his Time, and ever to be celebrated to Poſterity.
He conducted ſeveral Embaſſies with that Integrity, Application and Facility, that he ever diſcharged the Truſt repoſed in him, by thoſe auguſt Princes, William and Anne,
and generally exceeded even Expectation.
After a length of Honours, which he paſſed through in a ſhort Space of Time,
after a narrow Life, but extenſive Fame,
He calmly breathed out his Soul to higher Regions.

ON one Side of the Pilaſters of the Baſis:

GEORGE STEPNEY,
deſcended from the honourable Family of the Stepneys of Pendegraſt in Pembrokeſhire, was born at Weſtminſter, An. Dom. 1663.
elected into the College of St. Peter's Weſtminſter, 1676.
and to Trinity in Cambridge, 1682.
made Commiſſioner of Trade, 1697.
died at Chelſey,
and attended by a great Concourſe of the Nobility, was here buried, 1706.

On the other Side.

GEORGE STEPNEY
was Envoy to the Elector of Brandenburgh, Anno 1692.
Emperor of Germany, Anno 1693.
Elector of Saxony, Anno 1694 and 1695.
Electors of { Mentz, Triers, Cologne, } 1696. / Palatine, 1697.
Landtgrave of Heſſe
Congreſs of Francfort, ſecond Time to Elector of Brandenburg, 1698.
King of Poland, 1699.
ſecond Time to the Emperor of Germany, 1701.
States of Holland, 1706.

Mr. Stepney's Leaden Coffin lies cloſe to the Foundation, and on it a Plate thus inſcrib'd:

Here lies the Aſhes of the Honourable George Stepney, Eſq; Plenipotentiary and Embaſſador Extraordinary from his Prince to the States of Holland, and Commiſſioner of Trade and Plantations, who died the 15th Day of September, 1707. Aged 27 Years.

UPON his Coffin lies another, containing the Body of his Siſter Frances Stepney, who died the 13th Day of March, Anno Dom. 1718. Aged 59 Years, was buried by the Dean on the 23d of the ſame Month.

ON the left Side Mr. Stepney lies, in a Leaden Coffin, ſix Feet deep, and cloſe to the Foundation of the two Pillars by Owen's Tomb, John Methuen, Eſq; ſometime a Maſter in Chancery, afterwards Lord High Chancellor of Ireland, and laſtly, Envoy Extraordinary to the King of Portugal, in which Country he died, the 13th Day of July 1706, and was buried here the 17th of September, 1708. On his Coffin is his Coat of Arms, and the Letters J. M. He was Father to the preſent Sir Paul Methuen, Kt. of the Bath.

UPON his Coffin lies another Leaden one, containing the Remains of Iſabel Methuen, his Daughter; buried April 29, 1711. Aged 29 Years.

THESE three laſt have no Graveſtones nor Inſcriptions.

AGAINST the Back of the Choir, between the firſt and ſecond Pillar from the Weſt Corner, is a Monumental Table, on which is a Man's Figure in white Marble, in a dying Poſture, and at his Feet a Cherub weeping, eſteemed a very fine Piece of Modern Statuary, and on the Side of the Table in Relieve, ſome Ruffians ſhooting a Gentleman in his Chariot. This Figure repreſents, and the Relieve points to us, the hapleſs End of Mr. Thynne, of Longleat, in the County of Wiltſhire, a Gentleman who had ſerved in ſeveral Parliaments, and was pretty much againſt the Court Party in King Charles's Time. Having 10,000 l. per Ann. left him by an Uncle, he was ſecretly married to the rich Heireſs of Northumberland, a young Lady, and Widow to the Earl of Ogle. The Noiſe of this Lady's Fortune, among many others, encouraged Count Coningſmark, a German Lord to attempt her: However Mr. Thynne's Marriage was managed, the Lady being diſpleaſed, thought fit to go over to Holland before it was conſummated, or they had ever been bedded: Upon this a Suit of Law was intended, and Coningſmark thought, upon this Difference, if he could remove Thynne, he ſhould bid fair for his Prize, and having ſent him two Challenges, which Thynne anſwered after a ſtrange Manner, by ſending ſix Ruffians into France to kill him and his Second, Captain Vratz; but they eſcaped by killing two of them, as the Count ſaid: However, if it were ſo, he more baſely and barbarouſly turned his own Weapons upon him; for on Sunday Night the 12th of February, as he was going in Pall-Mall, near the Hay-market, in his own Coach, three Men on Horſeback aſſaulted him, and one of them, by diſcharging a Muſquetoon into the Coach, mortally wounded him, and they all made their Eſcape. Coningſmark was taken at Graveſend, and try'd, but by foul Play, as was thought, cleared; the other three were executed. This was, by ſome, imagined a juſt Reward for his Perfidy, in having, at the Duke of Monmouth's Requeſt, debauched a young Lady of Character, baſely deſerting her; whence came the Saying, That he had eſcap'd this Danger, if he had either married the Woman he had lain with, or lain with the Lady he had married. This Murder made a great Noiſe, and for that Thynne, who was a buſy ſtirring Gentleman, had preſented a Petition of Complaint and Uneaſineſs of the Gentry, it was immediately conjectur'd, the Papiſts and the Duke of York had done it; ſo mean Handles did the Faction uſe at that Time. There was an Epitaph deſign'd at that Time, but prohibited.

AFFIXED to the Pillar at Thynne's Feet, is a Table Monument of white Marble, with this Inſcription:

Near this Place lieth the Body of James Kendal, Eſq; He was firſt choſen Member of Parliament in the Year 1684, and ſerved in moſt of the ſucceeding Parliaments; he was five Years Governor in Barbados, and ſoon after his Return to England, was appointed by King William, one of the Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral. Some Years before his Death, he retired from all publick Buſineſs, excepting only his Service in Parliament. He died at Caſehalton in Surrey, the 10th Day of July 1708, in the 61ſt Year of his Age.

N. B. Mr. Kendal's Coffin of Lead joins to the Feet of Mr. Stepney's.

ALMOST

ALMOST oppoſite to this, and directly to Thynne's, againſt the South Wall, between the third and fourth Pillars from the Door deſcending to the Eaſt Cloyſter, is a Monument of various colour'd Marble, erected for Admiral Churchil, Brother to the late Duke of Marlborough. The Epitaph in Engliſh thus:

P. S. E.
GEORGE CHURCHIL,
2d Son of Sir William Churchil, Kt. of Dorſetſhire, and worthy Brother of John D. of Marlborough, from his yearly Youth train'd to Military Affairs, and ſerved with great Honour by Sea and Land,
under King Charles II. and King James II.
He was for the Space of twenty Years Gentleman of the Bedchamber to the moſt ſerene Prince George of Denmark, to whom
his Integrity, Obſequiouſneſs and Virtue, render'd him dear and valuable.
In the Time of King William's Reign,
When the French Navy was defeated
And burnt by the Engliſh at la Hogue, (a Day for ever memorable)
he behaved himſelf with that Vigour of Soul and Bravery, as became an Engliſh Officer.
Soon after he was by that Prince,
(who was a true Judge of Merit) made one of the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, in which Station,
the Sea Affairs which he was Maſter of,
he daily manag'd and adorn'd.
At length, when under the happy Reign of Queen Anne,
the War againſt the French, (thoſe turbulent Foes of Britain) was renew'd,
he was choſen one of the Admirals, and of the Council to the moſt High Prince of Denmark,
Admiraliſſimo of Great Britain; and was Partaker with his Maſter of all his Care and Fatigue, which he happily manag'd,
till the broken Power of France quitted the Seas, afterwards adhering to that beſt of Princes to his laſt, he then perform'd all the Offices of a grateful and generous Soul.
At length broken with Toil and Diſeaſes, amidſt the Embraces and Tears of his Friends, Dependants and Servants, Whom his Humanity, Services and Liberality made grateful, devoted and faithful to him,
he being unmarried,
died like a pious, calm, and chearful Man,
the 8th of May, 1710, aged 58 Years.

N. B. His Body lies at the Entrance, by the Gates of the Choir, in the Grave by Mr. Seymour. And on his Grave-Stone; Depoſitum Georgii Churchil, Armig. qui Obiit 8 Maii, M.DCCX. Ætat LVIII.

WESTWARD of the afore-mentioned Monument is a Table, one of white Marble, with this Inſcription:

Near this Place lieth the Body of Captain William Julius, late Commander of his Majeſty's Ship the Colcheſter, who departed this Life the 3d of October 1698. Aged 33 Years.

AND on the Weſt of that, divided from it by a Pillar, a handſome one of white Marble, between Pyramids of Black, adorned with Relieve, for Sir Palmes Fairbones, as ſee by the Inſcription and Epitaph written by Mr. Dryden.

Sacred to the immortal Memory of Sir Palmes Fairborne, Knight, Governor of Tangier, in Execution of which Command, he was mortally wounded by a Shott from the Moors then beſieging the Town, in the 46th Year of his Age, October 24, 1680.

Yee ſacred Reliques which your Marble keepe,
Here undiſturbed by Warrs, in Quiet Sleepe,
Diſcharge the Truſt which (when it was below)
Fairborne's undaunted Soul did undergoe:
And be the Towns Palladium from the Foe.
Alive and dead theſe Walls he will defend,
Great Actions great Examples muſt attend.
The Candian Siege his early Valour knew;
Where Turkiſh Blood did his young Hands imbrew;
From thence returning with deſerv'd Applauſe,
Againſt the Moores his well fleſh'd Sword he draws,
The ſame the Courage, and the ſame the Cauſe.
His Youth and Age, and Life and Death combine:
As in ſome great and regular Deſign,
All of a Piece throughout, and all Divine.
Still nearer Heaven his Virtue ſhone more bright
Like riſing Flames expanding on their Height,
The Martyrs Glory crown'd the Souldiers Fight.
More bravely Britiſh Generall never fell:
Nor Generall's Death was ere reveng'd ſo well.
Which his pleas'd Eyes beheld before their cloſe,
Followed by thouſand Victims of his Foes.

To his lamented Loſſe for Time to come,
His pious Widowe conſecrates this Tomb.

AT the Bottom of this Tomb is Julius's Grave-ſtone, and adjoining on the Left Side of that another, with this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Body of Henry Cornwal, of Bredwardine Caſtle in the County of Hereford, Eſq; whoſe firſt Wife was Margarita Laurentia Huyſſen, of Middleburgh in Zealand, by whom he had Iſſue Henry, his eldeſt Son and Heir, now living, and William Henry, who dy'd an Infant. To his ſecond Wife he had Suſanna, one of the Daughters of Sir John Williams, Bart. and by her left Iſſue two Sons, Velters and James, and one Daughter, named Mary, married to the Honourable Henry Berkely, Eſq; Brother of the Right Honourable James, now Earl of Berkeley. He departed this Life the 22d of February, 1716, in the 64th Year of his Age.

WE ſhall take in regularly the Grave-Stones, not only in this Iſle, but thoſe in the Nave or Body of the Church that lie oppoſite to the Monuments on this South Side of it to the Middle, and likewiſe thoſe on the North Side of the Nave, of which take one oppoſite to Fairborne's Monument at the Head of Admiral Churchil's Grave-Sone, with this Inſcription:

Here lies interr'd the Body of Dame CONSTANTINE HARDY, Wife of Sir Thomas Hardy, of the Iſland of Jerſey, Knt. She was Daughter of Henry Hook, Eſq; Lieutenant Governor of Plymouth, and departed this Life the 28th of April, 1720, in the 88th Year of her Age.

NEAR her, and by the Gates entering the Choir, was buried Jaeneto Borges de Caſtro, Envoy from the King of Portugal; he died November 4, 1720, and was buried the 9th.

THE

THE next Monument in the South Iſle is next Fairborne's, and between the ſame Pillars; it is a Table one of White Marble, to commemorate Major Creed, who was ſlain, and buried at Blenheim, and has on it the following Inſcription:

To the Memory of the Honoured Major RICHARD CREED: Who attended his late Majeſty King William III. in all his Wars, during his Reign; every where ſignalizing himſelf, and never more himſelf than when he looked an Enemy in the Face. At that glorious Battle of Blenheim, A. D. 1704, he commanded one of thoſe Squadrons that began the Attack. In two ſeveral Charges he remain'd unhurt; but, in the third, after many Wounds received, ſtill valiantly fighting, he was ſhot through the Head. His dead Body was brought off by his Brother, at the Hazard of his own Life, and buried there.

To his Memory his ſorrowful Mother erected this Monumnnt; placing it near another, which her Son, when living, uſed to look upon with Pleaſure, for the worthy Mention it maketh of that great Man, Edward Earl of Sandwich: To whom he had the Honour to be related, and whoſe heroic Virtues he was ambitious to imitate.

He was the eldeſt Son of John Creed of Oundle, Eſq; and Elizabeth his Wife, only Daughter of Sir Gilbert Pickering, Bart. of Tichmarch in Northamptonſhire.

NEAR this Part of the Iſle is a Tablet of White Marble, affixed high againſt the Wall, bearing this Inſcription:

Here lies the Body of Mrs. Bridget Radley, the moſt deſervedly beloved Wife of Charles Radley, Eſq; Gentleman-Uſher, and Daily Waiter to his Majeſty; which Place he parted withal, not being able to do the Duty of it, by Reaſon of his great Indiſpoſition both of Body and Mind, occaſioned by his juſt Sorrow for the Loſs of her. She changed this Life for a better the 20th of Nov. 1679.

ON her Grave-ſtone this: Mrs. Bridget Radley, died Nov. 1672.

On another:

Here lieth interr'd the Body of Sir William Dobſon, Knt. obiit 9 Octobris, Anno Dom. 1679.

AND near it, one for Sidney Bagenal; the Inſcription intirely obliterated, as are indeed moſt of the others, by the Feet of Paſſengers. This Bagenal died 1684.

NEXT Creed's is a ſtately Monument of Black and White Marble for Sir Charles Harboard, and Clement Cotterel, whoſe Characters and Fate learn from their pathetick and moving Epitaphs, which follow:

to preſerve and unite
The Memory of two faithful Friends, who loſt their Lives at Sea together. May XXVIII.
MDCLXXII.

Sir Charles Harboard, Knt. third Son of Sir Charles Harboard, Knt. his Majeſty's Surveyor General, and Firſt Lieutenant of the Royal James, under the moſt Noble and Illuſtrious Captaine Edward Earle of Sandwich, Vice-Admiral of England, which after a terrible Fight maintained to Admiration againſt a Squadron of the Holland Fleet, for above ſix Houres neere the Suffolk Coaſt, having put off two Fire-ſhips; at laſt being utterly diſabled, and few of her Men remaining unhurt, was by a third unfortunately ſet on Fire. But he (though he ſwame well (neglected to ſave himſelf, as ſome did; and out of perfect Love to that worthy Lord (whom for many Years he had conſtantly accompanyed in all his honorable Imployments and in all Engagements of the former Warre) dyed with him, and at the Age of XXXIV. much bewailed of his Father whom he never offended; and much beloved of all for his knowne Piety, Vertue, Loyalty, Fortitude and Fidelity.

Clement Cottrell, Eſq; eldeſt Son of Sir Charles, Knt. Maſter of the Ceremonies and his Aſſiſtant to have ſucceeded in that Office, for which he was very fit, having a tall handſome Perſon, a graceful winning Behaviour, and great Natural Parts much improved by Study, and by Converſe in moſt Courts of Europe, where firm to the Church of England: He learned not their Vices, but Cuſtoms and Languages, underſtanding ſeven, and ſpeaking four of them as his own, though but XXII Years old; yet not content to ſerve his King and Country at home only, his Exceſſe of Courage incited by a deep Senſe of Honour could not be kept from going Volunteere with the Earl of Sandwich, with whome he had been in Spaine when his Exce was there Ambr Exry with whom (after having returned unwounded into his Ship from being the Firſt Man that had boarded a Dutch one of LX Guns, and pulled downe the Enſigne of it with his own Hand) he alſo periſhed univerſally lamented.

IN the Nave, oppoſite to it, on a Grave-ſtone, for Mr. Smith and his Son, whoſe is the following Inſcription:

John Smith, Eſq; late of Beaufort's Buildings. Here alſo lies his Grandſon, the Honourable John Bourke, who died the 28th of Dec. 1719, aged three Years, ſix Months, and three Days.

ON a Grave-ſtone in this South Iſle:

Here lie the Remains of Judith Iſham, Daughter of Juſtinian Iſham, Baronet; ſhe died the 18th of May 1679.

ON the one Side the aforeſaid Monument of Harboard and Cotterel, is a Buſto and Inſcription, as follows:

Sidney Earl of Godolphin, Lord High Treaſurer of Great Britain and Chief Miniſter, during the firſt nine Glorious Years of the Reign of Queen Ann. He died in the Year 1712. the 5th Day of Sept. aged 67. and was buried near this Place, to whoſe Memory this is offered with the utmoſt Gratitude, Affection and Honour, by his much obliged Daughter-in-Law Henrietta Godolphin.

THE Lord Godolphin was Member of Parliament in 1661, Groom of the Bedchamber to King Charles II. Commiſſioner of the Treaſury 1679; in 1684 Secretary of State, and ſoon after Commiſſioner of the Treaſury; and the ſame Year created Baron of Rialton in Cornwall by King James II. He was made Lord Chamberlain to the Queen, and Commiſſioner for executing the Office of Lord High Treaſurer. After the Revolution he was firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, and ſoon after Lord Treaſurer. His Coffin lies near the Corner of the Choir, and on his Right Side Sir William Godolphin, his elder Brother, buried Sept. 3, 1710.

ON the other Side Harboard's Monument, is an old faſhioned one for the Lady Gifford, a Perſon of excellent Qualifications, Siſter to the famous mous Sir William Temple, and Companion with him in his foreign Embaſſies. This ſeems to have been deſigned by Sir William in his Life-time, as ſhould ſeem by the Epitaph; for the Lady Gifford long ſurvived him; the Tomb is chiefly of Black Marble, and in Gold bears this Inſcription:

To himſelf and theſe moſt dear to him,
To his moſt beloved Daughter,
Dorothy Osbourn,
To his moſt loving Wife,
And Martha Gifford
his beſt of Siſters,
This Monument was erected at the Care of
William Temple of Moor-Park
In the County of Surrey, Bart.

Dina Temple
Dorothy Osbourn } died 1679, 1694 } aged 14, 66
William Temple } died 1698, aged 70
Martha Gifford } died 1722, aged 84

Divided from this, by a Pillar, is one of Black and White Marble, for a Lady of Sir Samuel Moreland's, with this Inſcription in Engliſh:

A N N
Daughter of George Tilding, Eſq; and of Mary his Wife, the truly loving and as truly beloved Wife of Samuel Morland, Knt. and Bart. died February the 20th, Anno Domini 1679-80. Ætatis XIX°.

The next, being one of the juſteſt and moſt beautiful in this Church, is a Pyramid and Altar of finely veined Marble, and on the Altar a Lady veil'd, weeping, and reſting her Right Arm on a curious Buſto in Relieve: Under all, on a Table of White Marble, the Inſcription in Engliſh, thus:

Near this Tomb lies buried John Smith, Eſq; of LONDON, in Beaufort Buildings, deſcended from the Smiths of Lincolnſhire, who died the 6th of July, 1718; he left two Daughters, of which Anne the eldeſt married firſt to Henry Parker, Eſq; eldeſt Son of Sir Henry Parker of Hennington in the County of Warwick, Bart. to whom ſhe bare many Children; a ſecond Time to the Honourable Michael Lord Dunkillin, eldeſt Son of the Honourable Earl of Clanrickard in the Kingdom of Ireland, by whom ſhe has left a Son and a Daughter ſurviving. Here alſo lies the Honourable John Burke, eldeſt Son of the aforeſaid Lord and Lady Dunkillin, who died 28 Dec. 1719. Mary, another Daughter of the aforeſaid John Smith, Eſq; married to Edward Desboverie of Langford in Wiltſhire, Bart. and died without Iſſue.

On the Weſt Side this, is a Monument of Black and White Marble for another Lady of Sir Samuel Moreland's. The Inſcription in Engliſh, thus:

Carora,
Daughter of Roger Harſnet, Eſq; and of Carola his Wife, the truly loving (and as truly beloved) Wife of Samuel Morland, Knt. and Bart. Bare a ſecond Son October the 4th; died October the 10th, Anno Domini 1674. Ætat. XXIII.

Near this, viz. four Feet from the Pillar near the laſt Monument, is a Grave-ſtone thus inſcribed:

Here lies the Body of Sir Joſeph Tredenham, Kt. who died April 25, 1707, in the 65th Year of his Age. He was buried the 29th.

Next we paſs by the Gates opening to the Eaſt Cloiſter, and on the other Side is a Tablet bearing an Eſcutcheon, and this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Body of Peers Griffith, Eſq; Son and Heir to Sir Ree Griffith, and Grandſon to Sir William Griffith, Chamberlain of North Wales, who died the 18th of Auguſt 1628.

Between the third and fourth Pillars from the Cloiſter Gates Weſtward, is a Table Monument of White Marble, with the Inſcription thus tranſlated:

Here lies Henry Wharton, A. M. Presbyter of the Church of England, Rector of the Church of Chartham, and Vicar of the Church of Minſter in the Iſle of Thanet, and Dioceſs of Canterbury; Chaplain to the moſt Reverend and moſt Religious Prelate, William, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who, for the Increaſe and Illuſtration of Learning, and for the Church of Chriſt, wrote much and intended more. He died the 3d of March, A. D. 1694, aged 31 Years.

This wonderous and ſurprizing Gentleman, to whoſe Example and Labours the Worlds of Piety and Learning are ſo much indebted, was Son of Mr. Edmund Wharton, lately Rector of Saxlinghan in Norfolk, and of Gonville and Caius College in Cambridge. After he left the Univerſity, and was recommended to Dr. Cave, with whom he reſided, and had a great Hand in that laborious and uſeful Work, Hiſtoria Literaria in 1687, he went into holy Orders, and ſoon after being recommended to the Lord Arundel of Trerice, to be his Chaplain, and Tutor to his Son; his Excellency's making him very conſpicuous, the good Archbiſhop Sancroft, of Canterbury, prevailed with the Lord Arundel to part with him, and took him to be his own Chaplain, though not twenty-three Years of Age. About this Time the Diſputes between the Church of Rome and us growing high, he vigorouſly oppoſed the former, by his Confutation of the Speculum Eccleſiaſticum, printing the Rule of Faith, with a learned and elaborate Preface of the Celibacy of the Clergy, Enthuſiaſm of the Church of Rome, Tranſlation of Monſieur Dellon's Hiſtory of the Inquiſition of Goa; and reviſed and fitted ſeveral other Pieces in that Controverſy for the Preſs. After ſome Continuance with the Archbiſhop, he gave him the MSS. of Archbiſhop Uſher's Dogmatical Hiſtory of the Holy Scripture; which he digeſted and publiſhed with a large Supplement. The ſame Year the Archbiſhop gave him the Vicarage of Minſter in the Iſle of Thanet; and not long after the Rectory of Chartham; and conferr'd on him Prieſt's Orders. And now being ſo provided for, he ſet about that great and uſeful Work, The Anglia Sacra, in which he preſerved ſo many antient Pieces relating to our Church, as muſt for ever make his Memory dear to the Learned World. His other Works were an Edition of Bede's Commentaries on Geneſis, and Song of Habakuk; Adhelm's Book of the Praiſe of Virginity, corrected and reviſed; the Life of Cardinal Pool; Diſceptation between the Ambaſſadors of England and France in Council of Conſtance; Mr. Strype's Hiſtory of Archbiſhop Cranmer; and, which he accounted the happieſt Task ever impos'd upon him, The Papers of Archbiſhop Laud, relating to his Trial and Troubles, were, by Archbiſhop Sancroft, upon his Death-bed, committed to his Care, with a Charge to publiſh them; which he did; and which one, who being deſpiſed, deſpiſes all others, ſays, "Was ſo weak that Mr. "Wharton was one of his greateſt Enemies, as "Heylin was by publiſhing his Life." This learned ed Gentleman left ſeveral MSS. and intended much for our Engliſh Hiſtory. He was a Perſon of no leſs Piety than Learning, and of the firmeſt Principles. This candid and good Man ſo ſtrictly plied him to his Studies that nothing could diſengage him; and though he had by Nature and Temper a ſtrong Conſtitution, yet he laid it all out on his Studies; but the entire Ruin of it was haſten'd by a Vomit miſapplied; which breaking a Veſſel, he languiſhed four Years under a Conſumption, and died ſo young as at thirty-one Years of Age; whoſe Death even Foreigners regretted, as appears in the Act. Erudit. printed at Leipſick 1696. But if Foreigners paid him this Compliment, much more did his Countrymen, who buried him in a very ſolemn Manner, the King's Scholars being ordered to attend his Funeral, at which were preſent the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Dr. Tillotſon, and other Prelates, together with vaſt Numbers of the Clergy; and the Choir, in Proceſſion, ſung the Anthems upon this Occaſion, compos'd by Mr. Purcel, the Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter performing the Burial Service. On his Grave-ſtone is this Inſcription:

Henry Wharton, A. M. obiit 5. Mart. Anno 1694.

NEXT is a fine Marble Monument, erected with the following Inſcription:

To the Memory of Mrs. Catharina Bovey, whoſe Perſon and Underſtanding would have become the higheſt Rank in Female Life, and whoſe Vivacity would have recommended her in the beſt Converſation; but by Judgment, as well as Inclination, ſhe choſe ſuch a Retirement as gave her great Opportunities for Reading and Reflection, which ſhe made uſe of to the wiſeſt Purpoſes of Improvement in Knowledge and Religion; upon other Subjects, ſhe ventured far out of the common Way of thinking; but in Religious Matters, ſhe made the Holy Scriptures, in which ſhe was well skilled, the Rule and Guide of her Faith and Actions, eſteeming it more ſafe to rely upon the plain Word of God, than to run into any Freedoms of Thought upon revealed Truths; the great Share of Time allow'd to the Cloſet was not perceived in her Oeconomy, for ſhe had always a well order'd and well inſtructed Family, from the happy Influence as well of her Temper and Conduct, as of her uniform and exemplary Chriſtian Life. It pleaſed God to bleſs her with a conſiderable Eſtate, which, with a liberal Hand, guided by Wiſdom and Piety, ſhe employed to his Glory, and the Good of her Neighbours. Her Domeſtick Expences were managed with a Decency and Dignity ſuitable to her Fortune, but with a Frugality that made her Income abound to all proper Objects of Charity, to the Relief of the Neceſſitous, the Encouragement of the Induſtrious, and the Inſtruction of the Ignorant. She diſtributed not only with Cheerfulneſs, but with Joy, which upon ſome Occaſions of raiſing and refreſhing the Spirit of the Afflicted, ſhe could not refrain from breaking forth into Tears, flowing from a Heart throughly affected with Compaſſion and Benevolence. Thus did many of her good Works, while ſhe lived, go up as a Memorial before God; and ſome ſhe left to follow her. She died January 21, 1726, in the 57th Year of her Age, at Flaxley, her Seat in Gloceſterſhire, and was buried there, where her Name will be long remembered, and where ſeveral of her Benefactions at that Place, as well as others, are more particularly recorded.

UNDERNEATH it, on a white Marble:

This Monument was erected with the utmoſt Reſpect to her Memory, and Juſtice to her Character, by her Executrix Mrs. Mary Pope, who lived with her near forty Years in perfect Friendſhip, and never once interrupted till her much lamented.

NEAR this is a Monument of White and Black Marble, for Sir Lumley Robinſon, with the Epitaph thus tranſlated:

Near this Lies buried the mortal Part of Sir Lumley Robinſon, Baronet, of Kentwel-Hall in the County of Suffolk, for his Integrity of Life,
uſeful Learning,
and untimely Death,
eſteemed by all that knew him, and who, but that he ſleeps in Chriſt, would long lament him.
He died the 6th of Aug. 1684, aged 36.
Anne, Heir of John Lawrence, Eſq; by whom he had Thomas and Anne, now
ſurviving,
hath, to the beſt of Husbands,
erected this Monument.

ON a Grave-ſtone near it:

Here lies the Body of Sir Lumley Robinſon, who departed this Life June 6, 1684.

NEAR the Conſiſtory Court, and under the Bay Window, looking from the Abbey-Houſe into the Church:

Elizabeth Atterbury, Wife to Francis, Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter: She died the 26th Day of April, 1722, aged 56 Years. And Elizabeth Atterbury, Daughter to the Biſhop and his Lady, who dying the 29th Day of Sept. 1716, aged 17, was buried the 4th of October following, in the Area, two Feet from the Door of St. Edmund's Chapel; and being removed the 2d of May 1722, was depoſited here.

THE next is an elegant Marble Buſto, ſet up for Dr. John Friend, Phyſician to her Majeſty, who died in the 52d Year of his Age, A. D. 1728.

NEAR this is a Marble Monument, with his Effigies in Relieve, and the following Inſcription erected to the Memory of Congreve the Poet.

Mr. WILLIAM CONGREVE,

Died Jan. 19, 1728, aged 56, and was buried near this Place. To whoſe moſt valuable Memory this Monument is ſet up by HENRIETTA, Dutcheſs of MARLBOROUGH, as a Mark how dearly ſhe remembers the Happineſs and Honour ſhe enjoyed in the ſincere Friendſhip of ſo worthy and honeſt a Man, whoſe Virtue, Candour, and Wit, gained him the Love and Eſteem of the preſent Age, and whoſe Writings will be the Admiration of the Future.

AT the End of this Iſle is an exceeding fine Monument, erected to the Memory of James Craggs, Eſq; His Statue is at full Length, leaning on an Urn, upon which is the following Inſcription:

Jacobus Craggs Regi Magnæ
Britanniæ A. Secretis & Conſiliis
Sanctioribus principis paritr ac
Populi Amor & Deliciæ vixit
Titulis & Invidia Major Annos
Heu Paucos 35 ob. Feb. 16. 1720.
Sorores mærentes P.P.P. A. Knight, E. Elliot,
M. Cotton.

Stateſmen

Stateſman! yet Friend to Truth, of Soul ſincere
In Action faithful, and in Honour clear,
Who broke no Promiſe, ſerv'd no private End,
Who gain'd no Title, and who loſt no Friend,
Ennobled by himſelf, by all approv'd,
Prais'd, wept, and honour'd, by the Muſe he lov'd.

NORTH ISLE.

Against the Eaſt Wall of the Belfry, is a handſome Marble Monument, erected to the Memory of that great Painter Sir Godfrey Kneller, and ſaid to be deſigned by himſelf in his Life-Time: His Buſto is placed under a Canopy, with two weeping Angels, one on each Side of it; that on the Right Hand holding a Baſs Relief of his Lady, and under it the following Inſcriptions:

M. S.
Godfredi Kneller Equitis Rom. Imp. & Angliæ
Baronetti Pictoris Regibus Carolo II. Jacobo II.
Gulielmo III. Annæ reginæ, Georgio I. Qui obiit
XXVI. Oct. An. MDCCXXIII. Ætat. LXVII.

Kneller, by Heaven, and not a Maſter taught,
Whoſe Art was Nature, and whoſe Pictures Thought,
When now two Ages he had ſnatch'd from Fate
Whate'er was beauteous, and whate'er was great,
Reſts crown'd with Princes Honours, Poets Lays,
Due to his Merit, and brave Thirſt of Praiſe,
Living great Nature fear'd he might outvie
Her Works, and dying Fears herſelf may dye.

A. POPE.

Next to this is a Monument of black Marble, for Penelope Needham, Daughter of the Lord Kilmurry, and Wife to Randolph Egerton, Eſq; with a Latin Inſcription on it, in Engliſh thus:

PENELOPE,
Among many Daughters, the moſt beloved of Robert Lord Needham Viſcount Kilmurray, and Helena ſole Heir of the antient Family of Dutton, of Dutton, in the County Palatine of Cheſter, and Wife of the moſt afflicted
Randolph Egerton of Beteley, in Cheſhire, late Major General in Carolina, and now Member of Parliament for Staffordſhire;
whoſe unſhaken Fidelity to both the Charles's, Kings of Great Britain, and remarkable Actions Poſterity ſhall relate, (whom ſhe never made uneaſy till her Death) here, near the Arms of the Egertons illuſtrious Barons of Malpas, together with her Infant Son Randolph, deſired to be laid.
She died in Child-bed the 19th of April, Anno 1670.

On a Grave-ſtone adjoining, Randolph Egerto of Bettely in Staffordſhire, Eſq; Major-General of Horſe to King Charles I. and eldeſt Lieutenant and Lieutenant-Colonel of his Majeſty King Charles II's own Troop of Guards, under the Command of his Grace James Duke of Monmouth; firſt married to Penelope, Daughter of the Right Honourable Robert Viſcount Kilmurray, of the Kingdom of Ireland, and now to Elizabeth, Daughter and Heir of Henry Murray, Eſq; one of the Gentlemen of his Majeſty's Bed-Chamber to King Charles I. by Anne Viſcounteſs Banning, Obiit 20. Octob. 1681.

Near it a Table Monument of white Marble for James Egerton, Son of the ſaid Major Egerton, by his ſecond Wife; it bears this Inſcription:

Near this Place lieth interred the Body of James Egerton, Eſq; only Son of Major-General Egerton and the Honourable Mrs. Elizabeth Egerton: He died the 13th of April, in the 10th Year of his Age, 1687.

On his Grave-ſtone:

Jacobus Egerton, Armiger, obiit Apr. 13. Anno Dom. 1687. Ætatis ſuæ 9-10.

The next is a handſome Marble Monument, lately erected, to the Memory of the Lady Clanrickard, with her Effigies lying along at full Length, and the following Inſcription under it:

Here lies the Right Honourable Ann, Counteſs Dowager of Clanrickard, eldeſt Daughter of John Smith, Eſq; who is interr'd near this Place. She married firſt Hugh Parker, Eſq; eldeſt Son of Sir Henry Parker of Honnington, in the County of Warwick, Baronet, by whom ſhe had the preſent Sir Henry-John Parker, three Sons and three Daughters. By her ſecond Husband Michael Earl of Clanrickard of the Kingdom of Ireland, the Head of the antient and noble Family of the Burkes, ſhe had Smith, now Earl of Clanrickard, and two Daughters, Lady Ann and Lady Mary. She dyed the 1ſt of January, 1732, in the 49th Year of her Age.

Next is a white Tablet for Martha Price, Wife of Gervaſe Price, Eſq; Serjeant of the Office of Trumpets, and Gentleman of the Bows to King Charles II. ſhe died the 22d of April, 1678. The Inſcription in Engliſh as follows:

Near this Place lies buried
(as appears by the Grave-ſtone)
Martha, Wife of Gervaſe Price, Eſq; who ſerved King Charles 2d in the double Capacity of Serjeant of the Office of Trumpets, and Gentleman of the Bows;
She died the 7th April, 1678.

On a Grave-ſtone near it:

Here lieth the Body of Gervaſe Price, Eſq; near his Wife Martha, whom he followed out of this Life the 11th of September, 1687, in the 59th Year of his Age.

On another adjoining to the Right Side:

Here lieth the Body of Martha, the Wife of Gervaſe Price, Eſq; Serjeant of the Office of Trumpets to King Charles II. and Gentleman of his Bows. She died the 7th Day of April, 1678, in the 38th Year of her Age.

Next to this is a Marble Monument, for Dr. Woodward, whereon is the Figure of Natural Philoſophy, at full Length, holding an Oval Table with the Doctor's Head cut upon it in Relieve: At her Feet are Foſſiles, Corals, Plants, &c. alluding to the Doctor's Syſtem of Philoſophy.

The Inſcription informs the Reader, That Colonel Richard King, ſet up this Monument to the Memory of John Woodward, a moſt celebrated Phyſician, and great Philoſopher, whoſe Genius and Learning are known throughout the World;

World; whoſe Liberality and Love to his Country, the Univerſity of Cambridge, enlarged by his Munificence, and adorned by his Works, will for ever declare.

HE was born on the Kalends of May, A. D. MDCLV. and died the VIIth Kal. of May, MDCCXXVII.

NEXT is an honorary Monument for Heneage Twiſden, Son of Sir William Twiſden, Bart. killed at Blaregnies, under the Duke of Argyle, Anno 1709, aged 29 Years. The Epitaph in Engliſh thus:

Sacred to the Memory of
HENEAGE TWISDEN,
7th Son of William Twiſden, Bart.
and Frances his Wife,
who in that bloody Fight
at Blaregnies in Heinault, while he, as Aid de Camp to the moſt high and couragious Prince John Duke of Argyle
then leading the firſt Wing of the Confederates Army
he fell bravely fighting.
He was a Son not degenerate from the beſt of Parents, nor a Soldier unworthy ſuch a Leader.
At home.
He was remarkable for his extraordinary Temper and Benevolence, Integrity and Modeſty, untainted Fidelity to his Friends, and the utmoſt Duty to God and his Parents.
In the Army
for undaunted Courage,
unwearied Patience in Fatigues,
and an unſhock'd Soul amidſt the View of Danger.
Adorned with ſo great and ſo many Virtues private, civil and military, he left the melancholy Regret for him to all who were never injured by him, but the moſt troubled by far to him who mindful,
of his moſt pleaſant Alliance,
and daily Addition of good Offices, hath to this his ever-lamented Friend, erected this honorary Marble, a ſmall Monument
of his great Love.
He died An. Dom. 1709, aged 29 Years.

ON the one Side the laſt, is a ſmall Table Monument of white Marble for Joſiah Twiſden, Brother of the ſaid Heneage, as follows:

JOSIAH TWISDEN,
Son of William Twiſden, Bart.
and Frances his Wife,
who, in an Expedition being Captain at the Siege of the Caſtle of Agremont, near Liſle in Flanders,
was ſlain by a Cannon Shot,
Anno 1708, aged 23 Years.
His Body was carried into the Caſtle and buried with thoſe military Honours
he well deſerv'd,
by the Care of that brave Youth,
His Brother Heneage Twiſden, who, alas! ſurviv'd him not long.

ON the other, a like Table Monument for John Twiſden, another Brother with this Epitaph:

JOHN TWISDEN,
Eighth Son of William Twiſden, Bart.
and Frances his Wife,
who in the Admiral's Ship,
of which he was Lieutenant,
with Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, Admiral of the Britiſh Fleet,
periſh'd by Shipwreck,
An. Dom. 1707, aged 24.
Leſt the Memory of this excellent Youth, ſhould at once periſh with his Body, this Cenotaph ſhall for ever witneſs
the many Virtues he had,
and the great Hopes his Parents conceived of him.

NEXT is a Monument of white Marble, for Col. Bringfield, with the following Inſcription:

To the Memory of the worthily honoured Colonel James Bringfield, born in Abingdon in the County of Berks; Equerry to his Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark, Aide de Camp, and Gentleman of the Horſe to his Grace the Duke of Marlborough, (the victorious General of her Majeſty's Forces beyond the Sea) who while he was remounting his Lord upon a freſh Horſe, his former falling under him, had his Head fatally ſhot by a Cannon Ball in the Battle of Ramellies, Whitſunday the 12th Day of May, in the Year of our Lord 1706, and of his Age 50. And ſo having glorioufly ended his Days in the Bed of Honour, lies interr'd at Bavachem, in the Province of Brabant, a principal Part of the Engliſh Guards attending his Obſequies; where may his valiant Remains reſt in Peace, and the ſurviving Fame of his Courage, Virtue, and true Piety, (of which this Church was often a Witneſs) live, grow, and ſpread, both here and abroad for ever.

This Monument was erected by his mournful, and equally loving and beloved Widow Clemence Bringfield, 1706.

On a Grave-ſtone near it:

ELIZABETH MEEKE, the ſecond Wife of Anthony Meeke, Eſq; died the 16th of Feb. 1711.

ON another near the Head of them, for Adria Lucy, Niece to Martha Price:

ADRIA LUCY, of the antient Family of Lucy's, in the County of Warwick, and Mary Mayers of London, and near to Martha Price, who lies near her; ſhe died a Maid 19 June, 1681. Aged ſixteen Years.

NEAR which lies Mary Lucy, buried here in 1708.

ADJOINING to Bringfield's, is another Military Monument of excellent Workmanſhip, and one of the greateſt Pieces of Sculpture in the Church, erected to the Memory of another brave Man who fell in Battle, viz. Brigadier Killigrew, ſlain at the famous Battle of Almanza in Spain, with this Epitaph:

P. M.
Robert Killigrew, of Arwenak in the County of Cornwall, Eſq; Son of Thomas and Charlotte, Page of Honour to King Charles the Second, Brigadier-General of her Majeſty's Forces; killed in Spain in the Battle of Almanza, the 14th Day of April, Anno Dom. 1707. Ætatis ſuæ 47, Militavi annis 24.

NEXT is a Monument of Marble, with a Lady kneeling, and Cherubs crowning her, erected to the Lady Mary Beaufoy, whoſe Poſture points out to us her Practice; and the Epitaph very modeſtly, inſtead of dwelling on the Praiſes of

of the Dead, closes with an excellent Advice to the Living, for whose Instructions, it seems, and not out of Ostentation, this was erected; the Epitaph as follows:

Near this Place lyes the Body of Mrs. Mary Beaufoy, the only Daughter and Heir of Sir Henry Beaufoy, of Guyscliffe near Warwick, by the Honourable Charlotte Lane, eldest Daughter of George Lord Viscount Lansborough, and now the Widow Lady Beaufoy, who caused this Effigies to be made and erected at her own Charge in Memory of her dear Daughter, the Loss of whom she shall (while she lives) very much lament.

Reader, who e're thou art, let the Sight of this Tombe imprint in thy Mind, that Young and Old without Distinction leave this World, and therefore fail not to secure the next. Obiit July the 12th, 1705.

This young Lady was buried on the 17th of July, and lies close adjoining Ben. Johnson's Feet.

Next is an old monumental Pedestal Touch, on which is the Effigies of a Lady in the Elizabeth Dress, kneeling; the English of the Epitaph is thus:

In hope of a Resurrection
here lies Jane Stoteville, Daughter of Thomas Stoteville of Brinkley
in the County of Cambridge, Esq;
married first to Edward Ellis of Chesterton,
in the County of Cambridge, Esq;
to whom she bare six Sons and three Daughters, afterwards married to Othowel Hill, Dr. of Civil Laws, and Chancellor of the Diocese of Lincoln, whose Widow she died
27 April 1631, aged 78.

Virtue survives Death.

Next is a double Monument of white Marble, being two oval Tables between three wreathed Pillars; on the first this Inscription:

Near this Place
lie, in certain Hopes of a Resurrection, the Ashes of Thomas Mansel, Eldest Son of Bass Mansel of Britton Ferri in Glamorganshire, Esq;
he took to Wife
Elizabeth, Daughter and Heir of Richard Game, of Penderin in Brecknockshire, Esq;
by whom he had
one Son Thomas and two Daughters,
Mary and Elizabeth,
He died the 13th of December, 1684,
aged 38 Years.

On the second the Inscription is in English for William Morgan, thus:

Here lyes the Body of William Morgan, second Son of William Morgan, of Tredegar in the County of Monmouth, Esq; who dyed the first day of February, One thousand six hundred eighty three, in the nineteenth Year of his Age.

Against a Pillar, on a Table of white Marble, this Inscription:

Near this Place lyeth the Body of Edward Herbert of Swanzey, in the County of Glamorgan, Esq;
who was lineally descended from Sir George Herbert of Swanzey aforesaid, Kt.
first Sheriff of that County since the Union of the Principality of Wales, (viz.) in the Year 1542. The said Edward married Elizabeth, the eldest Daughter of Philip Herbert, Esq; and died
the 18th Day of December,
Anno Dom. 1715. in the 23d Year of his Age, leaving Issue by the said Elizabeth, one Son, Thomas Herbert, Esq;
aged two Years
at the Time of his decease.

N. B. He was buried the 24th of September, in a Coffin of Lead, at the Foot of the Pillar adjoining to his Monument, and on the Grave-stone:

Here lies the Body of Edward Herbert, of Swanzey in the County of Glamorgan, Esq; he died Sept. 18th, in the 23d Year of his Age.

And near it another thus inscribed:

Here-under is buried the Body of EDWARD MANSELL, eldest Son of Sir Edward Mansell of Margam in the County of Glamorgan, Bart.
who died the 20th Day of June, 1681.
in the 15th Year of his Age.

Next is a large one of white Marble for Robert and Richard Cholmondeley, Sons of the Lord Viscount Cholmondeley; on which is an Inscription thus in English:

Here lie buried two Sons of the most noble Lord Robert Viscount Cholmondeley, of which, Robert, his second Son, not 14 Years of Age, but a most promising Youth,
of a maiden Bashfulness, but of manly Disposition, was a King's Scholar, and noble Ornament of this College,
His commendable Advances in Latin, Greek, and Hebrew Letters, he so honoured with a generous Disposition, that you might perceive him descended from that antient Family of the Cholmondeleys.
He died Feb. 4. in the Year of our Redemption, 1678.
Richard the other Son, and fourth by Birth, gave such Proofs of a fine Genius, that one might easily know him to be the Brother.
He died Non. Jun. in the Year of our Lord, 1680.

On a blue Grave-stone:

Here lie interred the Bodies of Robert and Richard Cholmondeley, Sons to the Right Hon. Robert Lord Cholmondeley, 1682.

Opposite to this on the North Side of the Nave, near the third Pillar from the Choir, is a Grave-stone thus inscribed:

Here lies the Body of Mrs. CATH. HYDE, who died Feb. 22, 1706.

Sacred to the pious Memory of
G. T.

Here lies GILBERT THORNBURGH, who was always faithful to his God, his Prince, and his Friends, formerly an earthly, now a heavenly Courtier,

It shall be no more said in the Age to come,
Who would become Good must leave the Court,
When such shining Piety as his shall appear there.
He died the 6th of October,
Ann. Dom. 1677, aged 56.

ON his Grave-stone:

Here lies the Body of GILB. THORNBURGH, Esq; Gentleman of the Collar to the King, who died the 6th Day of Octob. 1677, in the 56th Year of his Age. Mark the perfect Man, and behold the Upright, for the End of that Man is Peace, Psal. xxvii. 37.

NEXT which is a Rostral Column of curiously veined Marble, with the Prows of some of the Galleys shamefully broken, erected to Admiral Baker, with this Inscription:

M. S.
To the Memory of John Baker, Esq; Vice-Admiral of the White Squadron of the British Fleet; who, when he commanded in the Mediterranean, Dyed at Port Mahon the 10th of November, 1716. Æt. 56. He was a brave, judicious and experienced Officer; a sincere Friend, and a Lover of his Country. Manet post Funera virtus.

OPPOSITE to which in the Nave, 13 Feet from the Choir lies Sir Ralph Delaval, buried 23. Jan. An. 1706-7.

NEXT to Baker's is one of black and white Marble, with naval Trophies, and on a Pyramid a Busto of Henry Priestman, Commissioner of the Admiralty, with this Epitaph, as follows:

M. S.
To the Memory of Henry Priestmam, Esq; Commander in Chief of a Squadron of Ships of War, in the Reigne of King Charles II. A Commissioner of the Navy, and one of the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High-Admiral of England, in the Reigne of King William the III. ob. xx. Aug. MDCCXII. Æt. LXV. Heu Prisca Fides.

NEXT which is a handsome Monument for Thomas Levingston, Lord Teviot, who died Jan. 14, 1710, aged 60 Years, with this Epitaph in English thus:

Sacred to the Memory of
THOMAS LEVINGSTON, Kt. and Bart.
Viscount de Teviot,
Baron Livingston of Peebles,
who,
born in Holland, descended from the antient Family of the Levingstons in Scotland.
From his Childhood
being conversant with Arms, and with Glory advanced to several military Titles, was, at length in the Reign of William III.
(under whom, while Prince of Orange, he had long and bravely fought,
and whom he attended
into Britain,
as a Colonel of Foot,) made Lieutenant-General in the Army, and General of the Scotch Forces, Master of the Ordinance, and Privy Counsellor
While Scotland was inflamed with Civil Broils, he happily engaged the Enemy at the River Spee;
by that Means securing Peace to his Country, and the Nation to the King;
for which brave Actions,
he was by his grateful Prince,
added to the Nobility.
To this great Man,
so well deserving of his Country,
Alexander Levingston, Kt. and Bart.
his only Brother and Heir
erected this Monument.
He died at LONDON, Jan. 14, 1710, aged sixty Years.

THIS Grave-stone is at the Entrance of the Choir, and on it this Inscription:

THOMAS VISCECOMES TEVIOT, obiit 14 Jan. 1710. Ætatis suæ 60.

AT his Head lies Elizabeth Freake, before-mention'd, and in the same Grave Judith Austin.

NEXT is a monumental Pedestal supporting a Figure of Time, in his Right Hand a Scroll with Sapphick Verses, and over all a Busto representing Mr. Philip Carteret, Son of the Lord Carteret, and King's Scholar of this College, the Verses in English are as follows:

1.

Why do the tuneful Chorus join
In mournful Songs, regret thy Fate,
The fleeting Joys of thee and thine,
And Pleasures of too short a Date?
Why my too hasty Scyth upbraid,
And wail the cruel Wound it made?

2.

See what a worthless Thing is Bloom,
Behold my Boy the poor Reward,
But I, obsequious at thy Tomb,
Will ever stand a watchful Guard;
In letter'd Marble shew thy Name,
And tell the World thy matchless Fame.

3.

Thy spotless Piety in Youth,
For Learning thy untoil'd desire,
Thy Manners strict, and antient Truth,
Shall make the Age to come admire.
The future wond'ring Youth while I relate,
Fir'd at thy worth shall strive to emulate.

ON the Foot of the Monument:

The Honourable Youth
PHILIP CARTERET,
Second Son of the Lord George Carteret,
Baron of Hawnes,
Scholar of this College,
and
Ripe for the University, died March 19,
MDCCX.
aged 19.

NEXT is a Monument of black and white Marble, adorned with Foliage, Fruitage, and with this Inscription:

To the Memory of their most beloved Son,
Edward Carteret, Gentleman,
(Son of Sir Edward de Carteret,
Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod,
And first Gentleman-Usher, Daily-Waiter in Ordinary to the King)

His

His Father, and Dame Elizabeth his Mother, have cauſed this Monument to be erected:
His Body lieth under the Stone beneath;
He died the thirtieth Day of October,
1677.
Aged ſeven Years and nine Months.

He lies under a Grave-ſtone adjoining Sides with that of Philips's, and bears this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Body of Edward de Carteret, Son of Sir Edward de Carteret, Gentleman-Uſher of the Black Rod.

In the ſame Grave with Philip Cartaret, and upon his Coffin, lies his Mother Dame Elizabeth Carteret, Widow of Sir Philip de Carteret. She was buried on the 29th Day of March, Anno 1717, being 51 Years of Age; her Monument ſee hereafter.

On a Black Marble Grave-ſtone under the Monument:

Honorabilis Philippus Carteret, obiit Mart. xix.
MDCCX. Ætatis ſuæ xix.

Near which, without any Inſcription, lies Sir Charles de Carteret, Bart. Lord of Ouen and Sork, and Bailiff off Jerſey; he died the 3d Day of June 1715, aged 34 Years; and was buried the 8th of the ſame Month.

On a Grave-ſtone under Philip Carteret's Monument:

Here lieth the Body of Margaret Stradling, Wife to Dr. George Stradling, Prebendary
of this Church.
Who died Sept. 19, An. Dom. 1681.
And alſo the Body of the ſaid George Stradling,
Who departed this Life,
April 18, 1688.

Next Carteret's is a Marble Monument for the Lord Dunbar, with this Inſcription:

Near this, lies the Right Honourable Robert Lord Conſteable, Viſcount Dunbar, who departed this Life Nov. 23. Anno Dom. 1714, in the 64th Year of his Age.

Near which is one of Black Marble, with its Inſcription, erected for Dr. Peter Heylin, and is thus Engliſhed:

Near this Place lies
the mortal Part of
PETER HEYLIN, D. D.
Subdean and Prebendary of this Church,
A Man truly memorable,
endued with excellent Qualifications, and with a Memory ſurpriſingly retentive, to which he added an unwearied Application to Studies,
Which ceas'd not after his Sight was decay'd,
he wrote much and on various Subjects,
which are now publick,
and delivered very uncommon Arguments,
in a very curious Stile;
in all which he ſhewed himſelf a Strict Aſſertor of the Church and Monarchy, no leſs in their afflicted than flouriſhing Eſtate, and at the ſame Time
a bold Antagoniſt againſt
the rebellious and ſchiſmatick Faction:
deſpiſing their Envy,
with an undaunted Reſolution.
While he intended more of the ſame Nature,
Death impoſed Silence on him, unable to ſilence his Memory,
he died aged 63.
on the 8th of May, A. D. 1662.
His afflicted Wife erected this Monument.

This Gentleman was born at Burford in Oxfordſhire, Nov. 29, 1599; educated in Hart-Hall, Oxon; Fellow of Magdalen-College; recommended to Archbiſhop Laud, when Biſhop of Bath and Wells; Chaplain to the Earl of Danby; and Chaplain to the King, 1629. He was made Rector of Hemingford in Huntingdonſhire, and Nov. 1631, Prebendary of Weſtminſter, to the great Diſſatisfaction of Dean Williams; ſoon after the King gave him the rich Parſonage of Houghton; in the Spring, in the Biſhoprick of Durham; he was afterwards Rector of Southwarnborough in Hampſhire, and Juſtice of the Peace for that County; Clerk of the Convocation in 1642. Being then proſecuted by Williams, Prynne, and others, he left all, and followed the King to Oxford, where he wrote Mercurius Aulicus. In 1643 he was ſequeſtered by Parliament, and his Books and valuable Library ſold. Archbiſhop Laud being beheaded, his Hopes were entirely blaſted, and he, with his Family, were much reduced. He left Oxford, and reſided ſome Time at Wincheſter; but that being betrayed, he eſcaped in Diſguiſe, and repaired to Minſter Lovel in Oxfordſhire, where he turned Farmer ſix Years, and in that Time compoſed his Book of Geography. After the Reſtoration, he had his former Preferments, but was reckoned of too warm a Temper for a See, and never roſe higher than to be a Subdean of this Church. He had an excellent Memory, ſolid Judgment, and ready Wit, and expreſſed himſelf with a World of Facility: He had an undaunted Courage, and equally laſh'd Popery and Puritaniſm; and it is not known whether his unbiaſſed Integrity, rather than his extraordinary Heat, did not prevent his riſing, by having Enemies in both thoſe Parties, which ſo ſtrongly prevailed after the Reſtoration. He wrote, beſides his Geography, the Life of Archbiſhop Laud, the Hiſtory of the Reformation, one of St. George, and many others. He died on Aſcenſion-Day, Anno 1662, and was buried before the Subdean's Stall.

On a Grave-ſtone:

Here lieth the Body of Walter Mortimore, Gent. who departed this Life the 8th Day of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1684, in the 38th Year of his Age.

Next Heylin's is a handſome one of White Marble for C. Williams, the Epitaph thus tranſlated:

CHARLES WILLIAMS
of Caerleon,
in the County of Monmouth, Eſq;
died the 29th of Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1720 LXXXVII.
He was truly a Chriſtian,
a ſtrenuous Defender of the Church of England, a Lover of his Country and Defender of Publick Liberty; towards the Poor, thoſe eſpecially of his Neighbourhood, devout Liberal; to his Friends generouſly munificent, particularly to him who out of a grateful Soul, erected this Mounment.
I. H.

Next to Mr. Williams's Monument, is a neat one of Marble, with his Buſto, erected to the Memory of William Crofts, Doctor of Muſick, Organiſt of the Royal Chapel, and of this Collegiate Church.

And

AND near that, a Monument for Dr. Blow, the famous Organiſt, with this Inſcription:

Here lies the Body of JOHN BLOW, Doctor in Muſic. Who was Organiſt, Compoſer, and Maſter of the Children of the Chapel Royal, for the Space of 35 Years: In the Reigns of King Charles II. King James II. King William and Queen Mary, and her preſent Majeſty Queen Anne. And alſo Organiſt of this Collegiate Church about fifteen Years. He was Schollar to the excellent Muſician Dr. Chriſtopher Gibbons, and Maſter to the famous Mr. H. Purcell, and moſt of the eminent Maſters in Muſic ſince. He died Oct. 1, 1708, in the 60th Year of his Age. His own Muſical Compoſitions (eſpecially his Church-Muſic) are a far nobler Monument to his Memory, than any other can be raiſed for him.

OVER-AGAINST this for Dr. Blow, is a fine Marble Monument erected to the Memory of Dr. Hugh Chamberlain, who died the 17th of January 1728, in the 74th Year of his Age.

ON a White Marble Monument affixed to a Pillar near the Choir, for Sir Thomas Duppa, with the following Inſcription:

NEAR this Place lies the Body of Sir Thomas Duppa, Kt. who in his Youth waited upon King Charles the Second, when he was Prince of of Wales; and under the Tuition of the Rev. Dr. Duppa, afterwards Lord Biſhop of Wincheſter; by whom he was brought to Court, and by his Majeſty's Favour made Gentleman-Uſher, Daily Waiter, and afterwards Gentleman-Uſher of the Black Rod; in which Office he died April the 25th, 1694, aged 75.

NEXT is a Monument of Black and White Marble, for Mr. Le Neve, with the following Inſcription:

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Le Neve, Eſq; who after ſeveral Engagements for his Majeſties Service, wherein he behaved himſelf with Honour and Applauſe, being appointed Commander of his Majeſties Ship the Edgar, was unfortunately killed in the Flower of his Age, being but 27 Yeares old; after hee had ſignalized his Valour to Admiration in that ſharp Engagement with the Hollanders, which happened on the 11th of Auguſt 1673.

NEXT one for Mr. Purcel, with this Inſcription:

Here lyes Henry Purcell, Eſq; who left this Life, and is gone to that Bleſſed Place, where only his Harmony can be exceeded. Obiit 21mo die Novembris, Anno Ætatis ſuæ 37mo Annoq; Dom. 1695.

AT Mr. Purcell's Feet lies buried Mrs. Purcell his Wife, who ſurviving him ten Years, was buried here the 14th of February 1706, without any Inſcription over her.

ON a Grave-ſtone:

Here lies
ANNE RADCLIFFE,
Wife of Sir George Radcliffe, Kt.
Daughter of Sir Francis Trappes, Kt.
of the County of York;
She died Anno 1659,
on the 13th of May, aged 58 Years.

NEAR which is Sir Thomas Duppa's Grave; and not far diſtant, on a Grave-ſtone, this Inſcription:

Here lies the Right Honourable Lord Courcy.

To whom is erected a Marble Monument, with his Effigies at full Length, ſupported by two Bodys kneeling, and on it this Inſcription:

Here lies the Body of the Right Honourable Almericus de Courcy Lord Courcy, of Courcy County, and Baron Kinſale, of the Kingdom of Ireland; deſcended from the famous John de Courcy, Earl of Ulſter (who in the Reign of King John, in Conſideration of his great Valour, obtained that extraordinary Privilege to him and his Heirs, of being cover'd before the King. This Lord was much in Favour with King Charles II. and King James II. and commanded a Troop of Horſe under the latter. He married Ann Daughter of Robert Dring, of Iſleworth in the County of Middleſex, Eſq; by Order of whoſe Will this Monument is erected to the Memory of her late Lord, he dying without Iſſue.

THE ſaid Lady left divers Charities to the Pariſh of Iſleworth, particularly 300 Pounds to the Alms-houſe, 200 Pounds to the Charity-School, 100 Pounds to the poor Houſe-keepers, and is interred by her ſaid Lord, who died February the 9th, 1719, aged 57.

NEXT to this is a large Marble Monument, being the Effigies of a Lady at full Length, lifting her Hand up to one Boy, while another at her Feet ſeems to have opened a Roll, with the following Inſcription upon it:

Near this Place lyeth buried Dame Elizabeth Carteret, Daughter of Sir Edward Carteret, Kt. Gentleman-Uſher of the Black Rod in the Reign of King Charles the Second; Relict of Sir Philip Carteret, Bart. and by him Mother of Sir Charles Carteret, Bart. her only Son, interred likewiſe near this Place; by whoſe Deceaſe, June 6, A.D. 1715, in the 34th Year of his Age, was extinguiſhed the eldeſt Branch of the antient Family of the Name of Carteret, Seigneurs of St. Ouen; born in the Iſland of Jerſey. She died March the 26th, A. D. 1717, aged 52 Years.

NORTH CROSS.

ON the South Side, againſt the Back of the Veſtry, is an antient one of a Gentleman lying at full Length in a tufted Gown, railed in with Iron, for Sir Thomas Hesket, with the Epitaph thus Engliſhed:

Sacred to the Memory of
THOMAS HESKET, Kt.
Deſcended of the antient and honourable Family of the Heskets in the County of Lancaſter;
Attorney of the Court of Wards and Liveries, and one of the Council appointed for the North;
A Man as of deep Acquaintance with the Law ſo of ſingular Integrity of Life.
Julian his moſt afflicted Wife, out of her Love and Duty to her moſt dear Husband,
erected this Monument.
He died 15th Octob. 1605.

ON

On a Grave-ſtone near the Door entering the Choir:

Mary,
the moſt beloved Wife of Thomas Willis,
Dr. in Phyſick,
and Daughter of Samuel Fell, D. D. and Dean of Chriſt-Church in Oxford, valuable for Piety, Prudence, and Sweetneſs of Manners of all
but chiefly of her Husband.
She died loved and lamented, on the Vigil of all Saints, Anno Dom. 1670.
and is buried here,
expecting the eternal Day-break of that Feſtival.
In the ſame Grave was buried their Daughter Katherine, on the Day after Michaelmas,
Anno 1667.

Against the Skreen of St. John's Chapel, is a Monument of White Marble, for Sir Gilbert Lort, Bart. with this Epitaph as follows:

Sacred
To the dear Memory of her loving Brother Sir Gilbert Lort, of Stackpoole in the County of Pembrook, Bart. the onely Son of Sir John Lort, Bart. deceaſed, by the Right Honourable Dame Suſanna, one of the Daughters of the Right Honourable John Lord Holles, late Earle of Clare; who changed this Life for a better on the xix Day of September MDCXCVIII. in the xxviii Year of his Age. Dame Elizabeth Campbell, Widdow and Relict of Sir Alexander Campbell, late of Calder in the Kingdom of Scotland, Kt. hath dedicated this Monument.

Near this Monument lyeth the ſaid Dame Elizabeth Cambell: She died September the 28th, 1714, in the 49th Year of her Age.

On a Grave-ſtone adjoining the Baſis, Dame Elizabeth Campbell, Widow, A. D. 1713; at the Head of it Sir Gilbert Lort's Grave-ſtone; and at his Head, on a Grave-ſtone, is this Inſcription:

Here lieth the Body of
Sir THOMAS NEVILE, Bart.
Who was Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to King Charles II. and King James II.
He died on the 25th of Feb. 1711,
in the 87th Year of his Age.

On a Grave-ſtone adjoining the Left Side:

Here lieth the Body of Dame SARAH NEVILE,
the Wife of Sir Thomas Nevile, Bart.
Who departed this Life the 17th Day of Octob.
in the Year of our Lord 1710,
in the 60th Year of her Age.

On another adjoining left of that, and on the ſame Stone under it:

Here lieth alſo interred the Body of
Mrs. Mary Richbele, his Siſter,
Who departed this Life the 6th of Nov. 1721, at 31 Years of Age.

Near that of Lort, on a handſome Monument, being an Urn wreathed and crowned with a Viſcount's Coronet, on a Pedeſtal of veined Marble, is this Inſcription:

M. S.
Here lieth interred the Body of Dame MARY JAMES,
late Wife of Sir John James, Knight, deſcended of the antient Family of the Lords of Hoſtrick in the Province of Holland, and Daughter of Sir
Robert Killigrew, Knight, ſome Time Vice-Chamberlain to Mary, late Queen of England, and Wife of his Sacred Majeſty King Charles I.
(of bleſſed Memory)
by whom he had Iſſue one Son, named John, and one Daughter, named Elizabeth,
Who died in their Infancy.
The ſaid Mary James departed this mortal Life on the ſixth Day of November
in the Year of our Lord 1677.

On a Grave-ſtone near the Middle of this Croſs:

Here lieth the mortal Part of Sir HENRY DE VIC, Bart.
and Chancellor of the Noble Order of the Garter.
He departed this Life November 26, 1672.
He was married to Margaret Carteret, the Daughter of Sir Phil. Carteret of the Iſle of Jerſey.
By whom he had Charles de Vic, Bart.
and Anne Charlotte de Vic, married to John Lord Freſhiville, Baron of Stavely,
in the County of Derby,
who cauſed this Stone to be here laid,
to the Memory of her dear Father.

N. B. This de Vic was of the Iſle of Guernſey, and was Reſident at Bruſſels near twenty Years for King Charles I.

Adjoining on the Left Side, on a Grave-ſtone:

Here lies DIDACUS SANCHEZ, de Ribar de Viera in Spain, deſcended from a Noble Family in France. He died Anno Dom. 1557.
on the 16 Kal. June,
in the Reign of Philip and Mary.

On a white Marble Monument fix'd to a Pillar near St. Michael's Chapel, is this Inſcription:

Grace, eldeſt Daughter to Sir Thomas Mauleverer, of Allerton Mauleverer,
in Yorkſhire, Baronet,
Born in the Year 1622.
Married unto Colonel Thomas Scot,
a Member of the Hon. Houſe of Commons 1644, and died the 24th of February 1645.
He that will give my Grace but what is hers,
Muſt ſay her Death hath not made only her dear Scot,
But Virtue, Worth, and Sweetneſs, Widowers.
Ex terris.

Next it, and placed where was the Screen to St. Michael's Chapel, is a ſtately Monument, erected to the Loyal Duke and Dutcheſs of Newcaſtle: The Latin Inſcription on the Tomb is thus tranſlated:

Here lies that renowned Heroe,
WILLIAM CAVENDISH, Kt. of the Bath, and Baron Ogle, in Right of his Mother, Viſcount Mansfield, and Baron Cavendiſh of Boleſover,

Earl of Ogle,
Earl, Marquiſs, and Duke of Newcaſtle upon Tine,
Lord-Lieutenant of the Counties of Nottingham and Northumberland, Firſt Lord of the Bedchamber to the King,
Guardian to Prince Charles,
Privy Counſellor to the King, and Knight of the moſt noble Order of the Garter:
A Nobleman,
who ſhowing abundant Fidelity and Courage to the King's Majeſty, at the Beginning of the Grand Rebellion, was deſervedly made Captain-General of the Forces raiſed in the North of the Kingdom.
In ſeveral Battles,
(where he generally came off Victor) and in defending the City of York againſt the Scots, he gave Proofs, in all Reſpects, of his Integrity and unſhaken Courage;
for which Reaſon,
When the Rebellion grew ſtrong,
(being one of the firſt deſigned a Sacrifice,) he left his Eſtate, and with great Reſolution endured a long Exile.
He firſt married Elizabeth, only Daughter and Heir of William Baſſet of Blore in the County of Stafford, Eſq;
Who bare him Sons, Charles who died without Iſſue, and Henry, Heir of the Honours;
Daughters,
Jane, married to Charles Cheney of Cheſham, Bucks, Elizabeth to John Earl of Bridgwater, and Frances to Oliver Earl of Bolingbroke.
He died the 27th of December,
in the Year of Redemption 1676, and of his Age the 84th.

AGAINST the North Wall of this Croſs, on a plain Table of Black Marble, is this Inſcription:

THOMAS BLAGG, Eſq; deſcended of an antient and noble Family in the County of Suffolk, a Perſon endowed with great Excellencies of Mind and Body, to which he added the uſeful Parts;
Famous in War and in Peace;
truſted and eſteemed among the firſt by King Charles I. and II.
by both whom he was nominated into the honourable Attendance in the Bedchamber.
He did great Service in War, eſpecially when Governor of the Caſtle of Wallingford, which after the others were even all taken,
he long and briskly held out, nor would withdraw the Gariſon till the King commanded him.
He ſuffered very much likewiſe for the King's Cauſe while in a long Exile; often taken a Priſoner in his Country, he in every Place ſhewed an extraordinary Example of obſtinate Fidelity,
For which Merits, after the King's happy Reſtauration, he was made Colonel of a Troop of Guards, and Governor of Yarmouth, and the Garriſon of Langerfort.
He died, greater Honours waiting for him,
had not untimely Death prevented.
And he left his Prince (to whom in his Troubles he firmly adher'd) now in his Proſperity, and when he was in a Condition to reward him.
He died devoutly and as a Chriſtian,
Nov. 4. 1660, in the 74th Year of his Age.

AGAINST the ſame Wall, on one of Alabaſter, with a ſmall Buſto, this Inſcription:

Sacred to the Memory of
WILLIAM SANDERSON, Kt.
Gentleman of the Bedchamber to the King,
a Man famous for his Family,
Learning, untainted Fidelity to his Prince his Writings and Integrity;
he wrote in Engliſh, (among other Pieces) and publiſhed the Hiſtory of the Lives of Mary Queen of Scots, James and Charles the Firſt, Kings of Great Britain.
After great Hardſhips ſuſtained under the late Tyranny of Rebels, after daily Fatigues at home and abroad (bravely overcome)
after a full Length of 90 Years of this troubleſome Life, (having ſtill his Underſtanding perfect)
he went to a better,
15 July, Anno 1676.
To her moſt deſerving Husband,
with whom for 50 Years he had lived very amicably, Bridget, Daughter of Sir Edward Tyrrel, Kt. and Mother of the Maids of Honour to the moſt noble and ſerene Queen Catherine, hath with Tears erected this Monument.

ON a Grave-ſtone:

H. M.
After L Years Cohabitation
in Marriage
Here lies interred
The Body of Sir William Sanderſon, Kt.
Gentleman of his Majeſty's Privy-Chamber,
Deceaſed July 15th 1676, aged 90.
And
Dame Bridget his Wife,
Mother of the Maids of Honour to the Queen Mother, and to her that now is,
Who died Jan. 17th 1681, aged 89.

AGAINST the Weſt Wall is a ſmall Oval Table of White Marble erected in Memory of William Johnſon; the Inſcription in Engliſh, thus:

Sacred to Memory
of that Delight of the Muſes and Graces
WILLIAM JOHNSON, D. D.
Sub-almoner to King Charles the Second, laid his Mortality near this Place,
often ſhipwreck'd,
at length he reſts in this Harbour, and his Soul with God, whoſe Saying was,
God with us.
If you would ſee his Picture conſult his Book.
He died in the 57th Year of his Age, of our Salvation 1666, March 4.

ON a Grave-ſtone near the Font:

Here lieth the Body of
CLEMENT SAUNDERS, Eſq;
Son of Sir William Saunders of Eaſt Haddon, and ſometime of Cottesbrook in the County of Northhampton, Kt.
Carver in Ordinary to King Charles II.
King James II. and to his preſent Majeſty
K. William III. He departed this Life on the 10th of Aug. 1695, in the 84th Year of his Age.

AGAINST

AGAINST the Skreen of St. Andrews Chapel is erected a moſt magnificent Monument for the late Duke of Newcaſtle, with its Inſcription as follows:

JOHN HOLLES, Duke of Newcaſtle, Marquis and Earl of Clare, Baron Haughton of Haughton, and Knight Companion of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, whoſe Body is here depoſited under the ſame Roof, with many of his noble Anceſtors and Relations of the Families of Vere, Cavendiſh, and Holles, whoſe eminent Virtues he inherited, and was particularly diſtinguiſhed for his Courage, Love to his Country, and Conſtancy in Friendſhip, which Qualities he exerted with great Zeal and Readineſs, whenever the Cauſe of Religion, his Country or Friends required him.

In the Reign of Queen Anne he fill'd, with great Capacity and Honour, the ſeveral Employments of Lord Keeper of the Privy-Seal, and Privy Counſellor, Lord Lieutenant and Cuſtos Rotulorum of Middleſex and Nottingham, and of the County of the Town of Nottingham, and of the Eaſt and North Ridings of the County of York, Lord Chief Juſtice in Eyre, North of Trent, and Governor of the Town and Fort of Kingſton upon Hull. To which Titles and Honours his Perſonal Merit gave a Luſtre, that needed not the Addition of the great Wealth which he poſſeſſed.

He was born the 9th of Jan. 1661-2, and dy'd the 15th of July 1711.

He marry'd the Lady Margaret, third Daughter and Heir to Henry Cavendiſh, Duke of Newcaſtle, by whom he left Iſſue one only Child, the Lady Henrietta Cavendiſh Holles Harley, who cauſed this Memorial of him to be here erected in the Year of our Lord 1723.

ON each Side the Weſt Door going into the Choir, is erected a magnificent Monument, one to that great Philoſopher Sir Iſaac Newton, the other to the late Earl Stanhope.

THE firſt is as follows: On a Pedeſtal is placed a Sarcophagus (or Stone Coffin) upon the Front of which are Boys in Baſſo Relievo, with Inſtruments in their Hands, denoting his ſeveral Diſcoveries, viz. one with Priſm, on which principally his admirable Book of Light and Colours is founded; another with a reflecting Teleſcope, whoſe great Advantages are now ſo well known; another Boy is weighing the Sun and Planets with a Stilliard; the Sun being near the Centre on one Side, and the Planets on the other, alluding to a celebrated Propoſition in his Principia; another is buſy about a Furnace; and two others (near him) are loaded with Money as new coined, intimating his Office in the Mint.

ON the Sarcophagus his own Figure is placed, in a cumbent Poſture, his Elbow reſting on the ſeveral incomparable Books written by him; two Boys ſtand before him with a Scroll, on which is drawn a remarkable Diagram, relating to the Solar Syſtem; and over that a converging Series, an Invention which ſhews the utmoſt Stretch of Human Underſtanding, BEHIND the Sarcophagus is a Pyramid; from the Middle of it a Globe ariſes in Mezzo Relievo, on which ſeveral Conſtellations are drawn, in order to ſhew the Path of the Comet in 1681, whoſe Period he has, with the greateſt Sagacity determined: And alſo the Poſition of the Solſtical Colure, mentioned by Hipparchus, by which (in his Chronology) he has fixed the Time of the Argonautic Expedition.

ON the Globe ſits the Figure of Aſtronomy, weeping, with a Sceptre in her Hand (as Queen of the Sciences) and a Star over her Head on the Pyramid.

"THE Monument erected in Honour of the "late Sir Iſaac Newton, ſays the Author of A "Critical Review of the Publick Buildings, has "pretty much divided the publick Opinion; "ſome extolling it as one of the moſt perfect "Pieces both in Deſign and Execution, and "others again depreciating it, as no Way re"markable for either; I chuſe, ſays the ſame "Author, to ſteer between theſe two Extreams, "as neareſt to Truth, and agreeable to the beſt "of my Underſtanding; I therefore make no "Scruple to own, that the Statue of Sir Iſaac "has ſomething in it exceedingly venerable, "bold and majeſtick; it commands Attention, "and expreſſes Importance; but then the Acti"on it is employed in is vain, and of Courſe out "of the Character it repreſents; Sir Iſaac, tho' "one of the greateſt Men who ever did Honour "to Humanity, was at the ſame Time the leaſt "proud and aſſuming; and delivered ſome of "the fineſt Principles of Philoſophy as doubtful, "which all his Readers thought demonſtrated: "'twas wrong therefore to give him that Vanity "after his Death, which never belonged to him "in his Life: If the two Boys at his Feet, which "diſplay the Scroll, had done it only to the "Spectator, and Sir Iſaac had not been con"cerned in it, it would have anſwered every "Way; and engaging the Philoſopher in pro"found Contemplation in the mean while, had "expreſſed his Knowledge as well, and his Cha"racter better.

"The Bas-Reliefs on the Urn are moſt excel"lent, and do great Honour to Rysbrack; the "principle Figure in particular that weighs the "Sun, and all our planetary Syſtem by the "Stilliard, is admirable, and the Device is beau"tiful and fully expreſſing Sir Iſaac's Doctrine "of Gravitation, which is the Baſis of his Fame: "The Boys that are introduced to tell you he "was Mint-Maſter, is trifling and poor, un"worthy of the reſt, and no compliment to him; "neither is the Conceit of the Aloe Plant, in "the other Corner of the Tablature leſs faulty; "becauſe it is to the full as inſignificant, and "abundantly more obſcure.

"THE Globe in the back of the Monument, "is almoſt a general Objection, as projecting too "forward on the Sight, and ſpoiling the keeping "of the Whole. I fancy another Pedeſtal, well "proportioned, had been eſteemed a more natu"ral Support for the Figure of Aſtronomy above, "and would have had Room in the Middle of "it to introduce the Globe to more Advan"tage; but this I leave to the Determination "of better Judges.

"THE upper Part of the Figure of Aſtrono"my is, without controverſy, one of the moſt "delicate Things that can be imagined; the "Manner and Action are both faultleſs, and the "Expreſſion of the Face is at once thoughtful "and compoſed, ſweet and majeſtick; I wiſh "the reſt of it had been anſwerable, but it is "quite the contrary in all Reſpects; the Legs "are clumſy, and incumbered with Drapery, and "ſo far from being beautifully or naturally diſ"poſed, that they are piled one upon another, "and put me in Pain for Fear the Figure ſhould "roll off the Globe, for want of a due Poiſe to "keep it faſt.

"UPON the Whole, tho' it is, at leaſt one of "the moſt pardonable Monuments I have ſeen, "and I am poſitive the next Age will be alike "pleaſed to ſee ſuch another Genius as Newton, "and ſuch another Maſter as Rysbrack to do "Honour to his Memory.

SIR Iſaac Newton was born the 25th of December, A. D. MDCXLII, and died the 20th of March, MDCCXXVI.

THE

THE other Monument, which is erected to the Memory of Lord Stanhope, has ſomething in the Deſign of it like that of Sir Iſaac Newton's, which makes them ſeem uniform Ornaments in the Front of the Choir; but the Execution of the laſt is very bad, compared to the other.

THE Author, above-quoted, gives this Account of it: "It is all alike, huge and heavy; expenſively Gothick, and magnificently clumſey; the "Deſign is ſo trifling and abſurd, that not even "the Hand of Rysbrack can give you the leaſt "Prejudice to its Advantage: The Statue of his "Lordſhip might very eaſily be miſtaken for "that of Ajax, if Time and Place could afford "the leaſt Help to Imagination. It has the ſame "unmeaning Air and Features which that "Heroe is deſcribed with, is as enormous in "Bulk, and ſeems as void of Deſign and Penetration; Circumſtances that no Way agree "with the Character of Lord Stanhope, and "which rather lampoon than do him honour.

"THE Tent behind is moſt miſerably conceived, and the worſt adapted of any Thing I ever "ſaw in my Life; and Pallas upon the Top of "it has the moſt uneaſy Station imaginable. She "is a Gianteſs too, and ſeems to have as little "Forecaſt as her Charge below: In ſhort, if either of them have any Beauty, 'tis in being of "a Piece with each other; but even that is an "Excellency, which, I fancy, no Body will ever "envy or applaud.

EARL Stanhope died the 15th Day of February, A. D. 1720, in the 47th Year of his Age.

AGAINST the Wall under the third Arch:

Here lieth the Body of KATHERINE STROPES,
The loving Wife of William Neile. She was The kind Mother of ſeven Children, whom
She brought up with her own Breaſts:
Her Life and Behaviour may be a Pattern
For the Ages following. She was Pretty
Without Pride, Modeſt without Sullenneſs,
A good Houſewife without Curſtneſs,
Exquiſite at her Needle, courteous of Behaviour, and right godly of Converſation,
Whoſe Soul reſteth in JESUS CHRIST.
To whom ſhe committed it at her Death.
Obiit Aug. 24, 1620.

AGAINST the Wall under the third Arch, firſt Diviſion of the Arch before the Steps: In Memory of Elizabeth, the beloved Wife of Mr. Charles Weſt, Daughter of Chriſtopher Manſel, Eſq; of the County of Bucks. She dyed Nov. 7, 1710.

For her Sweetneſs of Temper
ſhe lived beloved by all her Relations.
When her Piety had made her fit for Heaven ſhe gently breath'd out her Soul, and reſts now here,
(for what cannot Faith do) in certain hope of a Reſurrection.

ON a ſmall Table of white Marble under the third Arch, or third Diviſion: Here lieth the Body of Mr. George Whicher, Yeoman of his Majeſty's Chapel Royal, obiit Feb. 4, 1681. He built and endowed an Alms-Houſe for ſix poor Men in the Pariſh of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter.

honoured with Knighthood, and having executed the Office of a Juſtice of Peace with Integrity and Diligence, being being loſt on the 4 Id. Octob. 1678.

was found five Days after,
murder'd after a cruel and barbarous Manner:
Hiſtory will inform you further.
This Monument, worn by Age,
was repaired by Benjamin,
his Brother's youngeſt Son,
and now only ſurviving of Thomas Godfrey, who added to it this Epitaph for his Brother,
4 Non. April, 1696.

On a ſmall Marble under the third Arch: In Memory of Mr. Addiſon, who died Sept. 30, 1713, and lies buried near this Place.

On a Grave-ſtone South of Lloyd's adjoining: Here lies the Body of William Aglionby, Eſq; who died the 28th of Nov. 1705, aged 63 Years, who had the Honour to ſerve his Majeſty King William III. and her preſent Majeſty Queen Anne, as Envoy Extraordinary: In Memory of him his affectionate Wife lays this Stone.

Next is a white Marble Table Monument, erected to the Memory of the late General Withers, with the following Inſcription:

HENRY WITHERS, Lieutenant-General, deſcended from a military Stock and bred in Arms in Britain, Dunkirk and Tangier; through the whole Courſe of the laſt Wars of England with France. He ſerved in Ireland, in the Low-Countries, and in Germany, was preſent in every Battle and at every Siege, and diſtinguiſhed in all by an Activity, a Valour and Zeal, which Nature gave and Honour improved: A Love of Glory and of his Country, animated and raiſed him above that Spirit which the Trade of War inſpires: A Deſire of acquiring Riches and Honours by the Miſeries of Mankind. His Temper was humane; his Benevolence univerſal; and among all thoſe antient Virtues which he preſerved in practice, and in Credit none was more remarkable than his Hoſpitality. He dyed at the Age of LXXVIII Years, on the XI of November, MDCCXXIX. To whom this Monument is erected by his Companion in the Wars, and his Friend through Life, Henry Deſney.

Here Withers reſt! thou braveſt gentleſt Mind,
Thy Country's Friend, but more of human Kind:
Oh born to Arms! Oh worth in Youth approved!
Oh ſoft Humanity in Age beloved!
For thee the hardy Vetran drops a Tear,
And the gay Courtier feels his Sigh ſincere.
Withers adieu! yet not with thee remove
Thy martial Spirit, or thy ſocial Love:
Amidſt Corruption, Luxury and Rage,
Still leave ſome antient Virtues to our Age;
Nor let us ſay (thoſe Engliſh Glories gone)
The laſt true Briton lies beneath this Stone.

On a Table Monument of white Marble, juſt without the Iron Gate of the Ambulatory: To the Memory of dear Rebecca, the Wife of James Broughton, who departed this Life the 8th of October 1699, in the 47th Year of her Age, and lies interred under the Stone near this Place.

Near this Place alſo lies the Body of the aboveſaid Mr. James Broughton, Deputy-Surveyor of this Abbey. He died the 31ſt of Jan. 1710, aged 63.

Before them a Grave-ſtone for the Wife, but defaced.

Next is a ſtately Monument lately erected to the Memory of Daniel Poulteney, Eſq; with his Effigies at full Length lying along, and the following Inſcription upon it:

Reader,
If thou art a Briton,
Behold this Tomb with Reverence and Regret,
Here lye the Remains of
DANIEL POULTENEY;
the kindeſt Relation, the trueſt Friend,
the warmeſt Patriot, the worthieſt Man;
he exerciſed Virtues in this Age, ſufficient to have diſtinguiſhed him even in the beſt:
Sagacious by Nature,
induſtrious by Habit,
inquiſitive with Art:
He gained a compleat Knowledge of the Intereſts of Britain, Foreign and Domeſtick;
in moſt the backward Fruit of tedious Experience;
in him, the early Acquiſition of undiſſipated Youth.
He ſerved the Crown ſeveral Years, abroad, in the auſpicious Reign of Queen Anne;
at home, in the Reign of that excellent Prince King George the Firſt.
he ſerved his Country always,
at Court independent,
in the Senate unbiaſſed,

at every Age, and in every Station:
This was the Bent of his generous Soul,
this the Buſineſs of his laborious Life.
Publick Men and publick Things, he judged by one conſtant Standard,
the true Intereſt of Britain:
He made no other Diſtinction of Party,
he abhorred all other.
Gentle, humane, diſintereſted, beneficent:
He created no Enemies on his own Account:
Firm, determined, inflexible:
He feared none he could create, in the Cauſe of Britain.
Reader,
in this Misfortune of thy Country lament thy own; for know, the Loſs of ſo much private Virtue is a publick Calamity.

AT the Entry into the South Ambulatory on the North Side: Here lieth the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth, Wife of William Tuffnel, of the Pariſh of St. Margaret's Weſtminſter, who departed this Life, Octob. 5, 1720, in the 39th Year of her Age.

ALSO the Body of Elizabeth Shaw, dearly beloved Wife of the aboveſaid James Shaw, who departed this Life September 7, 1713, in the 13th Year of her Age.

ON a Monument of White Marble affix'd to the Wall under the eighth Arch:

Sacred to perpetual Memory,
In Faith and Hopes of a Reſurrection, JOHN LAWRENCE
ordered his Aſhes to be buried near thoſe of his Son who dyed before him.
He was Secretary to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.
Who when he had, during the Civil War, fought for Charles I.
was, for his Integrity
Probity and Diſcretion,
an eſteemed Servant to Charles II.
for his Firmneſs to the Church of England, and ſincere Piety to God, very remarkable,
He at length returned to his heavenly Country, which he had long been wiſhing for,
Feb. 1. Anno 1684. Aged 66.

ON a Grave-ſtone under it: I. L. obiit 22 July, 1677.
J. L. obiit 1 Febr. 1684.

ON a large Blue Grave-ſtone adjoining:
A. L. obiit 7 Sept. 1687.

WEST WALK.

ON a White Table Monument againſt the Wall, under the third Arch: Near this Place lieth interred the Remains of Anne Davis, the moſt faithful, virtuous and beloved Wife of David Davis, Yeoman-Uſher of the moſt Honourable Houſe of Peers, who exchanged this Life for a better, on Decemb. 18, Anno 1712, in the 47th Year of her Age; to the unſpeakable Grief of of her ſaid Husband; and one Daughter ſhe left behind her.

Richard Booker,
of Horſeam in the County of Suſſex,
born Anno 1630,
After he had laid the Foundation of ſound Learning, in the King's School at Weſtminſter;
he was afterwards educated at Trinity College in Cambridge, adorning both Places,
and would have made them very famous had he lived;
for he was a Youth of great Hope, of as great Ingenuity as any ever was;
of a manly Judgment, even in Youth,
of ſo happy a Memory as to be envy'd;
much favoured by the Muſes and Apollo, and deſerving of the Lawrel;
but he, like a Flower more beautiful than the reſt, was cut off by the envious Hand of Death,
in the Spring of Life,
how much even to thy Loſs, O Reader!
if thou conſider it rightly;
for when he was 25 Years old,
he was taken off by the Small-Pox,
in the Year 1655,
who would have been a great Ornament of this Age;
and the Moral thou ſhalt learn from hence is,
that largeſt Structures are ſooneſt tumbled down, and higheſt Towers moſt ſuddenly overthrown.

On a Grave-ſtone in the Weſt Cloiſter: Here underneath lies buried Thomas Man, Gentleman Sewer to the King, who died the 21ſt Day of January, 1676, beloved by all good Men that knew him, for being over loyal to his Prince, and faithful to his Friend, aged 55 Years.

who nevertheleſs was more adorn'd with Virtue than her high Birth,
She married William Bulmer, Gentleman, to whom ſhe was Occaſion of no Trouble, except by leaving him at her Death, ſhe bare only one Son named William,
who was, inſtead of many, a Youth of great Genius, Student of Chriſt-Church in Oxford, of too ſhort a Continuance,
who being firſt ſnatch'd away by too haſty Death,
his moſt tender Mother choſe to be buried near him, that him, whom ſhe intirely loved when living,
ſhe might, tho' dead, unite even in Death,
ſhe ſurrender'd her Soul to God,
her Body to the Tomb,
and her Character to Poſterity,

Samuel Burck.

Perſons buried in Parts of the Church, unknown.

Harold Harefoot, Son of Cnute the Dane, and his Succeſſor by Uſurpation, died at London; or, as others ſay, at Oxford, and was buried in this Church, Anno 1040; though others, by Miſtake, ſay at Wincheſter; but upon Hardiknute's Acceſſion to the Crown, he, remembering the Injuries done by him, ſent Alfric, Archbiſhop of York, Earl Godwin, Steward of his Houſhold, Eldric, and one Trondus the Executioner, to LONDON, to have him dug out of his Grave; and beheading it, to throw it firſt into the Slough, and then into the Thames; which was accordingly done; but a Daniſh Fiſherman took up the Body, and buried it in the Church-yard of St. Clement's without Temple-Bar.

Elricus, or Celricus, Biſhop of Durham, which he reſigned, and retired to Peterborough, where he had been before Abbot, here living privately thirteen Years, or, as the Annals of Waverly ſay, twelve. He was Anno 1069, charged by William the Conqueror with Treaſon and Conſpiracy againſt him; he was violently taken out of the Cloyſter at Peterborough, and impriſoned at Weſtminſter, where, by Faſting and Tears for his his former Miſdeeds, he gained the Reputation of a Saint. He died the 15th of October, 1152. and was buried at the Porch of St. Nicholas, in the old Church, here built by Edward the Confeſſor; and his Grave long frequented by Devotees.

Sir Fulk de Novo Caſtro, or Newcaſtle, Kinſman to King Henry III. a brave Knight, and much belov'd by the King, died at LONDON, the Day after Candlemas, Anno 1247. Whereupon the King, who was in Town attending the Parliament, in Regard of his Character, order'd him to be ſplendidly and magnificently buried in this Church, himſelf attending the Obſequies.

Sir Geoffry Mandevill, Senior, and Athelard his Wife, (Mr. Keep mentions thoſe Perſons as buried here). Certain it is they were Benefactors to this Church, from whence it is likely he took his Conjecture of their Burial here. Sir William Dugdale is ſilent in this Caſe; but Walden in Eſſex, may with more Reaſon be ſuppos'd to be the Place of their Sepulchre. Sir Geoffrey Madeville, Jun.

Roger Ford, Abbot of Glaſtonbury, a Man of great Learning and a high Spirit, had high Debates with the Biſhop of Bath, which coming to LONDON to diſpute, he died ſuddenly at Bromley, the Biſhop of Rocheſter's Seat in Kent, on the 6 Non. October, 1226. being Abbot two Years, and was buried at this Abbey.

Sir James Berners, Knt. a great Favourite of King Richard II. who was beheaded by the diſcontented Lords.

Oliver de Durdens, ſaid by Mr. Keep, to be Brother to Henry III.

Peter Calhan and Sulcardus, the famous Hiſtorian, mentioned before.

Thomas Peveril, Snb-Prior of this Church.

Eleanor, Counteſs of Barr, Daughter to King Edward I. She was married Anno 1294. about Michaelmas, at Briſtol, to Henry Earl of Barr, to whom ſhe bare a Son named Edward, and a Daughter married to John de Warren, Earl of Surrey and Suſſex, ſhe died.

Sir William Stoner, Knt. ſo called by Keep, living at the Mote-Houſe in Weſtminſter. William Atcliffe, Secretary to King Edward IV. Catharine, Daughter to the Dutcheſs of Norfolk, and Wife to Edward Aylmer, Eſq; Walter Hungerford. The Lord Salisbury. William Haverell. Thomas Bunflower and Philippa his Wife. Thomas Romayne. John Alingreth. Roger Braharſen. Sir Richard Rouſe, Knt. Sir Francis Allen, Knt. Jeffrey Haſpale. James Palmer, Clerk, and Joan his Siſter, and John Blount.

William Southcoate, was buried here in the Time of Edward, and Dame Catharine Riplington, his Widow, by her Will dated the 13th of Feb. 1473. left Money here for Prayers for his Soul.

John Lord Wells, Husband to Cicely, ſecond Daughter to King Edward IV. he made his Will the 8th of Feb. 1498. and died at Palmers-Place, in St. Sythes, LONDON, on the 9th Day of February, viz. the Day following, and was interr'd by the King's Order in the Chapel of St. Mary; afterwards pulled down by King Henry VII. At his Funeral was carried a Standard, and a mourning Horſe with four Eſcutcheons of the deceaſed; on which one Villars rode, arm'd in a long black Cloak, carrying a Banner, and his Coat was worn by a Purſuivant, the Body was drawn in a mourning Chariot, and in the Abbey was a Herſe erected for him; the Dirige was ſung by the Biſhop of LONDON.

John Redmayne, Relation to Biſhop Tonſtal, of Durham, Student of Corpus Chriſti College, at the Foundation, afterwards Student at Paris, thence returning to St. John's in Oxford, in 1537. he commenced D. D. was Maſter of Trinity College, and preferr'd to a Prebendary of Weſtminſter; the firſt Poliſher of Studies at Cambridge, and a great Maſter of the Greek and Roman Eloquence; but more remarkable for being one of the firſt Compilers of our excellent Liturgy; he died in November, 1551. being aged 52.

Thomas Earl of Dorſet, was buried in this Abbey the 26th of May, 1608, at whoſe Funeral Dr. Abbot, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, preached on Iſaiah xl. v. 6. Printed at LONDON in 4*to*, the ſame Year, Hugh Holland, born at Denbigh, and educated under Camden at Weſtminſter School, after Fellow of Trinity College. He died 1633, and was buried at the Entrance to the Area in the North Croſs, with no Epitaph, though he made one, Part of which was thus: Miſerrimus peccator muſarum & amicitiarum cultor ſanctiſſimus.

John Brown, or Thomas, educated at Eaton, removed to King's College, Cambridge, Canon of Windſor, and after ſucceeded Biſhop Barlow in his Church, and was Maſter of this College School; he died, and was buried here 1584.

Theodore Price, Fellow of Jeſus College in Oxford, Principal of Hart Hall, Prebendary of Wincheſter, and Maſter of St. Croſs; he was Sub-Dean of this Church. He was eſteemed by Archbiſhop Laud, who recommended him to the King for a See: On the contrary, envied by Dean Williams, who gave out he was a Papiſt, as did that drudging blackener Prynn. He died 15 Dec. 1631.

Howard, Earl of Berks, a Loyal Aſſerter of King Charles I. He died 16 July 1669.

Henry Lawes, Servant to King Charles I. and Gentleman of this Choir, and of the Chapel to King Charles II. was buried on the 25th of October 1662.

William James, Scholar of this School, under Dr. Busby, elected Student of Chriſt Church, and laſtly, ſecond Maſter of this School. He died the 23d of July 1663, lamented by all ingenious Men that knew him, and was buried near the Lower Door, going into the Cloiſters.

Sir William Waller, General of the Parliament Army in 1642, in which he performed great Exploits againſt his Majeſty, afterwards ſuffered under Cromwell, and lived quietly after the Reſtoration, died in 1668, and was buried in the Body of the Church, near the Corner of the Choir.

The learned Archbiſhop Uſher died, and was, by Oliver Cromwell's Orders, magnificently buried in this Church during the Uſurpation.

Perſons removed after Burial:

Oliver Cromwell, the Arch-Rebel. He died of an Ague the 3d of Sept. 1658. His Body, for the Stench, was buried privately, on Feb. 26. After which a Coffin was laid to repreſent him in State, with his waxen Effigies, at Somerſet-Houſe; his Burial-ſhew was at ſuch an Expence, that the ſecond Shadow of him, his Son Richard, could never diſcharge it. In an open Chariot was his Effigies crowned, carried in the moſt ſolemn Manner, and depoſited here, where he continued ſome Time, having a ſumptuous Tomb erected for him, where the late Duke of Buckingham's now ſtands. Of his Removal hereafter.

THAT infamous Wretch Bradſhaw, Preſident of the Mock-Court of Juſtice, where he impudently inſulted and gave Sentence of Death againſt his Sovereign. He was a dark melancholy Miſcreant, and as well qualified to kill his Prince or his Father in private, as to give Judgment in publick. He died in Deſpair, i. e. that he ſhould do no more Miſchief; for in other Reſpects he was infernally infatuated; his Soul went went to its Place on the 18th Day of November, 1659, and left his wretched Carcaſs in the Dean's Houſe here, which was made a Preſent to him for his good Services. Thence it was brought into this Church, and buried the 22d following; the Reſtauration following ſoon after, there was no Monument for him.

Henry Ireton, Son-in-Law to Cromwell, who, in the Time of the Rebellion raiſed himſelf in the Army, Deputy under Cromwell in Ireland, where he fell ill on the 16th of November, 1650, and died there the 26th of the ſame Month, and in 1651, being conveyed to England, his Carcaſs landed at Briſtol, thence was pompouſly conveyed to LONDON, where it lay in State in Somerſet-Houſe; the Motto on his Hatchment being, Dulce eſt pro patria mori; which, ſays Wood, an old Cavalier is thus Engliſhed: It is good for his Country that he is dead. He was buried in King Henry VII's Chapel on the 6th of Feb. following, Dr. Owen preaching his Sermon. Afterwards a ſtately Tomb was erected over his Grave, with his Effigies and his Wife's thereon. His Body was, after the Reſtauration, taken up with Cromwell's, and ſhared the ſame Fate and Re-interrment, his Tomb and Trophies being intirely removed.

AFTER the Reſtauration of King Charles II. his Body, with that of Cromwell, was taken up, on Saturday Jan. 26, 1660, and on the Monday Night following, were drawn in two ſeveral Carts from Weſtminſter to the Red Lion in Holbourn, where they continued all Night; the Corpſe of Bradſhaw, which being buried but little more than a Year, was green and ſtank, therefore was not taking up till the Morning following, and then was carried in a Cart to the Red Lion, and the Day following being the Day of the Royal Martyrdom, they were drawn to Tyburn on three Sledges, where they were pulled out of their Coffins and hanged on the ſeveral Sides on the Gallows, where they hung till next Day Sun-ſet, at which Time they were taken down, had their Heads cut off, and the Trunks thrown into a deep Hole under the Gallows, which ſerves for the Monument of their Grave and Merit. Their Heads were fixed on Weſtminſter-Hall.

Eliza. Cromwell, Mother to Oliver, Daughter of Sir Richard Steward, Knt. died at Whitehall the 18th of November, 1654, and was buried in King Henry VII's Chapel. Afterwards, at the Reſtauration, taken up and buried with others in St. Margaret's Church-Yard.

Eliza. Claypole, Daughter to Oliver, died the 7th of Auguſt, 1658, and was buried in a Vault made purpoſely for her in King Henry VII's Chapel, and removed with her Mother.

William Twiſſe, D. D. ſome Time Chaplain to Elizabeth, Princeſs Palatine, Daughter to King James I. and Rector of Newbury in Berkſhire, a famous Diſputant in the Armenian Controverſy in 1641. He ſided with the Rebels, was one of the Aſſembly of Divines, and Prolocutor to them: He died in 1645, and was buried on the 24th of July, near Dr. Outram's Tomb in the South Croſs; and on the 14th of Sept. 1661, was taken up, with May, Marſhal, &c. and buried with them in a Pit at the Back-Door of the Prebends Lodgings.

Iſaac Doriſlaus, a Dutch Man born, firſt a School-Maſter, afterwards Doctor of Civil Law at Leyden, coming into England, was entertained by Fulk, Lord Brook; he afterwards was Aſſiſtant in drawing the Charge againſt King Charles I. After which the Rebels ſent him Ambaſſador to Holland, he arrived at the Hague in May 1649, King Charles, then in Exile, reſiding there; which Impudence of his ſome Loyaliſts reſenting, went to his Lodging, where he ſupped with many in Company; there one Colonel Whitford ſtabbed him in ſeveral Places, pulled him down to his Feet, and cut his Throat. This happened the 6th of May, and was never truly diſcovered. This the Parliament reſenting much, cauſed him to be brought over, and buried magnificently in this Church the 14th of June following.

COLONEL Edward Popham, whoſe Monument before is deſcribed and preſerved by the Interceſſion of his Wife's Friends, yet his Body, by the King's Order, was taken up and carried by his Friends into the Country. This Man had been Admiral of one of the Parliament Fleets, and died of a Fever at Dover the 19th of Auguſt, 1651, and was buried here the 14th of September following.

COLONEL Richard Dean, (a meer Seaman, from a common Mariner raiſed to be a bold Officer) Admiral for the Commonwealth, was killed in a Sea-Fight between the Engliſh and Dutch, by a Cannon-Shot from the Rear-Admiral of the latter, on the 3d of June, 1653.

COLONEL Humphry Mackworth, one of Oliver's Council, interred in King Henry VII's Chapel, with great Pomp on the 26th of December, 1654.

COLONEL Boſcawen, a Corniſh Man.

SIR William Conſtable, of Flamburgh in Yorkſhire, Colonel of a Regiment of Foot, Governor of Gloceſter, and a Judge againſt King Charles I. died the 15th of June, 1655, and was buried in King Henry VII's Chapel the 21ſt of the ſame Month.

COLONEL John Meldrum, a Scot, killed at Ailresford in Hampſhire.

Stephen Marſhal, Preacher, buried in the South Iſle, Nov. 23, 1655.

William Strong, ſome Time Fellow of Catharine Hall in Cambridge, Rector of More-Chirchele in Dorſetſhire, Miniſter of St. Dunſtan's in the Weſt, one of the Aſſembly of Divines, and Preacher of the Goſpel (ſo called) in this Abbey Church in the Time of Cromwell's Uſurpation, where he was buried on the 4th of July, 1654, Obadiah-Doomſday Sedgwick preaching his Funeral Sermon; after the Reſtauration he was removed with Marſhal, &c.

Thomas May, the Tranſlator of Lucan, and Author of many Poetical Matters, was ſome Time a great Favourite of King Charles I. and his Queen, but not rewarded as he expected, grew a Malecontent and ſided with the Rebels, who made him their Hiſtorian. He died ſuddenly in his Bed, being choaked, as ſome ſay, by the Strings of his Night-Cap, as he turned himſelf, being a fat unweildy Man, Anno 1650, and was buried where Dr. Triplet's Tomb is, in the South Croſs, where was a Table Monument, and an Inſcription inſerted in the Athenæ Oxon. His Body was taken up and re-interred with Marſhal, &c. after the Reſtoration.

William Strode, Member of Parliament for a Borough in Devonſhire, for his Fury called the Parliament-Driver. He was one of the five Members demanded by King Charles I. He died in 1645-6. and was buried in Pomp near Mr. Pymm.

Robert Blake, the famous Engliſh Admiral, who had given ſuch Proofs of his Courage as will never be forgotten. He was made Admiral by the Rebels in 1649; was a formidable Enemy to Prince Rupert, and the King's Fleet; reduced Scilly to the Parliament; routed Van Tromp and the Dutch Fleet, near the Iſle of Wight; was a Terror to the Spaniards after the Fight at Sancta Cruz, in 1657; and a Curb to the Moors after the Attempt on Tunis, after his victorious Fight at Sancta Cruz. He died of a Dropſy in Plymouth Sound, Aug. 17, 1657; his Bowels were there buried in the Church, and his Body ſheeted in Lead, whence it was brought to Greenwich, wich, and thence, in a Barge covered with Velvet and Streamers, and a vaſt Attendance of the Privy-Council, Mayor, and Aldermen, Officers of the Army, &c. attending, was brought to this Abbey and buried in King Henry VII's Vault on the 12th of September, 1661; and then (among others unwarrantably buried there in the Uſurpation) taken up and buried in the Church-Yard. He was a brave Man, and wanted nothing to make him Immortal but a legal Power to fight under.

Dennis Bond, one of the Council of State, and Attendant on Cromwell in every Thing but his Death, which happened four Days before him, viz. the 30th of Auguſt, 1658, on that windy Day, the rougheſt known, at which Time Cromwell lying ill, the Report was of the Devil's coming in that Manner; but Wags of that Time turned it into a Proverb, That Cromwell not being prepared, he gave Bond for his future appearing. He was buried here, and three Years after dug up with others, and buried in a Pit in St. Margaret's Church-Yard.

Pymm, a Corniſh Gentleman, ſome Time Clerk of the Exchequer, and a long Time Member of Parliament; but noted moſt for his unhappy Warmth in the long one, and his Fury againſt the Earl of Strafford; a Man otherwiſe of good Reputation, and reckoned, in regard to Religion, moderate enough, but by Degrees engaged himſelf deſperately againſt the King; and, ſays Lord Clarendon, No Man had his Head or Hand deeper in the Miſeries of the Nation than he; and when he had raiſed this Flame to the Height, died of a Diſtemper called Morbus Pediculoſus. as Lord Clarendon ſays; but Ruſhworth denies it, and ſays his Body was, upon a Rumour, publickly expoſed to many in December, 1643, and was buried here, Stephen Marſhal preaching his Funeral Sermon: He was buried under Windſor's Stone, on the South Side of the Sacriſtarea, and afterwards taken up and buried with the others before-mentioned, by an Order from King Charles II. to the Dean, in a Pit in St. Margaret's Church-Yard, near the Back-Door of one of the Prebendaries, on the 12th and 14th of September, 1661, with ſeveral Women and Men of no Note.

HAVING now given an Account of all the Perſons buried here, we ſhall ſpeak of other Matters belonging to this Church, and firſt of the Government of it. Among the antient Officers the Abbot had the greateſt Authority, and therefore is firſt to be taken Notice of. There is little Ground to believe that his Power or Character was very remarkable, any more than his Abbey, till the Time of Dunſtan, who being a great Favourer of the Monks, endowed his Friend Wlſine with many Privileges, altogether unknown to his Predeceſſors; but his ſhort Stay gave Way for his Succeſſors to add to them; which Wlnoth, in Cnute the Dane's Time did, who (ſays one) procured great Privileges. Nor was this Abbey leſs ſucceſsful under Edwyn, who was a Favourite of Edward the Confeſſor, who raiſed her to her higheſt Glory; it was then that this Church and her Abbot outvied any other in Dignity, being made independent of any Epiſcopal Power or Viſitation, the Pope excepted; and this William the Conqueror ſtill enlarged. Laurence, ſome Time after, attempted the Pall and Ring, which he procured, but left the firſt Uſe of them to his Succeſſor. In King Henry III's Time, Abbot Berkyng, a great Stateſman, procured their great Charter of Liberties, and of Writs and Amerciaments. Abbot Crokeſly, Lord Treaſurer, and his Favourite, procured the Power of ſolemn Benediction; and th.s by Degrees they accumulated ſuch Honours, that in King Henry IV's Time Walſingham obſerves, ſpeaking of St. Albans; Ut Albanenſe propter protomartyris noſtri Albani nobile eo loci Martyrium, ſacraſque etiam ibi reconditas Reliquias cænobium Reliquorum ſemper princeps, habitum eſt ita poſterioribus ſæculis Weſtminſterienſe maxime eminebat.

THEY generally being near the Court, were Favourites, and aſſiſted at the Births, Coronations, and laſt Anointings of ſeveral of our Princes: In Conventions of this Order they generally preſided. On the Liſt of Abbots they took the ſecond Place, and were Barons in Parliament, where Feckenham, the laſt Abbot, was the only one that ſate and voted violently againſt the Change of Religion in the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign. As to their Power in other Caſes, they had the Return of Writs, Power of Amerciaments, Trial of Crimes in their Manors, Exemption from Attendance on the Sheriff, or at County Courts, with all thoſe Privileges mentioned in the Benefactions. Of their Government more may be ſeen a large Account in Lib. Conſuet.

Of the PRIOR.

NEXT the Abbot was the Prior, an Office mentioned very early in the Lives of the Abbots, yet perhaps of no longer ſtanding than from the Time of Edgar, when he placed Regulars in this Church: Of which Priors take the beſt Account that can be gathered from Hints ſcattered thro' ſeveral Writers.

Gilbert Criſpinus, afterwards Abbot, was Prior Anno 1080.

Osbert de Clare, or Stoc-Clare, a Perſon of great Learning, who procured the Canonization of Edward the Confeſſor: He was Prior in the Times of Herbert, Gervaiſe and Laurence, Abbots. He placed Nuns in the Cell of Killburn, and died about Anno 1170. See of his Writings in the Life of Laurence, Abbot; beſides which, he wrote the Lives of St. Edward, St. Ethelbert, and St. Edburga.

Alquinus, Monk and Prior of St. Alban's, fled from the Perſecution of the Abbot Ralph to this Monaſtery, where he was received by Laurence, the Abbot, who had been his Familiar at St. Alban's. He continued ſome Years Monk here: and having brought this Convent to ſtrict Diſcipline by Example, was raiſed to be Prior. The Time of his Death is unknown.

William Poſtard ſucceeded him about 1170. He was afterwards Abbot.

Edward, whether he ſucceeded the other is unknown, but ſuch an one was before Abbot Ware's Time, who was buried in this Church.

Robert Prior, lived about the Year 1200: The Time of his Death is uncertain; but he was buried in this Church, where his Anniverſary was celebrated the ſixth Id. of December, on which he aſſigned 100 s. to the Keeper of St. Mary's Altar, to relieve 100 Poor.

Robert II. Prior of this Church, from whence he was removed and made Abbot of St. Edmund's-bury in Suffolk. His Anniverſary was celebrated here on the 16th Kal. October.

Richard Berkyng was Prior here Anno 1223, and thence elected Abbot.

To him ſucceeded one whoſe Name is unknown, but he died 1247, and was, for his ſingular Holineſs of Life buried in the Virgin Mary's Chapel, then building.

Maurice ſucceeded next, and was removed from being Precentor of this Church: He was a bold Man, and oppoſed the Pope's Innovations in his Maſter's Abſence; and during all Crokeſley's foreign Expeditions, governed the Monaſtery with great Care, and briskly made Head likewiſe againſt the Abbot's Deſigns on his Convent. The Year of his Death is uncertain.

Peter

Peter de Leveſham ſucceeded him, and was elected Abbot.

Thomas Henly is the next elected Abbot.

Simon Langham ſucceeded, and was choſen Abbot Anno 1349.

Nicholas Littington ſucceeded him as Prior and Abbot.

Edmond Kirton, removed to be Abbot 1444.

John Wratting, Prior, ſucceeded.

John Fleet was Prior here, in the Reign of King Henry VI; he wrote a Hiſtory of his Monaſtery, and ſeveral Homilies. The Time of his Death is doubtful, as are his Succeſſors Names, the latter Part of this Church being the darkeſt, as appears on Account of the Abbots.

Of other Officers.

The next Officer was the Sub-prior, who is likewiſe called the Prior of the Cloiſter, an Office under the Prior, and Aſſiſtant to him; then the third and fourth Priors, who are likewiſe called Exploratores Clauſtri, whoſe Buſineſs is to look after that Province; next the Maſter of the Novices, then the Cantor, who inſtructed the Novices in Church-Singing; under him was another called the Succentor. Theſe Officers immediately belonged to the Church, whoſe Duty and Inſtructions are largely ſet down in the 4th Part, Lib. Conſuetud. of this Abbey. But we muſt not omit dwelling on the laſt, his Buſineſs being chiefly to keep the Church clean, and the Books, Veſtments, and Ornaments of it, and to appoint the Places of Burial; alſo to provide Lights for the Church upon proper Occaſions; which Office, giving us the antient Face of Worſhip here, Mr. Dart, in his Hiſtory of Weſtminſter-Abbey, enlarges upon it, and mentions what Lights were provided by him, in the Time of King Henry III.

In the Old Presbytery, i. e. the Sides of the Choir, were formerly kept burning ſeven Candles Day and Night; but in Abbot Ware's Time, they burned but five; one large Wax, one before the Altar; and hanging at that two Lamps Night and Day; one on each Side the Altar, at the Tombs of Queen Edith and Queen Maud on all Feſtivals; and on Edith's Anniverſary there was placed a large Lamp before the Altar, and three before that which King Henry III. gave Feet to; one Lamp before the Altar of the Holy Croſs; one before the Altar of St. Paul; one before a Crucifix, where Devotees went up and down Steps to kiſs its Feet; one before the old Altar of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary; one before that of the Holy Trinity; one before the Altar of St. Benedict; two in the Choir at Evening Song; and one at the Weſt Door of the Choir; four at four Corners of the Choir; and on Feſtivals he provided likewiſe over the great Altar three Figures of Saints, each holding four Tapers, two in the Right Hand and two in the Left; which three Figures were of the Virgin Mary, St. John, and St. Catharine. Round two Iron Candleſticks ſet before the Altar, were placed ſeven Tapers, two upon (Pedones) broad-feeted Candleſticks, on the Right Side the Altar, and two on the Left, and three upon the like Candleſticks, before the three Figures: At the Altar of St. Andrew, and St. Lawrence, Silver Candleſticks were placed in the Window over them. This Account will give an Idea of the antient Face and Appearance of this Church, and the Worſhip in it, when dreſſed up according to the ſhowy Devotion of thoſe Times,

He likewiſe provided Lights for the Chapel of St. Catharine, then the ſecond in the Church, of a large Extent, and uſed in moſt Conſecrations of Biſhops, Convention of Councils, &c. but now demoliſhed, viz. four Tapers upon every Feſtival, on the Altar there, becauſe it was the ſecond Altar in the Church.

Another Officer peculiar to this Church, was the Keeper of the Altar of the Virgin Mary, an Officer appointed here before King Henry III. rebuilt her Chapel; the firſt Officer was Ralph de Glouceſter, the next was John de St. Paul, Prieſt; and next Richard Croſsley, afterwards Abbot: This Officer was choſen always in the Veſtry by the Chapter; in his Charge (beſides much Plate and Jewels) was kept the miraculous Zone or Girdle of the Virgin Mary, of ſo great Virtue to forward Conception, that while Croſsley held this Place he was ſent for, and ordered to attend upon the Queen Eleanor with it for that Purpoſe, while ſhe was in Gaſcoigne. This Keeper's Buſineſs likewiſe was to ſee the Lights kept in, and provided for the Lady Chapel, viz. on the Aſſumption and Purification of the Virgin Mary, twenty Lamps and fifty Tapers, to be placed in the Hands of Statues of Saints. In this Chapel hung a Lamp Night and Day; and afterward Ralph de Glouceſter hung two there, upon an Iron Rod, which King Henry III. removed, and ordered a Wax Taper to burn inſtead of them.

Laſtly, There was a Keeper of St. Edward's Shrine, and the Relicks placed near it, where King Henry VI's Tomb now is. Theſe were the Church-Officers.

The Officers for the Convent were, Firſt, the Cellerer, who was the ſecond Obedientiary, whoſe Care was to provide Drink for the Monks at their ordinary Meals; and the Pitances and Cups of Charity, &c. on publick Occaſions, and to Strangers; and likewiſe Bread and Proviſions. Under his Management were the Cook, the Baker, the Hoſtler, and the Gardiner. This Place of Cellerer was of a great Account, and generally one of the moſt eminent Monks held it; he had likewiſe Under-Cellerers, as, Cellerarius Curia, and Cellerarius Coquinx, &c. from which he was diſtinguſhed by the Title of Magnus Cellerarius.

Next was the Chamberlain, (Camerarius) who had the Care and Management of the Beds and Lodging of the Monks, and had under him Servants or Aſſiſtants. One John Fitz John ordered, by his Will, that the Cellerer give to the Under-Officers (Secretario Cameri) one Gallon of Wine on fifteen Feſtivals.

The Veſtiarius is by ſome reckoned the ſame Office with the former; but that is a Miſtake, his Buſineſs was to provide Clothing and Shoes for the Monks; and he had the Care of the Laundry, for waſhing the Veſtments; he had others under him, called Servi Veſtiarii; who had Wine given them as before.

The Infirmarius, or Keeper of the Infirmary, was one of the Houſe, who provided for the ſick Monks, and had the Care and Inſpection of thoſe in the Infirmary. To which add the Phyſician of the Infirmary, who was a Layman.

The Refectorian had the Care and Charge of the Dining-Hall, and to ſee the Tables were provided regularly.

The Almoner had the Care and Charge to diſtribute the broken and refuſe Victuals and other Relief to the Poor, for which there was a Place ſet apart near the Abbey, called formerly, The Almonry, and now, corruptly, The Ambrey.

Beſides theſe were the Subſacriſta, the Subcellerarius, the Porter of the Convent, &c. The particular Buſineſs, Employment, and Power of all which Officers, may be ſeen at large in the Fourth Part of the Antient Conſtitutions of this Abbey. Theſe principal Officers had chiefly their ſeparate Lodgings and Offices on the South and Eaſt Side the Cloiſters.

CHAP. III.

Of the CORONATION.

The Coronation.

THE Coronation of our Kings doing no ſmall Honour to this Place, it will not be improper here to take Notice of this great Ceremony: How long ſhe has laid Claim to it, has been diſputed by ſome, who make Offa the Great the firſt who endow'd her with this Honour: But theſe being only Monks here, are not to be rely'd on, eſpecially in a Falſehood ſo very evident; for it is certain, that Kingſton upon Thames, or Wincheſter, were the chief Places for crowning the Saxon Monarchs; nor do we know of any King crowned here till William the Conqueror, for Harold's Coronation is doubtful. But nothing is more plain, than that Edward the Confeſſor was the firſt who fixed that Uſage in this Church, and preſented the Veſtments and Regalia, in which he himſelf was crowned for that Purpoſe; of which there is an antient Catalogue in a Manuſcript in the Cotton Library of Sporley, before quoted, viz. Tunica, Supertunica, Armilla, an embroidered Pall, a Pair of Buskins, a Pair of Sandals or Slippers, a Golden Scepter, one Wooden Staff, a Rod gilt, (ligneam virgam deauratam) and another Iron one; one Gold Crown (coronam optimam) one Golden Comb and Spoon: Alſo for the Queen's Coronation, a Crown and two Rods; alſo for the Communion on that Day, one Chalice of Onix bound, with a Paten of pure Gold; quæ omnia reliquiis precioſis habeantur.

WE have but few Inſtances of Coronations elſewhere, but upon extraordinary Occaſions; as King Henry III. was crowned at Gloceſter, Quoniam Weſtmonaſterium ubi locus eſt ex conſuetudine regia coronatione deputatus, & conſecratione, tunc ab inimicis ſuis fuit obſeſſum; which are the very Words likewiſe of Matthew Weſtm. ſed in anno quarto ſequenti apud Weſtmonaſterium, eſt iterum coronatus. Yet afterwards, when King Henry III's Son was crowned at Wincheſter, they made heavy Complaint of it, as a high Breach of Privilege: And when King Henry III. was crowned at Worceſter, that Day the Abbot of Weſtminſter, and the Prior of Canterbury, appealed to Rome for the Liberties of their Churches; the firſt for the Place Sake, the latter for the Archbiſhop's Right of Crowning.

ADDITIONAL to the Honour, were theſe Advantages to the Church, viz. the Offerings made to St. Edward, the Hangings, the Throne, &c. to which add the Precentor's Fee, which was one Mark of Gold, Precentor. Weſtmon. habet unam markam auri in die quo, rex portat coronam apud Weſtmonaſter. and the Convent 100 Symmels, and one Modicum vini, as appears by the aforeſaid Charter.

THE particular Ornaments, which have been uſed on this Occaſion, and the varying of them, were as follows:

Firſt, The Crown, an Ornament, though long uſed in the Weſtern Empire, from Charles the Great, yet not by our Engliſh Kings, till the Time of King Athelſtan, as Geoffry Monmouth tells us; and Edward his Succeſſor (ſays Ethelwerd) was crowned Stemmate regali; yet the firſt Uſe of them was only Fillets, as in the Coins of Adulph, King of the Eaſt Angles, Anno 1164, and of Offa King of Mercia; afterwards King Egbert, Anno 800, becoming abſolute Monarch, wore a Stellated Crown; yet Mr. Selden obſerves, that in the Coins of Alfred and his Succeſſors, to William the Conqueror, they only wore the Fillet Diadem, except Edred and Edmund Ironſide, whoſe were pointed and pearl'd. Edward the Confeſſor is the firſt repreſented with a Crown raiſed with Flowers-de-lis; theſe relate to the Coins from whence theſe Regal Ornaments may be well judged. But to ſhew the ſeveral Sorts, we may better gather them from the Account of ſeveral Coronations; and firſt, in the Coronation of King Richard I. was carried Coronam auream mirifice gemmatam; which doubtleſs was different from that plain one of St. Edward; yet Brompton calls it only Coronam auream, and mentions two uſed then, of which the levior Corona he wore at Dinner.

KING Henry III. was crowned Serto, with a Gold Circle, for that King John had loſt the former in the Sea; at which Time was an Edict to wear Chaplets for one Month, to make the Coronation known, for Lewis was then in England. Theſe were occaſional Crowns; yet, there was doubtleſs an Imperial Diadem, abſolutely neceſſary on this Occaſion, as appears by the laſt Inſtance, which not improbably was that King John gave to Pandulphus the Legate. King Edward I. added to the Regalia, the Scotch Crown, &c. But in his Son's Coronation, there is no Mention made of any other uſed, than St. Edward's, which he gave to Gaveſton to carry. In King Richard II's Time were many Crowns, and it is one of the Articles againſt him that he carried the Crowns and Regalia into Ireland. King Henry IV. when dying, ordered the Imperial Crown to be ſet by his Bed-ſide, which his Son King Henry V. thinking him dead, took by Way of Poſſeſſion: Theſe were low Coronets, radiated and mixt with Flower-de-luces or Leaves. King Henry VI. was the firſt that had the Diadem arched, which ſtill continues. This Imperial Arched Diadem was that which King Richard III. for greater Security, carried with him to Boſworth, and which being found in a Thorn, was placed on King Henry VII's Head. Theſe Diadems ſeem to have been different ones; but the antient Imperial Diadem was that which was preſerved in the Abbey, and ſaid to be King Alfred's, as Sir John Spelman, in the Life of that Prince informs us. "In the arched Room "in the Cloiſters of Weſtminſter Abbey, where "the antient Regalia of this Kingdom are kept, "upon a Box, which is the Cabinet to the "antienteſt Crown, there is, it is ſaid, an In-"ſcription to this Purpoſe, Hæc eſt principa-"lior corona, cum qua coronabantur Reges Æl-"fredus, Edvardus, &c. and the Crown, which "is worthy obſerving, is of antient Work "with Flowers, adorned with Stones of ſome-"what a plain ſetting." Here it continued till the Grand Rebellion; when Anno 1642, Harry Martin, being commiſſioned by the Parliament, broke broke open the Cheſt, which was Iron; took it thence and ſold it with the Robes, Sword, and Scepter of St. Edward, and other Regalia. After the Reſtauration of King Charles II. had one made like it; it is very richly embelliſhed with Pearls and Diamonds, Rubies, &c. with a Mound and Croſs at Top; it has four Flower-de-luces and four Croſſes on a Rim of Gold, ſet with Jewels, and the Cap is of Purple Velvet, turned up with Ermines: This is preſerved in the Tower of LONDON. The Story of Blood's ſtealing it is related in Vol. I.

THERE is likewiſe a Crown of State, and others occaſionally made kept with it.

THE next is the Scepter, a very antient Enſign of Kingly Power, both among the Greeks and Romans, by which they ſwore in the moſt ſolemn Manner, which Homer calls μέγα ὅρκον, the Great Oath. It among the Jews ſuppoſes Kingly Government; it has been in all Ages and Places an Enſign of Power, and ſpiritually alludes to its being a Weapon to oppoſe the Wicked, and protect the Good; this of St. Edward was deſtroyed with the reſt. The preſent Scepter is of Gold, the Handle Plain, and the upper Part wreathed; in Length two Feet nine Inches and a Quarter, and of the ſame Thickneſs as the former; the Pomel at the Bottom enriched with Rubies and Emeralds, and ſmall Diamonds; the Top riſeth into a Flower-de-luce with ſix Leaves, whereof three are upright, and the other three hanging down; all enriched with precious Stones: Out of the ſame Flower-de-luce iſſueth a Mound, of an Amethiſt, garniſhed with Table Diamonds; and upon the Mound, a Croſs wholly covered with precious Stones, with a large Table-Diamond in the Centre.

THE Scepter with the Dove was Edward the Confeſſor's, as exhibited in his Seal, it was firſt diſtinguiſhed at the Coronation of Richard I. though it is marked on the Seal of Henry I. this ſignifies Mercy and Clemency; it was uſed by Stephen and Henry II. on their Seals, but omitted on that of Richard I. and Richard II. he aſſumed it on his Seal, for St. Edward was his Patron, and King Edward IV. uſed it in Regard of him: King Richard II. uſed it too: This Scepter was deſtroyed with the reſt: The preſent one, made at the Reſtauration, is of Gold, in Length three Feet ſeven Inches, and three Inches in Circumference at the Handle, and two Inches and a Quarter about the Top; the Pomel garniſhed with a Circle or Fillet of Table-Diamonds, and in ſeveral Places with precious Stones of all Sorts; and the Mound at the Top embelliſhed with a Band or Fillet of Roſe Diamonds; upon the Mound is a ſmall Jeruſalem Croſs, whereon is fixed a Dove, with Wings expanded.

THERE have been divers other Scepters, if we conjecture from the Seals, as with Flower-de-luces by King Henry II. Lillies by King Richard II. and John, &c. as likewiſe the Hand of Juſtice and Clemency, uſed by King Edward III. being a Rod of Ivory, with an Ivory Hand at Top expanded.

THE Queen's Scepter with the Croſs, alſo of Gold, adorned with Diamonds and other precious Stones, is in Length two Feet ten Inches, with a Mound and Croſs at the Top, iſſuing out of a Flower-de-luce, very like the King's, in all the Embelliſhments thereof, only ſmaller, and not wreathed, nor altogether ſo thick.

THE Queen's Ivory Rod has been an antient Monument, as appears by the Seal of Eleanor, Queen to King Edward I. That at preſent is a Rod or Scepter of White Ivory; in Length three Feet one Inch and a Half, whereof the Pomel and Garniture is Gold; as is alſo the Mound and Croſs at the Top, only the Dove at the Top of the Croſs is enamelled with White; the Circumference at the Bottom about two Inches, and at the Top about an Inch and a Half: The Mound, or Globe, with the Croſs, is another antient Ornament, ſignifying Royal Dignity, and is on all Seals, from Edward the Confeſſor downward; the preſent one was made with the reſt.

ST. Edward's Staff is in Length four Feet ſeven Inches and a Half; it is a Staff or Scepter of Gold, with a Pike or Foot of Steel, about four Inches and a Quarter in Length, and a Mound and Croſs at the Top; the Garniſhings are alſo of Gold, and the Diameter is about three Quarters of an Inch.

THE Eagle of Gold is a curious Piece of Antiquity; it contains the Oil with which our Kings were anointed; of which take the following Legend: St. Thomas Becket being at Sens in France, the Holy Virgin appeared to Thomas Becket, then in Exile at Sens in France, and gave him a Stone Veſſel of Oil encloſed in a Golden Eagle; which Veſſel is called in ſome MSS. Ampulla, and bid him give it to William a Monk, to carry to Pictavia, and hide it in St. Gregory's Church, under a great Stone, where it ſhould be found for the Uſe of proſperous Kings: This was, by a holy Man in France, given to Henry III. Duke of Lancaſter, in King Edward III's Time. King Richard II. found it among ſome Jewels, and endeavoured to be anointed with it, but was diſſuaded by Archbiſhop Arundel; which Archbiſhop afterwards anointed King Henry IV. with it. There is a long Diſcourſe in the Cotton Library concerning this Ampulla of Oil.

THE Spoon which St. Edward gave, is likewiſe of pure Gold, with four Pearls in the broadeſt Place of the Handle, and the Bowl of the Spoon finely chaced both within and without; by the extreme Thinneſs thereof, it appears to be very antient. Theſe are now, for their Security, preſerved in the Tower, and upon the Coronation, brought to the Abbey the Morning before, and thence carried in Proceſſion by the Dean and Prebendaries to Weſtminſter-Hall. The others, as follow, are kept here in the Church, viz. The Dalmatica, or open Pall, called the Imperial; it was flowered with Eagles of Gold, intermixed with Roſes, Flower-de-luces and Crowns; but is now made of rich Brocade, or Embroidery of ſeveral Sorts, and lined with Silk; it is ſomewhat ſhaped in Imitation of the Roman Toga, having, when ſpread open, the upper Side ſtrait, and the reſt ſemi-ovular, pointing to a Train; the ſtrait Side falling on each Side the Neck, compoſe the two Fore-ſides, and the reſt falls in a Train behind, which ſweeps about a Foot on the Ground; this is faſten'd to the Neck before, with a rich Gold Claſp. The Supertunica, or Cloſe Pall, is uſually of the ſame Stuff, with Sleeves coming ſtrait to the Arms; it is in Length a Yard and a Half, more or leſs, and divided into two Skirts by a Slit behind; it is lined with rich Silk; to this Veſt is belonging a rich Belt of the ſame, wherewith the Sword is uſually girded. The Armil is of rich Brocade, about an Ell long, and three Inches broad, with Ribbands to tie it below and above the Elbows. The Colubium Sindonis is formed like the antient Surplice without Sleeves, made of Lawn or Cambrick; this is put on after Anointing. The Buſkins are of the like Brocade, coming half way up the Leg. The Sandals have double Straps coming over the Feet, and one behind each Heel, of Brocade aforeſaid. Theſe are continued in the Abbey.

THE Coronation-Chair is of Hard-wood, ſix Feet ſeven Inches high, in Breadth at the Bottom 38 Inches, in Depth 24; from the Seat to the Bottom 25; the Breadth of the Seat within Side 18 Inches, and the Depth 18; at nine Inches from the Ground is a Bottom-board, ſupported ported by four Lions, and under the Seat is the Prophetick Stone, commonly called Jacob's Pillar; it is oblong, 22 Inches long, 13 Inches broad and 11 deep, of Blueiſh Colour, veined with Red. The Scotch Writers tell us, that the Stone was firſt at Brigantia in Spain, and was the Throne of Gathelus, the Scotiſh King: Simon de Brech, the King, brought it into Ireland 700 Years before CHRIST; and from Ireland, King Fergus removed it into Scotland 370 Years afterwards; and Kenneth, A. D. 850, brought it to Scone, and occaſioned to be cut in it this Diſtich:

Ni fallat vatum Scoti hunc quocunque locatum
Invenient lapidem, regnare tenentur ibidem.

And incloſed it in a wooden Chair, where it continued 'till King Edward I. brought it with other Spoils, and offered it at St. Edward's Shrine; but the Chair now in being is not that of Kenneth, as Mr. Selden ſeems to intimate, for that was not the Trophy, but the Stone; the fatal Marmor, as Bœthius calls it, which was the Throne, together with the Golden Scepter and Crown. King Edward preſented it to St. Edward and this Church, and cauſed it to be fixed in a new Chair, with Intent that it ſhould be for the Church Uſe, and for a Maſs-Prieſt; to which Harding alludes, ſpeaking of it:

He ſent it forth to Weſtminſter for aye,
To be there in a Cheir cleanly wrought
For a Maſs-Prieſt to ſit in when he ought.

AND Walſingham, more plainly ſpeaking of King Edward's coming to Scone, and ſeizing the Regalia, Sublato Lapide, quo reges Scotorum tempore Coronationis ſolebant uti pro Throno tranſtulit illum uſque Weſtmonaſterium; jubens idem fieri celebrantium cathedram ſacerdotium. Whether it has been ſince then uſed upon the Coronations, or at what Time appointed to that Purpoſe, is doubtful; but the Chair of King Richard II. that is painted in the Choir, ſeems copied from it. There formerly hung a Tablet of Parchment near this Chair with an Inſcription.

THE Coronation is always performed by ſome one of the Biſhops; moſt commonly by the Metropolitan himſelf, unleſs there be ſome Impediment. The Biſhop of Winchester crowned Queen Mary I. becauſe the Archbiſhop was at that Time caſt into Priſon. And the Biſhop of Carliſle crowned Queen Elizabeth, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury being then dead. But the Venerable Archbiſhop Whitgift crowned King James I. and Queen Anne his Royal Conſort. Part of the Coronation was by him thus performed, (according to the antient Cuſtom of England) after the Sermon, the King coming to the Altar, the Archbiſhop miniſtred theſe Queſtions, and the King anſwers them:

Archbiſhop. Sir, will you grant and keep, and by your Oath perform to the People of England the Law and Cuſtoms to them granted by the Kings of England, your lawful and religious Predeceſſors; and namely, the Laws, Cuſtoms, and Franchiſes granted to the Clergy by the glorious King St. Edward your Predeceſſor, according to the Laws of God, the true Profeſſion of the Goſpel eſtabliſhed in this Kingdom, agreeable to the Prerogative of the Kings thereof, and the antient Cuſtom of this Realm?

King. I grant and promiſe to keep them.

Archb. Sir, will you keep Peace and godly Agreement, according to your Power, both to God, the Holy Church, the Clergy, and the People?

King. I will keep it.

Archb. Sir, will you, to your Power, cauſe Law, Juſtice and Diſcretion, in Mercy and Truth, to be executed according to your Judgment?

King. I will.

Archb. Sir, will you grant to hold and keep the Laws and rightful Cuſtoms which the Commonalty of this your Kingdom have? And will you defend and keep them in the Honour of God, as much as in you lieth?

King. I grant and promiſe ſo to do.

THEN one of the Biſhops reads this Paſſage to the King: "Our Lord and King, we beſeech "you to pardon, and to grant, and to keep unto "us, and to the Churches committed to our "Charge, all Canonical Privileges, and do Law "and Juſtice; and that you will protect and de"fend us, as every good King to his Kingdoms "ought to be Protector and Defender of the "Biſhops, and the the Churches under their Go"vernment.

THE King anſwers, "With a willing and de"vout Heart I promiſe and grant my Pardon; "And I will preſerve and maintain to you, and "the Churches committed to your Charge, all "Canonical Privileges, and do Law and Juſtice: "And that I will be your Protector and De"fender, to my Power, by the Aſſiſtance of God; "as every good King, in his Kingdom, in Right "ought to protect and defend the Biſhops and "Churches under their Government.

THEN the King aroſe, and was led to the Communion Table, where he takes a ſolemn Oath, in the Sight of all the People, to preſerve all the Premiſes, and laying his Hand upon the Bible, ſays, The Things which I have here promiſed, I ſhall perform and keep. So help me God, and the Contents of this Book. After this, the King returns to his Chair of State again.

THIS Form is agreeable to the antient Form of Coronation uſed in King Edward II's Time, according to a Roll preſerved among the Tower Records, tranſcribed verbatim, the Manner and Tenor of the Interrogatories, and Oath made thereupon; which was as follows, viz.

"Poſtea Metropolitanus vel Epiſcopus eun"dem [ſcil. Regem] mediocri diſtinctaque in"terrogat voce, ſi leges & Conſuetudines ab "antiquis, juſtis & Deo devotis Regibus plebi "Anglorum conſeſſas, cum Sacramenti confirma"tione eidem plebi concedere & ſervare volue"rit: & preſertim Leges & Conſuetudines & "Libertates a glorioſo Rege Edwardo, Clero "Populoque conſeſſas. Si autem omnibus his "aſſentire ſe velle promiſſerit, exponat Metropo"litanus de quibus jurabit, ita dicendo; "Servabis Eccleſiæ Dei, cleroque & populo "pacem ex integro, & concordiam in Deo, ſe"cundum vires tuas? Reſpondebit, Servabo.

"Facies fieri in omnibus jndiciis tuis equam "& rectam juſtitiam & deſcretionem in miſeri"cordia & veritate, ſecundum vires tuas? Re"ſpondebit, Faciam.

"Concedis juſtas leges & conſuetudines eſſe "tenendas, & promittis per te eas eſſe prote"gendas, & ad honorem Dei corroborandas, quas "vulgus elegerit, ſecundum vires tuas? Reſpon"debit, Concedo & promitto.

"Adjiciunturque predictis Interrogationibus "que juſta fuerint. Pronuntiatis quibus confir"mabit ſe omnia eſſe ſervatutum Sacramento ſu"per Altare protinus preſtito coram cunctis.

"His peractis Metropolitanus vel Epiſcopus "incipiet excelſa voce, Veni Creator Spiritus, "proſtrato eo [ſcil. Rege] ante altare, &c.

THE Oath and Promiſe which King Edward III. made at his Coronation, which was Anno 1326, remains under a Memorandum in the Clauſe Rolls in the Tower, in theſe Words: The Archbiſhop asks him,

AND former Kings of England uſed, upon Occaſion, to mention in their Writs, Statutes, and Proclamations, their Obligation to this their Coronation Oath: And ſo theſe Expreſſions following are frequent in the ſaid King Edward's Reign, Quod ad hoc, or, prout Juramenti Vinculo tenemur & aſtringimur. And, by the Bond of our Oath we be bound to the Obſervance and Defence of the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Realm. Again, The King, as he is bounden by his Oath to do the ſame, to be kept as the Law of this Realm. And, The King having Regard to the Quietneſs of his People, &c. as he is bound by his Oath made at his Coronation.

Of the SANCTUARY.

THE peculiar Regard which all Nations have paid to Places of Religious Worſhip, firſt directed Criminals, or Perſons otherwiſe unhappy in their Circumſtances, to ſhelter themſelves there, as under the Protection of the preſiding Deity. At length what Religion firſt prompted, Policy eſtabliſhed, and it was thought convenient to encourage ſuch Securities, and preſerve the Awe of Religion by temporal Puniſhments; and therefore ſome of the greateſt Founders of Empire erected Buildings to that Purpoſe, of which the Epheſians were the firſt; and Cadmus, who founded Thebes; afterwards Hercules ordained that the Temple of Pity at Athens ſhould be an Aſylum; and Herodian obſerves, that in Egypt there remained in his Time a Temple ſacred to Hercules, from whence it was Sacrilege to force any Perſon, which the Word Σύλασθαι ſignifies; and ſometimes, though there was no Temple erected, yet the Place being ſacred to any Deity was equally ſecure; thus the City of Trezene was inviolable, for that the Iſland of Caluria, in which it ſtood, was dedicated to Neptune, alluding to the Security the Sea gave them: Other Places of Refuge we find mentioned, as ſeveral in Egypt ſacred to Oſyris, and in Syria to Apollo, and in Cyprus, Aerias erected one to Venus Paphia, his Son Amathus to Venus Amathuſia, and Teucer, Jovi Talaminio, which were likewiſe ſuch, with many others. Romulus, to people his Eſtabliſhment, made his Aſylum between two Woods before building the City of Rome, of which Virgil, lucum ingentem quem Romulus acer Aſylum retulit; and this was a Recourſe of all the Out-Caſts of the Earth, where he likewiſe erected a Temple to Pity; and from this political, rather than religious View, began the greateſt of Empires, which being eſtabliſhed, ſuch religious Places and Temples were ſet apart by the Senate for this Purpoſe, which only, and no others, were ſecure: Thus the Aſylum Junonis in Virgil; and afterwards great Men indulged ſuch particular Places with thoſe Privileges as they thought proper: Thus L. Scipio and S. Sylla, after their Conqueſts, the one of Antiochus, and the other of Mithridates, made the Temple of Diana Leucophrinæ an Aſylum; and Cæſar the Temple of Jupiter, among the Aphrodiſians, and of Trivia among the Stratonians for their withſtanding the Parthians, &c. Polydore Virgil, who of the Original of moſt Things takes the leaſt Notice of this, unluckily enough tells us, that the Chriſtians copied from Romulus, and not from the Moſaick Inſtitution. A very unhappy Original! but if you'll compare the Character Tacitus gives of the former, and that very juſt one the Uſurper Richard gives of the latter, you muſt own the Copy extremely like the Original. Tacitus's Words are theſe: Creſcebant enim Græcas per urbes. Crebreſcebat enim Græcas per urbes licentia atque impunitas Aſyla ſtatuendi: Complebantur Templa peſſimis ſervitiorum: Eodem ſubſidio obærati adverſum creditores, ſuſpectique capitalium criminum receptabuntur. Nec ullum ſatis validum imperium erat coercendis ſeditionibus populi, flagitia hominum ut cerimonias deum protegentis. That they were unlike the Moſaick Inſtitution is too evident; for the Cities of Refuge among the Jews were only ſet apart for unhappy Perſons, who had accidentally ſhed Blood, where the Umbrage of the Levites ſheltered them, and the Time limited was that of the High Prieſt's Life; but if it was wilful Murder, then the Avenger of Blood was to take them thence: And in other Caſes, or in different Places, there was no other Security. Thus Joab was ſlain when he held the Horns of the Altar, which was authorized by GOD himſelf; " If a " Man come preſumptuouſly upon his Neigh- " bour to ſlay him with Guile, thou ſhalt take " him from mine Altar that he ſhall die "; and " Athalia was led out of the Temple to receive the Rewards of her Treaſon, which plainly ſhew, that the moſt ſacred Place was no Security for thoſe who ſcandalized the Religion worſhipped there.

HAVING ſhewn the Original and Nature of theſe Securities among the Heathens and Jews, let us next take a View of the Chriſtian Sanctuary, and particularly in England, in which, ſetting aſide the fabulous Stories of Malmutius, (whoſe Laws, called the Malmucinæ, ſays Brompton, continued to the Time of St. Edward;) and Lucius's Privileges, though the latter gained ſo much Credit, that Dr. Goodman, Dean of this Church, alledged in Parliament, the Privilege in Weſtminſter derived from him; and come to the Saxon Laws for ſecuring theſe Aſylums; and firſt we ſhall find in the Laws of Ina, King of the Weſt Saxons, a Proviſion for ſuch as fled to Churches: Likewiſe the Laws of Alured, &c. are full of ſuch Securities. Theſe Sanctuaries generally included the Church-Yard, the Parſon or Vicar's Houſe, or Court-Yard; as ſome of the Greek Princes granted Sanctuary two Miles round round their Temples, in Proceſs of Time theſe Privileges were particularly, and in a larger Manner, ſecured to ſome Places where the Church contained the Bodies of Saints, to which, whoever fled, and touched them, were ſecure from Violence: Thus Athelſtane granted them to the Church of Beverly, ſo in the Church of Haguſtald; and Matthew Paris mentions St. Edmund's-bury, and St. Alban's, as antient Sanctuaries ſuperior to others in his Time; but afterwards ſeveral other Places procured to their Churches the ſame Privilege; for not long after, that of St. Martin's le Grand in LONDON was inviolable; and at the reſtraining theſe Cuſtoms by the Act of King Henry VIII. we find thoſe of Wells, Weſtminſter, Mancheſter, Northhampton, Norwich, York, Derby, and Launceſton.

THESE Privileges, if infringed, were looked upon as Acts of the higheſt Sacrilege; and when the Hiſtorians would repreſent an Enemy to holy Church in his blackeſt Colours, they charge him with ſomething of this Nature; of which take two or three Inſtances: Thurſtan, Abbot of Glaſtenbury, ordered three of his Monks to be killed and laid under the Altar, inſomuch that their Blood ran down the Steps, (i. e. gradi) theſe were eſteemed very ſacred; which Act of his is called, Turpe Scelus; and he was baniſhed for it. King Henry II. ſay all the Writers of that Time, moſt ſhamefully injured Sanctuary. King John had it laid to his Charge as to a main Article of Tyranny; and when Hubert de Burgh, Earl of Kent, eſcaped Priſon and fled to Sanctuary, the King was ſeverely cenſured for ſuffering him to be forced thence and carried back; and the Biſhop of Salisbury excommunicated all that were concerned in that Action. Many more Inſtances might be given to prove that theſe Violations never were but by arbitrary Princes, or an unruly Rabble. Of the firſt the Inſtance of Archbiſhop Becket's Murder is ſufficient, as was the voluntary Penance of the King, and the wretched End of the Aſſaſſins of the latter; the Inſtances of Archbiſhop Sudbury dragged from the Altar in the Tower Chapel, and beheaded by Tyler's Rabble; and Ayſcough, Biſhop of Salisbury, taken from the Chapel of Edenden, and murdered by his Tenants. There are other Inſtances, which will be ſpoke of when we come to treat of this Sanctuary in particular; but it is not to be omitted, that memorable Regard King Edward IV. paid to Religion, who, after the Battle of Shrewſbury, hot with the Encounter, purſuing his Enemies to the Church, with his Sword drawn, was ſtopt by the Prieſt habited, and holding the Sacrament, who forbad him Entrance till he had promiſed Safety to thoſe within it; a bold Demand in the one to make, and a brave one in the other to grant.

THESE extraordinary Advantages continued till the Time of King Henry VII. when the Pope iſſued out a Bull in Favour of that Prince upon Symnel's Rebellion, to this Purpoſe, viz.

Firſt, That if any Perſon, regiſter'd as a Sanctuary-Man, ſhould ſally out of Sanctuary by Night, or otherwiſe, and commit Treſpaſs, or annoy the Country, and retreat in again; in ſuch a Caſe the Perſon was to forfeit the Security of that Place for ever.

Secondly, That notwithſtanding the Perſon of a Sanctuary-Man was protected from his Creditors, yet his Goods out of the Sanctuary ſhould lie open to Seizure and Law.

Thirdly, That if any Perſon took Sanctuary for Treaſon, the King might appoint him Keepers to prevent his Eſcape.

IN the Time of King Henry VIII. this Privilege was again regulated; for, by Act of Parliament in the 32d Year, all Sanctuaries, except Pariſh-Churches, Church-yards, Cathedral Churches, Hoſpitals, and Collegiate Churches, and Chapels deſigned to Churches, were taken away; but with this Exception, viz. Wells, Weſtminſter, Mancheſter, Northampton, Norwich, York, Derby, and Launceſton, which were ſtill to enjoy their antient Privileges; and ſoon after Mancheſter was diſſolv'd, and Weſtcheſter appointed in the Room of it. But this Safety extended not to Perſons who were guilty of Willful Murder, Rape, Burglary, Highway, Houſe-breaking, or Treaſon; and in other Caſes this Privilege was allowed but for forty Days; and then the Coroner ſhould cauſe them to abjure the Realm. As to Number, no Place might ſhelter more than twenty Perſons at one Time; and if the Sanctuary, upon any Perſon's entering his Name, was full, yet nevertheleſs he ſhould be skreen'd from Arreſt, and the Magiſtrate ſhould paſs him from Place to Place, till he came to the next. As for ſuch as were admitted, it was provided by a former Act, that they ſhould wear Badges, and if found out of the Bounds without one, to forfeit the Privileges. Such Perſons likewiſe were not ſuffered to carry a Sword, Knife, or other Weapon, except a Whittle for Diet, and then only at Meals. Their Hours likewiſe were limited, for if they were abroad before Sun-riſing, or after Sun-ſetting, they were for the firſt Time impriſoned in the Sanctuary two Days, for the ſecond ſix Days, and for the third to loſe the Privilege: But avoiding theſe, they were ſafe by an Act of King Richard II. That whoever arreſted any Perſon within the Limits of Sanctuaries, ſhould be impriſoned during the King's Pleaſure.

THUS much for Sanctuaries in general: Now to this particular one, which the old Writers ſay was the antienteſt, and made by Lucius, into which Error Dr. Goodman fell; but it is believed by others, that Edward the Confeſſor was the firſt that procured any Privileges that Way, more than what other Churches had; and this appears by the Bull of Pope Leo, and his own Charter, which limits it; and this was ſo ſtrictly obſerved, that we have not one Inſtance of Injury offered till the Time of King Richard II. when the Caſe of Hawle and Schakel made ſuch Noiſe in the Land; of the firſt, who lies in the South Croſs, Mention has been made already. It may be here added what was the Conſequence of that barbarous Aſſaſſination: Hawle's being murdered in the Choir was inſtantly complained of to the Biſhop of LONDON, by this Convent, who inſtantly excommunicated all concerned in it, except, his Mother, and John Duke of Lancaſter; and the Matter was ſo aggravated in Parliament by the Biſhop, that Schakel was reſtored to Sanctuary, and ſoon after to the King's Favour. The next Inſtance was in the Caſe of Treſilian, the Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, who in the ſame Reign had taken Sanctuary here; he was dragged hence by the diſcontented Lords, and hanged at Tyburn the ſame Day; but upon this the Abbot made ſuch Complaint, that Thomas of Woodſtock, Duke of Glouceſter, and Sir John Cobham, for Violence done to Sanctuary, asked the Abbot's Pardon and Abſolution.

IN the Reign of King Henry VI. Eleanor Cobham, Wife to Thomas of Woodſtock Duke of Glouceſter, fled hither, but being charged with Witchcraft and High Treaſon, could not reach the Privilege: Her End is generally known.

Anno 29 of the ſame Reign, the Abbot of Weſtminſter exhibited a Bill againſt the Sheriff of LONDON, for drawing a Privilege Perſon out out of the Sanctuary of St. Martin's in LONDON, belonging to this Church.

In the ſame Reign, the Lord Say took Water privily at the Tower, to take Sanctuary here; there were three in the Boat, and a Woman who diſcovered him: they murdered and threw him over-board, and his Body was thrown up by St. Mary Overies, and 'tis ſuppoſed was buried there.

Thomas Barret, Eſq; a famous Warrior in France, under the Duke of Bedford, took Sanctuary at this Church, and was taken thence and hewn to Pieces about the ſame Time.

After the famous Battle of Barnet, John Lord Wells took Sanctuary here, but was enticed thence by King Edward IV. and beheaded.

But the moſt remarkable Caſe, was that of Elizabeth, Queen to King Edward IV. who had been twice driven hither for Shelter; firſt when King Henry VI. had fair for recovering his Throne; and at that Time ſhe was delivered of Edward V. in the Abbot's Houſe. The ſecond Caſe was upon her Husband's Death, when ſhe fled hither with her youngeſt Son, which occaſioned great Diſputes concerning the Legality of it. At this Time the Protector moved, that a Meſſage might be ſent by the Archbiſhop of York requiring the Queen to deliver up her Son, otherwiſe to enforce him thence; but the latter Part was ſtrongly objected to by the Biſhop; "for that God would be highly diſpleaſed, if "the Privilege of that Holy Place ſhould be in-"fringed, which had been preſerved ſo long, "and which had been ſecured by ſo many Popes "and Kings, and which Holy Ground St. Pe-"ter, in his own Perſon, hallowed; for Proof "of which (and that a very weighty one too) "they kept in that Abbey St. Peter's Cope, "which might then be ſeen; and from that "Time till now (continues he) no King was "ever ſo wicked as to violate it, nor Biſhop ſo "preſumptuous as to conſecrate it." And to this anſwered the Queen's Words, "That no "Tyrant had ever been ſo deviliſh to break it." The Duke of Buckingham on the other hand inveighed ſtrongly againſt it, when allowed to any other but ſuch as by Sea-chance, or other, ſhould be involved in Debt; or when Competitors were for a Crown to have a Place of Refuge for either Side, according to the Chance of War: But urges, that Thieves, of which thoſe Places were full, or Wilful Murderers, of which there were two Neſts, viz. the one at the Elbow of the City, the other in the Bowels, (meaning this and St. Martin's le Grand) ſhould have no Advantage, unleſs they would ſuppoſe that God and St. Peter were the Patrons of Wicked Courſes. The Nature of theſe Places he thus farrher aggravates: "Now (ſays he) Spendthrifts and Ex-"travagants run in Debt upon the View of "theſe Places; rich Men run thither with poor "Men's Goods; here they live high, build "Houſes, and bid their Creditors go whiſtle; "hither Mens Wives come, having plunder'd "their Husbands, and then ſay they beat them. "Thieves bring Stolen Goods hither, and ſell "them, and while they enjoy the Privilege, "ſpend the Money, and here cabal and fix their "next Deſign, which might be remedied, and "yet Sanctuary not abuſed; and charges the "Pope and Prince that ſecured them with being "more piteous than politick.

This Sanctuary being, as before mentioned, among others limited by the Statute of King Henry VIII. the State and Condition of it ſince, and the Practice uſed conſequent to that Act, is next to be conſidered, which ſtill was the ſame in Caſes of Debt as before, viz. Security upon delivering up their Effects upon Oath to ſome Churchman, till they could be diſtributed among their Creditors; of which is an Inſtance in King Henry VI's Time, the Caſe of A. R. a Haberdaſher, who exhibited a Bill in Chancery againſt Foſter, Archdeacon of London, for wrongfully detaining from him Goods delivered upon this Account: And thus, after the Act of Sanctuaries, viz. in December 1558, one Geffray Rainmain brought to the Abbot Feckenham nine Cloths, the Owner whereof was one Thomas Bradey, Clothier, whereupon the Lords of the Council ſent a Letter to the Abbot to deliver thoſe Cloths, taking Bonds of him to be anſwerable to ſuch as ſhould by Law claim them.

After Queen Elizabeth came to the Crown, this Sanctuary ſtill continued, but was brought under Regulation, and on Oath adminiſtered to ſuch as ſhould claim it, to this Purpoſe: Firſt, That they claimed it not for Fraud, but only for Safety, till they could pay their Debts. Secondly, That they ſhould give an Account of all their Debts and their Effects, and ſhew how they came behind-hand. Thirdly, That though they were not able to ſatisfy their Creditors, yet they would labour by all Means to do it as ſoon as poſſible. Fourthly, That they ſhould attend Daily Prayers Morning and Evening in the Collegiate Church. Fifthly, That they ſhould behave themſelves honeſtly and quietly, and avoid all ſuſpected Houſes, unlawful Games, and lewd Company. Sixthly, That they ſhould wear no Weapon, nor be out of their Lodging before Sun-riſing, or after Sun-ſet, nor go out of the Precinct without the Dean's Leave (if preſent) or the Arch-deacon's, in his Abſence. Seventhly, That they ſhould be obedient to Mr. Dean, the Arch-deacon, and other Officers, during their Stay. Eighthly, That if they infringe the Articles aforeſaid, or be diſcovered of making a falſe Certificate, that notwithſtanding their Admiſſion to Sanctuary, they ſhould claim no Privilege of it.

The Manner at that Time of their Admiſſion (ſays Stow) was thus: Firſt, The Arch-deacon was to declare to them, what a Danger it was before God to defraud any Man wittingly of his Goods; the which was againſt his Laws, which willed every Man to pay, ſaying, Reddite omnibus, i. e. Render to all Men. And alſo againſt the Law of Nature, which ſaith, Hoc facias alteri, &c. i. e. Do that to another which you would have another do to you: And what a Rebuke it was to any Man to claim Sanctuary, and a Diſcredit to his occupying for ever; and to adviſe him therefore to remember theſe Premiſes, and to return before he were known openly.

Then after this, Knowledge ſhould be given to the Creditors of them that were in the ſaid Sanctuary; or elſe, if they came unſent for, immediately the ſaid Sanctuary-Men ſhould be called before the ſaid Dean and Arch-deacon to hear their Demands; and if any of the ſaid Creditors could certainly prove that the ſaid Privilege-Men had brought in with them Money or Wares, they ſhould be ſatisfied thereof preſently.

And if the Creditors did lay unto their Charge that they had more Money, Debts, and Wares, than they would confeſs, ſtraitway they ſhould be committed to Ward for a certain Time, to make them confeſs the Truth of the ſame, if it might be, and thereupon to make an End.

And then, if they could not make them confeſs more than was before confeſſed, to travail from Time to Time, to make them agree; and if any of them would not be ordered accordingly, then to puniſh him.

And finally, if it were poſſible for them, to bring in ſome honeſt Perſons to juſtify of their Decay.

This was then the Uſage here, and the Privilege was upon theſe Conditions preſerved, as appears pears in the Caſe of Hampton and Whitaker, who betook themſelves here for Debts; and the Opinion of Judge Dyer and Southcot in the Star-Chamber confirmed it to them: But not long after an Attempt was made in Parliament to take it away, as appears by the Journal, as follows, viz. Monday October 7, 8 Eliz. A Motion was made in the Houſe to take away Sanctuary for Debt, that of Weſtminſter not excepted; upon which Dr. Goodman, then Dean, alledged the Exemption of his Church; whereupon a Day was appointed to hear him on Friday following, at Nine of the Clock, and to attend with Council to ſhew Cauſe why it ſhould be excepted.

Thurſday the 10th following, upon Motion made by Mr. Dean, he was allowed further Time, till Wedneſday the 16th following.

Wedneſday the 16th following, the Dean finally appeared with Council, viz. Mr. Edward Plowden of the Middle-Temple, and Mr. Ford, a Civilian; the Dean himſelf made an Oration in Defence of it, and alledged divers Charters from King Lucius, and other Chriſtian Kings, and Mr. Plowden urged King Edward's Grant, dated Anno 1066, with great Reaſons in Law and Chronicle; and Mr. Ford alledged from divers Chronicles and Stories in Law; whereupon the Bill was committed to the Maſter of the Rolls, and others, to conſider theſe Reaſons, and peruſe the Grants, &c.

Thurſday the 31ſt of October, the Maſter of the Rolls made his Report, and the Houſe ordered the Bill to be engroſſed.

Wedneſday the 4th of December, the Bill was read a third Time, and daſh'd upon a Diviſion of the Houſe, 60 againſt 71.

THE Places thus privileged formerly, are known by the Name of the broad, or great and little Sanctuary, comes into King's-ſtreet, near St. Margaret's Church.

THE following is Edward the Confeſſor's Charter for this Church's Privilege of Sanctuary:

EDWARD, by the Grace of GOD King of Engliſhmen; I make it to be known to all Generations of the World after me, that by ſpecial Commandment of our Holy Father Pope Leo, I have renewed and honoured the Holy Church of the bleſſed Apoſtle St. Peter of Weſtminſter; and I order and eſtabliſh for ever, that what Perſon, of what Condition or Eſtate ſoever he be, from whence ſoever he come, or for what Offence or Cauſe it be, either for his Refuge into the ſaid Holy Place, he be aſſured of his Life, Liberty, and Limbs. And over this, I forbid, under Pain of everlaſting Damnation, that no Miniſter of mine, or of my Succeſſors, intermeddle them with any the Goods, Lands, or Poſſeſſions of the ſaid Perſons, taking the ſaid Sanctuary. For I have taken their Goods and Livelode into my ſpecial Protection. And therefore I grant to every each of them, in as much as my terreſtrial Power may ſuffice, all Manner Freedom of joyous Liberty. And whoſoever preſumes, or doth contrary to this my Grant, I will he loſe his Name, Worſhip, Dignity, and Power; and that, with the great Traitor Judas, that betrayed our Saviour, he be in the everlaſting Fire of Hell. And I will and ordain, that this my Grant endure as long as there remaineth in England either Love or Dread of Chriſtian Name.

ONE Sort of Perſons here ſheltered from antient Time, were ſuch as were inſolvent, and intended to fail; and not being able to ſatisfy their Creditors, uſed to ſave themſelves from Arreſts, by flying hither for Sanctuary; and ſo taking Time to agree with their Creditors; yet by Way of Confeſſion, and in Diſcharge of their Conſcience, diſcovering their Condition to ſome ſpiritual Man firſt, and leaving in his Hands what Goods they had, to be among the ſaid Creditors divided and diſtributed for their Debts. Thus did one A. R. Haberdaſher, in the Reign of King Henry VII. leaving certain Quantities of Cloth in the Poſſeſſion of John Foſter, Archdeacon of LONDON, in Truſt for him; but he, out of a covetous Mind, thought to make Advantage thereby, and ſo forced this A. R. to complain againſt him in Chancery. The Petition was as follows:

To the mooſt reverent Fader in God, my Lord of Canterberry, [then Lord Chancellor of England.]

MEkely beſeecheth your good and gracyous Lordſhip, tendyrly to conſydre the humble Complayne, and alſo the trew Intent of me A. R. your dayly and unfeyned Bedman, now abeyding in the Seyntwary of Weſtmynſter. That foraſmooche as twelve Moneths paſt, I conſydered well that by the Mean of Mony, and dyvers gret Loſſes, I was come to that Decay, that I hadde not whereof to pay my Dettys; wherfore, in dyſchargynge of my Conſcyence, I dyſcloſed my Mynde in that Behalve unto Mayſter Johan. Foſter, Archdeken of LONDON, and delyvered to him bothe my Teſtement and Inventory of al my Goods and Dettys; and alſo delyvered unto hym XL fyne Cloths, and XII Cloths engreyned; wyllying and deſyring hym as myne Executour and Ordynary, to do therein as he wolde yf I were dede; and ſpecyally, that as wel the ſayd Cloths, as al other Goodys that I had in Erth, myght be retayled, devyded and dyſtrybuted among my Credytors, yf they wolde be ſo contented. And for the Executyon of the ſame, I valued my greyned Cloths at xv s. the Yarde, and myne other fyne Cloths at xii s. the Yarde, ſoo as my ſaid Creditours wolde have been wel content. From the which my trew Entent and Purpoſe the ſaid Mayſter Foſter many Ways declyned, and varyeth, kepyng ſtyl my ſayed Goodys in his Handes, and nother wyll delyver the ſayde Goodys to me, or to any other indyfferent Man, to the Entent aforeſayd, nor yet unto my Credytours after the Rate; but by many crafty and ſubtyl Meanes perſuadyth, as well to me as to myn ſayd Creditours, in ſuch [Sort] as he entended to have gret Lucre and Advantage by hys Occupacyon in this Behave. And rather than he wyll delyver my ſayd Goodys unto any other Man to th'Entent aforeſaid, he ſayd to me in gret Fere and Jeoperdy, that he wyl after his own Wyll and Pleſure pay ſome of my Credytours theyr hole Dettes, though the Remenaunt be never payd; or elles that he wyll cauſe or ſuffer the ſayd Goodys to be attached in hys Hands by ſuche of my Credytours as he favoureth; and hath gret Rewards promiſed unto hym on theyr Behalve.

Wherfor I beſeche your good and gracyous Lordſhyp, in my moſt humble and herty Wyſe, to ſende a Commaundement unto the ſayd Mayſter Foſter, by your Letter, to delyver the ſayd Goodys unto myſelf, or otherwiſe into the Hands of ſuch one, as by the Favour and Autorite of your Lordſhyp, may dyſpoſe them amonge my ſayd Credytours, as ſhall be thought beſt to the Pleaſure of God, and mooſt accordyng to ryght and good Conſcyence.

WE ſhall conclude the Account of this famous Monaſtery, with a Liſt of the Names, and ſomewhat of the Characters of the Abbots and Deans of this Church to the preſent Time.

ORTH-

ORTHBRIGHT.

604. AFTER Sibert, by the Advice of his Uncle Elthelred, had founded this Church, he placed over it an Abbot Orbrithus, or Ordbright, who received Benediction from Mellitus, Biſhop of LONDON; at which Time St. Gregory the Great was Biſhop of Rome, St. Auguſtine Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Ethelbert King of Kent. This Orthbright preſided as Abbot for the Space of 12 Years, and dying the 13th Day of January 616, was buried in his Monaſtery; after whoſe Death the Church was governed by Priors till the Time of Orbright II. The Reaſon of which Change ſeems to be this; not long before this Abbot's Death, Ethelbert died, and his Son, with thoſe of Sebert revolting to Paganiſm, Mellitus, Biſhop of LONDON, fled, and the Chriſtian Church was long clouded in thoſe Parts.

GERMANUS.

616. AFTER the Death of Orthbright, the Government devolved on Germanus, who had been Prior ſome Time under him; he governed the Church many Years, but the Number of Years is left blank in the MSS. the Diſorder of the Church, and its being ſcattered, preventing particular Notice of his Death; he was buried in this Monaſtery.

ALDRED.

To him ſucceeded Aldred, but the Time of his Commencement is equally doubtful with the Death of the laſt, as is likewiſe the Number of Years he preſided over this Church; which, however, are ſaid to be many. He died in the Year of our Lord 675, in the laſt Year of the Reign of Cadwallor, the laſt Britiſh King, and in the Reign of Sebba and Sighere, Kings of the Eaſt Saxons, and of Theodore, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; in which Year St. Erkenwald was conſecrated Biſhop of LONDON. He was buried in this Monaſtery. In his Time, viz. 649, Segebert and his Brother were converted to Chriſtianity, by the Perſuaſions of Oſwin, King of Northumbria; of which Cedda was ſent to convert the People of this Province, and built Tilbury on the Thames Side, in Eſſex, making it his Biſhop's Seat; ſo that the Priorſhip, both of Germanus, and Part of this Aldred's, ſeem to be only Titular, they leaving their Church when Mellitus fled from LONDON, and this latter returning to it under the calm Weather of Cedda's Miſſion, when Chriſtianity was reſtored: But indeed theſe early Priors ſeem to have been only Rectors of the Church, which was very inconſiderable many Years after this; however, by being reſtored, we have the Time of this Prior's Death handed down.

SYWARD.

675. Syward ſucceeded him, and ſat 10 Years Prior, wanting ſome Days. He lived in the Times of Dona, Agatho and Leo, Popes, and of Ecfrid, King of Northumbria; in whoſe Time was the Diſſention between that Prince and Wilfred, Archbiſhop of York; and the famous Council at Straenſhall and Hatfield. He died the Year before St. Cuthbert was conſecrated Biſhop of Landisfarn, and the Death of Sigher, King of the Eaſt Saxons, and two Years before the Conſecration of John of Beverly to the Church of Haguſtald, viz. in the Year 684, and was buried in this Monaſtery.

OSMUND.

To him ſucceeded Oſmund, in whoſe Time died Cadwell, King of the Eaſt-Saxons, at Rome, and Theodore the Archbiſhop, and Benedict Abbot, the latter of which founded Gyrwy and Weremouth, the firſt Abbies of the Benedictines in England, about which Time the Humour of a Monaſtick Life prevailed much; for Ethelred, King of Mercia, was ſhorn a Monk at Bardeney Abbey, and afterwards Abbot there, as were likewiſe Offa, King of the Eaſt Saxons, and Kendred, King of Mercia, at Rome, and Ina, King of the Weſt Saxons, relinquiſhed his Kingdom and went to Rome. This Oſmund died Anno 705, having ſate 21 Years, and was buried in this Monaſtery. 684.

SELRED.

Selred is mentioned as ſucceeding Oſmund; but there is ſuch Diſparity in the Time, that either there was another between them, whoſe Name is now loſt, or an Interval, or elſe the Dates are miſ-placed. This Selred lived in the Time of Cuthbert, King of the Weſt Saxons, Ethelbald King of Mercia, and Ceolulph, King of Northumbria, and of venerable Bede, the Hiſtorian, and Neothelm, Archbiſhop of Canterbury. He died Anno 744. after perſiding over this Church near 18 Years, ſo that his Succeſſion was 21 Years after the Death of Oſmund. This Seldred was buried in his Monaſtery. 726.

ORGAR.

Orgar was next Prior of this Church, in whoſe Time flouriſhed Offa, the great King of Mercia, who among other Acts of Munificence, was a remarkable Benefactor to Monaſteries; but whether his Bounty to this was during Orgar's Time is doubrful. He died A. D. 765, after almoſt 22 Years governing this Monaſtery, and was buried in it. 744.

BRITHSTAN.

Brithſtanus ſucceeded him, and governed rhis Church for the Space of 20 Years in the Time of Offa aforeſaid, and dying in the Year 785, was buried in this Monaſtery. 765.

ORTHBRIGHT II. Abbot.

AFTER the Death of Brithſtan, ſucceeded Orbrith, or Ordbright, and in the antient Records of Chicheſter, Alubrith, in whoſe Time Offa took particular Care of this Church, being the only Prince ſince Sebert the Founder, who had once regarded it near 200 Years. By Acquiſitions of Wealth from this Prince, ſhe began to make a conſiderable Figure. This Prince likewiſe built Cells for the Monks, and as ſome ſay, depoſited the Regalia here, and founded a Free-School; which was no more than the Papal Injunctions required, that every conventual Church ſhould have a School adjoining. Thus enriched and edified, her Prior re-aſſumed, or perhaps firſt took the Name of Abbot; for the former Orthbright, ſeems to be crowded in for Sake of antient Title; this Orthbright is mentioned in a Charter of Edward the Confeſſor, as holding Lands here of old Time, before the Daniſh Inroads. How long he preſided as Abbot here is uncertain, but he was removed to the Biſhoprick of Sealſey in Devonſhire, being the fifth Biſhop of that See, in which he died (ſays the M. S. of this Church) A. D. 794, in the laſt 785. 794.

last Year of Offa's Reign; but if we may credit the Catalogues of Bishops in that See, Osa, or Bosa was Bishop in 790, and Alubrith his Predecessor between Sigga and him, viz. between 783 and 790, without any Time fix'd for his sitting in that See.

ALFWIUS.

794. Alfwius called by some, but falsly Alfwinus, succeeded Orbright, but then it must be at some Distance; and is said to have govern'd this Church with great Honour for 24 Years: He is particularly mentioned in the old Martyrology. Being removed from this Abbey, he was consecrated Bishop of Fountain, where he died on the 10th Kal. Feb. 820.

ALFWIUS II.

796. To him succeeded another of the same Name, who is mentioned in a Charter of King Edgar's; he lived in the Time of Egbert the great King of the East Saxons, in the Times of Theologild and Coelnoth, Archbishops of Canterbury; and having been Abbot 17 Years, he died 5th Kal. April, A. D. 837, and was buried in this Monastery.

ALGAR.

846. Algar was next Abbot, in whose Time the Danes made their Inroads in the Reigns of Ethelulph, Ethelbald, and Ethelbert, at which Time St. Edmund the King fell a Sacrifice to their Fury, who having likewise driven Burthred out of his Dominions, over-run the Kingdom of Mercia; and in the fourth Year of his being Abbot, they came to LONDON with five Ships, committing all Manner of Hostilities, and destroying the City, (as some say) or as others, that they pillaged it; tho' M. Westminster increases their Fleet to 350, but mentions nothing of their Attempt on LONDON, only that after the Defeat of Bertuff, they marched into Surrey. However it is very probable, that the Places adjoining to LONDON felt their Rage, and among them this Monastery; for Edward the Confessor mentions the Danes Incursions and Injuries to it, nor is there Room to doubt it, when Anno 872, viz. in the 26th Year of this Abbot, they came to LONDON and wintered there; and Huntington mentions Alfred's repairing LONDON, Anno 886, having being ruin'd and dispeopled by the Danes, and the Londoners had deserted it, 'till now by the Safety of Alfred's Conquests, they return'd to their Dwellings; all but such as had been led away Captives: So that no Doubt this Abbot, and the rest of his Convent, fled and were scatter'd abroad, except such as perished by their Fury, when their Church and Monastery felt the Effects of it; but being happily restored, he ended his Days in an advanced Age, after a dangerous and troublesome Government of 43 Years, on the 14th Kal. July, Anno Dom. 889, and was buried in this Monastery. It is to be observed, that between the Death of Alwyus, and the Time allotted for this Algar, was the Space of nine Years, by the Computation of this House; so that either the Danger apprehended from the Danes at Alwyus's Death, prevented another's accepting it, or some Mistake must be in the Computation; which first is most likely, because his Death is said to be in the 19th of Alfred, which was about the Time 89 or 90. This Algar recovered his Lands belonging to this Church, a short Time before his Death, after Alfred had expelled the Danes; for he is mentioned by King Edgar, in his Charter, as holding Lands here in quiet Possession.

EADMERUS.

889. Edmerus, or Eadmerus, succeeded him, in whose Time this Abbey flourished, under the Government of that wise and learned Prince Alfred, who enriched it with Lands, granting to this Eadmerus, and his Convent Lands at Winningtong in Essex, and is said to enrich it by Gifts. Eadmerus governed this Church, as is said, 44 Years, and died 4 Kal. September, A. D. 922, which again disagrees, making it but 34 Years from the Death of Algar. He was buried in this Monastery.

ALFOROD.

922. Alforodus was next Abbot, and lived in the Times of Edward the Elder, and Athelstan; in whose Time the Abbey was in Peace and Quiet: He governed it for the Space of 17 Years, and dying Anno 939, was buried in this Monastery. And here it is to be observed, that the Affairs of this Abbey, till his Time, are so dark, for two Reasons; the first, the Ignorance of the Times; the second, the Danish Disturbances; and 'tis, for this Reason too, that from Erkenwald till Dunstan, who began to rise in the Time of this Alfnodos, the Affairs of the See of LONDON are not once mentioned, save that Bede takes Notice of one Waldhere in his Time: So that for near 300 Years there is only a bare Succession of Names, without even the Times they lived in; much less then is it to be expected that this small Convent, a Part of, and then in Subjection to that See, should be more remarked for its Affairs.

ALFRIC.

939. Alfricus was, upon the Death of Alforodus, placed over this Convent, who not sitting long here, was removed upon this Occasion; the West Saxons having been long harrassed with Wars, the Churches had been long scattered and ungoverned; whereupon Plegmund, Archbishop of Canterbury, called a Council, in which a Division of Bishopricks was made, and one fixed at Credyton, now Kyrton in Devonshire, and Werstan placed over it Anno 905, who, says Hooker, settled at Tawton, and afterwards removed here, but wrongly, for he was killed the Year after his Consecration. After him succeeded Putta, then Eadulph, after Ethalgar, and then this Alfric; he succeeded in that See by Interest of Benedictines, who had lately been placed in this See at Exeter, in a Monastery founded by King Athelstane. But here seems some Doubt of his Succession as well as Name; for Alforodus, the before-mentioned Abbot, dying 939, this succeeded him, and sate (says my Author) but a few Years; these, by Computation, must be four Years, and the Name either mistaken in my MS. or in Godwin's Catalogue of those Bishops; for Ethelgar was Bishop ten Years, which was three Years after Alfric's Abbotship; to which Ethelgar or Algar is said to succeed at Credyton; which Algar is undoubtedly the same with this Alfric or none; for Alfwold, Successor to Algar, died 972; so that Algar, i. e. Alfric, was elected Bishop after being three Years at Westminster, and sat ten Years, differing from my Author in three or four Years, both of Death and Government, who makes the latter 17 Years, and places the former Anno 956; whereas Godwin, and indeed Mat. Westminster, places Algar's Death Anno 952, and makes Ælfwold succeed him; but which is in the Mistake, my Author or Godwin is uncertain. This Prelate died Anno 972, and was buried in his Church at Credyton.

WLSINUS.

WLSINUS.

After the Remove of Alfric or Alfwold to Kyrton, i. e. from the Year 942, this Church had no Head over it, and the Monks were ſcattered and diſperſed abroad, and the Building and Place entirely deſerted and neglected, occaſioned, perhaps, by the Hatred Edwyn had conceived againſt the Monks, and placing Seculars in their Stead. At length, upon Edgar's gaining half his Kingdom, and the Death of Brithelme, Biſhop of LONDON, Dunſtan ſucceeded him, who inſtantly ſet about reforming this See, and influenced the King to do the ſame throughout his Dominion, which was by turning out the ſecular Clergy, and reſtoring his favourite Monks to their Convents. And this Abbey being in his Dioceſe, he began with that; and for the better Reception and Maintenance of them, he built twelve Cells, and gave Houſes, and Gifts, influencing Edgar the King to do the ſame; which Gifts were at Paddington, Hendon, Hampſtead, &c. The Monks thus tranſlated, he nominated to them an Abbot, one U. Ulſius, or, as Fleet calls him, Wlſinus, Ingulphus, Wltius, and Mat. Weſtminſter, St. Wltius. He was born in the City of LONDON, much beloved by Dunſtan the Biſhop, was a Monk of this Convent, being ſhaved by the Hands of St. Dunſtan himſelf, while he was Biſhop of Worceſter, ſays Fleet. The firſt Year of Dunſtan's being made Biſhop of LONDON, he received his Benediction, viz. Anno 958, or, as Diceto ſays, 662, two Years after Alfric or 980. Algar's Death, in the See of Kyrton. Fleet ſays, at this Time he received the Government by Deputation, (ad hujus loci regimen deputatus) but it was ſome Time after, viz. in the Time of Ethelred, that he was made Abbot, (Abbas hujus loci ordinatus eſt); ſo that he was firſt ſhorn Monk by St. Dunſtan, and governed as Prior only, till by Time and Acquaintance with a Monaſtick Life, he was qualified for a higher Station. And this appears plainly by an antient Charter of King Ethelred to this Monaſtery, in which he ſays, Hoc notum fore cupimus, quod beatæ memoriæ Dunſtanus cuidam fideli & probato monacho Wlſio vocabulo, quam quaſi filium pura dilectione amavit, illud monaſterium ad regendum regulariter commiſſit, & nos poſtea Abbatem illum conſtituimus, i. e. "Be it known, that "Dunſtan of Bleſſed Memory committed the "Care of that Monaſtery (i. e. Weſtmin-"ſter) to a certain faithful and approved "Monk named Wlſius, whom he loved with a "ſincere Love, as though he were his Son." If ſo, the Doubt concerning Dunſtan's naming an Abbot is over: But here is another Inſtance which contradicts Ethelred's conſtituting him Abbot; for Ingulphus produces a Charter, and likewiſe an Excommunication on Account of Nedehamſtead, where this Monk ſigns by the Name of Wlſius, and Wlſinus, Abbas Sancti Petri extra London. and this before Ethelred's Time, viz. 966, and in the Reign of Edgar: And Ralph de Diceto, Dean of St. Paul's, fixes Dunſtan's Conſecration to the See of LONDON, and Wlſine's Benediction to the Abbey of Weſtminſter, in the Year 962: So that among the various Accounts, the Matter is ſtill doubtful. Fleet ſays, and ſo does the Charter itſelf, that after he had been a few Years Abbot, he was by the King made Biſhop of Sherborn. And here again is a moſt ſurprizing Contradiction, and a very intricate Knot to undo. Matthew Weſtminſter makes Wlſius ſucceed Alfred in the See of Sherborn, Anno 940, as does likewiſe Biſhop Godwin; who, at the ſame Time, allows he was made Abbot of Weſtminſter by Biſhop Dunſtan, then of LONDON; but by this Computation, Dunſtan could be but 22 Years old, and conſequently unfit for a Biſhop; beſides, in 940, Edmund the Elder was King, and Dunſtan but a Youth in his Court 958. Eighteen Years after, Dunſtan (according to ſome) was made Biſhop of LONDON, or more likely, as Diceto ſays, in 962, which ſquares both with the Hiſtory and Charter; and, indeed, Biſhop Godwin ſeems quite out in his Succeſſion of the Biſhops of Sherborn, by following Matthew Weſtminſter, or elſe all the Croyland Story ſeems to be forged; for the Succeſſor of Alfred in that See, Aelfwold is by them ſaid to die 940; whereas Anno 966, he ſigns in Ingulphus a Charter for that Abbey; but the Charter, as well as Time, agreeing with the Charters and Time of Weſtminſter, ſeems to reconcile all, (but the firſt of Wlſius or Wlfius, ſigning Abbot) and proves Matthew and Biſhop Godwin miſtaken beyond all Contradiction; the latter of which has forgot the Predeceſſor of Wlſine in the See, i. e. Werſtan, who ſigned (966) as Biſhop of Sherborn, to the Croyland Charter: But waving any further Enquiry, the Time of his being Biſhop here appears moſt evident, by the Conſtitutions of ordaining Monks in the Church of Sherborn, written by Wlſine, Biſhop thereof Anno 998; by King Ethelred's Order; which may be ſeen in the Cotton Library. To proceed then; this Wlſius thus elected, after the Pattern of his Patron, having ejected the ſecular Clergy, and placed Monks in their Room, ſtill governed both Monaſteries, and kept ſo tender a Care over both, that his whole Time was ſpent in viſiting them alternately; inſomuch, ſays my Author, that both Monaſteries ſeemed as one Flock under one Paſtor. There was a cloſe Friendſhip and Correſpondence continued between this Prelate and all others of the Monaſtick Order, and particularly with Alfric, Abbot of St. Alban's, of which are remaining Proofs in a Letter of the former to the Abbot, ſubſcribed Wlſine, Biſhop of Sherborn, which is now in the Cotton Library. He was remarkable for Sanctity of Life, as all are ſaid to be of his Kind by the Monkiſh Writers, for defending them; and on his Death-bed, it is ſaid, he cried out ſuddenly, I ſee the Heavens open, and Jeſus Chriſt ſtand on the Right Hand of God; and inſtantly died, according to Biſhop Godwin, 958, which was the Year he is ſaid by Matt. Weſtminſter to be made Abbot of this Church: So that Fleet, with much more Juſtice and Reaſon, as before proved, places his Death the 6th Id. January, Anno 1004, in the 26th Year of Ethelred's Reign; was buried in the Church at Sherborn, at whoſe Tomb was performed many Miracles, as is ſaid. Here he reſted 12 Years, at the End of which, he was elevated and enſhrin'd with great Singing and Rejoicings in the Church of Sherborn: His Shrine was on the Right Side of the high Altar, where were put up daily Prayers. Malmsbury ſays, that in his Time they preſerved his Staff and Veſtments, ſignifying his Humility. See much of him and his Miracles in Tinmouth, Capgrave, &c.

ALDSIUS.

Upon the Death of Wlſinus, Aldſius, an Engliſhman, ſucceeded by the general Choice of the 1004.
Monks, in whoſe Time the Danes invaded and ſpoiled England, murdering Alphage, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and burning and plundering all the Monaſteries in their Way. Kanute, or Cnute, likewiſe with a great Force beſieged LONDON in the twelfth Year of his Time, when this Abbey, then too near a Neighbour to it, was miſerably havock'd, but ſoon after relieved by King Edmund. This Aldſius purchaſed chaſed for 100 Mancuſes of Gold two Houſes of King Ethelred in Berwick; he died the Year after King Edmund, viz. Anno 1017, on the 4th Kal. of April, having been Abbot 14 Years.

WULNOTH.

AFTER the Death of Aldſius, which happened upon the Uſurpation of Kanute or Cnute, the Dane, the Monks attempted not, at ſo dangerous a Juncture, to venture upon a freſh Choice, thinking it more adviſeable to ſecure this new and foreign Monarch's Favour, by ſubmitting the Election to him. Cnute, who was a wiſe and generous Prince, in Compariſon to his Countrymen, ſelected to his Council many of the Clergy, and ſeemed, (together with his Marriage of Emma, Ethelred's Widow) much to fix his Security upon their Intereſt. Of theſe, ſays Weſtminſter, the Benedictines were his Favourites. At which Time, in this Monaſtery was a Monk of great Wiſdom and fine Elocution, called Wulnoth, to whom the King took an extraordinary Liking; this Man, therefore, the King recommended to the Convent, who unanimouſly elected him Abbot; and, pleaſed with the Man's Converſation, the King came frequently to viſit him, and conſulted him in all his Affairs, allowing him the utmoſt Freedom and Familiarity of Speech; for he was a Man of ſingular Sincerity. The King, upon his Account, preſented this Church with many Reliques. In his Time Kanute died, and Harold his Son; the latter of which, as is before-mentioned, was buried in this Abbey, and the ſame Year dug up and thrown into the Thames, being firſt beheaded. This Abbot was in great Favour, not only with Cnute, but his two Succeſſors; ſo that during the Daniſh Oppreſſions, he, by his Intereſt, preſerved the Church and Monaſtery from any Fury that might endanger it, for which he was univerſally loved and eſteemed. He lived to ſee King Edward, and in him the Saxons reſtored; of which Prince he gained Lands to this Abbey, in one of the Charters, for which he is called Fideliſſimus Noſter, &c. In his Time Ulſine the Monk is ſaid to have his perſuaſive Viſion of St. Peter, upon which King Edward undertook to rebuild the Church; but Wulnoth lived not to ſee its Splendor and Magnificence, for he died the Year the King was engaged in that Deſign, viz. the 19th of October, A. D. 1049, when he had ſate Abbot 32 Years, whoſe Soul, ſays a Monk of this Convent, being endowed with ſuch and ſo great Ornaments and Virtues, we preſume to place among the College of Saints. He was buried in this Convent.

EDWYN.

UPON the Death of Wulnoth, the Monks, at the Requeſt of Edward the Confeſſor, made Choice of Edwyn, an Engliſhman, and Brother of their Convent. He had been brought up there, and increaſed in Virtue and Learning as in Years, bare an extraordinary Character, and for his ſingular Piety was a Favourite of St. Edward, who frequently ſent for him in his private Hours, and in his laſt, as ſay the before-quoted MSS. "And then he took him to Almighty God, and "alſo he ſent after the Abbot of Weſtminſter, "and toke him the Ringe in the Honour of "God, and Seinte Marie, and of St. John the "Evangeliſte, and the Abbot underfonged the "King with moche Reverence, and put hit among "here Relikes at Weſtminſtre, and there hit is "unto this Time, and evermore ſhall be." In his Time the Church was rebuilt, ſolemnly conſecrated, and plentifully enriched, at the Confirming Charter, of which he ſubſcribes as Witneſs; and in his 17th Year, Edward the Confeſſor was buried in this Abbey, to whoſe Tomb this Edwyn went every Day out of Devotion to his Maſter's Memory. After Harold's ſhort Reign, he lived to ſee the Norman Conqueſt and Slavery, but felt not the Rigour of the Conqueror, who paid his firſt Devotion after coming to LONDON, in this Church, and richly preſented it with an Altar Cloth, &c. as aforementioned, among the Benefactions to this Abbey. This Edwyn exchanged Windſor with the Conqueror for Lands in Eſſex, which Matthew Paris alludes to, ſpeaking of him, Multa ei (Regiſc.) conferens donativa ejus coronatione apud Weſt. and by ſuch Actions ſtood perfectly well with the Conqueror, which occaſions Matthew Paris to call him Curialis nimis & aulicus, novo regi familiaris, too much of a Courtier and Favourite to the new King. The ſame Author taxes him with making Uſe of that Power to withſtand Juſtice, and bear out Oppreſſion, and gives this Inſtance: "Some Time before the "Norman Conqueſt, the Abbot of St. Alban's, "at the earneſt Requeſt of the Abbot of Weſt-"minſter, leaſed to him the Manner of Alden-"ham in Hertfordſhire (a woody Place and in-"feſted with Robbers) for 20 Years, upon Con-"dition that he ſhould ſecure the Road-Ways "to Paſſengers, and make good what Loſſes "they ſhould ſuſtain by Thieves; for which he "was to pay as Rent 100 s. per Annum, and "four Oxen; and, in Caſe of Neglect, to forfeit "his Leaſe, or at the 20 Years End to reſign it; "but he, deſirous to poſſeſs a Wood near Alden-"ham, which, for the Pleaſantneſs of it, was "called Brudette, quaſi prudietti, moved Suits "againſt the Abbot, claiming it as his own; "and having tired him out, would not reſign "at the 20 Years End, and it continued long in "the Hands of his Succeſſors." This Edwyn ſigned to a Confirmation-Charter relating to the Abbey of Ramſey: He died the 2d Year of William the Conqueror's Reign, and of his Abbotſhip the 19th, on the 12th Day of June, 1068, and was buried in the Cloiſters, where he reſted till King Henry III. rebuilding this Monaſtery, removed his Body with three others, Athelgoda, Hugolin and Sulcardus, and buried them all together on the South Side, as you enter the old Chapter-Houſe, and placed over them a Marble Tomb.

GALFRID.

UPON the Death of Edwyn ſucceeded Galfrid, or Geoffry, a Norman, who came with the Conqueror from Normandy, where he had been Abbot of St Peter de Gymeges. Of this Man remains nothing but a bad Character, and Account of his ill Management; for which, after being corrected by William the Conqueror, and Lanfranc, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, he ſtill perſiſted in his irregular Courſes, and therefore was depoſed; whereupon, with great Shame and Dudgeon, he returned to Normandy to his former Monaſtery. When he died we know not; but he ſigned an Inſtument relating to the Superiority of Canterbury over York, in the Year 1072. 1068.

VITALIS.

Galfrid thus depoſed, King William put in another of his Creatures that attended him from Normandy, viz. Vitalis, who had been ſome Time Abbot of Berneges in Normandy, a Man of extraordinary Learning for that Age. The Annals of Waverly Abbey place his Nomination under the Year 1076, four Years after Galfrid's Depoſition, but, perhaps, without any Rule for ſo doing. There is a Grant of William the Conqueror queror to the Abbot of the Lands in Worceſterſhire, ſuch, as he can prove, Wulſtan the Biſhop, and the Abbot of Eveſham, and Rambald the Chancellor, gave to the Church of Weſtminſter; and now, ſpeaking of Wulſtan, brings to my Mind that famous Miracle wrought about this Time by St. Edward, upon Account of that Biſhop, and his Digreſſion will the better be, as happening the very Year Vitalis was choſen Abbot. This Wulſtan, ſince for his Holineſs canonized, was educated a Monk, and led ſo ſtrict a Life, that in his early Years he was eſteemed to be a holy Man; after being Abbot, and then Biſhop of Gloceſter, he was removed to Worceſter by Edward the Confeſſor, in which See he continued till after the Conqueſt, when a Synod was aſſembled, partly to puniſh the married Clergy, partly Symony, having an Eye upon Stygand, the Archbiſhop, and, in great Meaſure, to purge and ſift the Ignorance of the Engliſh Clergy, which at this Time, indeed, was very great: But chiefly by ejecting Biſhops and Abbots, to make room for preferring the new-come Normans; and among the reſt was held one in this Church, Anno 1074, by Lanfrank the Archbiſhop; at which Synod Wulſtan was ſummoned as a moſt illiterate and fooliſh Man, and unfit for the Station he held; a very Idiot, unacquainted with the French Language, and uncapable either to inſtruct the Church, or Counſel the King; and therefore Lanfrank, by the King's Order, demanded his Paſtoral Staff and Ring; but he, unmoved in Countenance, graſping his Staff, made anſwer: "I know, my "Lord Archbiſhop, that I am entirely unfit for, "and unworthy ſo high a Station, being undeſerving of the Honour, and unequal to the "Task; however, I think it unreaſonable you "ſhould demand that Staff which I never re"ceived from you; yet in ſome Meaſure I ſubmit "to your Sentence, and will reſign it; but think "it juſt to make that Reſignation to King Ed"ward, who conferred it on me". This ſaid, he went out of the Synod croſs to the Church, to the Tomb lately erected over the Body of that Religious King, and ſtanding before it ſaid, "Thou knoweſt, O Holy King, how unwil"lingly I took this Office, and even by Force; "for neither the Deſire of the Prelates, the Pe"tition of the Monks, nor the Voice of the "Nobility prevailed, till your Commands obli"ged me; but ſee, a new King, new Laws; a "new Biſhop pronounces a new Sentence; thee "they charge with a Fault for making me a "Biſhop, and me of Aſſurance for accepting it: "Nevertheleſs to them I will not, but to thee I "reſign my Staff". This ſaid, he raiſed his Arm, and laid the Staff upon the Tomb, which was of Stone, and leaving it, went arrayed as a Monk, and ſat among them in the Chapter-Houſe: In ſhort, the Meſſenger who was ſent for it, found it adhere to the Stone, and by no Means to be taken thence. The News brought, the King and Archbiſhop both went thither and found it true, nor could diſengage it, till Wulſtan being ſent for, it readily ſubmitted to his Touch. This remarkable Story had early Grounds, and no ſmall Authority, if we may believe the Annals of Burton-Abbey; for King John urges it to Pandulphus, the Pope's Legate, as a Proof of the Right of the Engliſh Kings to nominate Biſhops. The Story, thus related by Paris, is not mentioned by Florent. Worceſter; and indeed that of his keeping his Biſhoprick is very differently related; but enough of it, and to return: In the Time of this Abbot, Sulcardus, the famous Hiſtorian, flouriſhed, and wrote his Book of the Foundation and Charters of this Church, which Book is dedicated to this Abbot as follows: "Venerabili viro & ſemper Dei ſervo, "Domino Abbati Vitali Monachorum minimus "frater Sulcardus ſalutem, cum devoto famulata "& obſequio, &c." Vitalis preſided over this Abbey the Space of nine Years, and dying on the 19th Day of June, A. D. 1082, was buried in the South Cloiſter of the Church, where his Tomb was of white Marble, and plain, almoſt even with the Pavement; whereon, ſays Keep, have been Braſs Plates, which are torn away, and ſo is the Tomb; on which Tomb, on his Anniverſary was placed a rich Carpet worked with Gold, large Wax-Candles of two Pounds each, &c. In his Time, as is before-mentioned, lived the famous Chronographer Sulcardus, or more properly Sulgardus, a Man of excellent Character, and much eſteemed by Edwyn the Abbot, Edward the Confeſſor, and Vitalis; he wrote a general Chronology, now loſt, Chartularies of this Abbey, Sermons, Epiſtles, and other Tracts, in the Life of Edmyn before-mentioned.

GILBERT.

Gilbert or Giſlebert, ſirnamed Criſpinus or Criſpin, was choſen Abbot upon the Death of Vitalis. This Gilbert had been formerly Monk of Beck-Harlewyn in Normandy, and was at the Mediation of William the Conqueror, the Archbiſhop Lanfrank, and ſeveral Norman Nobility, choſen by the Monks of this Convent. He was a Man of great Deſcent, being from one of the nobleſt and antienteſt Families in Normandy; to which Nobility, beſides a conſiderable Acquiſition of Learning, he had the added Character of a Perſon of excellent and great Piety; the Means of King William's Kindneſs for him, were not only in regard to his Anceſtors, having been of neareſt Place in Councils of the Dukes of Normandy; but William, the Father of this Gilbert, was a ſingular Favourite of his, of whom Walſingham makes particular Mention. Our Abbot was a Man of excellent Learning, a ſound Theologiſt, and ready Diſputant, having for his Inſtructer Anſelm, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury. He travelled while a Monk here, and improved himſelf by that Means, viſiting the Univerſities of France, ſeeing Italy, Rome and Germany; in which Country, at the City of Mentz, he met with a Jew, excellently verſed in the old Law and Hebrew Language, with whom he had a long Diſputation, which he afterwards reduced into Method, and publiſhed with this Title, Of the Faith of the Church againſt the Jews, dedicated to Archbiſhop Anſelm; a Copy of which is in the Cotton lib. Titus D. XVI. 2. at which Time he was not Abbot, being ſtiled in his Book, Procurator Cænobij. He was ſoon after elected Abbot, and having a great Reverence for the Memory of Edward the Confeſſor, he removed his Body into a more eminent Place; the Manner of which, with the Circumſtances wherein he found the Body, being very curious, take from Alured Rival, as follows: "There being (ſays he) a Diſpute held "about this Time in the Convent, concerning "the Incorruptibility of this Virgin King, the "Abbot Gilbert Criſpin appointed a Day where"in to expoſe thoſe ſacred Remains, and called "together ſeveral honeſt and religious Perſons; "among whom was Gundulphus, Biſhop of Ro"cheſter; and in the 36th Year after his Inter"ment, they applied themſelves to this Tomb, "and opening the Sepulcher or Tomb-ſtone, in "which his Coffin was cloſed, there iſſued out "ſuch Aromatick Odours as filled the Church "with their Fragrance. In the firſt Place, the "burial Cloths were clean and ſubſtantial; "next, upholding his Veſtments, they found his "under Habit and Ornaments in the ſame State. "They ſtretched out his Arms, bent his Fingers, "and 1082.

" and found the whole Body ſound and flexible; " they next examined the Fleſh, which was " firm and pure as Chryſtal, whiter than Snow; " but when, after a long Surprize, none durſt ven- " ture to touch his Face, the Biſhop Gundulphus " laid his Hand upon the Forehead-Cloth, and " ſtroking it over his Face, drew it over his Beard, " which was as white as Froſt; ſurprized at this, " he attempted to draw a Hair from the Beard, " but that adhered ſtrictly; for which, being " gently reproved by the Abbot, he owned the " Fault, which Exceſs of Love occaſioned: Af- " ter this they preſerved the Grave-Dreſſes, and " clothing him a-new, re-interred him.

IN the Time of this Abbot, William the Conqueror held a Council in this Monaſtery; at which Council, Gilbert being preſent, he, with his Brothers, petitioned the King for a Charter of Liberties, which the King, at the further Interceſſion of the Archbiſhop of Lanfrank, and for the Love he bare this Gilbert, (as the Words of the Charter are) granted. In which Prince's Time Mr. Dart ſays he finds him at Windſor ſigning as Witneſs to a Charter for Croyland. And in Anno 1118, he was ſent to Theobald, Earl of Blois, together with Geoffry, Abbot of Croyland. He likewiſe ſays, that he finds this Abbot viſiting the Hoſpital of St. James's, where is now the Palace, which of old Time was ſubject to this Convent. Which Viſitation was the Wedneſday after St. John the Baptiſt, Anno 1100. This Giſlebert, after a long Life of Piety and good Deeds, died the 6th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1114, having governed this Church thirty-two Years. He was, ſays Fleet, of ſo great Sanctity and Humility, that no Prelate of that Age equalled him. His Anniverſary was celebrated the 7th Day of December. His Grave was in the South Walk of the Cloiſter, at the Feet of Abbot Vitalis aforeſaid, under a Black Marble Stone, the middlemoſt of the three in the Cloiſters, with his Image upon it, as if in a Stone Coffin, with his Paſtoral Staff, but no Mitre, that being acquired afterwards. Round which Tomb was a Latin Inſcription, not legible in Fleet's Time, much leſs now. He wrote Homilies on the Canticles, on Iſaiah, Jeremiah, on St. Jerome's Prologues to the Bible, of the Fall of the Devil, of the State of the Church, Epiſtles to Anſelm, a Treatiſe againſt the Sins of Thought, Word and Deed. Theſe are what have been aſcribed to him; beſides which, not mentioned, there are in Being, in the Cotton Library, ſome Epiſtles in MSS. of this Abbot's, by Way of Dialogue, to prove the Proceſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, from the Father and Son. His Anniverſary was 7th Id. December. In his Time (1092) flouriſhed Warnerus, or Warner, Monk of this Abbey, a Man of Piety, Learning and Eloquence; his Works were theſe, Collections of the Times, Homilies (which Boſton of Bury intitles moſt learned) and Flowers of the Holy Fathers, of which the latter is ſtill extant, and was printed at Baſil 1494.

HERBERT.

1114. UPON the Death of Giſlebert, the Monks choſe Herbert, a Norman, ſome Time Almoner of this Abbey, to ſucceed him; which Election Simeon places 1121. This Herbert, Henry the Firſt names in his Charter for ſecuring the Abbey-Lands in LONDON. He confirmed the Nunnery of Kilburn, then lately erected, which had been an Hermitage of one Godwin, and placed therein three Nuns of Queen Maud's Bed-chamber, reſerving the Power of Juriſdiction and Viſitation. He died September 3, Anno 1140, the 5th of King Stephen, when he had governed the Church twenty-ſix Years. He was buried in the South Walk of the Cloiſters, under the plain Pavement, before the ſecond Seat, (Scamnum) very likely the Reſting-ſeat round the Cloiſter, beyond the Belfrey-Door, i. e. in the old Cloiſter, before King Henry III. rebuilt it, towards the Door of the Refectory, on the Eaſt Side of the Cloyſter, with this Epitaph:

Abbatis noſtri corpus jacet hic Herèberti
Vivat poſt obitum ſpiritus ante Deum.

GERVAISE.

UPON Herbert's Death, King Stephen moved the Convent to make Choice of one Gervaiſe de Bloys, a Norman, and Baſtard Son of the King, being begotten on the Body of a Gentlewoman in Normandy, named Dameta: He is likewiſe called Gerum, by Matthew Paris. This Man, out of Devotion to St. Edward, endeavoured his Canonization, and ſent one Osbert de Clare, a learned Monk of this Convent, to Rome, to ſolicit it, but in vain. In his Time the Archbiſhop of Canterbury ſettled a Diſpute between him and one William of Winchendune, in Relation to ordaining Parſons to the Church of Winchendune. This Abbot influenced his Father to do ſeveral good Deeds for his Abbey; but then on the other hand, he himſelf miſerably impoveriſhed it, making away the Lands to his Mother and Relations: So that (ſays Paris) he left nothing for his Succeſſor. For his unjuſt Proceedings, the Monks complained to the Pope, who iſſued out a Bull for his regulating both his Life and Government: By which Writing it ſhould ſeem, that he had confiſcated ſome of the Jewels of the Church, and had a Deſign to ſerve the Regalia in the ſame Manner. The ill Character he bore occaſioned the Pope to refuſe his Deſire of Canonizing St. Edward, or elſe he was himſelf ſo greedy of Money, as to keep the prevailing Argument back. It plainly appears that he was an unjuſt, inſolent, arbitrary Man, preſuming too much upon his Birth, and miſerably oppreſſing the Monks; keeping the Tithes due to the Abbey, and expelling ſeveral of the Convent; exerciſing himſelf after a military Manner, not reſiding at his Abbey, but acting as a Soldier or fine Gentleman, herding among Laymen, and ſlighting his own Order. Fleet, ſpeaking of him, ſays, He acted very ill-becoming his Station. And Matthew Paris ſays, he was Clarior genere quam moribus, and charges him with miſapplying his Church's Revenues, for which Reaſon (quia res loci illius juveniliter diſſipavit) he was depoſed, and dying Auguſt, Anno Dom. 1160, in the 6th Year of the Reign of King Henry II. was buried in the South Walk of the Cloiſter, under a little Black Marble Stone, (not under that great modern one, which Mr. Keep has ſuppoſed it to be) and at the Feet of Abbot de Humez; it was a plain Stone, leſs at Feet than Head, and lay on the Left Side Giſlebert's. The Epitaph on it was thus:

De Regum genere Pater hic Gervaſius ecce
Monſtrat defunctus, mors rapit omne genus.

THIS Gervaiſe was an Arbitrator, with others, in a Diſpute between the Biſhop of Rocheſter, and the Monks there, concerning the Manors of Lambeth and Kendenham, which were adjudged to the Monks. In his Time flouriſhed Ralph, Alms-giver, and Monk of this Church. He wrote and left behind him Homilies on the Goſpel, Homilies on the Epiſtles, the End of the Sinner. He died the ſame Year with Gervaiſe.

LAUREN-

LAURENTIUS.

Laurentius ſucceeded him, a Norman by Birth, and Doctor in Divinity, firſt Monk, and Prior of Durham (as ſome ſay) and afterwards Monk of St. Alban's, and laſtly he was received here, (Monachatum in Capello Weſtm.) The Occaſion of his leaving Durham, was a Difference about electing Hugh Puſar for their Biſhop; upon which Election, Henry Murdac, Biſhop of York, excommunicated the Convent concerned in the Election; and ſtill perſiſting in an abſolute Refuſal to conſecrate their Elect Hugh, they appealed to Rome with his Electors; among which was this Laurence, then Prior; but he, not caring for the Fatigue of ſuch a Journey, dropped them when they came to St. Alban's, and betook himſelf to that Abbey; whence he was removed to Weſtminſter, and preferred to be Abbot, which was three or four Years after his Excommunication: Thus the Continuer of Simeon. At the Time when Laurence took the Government of this Church, he found it miſerably impoveriſhed by his Predeceſſor Gervaiſe, who ſtripped not only the Abbot's Houſe, but even made away with the Church Veſtments: Upon which Laurence makes Application to Robert, the Abbot of St. Alban's, who lent him to the Value of 200 Marks, viz. in Horſes, Furniture, Veſtments, &c. upon which Occaſion he is ſeverely taxed with Ingratitude and Injuſtice, as wrongfully detaining Lands from that Abbey, and having Intereſt with the King, vexing the Convent by continual Suits. Thoſe Lands were near the River Marford, and at Landrudge. The Abbot Laurence likewiſe engaged the King on his Side, alledging, that as Gerum, being of the Blood Royal, had ſold his Lands, ſo the King ought, by his Favour and Support, to endeavour to make up thoſe Loſſes to him. Another Difference was, concerning a Diſpute for Aldenham, between one Robert Tailboys this Abbot, and the Abbot and Convent of St. Alban's; of which, ſee the Particulars in Matthew Paris, who warmly cenſures him.

He was a Favourite of Maud the Empreſs, and of King Henry II. by which Means he procured the Reparation of the Monaſtery, and new Leaded the Offices lately burnt and ruinous; and recovered the Poſſeſſions in Gloceſterſhire and Worceſterſhire, taken from the Monaſtery in the Commotions between the Empreſs and King Stephen. To this Abbot, Alured, Abbot of Rivaux, dedicated his Hiſtory of the Life of Edward the Confeſſor, which Dedication begins in this Manner: Dilecto ac diligendo & intimis viſceribus amplectendo venerabili patri & domino dempno Laurentio Weſtmonaſterienſis Abbati, frater Alridus fratrum qui ſunt in Rivalle inutilis ſervus, debitam in Chriſto dilectionem. This Abbot was delegated, with three Biſhops, to meet at the Caſtle of Wincheſter, to hear and ſettle a Diſpute between the Biſhop of Lincoln, and the Convent of St. Alban's, the former requiring ſolemn Proceſſion and Viſitation, which the others denied; at which Meeting, coming to no Reſolution, a Synod was ſummoned by the King, to be held in the Chapel of St. Catharine in this Abbey, where Laurence opened the Affair in Latin, and vindicated the Privileges of the Abbey, the Succeſs of which ſee in Matthew Paris's Hiſtory of the Abbots of St. Alban's.

It was in this Abbot's Time, and upon his Application, that Edward the Confeſſor was enſhrined; at which Ceremony the Abbot aſſiſted, making Copes of his Burial-Clothes, and preſerving the miraculous Ring, as mentioned in the Donations. He likewiſe, upon Application to Pope Alexander III. obtained for himſelf and his Succeſſors, the Uſe of the Mitre, Ring and Gloves, but lived not to wear them. In the Time of Ralph, Abbot of St. Alban's, Mr. Dart ſays, he finds him giving Refuge to one Algumus, Prior of that Convent, being perſecuted by that Abbot, under his Protection, who became a Monk here, where he lived comfortably ſome Time; for Laurence and he had been for many Years intimate at St. Alban's, and at length was preferred to be Prior of this Convent of Weſtminſter. Not long after he was in hearing a Controverſy between the Monks of St. Alban's, and the Biſhop of Lincoln; and notwithſtanding the Difference between that Convent and the Abbot with this Laurence, yet, upon ſome Exigencies, he is found eſpouſing the Cauſe of that Abbey, and continuing his Viſit and Familiarity there; for, on Sunday Night, in October 1166, he anointed at St. Alban's, the Abbot Robert, then dying of a Pleuriſy; and at his Burial, with Gilbert Foliot, Biſhop of LONDON. As to his Character, (ſetting aſide what we have related) he was eſteemed a Man of Piety, Generous, and much advantaged his Monaſtery: He is likewiſe ſaid to have been of good Learning; but at preſent there remain not any Writings of his as a Proof; but 'tis highly probable, that he was eminent that Way, as appears by King Henry II's requeſting him to write the Life of Edward the Confeſſor; which (ſays Matthew Paris) he accordingly performed, collecting it from antient Tracts; and having written it in an elegant Stile, preſented it to the King; yet Knighton ſays, he intended it only. Fleet mentions Sermons and Homilies, which he publiſhed for the Saints-Days, and other Feſtivals, which were in Being in his Time, as appears by quoting one on St. Peter ad vincula, which begins thus: Miſit Herodes rex manus ut affligeret quoſdam eccleſia. Herodes hereditarium crudelitatis eſt nomen, ſolo auditu horrorem importat: And another on the Feaſts of St. Mary Magdalen, beginning thus: Intravit Maria in domus Symonis, ibique ſe proſtravit ad pedes Domini. De Maria Magdalena ipſa ſubveniente lectutor verborum beati Gregorii immemor eſſe nequeo, &c. At length, having governed this Church for the Space of ſixteen Years, he reſigned it and his Life together, the 11th Day of Apr. 1176, in the twelfth Year of the Reign of King Henry II. and was buried in the South Walk of the Cloiſter. In his Time lived Osbert de Clare, Prior of this Church, who procured the Canonization of St. Edward; a Man remarkable for his Learning, of which his Epiſtle to Henry Biſhop of Wincheſter, on that Occaſion, and a Collection of others, ſome of which to Adelida, Abbeſs of Barking, of Chaſtity, now in the Cotton Library, are Proofs.

WALTER.

Upon the Death of Laurence, the Convent proceeded to Election, and made Choice of Walter, then Prior of Wincheſter, and had been for the Space of five Years. Of which new Abbot, our Hiſtorians take not much Notice, only that he, by Application to Pope Alexander III. procured to himſelf and Succeſſors, the Uſe of a Dalmatick Pall and Sandals. Upon his Preferment to this Place, he received the Mitre and Gloves from the Biſhop of LONDON, his Predeceſſor Laurence had procured; and went Mitred into the Aſſembly of the Biſhops; but not long after there grew Dudgeon between the Pope's Legate and this Walter, (the former not being received in ſuitable Manner to his Character) whereupon he ſuſpended him from the Uſe of the Mitre, and the Prior William Poſtard, from entering into the Choir. He is ſaid to have written the Lives of William and Henry, Biſhops of Lincoln, which Book Kudburn quotes in his Works. After having governed this Church for the Space of fourteen Years, he died on the 27th Day of September, being the Day of St. Coſmus and Damian, Anno 1191, according to Fleet; but more juſtly in the Year 1190, as Weſtm. and Paris ſay, and in the ſecond Year of King Richard I. and was buried in the South Walk of the Cloiſter, under a plain Stone, near the firſt Bench, from the Steeple of which, as well as his Tomb-ſtone, there remains nothing. The Inſcription on it was as follows:

Hic eſt qui panſas Dictus Walterus Abbas,
Ex aliis fueras nec alienus eras.

For whoſe Anniverſary was aſſigned the Manor of Paddington, to find Torches at his Tomb, &c.

WILLIAM POSTARD,

By ſome called Poſſard, Prior of this Convent, ſucceeded; but his Election was not till ſome Months after, though a late Writer computes it in November 1191; whereas his Election was on Wedneſday the 23d of June, being the Vigil of St. John the Baptiſt; at which Election was preſent the King's Juſtices and Biſhop of LONDON, who inſtantly gave him the Benediction before the High Altar in the Cathedral of St. Paul's, and the Convent received him in Proceſſion, having a ſplendid Entertainment in the Refectory; at which was preſent the Biſhop of LONDON, and others. He governed this Abbey ten Years, in the firſt of which Time he disburthened it of a Debt of 1500 Marks of Silver, for which the Convent were bound; and having done other good Offices to it, died on the 5th of May, Anno 1201, or according to Mat. Weſtm. 1200, in the ſecond Year of the Reign of King John, and was buried in the South Walk of the old Cloiſter, before the Belfry, on whoſe Tomb was this Inſcription:

Poſtarum Willielmus Jacet in tellure ſepultus, Hic Pater & Paſtor qui fuit ante Prior.

His Anniverſary was obſerved the 2d Id. of May.

PAPILLON,

Called likewiſe by Matthew Weſtm. and Fleet, Ralph de Arundel, was born (ſays Diceto) in the City of LONDON; elected Abbot, the King and Archbiſhop preſent, on the 11th Kal. of September following his Predeceſſor's Death; of whoſe Character and Actions, Hiſtorians ſay little, but that he had Quarrels with the Court, and carried it with a high Hand over his Convent, which at length proved his Downfal; for (upon Application of the Court, it is likely) the Pope's Legate, Nicholas Biſhop of Tuſculum, came to the Convent, on the Thurſday after Michaelmas 1213, and continued there eighteen Days, enquiring of, and conſulting with the Convent, concerning their Grievances, and the Manner to redreſs them; and thence going to Eveſham, he depoſed the Abbot Norreys, who had governed there twenty-three Years; and the following Year he came again, and ſtaid twenty-three Days, and then, by his Legantine Power, depoſed this Papillon; in Order to execute which Power, Nicholas, Abbot of Waltham, was ſent; who, on the Morrow after St. Vincent's Day, broke his Seal in the Chapter-Houſe: In this, Fleet and Mat. Weſtm. differ; the firſt making the Depoſition at the Legate's firſt Viſit, viz. in 1213, the latter at his ſecond, in 1214. His Seal thus broken, he was fourteen Days after degraded; but the Legate and Abbot of Waltham allowed him a Support, aſſigning to him for that Purpoſe, the Manors of Toddington and Sunbury; which Aſſignment was afterwards confirmed by the ſucceeding Abbot, reſerving to the Convent the Church of Sunbury. Where this Papillon ended his Days, or how long he ſurvived this, is uncertain, but he died the 14th of February, and was buried in the Nave of this Church, and it is thought without either Tomb or Inſcription. This was the firſt Abbot who was buried in the Body of the Church.

HUMEZ.

Papillon depoſed, on the Day after the Invent. of Holy Croſs, was choſen in his Place, William de Humet, or de Humez, Prior of Fontain and Monk of Cadomen; who on the 4th Kal. of June, the Day of St. Urban, being Trinity Sunday following, received Benediction from the Hands of William de St. Mary, Biſhop of LONDON; in the third Year of whoſe Time, King Henry III. began the new Chapel of St. Mary in this Church; and John Abbot of Fontain, was conſecrated in it Biſhop of Ely, and the year following Euſtace de Fauconbridge, then Treaſurer of the Exchequer, Biſhop of LONDON; and the ſame Year Pandulphus, the turbulent Legate of Rome, laid by his Legantine Power in this Church, at the Command of Pope Honorius, Anno 1219. This Abbot Humez was appointed Arbitrator, together with the Abbot of Waltham, and Prior of the Holy Trinity, near LONDON, to ſettle a Diſpute between the Biſhop of LONDON, and the Abbot and Convent of St. Alban's, concerning the Juriſdiction of ſome Cells belonging to that Monaſtery, and ordaining the Vicar of Luiton; which Matter was the ſame Time compromized in the Chapter-Houſe of this Abbey, Anno 1222. Fauconbridge, being poſſeſſed of the See of LONDON, began to have an Eye upon the Abbey of Weſtminſter, intending to bring it into Subjection, and to that Purpoſe ſends this Abbot and the Convent, requiring of them Proceſſion, Procuration, Viſitation, and all other Juriſdiction whatever; to which the Abbot replied, 1214.

"That being by former Bulls, Royal (and other)
"Charters of his Predeceſſors exempted, they "could ſhew no Submiſſion to his Power; up-
"on which, Fauconbridge appeals to the Pope,
"who referred the Matter to Stephen, Arch-
"biſhop of Canterbury, the Biſhops of Wincheſ-
"ter and Salisbury, Thomas, Prior of Merton,
"and Richard, Prior of Dunſtable, who de"clared Weſtminſter free from all Manner of "Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of LONDON;
"and ordained, that the Church of Stanes, with "its Appurtenances, ſhould belong to Weſtmin-
"ſter, and the Church and Manor of Sunbury to
"the Church of St. Paul". This Agreement made, Mat. Paris, (by Miſtake) makes Anno 1223. This Abbot died on the 12th Kal. May 1222, in the 6th Year of King Henry III. after preſiding here eight Years; and was buried in the South Walk of the Cloiſter, at the Head of Gervaiſe de Blois, under a Marble Tomb with his Image on it in Pontificals. The Tomb is ſtill viſible; it is the Weſtermoſt of the three, and has been hitherto ſaid to be that of Vatalis; round it in Saxon Characters was this Inſcription:

Ortus ab Humeto Will. hic venerando,
Prefuit iſte loco nunc tumulatus humo.

BER-

BERKYNGE.

THE Succeſſor to Humez was Richard de Berkynge, Prior of this Church, who the ſame Year, viz. on the 14th of the Kal. of October, received Benediction in this Church, from Peter, Biſhop of Wincheſter: Soon after his Election happened a very tragical Affair, which Mat. Paris relates thus: "On St. James's Day the Citizens of "LONDON and Suburbians kept Sports of "Manhood, as Wreſtling, &c. near Queen Ma-"tilda's Hoſpital, at which Place the Citizens "gained the better; whereupon, the Bayliff of "Weſtminſter appointed another Trial of Skill "to be on the Feaſt of St. Peter ad Vincula, at "Weſtminſter; Mat. Weſt. at the Hoſpital of St. "James's, whither the Citizens repaired. After "playing ſome Time, the Bailyff and others, "being privately armed, fell to fighting, and "wounded ſeveral of the Citizens; who, run-"ning into the City, rang the common Bell, aſ-"ſembling the Citizens, who all reſolved to re-"venge the Fact; but Serle, the Mayor of "LONDON, being a diſcreet and prudent "Man, adviſed them to apply themſelves to "the Abbot, and if he would puniſh the Offen-"ders, and procure the City Satisfaction, it "would be ſufficient. But one Conſtantine Fitz-"Arnulf, being a hot fiery Man, adviſed them "to hear no Propoſals, but inſtantly to revenge "themſelves by pulling down the Abbot's and "Baylyff's Houſes. Upon which Word given, "they all ruſh'd out of the City with a horrid Up-"roar, pulling down many Houſes, and crying "Conſtantine, the Joy of the Mountain! the "Joy of the Mountain! God aſſiſt us and our "Lord Lodowick! Berkynge, upon this, a few "Days after, goes into the City, to Philip Dawbe-"ney, one of the King's Council, to make Com-"plaint of theſe Injuries; of which the Citizens "having Intelligence, ſurrounded the Houſe, "took away twelve of the Abbot's Horſes, and "beat his Men unmercifully; Dawbeney endea-"voured, but to no Purpoſe, to pacify them; "while he was intent upon which, the Abbot "got out at a Back-Door of a Houſe, and made "his Way to the Thames; where, taking Boat, he "with much Difficulty eſcaped their Hands, who "followed, and threw Stones at him in great "Abundance. Hubert de Burgh, Chief Juſtice, "hearing this, came to the Tower, and ſent for "the Mayor, &c. enquired into the Authors of "this Tumult; upon which Conſtantine, and two "others, were hanged, the firſt offering 15000 "Marks for his Life, but to no Purpoſe: And "then the Juſtice entering the City, after a bar-"barous Manner, cauſed the Feet or Hands of "the Offenders to be cut off." Anno 1233, this Berkynge and his Convent withſtood the Viſita-tion of the Pope, when he ſent to make Enquiry into the Abbies of the Benedictines, as did the Abbot of Bury and others. In his Time flouriſhed one Robert de Gras, a Monk of this Convent, choſen Prior of Herley, a Cell to Weſtmin-ſter, in the County of Bucks; afterwards Abbot of Eveſham, and nominated to be Biſhop of Litchfield and Coventry, but died in Gaſcony at Ryola, before Conſecration; a diſcreet and wiſe Man, at whoſe Death (ſays Weſt) the King grieved exceedingly. His Anniverſary was ob-ſerved in this Church, Anno 1242. There hap-pened a Diſpute between this Abbot Berkynge and Robert Biſhop of Lincoln, a turbulent Man, concerning the Juriſdiction of the Church of Herwel; the Biſhop turning out the Monk, who was Rector by Force, and denied the Abbot's Right of preſenting; but the Abbot ſtrenuouſly oppoſed him, till at length the King inter-poſed in this Difference ſo, that it was agreed that the Church ſhould belong to the Abbot, and the Vicarage to the Biſhop. About the Year 1245, when the Pope called a general Council, he, upon the King's Interceſſion, ex-cuſed this Berkynge from coming, for that he, with the Biſhop of Carliſle, were the King's De-puties or Regents of England, when he went abroad. Which Letters of Excuſe ſee in Mat. Paris, under that Year. Berkynge was a great Counſellor and Favourite to this King Henry III. and, 'tis not unlikely, put him upon his Bene-factions to this Church, procuring from the King their Charter of Liberties: He is likewiſe a Witneſs to Magna Charta; and was a conſider-able Man in the State, being not only Privy-Counſellor to the King, but Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and Lord Treaſurer of Eng-land. Take his Character from Matthew Paris, who ſays he was, Vir prudens, literatus, & reli-gioſus, i. e. a diſcreet, learned, and good Man; and Matthew Weſtm. records him as of pious Me-mory, and calls him Vir prudens & competenter literatus & multis moribus Decoratus, i. e. a wiſe and learned Man, and embelliſhed with excellent Qualifications. He much advanced this Church, and increaſed the Revenue to the additional In-come of 300 Marks, enriching it with Preſents, and procured many Advantages to it. At length having governed it the Space of 24 Years, he gave Way to Fate on the 23d of November, 1246, in the 13th Year of the Reign of King Henry III. and was buried in the Virgin Mary's Chapel, then newly erected, before the middle Altar, in a Tomb of Marble very neatly embelliſhed; upon the Foot of which were continually burning two Wax-Tapers of one Pound and half each, for which he aſſigned 24 s. of Land called Eagrave. His Tomb, when William de Colcheſter was Ab-bot, was taken down, perhaps being in the Way, and a flat Stone of Marble even with the Pave-ment laid in its Place, by Friar Comb, the Sacriſt, which continuing till King Henry VII. pulled down that Chapel, it was removed and placed in the Area at the Foot of the Steps aſcending to King Henry VII's Chapel, where it ſtill con-tinues, being a large and grey Stone, formerly plated with Braſs, having a Ledge of Braſs round it: The Tomb ſtill ſhews the Form of a miter'd Abbot, but the Braſs is ſtolen away, as alſo that round the Ledge.

IN his Time lived Roger Black, Monk of this Convent, and D. D. of Oxford; he wrote ſeve-ral Sermons, and died Anno 1241.

CROCKESLEY.

UPON Berkynge's Death, King Henry III. having a great Reſpect for Richard de Crockeſley, or Croſsley, Archdeacon of Weſtminſter, recom-mended him to the Monks; who, fearful to diſ-oblige the King, as being his Favourite, and leſt he ſhould deſiſt from building their Church, elected him on the Day of St. Edmund the Arch-biſhop, to which the King aſſented the 25th of March following. And for that his Election was on this Day, he built, in Honour of the ſaid St. Edmund, a Chapel ſo called, at the North Porch of the Church, which has been ſince pulled down; and the King, pleaſed at his Favourite's Promotion, procured for him the Liberty that when he celebrated Maſs in his Pontificals, he ſhould, at ſinging Agnus Dei, give ſolemn Bene-diction to the People. The Year after his Elec-tion, the King ſent him Ambaſſador with J. Manſel, who was then Prior of Beverley, to Al-maine, to the Duke of Brabant, to treat of a Marriage between Edward the Prince, and the Duke's Daughter; but, for ſome ſecret Reaſons, they returned back, having ſpent their Money and Labour to no Purpoſe. In 1235 he went to the the Lateran Council with William, Abbot of St. Alban's, Anno 1247. The King again ſent this Croſsley, together with Manſel, upon a ſecond Ambaſſy to the Duke of Brabant, concerning the aforeſaid Marriage, but to no Effect.

Anno 1249, was a great Diſcord between this Abbot and his Convent, to the Scandal and Diſgrace of all Black Monks, which, ſays Paris, infected the whole Kingdom, and Religion in general; the Reaſon of which was by him ſet down among others in lib. additament. But the Place being now loſt, we muſt remain in the Dark. However, it was made up at the King's interpoſing the following Year, at the Feaſt of St. Edward. In the ſame Year, upon a Difference between the Biſhop of Lincoln and the Sheriff of Rutland, on Account of a beneficed Clerk excommunicated, the King procured Papal Letters to reſtrain the Power of the Clergy, which Letters were directed to Croſsley, and dated the 7th Id. of March. The ſame Year he entertained the Friars Predicants, then lately arrived in England. And about this Time Croſsley had influenced the King to grant him and his Convent ſeveral Liberties which claſhed with the Charters of LONDON; at which the Mayor and Commonalty waited to intercede with the King, but were ſternly repulſed. After this, they went to Earl Richard, and the Earl of Leiceſter, with their Complaint, who ſharply rebuked the King, and curſed and abuſed the Abbot in ſuch a Manner as was a Shame, ſays Paris, to his Dignity, and a Scandal to repeat, and ſo the Abbot's Meaſures were fruſtrated. Another Inſtance of this Abbot's Influence over the King, was his procuring Charters for the Manor of Aldenham; which, ſays Paris, this Monaſtery had wrongfully detained from the Church of St. Alban's.

THE latter End of the ſame Year, viz. in Lent, Croſsley went privately over Sea at the King's Commands; the King intending ſhortly to follow, to viſit St. Edmund's Shrine at Pontiniac; and by that Means compenſate in ſome Meaſure for his leaning to the Legate Otho, and vexing that good Archbiſhop out of his Kingdom and Life; but Earl Richard oppoſing it, Croſsley, with a View of Pride, reſolved not intirely to loſe his Labour, and therefore attempts to be the Pope's Chaplain; of which the King hearing, he fell into great Wrath, and from that Time Croſsley's Intereſt with him declined daily.

Croſsley, thus abroad, continued a conſiderable Time at the Court of Rome, at great Expence, and by his Elocution and Addreſs gained a great Influence over the Pope, and was made one of his Chaplains; at which Time he endeavoured to diſannul the Grant of Berkynge, that the Abbot and Convent ſhould have their Goods ſeparately; which coming to the Ears of the Monks, they ſent ſeveral of them to the King, who, with many Tears, laid their Uſage before him. To whom the King, with an Oath anſwered, By G—— he ſhall never have his Ends; and much enraged, pauſing a little, he ſpake with the utmoſt Agony, in Alluſion to the Text of Scripture, Pœnitet me feciſſe hominem.

Croſsley ſoon after comes over to England, being much involved with Debts he had contracted in his Stay there, which had been ſo long, and his Intereſt ſo great, that every one believed he would continue there altogether. However, he landed in England, and thence, with a large Retinue of armed Men, came to his Convent, thinking by Force to bring them to a Compliance with his Meaſures. Afterwards he went to Windſor, the Court being at that Time there, where he ſung Maſs on his Pontificals before the King; after Service he went to pay his Duty, and produced many Letters of Great Men abroad, to deſire him, that he might have the ſole and abſolute Government of his Monaſtery, and re-unite the Eſtates thereof into one Right and Intereſt; at which the King, who had drank deep Averſion to him, returning a Side-Look, full of Scorn and Paſſion, beſtowed upon him a plentiful Crowd of Names and Reproaches; adding, that he had promoted him without the leaſt Merit, and unadviſedly had joined him in Council: And how, ſays he, can I rely upon your Fidelity, who endeavour to oppreſs and trouble your Brothers and antient ſocial Commoners? Manuel, Prior of Beverley, a Man of great Power, and Croſsley's Friend, with many others, endeavoured (but in vain) to moderate the King's Anger, for he inſtantly diſcharged him the Council, and forbad him his Preſence, &c. The Abbot, fearing further Danger, agreed to leave the Affair to the Arbitration of Earl Richard and John Manſel; but the Affair ended not here. However, the King's Diſpleaſure laſted not long at this Height, but abated in ſhort Time; for, the ſame Year the King going his Northern Expedition, directs the Biſhop of Ely and Croſsley to keep St. Edward's Feaſt in a ſumptuous Manner, both in the Church and his Palace; and the Year following he is found preaching a very moving and pathetick Sermon in this Church, before the King and Nobility, to incite them to a Cruiſado; which Sermon was preached at the King's expreſs Order. In which Year, the Difference between him and his Convent was adjuſted, by Means of Earl Richard, and John Manſel; and three Manors which the Abbot had wrongfully kept in his Hands, were ordered to augment the Hoſpitality and Alms of the Convent. But this Award the Abbot complained of as unjuſt, and threatened to appeal from it; at which the King, even mad with Anger, poured out Oaths and Execrations, calling him opprobrious Names, not fit to be mentioned, and abuſed him in a moſt unſeemly Manner, for that he immeaſurably wronged and aggrieved that his Favourite Convent; and the King, to make ſome Amends for the Damages the Convent had ſuſtained, granted them his Charters for diſpoſing the Abbot's Goods on a Vacancy, which before Time were taken into the King's Hands. The King likewiſe fearing the Abbot ſhould get a Trick of appealing to Rome, now ſo intimate there; in his Rage had it publickly proclaimed by a Cryer through LONDON, that no Perſon ſhould lend the Abbot any Money, nor take his Note or Seal, which Proceedings made him look miſerably deſpicable, and occaſioned every one's Wonder, who heard of them, to think that the Abbot, late the King's greateſt Favourite, ſhould ſo ſuddenly be ſcandalized and eſtranged from him.

Anno 1252, King Henry III. granted his Charter of Returns of Writs and Fines, and Goods of Vagabonds and Criminals.

Anno 1256. The Abbot was in ſome Meaſure reſtored to Favour; for this Year, in the Beginning of June, he went over-Sea with Ruſſano, Elect of Salisbury, upon private Negotiations of the King's; and the ſame Year the continued Difference between this Convent and the Church of St. Alban's, concerning the Manor of Aldenham, was made up. The latter End of the following Year Croſsley returns from his Embaſſy, which was to Rome, having ſuffered much by the Treachery of the French and Danger of the Way; and now the Secret of that Journey was found to be the mighty Affair of the Kingdom of Apulia: With much Bait the Court of Rome caught this ſhallow Prince, and his vain-glorious Son, who impoveriſhed England for an airy Title, and made the King the ſame Time a Property and a Laughing-Stock to the whole World. The ſame Year he was ſent a ſecond Time to Rome with the Biſhop Biſhop of Worceſter, the Elect of Wincheſter, the Earl of Leiceſter, &c. to mediate the Affairs between France and England, at that Time ripe for a War; but the King of France deferred coming to Terms till his Parliament was ended; the reſt therefore returning home, the Abbot went to France, to attend the King's Motions. Soon after his Return, the King calls a Parliament, to whom he repeated his uſual Requeſt for Money, who unanimouſly refuſed to raiſe him any Supplies; whereupon he ſends for Croſsley, and by fair and inveigling Arts, ſo infatuated the Man, that he ſet his, and the Convent's Seal, to a Writing obligatory for 2500 Marks, thereby giving a Precedent for other Monaſteries, to be fleeced: For Paſſeleve, Archdeacon of Lewis, a Creature of the King's, and moſt avaricious Extortioner, taking this fair Handle, goes to Waltham, (where he had a Seat, and lies buried) and ſhewing the Abbot's and Convent of Weſtminſter's Letters, required that Abbots Compliance in the ſame Manner; but was utterly refuſed the Abbot; alledging, "That Weſtminſter "had ſuch peculiar Obligations to the King, as "might perhaps carry them to ſo extravagant a "Compliance with his Neceſſities: But for his "Part, neither he, nor his Convent, would con-"cern themſelves with it." Thence he went to the Abbot of St. Alban's, who anſwered him in the ſame Manner: So that this Example of Croſsley's had not its expected Influence. This, as it was one of the worſt, ſo was it of the laſt Actions of his Life; for the ſame Year, the King calling a Parliament at Oxford, Croſsley attended, and was, with others, named by the King to mediate the Difference between him and the Barons; whence attending the King to Wincheſter, he died of Poiſon, given to him, and others of the King's Friends; as William de Clare, who inſtantly died, and Gilbert Earl of Clare, who with the Loſs of his Hair and Nails ſcarcely eſcaped Death. This happened on the 15th of the Kal. of Auguſt, 1258; Fleet ſays the 27th of July, (but falſely, as will appear) in the 47th Year of King Henry III. after he had governed this Convent twelve Years. Thus died this great Man, whoſe Life was a continual Hurry, and whoſe Station that of the higheſt; and yet, what is ſtrange to think, ſo conſiderable an Actor as he was in that troubleſome Time, ſo little has he been remembered, that none of the Hiſtorians, either of this Abbey, or his Order, ſeem to have known any Thing of him, mentioning barely the Time of his Election and Death, and one or two inconſiderable Incidents, not knowing even the Place of his Burial; and which, but for the MSS. of ſome of this Abbey not long after him, had ſtill remained a Secret. He was carried from Wincheſter, and very honourably (ſays Paris) buried in his Conventual Church at Weſtminſter. The Place of his Interment was, ſays Fleet, in the old Chapel of St. Edmund, near the North Door; but that Chapel being decayed, and pulled down, his Body was removed to the Chapel of St. Nicholas, and laid under a little plain Stone before the middle Altar: But, as if Fate had decreed the Man to have no Reſt, even in his Grave, the Body ſome Years after, viz. in King Henry VI's Time, was taken up, upon what Occaſion is not known; at which Time his Body was ſeen in a Stone Coffin by the Convent, firm and freſh, dreſſed in his Veſtment in which he ſaid Maſs. Where he was repoſited afterwards, is uncertain, though it is conjectured, that Flaccet's Tomb being finiſhed and convenient for that Purpoſe, and being likewiſe one of his Succeſſors, they placed it there, and that it is the Stone Coffin now viſible, in which was not long ſince, they tell us, a Body found; but upon Search, there could nothing be found but the diſjointed Boards of an inward Coffin. This Man was undoubtedly admirably qualified for the high and eminent Stations in which he appeared, being, to uſe the Words of one near his Time, Vir quidem elegans, facundus juris utriſque peritus, Canonici ſcilicet & Civilis, regi ſpecialiſſimus, in cujus etiam obſequio magnos & multos, tam in tranſmariniis, quam in ciſmariniis partibus, labores libenter conſumpſerat ſumptuoſas; to which may be added, from the ſame Author, in another Place; Erat utique tam voce quam corporali elegantia vir deſideriorum. And Knighton calls him, Vir utique nobilis & diſcretus.

His Anniverſary was obſerved 16 Kal. Auguſt, for which he aſſigned Lands. After his Death, a Demand was made by the Abbot of Chertſey, upon Richard de Ware, Abbot of this Church, for ten Marks, on the Anniverſary of Richard de Crokeſley, late Abbot, which was moderated by a Writing from the Abbot of Waltham, dated at Waltham in December 1267. The Epitaph on his Tomb was this:

Verſus Jam Wintoniæ polis de Crokeſley
Richardo
Mortee amar, dedite & locus iſte capit.

P. LEVESHAM.

Upon Crokeſley's Death, the King four Days after, viz. 21 July, 1258, granted the Cuſtody of the Barony to the Abbey of Weſtminſter, to Adam de Eaſton; and two Days after, viz. July the 23d, granted his Licence to chuſe another; upon which was choſen Philip de Leveſham, or Lewſham, ſo called from a Village near Greenwich in Kent, his Birth-place, who at that Time was Prior of this Convent; but he being a very fat corpulent Man, deſired to be excuſed, as chuſing rather to continue in his former Station, than undertake a fatiguing and dangerous Journey to Rome for Honour or Dignity; but being prevailed upon to accept it, the Convent ſent to Rome to have his perſonal Appearance excuſed; which, with much Application and more Money, they effected; and, returning home, found him dead: His Death happened the latter End of October. Fleet ſays, he went to Rome, and died in the Way; where he was buried, is uncertain.

R. WARE.

After Leveſham's Death, the Abbey (ſays Fleet) continued vacant for two Years, from 17th July 1258, i. e. from Crokeſly's Death; for the laſt was but titular, in which he is right; for one Hubertus de Boreham, preſented by the King to the Church of Stevenage, belonging to Weſtminſter, in Auguſt 1259, the Abbey being vacant; and likewiſe in February following, the King preſented another to the Church of Morden for the ſame Reaſon. But by this two Years Vacancy muſt be underſtood the Time the ſucceeding Abbot was at Rome for Confirmation; for the King, the firſt of December following Leveſham's Death, granted his Licence to the Convent to chooſe; who thereupon made Choice of one Richard de Ware, or Warren, which the King confirmed the 15th of the ſame Month; whereupon, going to Rome, he continued there two Years, and in his Return purchaſed the fine Moſaick of St. Edward's Chapel and the Altar. Being eſtabliſhed, he ſet about regulating this Monaſtery, and in order thereto directed William Halſeley, who was then Sub-Prior of the Church, to draw up and collect the antient Cuſtoms and Uſages of this Convent in four Volumes, which were finiſhed Anno 1266; the three firſt are loſt, but the fourth Part being a fair MS. one Volume in Folio, is in the Cotton Library; it treats of the Duties of the Abbots and other Officers, and was kept as the moſt valuable, which appears by this Note prefixed, viz. Pars quarta & at tribus aliis partibus idcirco ſeperatur, & perſe Igitur in conclavi ponitur, quia ſecretiora noſtri ordinis in ipſa continentur: At the End of it are theſe Verſes following:

Hoc opus accepit in cœlis qui dominatur
Et nomen præſtat auctori quod mereatur
Secum regnare poſt fine mortis amare:

Vel ſic,
Inter ſanctorum turbas regnare ſuorum
Finito libro ſit Laus & Gloria deo.

THIS Abbot was a conſiderable Favourite with the King, and was honoured with the Dignity of Lord Treaſurer of England, and was, Anno 1271, ſent by him Ambaſſador to the King of France. He was a good Patron to his Convent, disburthening it of a Debt of 600 Marks, procured to himſelf the full Juriſdiction of the Hoſpital at St. James's, &c. and dying the 2d of December, 1283, was buried before the high Altar, near his Moſaick Pavement, and at the Foot of Aymer de Valence's Tomb: For his Anniverſary was aſſigned the Manor of Keldon; his Tomb-ſtone bare this Inſcription, in Fleet's Time, (but was removed, upon ſetting up this new Altar-Piece, and the Place paved with Marble:)

Abbas Richardus de Ware, qui nunc requieſcit
Hic portat lapides, quos hic portavit ab urbe.

WALTER WENLOCK.

AFTER Warren's Death, the King by his Grant, dated December 8, 1283, Regni 12°, committed the Cuſtody of the Barony of Weſtminſter to Malcome de Harlaw, and the 11th of the ſame Month, granted Licence for the Convent to proceed to a new Election, who accordingly, on the Vigil of the Circumciſion, elected Walter de Wenlock. This the King confirmed the 22d of January, and reſtored the Temporalities the 10th of June following, in whoſe Time, viz. Anno 1290, was a Diſpute between this Abbot and the Prior of Wincheſter, with the See of Canterbury, concerning the Coronation; and the Abbey was upon that put under Interdiction, inſomuch that Anno 1290, when Queen Alianor was buried, the Archbiſhop would not officiate for that Reaſon: Upon the Death of which Queen, Edward I. aſſigned to this Wenlock for her Anniverſary 12 Manors, as Stow ſays, and from him Weaver; but by Miſtake, there being but ſix Manors and ſeveral Hamlets, viz. the Manors of Briddbroke in Eſſex, Weſterham and Eulinebrugge in Kent, Turveſton in Buckinghamſhire, Knolle and Grafton, with the Hamlets of Alſpathe, Buleys, Hulverlee, Witlakesfield, Kynewaldſhey, Notchurſt, Langedon and Didington in Warwickſhire: In which Year Abbot Wenlock was deputed by the Abbot of Gloceſter, to preſide jointly with the Abbot of Chertſey at Abingdon, over a Convention of above 30 Abbots and Priors, met on Account of the Foundation of Gloceſter College in Oxford, by Gifford, of which ſee farther in Reyner; and about the ſame Time the Fryars Minors, who had now gained great Ground, miſerably infeſted the Monks of Weſtminſter and Worceſter (as St. Hildegard had propheſied, ſays Matt. Weſtm.) the Pope, who had been of the Order ſupporting them, as did likewiſe the Archbiſhop of Canterbury; but dying ſoon after, their Malice was fruſtrated. To this Abbot, and his Church and Convent, King Edward I. preſented a large Piece of the Croſs, adorned with Gold, Silver and Jewels, which was brought him by the Secretary of the Prince of Wales, and called St. Neot's Croſs, being brought from the Holy Land into that Country, by a Prieſt ſo called. In Anno 1304, happened a ſad Affair in Relation to the Monks; for a Thief breaking into the King's Treaſury, which was in the Cloiſters, ſtole thence a great Sum of Money, which being diſcovered, twelve Monks were caſt into Priſon upon Suſpicion, where they continued ſome Time; but the Year following, viz. 1305, the King came on Lady-Day to Weſtminſter to return Thanks to GOD and St. Edward for his Triumph over the Scots; and being concerned at his raſh Confining them, gave Orders inſtantly to diſcharge them; but Walſingham obſerves, the Perſons ſo directed to diſcharge them, detained them eight Days longer, out of pure Malice. The ſame Year Pope Clement V. granted to this Abbot and the Abbot of Waltham, the Appropriation of the Churches of Sturre and Kenynton. About which Time, viz. 1308, by Conſent of the Abbot and Convent, the Body of King Sebert was tranſlated into this Church, from the old one which himſelf had founded, (as Walſingham ſays,) and when they opened the Tomb, they found his Right Arm found in Fleſh, Skin and Bones, to the Middle of his Arm, after almoſt 700 Years Burial. For this faſhionable Miracle, we have only Walſingham's Authority, who lived long after. Some Authors fix this Removal in 1383, in King Richard II's Time; but be it when it would, none of the Legenders of that Time mention it, nor was it preſerved, as undoubtedly it would have been, with the ſame Reverence as the Arms of his Contemporaries, King Oſwald, &c. For then Sporley, the Monk, would undoubtedly have exhibited it in his Inventory of Relicks here, which he has not; but Walſingham wrote late, and had Room for Invention.

NOT long after this Miracle happened what the Monks call a Judgment in their Favour; for one Sir John Blackwell, who was a great Enemy to this Church, (on Account of ſome Law Differences between him and the Convent;) being preſent at the Coronation of King Edw. II. he was trampled or crowded to Death in this Church, without the Happineſs of the laſt Viaticum. This Abbot was much favoured by King Edward I. to whom he was a Treaſurer and Privy-Counſellor; for he is found ſoon after Wallie's Execution, convened in Council at the New Temple, LONDON, to conſult the Affairs in Scotland, which Council laſted 20 Days, the Reſult of which was a Peace with that Kingdom. He governed this Convent with great Prudence, and much inriched it in his Life, by diſcreet Management, and at his Death by Legacies of his Plate, &c. and having ſat 24 Years and ſix Days, he died at Midnight, in the Middle of ſecond Maſs on Chriſtmas Eve, Anno 1307, in his Manor-Houſe of Piryford in Gloceſterſhire; he was buried on the South Side of the Moſaick Pavement of the high Altar, near the Door going to St. Edward's Chapel, and at the Foot of Sebert's Tomb: His Tomb Fleet deſcribes not, but in Weaver's Time it was viſible, plated with Braſs, and was lately removed at fixing this Altar-Piece; the Epitaph was this:

Abbas Walterus jacet hic ſub marmore tectus,
Non fuit auſterus ſed nirtis famine rectus.

To this Year 1307, we may juſtly fix the Time of Mat. Weſtm. commonly called Florilegus, though ſome make him to live 1377, his Hiſtory concluding there; but that was continued tinued by other Hands. He was a Monk here, and collected his Flowers of History in three Books, of which those of his own Time are Copies of Paris (tho' some think they were both obliged to Wendover) Westm. seems to have taken great Pains in this Work; but when he treads on Paris's Heels, shews neither the Learning, Language, nor plain open Integrity of him. He is said likewise to have written a History of Westminster, and another of St. Edmond's-Bury; his History is continued down by Merimuth to 1330.

RICHARD SUDBURY, or DE KIDINGTON.

Richard de Kidington was, upon the Death of Wenlock, chosen; to which the King assented the 23d of Feb. following, and wrote to the Pope to confirm him. Thus elected, he went to Rome, during which Vacancy, viz. the 6th of November, 1308, the King presented John de Woodford to the Church of St. Bride, four Years after he returned; whereupon the King, by his Letters Patents, dated the 25th of April, 1311, restored him his Temporalities. This Abbot is, by Fleet, called Sudbury, from his Birth; but in the Deed for his Successor's Confirmation, he is called of Kidington. There is nothing remarkable concerning him, the troublesome Times, perhaps, preventing it. He died the 9th of April, 1315, and was buried before the high Altar, under the Pavement, where the Paschal Wax-Candle stood; there was over him a Stone of grey Marble, formerly plated with his Effigies in Pontificals; of which Weaver makes no Mention; and at paving the Choir, intirely taken away.

W. DE CURTHINGTON.

The King, certified of Kidington's Death, granted Leave for a new Election, by Letters dated April the 21st, whereupon they chose William de Curthington, called also Carthington and Curlington, and in an antient Writing Curtlington; to which the King assented, by Letters dated June the 11th, 1313, and recommended him to the Pope for Confirmation; whereupon taking with him Robert de Reby, and John de Wanteing, Monks, he went to Rome, but the Papacy being vacant, he applied himself to William Deacon, Cardinal of St. Nicholas in Julliano, and laid his Vouchers of Election before him, and protested to the Validity of it: This was done in the City of Valentia, on the 12th of July, 1315, but his Stay must be a Year longer, for May 16, 1316, the King presented to Lalam and Peclesham Vicarage. This Abbot is no where mentioned but by Fleet, who tells us he built the Manor-House of Islip, where St. Edward the Confessor was born, and rebuilt the Church of Sutton in Gloucester, and left Money for high Mass in this Church; and lastly, that he died on the 11th of September, 1331, Anno 7 Edward. III. and was buried in the South Cross, right fronting the Altar of St. Benedicte, near the Tomb of Sir John Shoreditch, and under a Lamp that hung there as you go to the Vestry. His Tomb-stone had his Images in Pontificals, and is still to be discovered, being near Camden's Monument, in the Middle of the West Isle of the Cross, and has the Stone of Shoreditch near it, which is a large broken one, with the Places of two Escutcheons.

In his Time lived Robert de Reading, a Monk of this Convent, who wrote Annals, from the 28th Year of King Edward I. i. e. ab Anno 1299, to the Year 1325; afterwards continued by others to 1369. There are two fair Copies of this, one in the Cotton Library; another in that excellent one of the Right Honourable the Lord Oxford. And Sir Richard Cirencester, Monk of Westminster, 1348, travelled to most of our Libraries, and collected a notable History, from the Coming of the Saxons to his Time, which was 1348; it is divided into two Parts, the first called, The Mirrour of History; the other, A Second Part of the Chronicle of the English-Saxons; to which some add, An Epitome of Chronicles.

THOMAS HENLEY.

Two Days after Curthington's Death, viz. the 13th of September, 1333, the King had Notice, and granted Licence to re-elect. The Convent therefore chose Thomas Henley, to which the King assented the 30th of the same Month, and restored his Temporalities the 29th of June, 1334. The Year following, viz. the 7th of June, 1335, he obtained Leave of the King to absent himself for seven Years, to ply his Studies in the University. There is nothing of him remarkable, but that he gave a fine Pastoral Staff to the Convent.

This Henley presided over a Provincial Chapter of the Benedictines, held at Northampton on Lady-Day, 1340, together with the Abbot of St. Mary's at York, at which Time he, according to Usage, declares the Abbots and Priors, who were absent, Contumacious, and injoined them Penance; and in 1343, at the same Place, he sent his Prior as Protector; at which Chapter Henley was again named as President and Deputy: He died at Oxford in Gloucester College, on the 29th of October, Anno 1344, and was brought hither and buried in the lower Pavement, before the high Altar.

SIMON DE BUCHESTON.

Upon Notice of Henley's Death, the King, on the 4th of November, 1344, granted Licence for a new Choice, which fell upon Simon de Buchesston; this the King assented to, Nov. the 15th, 1344, and restored his Temporalities on the 23d of March following; some Time after which, he made Application to the King, for Leave to absent himself from his Convent, and to study in the University for three Years; which the King granted him the 6th of August, 1345. There is nothing more of him, but that he was buried in the East Ambulatory of the Cloister, before the Interlocutory of the Chapter-House, under a little Stone of black Marble, the Stone is still visible, less at Feet than Head, and the Feet reaching cross the Cloister, towards the Door going to the Library.

SIMON LANGHAM.

To Buchesston succeeded Simon Langham, or Lanham (according to Thorn) to whom the King restored his Temporalities on the 16th of Sept. 1349; of whom, although Mention has been already made, we shall repeat what is concerning him, except his Epitaph, that these may be intire and of a Piece. He was first Monk here, and afterwards Prior, and lastly Abbot, and after continuing so about 11 Years, was promoted to the See of LONDON, but (as some say, out of Covetousness) preferred to the less honourable See of Ely, to which he was elected before he received Consecration for that of LONDON; soon after which he was made Lord Treasurer, afterwards Lord Chancellor of England; by Means of which Advantages he grew wealthy; though others say, that he oppressed his Diocese, and extorted it from them. He was from this See promoted to the Archbishoprick of Canterbury, 1366, upon the Death of Simon mon Yſclep, to which he was elected on the Vigils of St. Nicholas, and received his Pall in St. Nicholas's Chapel, by the Hands of the Biſhop of Bath, November the 4th, 1366, and was enthronized on the Feaſt of our Lady following: He compoſed a Difference in his Time between the Londoners and their Clergy, about their Tithes, allotting out of every Pound yearly Rent one Half-Penny, or out of every Houſe of 10 s. a Year, a Farthing, beſides Oblations and Tithes: Stow ſays he allowed every Prieſt but 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. which made many of them to ſteal. He ſat Archbiſhop not much above two Years, being made Prieſt-Cardinal of St. Sextus, by Pope Urban VI. which being done without the King's Knowledge, he ſeized his Temporalities. The Archbiſhop reſigned his See, lived privately at Oxford, till he had Leave to go over Sea; to poſſeſs which Title he left his See, and went to Avignon, where he was ſoon after made Biſhop-Cardinal of Præneſte by Pope Gregory XI. who likewiſe impowered him to receive the Profits of other vacant Promotions as Adminiſtrator, for ſo they intituled him; by which Power he was Archdeacon of Taunton, and Treaſurer of Wells: He died at Avignon, July 22, 1376, of a Palſy, wherewith he was taken ſuddenly as he ſat at Dinner, and was buried in the Church of the Houſe of the Carthuſians, whoſe Houſe he had founded, and was (as he in his Will ordered) three Years after removed to this Church, and buried near the Altar of Benedict, under a Tomb of Alabaſter, with an Epitaph old enough to be written for him; but it is thought it could never be on his Tomb, no Signs of Injury being round it, ſaving this, the antient wooden Canopy was beat down lately. He is ſaid by Joceline to be a Man of great Knowledge, of a generous Spirit, and managed all his Stations with Judgment and Honour; he wrote a Book of Cuſtoms, and ſome Sermons, mentioned by Pits, of which no Judgment can be formed:

In his Time lived John Wilton, Monk of this Houſe, a Man ſaid to be of great Learning and Piety; his Works are contemplative, as appears by their Title in Verſe and Proſe, viz. The Clock of Wiſdom: Of God's Benefits: The Sting of Compaſſion, and ſome Homilies. He lived about 1360.

And laſtly, A Continuer of Reading's Annals after Meriomouth, to the Year 1367; he is written Johannes R. Mon. Weſtm.

NICHOLAS LITTLINGTON.

To Lanham ſucceeded Nicholas Littlington, at the ſame Time the former was named to the See of Ely; he was Executor or Truſtee of his Predeceſſor's Will, and by that Means delivered to this Convent that vaſt Quantity of Plate that belonged to him. He built the Hall in the Abbey-Houſe, the Jeruſalem Chamber, the South and Weſt Cloiſters, the Kitchen-Buttery, Sacriſtan's Houſe, the Cellerer's Office, with the Tower and Water-Mill, and a Granery, which was lately the College Dormitory, and new paved the Cloiſters. There were many other Gifts of his, among the reſt, two Books of the Coronations, marked N. L. the Letters of his Name, not unlikely prepared for that moſt ſplendid Coronation of King Richard II. at which he aſſiſted: In his Time happened that Violence upon Schakell and Haule, who fled to Sanctuary. He died in November 1386, and was buried in the Chapel of St. Blaze in the South Croſs of this Abbey.

WILLIAM of COLCHESTER.

William of Colcheſter was elected Abbot after the 12th of December, 1386, to which the King aſſented the 21ſt of January following: The Time he died is uncertain, but his Tomb is viſible in St. John Baptiſt's Chapel, of white Marble; this is plain beyond all Conjecture; for though there is no Inſcription, yet the Pillar he reſts on and his Miter are thus powdered, W. de C. ſignifying William de Colcheſter: Other Inſcription there is none.

RICHARD HAROUNDEN.

Richard Harounden is next named, of whom we know nothing certain; but during this Interval of Darkneſs, in the Year before the Depoſition of King Richard II. we find the Abbot of Weſtminſter attending King Richard II. into Ireland, and after his Return, appointed, with others, to go with him in the Tower, concerning his Reſignation; and ſoon after, concerned at his Uſage, joined with the Dukes of Exeter, Surrey and Anmarle, &c. The Biſhop of Carliſle, and principally the Abbot of Weſtminſter, had an uncommon Averſion to King Henry IV. for that, when Earl of Derby, he had declared the Clergy had too much, and the King too little; but ſome rather think it was out of true Loyalty to releaſe their captiv'd Sovereign; but this being diſcovered, and ſeveral executed, the Abbot fled from his Monaſtery, and dying of an Apoplexy, eſcaped publick Execution. This Harounden is ſuppoſed to be the Man whom the Monks privately buried without Tomb or Inſcription, nor do we know in what Part of the Church they laid him.

GEORGE FLACCET.

George Flaccet, who muſt neceſſarily ſucceed upon the Death of the former, viz. 1402, but this is doubtful, and yet very probable, for 'tis certain that an Abbot died at this Time, and Mr. Dart ſays, he takes Flaccet to be the Perſon who ſucceeded him. There is nothing very remarkable of this Flaccet, or in his Time, ſave that there was a Diſpute, Anno 1410, between the Abbot and the Rector of Shiperton, which was adjuſted by the Biſhop of LONDON. King Henry IV. taken with an Apoplexy in the Church, was brought to his Houſe, and died in the Jeruſalem Chamber. This Man lived till 1414, and dying, was buried in a plain Tomb, but curiouſly arched over it with Free-ſtone, having the Letters G. F. in a Cypher upon it, in St. John Baptiſt's Chapel, which ſee in the Survey: The Writers ſay the Inſcription is torn off for Lucre of Braſs; but if they had looked again, they would find on the outer Ledge next the Area, in black Letters, this Inſcription: Georgius Flaccet quondam Abbas Weſtmonaſterienſis obiit Anno.

WILLIAM ——

After the Death of Flaccet, which thoſe who have touched lately on this Subject fix not the Time of, they have been ſo much in the Dark as to place Richard Sudbury for his Succeſſor, who is no more than that Keddynton before mentioned, and at the ſame Time omit one William, Abbot at this Time, whoſe Sirname is not to be found, unleſs they have miſplaced Colcheſter; and then Newcourt groſsly miſtook the King's Patent of Aſſent to his Election: But uncertain it is, that ſuch a one there was who ſucceeded Flaccet; for, Anno 1414, William, Abbot of Weſtminſter, was by King Henry VI. in the ſecond Year of his Reign, appointed to go with the Biſhops of Bath and Sarum to the known Council of Conſtance; from which Time there is no further Account of him, till his Death, which was was twelve Years after; for Anno 1426, being appointed to preſide over a general Chapter of Benedictines at Northampton, where, it ſeems, he and the Abbot of Reading always preſided, or their Priors; he being ſick, could not appear, and died while the Chapter was held.

JOHN EASTNEY.

Upon the Death of William, John Eaſtney, Mr. Dart ſays, ſucceeded him, though by Newcourt, and others from him, he is placed lower; of whoſe Character or Abilities nothing remains, except what appears by his publick Acts of Munificence to this Church, in which he cauſed to be made a Skreen to the Chapel of St. John the Evangeliſt, and likewiſe built the great Weſt Window, or at leaſt preſented, to adorn it, a large Quantity of curious painted Glaſs, whereof little remains. He likewiſe built one of the lower Windows, and preſented two Images gilt, for the Altar of St. Peter and Paul, which is ſuppoſed to have been near the Veſtry Door; and preſented an Image for the Chapter-Houſe, on the Vigils of thoſe Saints. He paid the King 1000 l. upon Account of the Merchants of the Staple; and, as ſome ſay, paid the Court of Rome 3070 l. due to it for Confirmation of Abbots. He died the Month before King Edward IV. viz. the 4th of May, 1438, having governed nine Years, and was buried in the Sacriſtarea, on the North Side, near Valence's Tomb, and has a Monument adjoining to the Skreen of St. John the Evangeliſt's Chapel, with his Effigies in Braſs, in a Maſs Habit, on a Label from his Mouth, In dno. confido Jehu meo. And round the Verge this broken Piece of Inſcription, Menſis Maii. His Body was not long ſince, upon breaking up a Grave, diſcovered lying in a Cheſt quilted with yellow Satten; he had on a Gown of Crimſon Silk, girded to him with a Black Girdle; on his Legs were white Silk Stockings, and over his Face, which was Black, a clean Napkin doubled up and laid Cornerwiſe; the Legs and the other Parts of the Body firm and plump.

EDMOND KIRTON.

Edmond Kirton, D. D. deſcended from an antient and illuſtrious Family of the Name of Codilbie, was educated probably at Gloceſter Hall in Oxford, then a College ſet a-part for the Benedictine Monaſteries; to the Library of which he after gave Books, of which ſome are now in the Univerſity, with his Name prefixed. In this College he was a B. D. in the Year 1426, at which Time he is found preaching before a general Chapter of Benedictines at Northampton; for his Oratory was remarkable, inſomuch that his Epitaph informs us he preached before Pope Martin. At the before-mentioned Chapter he is called Prior, Student at Oxford, and was appointed a Viſitor of the Benedictine Monaſteries; here he likewiſe exhibited Letters from the Chancellor and Regent of Oxford, for a Subſidy for building new Divinity Schools; and informed them, that the Abbot of St. Alban's had almoſt rebuilt the Monks Veſtry, near the Chapel at Oxford; upon which they roſe and thanked him; and then, ſecondly, he moved them, that they would rebuild the Chapel there; laſtly, complained of Abbots not ſending Students there. This Chapter, in Return, deſire the Chancellor and Regent to create him Doctor. He died the 3d of October, 1466, and was buried there under a Free-ſtone in St. Andrew's Chapel.

THOMAS MILLING.

Thomas Milling ſucceeded, who, from his Youth, was of this Monaſtery, from whence he went to Gloceſter College or Hall, in Oxford, where he grew familiar with the Greek Tongue, (ſuch as that Novelty then was) and expert in all Learning, for which he is mentioned in ſome Notes of a learned Student here, as an Ornament of, &c. Leland likewiſe commends him for his Literature, and ſays, that he wrote many Things, of which there are none extant at this Time. Returning to his Monaſtery, he became Abbot, and a Favourite at Court, by Reaſon, that when the Scales turned upon King Edward IV. after his Coronation, the Queen took Sanctuary here, and was by him handſomely received, and lodged in his Houſe, where being delivered of her firſt Son, Edward V. the Abbot, though at ſo dangerous a Juncture, ſtood Godfather, which ſome have taken for an Honour done him; whereas it was rather a Caſe of Exigence: However, this recommended him to the King's Favour, who honoured him with the Name of a Privy-Counſellor; and after being Abbot there eight Years, he made him Biſhop of Hereford, of which Temporalities he had Reſtitution the 15th of Auguſt, 1475, in which See having continued 17 Years, he died Anno 1492, and was buried in the Middle of the Chapel of St. John Baptiſt, in this Church, where, in Camden's Time, he lay, and a ſlight Monument for him againſt the Wall, where Popham's ſtands; but no Inſcription having been there, Mr. Camden would have given it, though it was not his Buſineſs to remark Stone Coffins, as Mr. Keep ſuppoſes he would, had that upon Flaccet, by him, ſaid to be this Abbot's, been viſible there in his Time.

JOHN ISLIP,

Was next Abbot, who began his Government at a troubleſome Juncture; for, at the firſt he had the ſame dangerous Gueſt with his Predeceſſor, viz. Queen Elizabeth, who, with her younger Son and Daughters, fled to his Houſe for a Sanctuary againſt the Protector's Malice; which Flight gave him great Uneaſineſs; yet ſo cautious was he, that he did not ſtir in Defence of Holy Church, when threatened ſo ſeverely at that Time; however, this recommended him to the Favour of the Queen and Princeſs, and conſequently to that of Henry VII. for whoſe Cauſe, 'tis not unlikely, he aſſiſted the Deſign of his Marriage with the Princeſs Elizabeth, being concerted in his Houſe, though the weak-minded Queen was afterwards diverted from it. During the Queen's Stay here, this Church and Monaſtery was incloſed like a Camp, and ſtrictly guarded by Soldiers, under one Neſfield; and none were ſuffered to go in or out without ſpecial Permiſſion, for Fear the Princes ſhould convey themſelves over the Sea, and baulk King Richard III's Deſigns. After King Henry VII. came to the Crown, he grew a Favourite and Counſellor; and when the King founded his magnificent Chapel, he laid the firſt Stone of it, and by his Example repaired and beautified the Church, and added in Niches along the Buttreſſes, the Statues of Kings that had been Benefactors: He likewiſe deſigned a lofty Tower and Lantern, with a Chime of Bells, to be placed over the Middle of the Croſs; but the Pillars were too weak to ſupport it, wherefore the Bells were hung in the Weſtern Tower, where they remain. He founded the Chapel called by his Name, (and dedicated to St. Eraſmus.) He likewiſe built the Dean's Houſe, and Offices to the Monaſtery; and dying the 2d of January 1510, 2 Henry VIII. was buried in this Chapel.

WILLIAM BENSON, or BOSTON,

Of whom we know little; but that he, with ſeventeen Monks of this Convent, ſurrendered his Abbey to King Henry VIII. who converting it into a Deanery, made him Dean thereof. He died 1549, and was buried in the South Croſs, as you go to the Reveſtry; his Tomb is remaining; but the Braſs Plates, the Figure, Canopy and Inſcription, torn away.

In his Time flouriſhed Thomas Gardener, Monk here, who wrote a brief Abſtract of Engliſh Hiſtory, from Brutus to his Time, which is now in the Cotton Library.

THOMAS THURLBY, Biſhop.

During Boſton's Deanery, viz. 1540, King Henry made Weſtminſter a Biſhop's See, and made Thomas Thirlby Biſhop thereof. This Thirlby, whom Mr. Wood, by Miſtake, calls John, was Doctor of Civil and Canon Laws; or, as others ſay, Divinity, and ſome Time Fellow of Trinity College in Cambridge, and afterwards Archdeacon of Ely. He was ſo extravagant a Dilapidator, that the Biſhoprick was ten Years after diſſolved by King Edward VI. and Thirlby removed to Norwich; and four Years after to Ely, by Queen Mary, who made him a Privy Counſellor: But being after her Death a Recuſant, he was ſent to the Tower, and diſplaced by Act of Parliament; ſoon after which, the Queen removed him to Lambeth Houſe, where he, and Biſhop Tonſtall, were kindly and reſpectfully treated by the Archbiſhop; and there he ſpent his Life in Eaſe and Happineſs for ten Years; and dying 1570, was buried in the Chapel of Lambeth Church, under a Stone of Marble, at the Head of Biſhop Tonſtall, with this Inſcription:

Hic jacet Thomas Thirlby, olim Epiſcopus Elienſis, qui obiit 26 die Auguſti, Anno Dom. 1570.

RICHARD COX.

Richard Cox (the Deanery being re-ſettled, became Dean after Tonſtal's Remove) was born in Buckinghamſhire, at a Place called Whaddon, educated at Eaton, thence elected to Cambridge, 1519, and was Scholar of King's College there, and commenced Maſter of Arts; thence he removed to Oxford, and was made junior Canon of the Cardinal College in December 1525. Hence, upon Suſpicion of Lutheraniſm, he removed, and became one of the Maſters of Eaton School; here he continued ſome Years; and in 1537 commenced Doctor in Divinity, and became Archdeacon of Ely. In 1543 he was made Dean of Oſney, then newly erected a Cathedral, and upon removing that See to the Cathedral Church, became Dean there. In 1547, he was choſen Chancellor of Oxford, where his Wife reſided with him, the firſt Inſtance of that Kind, which gave great Offence; of which Mr. Wood makes a ſad Detail; before which, viz. 1544, he was Preceptor to King Edward VI. for Philoſophy, Morality, and Divinity, at ſix Years of Age, who afterwards gave him a Canonary at Windſor, and made him one of his Privy Council; and, upon Thirlby's Remove, Dean of this Church, and Almoner. But, upon Queen Mary's coming to the Crown, he fled to Frankfort in Germany, where he vindicated the Engliſh Liturgy; in compiling which, he had a Part againſt John Knox and others. Upon Queen Elizabeth's Acceſſion he came over, and was nominated for the Weſtminſter Conference, and ſhortly after elected to the See of Norwich, the 22d of June 1553; but the Queen's Mind changing, made him Biſhop of Ely, and conſecrated the 21ſt of Decemb. 1559. Mr. Wood (unhappy enough in that Reſpect) gives him a mean Character, founded upon Trifles, as Feaſting his Family with Potted Veniſon; but it appears he was a good Scholar, had a Hand in collecting the Grammar after Lilly, Robinſon, &c. and publiſhed two Orations, printed in Peter Martin's Works. He is ſaid to have been a good Poet; but unleſs he had left us better and larger Proofs of it than the Lord's Prayer in Meter, at the End of the Singing Pſalms, we can form no very great Opinion of him; as ſuch Leland praiſes his Faith and Integrity, in a Copy of Verſes to Thomas Legh of Adingdon, publiſhed in Encomiis Tropheis. He ſat Biſhop twenty-two Years, in which Time it is ſtrange he had no better Remove; and dying the 22d of July 1581, was buried in the Cathedral Church of Ely, near Biſhop Goodrick's Monument.

HUGH WESTON.

Hugh Weſton, upon Dr. Cox's Flight, was made Dean Anno primo Mary. He was born at Borton Novery in Leiceſterſhire, was Student at Baliol College in Oxford, and afterwards Fellow of Lincoln College, where he ſtudied Phyſick; he was afterwards Protector of the Uuniverſity, and Rector of Lincoln College; and in 1540, Doctor in Divinity, Margaret Profeſſor, Rector of St. Botolph's Biſhopſgate, LONDON, Archdeacon of Colcheſter, and Rector of Cliff in Kent; afterwards Dean here, and Prolocutor of the Convocation; being removed from Weſtminſter, he was made Dean of Windſor, 1556; but the Year following being taken (as it is ſaid) in Adultery, he was deprived by Cardinal Pole, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; whereupon, endeavouring to go to Rome to clear himſelf, he was ſeized and impriſoned in the Tower of LONDON, where he died. He is much commended by Leland, and as ſcurrilouſly and ridiculouſly treated by Bale. He publiſhed an Oratio ad Clerum, 1553, and his Diſputations with Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer, in the Divinity School at Oxford. He died in the Tower in December 1586, and was buried before the Image of the Crucifix, in the Church of the Savoy Hoſpital in the Strand. By his Will he made in the Tower, the 26th of November 1558, he beſtowed his Effects on Pious Uſes; was very exact about his Funeral, and left Monies for his Dirige and Maſs, by the Maſter and Fellows of Baliol College, by the Rector and Fellows of Lincoln College, by the Chaplain of the Univerſity of Oxford, by the Prieſt at Iſlip, near Oxford, and by the Prieſt of Borton Novery in Lincolnſhire.

JONH FECKENHAM.

John Feckenham, ſo called from his Birthplace, Feckenham Foreſt in Worceſterſhire, where his Parents, who were poor Cottagers, reſided; his right Name being Howman. When a Boy, the Pariſh-Prieſt there diſcovering in him an Aptitude to Learning, inſtructed him much, and, with the Perſuaſions of ſome others, got him admitted into Feckenham Monaſtery at Eveſham, an Houſe of Benedictines; where having been ſome Time, he was at the Age of eighteen Years ſent to ſtudy at Oxford, at Glouceſter Hall, a College for that Order, where was an Apartment for this Abbey. Not long after, Eveſham-Abbey being among the ſmall ones diſſolved the 17th of November 1536, he ſubſcribed among his Brethren Brethren to the Reſignation, and had allowed him 10 l. per Ann. Penſion; or, as others ſay, 100 Florins. After this Diſſolution, he returned to his Studies at Oxford, where he was in 1537, and was then Senior Fellow there; and not long after, was entertained as Domeſtick Chaplain to the then Biſhop of Worceſter, Dr. Bell; who dying three Years after, Dr. Bonner, Biſhop of LONDON, took him; with whom he continued ten Years, viz. to the Year 1549, who being then deprived, Feckenham was confined in the Tower of LONDON, as ſome ſay, by Mr. Holme's Means, whom Reyner calls Pſeudo-Epiſcopus Wintonienſis; the Reaſon whereof was, his refuſing to adminiſter the Sacraments, according to the then Liturgy; though Stapleton, who is not much to be depended on, ſays, "Cranmer "occaſioned it, upon Account of Feckenham's "defending the Obſervation of Lent, and his "denying Juſtification by Faith only; and that "Cranmer cited him to Lambeth on that Account, "and appeals to the Regiſter there." The ſame Stapleton mentions his ſolemn Diſputation with Mr. Hooper, Biſhop of Worceſter, who ſays, he was thoroughly ſatisfied with his Reaſoning, as himſelf owned; but by this we may juſtly doubt this Writer, for Hooper was a Man not eaſily ſatisfied in any Reſpect, much leſs with ſo direct an Opponent to that Opinion; for which, he afterwards ſuffered, and carries with it an Air of high Improbability. But notwithſtanding Reyner takes it from him, Wood, in his Athenæ Oxon. from Reyner, and a late Plagiary from them both, without boggling at the Abſurdity. However, Feckenham was remanded to the Tower, and continued there till Queen Mary came to the Crown, who not only diſcharged him, but made him her Chaplain, afterwards Dean of St. Paul's, in which he was ſucceeded by Dr. Cole, and laſtly, Abbot of this Church. He was Diſputant in 1559 againſt Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer, at Oxford; and in 1556, had Doctor's Degrees at Oxford, without Exerciſe; and being abſent, the Enſigns of his Degrees were ſent him. During which Time, he was reckoned a Man of great Moderation, and no ſmall Friend to the Princeſs Elizabeth, who did not forget it after ſhe came to the Crown, by offering him any Church-Preferment; but he refuſed it. His Diſputation with Lady Jane Gray, you may ſee, but not depend on the Manner, in Mr. Fox, who is wonderfully civil in paſſing him by, without blackening; on the other Hand, Pitts is incredibly fond of, and laviſh in his Character, and does not forget to give a plentiful Share of ill Language to Queen Elizabeth and her Miniſters, with as much Reaſon, perhaps, as he commends Dr. Storey, whom, he ſays, Feckenham prepared to die for the Faith; but, as appears by the Execution, very lamely. But to return; upon the Death of Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth ſent for Feckenham, with Intent to conſult and reward him; he was then planting thoſe Elms which are now in the Prebends Garden, and (which they of his Church ſeem to commend him for) would not go till he had done what he was about. Saunders ſays, but perhaps without Authority, that he was, on that Interview, offered the Archbiſhoprick of Canterbury, but refuſed it. Stapleton is inſufferably hot upon the Queen's Ingratitude, but has forgot to mention the Abbot's Heat in oppoſing her; for, in the Parliament called in the firſt Year of her Reign, he was the only Abbot preſent, and proteſted, and ſpoke expreſsly againſt every thing tending to that Reformation. On Thurſday the 9th of March, 1559, Anno 1 Elizabeth, he was diſſenting to a Bill for veſting the Lands in the Lord Richard. On Wedneſday the 15th, to the Proviſo's concerning the firſt Fruits and Tenths. On Saturday the 18th, to the Bill for reſtoring the Supremacy. On Wedneſday the 22d, to the Bill for aſſuring Lands of the Biſhoprick of Winchester to Patentees of King Edward VI. And on Wedneſday the 5th of April he was named with the Duke of Norfolk, Earl of Rutland, Lord Rich. Lord North, and Lord Haſtings of Loughborow, concerning a Bill for Leaſes, to be made by Spiritual Perſons. Two Days after he diſſented to the Bill for the Queen's taking Temporal Poſſeſſions upon Voidance of Archbiſhopricks, or Biſhopricks. On Monday the 17th of April, to the Bill of Supremacy, a ſecond Time; and likewiſe when it paſſed; at which Time he made an elaborate Speech againſt the Bill. He diſſented likewiſe to the Bill for annexing Religious Houſes to the Crown; during all which, he was the only Abbot that ſat in Parliament, and took the loweſt Place on the Biſhop's Form. For this ſtrong Oppoſition, in the ſecond Year of the Queen's Reign, he was confined Priſoner in the Tower, where he wrote againſt the Oath of Supremacy; which Dr. Horn, Biſhop of Winchester, anſwered; whoſe Book Reyner calls, Librum impium plenumque mendaciis. This Piece of Feckenham is printed in Reyner. From the Tower, he was removed to the Cuſtody of Dr. Horn, where he was generouſly and handſomely treated; but, if we believe Stapleton, Reyner, &c. they tell us the contrary, a quo inciviliter & perfide more miniſtrorum novi evangelii tractatus fuit. He was again remitted to the Tower, and ſoon after, by the Queen's Indulgence, thence to the Marſhalſea, where he had more Liberty and Air. Soon after he was diſcharged, and lived privately in Holbourn, where he built an Aquaduct: Some Time after, the frequent Attempts upon the Queen's Life, and the reſtleſs Spirit of ſome of that Church, obliged him to ſtrict Confinement; and then (together with Dr. Oxenbridge, Dr. Watſon, Biſhop of Lincoln, Dr. Young, &c.) he was confined Priſoner to Wisbich Caſtle in Cambridgeſhire, here he ended his Days, 1585, in great Piety and Devotion. Mr. Camden ſays, he was a learned and good Man, lived a long while, did a great deal of Good to the Poor, and always ſolicited the Minds of his Adverſaries to Good. He built a Stone Croſs at Wisbich, and did other publick Acts. He was a ſhort Man, of a round Viſage, freſh Colour, affable and pleaſant; and though Reyner went too far in calling him Martyr, yet he was a good, mild, modeſt, charitable Man, and a devout Chriſtian. He lies buried in Wisbich Church.

WILLIAM BILL.

William Bill, upon Feckenham's Remove, and the Alteration of this Church to a Deanery, was nominated Dean thereof, as appears by the Patent for that Purpoſe. This Dr. Bill, had in King Edward's Time, been Maſter of Trinity College in Cambridge; but by Queen Mary's being ejected, he was by Queen Elizabeth reinſtated, to which he had additionally conferred on him, the Provoſtſhip of Eaton College, and was made great Almoner to the Queen.

RICHARD NEAL.

Richard Neal, D. D. Son of a Tallow Chandler, born in King-ſtreet, Weſtminſter, and educated in this College; thence elected to St. John's in Cambridge; afterwards taught School, and became Chaplain to Sir William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, and his Son Sir Robert, afterwards Earl of Salisbury, who from ſome Steps, gave him, Anno 1590, the Vicarage of Cheſhunt in Hertfordſhire, where Theobalds, then the Seat of that Earl, and afterwards the Palace Royal, was ſituated ſituated. Afterwards he was D. D. both in Cambridge and Oxford, and made Maſter of the Savoy, Dean of this Church, and Clerk of the Cloſet to King James and King Charles I. which occaſioned Burton's Envy with that of Prynne and Baſtwick. In 1608, he was conſecrated Biſhop of Rocheſter, and kept this Deanery in Commendam two Years. After he was removed to Litchfield and Coventry; thence to Lincoln, in 1631; thence to Wincheſter, on Dr. Andrew's Death: While he was in which See, the Commons, and Oliver Cromwell among them, charged him with being a Papiſt, and encouraging Arminians, which occaſioned great Diſputes in the Houſe: He was laſtly made Archbiſhop of York, in which See he dy'd the 31ſt of October 1640, three Days before the Meeting of the Long Parliament, and was buried in his Cathedral of St. Peter's, as ſome ſay, or as Wood, in this Abbey-Church. He ſtrongly oppoſed the Scots, who then ſtruggled for Places, and was an affectionate Subject to his Prince, an indulgent Father to his Clergy, a bountiful Patron to his Chaplains, and a true Friend to all who relied on him.

GEORGE MOUNTIGNE.

George Mountigne, born at Cawood in Yorkſhire, educated at Queen's-College in Cambridge, and Lecturer of Greſham-College in LONDON, followed Dr. Neal in his Preferment of Maſter of the Savoy, Dean of Weſtminſter, of Lithcfield and Coventry, in 1610; Biſhop of Lincoln in 1617, thence tranſlated to LONDON in 1621, to Durham 1627, and laſtly to York 1628; after which Inſtallation he lived not long; but dying aged 59 Years, ſix Months and two Days, was buried in the Chancel of Cawood Church in Yorkſhire, where, againſt the North Wall is his Marble Buſto in Sleeves, imitative of his Habit, and a large Inſcription under it.

ROBERT TOUNSON.

Robert Tounſon, D. D. educated at Cambridge, in Queen's-College, of which he was afterwards Fellow. He was, Anno 1620, made Biſhop of Saliſbury, dy'd within a Year after, viz. May 15, 1621, as Mr. Wood ſays, in a mean Condition, leaving a Wife named Margaret, and 15 Children behind him. He was buried on the South Side of the Sacriſtarea, over-againſt the Door of St. Edmund's Chapel in this Church, but without any Signal of the Place.

JOHN WILLIAMS.

John Williams, born at Aberconway in Caernarvonſhire, educated in St. John's College in Cambridge, and Fellow of the ſame: Afterwards Chancellor Egerton entertained him as Chaplain: He was ſoon after Rector of Waldgrave in Northamptonſhire, and of Dinan and Grafton, Reſidentiary in, and Prebend to the Church of Lincoln, and Chanter Prebend of Peterborough, and had a Donative in Wales, Prieſt-Rector of the Savoy, and Chaplain to King James I. and on September 10, 1619, preferred to the Deanery of Saliſbury; upon which he reſigned the Savoy, which was given to the Archbiſhop of Spalato. Soon after this he grew a great Favourite of George Villars, Duke of Buckingham, who procured him to be made a Privy Counſellor, and Dean of this Church, 1620; the Year following he was made Biſhop of Lincoln, and Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and held his Deanary in commendam. After this Preferment, he behaved himſelf not ſo grateful to his Benefactor as was expected; ſo that ſoon after King Charles I's Acceſſion to the Throne, he was removed, and at the Coronation ſet aſide from that great Office due to the Deans of Weſtminſter. Upon Archbiſhop Laud's Riſe, (which, ſay ſome, was through William's Intereſt) he daily declined, but not without very great Malice expreſſed to that Prelate, whom he ſeemed to contemn much. In the firſt Year of that Prince's Reign, viz. on the 25th of October, 1625, the Great Seal was taken from him, and he removed from the Council, and his Parliamentary Writ refuſed; upon which he retired, and ſided with the Puritans, among whom he took upon him to talk of Things and Perſons, without a ſtrict Regard to Veracity; and wrote a Book againſt Innovations, as he ſtiled them, in which (ſays Chanceſſor Hyde) there was much good Learning, and too little Gravity for a Biſhop: He, during his Diſgrace, let fall ſome Expreſſions concerning the King; for which, being tried in the Star-Chamber, and endeavouring, by unfair Methods, to mend his Cauſe, which Biſhop Hacket, who, 'tis evident, writ for him, ſeems to deny, but the contrary is elſe undoubted: Upon this he was fined in the Star-Chamber 10,000 l. ſuſpended ab officio & beneficio, and impriſoned in the Tower during the King's Pleaſure. After this ſome Papers being found in his Seat, Bugden, ſent by Mr. Osbaldſtone, Maſter of Weſtminſter School, the Biſhop was again fined 8000 l. for divulging ſcandalous Libels againſt Privy-Counſellors. After a conderable Confinement, he was, upon the Archbiſhop of Canterbury's Fall, releaſed; (Ruſhworth mentions a very odd Dream this Prelate had in the Tower upon that Occaſion) the Party then thinking his ſevere Uſage would engage him in any Meaſures: But the Writer of his Life ſays they were diſappointed, for he was, on the contrary, very warm againſt their Proceedings; inſomuch that ſome ſaid, they had conjured up a Spirit they could not lay, and the King was ſo affected with this ſeeming Sincerity, that he gave him a private Audience, and reverſed all Orders made againſt him; by this Means did this artful Stateſman enable himſelf to do the more Miſchief; for the Earl of Straſford being brought to his Trial, Biſhop Williams, without conſulting the Bench of his Order, waved their Privilege upon that Occaſion, as Lord Clarendon tells us, which Biſhop Hacket denies, and gives a learned and laborious Speech to defend their Right on that Occaſion, the Chancellor being of Character in the Houſe at that Time, is rather to be depended on; for Biſhop Hacket being then only a Pariſh Rector, ſeems to have had no other Way of knowing Things, but from the Biſhop himſelf, who is unhappily charged by the Chancellor of reporting Things of himſelf, and forming Diſcourſes with an Air of Confidence, which had not the leaſt Foundation in Reality. But to return, the Earl being ſhamefully and illegally condemned, the King's Averſion to ſign for his Execution, was palliated by a Piece of moſt unchriſtian Policy, that the King had a double Conſcience, and might charge the publick one, with what was a Sin againſt the private one; this is what has by ſome been charged upon Archbiſhop Uſher, but Biſhop Hacket ſays it was the joint Opinion of Uſher, Morton, Williams and Potter; and that the Diſtinction was the Matter of Fact, and that of Law; and that he ſhould leave the latter to his Judges, and the ſame Perſon tells us, that he, Williams, with the reſt, would have gone thro' Fire and Water to have ſaved him: How far this is to be depended on more than the Chancellor, who ſays he wrote his Hiſtory by the King's Order, and had his Materials from his Mouth or Letters, is left to the Publick: A few Weeks after this he was tranſlated to the Archbiſhoprick of York, as ſome ſay, to oblige the Puritans, Puritans, as others to quiet his Spirit: Upon the Cry of No Biſhops he was inſulted by the Mob, to the Houſe, his Robes tore off his Back, and he well-nigh murdered; upon which, in Heat, he returned to the Dean's Houſe: He here ſent for what Biſhops were in Town, and drew up a Proteſtation againſt the Proceedings of the Houſe, till they could come ſafely thither; upon which raſh Proceeding, he, with them, was committed to the Tower; afterwards, when the King was at Oxford, he repaired to him, where the King gave him a Commiſſion; and going into Wales, he repaired his Caſtle of Aberconwey, and fortified it for the King's Service; but upon ſome Doubts of his Fidelity, or rather by ill concerted Councils, there was another Governor ſent, and he, after a great Expence, in a Manner thruſt out; whereupon he retired to Penryn, where he had a Houſe, and fortified that, and made it a Garriſon for the Parliament; and procuring ſome Forces from Mitton, a Parliament Colonel in thoſe Parts, he went againſt Aberconwey Caſtle, and took it from the King by Force, which he kept till his dying Day. After the King's Death he grew very melancholly, and retired at Night uſually to an old Chapel to pray by himſelf; and at laſt ended a Life of ſtrange Viciſſitude, in the Houſe of the Lady Moſtyn at Glodded, near Aberconwey, on the 25th of March, 1649.

JOHN EARL.

John Earl, born in the City of York, Anno 1601, educated at Merton College in Oxford, in 1631, became Chaplain to Philip Earl of Pembroke, who gave him the Rectory of Biſhopſton in Wiltſhire, and Chaplain and Tutor to Charles Prince of Wales 1642; created Doctor of Divinity, and named one of the Aſſembly of Divines, but refuſed to ſit with them. In 1643, he was made Chancellor of the Cathedral of Salisbury, but outed of all for his Loyalty. After the Battle of Worceſter he was, at Roan in Normandy, made Chaplain and Clerk of the Cloſet; after the Reſtauration, Dean of this Church; and An. 1662, made Biſhop of Worceſter; thence tranſlated to Salisbury, Anno 1663. He was, in his early Years, reckoned a good Poet, and, in his latter, an excellent Preacher; and, throughout the Whole, a moſt religious, mild, good Man. He, among other Pieces, tranſlated the Εἰκὼν Βασιλικὴ, and Mr. Hooker's Book of Eccleſiaſtical Polity into Latin; which laſt Writer he reſembled, in a pious, peaceable, and primitive Temper. He died at Oxford when the King and Parliament were there, in the Time of the Plague, being then lodged in Univerſity College, on the 17th of November, 1665, and was buried before the high Altar in Merton College Church, on the 25th, being attended to his Grave from the publick Schools, by an Herald at Arms, and the principal Perſons of the Court and Univerſity.

JOHN DOLBEN.

John Dolben was born at Stanwick in Northamptonſhire, of which his Father, Dr. William Dolben was Rector: He was educated at the School of this College, and thence elected Student of Chriſt-Church, Oxford, from Weſtminſter School, Anno Dom. 1640, aged 15 Years. Here he was when King Charles I. was there, and bore Arms for him, and was made firſt an Enſign, and afterwards a Major in the King's Army. His Majeſty's Cauſe declining, and Oxford being ſurrendered, he returned to Chriſt-Church, and took the Degree of A. M. but was the Year following ejected by the Parliament Viſitors: He afterwards married a Niece of Dr. Gilbert Sheldon's, and Daughter of Ralph Sheldon, lately Warden of All-Souls College, with whom he lived during the Uſurpation, and aſſiſted Mr. John Fell, in his private Chapel. After the King's Reſtauration he was inſtalled Canon of Chriſt-Church, afterwards Archdeacon of LONDON, Clerk of the Cloſet to the King, and Dean of Weſtminſter, in 1662; afterwards (viz. 1666) he ſucceeded Dr. Warner, in the See of Rocheſter, and kept the Deanery in commendam. Afterwards he was made Almoner to the King; and laſtly, upon the Death of Dr. Stern, Archbiſhop of York, he ſucceeded in that See, Anno 1683. Laſtly, He died at Biſhop's-Thorp of the Small-Pox, on the 11th of April, in the Year 1686, and was buried in the Cathedral there.

THOMAS SPRAT.

This Gentleman was Son of a Clergyman, born in the County of Dorſet, in the Year 1636: His Education was in Wadham-College in Oxford, of which he was afterwards Fellow; during his Reſidence here, he wrote many Pieces of Poetry, of which ſome were afterwards publiſhed, and going with the Tide then, one of them was, upon the Death of Cromwell, at the ſame Time that Mr. Waller and Mr. Dryden did the ſame. Soon after the Reſtauration, when the fine Letters were encouraged, he began to be diſtinguiſhed for the Excellency of his Parts by George Villars, Duke of Buckingham, who was both a Maſter and Admirer of them; by the Duke he was ſome Time entertained as Chaplain, where he had the Happineſs to become acquainted with the Reſort of learned Men, who were Viſitors to the Duke; and, amongſt the reſt, with Mr. Cowley, the Poet, whoſe Writings in the Pindarick Way (ſo called at that Time) he nearly imitated, in that excellent Poem on the Plague of Athens. This Friendſhip between them continued long, even in Mr. Cowley's Retirement at Chertſey, whither he frequently went to viſit him, and was one of the Chief of thoſe few Mr. Cowley admitted to his Leiſure. Upon Mr. Cowley's Death, he wrote his Life in a very curious Stile, which was the firſt Specimen he publiſhed of Engliſh Proſe, to which he had then lately wholly applied himſelf, and for which he was afterwards ſo juſtly admired: And now his Character every Day grew more conſiderable, and reaching the Ears of King Charles II. to whom Mr. Sprat was recommended by the Duke of Buckingham's Means. The King, as a ſingular Inſtance of his Intentions to promote him, placed him immediately under his Eye, in this his Royal Collegiate Church of Weſtminſter, wherein he was nominated on the 22d Day of February, Anno Dom. 1668; and very quickly after made him a Canon of his Royal Chapel of Windſor. At length he was, upon Dr. Dolben's Advance to the See of York, Anno 1683, made Dean of this Church, and ſoon after, viz. 1684, conſecrated to the See of Rocheſter, with Liberty to hold his Deanery in commendam. Anno 1686, he was appointed to ſit in the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion upon the Biſhop of LONDON; but, convinced of the Illegality, he afterwards declined acting in it. Soon after the Revolution he fell under the Malice of ſome wretchedly deſigning Men, who made Uſe of the vileſt Engines, and the darkeſt Means to take away his Life for High Treaſon. The Wretches that ſwore againſt him were Stephen Blackhead, and one Robert Young, a pretended Prieſt, but a common and moſt notorious Cheat, who counterfeited the Biſhop's, and other Hands, to an Aſſociation, conveyed counterfeit Papers into his Houſe to confirm it, which were miraculouſly diſcovered in a Flower-Pot in the Chimney, from whence whence it took its Name of the Flower-Pot-Plot. A Relation of this wicked Contrivance the Biſhop wrote and publiſhed in two Parts, printed in the Savoy, Anno 1693, and lately reprinted, which low and intricate Subject, he has managed in a Manner that ſhews what a Command he had of Stile and Language, and could equally turn to maſterly and low Subjects. He publiſh'd a Hiſtory of the Royal Society, which for the Language and Manner, has been univerſally admir'd: And likewiſe an Account of the Ryehouſe-Plot, with other Pieces, in which he has univerſally acquired the Character of the greateſt Refiner and Maſter of our Language.

He was a Gentleman of no leſs Elegance of Life than Stile, which made his Converſation coveted and admired by our greateſt and moſt polite Men. In his Converſation he had an Eaſineſs like that of his Writing, which at the ſame Time raiſed Reſpect and Love: He was a Gentleman of great Humanity, and no leſs Charity; the Channels of which prevented that Tide of Wealth to raiſe high, which continually flowed in upon him: He had a peculiar Regard to the College School, and was the Means of fixing Dr. Frtend, the late Maſter and Ornament of it there, under whoſe happy Conduct, that Genius which always preſided there, and produced ſo great and many Ornaments of our Church and Kingdom, ſtill promiſes us continual Supplies; when Stations in either ſhall be ready to receive them: But to return, this excellent Prelate, after a long Life of 77 Years, died purely of Age, on the 20th of May, Anno Dom. 1713, and was buried in this Collegiate Church, in the Chapel dedicated to St. Nicholas, where has been ſince erected a handſome and curious Monument of veined Marble, affixed high, againſt the Wall, at the Charge of Dr. Friend, the Phyſician, and a curious Latin Inſcription, ſhewing his Excellencies.

FRANCIS ATTERBURY.

THIS Gentleman was the Son of the Rev. Dr. Atterbury, Rector of Milton, near Newport-Pagnel in Buckinghamſhire: He was educated at the Royal Grammar-School of Weſtminſter, and from thence elected to Chriſt-Church College in Oxford, where he was ſoon diſtingniſh'd for his fine Wit, and polite Erudition, and gave the Publick a remarkable Inſtance of the Excellency of his Poetick Vein, in an admirable Latin Verſion of Mr. Dryden's Abſolom and Achitopel; and an equal Elegance is ſhewn in his Engliſh poetical Compoſitions.

WHILE he continu'd in the Univerſity, there happen'd, upon a ſlight Occaſion, a very famous Controverſy of Wit and Learning, wherein he is ſaid to have borne no inconſiderable Part, tho' it was thought proper at that Time to have the Honour of it devolv'd upon another.

THE Occaſion of the Diſpute was this: "The "Hon. Mr. Boyle, late Lord Orrery, was a Stu- "dent in Chriſt-Church, and under the Tuition "of Dr. Atterbury, when about the Year 1695, "he oblig'd the World with a new Edition of "Phalaris's Epiſtles; but complains in the Pre- "face, of Dr. Bentley, the King's Library- "keeper, upon the Account of a certain Copy, "that might have aſſiſted the Edition, had he "not deny'd him the Inſpection of it, pro ſua "ſingulari Humanitate." Theſe Words ſo exaſperated the Doctor, that he inſtantly thought upon Revenge, and finding a Paſſage in Sir William Temple's Miſcellanies, wherein he gives vaſt Commendation to Æſop and Phalaris, as two Antients that had excell'd, in their Way, all that ever was wrote by Moderns: He hereupon founds a long Letter to his Friend Dr. Wotton, who had the State of Antient and Modern Learning then under his Pen, telling him, "That the "Epiſtles, which went under Phalaris's Name, "were not to be rank'd among antient Compo- "ſitions, that they were of much later Date "than their pretended Author, and probably "the Work of ſome Modern Sophiſt.

THIS he does with a great Shew of recondite Learning, but not ſo much to convince the World of Sir William's Miſtake, as to diſparage the Oxford Edition, and repreſent the honourable Perſon concerned in it, as inſufficient for the Work, devoid of all critical Knowledge, and unacquainted with the Author he pretended to publiſh. It was not long however, before there came out an Anſwer to this Elaborate Piece of Dr. Bentley's, but ſuch an Anſwer as perhaps never appear'd in any Language before. It may be juſtly call'd the Pride and Glory of the Moderns, and a Confutation of all that can be ſaid in Preference of the Antients There is ſuch an Eloquence of Stile, and Juſtneſs of Expreſſion, exact Method, tierce Wit, fine Raillery and genteel Satyr thro' the Whole, that whoever is minded to be curiouſly entertained for a While, let him read it; whoever deſires to overcome in in the Philological Way, let him make it his Pattern, and learn to imitate it: He will ſoon perceive therein, ſuch a Strength of Genius, and Warmth of Invention, guided by Art, and kept in by the Laws of correct Writing, ſuch an eaſy Diſplay of Learning, happy Declenſion of his Adverſary's Force, and foiling him frequently at his own Weapon, as will induce him to be of Opinion, viz. that Dr. Bentley was certainly cut down by ſome eminent Maſter, however decent it might be thought at that Time for a young Gentleman to give him the Coup de Grace, and ſharpen it with this Sarcaſm, Pallas te hoc vulnere Pallas immolat.

WHAT may convince the World of the Truth of this common Conjecture, is the Figure that he makes in another fam'd Controverſy, wherein he avowdly ſtands alone, and treats his Adverſary, (no leſs an Adverſary than the Rev. Dr. Wake, preſent Archbiſhop of Canterbury) in the ſame keen Manner.

To give the Reader a ſmall Inſight into the Grounds of this Controverſy, it may not be improper to ſet before him the Source from whence the Diſpute aroſe.

ABOUT the Year 1696, there came out a Pamphlet ſuppoſed to be written by the Reverend Dr. Binckes, occaſioned by the Interruption of Convocations, and intitl'd, A Letter to a Convocation Man, concerning the Rights, Powers, and Privileges of that Body. The Principal Matters which that Author inſiſted on, were, Firſt, The Clergy's Right to frequent Synods, according to the Canons of the Chriſtian Church, and Conſtitution of this Realm. Secondly, Their Right of Meeting and Sitting in Convocation, as often as a new Parliament meets and ſits. And Thirdly, A Right of Treating and Deliberating about ſuch Affairs as lie within their proper Sphere, and of coming to fit Reſolutions upon them, without being neceſſitated antecedently to qualify themſelves for ſuch Acts and Debates, by a Licence under the Broad Seal of England. The Opinions of Men in both Houſes of Convocation, were ſtrangely divided about theſe Queſtions; ſome thought them Rights intirely due to the Clergy, and eſſential to the Being of Eccleſiaſtical Synods; others, introductive of too bold an Independancy, and Encroachments upon Regal Authority, not to be borne; among thoſe of the latter Opinion, appear'd Dr. Wake, and in the Year 1697, publiſhed his Book intitl'd, The Authority of Chriſtian Princes over their Eccleſiaſtical Synods aſſerted; with particular Reſpect to their Convocations of the Clergy of the Church of their

England. The Deſign of which Work, was, as he declared in his Appeal, &c. no other than to defend the King's Supremacy. " I was not ſo " little acquainted, ſays he, with the Tempers " and Deſigns of a certain Party among us, as " not to know that my Undertaking would be " likely to diſpleaſe thoſe, who think any the " laſt Authority that is given to his preſent Ma- " jeſty, to be an Encroachment either upon the " Civil or Eccleſiaſtical Rights." And in another Place, " Thus far, 'tis plain, (adds he) they " have gone towards it, that as they have before " ſhewn the Church to be out of the Protection " of the Prince, ſo they will by and by declare the Prince to be out of the Boſom of the " Church, &c. The World ſeemed to be ſatisfied with Dr. Wake's Sentiments, 'till in the Year 1700, Dr. Atterbury publiſh'd, (without his Name) an Anſwer to his Treatiſe, and thus accoſts the Reader in his Preface, " I con- " feſs I came to Dr. Wake's Book, with Expec- " tations of finding there, whatever was neceſ- " ſary to ſet this Matter in a clear Light: The " Bulk of the Work, the Appearance of Learn- " ing it carry'd, and the great Authority by " which it endeavour'd to recommend itſelf, all " ſeem'd to promiſe Exactneſs: But upon peru- " ſing it, to my Surprize, I found that it was a " ſhallow empty Performance, written without " any Knowledge of our Conſtitution, any Skill " in the particular Subject of Debate, upon ſuch " Principles as are deſtructive of all our Civil, " as well as Eccleſiaſtical Liberties, and with " ſuch Aſperſions on the Clergy, both dead and " living, as were no leſs injurious to the Body, " than his Doctrine.

The very beſt Conſtruction, continues he, that has been put upon Dr. Wake's Attempt by candid Readers, is, that it was an Endeavour to advance the Prerogative of the Prince in Church Matters as high, and to depreſs the Intereſt of the Subject-Spiritual as low as ever he could, with any Colour of Truth: But, ſurely, this itſelf is no very creditable Account of it: Thoſe Caſuiſts that have taken Pains to inſtruct Men how near they may poſſibly come to a Sin without actually ſinning, have not been reckoned the honeſt Part of their Profeſſion; and thoſe Divines, who read Leſſons to Princes, how to ſtrain their Eccleſiaſtical Power to the utmoſt without exceeding it, and oppreſs their Clergy legally, are not ſurely the beſt Men of their Order; they are Church Empſons and Dudleys, and uſually find the Fate of ſuch wretched Inſtruments to be deteſted by the one Side, and at laſt abandoned by the other.

Were all that Dr. Wake ſays ſtrictly true and juſtifiable, yet whether the labouring the Point ſo heartily as he does, and ſhewing himſelf ſo willing to prove the Church to have no Rights and Privileges, be a very decent Part in a Clergyman, he leaves his Friends to conſider. The World, I fear, is ſo ill-natur'd as to believe that ſeldom any Man is over-buſy in leſſening the Publick Intereſts of that Body to which he belongs, who does not hope to find his private Account in it. But, when all a Man advances is not only ill-deſigned, but ill-grounded, and his Principles are as falſe as they are ſcandalous, (as I have evidently proved his to be) there are no Names and Cenſures too bad to be beſtowed on ſuch Writers and their Writings.

It was the Abhorrence I had of this unworthy Treatment which the Reputation and Rights of the Order have found from Dr. Wake, and of the Slaviſh Tendency of his Principles, in Reſpect both to the Church and State, that gave Reſolutions of expoſing the Weakneſs and Inſincerity of his Attempt, and of doing Right to Truth and an injured Conſtitution.

To this Book of Dr. Atterbury's, Dr. Wake, in the Year 1703, publiſhed a Reply in Folio, entitled, The State of the Church and Clergy of England, &c. In the Preface whereof, he makes this Complaint: " Upon my firſt Peruſal (of " what Dr. Atterbury had wrote) I ſaw a Spirit " of Wrath and Uncharitableneſs, accompanied " with ſuch an Aſſurance of the then unknown " Author's Abilities for ſuch an Undertaking, " as I had hardly ever met with in the like De- " gree before: I perceived that he deſired, in " the direct Reverſe of what I had profeſſed, to " be looked upon to have written with Care and " Deliberation, to have fully ſearched into his " Subject, and to have been no leſs plentifully " ſtored with Materials of all Kinds for the per- " fect clearing of it. And though I do not think " a Man of Pride and Arrogance, full of him- " ſelf, and a Deſpiſer of all others, to be gene- " rally beſt qualified to know either himſelf or " the Truth, yet I hoped I ſhould here find ſome- " what to clear the one, and thereby to attone " for, if not juſtify, the other.

" In my Examination of the whole Book, I " found in it enough to commend the Wit, tho' " not the Spirit of him who wrote it. To pay " what is due even to an Adverſary, it muſt be " allowed that Dr. Atterbury has done all that a " Man of forward Parts, and a hearty Zeal could " do, to defend the Cauſe which he had eſ- " pouſed; he has choſen the moſt plauſible To- " picks of Argumentation; he has given them " all the Advantage that either a ſprightly Wit, " or a good Aſſurance, could afford them. But " he wanted one Thing; he had no Truth on " his Side: And Error, though it may be pal- " liated by an artificial Manager, ſuch as Dr. " Atterbury, without Controverſy is to be diſ- " guiſed ſo as to deceive, ſometimes, even a " wary Reader; yet it will not bear a ſtrict " Examination: And accordingly I have ſhewn " him, notwithſtanding all his other Endowments " (in which, if he pleaſes, he ſhall have my free " Conſent to ſtand above me) to have deluded " the World with a meer Romance, and, from " the one End of his Diſcourſe to the other, to " have delivered a Hiſtory, not of what was " really, but of what it was his Intereſt to make " it believe had been done. —— This I can " with great Sincerity profeſs, and having ſaid " it, I ſhall have done; I have not willingly " miſtaken, much leſs have I miſrepreſented, any " Matter of Fact; I have not knowingly concealed " any Thing that made againſt me; I have aſ- " ſerted nothing but what I verily believe to be " the Truth; and I have defended it with no- " thing but what, after a diligent Examination, " I take to be true. Under this Aſſurance I cheer- " fully commit myſelf, and my Cauſe, to the " Judgment of all wiſe and charitable, and in- " different Perſons; for the reſt, and particular- " ly for Dr. Atterbury, they have their Liberty; " let them think, let them ſpeak, let them write " as they pleaſe of me.

These Paſſages are related by the Author of his Life, to let the Reader know with what Spirit and Reſolution theſe two Diſputants entered the Liſts; how they behaved, and to whom the Victory fell, is not ſo well decided. Men ſpeak variouſly, and accordingly as they are affected: But the general Opinion is, that however Truth may be on Dr. Wake's Side, yet the Appearance of it was certainly with Dr. Atterbury; and that whatever he might want in Point of Argument and Fact, he abundantly ſupply'd by the Elegance of his Stile, his fine Turn of Thought, and Copiouſneſs of Invention; ſo that, from a dry and intricate Subject, he has furniſhed out a very curious Entertainment for his Reader. The Conſequence of the Debate, however, proved very advantageous vantageous to them both. Dr. Wake was ſoon promoted to the Bench of Biſhops, and Dr. Atterbury had inſtantly his Doctor of Divinity's Degree preſented him by the Univerſity, and ſome honorary Preferments, not long after, conferred upon him for his Performance.

SOME Time before the Death of his Father, he made Application to the late Earl of Nottingham to ſucceed in the Rectory of Milton; but being diſappointed of what he then called the Height of his Ambition, he betook himſelf to Town, where, in a ſhort Time, he diſtinguiſhed himſelf in ſuch a Manner, that he was made Chaplain to their Majeſties, King William and Queen Mary, and Preacher at Bridewell; the Governors of which Hoſpital afterwards recommended him to the Lectureſhip of St. Bridget's.

WHILE he continued in this Station, the Convocation-Controverſy ſprung up, and his Vindication of the Rights, Powers, and Privileges of that Venerable Body, (which he publiſhed in 1700) gained him great Applauſe among his Brethren, and proved a ſucceſsful Step to his Preferment afterwards.

IN the Year 1701, he preached before the Honourable Houſe of Commons, and gave ſuch an accurate Deſcription of our Conſtitution, both Civil and Eccleſiaſtical, and ſuch a fine Commendation of King William, as was a great Means to continue him Chaplain. After the King's Deceaſe, and when others were removed from that honourable Office, Queen Anne, upon her Acceſſion to the Throne, made him her Chaplain, and advanced him afterwards to the Deanery of Carliſle, very probably for the amiable Character he had given her in his Sermon before the Houſe of Commons, on the 8th of March 1703-4.

SIR Jonathan Trelawney, the Lord Biſhop of Exeter, made him Archdeacon of Totneſs, and Canon-Reſidentiary of Exeter, 1707.

SIR John Trevor, a great Diſcerner of Men and their Abilities, was ſo ſtruck with his Fame, and charmed with his Eloquence, that he made him Preacher of the Rolls Chapel in 1709.

THE Convocation of the Clergy choſe him unanimouſly their Prolocutor 1710, in thankful Remembrance of what Honour he had done them, when he magnified their Office, and evinc'd the Dignity of the Prieſthood in a florid Diſcourſe before the Sons of the Clergy, not many Months before.

'TIS certain that his elegant and pathetick Sermon upon the Death of Prince George, deſigned to move the Paſſions, and calculated for the Conſolation of the Queen, had this Effect, that it gained him the Deanery of Chriſt-Church in 1711, notwithſtanding the Competition of Dr. Smallridge, no contemptible Candidate, and the warm Applications that, by Men of Power and Authority, were made in his Behalf; and 'tis not unlikely that the Remembrance of the ſame Sermon pleaded in his Favour, and mightily befriended the Earl of Oxford's Recommendation of him: When the Queen was pleaſed, in the Year 1713, to promote him to the Biſhoprick of Rocheſter, the Height of his Preferment, but not of his Ambition, for it was the Primacy of all England that he aimed at, and, had not the Queen died as ſhe did, 'twas very likely he would have obtained it.

AFTER the Acceſſion of his Majeſty King George I. moſt of the Party with whom the Biſhop of Rocheſter had joined himſelf, made Tenders of their Services to him, which, when they found not ſo well received as they imagined they would have been, and being deſtitute of all Hopes of attaining their Employments again, reſolved upon other Meaſures, and betook themſelves to another Maſter. The Earl of Mar went into the Highlands of Scotland, and there began a formal Rebellion. Foſter in Northumberland was actually in Arms, and many more Conſpirators were ripe for an Inſurrection: The Pretender's Declaration, artfully penned enough, and adapted to the prevailing Diſcontents of the Nation, was poſted up in moſt Market-Towns, and in ſome Places his Title proclaimed. In this Juncture of Affairs, 'twas thought needful, by moſt Bodies of Men, to give the Government all poſſible Aſſurance of their Fidelity and Allegiance; and accordingly there was publiſhed a Declaration of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Biſhops in and near LONDON, teſtifying their Abhorrence of the preſent Rebellion, and an Exhortation to the Clergy and People under their Care, to be zealous in the Diſcharge of their Duties to his Majeſty King George.

BUT this Declaration the Biſhop of Rocheſter refuſed to ſign, and drew a very worthy and well-affected Prelate, Biſhop Smallridge, into the ſame Refuſal. "What! ſhall I ſign a Paper, ſays "he with himſelf, for the Benefit of thoſe that "will do nothing for me? Shall I recognize the "Title of him that has already diſcarded "me from his Favour and good Eſteem? "Shall I diſcountenance an Undertaking that "may, perhaps, turn up Trump for me at laſt? "What will my good Friend the D. of Or——d "ſay, if he ſhould come and ſee my Hand to "this infamous Libel? How will he upbraid my "Puſillanimity and Want of Gratitude, to enter "into any Combination againſt him? And how "muſt the Pretender look upon thoſe that do "all this, that pray againſt him, that addreſs "againſt him, that ſware againſt him, and abjure him upon every Turn? At other Times "there may be a Diſpenſation for theſe Things; "but this is a Critical Juncture, and none knows "who may be uppermoſt, and therefore e'en "fight Dog fight Bear". Ergo propria in pelle quieſcam. This certainly was the hidden Language of the Man, and the true Reaſon of his not coming into the Declaration, though the pretended one was, a juſt Offence taken at ſome unbecoming Reflections caſt upon a Party that were not inferior to any in Point of Loyalty, as he ſaid. The Paſſage is this: We are the more concerned, that both the Clergy and People of our Communion ſhould ſhew themſelves hearty Friends to the Government upon this Occaſion, to vindicate the Honour of the Church of England, becauſe the chief Hopes of our Enemies ſeem to ariſe from Diſcontents artfully raiſed amongſt us, and becauſe "ſome who have valued themſelves, and have been too much valued by "others, for a pretended Zeal for the Church, "have joined with the Papiſts in theſe wicked "Attempts"; which, as they muſt ruin the Church if they ſucceed, ſo they cannot well end without great Reproach to it, if the reſt of us do not clearly and heartily declare our Deteſtation of ſuch Practices.

THE Reader may judge, whether there be any Thing in theſe Words ſo exceptionable, as to countenance ſuch a Behaviour, at ſuch a Time, had there not been ſome other Purpoſes to be ſerved by ſuch an Act of Diſloyalty?

THAT Rebellion, however, was happily quelled by his Majeſty's wiſe Counſels, and ſucceſsful Arms, after which the Land was for ſome Time at reſt; but in the Year 1722, a Diſcovery was made of a black and dangerous Conſpiracy, carried on by Perſons of Figure and Diſtinction here at home, in Conjunction with Traitors abroad, in order to place the Pretender on the Throne of theſe Kingdoms. The Government had ſufficient Reaſon to ſuſpect Dr. Atterbury, who had been at the Head of the Proteſters, to be no ſmall Agent in this Conſpiracy, and did therefore order him to be be apprehended. To this Purpoſe two Officers, the Under-Secretary and a Meſſenger, (as we have the Matter recounted in a Letter to Paris, ſuppoſed to be wrote by Kelly) on Auguſt 24, 1722, went, about Two o'Clock in the Afternoon, to the Biſhop's Houſe at Weſtminſter, where he then was, with Orders to bring him and his Papers before the Council. He happened to be in his Night-Gown when they came in; and being made acquainted with their Buſineſs, he deſired Time to dreſs himſelf: In the mean Time his Secretary came in, and the Officers, &c. went to ſearch for his Papers; in the ſealing of which, the Meſſenger brought a Paper which he pretended to have found in his Cloſe-Stool, and deſired that it might be ſealed up with the reſt. His Lordſhip obſerving it, and believing it to be a forged one deſired the Officers not to do it, and to bear Witneſs, that the Paper was not caught with him; but notwithſtanding they did it; and though they behaved themſelves with ſome Reſpect to him, yet they allowed the Meſſengers to treat him with the utmoſt Inſolence, who pulled and hauled him about, and ſaid, if he did not make more haſte, and put on his Shirt, &c. they would carry him away naked as he was: Upon which, he deſired his Secretary to ſee his Papers all ſealed up, and went himſelf directly to the Cock-Pit, where the Council waited for him. How this agrees with what the Author of the Letter to the Clergy of the Church of England tells us, is not to be conceived, unleſs we can imagine that thoſe who were appointed to ſecure him and his Papers, and at the ſame Time commanded to treat him with all the Reſpect he treats of, forgot the Orders of their Superiors, and fell into unwarrantable ill Uſage of him, of their own Accord. However this was, when he before came the Council he behaved with a great deal of Calmneſs, and they with much Civility towards him: He had Liberty to ſpeak for himſelf as much as he pleaſed, and they liſtened to his Defence with a great deal of Attention; and, what is more than ordinary in ſuch Caſes, after he had withdrawn he had twice Liberty to re-enter the Council-Chamber, to make for himſelf ſuch Repreſentations and Requeſts as he thought proper. 'Tis ſaid, that while he was under Examination, he chanced to make Uſe of our Saviour's Anſwer to the Jewiſh Council, while he ſtood before them: If I tell you, you will not believe me; and if I alſo ask you, you will not anſwer me, nor let me go, Luke xxii. v. 67, 68. which ſome accounted an arrogant Aſſumption in him, and a Kind of Indignity put upon the Council. After three Quarters of an Hour's Stay at the Cock-Pit, he was ſent to the Tower privately, in his own Coach, and without any Manner of Noiſe or Obſervation: But if his Account may be credited, the Uſage he met with was not ſo commendable as might be wiſhed, for his Complaint to the Houſe of Lords is this —— "I have been under a very "long and cloſe Confinement, and have been "treated with ſuch Severity, and ſo great In"dignity, as, I believe, no Priſoner in the Tower "of my Age and Function, and Rank, ever was; "by which Means, what Strength and Uſe of "my Limbs I had when I was firſt committed in "Auguſt laſt, is now ſo far declined, that I am "very unfit to make my Defence againſt a Bill of "ſuch an extraordinary Nature: The great Weak"neſs of Body and Mind under which I labour, "ſuch Uſage, ſuch Hardſhip, ſuch Inſults, as I "have undergone, might have broken a more re"ſolute Spirit, and much ſtronger Conſtitution "than falls to my Share". And, in that Let"ter of his, which was intercepted 26 Febru"ry, 1722-3, there is a Paſſage of very dark "and ambiguous Import: "You may, ſays he "to his Friend, when you ſee Br——y, im"part the Story of that Villany to him, and "deſire his Advice upon it; at what Time, "and in what Manner it may be proper for "me to bring that Matter on the Stage, and ſhew "what extraordinary Methods are taken to get "at me, and beg the Lord's Protection in the "Caſe againſt ſuch Practice. I hope William "has not given in to it, and then my Way will "(ſome Time or other) be clearer towards a "Complaint, whenever it is proper; I think "the Raſcal, my Neighbour, may be ſummon"ed before the Lords, and made to tell who "employed him to proffer ſuch Sums, and be "puniſhed by them for ſuch Practices". Who the Perſon is that he ſtigmatizes with this odious Character, is not ſo apparent; no one, certainly, that the Government employed or authorized to uſe him ill, much leſs to oppreſs, by Methods of Violence and Corruption, as he, in the Warmth of his Reſentment ſeems to inſinuate; that Thought is abhorrent to Men of Honour and Integrity; however, an unhappy Miſunderſtanding between him and Colonel Williamſon, the Deputy-Lieutenant of the Tower, from his very firſt Commitment, might foment a Jealouſy and Suſpicion in him of I know not what; but let that paſs. The Commitment of a Biſhop upon a Suſpicion of High Treaſon, as it was a Thing rarely practiſed ſince the Reformation, ſo it occaſioned various Speculations among the People. Thoſe that were the Biſhop's Friends, and pretended to the greateſt Intimacy with him, laid the whole Odium of the Matter upon the Miniſtry. They knew the Biſhop ſo well, they ſaid, his Love to our Conſtitution, and Attachment to the Proteſtant Succeſſion, his profeſſed Abhorrence of Popery, and ſettled Contempt of the Pretender, ſuch Caution and Prudence, and Circumſpection in all his Actions, would never allow him to engage in any Attempt of ſubverting the Government, ſo hazardous in itſelf, and ſo repugnant to his Principles, and therefore they imputed all to the Malice and Management of a great Miniſter of State or two, who were reſolved to remove him, on Account of ſome Perſonal Prejudices, as well as the conſtant Moleſtation he gave them in Parliament, and the particular Influence and Activity he had ſhewn in the late Election; and in this Perſwaſion they continue ſtill, obſtinate, and more confirmed, ſince Kelly, at the Bar of the Houſe of Lords, has ſolemnly acquitted him from any Knowledge of the Conſpiracy, or criminal Correſpondence with him, and reſolved all into pure Invention and Contrivance of Neynoe, a Wretch bribed with Money and fair Promiſes to deviſe a Plot, and ſuppoſititious Letters, that others might have a Handle to pull down the Pride of that haughty Prelate, and ſqueeze other innocent Perſons, as he expreſſes it. Thoſe that were Friends to the Miniſtry, were of a contrary Opinion, that the Biſhop was ſecretly a Favourer of the Pretender's Cauſe, and had formerly been tampering with Things of that Nature, even in the Queen's Time, and while his Party was excluded Power; but, upon their Re-admiſſion, relinquiſhed that Purſuit, and his Confederates therein, and became a good Subject again: They urged, that the Influence which the late Duke of Ormond had over him, aſſiſted with his own private Ambition and Revenge, might prompt him to many Things, contrary to his declared Sentiments, and inconſiſtent with the Cunning and Caution, which, in other Caſes, he was Maſter of: And, to obviate the Difficulty of the Pretender's Bigottry, and his Averſion to Popery, they talked of a certain new-invented Scheme of his, not to receive the Pretender, whoſe Principles were incurable, but his Son only, into the Kingdom; that he was to be educated a Proteſtant in the Church of England, and the Biſhop made Guardian and Lord Protector during his Minority; a prodigious Deſign, and not unlike the ambitious Spirit of the Man, though he had not the Luck to accompliſh it!

THESE, and many more Speculations, amuſed the World at that Time, and Men judged according as their Affections ran, till a Report from the Committee of the Houſe of Commons was publiſhed, which ſet the Conſpiracy in a right Light. What the Biſhop is chiefly charged with in that Report, is, carrying on a traiterous Correſpondence Abroad, in order to raiſe an Inſurrection in the Kingdom, and to procure foreign Forces to invade it; and, to ſupport this Accuſation, there are three Letters produced, to General Dillon, the late Lord Mar, and the Pretender himſelf, under the feigned Names of Chivers, Muſgrave, and Jackſon, which are of a dangerous Nature. Theſe Letters themſelves may be ſeen in the Report of the Secret Committee, and were the chief Foundation of the Reſolution taken in the Houſe of Commons on March 11. That Francis Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter was principally concerned in forming, directing, and carrying on a wicked and deteſtable Conſpiracy, for invading theſe Kingdoms with a Foreign Force, and for raiſing Inſurrections and a Rebellion at Home, in order to ſubvert our preſent Happy Eſtabliſhment in Church and State, by placing a Popiſh Pretender upon the Throne.

THIS Procedure, to puniſh by Way of Bill, occaſioned many warm Debates in the Houſe of Commons: Thoſe that oppoſed it, made uſe of ſuch Arguments as theſe: —— That, by the Rules of natural Juſtice, Laws ſhould be firſt made for the Direction of Men's Obedience, before they can be deemed guilty; that where there is no antecedent Law, there is properly no Tranſgreſſion; and to puniſh therefore by a Law, made after the Offence committed, was repugnant to Reaſon, and contrary to Juſtice. That Bills of Attainder were always Blemiſhes to the Reigns wherein they paſſed, and might be detrimental to the Intereſt and Security of his Majeſty's Government; that they were injurious to the Judicial Power of the Houſe of Lords, and deſtructive of the Uſe of Juries, the diſtinguiſhing Privilege of the People of this Nation; prejudicial to the known Liberty and Safety of an Engliſh Subject, and never to be uſed but in Caſes of extreme Neceſſity, and where the Preſervation of the State plainly required; as, in the preſent Caſe, there was not that Call and Neceſſity: That the greater the Crime and Accuſation againſt any Perſon was, the clearer and more convincing ſhould the Evidence againſt him be: That anonymous and decyphered Letter, forced Conſtructions, Hear-ſays, and Inuendo's, were no Conviction of the Biſhop's Guilt; no Grounds to ſupport the Allegations in the Preamble of the Bill, For inflicting Pains and Penalties upon him; no Evidence that could be accepted in any other Court of Judicature; but a Caſe, which if admitted, would be a fatal Precedent, ſuch as might in Time come home to them all, and make their lateſt Poſterity rue.

THOSE that argued for the Bill, alledged, That this was a Caſe of the utmoſt Neceſſity, and wherein the Security of the Government was highly concerned. That the Conſpiracy in itſelf was dangerous, as well as deteſtable; big with Miſchiefs of all Kinds, and deſtructive of every Thing that was valuable among us. That the Conſpirators had carried it on with the utmoſt Cunning as well as Wickedneſs, and skreened and ſecured themſelves under the Shelter of the Law. That tho' there appeared no legal Evidence againſt them, yet there was ſuch a Complication of Criminal Circumſtances, as amounted to the Force, though not the Formality of Evidence; and ſuch, as in the Judgment of the Legiſlature (which was not tied down to the common Rules of other Courts) might be reputed a reaſonable Conviction; that, in ſhort, there was no other Way of bringing Offenders, notoriouſly guilty, though artfully diſguiſed, to condign Puniſhment; and yet to let them eſcape, would be giving Comfort and Encouragement to ſuch Practices for the future, and promiſing Indemnity to Clandeſtine Treaſon. That this Way of proceeding has always been allowed in Caſes of the like Nature; in the Caſe of Sir John Fenwick; in the Caſe of the intended Aſſaſſinators of King William III. and, if uſed, cannot fail of having more Advantages to the State, than pernicious Conſequences attending it. That, if ever it was needful, now is the Time to appear ſtrenuous in the Cauſe of the preſent Eſtabliſhment, and to defeat the Deſigns of the Pretender and his Agents for ever, by letting them ſee that there is no Deſign, though never ſo deeply laid, and covertly carried on, that can eſcape the Vigilance of the Miniſtry, or any Perſon, though never ſo high in Station, or ſacred in Function, (let him hide his Deeds of Darkneſs in what Obſcurity he pleaſes) but muſt expect to be puniſhed, when once he is detected. That the Biſhop, in particular, who had been ſo troubleſome to the Government and turbulent in his Proceedings, who had added Perjury and Perfidy to his undutiful Behaviour, and by his ill Example impaired in others a due Senſe and Conſideration of Publick Oaths, ought leaſt of all to expect Favour and Indulgence, but rather more Rigour and Unrelenting Severity, as his Guilt had been more heinous, his Example more pernicious, and his Obligations to act otherwiſe more numerous and coerceive.

THESE were the Arguments, which, at that Time, prevailed both in the Houſe and elſewhere; and accordingly a Bill was brought in on April the 4th, to inflict certain Pains and Penalties on Francis Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, and a Copy of the Preamble, wherein all the Chief Charges againſt him were contained: "As "that he had been deeply concerned in form- "ing, &c. a wicked and deteſtable Conſpiracy, "and had been a principal Actor therein; that "he had done this, by traiterouſly conſulting "and correſponding with divers Perſons here, to "raiſe an Inſurrection in this Kingdom, and "procure Foreign Forces to invade it: That he "had done this, by traiterouſly correſponding "with the ſame wicked Intent, with the Pre- "tender himſelf, and other Perſons Abroad em- "ployed by him, knowing them to be ſo em- "ployed: That his Deſign in all this was to "depoſe his Majeſty King George; to ſubvert "our preſent Conſtitution both in Church and "State, and to place a Popiſh Pretender upon "the Throne; in Conſequence to deprive us of "our Religion, Laws and Liberties; to involve "us in Blood and Ruin, and to ſubject us to "the Bondage and Oppreſſion of Romiſh Super- "ſtition and arbitrary Power.

THESE Charges and Accuſations againſt him were ſent by the Serjeant at Arms, and Notice withal given him, that he had the Liberty of Counſel and Solicitors granted him, and all other Things neceſſary for his Defence.

THE Biſhop, 'tis plain, both by his intercepted Letter at the Tower, and his own Acknowledgment to the Lords, expected nothing more than an Impeachment to be lodged againſt him, but never proſecuted, as in the Caſes of the Lord Danby, and the Earl of Oxford; but when he perceived that the Commons intended to proceed againſt him by Bill, and to treat him with with a more unavoidable and expeditious Severity than he imagined, he was a little ſurprized at firſt, and ſeemed to expreſs the Symptoms of ſuch a Fear, as may, in ſome ſudden and unexpected Caſes, be incident to the boldeſt Man. He recovered himſelf, in a ſhort Time, and, with a Reſolution to make the beſt Defence he could, but ſuch as was conſiſtent with his Honour and Dignity, he ſent his Petition to the Houſe of Lords March the 29th, praying for their Direction and Advice, as to his Conduct in that Conjuncture, and what their Lordſhips Opinion might be, in Relation to a ſtanding Order, Prohibiting, on a Penalty, any Lord to appear, either in Perſon, or by his Counſel, before the Houſe of Commons, to anſwer any Accuſation there,

THE Debates among the Lords, upon this Occaſion, were many; the Privileges peculiar to their Houſe were largely inſiſted on, and the late Intrenchments made upon them, by the Commons, loudly complained of; but, at laſt, it was carried by a great Majority, that the Biſhop, being only a Lord in Parliament, and no Peer, might, without any Diminution to the Honour of that Houſe, appear in the Houſe of Commons, if he thought fit, and in what Manner he thought fit, to make the beſt Defence and Vindication that he could. The Biſhop, however, was not well pleaſed with this Conceſſion, nor willing to try his Fate where he thought himſelf injured and pre-judged already, and therefore ſent a Letter on April the 4th to the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, acquainting him with the Reaſons that had determined him, not to give that Houſe any Trouble concerning a Bill therein depending againſt him, but he ſhould be ready to make his Defence and Plea againſt it, when it came to be argued in another Houſe, whereof he had the Honour to be a Member. It ſo happened, that a Letter, which fell into the Miniſtry's Hands, was ſealed with the Seal of an Impreſſion very much like, if not the very ſame, with the Seal which had been obſerved on a certain criminal Letter, for which he was accuſed. This was a Circumſtance not to be neglected, becauſe it might conduce to aſcertain thoſe Letters to be his, as well as confirm ſome other Inſtances that pointed at his Guilt; and thereupon Orders were immediately ſent to the Tower, to ſeize all the Seals that were found about him or his Servants, and to bring them inſtantly away, to have their Impreſſions compared. Col. Williamſon, in this, did no more than he was commanded; but, on the 5th of April, the Biſhop ſent a Petition to the Houſe of Lords, complaining, That the ſaid Williamſon, aſſiſted by Perſons under his Authority, had, by Violence, ſearched him, carried away two Seals, and ſeized a Paper in his Pocket, which was a Letter to his Solicitor; ſearched his two Servants likewiſe, and taken away a Seal from one of them; and thereupon praying, that, as a Lord of Parliament, and Member of that Houſe, he might have Relief and Protection.

WHAT made this Complaint the more remarkable, was, his having a Bill depending againſt him in the Houſe of Commons at this Time, and the Benefit of Counſel and Solicitors allowed him for making his Defence. It ſeemed a little hard, therefore, and unreaſonable, that his Letter to his Solicitor ſhould be ſeized, or any Thing forcibly wreſted from him, that related to his Vindication: A Violation of the Rules of natural Juſtice, as well as the fundamental and known Laws of the Realm, ſome called it, that any Perſon, and more eſpecially a Lord of Parliament, being under Impriſonment and Accuſation of High Treaſon, ſhould, by Terror, or other Violence, be, in any Degree, diſturbed in, or diſabled from making his Defence; but the Thing being judged neceſſary at that Time, and directed by the Miniſtry, to enable them to make a farther Diſcovery, the Petition was diſmiſſed by a great Majority, and the Commons proceeded with their uſual Zeal and Vigour, till, on the 9th of April, they paſſed the Bill againſt him, which enacts, "That after the firſt of June 1723, he "ſhall be deprived of all his Offices, Dignities, "Promotions, and Benefices Eccleſiaſtical whatſoever; and that, from thenceforth, the ſame "ſhall be actually void, as if he were naturally "dead; and that he ſhall, for ever, be diſabled, "and rendered incapable from holding or enjoying any Office, Dignity or Emolument, within this Realm, or any other his Majeſty's Dominions; as alſo from exerciſing any Office, "Eccleſiaſtical or Spiritual whatever; that he "ſhall ſuffer perpetual Exile, and be for ever "baniſhed this Realm, and all other his Majeſty's Dominions; that he ſhall depart out of "the ſame by the 25th of June next; and if he "return into, or be found within the Realm, "or any other his Majeſty's Dominions, after the "ſaid 25th of June, he, being thereof lawfully "convicted, ſhall ſuffer as a Felon, without "Benefit of Clergy, and ſhall be utterly incapable of any Pardon from his Majeſty, his Heirs "or Succeſſors. That all Perſons who ſhall be "aiding and aſſiſting to his Return into this "Realm, or any other his Majeſty's Dominions, "or ſhall conceal him within the ſame, being "lawfully convicted thereof, ſhall be adjudged "guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy. "That if any of his Majeſty's Subjects (except "ſuch Perſons as ſhall be licenſed for that Purpoſe under the Sign Manual) ſhall, after the "25th of June, hold any Correſpondence in "Perſon with him, within this Realm, or without; or by Letters, Meſſages, or otherwiſe, "or with any Perſon employed by him, knowing ſuch Perſon to be ſo employed, they ſhall, "on Conviction, be adjudged Felons without "Benefit of Clergy: And, laſtly, That Offences againſt this Act, committed out of this "Realm, may be tried in any County within "Great Britain.

THESE were the ſeveral Pains and Penalties which paſſed into an Act againſt Dr. Atterbury, the 9th of April; and the ſame Day Mr. Yonge was ordered to carry it to the Lords, and deſire their Concurrence. After many long and earneſt Debates on both Sides, the Lords, on the 16th of May, 1723, paſſed the Bill by a great Majority of Voices, viz. 83 to 43; and on the 27th of the ſame Month the King came to the Houſe and gave the Royal Aſſent.

'TIS reported the King paſſed this Bill with ſome Regret, being much concerned, as he ſaid, that there ſhould be any juſt Occaſion of dooming to perpetual Baniſhment, a Biſhop of the Church of England; a Man of ſuch eminent Parts and Learning, and one who had been ſo nearly attendant on him at his Coronation. To alleviate however, in ſome Meaſure, the Severity of this Sentence, and that he might not be entirely cut off from the Comforts of his Children, and Converſation of his Friends, he permitted his Daughter to attend him in his Travels; and thro' the Hands of her Husband, allowed him a Correſpondence and Intercourſe with his native Country.

DR. Atterbury had now nothing elſe to do but to ſettle his Affairs, and diſpoſe of his Effects and prepare for his Departure. This Indulgence of the King had made him eaſy; and though it was thought proper, for ſome Reaſons, to detain him in Cuſtody, during his Stay, yet his Friends, from the Time that his Hearing before the Houſe of Lords was over, had free free Acceſs to him; and their Liberality on this Occaſion was profuſely great, ſupplying the Defects of his Fortune, and enabling him to live in a ſtrange Country, without any Danger of Diſtreſs: So that when the two great Stings of Baniſhment, Want of Money, and Want of Intercourſe with the World, were happily removed, he took Leave of his Friends (who, the Day before, came in great Numbers to bid him their laſt Adieu) with a great deal of Serenity and ſeeming Reſignation; and, on June the 18th, between Twelve and One at Noon, was carried in a Chair from his Apartment in the Tower to the Water Side; and thence in a Barge appointed to wait on him (wherein were Mr. Morrice and his Wife, Col. Williamſon, and Capt. Lawrence, Commander of the Man of War that was to carry him over) he fell down with the Tide, and, going on board the aforeſaid Ship, was conveyed to France, where here remained till the Time of his Death, which was A. D. 1733.

SAMUEL BRADFORD.

THIS Gentleman, upon the Deprivation of Dr. Atterbury, was tranſlated from the Biſhoprick of Carliſle to that of Rocheſter, and made alſo Dean of Weſtminſter; he was accounted a Man of good Learning and great Moderation, was Maſter of Corpus Chriſti College in Cambridge, and Rector of St. Mary le Bow in Cheapſide, before he was conſecrated Biſhop of Carliſle. On the Revival of the moſt Honourable Order of the Bath, he was Dean of that Order, as being Dean of Weſtminſter. He died on the 17th of May, 1731.

JOSEPH WILCOX,

THEN Biſhop of Gloceſter, ſucceeded, and is at preſent Biſhop of Rocheſter, and Dean of this Collegiate Church.

The PARISH of St. MARGARET.

THE Pariſh Church of St. Margaret, ſome Time within the Abbey, was, by Edward the Confeſſor, removed and built without for the Eaſe of the Monks.

THIS Church continued till the Days of King Edward I. at which Time the Merchants of the Staple, and Pariſhioners of Weſtminſter, built all a-new, the great Chancel excepted, which was built by the Abbots of Weſtminſter.

IT was likewiſe re-edified, for the moſt Part, in the Reign of King Edward IV. eſpecially the South Iſle, by the Piety of the Lady Mary Billing, and her ſecond Husband, Sir Thomas Billing, Chief Juſtice of England, in that King's Time; in which Iſle there is a fair Marble Monument of the ſaid Dame Mary Billing, who was firſt married to William Cotton, then to the ſaid Sir Thomas Billing, and laſtly to Thomas Lacy, and erected this Monument to the Memory of her three Husbands, with whoſe Arms ſhe hath adorned it, and for her own Burial, wherein ſhe was interred in the Year 1499.

IN the Controverſy which happened in the Year 1222, between Euſtace, Biſhop of LONDON, and the Chapter of St. Paul's on the one Part, and William the Abbot, and the Convent of Weſtminſter on the other, about the Matter of Juriſdiction in Weſtminſter, and other Places in the County of Middleſex; and it being referred to Stephen, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and others, as Arbitrators, to put a final End and Determination to that Controverſy, as you may read in what is written by Newcourt of the ſaid Biſhop Euſtace; they declared, inter alia, that this Church of St. Margaret, and the whole Pariſh, particularly deſcribing the Limits thereof, and all the Chapels with the ſame, with the Tythes and Appurtenances; as alſo all the Clergy and Laity therein dwelling, were free from all Epiſcopal Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of LONDON, and his Officials, and the Church of St. Paul, without any Exception. The declaratory Sentence may be ſeen at large in Wharton de Epiſcopis LONDON, p. 247, &c.
